"One frequently wishes in reading this tale by a former college boxer and sparring partner of Dempsey's . . . that he had organized his material better, eliminating some of the tiresome details, injecting more of the humor which is a saving grace for men who fight. The bright, well-written passages are marred by long, dull ones wherein the author appears to labor overhard to express some thought which afterward appears scarcely worth the telling. There is here, nevertheless, enough of color, adventure, blood, quiet heroism and live history to make the book worth while." F. L. Kluckhohn

+ — N Y Times p3 Jl 25 '43 900w

"Good material and decently written. Maps and exceptional photographs."

+ New Yorker 19:68 Jl 17 '43 50w

Reviewed by R. J. Conklin

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 15 '43 650w

"Captain Geer's voluntary effort [which] saved countless hours of suffering and many lives, plus this readable, interesting if not brilliant 'Mercy in Hell' are what one volunteer has to show for fifteen months of hard labor in the A. F. S. Not at all bad!" F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Jl 11 '43 1350w

GEISEL, JOHN BERNARD. Personal problems and morale; under the editorship of Francis T. Spaulding. 435p il $1.80 Houghton

371.422 Psychology, Applied. Youth 43-5890

High school textbook designed to help young people understand themselves, to think and act as social minded members of the community. Points are illustrated with "case histories," and there are reading suggestions, suggestions for class discussions, etc.

School & Society 59:95 F 5 '44 30w

" 'Your life in our times' is the core idea of a book which admirably meets the needs of secondary-school pupils for a down-to-earth recognition and treatment of the tremendously important personal problems and anxieties which they face daily. It contains adequate material, provided intelligent use is made of the excellent references that are found at the close of each chapter, for a one-semester course in personal problems." B. W. Gorman

+ School R 51:567 N '43 800w

Social Studies 34:287 O '43 60w

GEISEL, J. B.—Continued

"This book is superior to most other texts in its field because it is practical, not theoretical; lucid, not obscure; forthright, not evasive. It discusses with frankness and directness the things which students want to know, and it assumes that high school students are mature enough to comprehend and utilize many basic principles of psychology when explained in language of their level and in terms of their own experience." Leo Litzky

+ Social Studies 35:40 Ja '44 950w

GEIST, ROLAND C. Hiking, camping and mountaineering. 304p il pl maps $3 Harper

796.5 Walking. Camping. Mountaineering 43-4030

This book is in three parts: the first and longest deals with hiking or walking as a recreation and goes into detail about techniques, where to go, what to carry, how long and how far to walk, objectives, etc. Part two considers camping and motor camping in particular; and part three takes up mountaineering with special emphasis on advice to the novice. Index.

Booklist 39:350 My 1 '43

Bookmark 4:9 Mr '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Jl '43

"We have needed a book like this for some time, but in war time with motoring out for the duration we need it badly. It goes into just the details the inexperienced need. . . The book is the result of wide and active personal experience."

+ Weekly Book Review p22 Ap 4 '43 230w

Wis Lib Bul 39:83 Je '43

GEORGE, STEFAN ANTON. Poems; rendered into English by Carol North Valhope and Ernst Morwitz. 253p $2.75 Pantheon bks, inc, 41 Washington sq, N.Y.

831 43-3341

"A selection of poems by Stefan George, translated from the German by Ernst Morwitz, a friend of his later years, and Carol North Valhope, has finally appeared in English. George has held the position, in some enlightened opinion, of being the greatest European poet of the start of the century and of our own times." (New Yorker) The German original is given on page facing the translation. List of poems in German and English.

"George possessed a limited stock of simple ideas which he relied upon too unqualifiedly. He wrote some of the greatest poems in any language; yet he missed being a great poet because he lacked roundedness. He did not cope enough with the antipathetic and distasteful; it sufficed him to condemn without examining. . . The translations in the present book, which includes the originals too, are extremely bad. Whether they are faithful or not is unimportant in the light of their badness." Clement Greenberg

Nation 156:743 My 22 '43 1800w

"George may indeed have been, as his translators claim for him, an inventor of language, a recreator of language, and for this very reason he would of course be particularly hard to translate. . . But nothing of this genius appears in the present English version, nothing whatever. Is this partly because the translators have tried too elaborately to keep to George's forms? At all events it would be difficult to imagine anything much lamer than these singular verses: crammed with tasteless archaisms, grotesque neologisms, inversions, they are in fact a lesson in how not to do it." Conrad Aiken

— New Repub 108:805 Je 14 '43 550w

"We do not quarrel with the significance of the selections from George's various volumes presented here; we do quarrel with the editors' and translators' notions of rendering poems into another language. Their goal, the editors tell us, was 'to imitate the form as well as to give the content of the poems . . . the inner rhythm of the original had to be traced and cast into adequate English form.' But this procedure is almost always fatal unless the translator is himself an accomplished poet, having great affinities with the poet he is rendering, and unless there happens to be a counterpart in English for the meter of equal freshness and distinction. . . The sense of language shown in the translations is not subtle; the plain truth of the matter is that the translators are not fine enough poets to render these poems in good verse, but they might have been able to make excellent versions in rhythmic prose." M. M. Colum

N Y Times p20 Mr 14 '43 750w

"Mr. Morwitz and Miss Valhope have chosen work from seven George volumes, beginning with 'Hymns' (1890), published in his twenty-second year, and ending with 'The Kingdom Come' (1928), published in his sixtieth. The full sweep of a career extraordinary in its nature is rather fully recorded. Mr. Morwitz, in a long preface, attempts to give American readers some inkling of the reasons for George's impressive life and art. This exegesis partly fails, as have so many explanations written by men who knew the poet. The addition of a portrait would have been enlightening." Louise Bogan

New Yorker 19:80 Ap 17 '43 850w

"It is a matter for gratitude that competent and sympathetic translators have undertaken to give us this edition, containing a selection of a hundred of George's best poems, both in English and German. They are worthy interpreters for the poet's first important introduction to America." Max Jakob

+ Poetry 62:334 S '43 1150w

"While no anthology can be entirely satisfactory, the present volume has been selected with great skill. Its poems acquaint the novice with the main thoughts and with many human aspects of an overflowing, rich soul." Hubertus zu Lowenstein

+ Sat R of Lit 26:26 Jl 24 '43 800w

"George is, even in his mannerisms, one of the first poets of our time. He ranks with Yeats and Valéry. He commands a style thoroughly his own, and, as great artists are wont to do, he has created his own ancestry. He has added to the Golden Treasury of European poetry. . . Anyone wishing to become acquainted with Stefan George will have to read this volume. The more so as the Introduction by Ernst Morwitz is important as an authoritative commentary on poems which because of their compactness may sometimes seem obscure. So much of what is written on verse is irrelevant, while here speaks a man whose life has, evidently, been given to poetry. His pages are noteworthy for their reticence and closely woven warp." Herbert Steiner

+ Yale R n s 32:805 summer '43 900w

GERARD, FRANCIS. Malta magnificent. (Whittlesey house publication) 253p il map $2.50 McGraw

940.5442 World war, 1939—Malta. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English 43-14461

"Major Gerard, who spent two years on the island of Malta as intelligence officer attached to the Office of Information, pays tribute to indomitable spirit of the English and Maltese during almost continuous air raids. Mentions British staff and their families, submarine commanders, prominent Maltese by name. Admiring and affectionate descriptions of the island and its people." Library J

Booklist 40:111 D 1 '43

Commonweal 38:636 O 15 '43 750w

Commonweal 39:38 O 29 '43 60w

Reviewed by Margaret Owen

Library J 68:724 S 15 '43 70w

"It's difficult to see how any man—even if he tried—could write a bad book about Malta. The majestic and inherent heroism of the island precludes mediocrity of narrative. All of which is by way of saying that Major Gerard has almost gone and done it. His 'Malta Magnificent' contributes little to our understanding of the Maltese or the incredible fiber of their make-up. Nor does it tell us much that we do not already know about the resistance of the island." Philip Hamburger

— + N Y Times p37 O 10 '43 850w

"The story of the siege is an epic that cannot be spoilt even by so lavish a use of italics as Major Gerard's; he succeeds very well in conveying both the atmosphere of Malta under siege and his own admiration for Maltese fortitude."
Times [London] Lit Sup p604 D 18 '43 180w

Reviewed by P. J. Searles
Weekly Book Review p26 N 7 '43 1050w

GERLING, C. J., pseud. The sight saver. 202p $2 Harvest

617.7 Eye—Care and hygiene 43-3379

"Written primarily for the lay public [this is a] handbook of information about the organ of vision and the possibilities for its protection. The material is arranged alphabetically, with ample cross-indexing to facilitate location of subjects under a variety of headings. Explanations and recommendations are in keeping with medical science. . . However, as emphasized by the author, the text is not intended for purposes of self-diagnosis or self-medication. . . Included in the extensive range of topics are the structural parts of the eye, the mechanics of seeing, errors of refraction, glasses, diseases, relation of ocular disturbances to systemic conditions, illumination, protective devices and other factors affecting eye comfort and safety at work, at home, and at play." Am J Pub Health

Reviewed by R. E. Schneider
+ Am J Pub Health 33:610 My '43 300w
Booklist 40:73 N 1 '43
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 1 '43 60w

GERVASI, FRANK. But soldiers wondered why. 267p $2.75 Doubleday

940.548 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—South America. World war, 1939—Africa 43-51220

An American journalist's report on what he saw and heard during a roving assignment to South America and Africa in 1942.

"A thoughtful and challenging book. Read it." Ernest von Hartz
+ Book Week p4 Jl 18 '43 180w

"Book is of immediate interest, and while some parts are already out of date, others will be of permanent value." F. L. D. Goodrich
Library J 68:473 Je 1 '43 100w

"There's a little bit of everything in 'But Soldiers Wondered Why.' From time to time, the reader may wonder why, too." Philip Hamburger
N Y Times p3 Je 20 '43 750w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring
Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 15 '43 1850w

GESELL, ARNOLD LUCIUS, and others. Infant and child in the culture of today; the guidance of development in home and nursery school. 399p il $4 Harper

136.7 Child study. Infants 43-625

"A realistic discussion of the specific techniques for effective child guidance and psychological care in a democratic culture. A book for parents, teachers, and others who want practical guidance in the fullest development of children's innate abilities." School & Society

"A volume that can be read from cover to cover with rapt attention and with great profit." R. A. Bolt
+ Am J Pub Health 33:753 Je '43 500w

Reviewed by M. B. McGraw
Am Soc R 8:489 Ag '43 650w
Booklist 39:285 Mr 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43

"The book is a distinct contribution to the literature on infant psychology and preschool education." Julia Jacoby
+ El School J 43:556 My '43 470w

"Here, in everyday language, the development of the young child is interpreted in terms of normal behavior and its sensible guidance. So far as this reviewer knows, there is nothing like this book in print. For its practical help to parents, teachers, and anyone concerned with the very young, it cannot be overpraised." Catherine Mackenzie
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 8 '43 1050w
School & Society 57:56 Ja 9 '43 40w

"Unquestionably, the young intelligent mother could receive no better gift than this definitive book on the guidance of development." H. M. Parshley
+ Weekly Book Review p14 D 19 '43 400w
Wis Lib Bul 39:103 Jl '43

GESSLER, CLIFFORD FRANKLIN. Leaning wind. 267p il $3 Appleton-Century

919.6 South Sea islands. Islander (sampan) 43-17186

Informal narrative of the author's trip to the South Sea isles in the company of a group of scientists sent out by the Bishop museum of Honolulu. Index.

Booklist 40:144 D 15 '43

Reviewed by F. A. Boyle
Library J 68:724 S 15 '43 100w

" 'The Leaning Wind' offers a comprehensive picture of Oceania—in terms which every American can understand. The book should hearten those who have sons and brothers in the Pacific area. This book, in fact, will attract more than the usual audience of travelers and armchair adventurers. It is an excellent handbook for those who want to know just what our boys are up against out there, in addition to the Japs." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 9 '44 650w

"It is interesting, in some parts fascinating. It presents the fun, the dangers, the hardships of such an expedition. In a way it deglamorizes the motion picture conception of the South Seas and gives the strange land of the Polynesians its true life color. For those folk who never had, nor will ever have the opportunity of venturing into the coral-reefed atolls touched by the expedition, 'The Leaning Wind' will serve as a suitable substitute. It brings the philosophy, the life, the geography and the physical characteristics of all Polynesia to America to be enjoyed and studied at will." E. W. K.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 16 '44 220w

"This blend of travel-writing, nicely enough sprinkled with facts, and sympathetic interpretation of little-known peoples is the kind of thing at which Mr. Gessler is best, as those know who read his 'Road My Body Goes' [Book Review Digest 1937]. And it conveys excellently the feeling of those remote and lovely map-specks that the author saw and loved and understood on his journeyings. Many a reader will find that this book renews in him his intention, once the war is over, to go voyaging for himself through those Islands Under the Wind." J. H. Jackson
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ja 9 '44 800w
Wis Lib Bul 40:8 Ja '44

GETMAN, FREDERICK HUTTON. Outlines of physical chemistry; 7th ed, by Farrington Daniels. 691p il $3.75 Wiley

541 Chemistry, Physical and theoretical 43-5601

"The present revision involves rearrangement, the addition of more advanced material, particularly in the first part of the book, the inclusion of new developments in physical chemistry, and a somewhat different approach to thermo-dynamics and to the phase rule.

GETMAN, F. H.—Continued
Mathematical operations and practical applications are emphasized with the help of frequent examples." Pref.

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:41 Jl '43

GHIRARDI, ALFRED A. Radio troubleshooter's handbook. 3d ed rev and enl 744p il $5 Radio

621.384 Radio receivers 43-8991

"The preface states that the text, illustrations, and data have been revised; about 30 pages of new material have been added." (Booklist) For previous edition see Book Review Digest, 1942.

Booklist 39:467 Jl 15 '43

Library J 68:626 Ag '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:50 Jl '43

Reviewed by George Barrett
N Y Times p42 S 26 '43 200w

"Will, like its two previous editions, be of immense value to any one who has to repair and adjust radio receivers." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p19 Jl 11 '43 100w

GIACHINO, JOSEPH WILLIAM. Oxy-acetylene welding and cutting; learning units: rules: standards. 196p il $2.50; text ed $1.96 Manual arts

671 Welding. Metal cutting 42-22374

"Provides sufficient information and guidance for the study of welding. Includes illustrated instructions on the welding of aluminum alloys and 18-8 chromium steels, together with the official qualification test for U.S. aircraft welders." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:63 O '42

Pratt p10 F '43

GIACHINO, JOSEPH WILLIAM, and FEIRER, JOHN L. Basic bench-metal practice and precision measuring. 160p il $2.75; pa $1.84 Manual arts

621.9 Metal work 43-1061

"Elementary information to meet requirements of modern metal shop." Library J

Library J 67:952 N 1 '42 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:11 Ja '43

GIBB, THOMAS ROBINSON PIRIE. Optical methods of chemical analysis. 391p il $5 McGraw

544 Chemistry, Analytic. Optical instruments 42-16103

"This book is intended to serve the practical analyst and the advanced student in analytical chemistry. . . The eight chapters in the book deal with the following topics: spectrochemical analysis; the spectrophotometer; the colorimeter, turbidimeter, nephelometer, and fluorophotometer; the microscope, elementary crystallography; the polarizing microscope; the refractometer and the polariscope." J Phys Chem

"A valuable addition to the literature of analytical chemistry." I. M. Kolthoff
+ J Phys Chem 46:1006 N '42 400w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:53 O '42

N Y New Tech Bks 28:6 Ja '43

GIBBINGS, ROBERT. Coming down the Wye; with engravings by the author. 189p maps $3 Dutton [12s 6d Dent]

914.2 Wye river. Great Britain—Description and travel 43-14392

"Those who remember with delight 'Sweet Thames, Run Softly,' with its woodcuts by the author, will welcome the result of a two-year study of the Wye, the river that flows through Wales and England for one hundred thirty miles to empty into the Severn estuary. . . Not only is this a story of a river whose exuberance increases as one travels its length; it is of nature in her many moods; of birds and fish, lakes, towns, and people; of castles, churches, legends, and history; of mountains and old urns; of living alone in a cottage by a pool." Scientific Bk Club R

Booklist 40:113 D 1 '43

"Recommended for small library purchase." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 68:666 S 1 '43 80w

"It has humor. Quiet, sly humor that would be equally at home in a mountain inn or an army camp. It has deep knowledge got from accurate observation. As literature it satisfies mind and eye and heart. And, just as in Wales, the music of the place-names is a perpetual joy. . . Over and above everything there is the gift—it is no less—of the author's exquisite engravings." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p22 N 7 '43 360w

"This is a jewel of a book for any one who loves lanes that twist, streams that wind, a sauntering walk, a personal approach, and a joyful inconsequence in subject. Long one of the best wood engravers and illustrators in Great Britain, Robert Gibbings—he is an Irishman who takes his native Cork with him—is now growing into one of our easiest, deftest essayists." Ellis Roberts
+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 O 23 '43 380w

"There is rugged charm to this country, and a zest to the book in striking contrast to the placid loveliness of the story of the Thames. Its people are sturdy, a quality reflected in Mr. Gibbings' prose and in his humor."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 S '43 180w

"Mr. Gibbings writes delightfully and has a true eye for the colour, the form and the mood of this most magical stream—particularly in the enchanted country of the Welsh Wye. He may not perhaps observe the subtle melancholy of the river at such places, as the witches' pool under Llowes, or where the dark and lightly murmuring water flows by the trees near Clifford, yet he feels the power and the glory of the Wye and the hills; he is responsive and sensitive, not only to the river and its life, but also to the nature of the landscape and of the people in the Wye country. Both in the pictorial and in the literary sense Mr. Gibbings excels rather in the observation and the record of detail than in a more spatial view of landscape as a whole or in a more penetrating investigation of character. But this is as it should be. The essential quality of the book, both in text and illustration, is charm." C. E. Vulliamy
+ Spec 170:368 Ap 16 '43 340w

"Mr. Gibbings has with rare understanding captured the essence of this haunted, nostalgic country; his book might be justly sub-titled: 'The Golden Harp.' It is richly illustrated with his own wood-engravings, which catch to perfection the inner spirit of their text."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p634 D 26 '42 700w

Wis Lib Bul 40:8 Ja '44

GIBBONS, ROBERT FAUCETT. Bright is the morning. 339p $2.50 Knopf

43-14969

Story of a comfortably well-to-do, middle-class Alabama farm family. Of the two sons, one is bold and handsome, the other, shy and retiring is dominated by his mother. When the latter brings home a pretty young wife, the friendship between the two brothers is only saved from ruin by the quiet understanding of the father in the sons' problems.

"A sound, readable offering without any special 'regional' flavor to it at all. Which may be, for all I know, rather ironic proof of his success. . . Young Robert Gibbons' most noticeable merit is his penetration of character and the ability to move the narrative along in terms of the emotions and tensions of each of them in turn. If this story lacks impact here and there, he has given it a fluid continuity, and a structural unity free of contrivance, and these are always marks of a novelist." Peter De Vries

+ Book Week p2 O 24 '43 550w

Booklist 40:94 N 15 '43

"The Southern locale and idiom are authentically set down, and the style has directions and surety that will win many readers. Recommended for public libraries." Rice Estes

+ Library J 68:768 O 1 '43 70w

"A word should be said regarding Mr. Gibbons' style. It is at once subtle and flexible—and highly self-conscious and mannered. Its mannerisms perhaps would be less noticeable in a short story than in a full length novel where, for this reviewer at least, some of them tend at least to become irritating. Mr. Gibbons' ability, on the other hand, not only to reproduce the exact cadences of human speech in his dialogue but to fit the speeches unerringly to the characters, even to individual turns of phrase, has much to do with the authenticity of the regional background he has created." Jennings Rice

+ — N Y Times p20 O 10 '43 400w

"An unusually well-written first novel . . . by a writer who possesses the rare combination of cheerfulness, warm-heartedness, and intelligence."

+ New Yorker 19:97 O 9 '43 100w

"A story somehow told at the same time in the clear Alabama sunlight and like a reflection in a dark Alabama pool. Fortunately, this sometimes over-elaborate design in drama, which lights the present with old bitterness, old tenderness, and some old understanding, does not so preoccupy Mr. Gibbon as to prevent him from drawing his people with skill and honesty. They are in fact and not merely in drama the people of the country and small town South. Indeed, it is the warmth and humor with which he has drawn them and not what he does to them which gives his book its real distinction." Jonathan Daniels

+ Sat R of Lit 26:34 O 30 '43 450w

"Mr. Gibbons tells the story of the Gaels simply, with color and clarity in his portrayal of people and their emotions and with mounting suspense. I take it that he will consider it a compliment, rather than the reverse, that, absorbed in the interplay of character and event one is likely to forget that this is a story of the South." Mary Ross

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 O 3 '43 450w

GIBBS, ARCHIE. U-boat prisoner; the life story of a Texas sailor; ed. by Eugene Leuchtman. 208p $2 Houghton

B or 92 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. Merchant marine—U.S.

43-11695

When Archie Gibbs' ship was torpedoed and sunk in the Carribbean, he was rescued from the sea by the crew of the German submarine and held a prisoner for four days. At the end of that time he was released and put ashore via a Venezuelan motorboat. This book contains the story of Archie Gibbs' life and adventures reaching its climax in this experience with the sub.

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky

Book Week p2 Ag 15 '43 180w

Booklist 40:46 O 1 '43

" 'U-Boat Prisoner' is an unpretentious picture of a footloose guy. The Archie Gibbses of this world will probably always be victims of economics—and their own incurable need to keep moving. But in spite of that (or perhaps because of that) they'll always be first-rate company." William Du Bois

N Y Times p4 Ag 29 '43 750w

"A good, straightforward yarn, which includes the author's childhood experiences in what must have been by all odds the most brutal reform school in history."

+ New Yorker 19:72 Ag 14 '43 80w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 15 '43 1500w

" 'U-Boat Prisoner' has its faults, but lack of reader interest is not one of them. If Gibbs errs, it is on the side of frankness. His style is virile, natural, untrammeled. There is humor in his story, and no false sentiment, no bid for the reader's tears." Phil Richards

+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ag 15 '43 950w

GIBBS, SIR PHILIP HAMILTON. Interpreter. 296p $2.50 Doubleday [9s Hutchinson]

43-13338

Story of an American correspondent who returns to America in the days before Pearl Harbor, to do his part in the task of bringing America to England's side in the war.

" 'The Interpreter' is too pat and in many places too gooey. It leaves a final impression much like that caused by one of the many Hollywood quickies now taking advantage of a sure-fire situation and doing it very heavy handedly." John Norcross

— Book Week p6 Ag 29 '43 450w

Booklist 40:59 O 15 '43

"The book is a sad mistake to anyone who respects the English or the Americans; it adds nothing to Sir Philip Gibbs' reputation, and if taken seriously would do much to break the harmony that now exists between America and England."

— Cath World 158:218 N '43 230w

Christian Science Monitor p13 S 25 '43 700w

"Novel may live because atmosphere of this period is so well portrayed. Excellent description of attitude of President Roosevelt. Slight love interest. Recommended, if novel of this type is wanted." E. F. Kelly

+ Library J 68:624 Ag '43 80w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson

Manchester Guardian p3 My 21 '43 20w

"On the whole there is too little personal narrative and too much that sounds like lecture notes. Readers of earlier volumes in the series, 'This Nettle, Danger' and 'Broken Pledges,' will not wish to miss 'The Interpreter.' For new readers it is probably not the best introduction to Mr. Gibbs' lively and informative writing." Margaret Wallace

N Y Times p34 S 19 '43 500w

"In spite of some vivid pictures of London under air war, of neutral Lisbon and New York, and of peaceful, lovely Surrey, and in spite of a number of well told incidents, 'The Interpreter' is frankly a piece of propaganda (slightly in retrospect) and a second-rate novel." R. A. Cordell

Sat R of Lit 26:9 S 11 '43 500w

"The characterisation is very sketchy indeed and not at all convincing; however, the documentary content is the important part of this new volume. One can follow John Barton's slow progress with interest, as the arguments for and against America's neutrality are fairly presented. The impact of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbour makes the grand climax of the book, which is sadly weakened by the romantic sentimentalities of conception." John Hampson

+ — Spec 170:576 Je 18 '43 170w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 110w

Times [London] Lit Sup p233 My 15 '43 550w

" 'The Interpreter' is badly constructed; its dialogue is slightly Victorian, spiced with an Englishman's idea of American conversation; the author professes that the day of the old school tie is dead, but his profession resembles the efforts of a garlic eater to mask his breath with a mint drop. Sir Philip's Americans are gauche colonials. In fact, John Barton is less well bred than a Nazi he meets in Lisbon on his trip across. And as an essay in public relations—hands-across-the-sea and all that—the novel is in highly questionable taste." R. B. Cochrane

— Weekly Book Review p8 Ag 29 '43 650w

GIBBS, SALLY. You don't belong here. 279p $2.50 Doubleday
43-9412

Contrasting character studies of two girls, one a lovely, gentle Belgian refugee; the other the beautiful but selfish daughter of a well-to-do American family. The time is the present; the scene, New York and its surroundings.

"An interesting situation with dramatic possibilities peters out in a routine piece of light fiction. 'You Don't Belong Here' hasn't as much to recommend it as Miss Gibbs's earlier novel, 'Not All Your Laughter.'" Beatrice Sherman
— + N Y Times p18 My 30 '43 320w

"There comes a point where nobility is tinged with absurdity, and the author of 'You Don't Belong Here' has pushed her heroine pretty close to it" Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p20 Je 6 '43 400w

GIBSON, KATHARINE. Bow bells; il. by Vera Bock. 125p $2 Longmans
Whittington, Richard—Juvenile literature
43-15324

A retelling of the story of Dick Whittington, the apprentice lad who became three times Lord Mayor of London, and was knighted for his services to the King, and of his famous cat who brought him good luck. For readers nine to twelve.

"Every child has heard the story of Dick Whittington and his cat, but never before has that story been told so completely and beautifully as Katharine Gibson presents it here." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p6 N 14 '43 200w
Booklist 40:99 N 15 '43
Cath World 158:317 D '43 50w

"The old legend gains color and life in this entertaining version." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:412 N '43 110w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:826 O 15 '43 90w

"A feeling for the past characterizes the author's work. Add to that her ability to portray characters, plus good story material, and the result is another fine book." D. M. MacDonald
+ Library J 68:963 N 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

"For children who know the story of Dick Whittington and his cat, and for all others susceptible to a mellow tale of old London, this is a book of rare delight. . . A tale with long roots in the past, made more than ever memorable for present children, aged 9 and up." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p8 N 14 '43 270w

"The local color isn't applied too thickly, and a ten-year-old child who is just embarking on English history will be interested in the picture of teeming, smelly fourteenth-century London."
+ New Yorker 19:126 D 4 '43 50w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 110w

"Attached as we may become to the particular wording of a tale, we must admit that the form of folk stories should be now and again brought up to date. Katharine Gibson, master of the delicate art of retelling, again and again has proved that the essence of a tale is what counts, and just as a good story moves from one language to another and remains the same, so it can be moved from the mode of one period into another without loss of identity. Vera Bock, working with her as illustrator, can also express the spirit of old time in the technique of today: of all their work, this one seems to me most pleasing." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p14 N 14 '43 550w

GIBSON, WILFRID WILSON. Challenge. 41p $1 (3s 6d) Oxford
821 43-2897

"Few of these poems treat of war in general, and those that do, 'Death and Destruction,' for example, or 'The Star,' view it pessimistically in the large context of man's recurrent struggle with primeval night. . . But it is with the humble strivers in and victims of the immediate struggle that Mr. Gibson is chiefly concerned, those seamen, shepherds, welders, airmen, miners, and their wives and mothers with whom his imagination has always been so intimately at home." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Perhaps Mr. Gibson has written too much, spread his work too thin. In all the years he has not acquired a distinctive quality which would stamp his work, if unsigned, as his own. Deliberately choosing the commonplace for subject, and in that following some of the best of examples, he has, alas, failed to raise expression beyond the commonplace." Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 1 '43 140w

"Pity is Mr. Gibson's strongest impulse and also the cause, perhaps, of his chief defect as a poet. It is not enough simply to state the poignant incident as he too often does. The imagination which creates poetry is more than sympathy and a practised artistry. It informs his best pieces but fades into sentiment in his weakest." H. I'A. F.
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 D 9 '42 150w

Reviewed by Gustav Davidson
N Y Times p22 Je 6 '43 200w

Reviewed by W. R. Benét
Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ag 21 '43 100w

"Challenge is as perfect a collection of poems as Mr. Gibson has ever written—and that means a lot when one contemplates his lifework. The themes in this book are more universal, more significant, than he has sometimes used, and the result is a more compelling and lyrical authority in the work. The lapidary and epigrammatic quality of Mr. Gibson's art, always concise and objective, has given him a place in English poetry where he is likely to stand permanently, along with Clare, Crabbe and Davies." Richard Church
+ Spec 170:550 Je 11 '43 160w
Times [London] Lit Sup p32 Ja 16 '43 260w

GIL GILBERT, ENRIQUE. Our daily bread; tr. from the Spanish by Dudley Poore. 246p $2.50 Farrar 43-6172

A story of life on a rice plantation on an Ecuadorian river. The novel is in three parts: the first relates how a band of workers came up the river and cleared the forest and planted the rice; the second tells the story of the owner of the land and how he came by his riches; and the last shows what the coming of machinery and cheap labor did to the original workers.

Atlantic 172:123 Ag '43 120w

"The construction of this tale is not without slight flaws. A few of the sentences seem self-conscious. But despite these minor imperfections this is a powerful and moving narrative which should help us to better understand our complex pan-American neighbors." Sterling North
+ — Book Week p3 Jl 18 '43 550w
Booklist 40:114 D 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

"The best thing about this book is the title, for, to be perfectly frank, one comes to the end in utter confusion. Only two impressions are distinct, and they seem to have no important bearing on the main topic: female curves and expectant mothers. Persons and events are in a hopeless muddle, and the story throughout lacks sequence and cohesion." L. V. Vila
— Commonweal 38:471 Ag 27 '43 180w

Reviewed by Rice Estes
Library J 68:573 Jl '43 70w

"Enrique Gil Gilbert is a Professor of Literature at the Instituto Nacional Vicente Rocafuerte. His style is clear, vigorous and dramatic; it is exuberant, yet not wasteful. Above everything, it is imaginative. Colors and scents, the abstractions, too, are described in the terms of their own world. . . The vigor of this book is fundamental. The special enchantment of its background gives it a startling beauty and a spiritual meaning all its own." Eudora Welty

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 18 '43 550w

"A rich and vital book, translated into a strongly rhythmic English that preserves the mobility and sensual color of the original."

+ New Yorker 19:66 Jl 17 '43 90w

"Aside from the roundly developed episodes, the subtle mingling of folk-lore and the most naturalistic detail, the humor and wisdom of the people, and the utter lack of all artiness in the use of 'primitive' material, the most remarkable feature of this novel is description. Description is not something that normally recommends itself to readers, who want to get on with the plot. Not to read Mr. Gilbert's descriptions, however, is not to read him at all. Not to read him at all will be a loss to any one who cares for top notch writing." Bess Jones

+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 Jl 31 '43 360w

"'Our Daily Bread' won honorable mention in the Latin-American prize novel contest, which produced as winner 'Broad and Alien Is the World.' Those who liked the former will find the present work to their liking, too. Less vast in scale, it is richer in lyrical intensity. And the translation of Dudley Poore is a marvel of poetic recreation." B. D. Wolfe

Weekly Book Review p2 Jl 18 '43 1150w

GILBERT, ANTHONY, pseud. See Malleson, L. B.

GILBERT, ENRIQUE GIL. See Gil Gilbert, E.

GILES, GUY ELWYN. Target for murder. 217p $2 Morrow

43-8246

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p7 Je 13 '43 270w

"Kent's solution of the case explains several other things besides the murder and in consequence is a little too involved." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p10 Je 13 '43 100w

"Top drawer."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:39 Je 19 '43 30w

"This is brisk, earthy, carefree and not too particular about the psychology of humans as we know them. Naturally you'll wonder who shot the arrows, who killed all these people, which member of the family is craziest, and so forth." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p19 Je 13 '43 230w

GILES, NELL. Punch in, Susie! a woman's war factory diary; drawings by Alan Dunn. 143p $1.50 Harper

331.487 Woman—Employment. World war, 1939—Women's work 43-13286

A feature writer on the Boston Globe took a job with the West Lynn plant of the General Electric company, and wrote up her experiences for the paper. These daily reports are the basis of her book.

Booklist 40:72 N 1 '43

Reviewed by Helen Henley

Christian Science Monitor p8 S 14 '43 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

"In her own words, Miss Giles 'took the job to write the glamour out of Women in War.' She has done a good job of it, and the picture that remains is realistic, enthusiastic, and alive. . . 'Punch in, Susie,' should appeal to women already working in factories—especially those who are new to their jobs. And it should encourage those who are considering factory work to get started." Barbara Woollcott

+ Weekly Book Review p16 S 12 '43 500w

GILKEY, JAMES GORDON. God will help you. 114p $1.50 Macmillan

231.7 Providence and government of God 43-15041

"In language that anyone can read with pleasure as well as with understanding, Dr. Gilkey sets forth the reasonableness, one might say the inevitability, of belief in a God who is equally concerned about the orderly movement of the planets, the intricate functioning of the sub-microscopic mechanisms of plant and animal life, and the deeds and needs of individual human beings. Without having recourse to any outmoded theological concepts or pious but untenable presuppositions, he shows how God is an actual resource for living, especially in such a time of confusion as the present." Christian Century

+ Christian Century 60:1233 O 27 '43 70w

Reviewed by Harry Stuckenbruck

Springf'd Republican p6 O 25 '43 470w

GILL, EVERETT. A. T. Robertson; a biography. 250p il $2.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Robertson, Archibald Thomas 43-4036

"Archibald Thomas Robertson (1863-1934), professor in Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, from 1888 until his death, was internationally known as a New Testament scholar, a preacher, teacher, and denominational leader. Gill, a friend and great admirer, has prepared a laudatory biography which is personal [and] anecdotal." Library J

Christian Century 60:394 Mr 31 '43 70w

"The writer has presented a vivid and interesting picture of a man who was eminent as a popular interpreter of the New Testament to summer assemblies and of a teacher who had the remarkable tenure of forty-six years in the same institution. . . Nevertheless it is not a great biography. The warm affection of the author for his friend tends to magnify achievements and to minimize any limiting features. He is to his friend's 'faults a little blind, and to his virtues doubly kind.' Perhaps that is as it should be, but it militates against a judicial interpretation of a personality." E. W. Parsons

+ — J Religion 23:298 O '43 400w

Reviewed by J. S. Cleavinger

Library J 68:170 F 15 '43 70w

GILL, TOM. Jungle harvest; a tropical romance. 240p $2 Putnam

43-4271

A tale of adventure and romance in Central America.

"Even though you know how it is all going to end, this tale packs plenty of punch and excitement." E. J. C.

+ Book Week p9 Ap 11 '43 230w

Booklist 39:426 Je 15 '43

"Mr. Gill's romantic yarn is woven together well, the characters are real and human. It is pleasant, agreeable reading with some exciting moments." Muriel Laurence

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 18 '43 320w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 170w

"A lively document of the tropics, in which the twin stakes are love and mahogany. It is an exciting yarn, and gives a graphic picture of the hazards of felling the great trees and dragging them off to market." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p22 Mr 28 '43 270w

GILLESPIE, JAMES EDWARD, and NETBOY, ANTHONY. Europe in perspective, 1815 to the present. text ed 945p il maps $4 Harcourt

940.28 Europe—History 42-6693

"A balanced interpretation of social, economic, and political forces. First entirely new history of nineteenth and twentieth century Europe published since the outbreak of World War II." Social Studies

"This is not the ideal text. Rather than a perspective history it is a compilation of ample old and new data, generally honest and effective, however uneven the worth of basic references cited. The product of mature experience, it has obvious practical qualities. Collaborative editing and other publication exigencies may explain the criticized weaknesses as well as certain make-up features of the book." F. E. Melvin

— + Am Hist R 48:388 Ja '43 210w

Social Studies 33:239 My '42 30w

GILLETTE, JOHN MORRIS, and REINHARDT, JAMES MELVIN. Problems of a changing social order. 824p $4 Am. bk.

309.173 Social problems. U.S.—Social conditions 42-19460

"This text has a new title, new format, and new division and chapter heads. . . Some of the data, particularly on population, have been brought up to the present. There are a number of new tables and diagrams. The organization of the material has been altered very little. Chapters 30 and 31 have been rewritten and greatly improved. Many of the loose phrases and ambiguous terms of the older edition have been eliminated or clarified." (Social Forces) For first edition, with title Current Social Problems, see Book Review Digest, 1934. Indexes.

Reviewed by E. B. Reuter

Am J Soc 49:280 N '43 130w

Reviewed by H. J. Locke

Am Soc R 8:243 Ap '43 180w

"The text suffers little from joint authorship. As a whole, it is clearly and interestingly written. The change in title ostensibly is made to conform to the current emphasis on social change in accounting for the genesis and development of social problems. However, not all of the treatment of problems in the text is in accord with such a title. The format and the new heads are a decided improvement over the old." C. E. Dent

+ Social Forces 21:361 Mr '43 450w

GILLHAM, CHARLES EDWARD. Beyond the Clapping mountains; Eskimo stories from Alaska; il. by Chanimun. 134p $1.50 Macmillan

398.2 Folklore, Eskimo 43-5989

Collection of Alaskan Eskimo folk tales, most of them about birds and animals. For boys and girls of five to ten.

Booklist 39:390 Je 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43

"Most of these stories have morals, all are simple and entertaining, introducing the outdoor world of the native Alaskans to American children. The pictures are by a young Eskimo girl." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:170 My '43 100w

"Appeal is limited; and style of telling, of necessity unadorned, lacks classic simplicity. Black-and-white drawings by Chanimun, an Eskimo girl, give humor and primitive imagination to each tale. Should be in large collections." Katheryn Kohberger

+ Library J 68:433 My 15 '43 70w

"The illustrations, made by a 12-year-old Eskimo girl, have an extraordinary liveliness and catch the humor of the tales. 'Beyond the Clapping Mountains' is a welcome addition to the folktale shelves and will be very helpful to the storyteller. Older readers who desire to know more of Eskimo folklore will enjoy the spirited retellings of folktales and hero sagas in 'The Eagle's Gift,' by Knud Rasmussen." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p9 My 23 '43 440w

"The book should prove a find for seven-to ten-year-olds."

+ New Yorker 19:66 My 29 '43 90w

"Excellent."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 15 '43 20w

Sat R of Lit 26:27 N 13 '43 190w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p9 Ap 25 '43 550w

Wis Lib Bul 39:124 O '43

GILLIES, MARY DAVIS. All about modern decorating. 225p il col pl $4 Harper

747 House decoration 43-500

How to decorate and furnish a house in the modern manner. Author is Interior decorating editor of McCall's. Contains a 2-page list of "designers—whose work you should know." Bibliography. Index.

Book Week p12 My 9 '43 200w

Bookmark 4:9 Mr '43

"The book is very easy to read, to understand, and to apply. It is a lilting narration of human experiences lived within a home, written so convincingly as to compel the respect of every woman who is selecting furnishings." V. H. Weaver

+ J Home Econ 35:371 Je '43 150w

Wis Lib Bul 39:39 Mr '43

GILLIGAN, EDMUND. Gaunt Woman. 307p $2.50 Scribner

42-36433

The "Gaunt Woman" was a mysterious vessel sighted by Gloucester fishermen on the Newfoundland banks. This is the story of how she came to her end through the courageous daring of Patrick Bannon, skipper of the Daniel Webster, out on his last fishing trip before he joined the Navy in the open fight against the Nazis.

Booklist 39:201 Ja 15 '43

"The turns of plot are ingenious and unexpected, and the denouement is enough to take the breath away. You aren't quite expected to believe it, but you are absorbed in the tale just the same. . . It is rather a pity that the author has chosen a square rigger as the central item of his story, for the ridiculous things he does with this vessel seriously injure the tale." Lincoln Colcord

Books p2 Ja 10 '43 1350w

Reviewed by J. H. Powers

Boston Globe p15 Ja 6 '43 500w

"If you like sea stories, try this one. . . It's all clean."

+ Cath World 156:763 Mr '43 140w

"A rollicking, salty and exciting sea story which successfully combines the old days of sail." G. E. S., Jr.

+ Churchman 157:20 Ap 15 '43 60w

"An action story with explosive climax and good sea background. For men." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 68:35 Ja 1 '43 70w

"By successfully combining a sea story and a spy story, Mr. Gilligan has rung an exciting change on the usual war thriller." Diana Trilling

+ — Nation 156:172 Ja 30 '43 180w

"The writing about the sea is very good; but on the whole the author relies too much on melodramatic action, rejecting the heavier burdens of authorship in his treatment of character, especially when he allows his hero to take time out from killing Nazis in order to deliver patriotic speeches."

+ — New Repub 108:190 F 8 '43 120w

"If you can check your credulity here and there, and meet a first-class story-teller halfway, you will find Mr. Gilligan a hearty companion for a January evening." William Du Bois

+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 3 '43 850w

"It's a rousing, bloody, full-throated tale." A. D. H. Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 Ja 30 '43 650w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 10 '43 190w

"When Edmund Gilligan is at his best, as in White Sails Crowding, he is one of few men living who can galvanize the dying art of literate romancing. But in The Gaunt Woman his Hibernian lilt and lustiness often overshoot the mark."
— + Time 41:88 Ja 4 '43 430w
Wis Lib Bul 39:29 F '43

"The war is inspiring some rather wild yarns, as if the reality were not insane enough. Here is Edmund Gilligan with a story, The Gaunt Woman, which starts out well. . . But Mr. Gilligan puts his story under such a pressure of realism in the beginning that it bursts, at the end, into a welter of Hollywood violence." Robert Littell
— + Yale R n s 32:xii spring '43 90w

GILLIGAN, EDMUND. The ringed horizon. 299p $2.50 Scribner
43-14974

"This is a story of Gloucester fishermen and their war against the German U-boats. In particular it is the story of Sebastian Bannon, skipper of the schooner Wild Rose, and his vendetta with one particular U-boat captain who has been ravaging the fishing fleet and ruthlessly murdering the survivors." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 40:114 D 1 '43

"Gilligan is lavish with adjectives and adverbs; his humor is a little too much on the whimsical side; he is too sentimental about 'little mother.' Yet in this book there are fire, beauty and strength, as well as a good yarn of the sea." Fowler Hill
+ — N Y Times p30 O 31 '43 320w

"A contemporary war thriller with enough action for two or three novels. . . The fact that it all sounds highly improbable perhaps won't make much difference."
New Yorker 19:98 O 9 '43 90w

"It is a grand, lusty tale, throbbing with excitements and as tense as a violinstring. Salt winds hurtle through it, and the unforgettable healthy reek of bait and fish flavors its pages. Also there is anger in it—the anger of guilelessness aroused at last against the malice, the duplicity of a dishonorable enemy. Mr. Gilligan, whose craftsmanship with words is something beyond the usual, has given its style an edge too seldom present in adventure stories." C. O. Talbot
+ Sat R of Lit 26:22 N 6 '43 400w

"Mr Gilligan's writing is uneven and at times irritating, notably in the early part of the book which contains an overabundance of introspection on the part of the characters, paragraphs of flowery description and dialog that is completely unreal. However, he more than redeems himself after he settles down to his story and his description of the wild sea chase after the fleeing Nazi is the sort of thing that will keep you glued to your chair." G. K. M.
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 330w

"The Gaunt Woman was one of the best sea stories of the war, and Edmund Gilligan is obviously out to repeat his success with 'The Ringed Horizon.' This, too, is the tale of a Gloucester fishing skipper pitted against the U-boat packs, but it is both less credible and less exciting than the earlier book." Herbert Kupferberg
— + Weekly Book Review p8 O 17 '43 400w
Wis Lib Bul 39:159 D '43

GILMAN, HENRY, and others, eds. Organic chemistry; an advanced treatise. 2d ed 2v il ea $7.50 Wiley
547 Chemistry, Organic 43-927

"This revised edition contains eight new chapters on aliphatic hydrocarbons; synthetic polymers; catalytic hydrogenation and hydrogenolysis; sulfur compounds; aliphatic fluorides; porphyrins; chlorophyll; and, the redistribution reaction. Material is well documented with literature references revised to September, 1942." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1938. Index at end of each volume.

"Revised and enlarged by 12 percent after only five years, the present edition of this advanced treatise retains all the excellent features of the 1938 volumes and establishes without doubt this work as the outstanding publication of its kind in this country. Mr. Gilman and his 30 contributing specialists, having established this graduate-level general treatise of organic chemistry, are now following through by keeping the work up-to-date. . . There is no doubt that this book, more than ever, will prove of tremendous value as a reference to every organic chemist, whether in industrial research, graduate work or in the teaching profession." J. R. Callaham
+ Chem & Met Eng 50:233 My '43 250w
Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:6 Ja '43

"For the graduate student in organic chemistry, it is invaluable in the study of his science, and to the practicing organic chemist it offers a convenient and authoritative source of information on many theoretical concepts and specialized fields." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 4 '43 150w

GILMAN, MARGARET. Baudelaire the critic. 264p $3 Columbia univ. press
841 Baudelaire, Charles Pierre 43-2823

Scholarly study of the critical writings of this nineteenth century French poet.

"Miss Gilman examines carefully all of the important critical essays of Baudelaire, and weighs their value for the modern reader candidly. Her presentation of her findings and judgments is clear and unpretentious, though her style does not escape a degree of heaviness." J. T. F.
+ — Book Week p6 Ap 4 '43 200w
Commonweal 38:204 Je 11 '43 700w

"A careful, intelligent, thoroughly documented account of Baudelaire's criticism, by far the best yet attempted in English." M. D. Zabel
+ Nation 156:780 My 29 '43 1100w

"Because so little of this criticism is accessible in English translation the study should have a certain usefulness, but it will not mean a great deal to those acquainted with the original materials."
New Repub 108:454 Ap 5 '43 120w

GILMORE, ALBERT FIELD. Christ at the peace table. 264p $2.75 Prentice-Hall
940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. Jesus Christ—Teaching 43-5406

"It is the purpose of the author to discuss first what Jesus actually taught and some results of the applications of those teachings, and to attempt to apply the Christ-remedy to the problems confronting the world at present." (page 6) "Certain of the material appearing in Part Two in somewhat changed form first appeared in the Magazine Section of the Christian Science Monitor." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by Preston Bradley
Book Week p9 Je 20 '43 460w

"Dr. Gilmore's book is strong and most appealing when dealing with the religious experience of individuals. It is weakest—and unnecessarily verbose—when national and international affairs are considered. It would have been a better book if its length had been reduced and its subject matter limited to the personal realm of experience wherein the author writes with competence." W. C. Kernan
+ — Churchman 157:16 Je 1 '43 180w

GILMORE, CECILE. Bright enchantment. 282p $2 Putnam
43-2622

Three men of very different calibre and the one woman they all loved are the central characters in this book. It took a great disaster to bring Mary Lee to the understanding of all three, and to the knowledge of which one she really loved.

GILMORE, CECILE—Continued

"The background of a little oil town is well sketched, and the story of Mary Lee's trip to New York includes fashion detail to satisfy the most clothes conscious." Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p37 Ap 18 '43 200w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p17 Ap 4 '43 90w

GILPATRIC, GUY. Action in the North Atlantic. 189p il $2 Dutton
43-8251

This novel tells the story of mercant seamen depicted in the movie of the same name. Author is noted for his earlier sea stories particularly those featuring Muster Glencannon and the S.S. Inchcliffe Castle.

Reviewed by Phil Stong
Book Week p6 Jl 18 '43 310w

Booklist 39:463 Jl 15 '43

"As anybody who has read the Muster Glencannon stories in the Saturday Evening Post these past 10 years might expect, Guy Gilpatrick has written a rousing story of men and ships in the North Atlantic in time of war. His book is fiction, and was, indeed, written with both eyes on the movies, but it is based on such matters of vivid fact that it has the ring of realism."
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 10 '43 270w

"Since this book was written more to be acted than read, it is not as richly colored as Mr. Gilpatric's stories of Britains at sea, early fliers, and New York in the days of livery stables and saloon bruisers. Nevertheless, it is recognizable as genuine 86 proof Gilpatric, even though it might be mixed with a touch too much water." R. E. Berry
+ — N Y Times p14 Je 13 '43 320w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 190w

" 'Action in the North Atlantic' depicts the hazards of life in the merchant marine in spectacular and concentrated fashion." Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p20 Je 6 '43 100w

GINZBERG, ELI. Grass on the slag heaps; the story of the Welsh miners; foreword by Thomas Jones; drawings by T. Herzl Rome. 228p $2.50 Harper

331.762233 Coal miners. Coal mines and mining—Wales 42-7989

A sociological study, simply presented, of the unfortunate conditions of the Welsh miners during the depression years. Mr Ginzberg's study was completed just before war broke out in 1939 and conditions have changed since then, but as is indicated, the underlying causes of distress may recur with the cessation of war. Bibliography. Index.

"Outwardly this book has none of the usual trappings of a 'study'—no tables nor appendices nor footnotes. It is refreshingly readable. At the same time it bears the unmistakable marks of scholarly research. It is surprising how much rich material the author has managed to compress in so small a space." K. D. Lumpkin
+ Am Soc R 8:109 F '43 480w

Reviewed by E. A. Wieck
Ann Am Acad 222:230 Jl '42 430w

GINZBERG, ELI, and others. The unemployed; I, Interpretation; II, Case studies [prepared under the auspices of the Columbia univ. Council for research in the social sciences]. 418p $4 Harper

361.8 Unemployment 43-15377

"Dr. Ginzberg and his associates (statisticians, psychiatrists and social workers) interviewed in 1940 some two hundred families that were caught in the bitter maelstrom of unemployment. . . Dr. Ginzberg analyzed their reactions and attitudes toward such varied matters as trade unions, marriage, politics, religion and relief. . . He shows, by a recital of case histories and by statistical description, their background, their educational attainments and home life, and their amazing domestic management with the niggardly allowance granted by the welfare authorities." New Repub

Reviewed by M. C. Manley
Library J 68:843 O 15 '43 40w

"Dr. Ginzberg has told us, in no uncertain terms, what we failed to do for the unemployed. His book is an eloquent plea to recast our thinking. We may not be able to eradicate completely the scourge of unemployment, but we can try to mitigate its ravages." B. B. Seligman
+ New Repub 109:751 N 29 '43 800w

GIORDANI, IGINO. Social message of Jesus; tr. by Alba I. Zizzamia. 406p $4 St Anthony guild

232.9 Jesus Christ—Teachings. Sociology, Christian 43-11323

"The first of a series of three volumes that deal with the social history of early Christianity, this book, by a recognized authority, undertakes a systematic study of the social teachings of Jesus and at the same time methodically re-examines existing notions of Christian society." (Cath World) Bibliography. Index.

"In part this is a study of 'what Jesus really meant,' and becomes a defense of Catholic doctrine. The book is full of Catholic and supernatural premises which the sociologist may not necessarily share. The argument often follows the line of the classical 'comparative' method, with consequent difficulties. . . The total weight of Giordani's argument, that one cannot lightly dismiss Jesus' teachings as having no relevance for social problems, seems well justified. But one must beware assuming from this, without careful research, that those teachings led directly, by the power of the religious idea, to different human relations. Perhaps Giordani's related studies, The Social Message of the Apostles and The Social Message of the Early Fathers of the Church, will throw light on this important question." J. M. Yinger
+ — Am Soc R 8:744 D '43 650w

"Well organized and definite, it imparts sound lessons on important and practical truths."
+ Cath World 158:220 N '43 70w

GIRDLER, TOM MERCER. Boot straps; an autobiography; in collaboration with Boyden Sparkes. 471p $3 Scribner

B or 92 Steel industry and trade 43-14504

Autobiography of an American industrialist who became prominent in the 1930s as a leader against organized labor. Nearly a third of the book is concerned with the "Little Steel" strike of 1937. The final chapters have to do with Mr Girdler's career as an airplane manufacturer. Index.

"Girdler becomes something of an enigma in this book. He is rabidly anti-Ku Klux Klan; he once designed a model town for his workers; he prefers modern working conditions and hours, and admits that they are largely the result of union pressure. But every sentence of this book shows him to be a dictator." Sterling North
Book Week p2 O 3 '43 1000w

Booklist 40:77 N 1 '43

Christian Science Monitor p13 O 30 '43 430w

Reviewed by J. C. Cort
Commonweal 38:638 O 15 '43 900w

Reviewed by H. J. Ruttenberg
New Repub 109:492 O 11 '43 1250w

"Mr. Girdler has made out a very strong case in his interpretation of what the mass production technique of American industry has meant and can mean to mankind. He is not so convincing in his emphasis upon the weakening of that industry by the 'conspiracy' of the New Deal, the C. I. O. and the American Communists in the Nineteen Thirties; but it is natural for a hard fighter battling with equally tough opponents to exaggerate his side of such bitter controversies." R. B. Porter

N Y Times p28 O 3 '43 700w

" 'Boot Straps,' is one of the most important works of this season, not so much as a literary job although it is good interesting reading, but as a challenging blueprint, a candid document to be read and thought about as that other blueprint and document 'Mein Kampf' was read and thought about. I am not saying that Girdler is a Fascist. I am saying that he is not a democrat. There are many like him in America. It would be silly not to realize that the Tom M. Girdlers are powerful men with powerful opinions as to the shape of things to come. These opinions may affect all our lives. We ought to know what they are." Benjamin Appel
Sat R of Lit 26:48 D 4 '43 3200w

"A straightforward story of dynamic personality, fascinatingly told." P. N. Case
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 24 '43 220w

"While Mr. Girdler is richly deserving of his day in court in the matter of this conflict [the steel strike] the best part of the book is that which is more intimately autobiographical. His boyhood days on a farm in Indiana and at work in his father's cement mill, his years at Lehigh University and his apprenticeship and rise to power in the steel industry make a fascinating story of a type with which all Americans are familiar but of which, one hopes, they will never tire. It is, of course, a 'success story,' but much better and more exciting than the unfortunate connotation of the term would imply." W. M. Houghton
+ Weekly Book Review p2 O 3 '43 1350w
Wis Lib Bul 40:8 Ja '44

GLANVILLE, STEPHEN RANULPH KINGDON, ed. Legacy of Egypt. 424p il $4 (10s) Oxford

913.32 Egypt—Civilization [A42-4963]

A composite volume made up of articles by various authorities. Contents: Introduction, by S. R. K. Glanville; The calendars and chronology, by J. W. S. Sewell; The political approach to the classical world, by M. S. Drower; Writing and literature, by A. H. Gardiner; Egyptian art, by Jean Capart; Mechanical and technical processes. Materials, by R. Engelbach; Science, by R. W. Sloley; Medicine, by W. R. Dawson; Law, by Erwin Seidl; Egypt and Israel, by W. O. E. Oesterley; The Greek papyri, by C. H. Roberts; Egypt and Rome, by A. H. M. Jones; The Egyptian contribution to Christianity: I. Egypt and the Christian church, by J. M. Creed, II. The Coptic church and Egyptian monasticism, by De Lacy O'Leary; Egypt and the Byzantine empire, by H. I. Bell; The contribution to Islam, by A. J. Arberry; The legacy to modern Egypt, by A. M. Hocart. Index.

Reviewed by T. A. Brady
Am Hist R 49:86 O '43 480w
Booklist 39:466 Jl 15 '43

"This is a rich collection of data that not only build up a vivid picture of Egyptian culture but give to that culture its rightful place in the whole historic process."
+ Christian Century 60:201 F 17 '43 130w

"The 'Legacy' series is well-know. No higher praise can be accorded the present volume than that it is worthy of its antecedents. A mere listing of its seventeen contributors might enhance this repute, for they are all scholars of recognized authority. And the book itself is of the attractiveness for which the Oxford Press is famous. It is a happy augury that such a work came out of England in the third year of the war." W. A. Irwin
+ Crozer Q 20:346 O '43 800w

Reviewed by James Strachey
New Statesman & Nation 24:342 N 21 '42 1000w

"Two of the most interesting essays are Dr. Seidl's scholarly account of the development of law, and the late Professor Creed's delineation of Origen, the Christian Platonist. But from them all it is possible to gain instruction and entertainment."
+ Spec 169:418 O 30 '42 170w
Springf'd Republican p10 Mr 9 '43 500w
Times [London] Lit Sup p550 N 7 '42 750w

GLASGOW, ELLEN ANDERSON GHOLSON. A certain measure; an interpretation of prose fiction. 272p $3.50 Harcourt

808.3 Fiction—Technique 43-15827

Collection of essays consisting of the author's prefaces to the Virginia edition of her own novels, published in 1938, to which has been added the introduction to a later novel, In This Our Life. Taken together they provide a picture of Southern manners from about 1850 to 1939, and give an insight into the author's own growth as a writer. Bibliography.

"The book is a valuable record for writers. To her many readers, these essays will shed new light on her work." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 172:139 D '43 120w

Reviewed by Branch Cabell
Book Week p40 D 5 '43 950w
Booklist 40:90 N 15 '43

"This book is a collection of essays, written by one of our wisest and shrewdest contemporary American novelists, as prefaces to the different volumes of the Virginia edition of her works. They present not only a brilliant exposition of Miss Glasgow's theories of the art of fiction, but they give us also a clearer insight into the life of the artist and the way in which she develops her characters and plots from her direct and indirect experience of life. Her lucid explanations may not be of great value to the creative writer, but for the student of literature and reader of fiction they cast an illuminating ray. They are seasoned with penetrating comments on literature in general and enriched with significant autobiographical details." L. E. Cannon
+ Christian Century 61:16 Ja 5 '44 700w
Christian Science Monitor p13 N 6 '43 900w
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '43

"For its elegance of style, for its insight into the method of a great novelist and for its sheer intelligence, this is a book to be read." Harry Sylvester
+ Commonweal 39:185 D 3 '43 700w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch
Nation 157:442 O 16 '43 1000w

"No matter what her earliest intentions may have been as regards time, place and the society portrayed, it was inevitable that a writer of so strong a nature should end by dealing with her own part of the world, which is her native Virginia, with its implications, of course, of the great world of human society at large. This volume of prefaces is never more significant and absorbing than in those passages where Miss Glasgow records her relation of the South, its effect on her, its reactions to her works, and her judgments of Southern writers of this generation and earlier, taking them either as creative artists or in relation to the region from which they sprang." Stark Young
New Repub 109:588 O 25 '43 1650w

"Ellen Glasgow is one of the few members of that numerically small elite once described by her fellow-Virginian, Thomas Jefferson, as the natural aristocracy of talent and virtue. She has all her life been trying to oppose the dubious standards of a commercial era with the strictest standards of art—not for art's sake, alone though art in itself is highly important, but because the same values that make for greatness in art also make for greatness in living. Writing of the craft of fiction, she has written a notable essay on the craft of life. It is a privilege to be able to salute her in her own time." Hamilton Basso
+ N Y Times p5 O 17 '43 1500w

GLASGOW, E. A. G.—Continued

"For all her limitations (Miss Glasgow is not quite as anti-genteel as she would like to think she is), she has given us a solider, maturer, wiser, more inclusive view of Southern life than all the Faulkners and Caldwells put together, and in a prose that is pure and unaffected. Certain of her prejudices will seem strange to readers who were not born in the capital of the Confederacy. It is hard to know what to make of such a statement as 'Nothing better or truer than "Uncle Remus" has appeared in the whole field of American prose fiction,' and the younger men and women may feel that she is far too hard on those writers of the Hemingway school." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 19:84 O 16 '43 500w

"Miss Glasgow has refused to consider herself less than an artist. She has not written of Virginia life but of human life in Virginia. She has taken two and three years to perfect a book. . . And this sense of pace and dignity, this tacit assumption that the novel is a major work of art—these are the qualities she has brought to her interpretation of her immediate environment. Her prefaces are therefore, a notable contribution both to the art of fiction and to the ways by which fiction, maturely conceived, can illuminate American life." H. M. Jones

+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 O 16 '43 1200w

"The serious student of the art of fiction will find abundant material in this book to read, mark and inwardly digest. If he has any desire to write of his own time with integrity he will learn much from the patient, tireless striving of the author. His idiom, his pace and his theme may be at wide variance from hers. He may scorn her as a traditionalist, but it would be hard, it seems to this reviewer, to regard her with anything but respect. If he is wise as well as ambitious he will mark the margins and dog-ear the pages of 'A Certain Measure.' " E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 24 '43 650w

Reviewed by Carl Van Vechten

Weekly Book Review p6 O 17 '43 1750w

Wis Lib Bul 39:143 N '43

Reviewed by Maxwell Geismar

Yale R n s 33:364 winter '44 950w

GLASS, HIRAM BENTLEY. Genes and the man. 386p $3.50 Teachers college

575.12 Heredity. Life (biology) 43-16094

Study of the facts and principles of the nature of growth, development, and aging of man. The author is associate professor of biology at Goucher college. Index.

School & Society 58:320 O 16 '43 10w

Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 N '43 360w

GLASSTONE, SAMUEL. The fundamentals of electrochemistry and electrodeposition. 90p $2 Am. electroplaters soc.

671 Electroplating 43-15987

"A series of articles reprinted from The Monthly Review of the American Electroplating Society. They are written in fairly simple language, but presuppose an elementary knowledge of chemistry and physics." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:43 Jl '43

GLASSTONE, SAMUEL, and GLASSTONE, MRS VIOLETTE F. (COLLINGWOOD). Food you eat; a practical guide to home nutrition. 277p il $2.25 Univ. of Okla. press

612.39 Nutrition. Food. Diet 43-51000

"This book was written for 'everyman's self-information.' The authors have dealt with the usual subjects of energy metabolism, digestion, minerals, water, the vitamins, food products (cereals, sugar and sirups, flesh foods, dairy products, eggs, fats and oils, vegetables, fruits, and nuts). There is one chapter on planning the menu, and the last chapter is on nutrition in outline." J Home Econ

"For the most part the information is accurate. However, there are statements which might be questioned. The chapter devoted to menu planning often reverts to the authors' whims instead of being based on scientific facts. . . It is to be regretted that the authors chose to use the terms P.P. factor instead of niacin, vitamin B_1 and vitamin B_2 instead of thiamin and ribo-flavin, respectively." Marietta Eichelberger

+ — Am J Pub Health 33:1285 O '43 380w

Booklist 39:219 F 1 '43

Reviewed by Gladys Kinsman

J Home Econ 35:304 My '43 100w

GLAUERT, HERMANN. Elements of aerofoil and airscrew theory. Am ed 228p $3.50 Macmillan

629.134323 Airfoils. Propellers, Aerial. Aerodynamics A43-3494

"Here is an American edition of an English book that has been successful enough to go through five printings since 1926. It treats in careful language the theory of the airplane wing and the theory of the propeller. Like all other books in this field, its pages are filled with integrations and differentials. Like all English books, it places more emphasis upon careful statement than upon clarifying illustrations." (Book Week) Index.

"It should be a useful text for aeronautical specialists."

+ Book Week p10 My 2 '43 90w

"Readers who do not expect to make their careers in wind tunnels will find more elementary books more rewarding." Theodore English

N Y Times p10 My 16 '43 100w

GLAZEBROOK, GEORGE PARKIN DE TWENEBROKER. Canadian external relations; an historical study to 1914 [issued under the auspices of the Canadian inst. of int. affairs]. 312p $3; to members $2.25 (12s 6d) Oxford

327.71 Canada—Foreign relations. Canada—History 43-1072

"Professor Glazebrook traces the evolution of [Canadian] foreign policy and external relations from the earliest times down to the last war." Canadian Forum

Reviewed by H. G. Skilling

Am Pol Sci R 37:946 O '43 230w

"Professor Glazebrook is a faithful recorder of data observed along the path of history, but he gives little impression of the direction of the path. But this, perhaps, is another kind of history, and meanwhile we are grateful for this orderly presentation of essential material." F. R. Scott

+ — Canadian Forum 22:333 F '43 210w

"The book will be indispensable to students, but on its merits it is entitled to be widely read by Canadians who are interested in the history of their country. They will find in it much that is interesting as a story of national growth, and instructive in the light that it throws upon issues and questions that are still with us." J. W. Dafoe

+ Canadian Hist R 24:197 Je '43 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p254 My 29 '43 420w

GLEASON, GEORGE. Church group activities for young married people. 3d ed rev 142p pa $1 Assn. press

260 Church work

"A revised edition of a practical handbook of methods and programs for making the church and its young married people helpful to each other." Christian Century

Christian Century 60:169 F 10 '43 20w

"It may well be that Dr. Gleason has located a leak of considerable proportions in church allegiance. The material he offers cannot fail to be helpful and a reading is likely to stimulate a desire for action." J. H. Titus

+ Churchman 157:16 Mr 15 '43 180w

GLEMSER, MRS LOUISE CRIPPS. Your first baby! modern methods of care and feeding and a personalized baby record book; with an introd. by Stanley S. Zipser. 90p il $1 Barnes, A.S.

649.1 Infants—Care and hygiene. Infants—Nutrition 43-7697

"This is a compact, modern manual of baby care from the time immediately before baby's birth until he is a year or two old. The usual matters of feeding and training are touched upon briefly but, unlike most books on the subject, this little volume deals more with the psychology of rearing a baby." Book Week

Book Week p9 My 16 '43 160w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 11 '43 100w

"This book, with its large photographs—fourteen fine ones—and its explicit advice, is as reassuring as a book can be, and begins to be so from the first minute."

+ Weekly Book Review p27 My 23 '43 300w

GLICK, CARL. Oswald's pet dragon [il. by Kurt Wiese]. [32p] $1.75 Coward-McCann 43-15296

The adventures of Oswald, who knew magic; his wife, Agnes, who had been a missionary in China; and the dragon which Oswald conjured up as a pet for Agnes. But Agnes was very difficult about it and poor Oswald had to get rid of his pet, in a dramatic manner. For young readers.

"This is Carl Glick's first venture into the juvenile field and a most entertaining one it is. . . Kurt Wiese's dragons are wonderful and children will enjoy the humor of both the story and the pictures." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 S 26 '43 130w

"One of those utterly nonsensical books that stops just short of being inspired. Sort of a combination of a page from the New Yorker and a chapter from Winnie the Pooh. And no telling how the kids will vote. Recommended as an antidote to comic strips." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 68:772 O 1 '43 50w

New Yorker 19:120 D 4 '43 70w

"Children will laugh as they read this story, and they will love Kurt Wiese's pictures. But Oswald's dragon will not 'live forever.'" M. G. D.

Sat R of Lit 26:25 N 13 '43 290w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 10 '43 190w

GLICK, CARL. Three times I bow; with il. by Soriano. (Whittlesey house publication) 259p $2.50 McGraw

818 Chinese in the U.S. 43-12358

The author of Shake Hands With the Dragon (Book Review Digest, 1941) has written another book about his Chinese friends in New York's Chinatown. These stories are mainly about the experiences of Kung, an educated Chinese, who enlisted after Pearl Harbor, and soon rose to be Lieutenant Kung. Much about Chinese customs and habits is included.

"This book of sketches of Chinese-Americans is succulent and sustaining as a dish of war-mein, as spicy and satisfying as sweet-and-sour spareribs. And its glimpses of Chinese philosophy, of the Chinese way of life, will give the reader deepened comprehension of how the Chinese have endured for all these years the war that we now share with them." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p6 Ag 15 '43 380w

Booklist 40:47 O 1 '43

Christian Century 60:991 S 1 '43 130w

"It all makes pleasant reading that does not lag. In the background there are plenty of pithy and provocative ideas. It seems too bad that so many Chinese ways of doing things are gradually going out of fashion along Mott and Pell Streets and in other American cities. But if we are half as successful as Mr. Glick in partaking of this wisdom of the centuries, the few Chinese we once allowed to join us here will make a real contribution to the general American way of life."

+ Commonweal 38:494 S 3 '43 450w

"Exemplifies best possible approach to the Chinese, that of a man who knows and likes them. Heartily recommended for young people's collections and all adult collections." M. C. Scoggin

+ Library J 68:673 S 1 '43 100w

"This book is a pleasant and enjoyable successor to the author's other volume, 'Shake Hands With the Dragon.'" Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p3 Ag 15 '43 500w

"It makes entertaining and amusing reading, and it leaves one with the pleasant glow that comes after finishing a long and elaborately prepared Chinese meal, where each dish is a surprise, and each course is carefully calculated to surpass even the superb dish that went before." P. V. Stern

+ Sat R of Lit 26:22 S 18 '43 340w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 14 '43 250w

"The Chinese may have certain faults which have escaped the enthusiastic Mr. Glick, but in the main no one can quarrel with his friendly estimate. By incident and sly allusion he proves them to be humorous, benevolent, patient, just and civilized to a degree that makes one wonder how there could have ever been any feeling against them. This is a good book—not profound, perhaps, but wholly delightful and packed with knowing stuff." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 15 '43 950w

GLIDDEN, FREDERICK DILLEY (LUKE SHORT, pseud). Ramrod. 232p $2 Macmillan 43-13840

Western story.

Booklist 40:166 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by Baron Ireland

Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 170w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p24 O 17 '43 150w

GLIDDEN, FREDERICK DILLEY (LUKE SHORT, pseud). Ride the man down. 279p $2 Doubleday 42-25553

Western story.

Booklist 39:202 Ja 15 '43

"Another readable Western by the author of 'Gunman's Chance.'" Will Cuppy

+ Books p13 Ja 10 '43 130w

"A complicated but lively story, filled with swift action, suspense, violence and bloodshed. And it is cleverly plotted and well written, with the sure skill that Luke Short has shown in half a dozen earlier excellent Westerns." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p27 Ja 24 '43 210w

GLIDDEN, JONATHAN H. (PETER DAWSON, pseud). Trail boss. 298p $2 Dodd 43-2618

Western story.

Booklist 39:334 Ap 15 '43

"This is Peter Dawson's fourth Western novel, and it's the best of the four—and one of the best Westerns of the year—a tale that bristles with lively action, tense situations, excitement and suspense, exceptionally well handled and well written." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 4 '43 240w

"A fast, likable Western." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p21 My 16 '43 50w

GLOVER, CARL ARCHIBALD. Victorious suffering. 156p $1 Abingdon-Cokesbury

248 Suffering 43-3141

"A study of human suffering as a problem for man's understanding, an element of ex-

GLOVER, C. A.—Continued
perience to which he must make his practical adjustments, the price of personal and social progress, and a challenge to faith." Christian Century

"A fresh and searching study. . . Dr. Glover is a clear thinker and a forceful writer."

+ Christian Century 60:202 F 17 '43 40w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 10 '43 180w

GLOVER, FLORIDA R. First Christmas; il. by Susanne Suba. [12p] $1 Dutton

232.9 Jesus Christ—Nativity—Juvenile literature 43-16720

Simplified retelling of the story of the first Christmas, for four to six year olds.

"Retaining the full dignity of the story, Florida Glover has managed, nevertheless, to translate it into language more easily understood by small children. . . The soft, warm colors of Susanne Suba's lovely pictures add to the beauty of the book." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p44 D 5 '43 70w

Christian Century 60:1507 D 22 '43 20w

"Personally, we belong to that group which feels that children, even quite small ones, gain more from hearing the beauty of the Bible's own language, even without understanding it, than they do from hearing a simplified version having less inspiration. For those who disagree, Mrs. Glover's book offers a charming substitute." H. A. Masten

Christian Science Monitor p12 D 13 '43 110w

"A thoroughly charming little book. The illustrations have real merit and the text is admirable; unfortunately the Scriptural quotations are taken from a Protestant version and no Catholic edition is available."

+ — Commonweal 39:122 N 19 '43 30w

"Retelling does not add beauty in attempting further simplifying. Will add to amount of Christmas material now at hand. Attractive in format and in simplicity of illustrations." M. L. Goodwin

Library J 69:33 Ja 1 '44 50w

"Susanne Suba, who has made many excellent pictures for children's books, seems here to have tried rather hurriedly to do something novel and striking. The drawings are poor and the treatment unimpressive. These are pictures to which neither child nor adult is likely to return a second time." A. T. Eaton

— N Y Times p53 D 5 '43 80w

"The Story of the Nativity is here told with such sincerity, simplicity and affectionate reverence that it could be read to the smallest child." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 D 19 '43 100w

Wis Lib Bul 40:11 Ja '44

GLOVER, TERROT REAVELEY. Cambridge retrospect. 146p il $2 Macmillan [6s Cambridge]

378.42 Cambridge, England. University [A43-2786]

"Here is a series of pictures of life at an ancient university, seen from many angles through the eyes of a man who went up to St. John's more than fifty years ago and has served in his time as fellow and lecturer and praelector of his college, and Proctor and Public Orator of the University." Spec

"It is to be hoped that Professor Glover's lamented death a few weeks ago did not come before he had seen a copy of his last book. He would have enjoyed reading it, as he evidently enjoyed writing it. It is a book of reminiscences and impressions mingled with traditions from an earlier time than his and spiced with gossip of a harmless and amusing sort."

+ Christian Century 60:991 S 1 '43 130w

Reviewed by Peter Green

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Je 23 '43 330w

"Dr. Glover writes with an individual and attractive freshness, and there would have been little danger of his losing it if he had given his pen a larger scope. Some authors have too good a conceit of themselves, some the reverse. Dr. Glover is among the latter. He hardly appreciates how intrinsically more valuable his personal memories are than the picture of pre-Glover Cambridge to which he devotes his opening chapter. He has done it well, but other writers—'J.,' for example—have done it well before him, and of Cambridge as Glover saw it we could well do with more." H. W. H.

+ Spec 170:482 My 21 '43 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p268 Je 5 '43 500w

GLUECK, SHELDON, and GLUECK, MRS ELEANOR (TOUROFF). Criminal careers in retrospect. (Harvard law school studies in criminology) 380p $3.50 Commonwealth fund

364 Crime and criminals—U.S. Criminal anthropology 43-17001

"This is the third in a series of follow-up studies of the careers of 510 offenders who had been inmates of the Massachusetts Reformatory and whose sentences from that institution expired in the years 1921 and 1922. In the first volume, entitled 500 Criminal Careers [1930], which described the activities of these men prior to their commitment to the Reformatory, during their term of incarceration, and on parole, their careers were followed for a five-year span beyond the expiration of their Reformatory sentences. The second volume of the series, entitled Later Criminal Careers [1937], pursued the activities of the group over a second five-year span. In the present volume a third five-year period is embraced." Pref.

Christian Century 60:1474 D 15 '43 160w

"It is a masterpiece of reportage and reflects uncommonly fastidious research." E. J. Lukas

+ N Y Times p40 N 28 '43 1050w

School & Society 58:400 N 13 '43 70w

GOAD, EDGAR FORD. American Diesel engines; their operation and repair. 313p il $2.75 Harper

621.436 Diesel engines 42-50375

Introductory textbook for use in vocational and industrial arts classes. Fundamental principles of Diesel engines, construction, operation, and repair and maintenance are discussed. Illustrated with photographs and diagrams. Index.

Booklist 39:220 F 1 '43

N Y New Tech Bks 28:9 Ja '43

"The author has done something which too few writers of technical and semi-technical books can bring themselves to do. Instead of remembering always that he must impress the reader with his own great knowledge, Mr. Goad has sat down to tell about Diesel engines, and he has done a very good job. His book is readable, but, more important, it is clear in description and adequate in explanation of the component parts of the engines and their functions." F. H. Dutcher

+ N Y Times p22 Ja 31 '43 240w

Special Libraries 34:96 Mr '43

Wis Lib Bul 39:82 Je '43

GOETTE, JOHN ANDREW. Japan fights for Asia. 248p $2.50 Harcourt

952 Japan. World war, 1939—Japan 43-14386

"John Goette, who has lived in the Far East for the past twenty years, was for five years the accredited representative of the International News Service with the Japanese Army in China. He tells the inside story of Japan's attempt to conquer Asia—of the military and political leaders who planned the conquest and who run the conquered provinces, of the soldiers and business men who take their orders, of the Japanese technique in war and occupation, of the spirit that animates their dreams of empire. In this first-hand account we see the actual details of the Japanese plan for ruling Asia." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by Peter Quinn
Book Week p4 O 3 '43 270w
Booklist 40:91 N 15 '43
Commonweal 38:592 O 1 '43 310w

"Highly recommended for general purchase." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 68:724 S 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by M. S. Stewart
Nation 157:477 O 23 '43 600w

"Goette is a conscientious and sincere reporter. As a result, 'Japan Fights for Asia' is an unemphasized journalistic account of what happened in Asia. Only in retrospect, after careful reading, does one realize how frightening this book really is. . . John Goette's was one of the voices unheeded before Pearl Harbor. It will be wisdom to listen to him now." C. P. Romulo
N Y Times p6 S 26 '43 1500w

Reviewed by Mark Gayn
Sat R of Lit 26:11 O 9 '43 850w

Reviewed by Rodney Gilbert
Weekly Book Review p5 S 19 '43 1250w

Reviewed by Hugh Byas
Yale R n s 33:358 winter '44 1850w

GOETTING, MARTIN LUTHER. Teaching in the secondary school. 519p $3.25 Prentice-Hall
373 Teaching. Education, Secondary 42-21265

"Intended for students in colleges, universities, and teachers colleges who are prospective secondary-school teachers and for teachers and supervisors already engaged in teaching in this field. The volume emphasizes fundamental principles rather than prescriptions to be followed in a mechanical, routine fashion. In organization, it attempts to give a general view of the work of the teacher in the modern secondary school and emphasizes not only the classroom duties of the teacher, but also the extra services rendered by those who are teachers in the fullest sense of the term." (School & Society) Questions, problems, and bibliographies at ends of chapters. Index.

School & Society 56:280 S 26 '42 80w

"Teaching in the Secondary School will be interesting and helpful to the aspiring teacher of adolescents. It will give the older teacher an orientation in contemporary thought in this important field. If the reviewer were to venture a general criticism of the book, it would be that the attempt to cover such a wide range of topics in the brief space of approximately five hundred pages has forced the writer to omit much desirable amplification in the treatment of some topics likely to be of help to the beginning teacher." N. L. Bossing
+ School R 51:187 Mr '43 1100w

GOETZ, DELIA. Half a hemisphere: the story of Latin America; il. with drawings by Charlotte Anna Chase. 278p maps $2.50 Harcourt
980 Latin America—History 43-3895

History of the exploration and conquest of South America, the problems of its colonial period, and of the days of the revolution and fight for freedom. Includes a section on Latin America today: its culture, music, and arts. For junior and senior high schools.

Booklist 39:338 Ap 15 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:168 O '43 10w

"To the growing body of informative books designed to give children a better understanding of South America, Half a Hemisphere may confidently be added." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:101 Mr '43 70w

"Simply written and authentic history of Latin America as a whole. . . Material presented in such an interesting manner that some children will read book for its own sake; although comprehensive index, glossary, and list of important dates make it useful for school reference. For twelve- to fourteen-year-olds." M. A. Herr
+ Library J 68:366 My 1 '43 70w

"We have had, on the whole, more books for young people dealing with the geographic and economic aspects of the Latin-American countries than with their history, so this well-balanced, readable account of the countries of South and Central America and Mexico, from the earliest times to the present, is a useful and attractive addition to school and library shelves." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 Ag 8 '43 360w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 19 '43 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 14 '43 110w

"Without overgeneralizing—which usually flattens out a book for young folks like a steamroller—Miss Goetz's story of four centuries will fuse into one the impressions and much of the information North American children have received from many books. A library cannot afford to be without it." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p10 My 23 '43 430w
Wis Lib Bul 39:126 O '43

GOFF, FRANCIS L., and NOVAK, LLOYD R. Reading aircraft blueprints. 56p pa with instructions and questions and 5 blueprints in pockets $2 McKnight
629.1341 Blueprints. Airplanes—Design and construction 43-5911

"The authors are aeronautical engineers on the staff of the McDonnell Aircraft Corporation of St. Louis. The title covers an unpaged pamphlet containing fifty blueprints made especially for the work, and a fifty-page pamphlet of instructions and questions." N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 28:4 Ja '43

Reviewed by Theodore English
+ N Y Times p23 S 12 '43 80w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 22 '43 40w

GOLDBERG, LEO, and ALLER, LAWRENCE HUGH. Atoms, stars, and nebulae. (Harvard bks. on astronomy) 323p il $2.50 Blakiston
523.8 Astrophysics 43-5169

"Like its companions in the series, this, the latest of 'The Harvard Books on Astronomy,' is 'intended primarily for the intelligent layman,' although necessarily containing considerably more technical matter than is found in certain of its predecessors. Its authors are Harvard-trained astronomers, the first-named of whom is now on the staff of the McMath-Hulbert Observatory of the University of Michigan. After a brief exposition of methods and techniques, including a well-phrased account of contemporary atomic theory and modern spectroscopy, the results of the application of those methods to the study of the universe around us are presented with full recognition of the numerous problems still awaiting solution." Scientific Bk Club R

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 60w

"An excellent introduction to astrophysics."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 My '43 180w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p22 Ap 18 '43 150w

GOLDEN, S. EMERSON, ed. Plays of patriotism for young Americans. 305p $2.50 Dodd 812.08 Children's plays. Patriotic plays 43-51039

Collection of non-royalty plays, mainly of one-act length, for high schools. The subject of all of them is patriotism; about half of them are contemporary. Only a few require much expenditure; most of them can be adapted to simple stages. Includes suggestions for staging. Partial contents: The boy Abe; Thanksgiving with Uncle Sam; Admiral of the Ocean Sea; Up from Dunkirk; Simon Bolivar libera-

GOLDEN, S. E.—Continued
tor; The stars and stripes; Quisling; Thomas Jefferson's plan; Citizens of tomorrow; A guide for George Washington; An echo of '76.

Booklist 39:297 Mr 15 '43
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 Ja 17 '43 230w
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '43
Wis Lib Bul 39:51 Ap '43

GOLDING, LOUIS. In the steps of Moses. 556p il $2.50 Jewish pub.

221.92 Moses. Egypt—Description and travel. Sinai—Description and travel 43-10138

"Mr. Golding's publication is a condensation of two earlier books, 'In the Steps of Moses the Lawgiver' and 'In the Steps of Moses the Conqueror' [Book Review Digest, 1938, 1939]. The result is quite unclassifiable. The book is not history, it is not Biblical criticism, it is not legend, and it is not travel. Yet it is all of these. Beginning with Memphis in the reign of Rameses II, Mr. Golding starts out, actually and imaginatively, to follow Moses' trail." N Y Times

Reviewed by Jacob Singer
Book Week p10 S 12 '43 380w

"Whether the identification of other sites is scientifically conclusive may be open to question, for Mr. Golding turns readily to tradition or intuition when more prosaic evidence is lacking. But the record, written in a reverent yet sprightly vein, has the charm of good literature and sustains interest to the end."
+ Christian Century 60:1043 S 15 '43 130w

"The book is vividly written and contains numerous illustrations. It gives the reader a deeper insight into the problems and triumphs not only of Moses and the Israelites, but also of those who now visit or inhabit the land where the Hebrews journeyed for 40 years." T. L. L.
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 S 25 '43 600w

"Both for those who love travel books and for those who love the Bible this book is of deep interest." Dorothy Day
+ Commonweal 39:237 D 17 '43 650w

"Mr. Golding's roots are sunk deep in the tradition of his people, and the net result of his study is to vindicate that tradition. In his last half, the travel-interest encroaches considerably upon the other aspects of his theme." Edward Wagenknecht
+ — N Y Times p14 Ag 29 '43 500w

"A brilliant job, 551 pages long, and readable all the way, which has been blended out of Biblical history, archeology, biography, travel, and imaginative conjecture."
+ New Yorker 19:67 Ag 28 '43 70w

"The flash-back is a successful medium in the movies and in the novel when the transitions are skillful, and when the technique is not abused with wearisome repetition. It becomes rather irritating here, not only because Mr. Golding's material is so delicate and tenuous, but also because the reader is ultimately quite dizzied as he is hurtled back and forth, through thousands of years, every few pages." A. L. Sachar
Weekly Book Review p34 D 5 '43 550w

GOLDING, LOUIS. No news from Helen. 262p $2.50 Dial press
43-51340

An English engineer stationed on the Malayan peninsula becomes separated from his wife and child when the Japanese invasion begins. Months later he arrives in England, sick in body and mind, and finds no news of his wife. His mother is too busy with a family commemoration day to listen to his tale, so he confides first in an old servant and then in a chance pub acquaintance. The news of his wife's safety comes too late.

"Louis Golding has written fine poetry and the training of a poet is always evident in his prose books. They are highly musical and patterned, though never expansively 'poetic' in the Thomas Wolfe manner. The plot of this novel could stand a larger treatment with a fuller cast of characters, but in that case another author would have had to write it." J. N. North
Book Week p30 D 5 '43 450w
Booklist 40:146 D 15 '43
Reviewed by J. M. Flexner
Library J 68:768 O 1 '43 70w

"Gives a vivid account of the Japanese invasion of Malaya—so vivid, indeed, that it reads almost like an eye-witness's record, but, as the true novelist he is, he envisages the calamity from a personal and individual angle. . . What, however, gives this novel its peculiar distinction is the boldly conceived and almost incredibly odd situation in which Danny Mather finds himself on his return to England. . . The writing throughout is vividly impressionistic and pulsatingly alive, and so contrives to give even the most extravagant intention of Mr. Golding's remarkable imagination a convincing versimilitude." Wilfrid Gibson
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 5 '43 230w

"One recognizes in the main theme of this book the subtle searching and delicacy of feeling which characterized the author's 'Magnolia Street.' Here, as always, is Golding, the poet, who looks upon the present with the eyes of the past and future, and the novelist whose occasional moments of Joycean introspection are a treat in these days of reportorial fiction. Yet, whether it is for lack of the ironist's detachment from his subject or simply for the inadequacy of his technique, 'No News From Helen' is in the end disappointing and even bewildering." Nona Balakian
N Y Times p28 D 12 '43 600w

"When Mr. Golding is picturing the passionate suspense of the neurotic husband, hoping against hope for word from his wife, he is first-rate; when the affairs of the ponderous relatives impinge on the story's real interest, the novel loses form and direction and even credibility."
+ — New Yorker 19:94 O 30 '43 140w

"Mr. Golding once wrote a very perceptive little study of James Joyce, and he knows, himself, how to employ the simplest of Joyce's techniques, the many-levelled stream of consciousness. The suspense thus developed in this story is steady and mounting to the end, and the characters grow in stature as we watch them, by accretion, by oblique development as the varied streams of time add to them, now from one angle, now from another. Mr. Golding has told his story brilliantly and given it values that are at once topical and literary." N. L. Rothman
+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 N 6 '43 380w
Times [London] Lit Sup p623 D 25 '43 130w

" 'No News From Helen' has a certain coldness, like that of the five women feasting on morbid memories off their best china. And the author seems to lose his grip on his theme, falling back on expletives using the name of Divinity, endlessly repeated, as the tarnished coin of feeling." George Conrad
Weekly Book Review p10 O 31 '43 480w

GOLDMAN, ERIC FREDERICK. Charles J. Bonaparte, patrician reformer; his earlier career. 150p pa $1.50 Johns Hopkins press

B or 92 Bonaparte, Charles Joseph 43-14187

Charles J. Bonaparte was a grandson of that brother of Napoleon I, Jerome, who married and later was induced to desert a Baltimore belle of the early 1800s. This study concentrates on the years between 1890 and 1905 when Bonaparte, a lawyer interested in social reforms, was the friend and fellow fighter of Theodore Roosevelt. A final chapter summarizes his career from his appointment as Attorney general in 1905 until his death in 1921. Bibliographical note. Index.

"An informative, well-documented, factual rather than interpretative, study of the reform activities of this aristocrat up to the time of his appointment as Attorney-General. The author undertook the study, in part at least, to add needed emphasis to the fact that not all 'reformers' are plebians, even in America." A. J. Lien

Am Pol Sci R 37:1130 D '43 150w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p8 D 22 '43 700w

GOLDMAN, ERIC FREDERICK. John Bach McMaster, American historian. 194p il $2 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 McMaster, John Bach 43-3371

Monograph on the life and works of a nineteenth century American historian, author of the monumental History of the People of the United States. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. H. Hall
Am Hist R 49:72 O '43 1600w

"Mr. Goldman's little book is not without its own elements of charm."
+ Commonweal 37:448 F 19 '43 800w

"Mr. Goldman writes well, and his judgments on McMaster are consistently accurate. McMaster's approach to American history is indeed dated in some respects. It is possible to overemphasize the importance of detail in American life. But his basic respect for what went before, his willingness to take other times and customs on their own terms, still offers as good a way as any to understand the past in order to use it properly." Louis Filler
+ Nation 156:784 My 29 '43 550w

"In spite of its generally critical character, the book makes abundantly clear the significant contributions of McMaster to historical studies. In addition, the sensitive use of the McMaster manuscripts has resulted in a warm, living picture of the historian, the publicist, and the man." Merle Curti
+ New Eng Q 16:519 S '43 600w

Reviewed by M. J. Lasky
New Repub 109:228 Ag 16 '43 1000w

"In this slender but close-packed volume we have an adequate biography of McMaster, and a more than adequate criticism of his historical work. . . Mr. Goldman's dissection of the 'History of the People of the United States' is so thorough and unsparing that hasty readers may conclude that it issues in an unfavorable verdict. . . But, Mr. Goldman's verdict on the History is not really unfavorable, and the chief fault of the book is that it does not make that fact plainer." Allan Nevins
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:33 Je 5 '43 750w

"Dr. Goldman's study is to be commended for its clear understanding of the man and his use (and misuse) of historical materials. McMaster did much to make Americans proud of their heritage and his teaching and writing brought to a host of students and readers a delightful appreciation of the role of the people in making our history." Michael Kraus
+ Social Educ 7:282 O '43 450w

"A singularly unskillful biography of a rather significant person. The chief value of the book is that it may stimulate some other writer to do the job as it ought to be done." C. D. Kean
— Springf'd Republican p10 Ap 30 '43 480w

Reviewed by C. A. Beard
Yale R n s 33:160 autumn '43 650w

GOLDMAN, LAWRENCE. Fall guy for murder. 243p $2 Dutton 42-50771

Detective story.

"Plenty of miscellaneous violence by land and sea, some of it with an underworld flavor. It's an optional item." Will Cuppy
Books p13 Ja 10 '43 150w

"An exciting and swiftly paced story." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p10 Ja 3 '43 200w

" 'Redemptionists,' eclipse of sun, dope smuggling, and what-not all well stirred up by active and much-harassed hero. Eventful."
Sat R of Lit 26:18 Ja 2 '43 40w

Reviewed by Baron Ireland
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 31 '43 250w

GOLDSCHEIDER, LUDWIG, ed. Leonardo da Vinci. See Leonardo da Vinci

GOLDSMITH, MARTIN M. Shadows at noon. (Alliance bk) 198p $2 Ziff-Davis 43-10498

Story of the reactions of several people in different parts of New York city when a nuisance raid takes place at noon.

"Goldsmith writes with cinematic sharpness of focus in language which is predominantly unadorned and forcible. The dialogue is muscular but not supercharged with 'tough' expletives; for the most part it's easily colloquial and seldom pants for picturesqueness. Perhaps Goldsmith abuses a bit the author's godlike power of acting as deus ex machina in dovetailing too conveniently and neatly the lives and actions of his characters, but only a minor objection is justifiable when one has felt the total impact of the dexterously manipulated tale." Jack Conroy
+ — Book Week p4 Jl 11 '43 600w
Booklist 40:166 Ja 1 '44

"Novel is unbelievable, in both senses of the word. While reading it, I thought: Now this air raid isn't going to make that pickpocket return the money? It's not going to cure the paralytic pianist? The contractor will not give himself over to the police because of it? But it all happens! Besides, the style is turgid, and the humor dirty. Limbo is the kindest place to send it." H. G. Kelley
— Library J 68:530 Je 15 '43 70w

"The description of the air raid is a nice piece of work. Mr. Goldsmith understands the use of the English language, he has a knack for selecting vivid detail, and above all he has plenty of vitality. He is a young man—under 30—and he has a youthful preoccupation with melodrama. The whole book is stamped with immaturity. But it burns with energy; it has tremendous pace; the author is intensely, if not always coherently, interested in what makes the wheels of humanity go round. 'Shadows at Noon' is rather a bad novel, but in many ways it is more readable than other, less meretricious jobs." Jane Cobb
+ — N Y Times p6 Jl 18 '43 440w

"The wrecking of the continuity of lives is neatly portrayed in prose that has a nice bite. Mr. Goldsmith should have left it at that and not been so pat with his implication that falling bombs always have an ennobling effect on human behavior."
+ — New Yorker 19:66 Jl 17 '43 110w

"It is a cleverly contrived story, but both cleverness and contrivance are too obvious. . . But these judgments are made, it is hoped, on a literary level. On another level, where a book is required only to entertain or excite for an hour or so, 'Shadows at Noon' may be heartily recommended." B. R. Redman
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:11 S 4 '43 500w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p17 Jl 25 '43 480w

GOLDSTEIN, SIDNEY EMANUEL. Meaning of marriage and foundations of the family; a Jewish appreciation. rev and enl ed 214p $1 Bloch

392 Marriage 42-51075

"The author, who is a rabbi and chairman of the Jewish Institute on Marriage and the Family, treats the more important aspects of domestic relations from the standpoint of a Jewish religious teacher and also from that of a social scientist." Christian Century

Reviewed by Reuben Hill
Am Soc R 8:235 Ap '43 420w
Christian Century 60:52 Ja 13 '43 40w

"This is called a Jewish interpretation of marriage but it is a valuable book for any religious worker's library." E. J. Chave
+ J Religion 23:298 O '43 40w

GOLDSTONE, LAWRENCE ARTHUR (LAWRENCE TREAT, pseud). O as in omen. 247p $2 Duell 43-14282

Detective story.

"The criminal's motives aren't too strong, but that won't spoil your enjoyment to any great extent. This is one of the better ones." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p10 Ag 15 '43 180w

"Perhaps there is a little too much in this book about dreams, precognition, telepathy and extra-sensory perception, but there is enough about human motives and character to make the story worth while—even for those who care little or nothing about things that cannot be understood." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p8 Ag 8 '43 130w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p10 Ag 8 '43 240w

GOLDTHWAITE, EATON KENNETH. You did it. 249p $2 Duell 43-8245

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p11 My 23 '43 110w
Booklist 40:15 S '43

"Some very bad characters and some merely foolish, plenty of action and good detective work." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 My 16 '43 120w

"Shrewdly plotted, explosively actioned yarn with slick detecting and toughness smoothly mixed—and a whale of a finish. Hair raiser."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:35 My 15 '43 40w

"Homespun detecting is satisfactory in this story of simple souls in a dither." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p20 My 9 '43 130w

GONDOR, EMERY I. Secret zoo. [19p] il spir $1 Howell, Soskin
43-6819

"A picture story book, which is also a pleasant game for prereaders or boys and girls who have just started to read. . . Michael and Susan went with their father to the zoo and saw many strange animals. Later they had dreams about even more strange creatures, and by folding the full page illustrations according to the simple directions, the small reader can discover for himself what Michael and Susan dreamt they saw. The small child will like the vivid blues, greens, reds and yellows of the pictures." Springf'd Republican

---

Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 80w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p21 My 23 '43 150w

GOODELL, JANE. They sent me to Iceland. 248p $2.75 Washburn

940.54771 World war, 1939—Iceland. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-18478

A recreation worker with the Red Cross, one of the eleven women in the first group to be sent overseas, describes her experiences in Iceland, the land where it never rains "but simply pours." Illustrated with photographs.

Booklist 40:162 Ja 1 '44

"Good-humored, philosophical cheerful but not mawkish, frank but not grumbling, Miss Goodell tells her story well and with obvious enjoyment." Catherine Maher
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 9 '44 420w

Reviewed by M. S. Ulrich
Sat R of Lit 27:28 F 5 '44 600w

"Miss Goodell is a decided extrovert with a keen sense of fun, who tells her story without embellishments or coyness. The book is heartily recommended to anyone with relatives stationed there, and indeed to everyone with kin or friend serving overseas." E. B. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 19 '43 230w

"Miss Goodell saw no battles, no gaudy acts of heroism, but she has a pair of perceptive eyes, and a mind capable of recognizing the quiet courage of men who are enduring what General George C. Marshall has called 'one of the most nerve-wracking of American outposts.' And she does well by her perceptions." Margaret Parton
+ Weekly Book Review p10 D 12 '43 600w

GOODEN, ARTHUR HENRY. Guns on the high mesa. 243p $2 Houghton 43-51107

Western story.

Booklist 39:334 Ap 15 '43

"This is an exceptionally good Western novel and well written." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p26 Ap 18 '43 200w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p20 Ap 18 '43 90w
Wis Lib Bul 39:86 Je '43

GOODMAN, JACK, ed. Fireside book of dog stories; with an introd. by James Thurber. 591p $3 Simon & Schuster

Dogs—Legends and stories 43-51159

Contents: For the love of a man, by Jack London; Blue milk, by Booth Tarkington; Memories, by John Galsworthy; The hound and the hat, by James Thurber; The dog that bit people, by James Thurber; Snapshot of a dog, by James Thurber; Dandy, the story of a dog, by W. H. Hudson; Verdun Belle, by Alexander Woollcott; Gulliver the great, by W. A. Dyer; The bar sinister, by R. H. Davis; The coming of Riquet, by Anatole France; The odyssey of Runyon Jones, by Norman Corwin; Brag dog, by Vereen Bell; A dog's nervous system, by E. B. White; The care and training of a dog, by E. B. White; Obituary, by E. B. White; Our friend, the dog, by Maurice Maeterlinck; The biscuit eater, by James Street; Rex, by D. H. Lawrence; My talks with Dean Spanley, by Lord Dunsany; Memoirs of a yellow dog, by O. Henry; From pillar to post, by Jack Alan; A dark-brown dog, by Stephen Crane; Ruffled paws, by Bertha Damon; Bashan, by Thomas Mann; The dog of Pompeii, by Louis Untermeyer; Being a public character, by Don Marquis; Moses, by W. D. Edmonds; The soul of Caliban, by Emma-Lindsay Squier; The dark gentleman, by G. B. Stern; A pair of lovers, by E. S. Lewars; Garm—a hostage, by Rudyard Kipling; Lassie come-home, by Eric Knight; The voice of Bugle Ann, by MacKinlay Kantor; Some Sunnybank dogs, by A. P. Terhune; The whistle, by Hugh Walpole; The character of dogs, by R. L. Stevenson.

"Here is just about every good piece ever written about dogs. There are dozens of wonderful pieces in it, and dozens of wonderful dogs, too." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p4 Je 6 '43 60w
Booklist 39:388 Je 1 '43

"Someone once said that every great writer some time or other sits down to write himself a dog story, and in nine cases out of ten, it turns out to be the best thing he ever wrote. Read the book and—between laughs and tears quickening heartbeats and moments of superb suspense—you'll unequivocally agree."
+ Boston Globe p18 My 19 '43 200w

Reviewed by R. E. Berry
N Y Times p26 My 16 '43 550w

"A first-rate collection."
+ New Yorker 19:80 My 15 '43 10w

Reviewed by Phil Stong
Sat R of Lit 26:20 Jl 10 '43 550w

"For all who know and admire dogs, 'The Fireside Book of Dog Stories' is a satisfying collection to keep at hand. . . Those who consider the dog, however, as a mobile burglar alarm or a self-propelled toy for the kiddies may just as well skip it." Gay Stebbins
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 190w

GOODMAN, WILLIAM. Air conditioning analysis, with psychrometric charts and tables. 455p $6 Macmillan

628.8 Air conditioning 43-2372

"For practical engineers and students. Very inclusive, accurately calculated psychrometric charts and tables. Author, an acknowledged expert, is consulting engineer for Trane Company." Library J

"One of the most valuable features of the book is the excellent tabular presentation of data on the properties of air, dry, saturated or moist. The author has gone far in raising the status of his subject to a science where the trained engineer can make an exact analysis." J. I. Y.

+ Book Week p11 Ap 25 '43 140w

Reviewed by T. R. Olive

Chem & Met Eng 50:203 Je '43 250w

Library J 67:1067 D 1 '42 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:4 Ja '43

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p25 Ap 11 '43 110w

GOODRICH, LUTHER CARRINGTON. Short history of the Chinese people. 260p il maps $2.50 Harper

951 China—History 43-15634

"On a slender thread of Chinese political history Professor Goodrich has strung hundreds of little items of out-of-the-way information about the cultural growth of the Chinese people, from neolithic times to the present, to make a running story of Chinese civilization. Much of this information is hard to come by. It is taken from learned monographs in many languages, from the medieval chronicles of European and Arab travelers and from little known books by Chinese specialists in certain phases of their history. It is material for which the writer of China's political history, with emphasis on the great personalities of succeeding ages, could not find the space, even if he had the notes at hand, and which the average student would find difficulty in assembling from the best libraries in this country." (Weekly Book Review) Bibliography. Chronological table. Index.

Booklist 40:181 Ja 15 '44

Cath World 158:508 F '44 180w

"Within the limits which Professor Goodrich has set for his book as a brief introduction to Chinese history for those who know nothing about it, it is a complete success. An ample and varied bibliography is appended. The author is himself a scholar of assured standing in this field."

+ Christian Century 60:1537 D 29 '43 330w

"Perhaps the professor has devoted too much space to Buddhism, especially in proportion to Confucianism, which occupies only half as many pages. This is evidently an unintentional result of the writer's almost exhaustive use of contemporary research material of European and American sinologists. . . . However, we must remember our author's great virtues and forget his small faults. We must remember his critical selection of facts, his objectivity of view, his correctness of judgment and his soundness in interpretation in general. The book is short, compact and readable, in the best sense. It can keep the ordinary reader absorbed for hours. It can also keep the specialist thinking for days." Wing-Tsit Chan

+ — N Y Times p5 Ja 23 '44 1000w

Reviewed by Rodney Gilbert

+ Weekly Book Review p1 Ja 2 '44 1800w

GOODSPEED, EDGAR JOHNSON. Goodspeed parallel New Testament: See Bible. New Testament

GOODWIN, HAROLD LELAND. Aerial warfare; the story of the aeroplane as a weapon; with the editorial assistance of Don Cook. (New home lib) 273p il 69c Garden City pub co.

623.746 Airplanes, Military 43-51316

"The whys and wherefores of the aeroplane as a weapon form the contents of [this] book. Hal Goodwin knows flying from start to finish as a practical aviator and as associated editor of 'Skyways.' Today he is on active service as a paramarine." Weekly Book Review

Booklist 40:96 N 15 '43

"Excellent book." Raymond Holden

+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 N 20 '43 110w

"He writes clearly, comprehensively and with authority, with the result that 'Aerial Warfare' is as worth while a book as has appeared on the subject." P. J. Searles

+ Weekly Book Review p14 D 19 '43 280w

GOODWIN, PHILIP LIPPINCOTT. Brazil builds; architecture new and old 1652-1942; phot. by G. E. Kidder Smith. 198p maps $5 Museum of modern art

720.981 Architecture—Brazil 43-51045

"The Museum of modern art and the American institute of architects were led to make this photographic study by a desire to have closer relations with Brazil and by an interest in modern solutions for problems of controlling heat and light on large exterior glass surfaces. An introduction is given to each section, the first on early architecture and the second on architecture since 1930; there is also an explanatory text for each photograph. Churches, public buildings, apartments, a housing project, and a few single houses are included. The text is in English and Portuguese. This is an expensive book but it is valuable not only for architectural interest but for indicating Brazilian culture of the past and present." Booklist

Booklist 39:288 Mr 15 '43

"The fact that this is the first book in the three hundred years of our common history to give North Americans an idea of Brazilian architecture would, in itself, make this volume impressive. Here is the tangible evidence that there are other Americas worthy of our curiosity and our interest. Tables of statistics, anecdotes of travel, and the opinions of philosophers are all very well; but here you can see it with your own eyes. The Museum of Modern Art, Philip Goodwin, and Kidder Smith cannot be too warmly commended for the job they have done." Elizabeth Wilder

+ Nation 157:20 Jl 3 '43 900w

GORANSSON-LJUNGMAN, KJERSTIN. Shining sea; tr. from the Swedish by Barrows Mussey. 310p $2.50 Sheridan

43-10496

Maia Nord, waiting for the word to come that will send her away from her island home, reviews the story of her life from girlhood to old age: her engagement to a wealthy, middle-aged farmer and her elopement with the young fisherman John Nord; the years of poverty and child-bearing, and the years of estrangement; the first World war, the loss of children and finally John's death and the coming of World war II.

"A singularly moving novel. . . Barrows Mussey's translation of [this] Swedish prize novel admirably preserves the spirit as well as the narrative of the original." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p12 Je 6 '43 460w

New Yorker 19:85 Je 5 '43 110w

"Well deserving of its rank as the best novel from Sweden for the year, it will be remembered long for its quiet charm and thought-provoking scenes. Beautifully told, the author portrays a fresh clear picture of her people through wars and peace." H. L. Mitchell

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 6 '43 360w

GORANSSON-LJUNGMAN, K.—Continued

"Despite the tragedies Maia meets and masters, her confessions are happily free from the sense of dreariness and despair which so often mark novels of this kind. The descriptions of the sea in all its lovely or threatening aspects are full of color, and in some places are done with unforgettable power. The characters are three-dimensional, casting real shadows. It is a gallant, warming, and sincere record deserving of the honor it received in Sweden and worthy of a genuine welcome in this country." Holger Lundbergh

+ Weekly Book Review p6 My 30 '43 800w

GORDER, LESLIE O.; HATHAWAY, KENNETH A., and DUNLAP, CARL H. Fundamentals of radio for those preparing for war service. 373p il $2 Am. tech. soc.

621.384 Radio 43-14965

"A practical and basic text which can be understood by the layman. When accompanied by the workbook, which includes self tests and answers, it can be used for home study." (N Y New Tech Bks) Glossary. Index.

Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:53 Jl '43

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p8 Ja 9 '44 90w

GORDON, GEORGE STUART. Anglo-American literary relations. 119p $1.50 (5s) Oxford

810.4 American literature—History and criticism. U.S.—Relations (general) with Great Britain. Great Britain—Relations (general) with U.S. 42-51944

"This book consists of the lectures delivered, on the Watson Chair Foundation of the Sulgrave Manor Board, in University College, London, in March 1931, and now first published. The lecturer for that year was George Stuart Gordon, who had been Merton Professor of English Literature at Oxford from 1922 to 1928, and had in 1928 become President of Magdalen. He died in March 1942. . . leaving much unpublished that he had hoped to revise for the press." (Prefatory note) Contents: Early-American literature, to the end of the American revolution; The rise of American literature; Friendship in letters; British authors in America; British authors' copyright; The literary hopes of America. Index.

Am Hist R 48:643 Ap '43 50w

Nation 156:677 My 8 '43 150w

Reviewed by S. K. Ratcliffe

New Statesman & Nation 24:377 D 5 '42 900w

"These lectures were left in a form that fully justifies their publication, but which makes a just assessment of their value more difficult than it would have been had the late President of Magdalen left a finished reading version. George Gordon was a very accomplished lecturer as well as a very polished writer. And he knew the difference of technique too well, either to deliver lectures which were mere readings of a chapter in an unpublished book, or to print lectures that were mere transcripts of what had been planned to be heard, not read. It is not only that there are omissions and doubtful readings in this text, which even Dr. Chapman's editorial ingenuity cannot wholly master, but that there is an attractive note of spontaneity in the discussions, of learning lightly borne that would, in a more formal treatise, be out of place and which here sometimes gives the impression of brilliant improvisation rather than of the weighted judgment of a scholar on a theme of great interest and importance."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p526 O 24 '42 800w

GORDON, LELAND JAMES. Consumers in wartime; a guide to family economy in the emergency. 154p $1.75 Harper

339.4 Consumption (economics). Buying. War—Economic aspects 43-5198

Information on consumer problems in wartime. Discusses first economics of present restrictions on consumer choice; then takes up budgeting for food, clothing, shelter, etc. Index.

Book Week p6 Ap 25 '43 360w

Bookmark 4:4 Mr '43

"This book would be especially useful for a group of homemakers desiring an introductory text which would serve wartime needs and, at the same time, provide a sound basis for improving peacetime consumption patterns. A teacher might wish to use it for a short unit of work on consumption in college or high school." Day Monroe

+ J Home Econ 35:519 O '43 200w

New Repub 108:742 My 31 '43 90w

Reviewed by B. R. Andrews

Social Educ 7:379 D '43 100w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 19 '43 60w

Reviewed by B. Y. Landis

Survey 79:319 N '43 130w

GORDON, PATRICIA. The boy Jones; with drawings by Adrienne Adams. 158p $2 Viking

43-13044

The adventures of an English orphan boy, from the Cheapside section of London, who developed a great desire to live in Buckingham palace. Time after time he was caught and punished in one manner or another because of his tendency to haunt the palace. Eventually he grew old enough to satisfy his ambition in a legitimate way. Grades five to eight.

Booklist 40:63 O 15 '43

"An altogether delightful and original story of London in the early years of Queen Victoria's reign. . . Patricia Gordon's creative imagination, combined with her love of old London, has produced an unusually diverting story, full of humor and suspense, and kindly people." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:408 N '43 90w

"A combination of Cheapside and Buckingham Palace which has no equal as the most fascinating story of what a young ragamuffin can do, given imagination and a proper respect for his own wishes. The characterizations of Cheapside folk together with the excitement of living in the Palace unbeknownst to the Queen's household is rare fun indeed!" R. W. Stewart

+ Library J 68:826 O 15 '43 80w

"Gives delightful glimpses of old London and life in the royal household. Large collections may safely include this, but advise reading before purchase where funds are limited." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 68:848 O 15 '43 110w

Sat R of Lit 26:34 N 13 '43 80w

"The lighthearted, highhanded doings of the Boy Jones make lively reading for child or grown person. It is a delightful book to read aloud. Patricia Gordon has created a lad worth knowing. She has written a book with a Dickensian touch and a nice flavor of old London." Jacqueline Overton

+ Sat R of Lit 26:37 D 11 '43 410w

GOREN, CHARLES HENRY. Better bridge for better players; the play of the cards; introd. by Ely Culbertson; foreword by George S. Kaufman. 538p $2.95 Doubleday

795.41 Contract bridge 42-25653

With the exception of the opening chapter on bidding this book deals with the play of the cards. The author is 1942-43 holder of the Contract Championship of the World.

Booklist 39:248 F 15 '43

Reviewed by R. L. Simon

+ Sat R of Lit 26:24 My 1 '43 600w

GORRANSON-LJUNGMAN, KJERSTIN. See Göransson-Ljungman, K.

GOSLIN, RYLLIS CLAIR (ALEXANDER). See Alexander, R. C.

GOSNELL, HAROLD FOOTE. Grass roots politics; national voting behavior of typical states. 195p il $3; pa $2.50 Am. council on public affairs

324.73 Voting. Elections—U.S. 42-25395

"The political life of six states during the thirties, and in some cases in the twenties, was selected for study. In each instance, a description is first given of the economic, religious, and ethnic characteristics, and of party allegiances of each state. This is followed by an attempt to show patterns of relationships between these factors and voting behavior in various counties, sections, and large cities in the state." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by E. E. Robinson
Am Hist R 48:659 Ap '43 300w

Reviewed by Walter Johnson
Am J Soc 49:99 Jl '43 300w

"This volume is another valuable contribution to the series of quantitative analyses of American political behavior. Although its conclusions are interesting and revealing, they are by no means startling. The greatest importance of the book lies in its careful methodology and promising techniques." H. A. Bone
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:143 F '43 650w

"The study is competently done and uses to good advantage existing statistical techniques; but there still exists the fear of over-easy generalization."
+ Am Soc R 8:246 Ap '43 120w

"The book is not recommended for beginning students, and is not likely to be popular with the general public. It will, however, be very useful for middle and advanced students of party politics." J. C. Charlesworth
Ann Am Acad 225:190 Mr '43 290w

"A good example of realistic research in the social sciences."
+ New Repub 107:650 N 16 '42 90w

GOSS, MRS MADELEINE (BINKLEY), and SCHAUFFLER, ROBERT HAVEN. Brahms, the master; il. by Frederic Dorr Steele. 351p $2.50 Holt

B or 92 Brahms, Johannes—Juvenile literature 43-16471

A life of Johannes Brahms, written for older boys and girls. Altho written in fiction form all the facts of his life are given. Includes a listing of Brahms' work and recordings, a chronological table, and an index.

"When a biography is as well written and as interestingly presented as this life of Brahms, it belongs on the bookshelf of every teen-aged boy and girl. Brief musical quotations are included, a list of his works and their recordings and an excellent chronological table showing the world Brahms lived in." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p7 Ja 2 '44 250w

"Brahms and his contemporaries come alive in a book which should stimulate a further interest in his music." H. A. Masten
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 D 23 '43 80w

"Brahms' life is dressed up with a good deal of fictionization, but the facts are all there. The really valuable appendices, one listing Brahms' works and recordings, the other giving a table of the musical events in the composer's life, would seem to be for more mature children than the story indicates."
New Yorker 19:136 D 4 '43 50w

Reviewed by D. G. Mason
Sat R of Lit 27:36 Ja 22 '44 750w

GOULD, MRS DOROTHEA. Very first garden; pictures by Elizabeth Ripley. 48p 50c Oxford

635 Gardening—Juvenile literature 43-51111

Simple directions for making a five-foot garden. The six chapters show where to have the garden, what to grow, how to make the soil ready, how to plant the seeds, how to care for the garden, and the resultant harvest. For children.

Booklist 39:356 My 1 '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p8 Ap 26 '43 90w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:365 My 1 '43 50w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 30w

New Yorker 19:71 My 29 '43 20w

"This tiny, explicit, amusingly illustrated guide to gardening, for any child old enough to use a hoe or stretch a line for laying out seeds, takes nothing at all for granted." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 4 '43 180w
Wis Lib Bul 39:87 Je '43

GOULDING, PETER. So long as we love. 244p $2 Wilde

43-17753

First-person narrative of a young minister, which tells of his growth in charity and wisdom during his first year of service in a small New England village.

Booklist 40:198 F 1 '44
Christian Century 60:1474 D 15 '43 30w

"This is a quiet book and a friendly one." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p16 Ja 16 '44 80w
Wis Lib Bul 40:9 Ja '44

GOW, JAMES, and D'USSEAU, ARNAUD. Tomorrow the world. 172p $2 Scribner

812 43-13467

"The story [of this] anti-Nazi play is about a boy of twelve who has been brought over from Germany to be adopted by an old student of his father's, whom the Nazis have killed. The play is taken up with the transitions that the suspicious, warped and perverse mind of the boy goes through in contact with the American family and life in a large university town in the Middle West." New Repub

Booklist 40:161 Ja 1 '44

"Though crude in construction, this drama depicting the impact of a young Nazi on an American middle western university town is thought-provoking and stirring. Community and college groups will want to do it as soon as possible so orders now are advisable for public and college libraries. Current on Broadway and on the road. Recommended."
+ — Library J 68:959 N 15 '43 40w

"There is not a great deal to say about 'Tomorrow the World' except that the situations are not forced, and that the whole mood remains sound and simple. It is no small achievement merely to avoid talkiness, preaching and clichés. What happens and what is felt in this play convey the points or propaganda. That sounds very easy, but it is a remarkable fact how rarely the theatre, when it deals with causes or sets out to make a plea, can turn its matter into anything alive." Stark Young
+ New Repub 108:637 My 10 '43 600w
(Dramatic criticism)

"The play has little subtlety; it frankly sets out to draw a startling picture of what Nazi training can do to a child, and has something of the effective horror of a cartoon. It also, of course, has a journalistic timeliness." W. P. Eaton
Weekly Book Review p24 N 7 '43 180w

GOYA Y LUCIENTES, FRANCISCO JOSE DE. Complete etchings; with a foreword by Aldous Huxley. de luxe ed $3.50 Crown

767 Etchings 43-17339

Full-page reproductions of Goya's etchings grouped under five headings: The Capriccios; The disasters of the war; The art of bullfighting; The proverbs; and Miscellany. Captions are given in Spanish with separate list of English translations and interpretations. Introduction by Aldous Huxley contains a critical analysis of Goya's art.

GOYA Y LUCIENTES, F. J. DE—Continued

Booklist 40:160 Ja 1 '44

Commonweal 39:307 Ja 7 '44 550w

"It is very laudable that now, when the present bloody regime in Spain has dedicated itself to the destruction of Spanish art and artists—an art and certain artists that are universal—the United States should have undertaken to spread Goya's fame abroad." Luis Quintanilla

+ Nation 158:101 Ja 22 '44 1400w

"There is, besides love, a unique quality of relaxation in these pictures, a lyricism and a wealth of response. Goya could draw a bull out of this world, and these pictures are filled with them. They are to me richer in many ways than any other work Goya produced, and the fullness of their designs, which keep you going in them longer than in any other of this work, are the key to the great, terrible nature of the Proverbs, where everything is a perfection. Here Goya's pictorial device is at last the equal in sharpness, imagination and vigor of his long pursued appraisal of human badness." Manny Farber

+ New Repub 110:155 Ja 31 '44 1200w

"To turn most of the pages of this book is verily to sup on horrors, to pause upon designs that even when obscure—as they often are—add a mysterious shudder to life. Study of them is repaid, however, by the initiation they bring into one of the most characteristic aspects of Goya's genius, his savage humor. Also the etchings are invaluable for the light they shed on his technique as a draughtsman. Horror fades before the impact of his art. 'Goya remains incomparable,' says Mr. Huxley, and these prints confirm the justice of the phrase." Royal Cortissoz

+ Weekly Book Review p4 D 19 '43 700w

GRACIAN Y MORALES, BALTASAR. Art of worldly wisdom; tr. from the Spanish by Joseph Jacobs. 196p $1.50 Macmillan

170 Conduct of life

"Balthasar Gracian was a seventeenth century Spaniard and a Jesuit. He wrote a number of books we have neither read nor heard of, and a book of maxims, the 'Oráculo Manual y Arte de Prudencia,' Madrid, 1653, which the Macmillan Company has now caught up with by re-editing an English version issued—complete with preface—by one Joseph Jacobs in England in 1892. . . [The author's] purpose seems to be to tell gentlemen how to get ahead." Commonweal

---

Am Soc R 8:498 Ag '43 130w

"Gracian's very compact, elliptical and often enigmatical style is a challenge to the translator, and Mr. Jacobs has risen nobly to the occasion. Some of his sentences seemed almost too good to be true to the original, so I took the trouble to get a copy of the Spanish text and read it for comparison. The translation is an accurate rendering of the thought and a great improvement on the style of the original." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 60:137 F 3 '43 1250w

Commonweal 37:448 F 19 '43 490w

Reviewed by Dorsey Gibbs

Sat R of Lit 26:18 Mr 27 '43 160w

"This is not a book to be read at one sitting. Mr Jacob advises that the reader limit himself to 50 maxims at a time, but even that number seems far too many. One to 10 at a sitting, picked out haphazardly, would be much better. For these maxims are concerned with the timeless universal experience of living. This book belongs to the world, and the English-speaking thinker who does not avail himself of this, the best English translation of a unique work, lives less." S. M. Gross

+ Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 15 '43 320w

GRAEBNER, WALTER. Round trip to Russia. 216p il $3 Lippincott

940.5347 World war, 1939—Russia. Russia—Description and travel 43-5051

Statement of the fighting in Russia and the economic conditions in the summer and autumn of 1942. The author, correspondent for Time, Life, and Fortune, visited collective farms, covered the visits of Churchill and Willkie, became familiar with the war industry, as well as the home life of the people of Moscow, their churches and the ballet. He returned home by way of North Africa, where he saw the beginning of General Montgomery's campaign in Libya.

"A good, if not particularly exciting, book about our hard fighting ally. . . For years interpretative books about Russia have been flooding the market but to Graebner Russia is a new world and he writes with a naivete that at times is refreshing, even if somewhat breathtaking. He has a weakness for cliches and, of course, the Luced style has had its effect. Why children shouldn't be called children instead of moppets is something that I will never understand." Ernest von Hartz

+ — Book Week p3 Ap 18 '43 270w

Booklist 39:351 My 1 '43

Bookmark 4:12 My '43

"Walter Graebner has done something almost unprecedented; he was in Russia for only four months and he has produced a first-class book about it. He makes more sense than many who spent years in the country. His success is due to his absence of pretension and the simplicity and objectivity of his approach." John Scott

+ Nation 156:639 My 1 '43 900w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 108:800 Je 14 '43 550w

"At the present moment it is terribly important that we should understand Russia and try if possible to remove all causes of mistrust and uncertainty between the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. To that great purpose Mr. Graebner's book offers a most valuable contribution. In addition, it is one of the most interesting accounts of a reporter's travels, with all attendant difficulties, that I have read. . . 'Round Trip to Russia' shows careful thought, deep feeling and successful discovery." Walter Duranty

+ N Y Times p8 Ap 4 '43 750w

"Good reporting that catches the feel of things, but the writing is nothing special. Some of the material has appeared in the Luce magazines. Better-than-average photographs."

New Yorker 19:79 Ap 3 '43 90w

"Mr. Graebner records the Russian panorama with the fairness of a veteran reporter. 'Round Trip to Russia' is not a great book and many observations may be inaccurate. But it makes excellent reading." H. B. Kranz

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:36 Ap 17 '43 700w

School & Society 57:580 My 15 '43 50w

Time 41:100 Ap 12 '43 650w

"This is hardly the best in the rising torrent of war-correspondent books, but it is surely one of the most engaging. Mr. Graebner, an uncomplicated product of the 'Time'-'Life'-'Fortune' stable, impresses one as a rather naive young man with a lively curiosity, a fresh if uncritical eye for surface detail and a disarming gift for the casual cliche." Walter Millis

Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 4 '43 950w

Wis Lib Bul 39:84 Je '43

GRAEFENBERG, ROSIE (GOLDSCHMIDT) (COUNTESS WALDECK) (R. G.) Meet Mr Blank; the leader of tomorrow's Germans. 179p $2.50 Putnam

943.086 Reconstruction (1939-)—Germany. Germany—Biography. World war, 1939—Germany 43-14385

Discussion of the hypothetical leader of postwar Germany. Among those discussed and discarded are a general; a refugee; a German prince; and a bureaucrat.

"Whatever were the countess' real intentions, her book leaves one with the uneasy feeling that there is a slick job designed to build up certain forces for the moment of defeat. Heinz Pol and many propagandists have warned us that this is about the moment when the buildup will begin for the forces perennially behind German ambitions for world conquest. . . But the countess writes well.

And that makes her book all the more plausible and, I am afraid, all the more dangerous." Harold Ettlinger

— + Book Week p6 O 10 '43 360w

Booklist 40:77 N 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '43

"Though written in the light vein of kaffeeklatsch conversations, this is a serious book, facing a most delicate problem with considerable knowledge and a good deal of common sense. Most previous books on Germany's future are dogmatic and partial—written by the same clique that now attacks the author because she disagrees so with its wishful thinking." Max Fischer

+ Commonweal 39:48 O 29 '43 850w

Reviewed by Leopold Schwarzschild
— Nation 157:531 N 6 '43 1100w

Reviewed by H. H. F. Eulau
— New Repub 109:628 N 1 '43 700w

Reviewed by W. R. Deuel
N Y Times p4 O 3 '43 1700w

"Some interesting speculations, but rather on the naive side."

New Yorker 19:88 O 2 '43 40w

"The subject of the book is serious enough: with whom, in a defeated Germany, will the Allies be able to make peace? It is a sensible and amusing idea to put on a parade of possible and impossible candidates. And the book has many sensible and amusing remarks to its credit. But the parade which Mrs. Waldeck stages for us is a Hollywood product with such defects of taste and knowledge that it rather obfuscates than enlightens the mind of the reader." Gustav Stolper

— + Sat R of Lit 26:11 O 23 '43 1050w

"This witty, sophisticated, extremely readable book is like the airy conversation of one who has wined and dined with them all. But underneath the very smooth writing lies a disturbing implication. 'Better let the Nazis off lightly or you'll be sorry for it' is the leitmotiv of each gay chapter." L. T. Mowrer

+ — Weekly Book Review p2 O 17 '43 950w

GRAFTON, CORNELIUS WARREN. Rat began to gnaw the rope. 243p $2 Farrar 43-9677

Detective story.

"If you can stomach the violence and the storyteller's cuteness about himself and his actions, you'll probably find your interest is being held by a well-fashioned plot... The whole thing is on the hectic side." Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p7 Jl 4 '43 180w

Booklist 39:465 Jl 15 '43

Bookmark 4:20 My '43

"Action swift enough and violent enough to satisfy the most exacting reader, plus a crisp narrative style that wastes no words. This is the prize winner in the 1943 Mary Roberts Rinehart Mystery Contest, and well merits that distinction." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p8 My 30 '43 140w

"Fast, humorous story with flashes of brilliance by a new writer of mysteries."

+ New Yorker 19:88 Je 5 '43 80w

"Very good."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:32 My 29 '43 40w

"Gil is all right for a one-shot. If he plans to go farther in detection, one might recommend more smoke on the ball—but he will doubtless improve with age. Feminine customers might cotton to Gil for his streak of cuteness. Time, just before Pearl Harbor. Manner, pleasingly literate." Will Cuppy

+ — Weekly Book Review p13 My 30 '43 300w

GRAFTON, SAMUEL. American diary. 246p $2.50 Doubleday

940.5373 World war, 1939—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government—20th century
43-12582

Selections from the author's column in the New York Post, dated from July 7, 1939 to May 11, 1943. The author states as his reasons for making the selections that: "I have had three objectives. First, I wanted to offer a brief history of the war, its major events and dates. Second, I wanted to make this a kind of reference book of items which do not usually gain entry into reference books. . . Third, I wanted to present something of the serial story of the development of the ideal of a more democratic world." (Pref) Index.

Atlantic 172:135 N '43 90w

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 Ag 15 '43 700w

Booklist 40:9 S '43

"The columnist's fans will undoubtedly want to preserve their favorite columns in book form, but a newcomer to his writing has a little trouble getting rid of the 'yesterday's newspaper' flavor." M. H.

Christian Science Monitor p12 S 25 '43 550w

"Without being a Giraudist, a Murphyite or a partisan of the House of Savoy, we were nevertheless prepared to dislike Mr. Grafton more than somewhat. But after we had read a little way into 'An American Diary' . . . we actually found ourselves liking him more than somewhat. Put this down as a minor triumph for Mr. Grafton's lively style and the happy coincidence that his main prejudices—against Hitlerism, stuffed shirts, reactionaries, isolationists, etc.—agree pretty much with our own. And also it turned out that he could occasionally (but not very often or very much) be critical of communism. Which is always nice to know when picking one's friends."

+ Commonweal 38:494 S 3 '43 1000w

"Author, a clever columnist, makes interesting reading of stale events. A great believer in influence of the common man, and distressed over fumbling diplomacy of State Department, he feels that, in times that call for greatness, the United States is like 'a giant who plays on his knees,' showing a will to smallness. Good reading for diary enthusiasts." D. F. Lucas

+ Library J 68:621 Ag '43 70w

"One of the most consistently readable of current newspaper columns is Samuel Grafton's 'I'd Rather Be Right,' appearing six times weekly in The New York Post and twenty-four other newspapers, read by several million Americans. Grafton's column has been as consistently right as it has been readable." Albert Deutsch

+ New Repub 109:368 S 13 '43 800w

"This book makes one reflect a bit as to Mr. Grafton's future, which perhaps indicates that it is something of a book. He is now about 36 years old. It is possible that in five years he will not be so much concerned to make every paragraph clever and different. Perhaps he will not be so angry, so much of the time, with so much of human nature. Certainly one will watch Mr. Grafton's career with close attention. He has one of the best minds and at times one of the most expressive styles of his journalistic generation." R. L. Duffus

+ — N Y Times p8 Ag 22 '43 750w

"Mr. Grafton's blunt, somewhat righteous irony stands up fairly well between book covers."

+ New Yorker 19:72 Ag 14 '43 70w

Reviewed by Jonathan Daniels
Sat R of Lit 26:22 O 2 '43 550w

Reviewed by Frederick Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p7e S 5 '43 500w

"Editorial writers and commentators are usually most popular when they are denouncing something, probably because the readers love a fight. Here Mr. Grafton shines. He is not subtle; he bludgeons. Ridicule, sarcasm and just plain name-calling are his weapons, and his style is lively and colloquial. The objects of his attacks are good things to get mad at: isolationism, budding American imperialism, greed of the farm bloc, stupid toryism." Marcus Duffield

+ — Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 15 '43 1050w

GRAHAM, MRS ELINOR (MISH). Our way down East. 173p $2 Macmillan

917.41 Maine—Social life and customs 43-14486

"Down East" in this case is the Maine coast, and specifically Flying Point in Casco Bay, where the Grahams bought a house. The book is a collection of memories of experiences anent the making of a home in a new community, and the impressions of the natives and their customs, with a few well-chosen descriptions of the natives' own impressions of the strangers.

"What appears at first glance to be the world's most scatterbrained story of life on a Maine salt-water farm, turns out to be darned good reading. When you get used to Elinor Graham's way of hopping off the main track and going down all the little byways and side roads of a well-stocked memory, you say: 'Why, look! This book's Swell!'" Marguerite Lyon

+ Book Week p8 S 26 '43 270w

Christian Century 60:1106 S 29 '43 70w

Christian Science Monitor p13 O 23 '43 550w

"How to have the farm without the furrows—either in the brow or in the ground—is described by Elinor Graham in a dangerously attractive fashion that will probably set off a whole new batch of deluded city slickers into reaching for the nearest mortgage. . . People who come new into a community, Mrs. Graham not only remarks but illustrates with incidents to the point, may find the folkways of the natives quaint, but it isn't a patch on the natives' view of the newcomers. Her frank and open attitude on the question is fine for the reader, since it provides a generous quantity of double-barreled entertainment." Winifred Halsted

+ N Y Times p26 S 26 '43 440w

"This is an exceptionally engaging book, partly because Mrs. Graham has a nice eye for the beautiful and dramatic and a nice way with the English language; but mostly, I think, because Mrs. Graham herself is an exceptionally engaging person." L. D. Rich

+ Sat R of Lit 26:65 D 4 '43 270w

Springf'd Republican p8 O 6 '43 190w

"As a rambling, unco-ordinated account of a person given to enthusiasm about the beauty of the country and the people who inhabit it, 'Our Way Down East' is a refreshing, if slight, book." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p16 O 3 '43 800w

GRAHAM, FRANK. New York Yankees; an informal history. 282p il $3 Putnam

796.357 New York Yankees 43-6389

Informal history of the New York American league club—the Yankees—from 1903 when Ban Johnson got the club its franchise, to the present management of Joe McCarthy.

Booklist 39:365 My 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

"Mr. Graham's book is the result of exhaustive research, personal associations that go back through many years, and it has painstaking attention to detail. The wonder is that the book has not been written earlier, for the material has been there a long time. Reader interest too." J. P. Dawson

+ N Y Times p20 My 9 '43 850w

"This is the informal, readable, friendly, accurate history. . . Mr. Graham keeps his eye on the main story, which is the story of how the Yankees were built, together with revealing and often entertaining glimpses of the personalities who were with them in their years of triumph and defeat." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p18 My 2 '43 330w

GRAHAM, GEORGE ADAMS, and REINING, HENRY, eds. Regulatory administration; an exploratory study. 254p $2.75 Wiley

351.7 Administrative law 43-9810

"This work consists of a general introductory analysis of regulatory administration by Professor Graham, five essays on specific broad fields of regulation ('Police Administration,' by O. W. Wilson; 'Regulation in Public Health,' by Gaylord West Anderson; 'State Labor Law Administration,' by Henry Reining, Jr.; 'Public Utility Regulation,' by William E. Mosher; 'Regulation of Railroads,' by Wilbur La Roe, Jr.); and a closing article entitled 'The Location and Utilization of Authority in a Regulatory Agency,' by Leon Carroll Marshall." Am Pol Sci R

"Each of the five essays on functional fields is an authoritative survey of the whole or some major part of the administration of the function concerned. Those on public health and public utilities are most comprehensive, since they deal rather impartially with national, state, and local levels of administration. That on police emphasizes urban police organization and methods, while that on railroad regulation deals almost entirely with the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is a truism that in collaborative studies the works of different contributors are very uneven. In this case, each is of a high order of excellence. One could hardly expect to find better surveys of the functions covered in equally short compass. Nevertheless, each author's emphasis and point of view is distinctive and different, and this is due only in part to the dissimilarities in the specific fields covered." William Anderson

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:928 O '43 450w

"In view of the paucity of administrative material in most of the chapters, the failure of the editors to provide us with a concluding chapter is understandable. They are to be commended for having made a start toward the discovery of principles and problems peculiar to the administration of regulatory legislation. Perhaps an important lesson to be derived from this first attempt is that the job should be done by persons who are students of administration as well as functional specialists." J. R. Pennock

— + Ann Am Acad 230:231 N '43 450w

GRAHAM, SAMUEL ALEXANDER, and O'ROKE, EARL CLEVELAND. On your own; how to take care of yourself in wild country; a manual for field and service men. 150p il $2 Univ. of Minn.

614.8 Hygiene. First aid in illness and injury. Outdoor life A43-1877

Practical information on how to deal with such physical extremes as sunburn, storms, exposure, frostbite; what to do about quicksands, wild edible plants, poisonous plants and snakes, dangerous animals, insects, animal diseases, disease carriers, and parasites. The authors are respectively professor of economic zoology and associate professor of forest zoology, University of Michigan. Includes drawings. No index.

"A must book for most Service camps; good for school, college, and public libraries."

+ Booklist 39:459 Jl 15 '43

"By no means a juvenile book, but could be read with profit by young people of high school age, as well as by adults. Authors discuss specimens of plants and animals, both dangerous and useful, from all sections of United States—a feature that will be confusing to inexperienced camper in any given locale." A. E. Brown

+ Library J 68:628 Ag '43 110w

"Here is a manual of such value to field and service men that it has claims on the large word indispensable."

+ Weekly Book Review p21 Jl 11 '43 250w

GRANT, GORDON. Secret voyage [il. by the author]. 64p $1.50 Morrow

42-17476

When Tommy's uncle brought him a magic paint brush from China, the first thing Tommy painted was a sea captain. Imagine his surprise when the captain stepped out of the picture and spoke to Tommy. That was the beginning of an adventure dating back to the days of the clipper ships, when Tommy's great-grandfather had been a ship's captain.

"Besides having the fun of the story, ship-minded boys will value three pages of line drawings, showing different rigs from cat boat to four-masted bark, with a Chinese junk and an Arab dhow thrown in for good measure."
+ Horn Bk 19:35 Ja '43 80w

Reviewed by R. A. Hill
Library J 67:884 O 15 '42 20w

"Though Mr. Grant treats his plot with becoming seriousness, he writes with an engaging humor, and the light-hearted adventure tale which results, with its directness and swift movement, will interest and delight readers from 7 to 10." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 26 '42 120w

GRANT, KAY, pseud. See Cooper, N. G.

GRANT DUFF, SHIELA. German protectorate: the Czechs under Nazi rule. 295p $3.50 (12s 6d) Macmillan

943.7 Czechoslovakia—History [42-19019]

"In ten chapters of this volume its English author has attempted to give a picture of the development of the Nazi rule and of the reaction to it on part of the Czechs down to the end of 1941. . . The first part deals with by now more or less known events accompanying the occupation of Prague in March 1939 and the establishment of the 'Protectorate.' . . Part two describes the method of policing the occupied country, its Nazified civil administration, the extension of the German control of economic life, and the new political organization. . . The last part is an analysis of the methods of Germanization calculated to convert the sham of the 'Protectorate' into a mere Reich's province, the ways of Nazi propaganda, and the acutely strained relations between the Germans and the Czechs." Ann Am Acad

Reviewed by Josef Hanč
Ann Am Acad 226:170 Mr '43 500w

"In any study of the 'New Order,' Czechoslovakia must occupy a prominent place. It has had a longer experience of Nazi rule than any other non-German state. This book is an important contribution to such a study, and Miss Grant Duff is especially well qualified to write it." + Economist 143:47 Jl 11 '42 650w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:368 Ja '43 20w

"A German Protectorate is a solid, industrious and authoritative piece of work. It is well documented. Often it assumes in the intelligent lay reader too wide an acquaintance with the secondary figures and issues of Czechoslovakia, but it can hardly fail to convince him that, once and for all, the Reich authorities must be expelled from the highlands of Bohemia." J. R. G. Bolton
+ — Spec 168:467 My 15 '42 750w

"While Miss [Grant] Duff's presentation of the facts may be regarded as satisfactory, she comes within the range of adverse criticism when she proceeds to express opinions or pass judgments."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p206 Ap 25 '42 850w

GRAS, NORMAN SCOTT BRIEN. Harvard co-operative society past and present, 1882-1942. 191p il $1.50 Harvard univ. press

334.53 Harvard co-operative society A42-5147

"This book gives an interesting account of the Harvard Co-operative Society—the oldest college co-operative in this country. It was in 1882 that a group of undergraduates under the leadership of Kip, a Harvard junior, got together to see what could be done to secure relief from what they believed to be the outrageously high prices that were charged by the local tradesmen. None of the students seemed to know much about the co-operative movement, but they formed their society. . . The society was started by undergraduates, but as their active interest soon ceased, the guidance of the society came to rest with the president, who was almost always a member of the faculty. In 1903, when the society was incorporated, this condition was recognized and a voting trust set up by which the students lost practical control." Am Hist R

Reviewed by W. W. Cutler
Am Hist R 48:873 Jl '43 280w

"This little volume of less than two hundred pages is one of the most judicious and satisfactory business histories that have appeared in the United States. The available statistical data are expertly handled, the Society is seen in proper relation to external developments, and its managerial policies are analyzed from the standpoints of both theory and practice." T. C. Cochran
+ New Eng Q 16:328 Je '43 600w

GRAUBARD, MARK AARON. Man's food, its rhyme or reason. 213p $2.50 Macmillan

641.1 Food. Nutrition 43-17485

"The author is a guiding light in labor education, 'stimulating trade unions as well as other labor organizations to acquire and put into practice nutrition information.' It is significant that the American Association for the Advancement of Science collaborated in the effort 'so that labor organizations might call upon local nutrition committees who would then avail themselves of local scientists to organize courses, demonstrations and discussions in nutrition.' The main concern of his book is 'essentially with man's attitude toward food throughout history, before and during the evolution of the science of nutrition.' " Scientific Bk Club R

"An interesting book, popularly written." H. W. Lapp
+ J Home Econ 36:107 F '44 200w

"Mr. Graubard is a biochemist, a geneticist and a nutritionist and works for the Government. Without being captious, one cannot escape wondering why, if our Government has so much food intelligence as its command, it doesn't do something about the food situation. Nevertheless, you will be bound to be interested in Mr. Graubard's book." Walter Davenport
N Y Times p3 Ja 2 '44 240w
Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 Ja '44 130w

GRAUMONT, RAOUL, and HENSEL, JOHN. Square knot, tatting, fringe and needle work. 113p il $1.50 Cornell maritime

746.4 Tatting 43-15238

"Various practical uses of the process of plaiting and knotting threads called Macramé in France. Complete directions as well as designs for making men's belts, handbags, camera case, dog collar and many useful articles. Useful for the hobbyist and occupational therapist." Library J

Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:45 Jl '43

GRAVES, JOHN TEMPLE. Fighting South. 282p $2.75 Putnam

917.5 South 43-5744

Chapters on political and social problems of the South today, intermingled with personal reminiscences of the author, a popular newspaper columnist. Mr Graves takes as his starting point the fact that in various Gallup polls the South was more eager than other parts of the country to fight against Hitler. From that point the author goes on to show how the South is showing fight on other questions as well. Index.

Booklist 39:424 Je 15 '43
Christian Science Monitor p12 My 18 '43 450w

GRAVES, J. T. —Continued

"This seems the most genuinely revealing of the several books of the past few years by Southern liberals about the South. It describes rather than theorizes, and is particular rather than general."

+ Nation 157:191 Ag 14 '43 120w

"There have been more comprehensive books on the New South . . . more sociologically analytical books, and books containing a larger body of factual material. But few have been so readable as 'The Fighting South,' and none has probed so deeply and effectively into the background, whether historical, ethnic or psychological, of the reasons why the land below the Potomac and the Ohio has been such a bulwark in the passage of legislation preparing us for the present conflict, and in furnishing volunteers for the armed forces." Virginius Dabney

+ N Y Times p3 My 2 '43 1000w

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson

Sat R of Lit 26:11 Je 5 '43 900w

"Fair mindedness marks the method of 'The Fighting South,' a timely and eloquent book." Hudson Strode

+ Weekly Book Review p4 My 9 '43 1600w

GRAVES, ROBERT, and HODGE, ALAN. Reader over your shoulder; a handbook for writers of English prose. 446p $3 Macmillan [18s Cape, J]

808 Rhetoric. Authorship 43-16009

"Having established that English is a developing and unpedantic language, the authors offer a survey of English prose from Alfred's translation of Boethius in 880 to James Joyce and Gertrude Stein. . . Mr. Graves and Mr. Hodge then proceed to enunciate 41 principles of good writing. With each rule they give examples of what happens when it is broken. . . Finally, Mr. Graves and Mr. Hodge select passages for improvement from the works of 50 eminent writers, including Earl Baldwin, Sir Arthur Eddington, Aldous Huxley, Desmond MacCarthy, Professor Joad, Sir James Jeans, Sir Hugh Walpole, T. S. Eliot, Irving Babbitt, J. B. Priestley, Viscount Halifax, and Miss Helen Waddell." Christian Science Monitor

---

"It might seem that The Reader Over Your Shoulder would be unavoidably dry on questions of punctuation and grammar, but even here it is witty and stimulating—a desk-book for the writer that should never fail to key him up." Gorham Munson

+ Atlantic 173:123 F '44 420w

Booklist 40:180 Ja 15 '44

"Instructive and entertaining book." Harold Hobson

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 26 '43 1000w

"This is a stimulating and stirring book, which meets a great and genuine need of our times. It is stimulating and stirring because it is informed by a psychological insight into the writer's and reader's mind." Ernest Barker

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Je 2 '43 330w

"I was exhilarated by the sight of this book: at last two writers, one of them famous, had taken over the job from the pedants. But, everything considered, they had better hand it back again. 'The Reader Over Your Shoulder' is, in its own way, a very interesting book, but as a manual—and its subtitle proclaims it to be one—it is an absurdity. Its presentation is both confused and confusing; its contents are wantonly heterogeneous and often shamelessly irrelevant. To call it a handbook is like calling a peddler's pack a filing cabinet. The book's nature would have been better advertised had Mr. Hodge's collaborator been a Mr. Podge." Louis Kronenberger

— + Nation 157:704 D 11 '43 1250w

"Is there any limit to the Graves and Hodge flair for misunderstanding? Almost none, so far as I can see; they discover more ambiguity in everyday English than Mr. Empson ever dreamed of. . . The 'fair copies' are as a rule impeccable in their way; if, that is, one wants to read a report of a football match that might be a Times leader, or a criticism by Eliot or MacCarthy that would go easily into Latin. . . Sometimes the lesson is deserved; and it seems to me a pity that a book, whose general aims are admirable, should be spoilt so often by its pedantry. The case for plain English and against slipshod eccentricity is a strong one. It would be even stronger if Mr. Graves and Mr. Hodge did not depress one with their own English, in which every allusion is explained, every metaphor checked and labelled." G. W. Stonier

+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:341 My 22 '43 950w

"Mr. Graves and Mr. Hodge, in 'The Reader Over Your Shoulder,' have gone comma-hunting and do a good deal of carping, but the result is highly pleasurable and in some degree profitable." C. B. Palmer

+ — N Y Times p14 D 12 '43 650w

"Oddly enough, this book, with its high standards, its scholarship and its brilliance, is exactly calculated to suit the contemporary taste for spiced and potted knowledge which it deplores. Though safeguarded from undue exploitation by lack of an index, it provides a first-rate crammer-book of quotations and philological anecdote."

+ — Spec 171:180 Ag 20 '43 380w

GRAY, GEORGE WILLIAM. Science at war. 296p $3 Harper

355 War. Science 43-16432

"Mr Gray is one of our most reliable writers of popular science. . . In the present book he demonstrates both the all-pervading influence of scientific research on the strategy of modern war and the impetus that war has had in turn upon the progress of science. Only a small part of this book relates such ancient history as the story of Archimedes of Syracuse. Most of it is up-to-date as today's front page. The story of sulfa drugs and blood plasma is here, and the magic of penicillin is related. An illuminating chapter tells how gasoline of better than 100-octane rating has been produced by American chemical laboratories to give added speed and range to our bombers. The epochal expansion of magnesium production from sea water, of new plastic, synthetic rubber and fibrous materials is described in simple language. In a chapter called 'Force, Force to the Utmost,' Mr Gray shows how the famous three laws of motion of Sir Isaac Newton apply to the calculation of artillery fire and to the harnessing of recoil in the rocket projectiles which are mentioned so frequently in the newest war dispatches." Springf'd Republican

---

"Brilliant, stimulating book." W. H. Fetridge

+ Book Week p4 Ja 2 '44 270w

Booklist 40:158 Ja 1 '44

"Fascinating study of science and engineering in global war. Many definite facts not easily found elsewhere. . . One of the recommended war books by the Council on Books in Wartime."

+ Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 70w

"Among the popularizers, George W. Gray has an honored place both for his accuracy of statement and for his competent, orderly presentation of his material. So far as I know, his book, 'Science at War,' is the first to deal with that subject. . . There is not much in his book not already familiar to the careful reader of the daily press, but it is here presented in fuller detail and with more vivid writing than you get in the newspapers. . . One weakness of his book is that it contains a great deal about America, a little about England and almost nothing about Russia, or any of the enemy countries. . . His book is to be warmly recommended to those interested in current applications of science, who do not read the scientific journals in which these matters are usually reported." B. B.

+ — New Repub 109:828 D 6 '43 450w

"As always, George Gray reports his findings with an accuracy and a restraint rarely found in those expositors of science for the lay reader. If you are scientifically curious, you will like this book." H. N. Alyea

+ N Y Times p8 D 12 '43 1050w

"Much, of course, remains untold because of military secrecy, and, because of the appearance of 'Science at War' during the smoke of battle, it is of necessity an interim report. Many will want to read this valuable book while awaiting a fuller study when it can be told. When such a final report is written, it would be well to include the scientific devices also used by the Chinese, the Russians, and the Japanese which would give the complete picture of world science at war. This reviewer can think of no better reporter for this assignment than Mr. Gray." Bernard Jaffe

+ Sat R of Lit 26:28 D 4 '43 1100w

"The writing of this book is sober, factual and dignified—yet most human and interesting to the reader who wants to know what can be told to the public about the scientific facts behind the combat headlines." H. M. Davis

+ Springf'd Republican p10 N 30 '43 650w

Reviewed by Gerald Wendt

Weekly Book Review p3 D 12 '43 850w

GREAT BRITAIN. AIR MINISTRY. Coastal command; the Air ministry account of the part played by Coastal command in the battle of the seas, 1939-1942. 143p il $1.50 Macmillan

940.544942 Great Britain. Royal air force. Coastal command. World war, 1939—Aerial operations 43-6373

Authentic history and description of the activities of the British Coastal command, a combination patrol force acting under the Royal navy and the Royal air force. Illustrated with official photographs.

"'Coastal Command' is stuffed with excellent aerial photographs made over European shipyards, Norwegian fjords, dying U-boats and many another scene of action. All these photographs are good; many are remarkable."

+ Book Week p8 My 23 '43 70w

Booklist 39:428 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:158 O '43 30w

"'Coastal Command' tells the story with quiet competence. There are nearly 200 pictures in the book, a superb collection. English readers, who know an Albacore from a Skua as well as we know a Cadillac from a Chevrolet, no doubt find the authoritative details fascinating." Marcus Duffield

+ Nation 156:746 My 22 '43 270w

"The lavish illustrations, the quality of the paper, the number of copies sold (100,000 in less than a fortnight) will make an ordinary publisher, in the grip of restrictions, weep. Coastal Command is a slap-up job, and one's first inclination is to say that it couldn't possibly have been done better." R. F.

+ New Statesman & Nation 25:81 Ja 30 '43 300w

Reviewed by Murray Harris

N Y Times p5 My 9 '43 160w

"This book stands as an admirable tribute to successful endeavor. It is exciting, informative and ably written. It smacks of the elements with which Coastal Command crews have for long hours to contend; for it is patrol and reconnaissance work which forms what one might call the staple diet of this Command." Nigel Tangye

+ Spec 170:154 F 12 '43 300w

Reviewed by Nigel Tangye

Spec 170:154 F 12 '43 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p50 Ja 30 '43 270w

"A superbly illustrated book." P. J. Searles

+ Weekly Book Review p26 My 23 '43 250w

GREAT BRITAIN. Inter-departmental committee on social insurance and allied services. Social insurance and allied services. See Beveridge, W. H.

GREAT BRITAIN. MINISTRY OF INFORMATION. Front line. 160p il $1.50 Macmillan

940.5442 World war, 1939—Great Britain. Civilian defense

The official story of the civil defense of Britain during the most harrowing days of the blitz. It is told in pictures and descriptive text, and covers not only London and the other larger cities, but also the countryside.

"This book is valuable for its pictorial history alone, and its moving, first-hand accounts make one wonder again how the English people endured the months of blitz." D. McC.

+ Book Week p2 My 30 '43 140w

Booklist 39:428 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:158 O '43 20w

"It is first-class reporting, well on the sober side, but numerous illustrations, brilliantly selected, supply a comment more eloquent than a dictionary of adjectives. Some have an awful beauty, like that of the flaming spire of St. Clement Danes; some are breath-taking, like that of a burning building caught by the camera halfway in its crash to the ground; some are tender, like that of the mother bending over her sleeping child in the underground shelter. They are not, perhaps, a complete record, for the British are reticent about publishing pictures of the starkest horrors of war such as the Russians sometimes release, but only the unimaginative would ask for still more realism." Keith Hutchison

+ Nation 156:784 My 29 '43 800w

"'Front Line' deserves the attention of every American. The publishers ought to find some way of printing it for one-tenth its present price. The text is restrained, matter of fact, impelling in its impact. As far as I could see, it tells the story, not adequately, but well. And it is excellently illustrated." C. T.

+ N Y Times p5 My 9 '43 340w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 110w

"This official story of the civil defense of Britain is one of the most thrilling and informative books on the war thus far. . . No one can read 'Front Line' without agreeing with the statement in the preface by James M. Landis, U. S. Director of Civilian Defense, that our own people can learn from this book a lesson of human courage, selflessness and unbreakable morale as well as the lesson of patient, painstaking preparation without which this chapter of history might have been stark tragedy rather than shining heroism." G. S. Van Schaick

+ Survey G 32:299 Jl '43 450w

"No air warden in America, no fireman, schoolteacher, postman or volunteer worker, young or old, can afford to be without this itemized account of what volunteer workers have done in time of war. No manual can take its place; it cannot foresee what must be improvised, as much of this was. It makes a volunteer worker glad to belong to the human race to receive this calm, quick-breathing message of confidence from the front." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p14 Je 27 '43 650w

GREBANIER, FRANCES (VINCIGUERRA). See Winwar, F.

GREECE. HYPOURGEION TON EXOTERIKON. Greek white book; diplomatic documents relating to Italy's aggression against Greece. 121p $2; pa $1.50 Am. council on public affairs [6s Hutchinson]

327.495 Greece—Foreign relations—Italy. Italy—Foreign relations—Greece

"'The Greek White Book' is a collection of diplomatic documents taken from the archives of the Greek Foreign Office. . . The real purpose of the book is to prove that Mussolini's regime had long been aiming at the subjugation of Greece and that the cowardly invasion of October, 1940, was only the last stage of a care-

GREECE. HPOURGEION TON EXOTERIKON —Continued
fully premeditated series of aggressions directed by Italy against a much smaller neighbor." N Y Times

Am Hist R 48:846 Jl '43 20w

Reviewed by Gilbert Highet
N Y Times p21 Je 13 '43 700w

GREEN, ANNE. Just before dawn. 326p $2.50 Harper
43-4646

An American girl, whose family had lived in Paris for many years, is the heroine of this novel of France in the pre-war years and after the war came and armistice and defeat.

"This book is a well-intentioned tribute to the French, but, in all justice to France, few expatriates were in a position to speak for 'the French people.' Anne Green unquestionably knew a certain strata of French society of well-to-do middle class families and fading aristocracy. That part describing these families and their lives is vivid and convincing. The rest is excellently detailed description of places with shadowy characters and a too-generalized admiration of all things French to be illuminating." Josephine Herbst
+ — Book Week p11 My 2 '43 290w

Booklist 39:333 Ap 15 '43

"Sympathetic and interesting novel. Recommended." H. G. Kelley
+ — Library J 68:210 Mr 1 '43 90w

"Anne Green writes with verve and penetration, with compassion salted with malice. Perhaps the French are idealized, but they are never sentimentalized. For all good Americans who once loved France, reading her finest novel must seem like coming home." Lorine Pruette
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 21 '43 1100w

"The novel's real interest lies in its sharply observed pictures of conventional Parisian life in the years between the last war and the present one. Miss Green has a remarkably quick ear for the conversation both of petits bourgeois and the old-fashioned ladies and gentlemen of the Faubourg St.-Germain."
+ New Yorker 19:69 Mr 20 '43 110w

"Miss Green's picture is without sentimentality and prejudice and in its accurateness there is hope that though the days before the dawn may be the darkest, the dawn will come." E. P.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 390w

"With her American heritage and long experience of France, Anne Green is specially equipped to bridge the gap between the old world and the new. Her knowledge of France is rooted in the life of its people which she has shared: her knowledge of Americans is bred in her bones. Among the many writers who seek to interpret the two ways of life, Miss Green has a strong claim to authenticity." Virgilia Sapieha
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Mr 28 '43 800w

Wis Lib Bul 39:110 Jl '43

GREEN, DANA SAINTSBURY. Masks and puppets. (How to do it ser) 83p il $3.50 (10s 6d) Studio

791.5 Marionettes. Masks 42-36436

"This book is written by the author of 'Puppet Making' (now out of print) in the Studio 'Hours of Leisure' series, in response to a demand for a fuller and more comprehensive guide to the subject. The first book dealt only with the making and possibilities of one type of puppet; this new 'How To Do It' covers the whole field of puppetry, explaining in full detail the suitabilities, construction and manipulation of various types of puppets and thoroughly exploring the more advanced questions of masks and faces, costumes, scenery, the theatre itself and the production of the puppet play as a whole." Publisher's note

Theatre Arts 27:260 Ap '43 30w

Times [London] Lit Sup p515 O 17 '42 180w

GREENBIE, MRS MARJORIE LATTA (BARSTOW). Art of living in wartime. (Whittlesey house publication) 266p $2.50 McGraw

170 Conduct of life 43-851

"Author makes numerous suggestions for adjustments in thinking, working, and playing that will help meet present demands and guard against a destructive letdown when peace finally comes. She covers all phases of life in the home, at work, and in social contact." Library J

Book Week p6 Ap 25 '43 250w

Booklist 39:285 Mr 15 '43

Bookmark 4:3 Mr '43

"The book is unusually well written, with illustrative episodes particularly apt and arresting." E. C. T.
+ Churchman 157:20 Ap 15 '43 80w

"Excellent for reading out loud for discussion. Each chapter is an entity in itself and may be used separately. For those looking for workable ways of keeping serene and steady in the midst of confusion and fatigue, there are many useful suggestions. . . Particularly useful for home economics teachers and students as well as for the general reader." Esther McGinnis
+ J Home Econ 35:435 S '43 250w

Reviewed by Margaret Winning
Library J 67:1105 D 15 '42 70w

"Mrs. Greenbie never blinks the seriousness or difficulties of her subject. Yet as her book is a 'must' for home-makers and many others because of its clear, sane, incisive substance, so too it is a book which will be genuinely enjoyed because of its form. This writing is so straightforward and unpretentious that one may not quickly notice its often epigrammatic style. But style is itself a factor in the book's value, as it makes its content crisply readable and drives its truths home." Katherine Woods
+ N Y Times p8 Ja 24 '43 900w

Weekly Book Review p22 Mr 14 '43 270w

GREENBIE, SYDNEY. Asia unbound; a pattern for freedom in the Far East. 393p maps $3 Appleton-Century

950 Japan—Foreign relations. Eastern question (Far East) 43-13304

"The first two chapters deal with our enemies, the Japanese, with the purpose of trying to make them really intelligible as persons. The next four chapters deal with the countries Japan has definitely conquered. Since space was limited, I did not try to give the Philippines a chapter of their own. . . Following the picture of the conquerer and the conquered, I take up the questions of the Four Freedoms. Since the aim of the Japanese is definitely to supplant the white men as overlords of Asia, discussion of freedom from aggression means facing frankly the fact of the white man's aggression in Asia. And here, as in the rest of the book, I have either chosen to emphasize background and historical details usually neglected, or tried to give concrete pictures of concrete situations." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by F. S. Marquardt
Book Week p2 O 17 '43 400w

Booklist 40:76 N 1 '43

"After traveling in Europe, America, Hawaii, New Zealand, Australia, and China, Mr. Greenbie lived in Japan for more than a decade in exceedingly favorable position for observation. To his historical and economic view, he brings ability as teacher, lecturer, journalist, and commentator, to produce a book of imperative importance now for spreading in America all possible information concerning Asia. Recommended for all libraries." J. M. Brittan
+ Library J 68:724 S 15 '43 130w

"Along with the merits of a book written in a popular style, Mr. Greenbie's book possesses some of the familiar defects of works of this type. Some of the judgments are hasty and slapdash, the style occasionally lapses into cheapness, and some important factors in the future of Asia, such as Russian influence, scarcely receive adequate treatment. But the author succeeds in imparting a good deal of color and some enlightenment to his varied sketches of oriental life." W. H. Chamberlin

+ — N Y Times p8 O 31 '43 800w

"The reasoning behind Mr Greenbie's convictions is supported by fact and observation in a style convincing and interesting. What is not so commendable is a certain carelessness in several spots. Who told Mr Greenbie that the Japanese shogun was a fuehrer, rather than like the Carolingian major-domo? As for the Moslem leader, the imam, he is not to be misnamed the 'iman.' Nor do we claim credit for returning the indemnity collected from China after the Boxer war, but rather one-half the indemnity. Facts, it is recalled, do speak for themselves, but they must be accurate to speak intelligently." F. R.

+ — Springf'd Republican p10 O 29 '43 650w

"'Asia Unbound' presents nothing new but should serve as a useful source of information for those who do not recall their Asia and are interested in the causes which brought on the present struggle in the Pacific." J. B. Powell

Weekly Book Review p12 O 17 '43 900w

GREENE, EVARTS BOUTELL. Revolutionary generation, 1763-1790. (Hist. of Am. life ser) 487p $4 Macmillan

973.2 U.S.—Civilization. U.S.—History—Colonial period. U.S.—History—Revolution. U.S.—History—Confederation, 1783-1789

43-16080

Analysis of the economic and cultural development of the American people during the crucial years 1763 to 1790. The central theme of the book is the gradual emergence of Americanism during those years. The author is DeWitt Clinton professor of American history, emeritus, Columbia university. Critical essay on authorities. Index.

Booklist 40:162 Ja 1 '44

"Mr. Greene has unearthed a large amount of new material and skillfully fused it with known facts to produce an interesting and informing record." Carl Bridenbaugh

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 2 '44 500w

"The general reader, though not likely to read this book straight through, will find a great deal of information to interest him, but its principal value will be to the serious student of the period and to the librarian, neither of whom can afford to overlook this volume. This is especially true of the concluding chapter, 'Critical Essay on Authorities,' which brings together under logically selected headings a masterly survey of the authoritative works, old and new, in every branch of political, social, and economic life of the 1763-1790 period in America." Bernhard Knollenberg

+ Sat R of Lit 27:16 Ja 8 '44 290w

Social Studies 35:94 F '44 30w

"Prof Greene has a very agreeable style. A master of the sources and secondary works bearing on the subject, he summarizes and interprets authoritatively, and illustrates his points deftly with apt quotations from contemporary documents. Professional students, of course, already know something of the riches of the old lore. But the present volume will not only delight them; it will stimulate much interest among lay readers who never had the chance to poke around in forgotten corners—except by proxy, through the medium of recent historical novels about the Revolution." S. L. Jackson

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 23 '44 800w

"Mr. Greene's book . . . is singularly appropriate in 1943: this scholarly and illuminating study of the men of the Revolutionary period comes at a time of crisis such as they repeatedly experienced and which they learned to meet with a calm faith in the future of free men." J. C. Miller

+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 12 '43 1450w

GREENE, GRAHAM. Ministry of fear; an entertainment. 239p $2.50 Viking

43-8250

Sinister story of espionage in England during the early stages of the present war. The hero is a middle-aged man, haunted by the knowledge that he has murdered his wife to keep her from suffering. He falls into the clutches of a band of fifth columnists, and there follows a series of incidents—half-way between horror and insanity, before he escapes.

"Paramount Pictures will make a movie of this thriller, and it will have superior dialogue. Unfortunately the first-rate writing—the capsule characterization, acute observation, and good description—will not appear in the movie. . . The story itself, though unbelievable, is good to the last letdown. Confirmed addicts will find this self-styled 'entertainment' well worth a few more gray hairs."

+ Atlantic 172:127 Jl '43 90w

"Greene has allowed this latest book to have a little more popular appeal than usual—there is a happy ending. There are also scattered throughout some of the best accounts of London under, or rather immediately after, a bombing that I have read anywhere." America Chapel

+ Book Week p4 Je 6 '43 550w

Booklist 39:464 Jl 15 '43

"The Ministry of Fear is a most uncommon book, and an interesting one."

+ Cath World 157:448 Jl '43 250w

"Graham Greene is one of the few—the very few—authors in a world at war who does not make one despair utterly of the contemporary novel." Cuthbert Wright

+ Commonweal 38:175 Je 4 '43 600w

"Sensitive and mystifying story, unusual for its artistic style and polish. Public library readers who enjoy macabre and psychological approach to crime and murder will be pleased with Poe-like atmosphere created here." Rice Estes

+ Library J 68:363 My 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson

Manchester Guardian p3 My 21 '43 70w

Reviewed by M. D. Zabel

Nation 157:18 Jl 3 '43 2550w

"I don't like Greene's political aims, which are anti-modernist and anti-liberal, but I believe in his characters. More than that, his book has the rare quality of seeming not so much to have been written as to have been dreamed from beginning to end by a logical and consistent madman. Life in wartime Europe has something of that same quality." Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 108:706 My 24 '43 700w

"Ministry of Fear is typical Greene. . . But although there is little new in the theme, the details are as finely conceived as ever. Nor is the book lacking in its scalding, unpalatable statement—in this case that cruelty is the almost inevitable concomitant of pity. Best, perhaps, to say that Ministry of Fear triumphantly vindicates its claim to entertain. It neither marks, nor claims to mark, any progression in Graham Greene as a novelist." Philip Toynbee

+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:422 Je 26 '43 210w

"'The Ministry of Fear' is top-hole entertainment and then some—a guaranteed chiller to beat the first Summer heat-wave." William Du Bois

+ N Y Times p3 My 23 '43 700w

"Mr. Greene is admirably skilled in the elaboration of a plot so ingenious that you don't perceive till long after you have finished the book, with huge enjoyment, that its complexity is largely unnecessary." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 19:72 My 22 '43 110w

"Greene writes a mystery thriller with all the delicacy of touch, the minutiae, the by-paths and tangents, of a first-class psychological novel." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Je 26 '43 220w

"The schoolboy business fits oddly with Mr. Greene's nervous, brilliant probing, off and on, at character and motive. But some will like the romantic gangster-nonsense, and others will grudgingly enjoy many fine, hard passages of writing, and wonder why they had to be wasted on such Boy's Own Paper goings-on. They may wonder too that, at this time of day, we should still be sentimentalising the lunatic and the killer." Kate O'Brien

+ — Spec 170:508 My 28 '43 500w

GREENE, GRAHAM—Continued

"As absorbing and fascinating a study of crime and criminals as has come our way for a long time." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 240w

"The Ministry of Fear is a master thriller and a remarkable portrait of a twisted character."

+ Time 41:104 Je 14 '43 100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p257 My 29 '43 360w

"It takes a spiced and cunningly elaborate dish to whet the jaded appetites of readers of mystery thrillers, and Graham Greene is an expert in the art. Mr. Greene's fictional products are to conventional mystery stories what an Alfred Hitchcock exercise in cinematic suspense is to the ordinary Grade B movie known in the trade as a Whodunit. He has the ability to glamorize the thriller intellectually, give it an upswept hair-do of psychological interest, arch its eyebrows so that its ordinary features seem to involve social questionings, and rouge its lips into a semblance of earnest passion that lifts it out of the boy-meets-girl category. All of this Mr. Greene negotiates easily in 'The Ministry of Fear.' " William Soskin

+ Weekly Book Review p4 My 30 '43 1250w

GREENE, HARRY ANDREW; JORGENSEN, ALBERT NELS, and GERBERICH, JOSEPH RAYMOND. Measurement and evaluation in the secondary school [ed. by F. B. Knight]. 670p $3.75 Longmans

371.26 Examinations. Mental tests. Education, Secondary 43-2615

"This book is designed especially for the use of high school teachers and students of secondary education. It presents a practical introductory discussion of the essential principles of measurement and evaluation in the secondary school. This volume is essentially a completely revised and expanded treatment of an earlier volume which appeared under the title of The Use and Interpretation of High School Tests in 1936. The 1936 edition of the book was itself a revision of a general text entitled The Use and Interpretation of Educational Tests which first appeared in 1929." (Pref) Glossary. Index.

School & Society 57:168 F 6 '43 80w

"This volume is a distinct contribution to the literature of measurement and evaluation in secondary education. Not only will its thorough treatment of the subject be appreciated by the newcomer, but those workers long familiar with the field of measurement and evaluation will welcome its timely examples and practical suggestions." C. R. Maddox

+ School R 51:313 My '43 800w

GREENE, JOSEPH INGHAM, ed. Infantry journal reader. See Infantry journal, incorporated

GREENE, JOSEPH INGHAM, ed. Living thoughts of Clausewitz. See Clausewitz, K. von

GREENE, JOSEPH INGHAM. What you should know about army ground forces. 209p $2.50 Norton

355 U.S.—Army 43-11242

Description of the Army ground forces, which explains both the meaning and the methods of America's fighting army. The author is a member of the AGF, and has seen some twenty-five years of army service in China, the Philippines, Panama, and the United States. Index.

"Engrossing, apparently authoritative, and by [a] sound and practicing military [man]. . . Previous to this conflict, there has never been time to organize an A.G.F. Its work and its workings are here detailed, in language we all can understand, with thoroughness, grasp and simplicity." A. C. Spectorsky

+ Book Week p2 Ag 15 '43 230w

Booklist 40:2 S '43

"The author of 'What You Should Know About Army Ground Forces' has the ability to cut through the tissue paper to the package beneath." Arthur Symons

+ Sat R of Lit 26:24 Ag 21 '43 120w

Reviewed by P. J. Searles

Weekly Book Review p22 O 3 '43 400w

GREENE, LORENZO JOHNSTON. The Negro in colonial New England, 1620-1776. 404p $4.50 Columbia univ. press

326.974 Slavery in the U.S.—New England. Negroes—New England. New England—History—Colonial period 43-2384

"The present study is an attempt to fill [a] gap in the literature of American colonial history. It covers approximately one hundred and fifty years and embraces all of the New England colonies. A survey of New England's slave trade and the sale of Negroes in its slave markets is followed by a discussion of the social, political and economic repercussions of the buying and selling of slaves upon Puritan institutions." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Donnan

Am Hist R 48:797 Jl '43 500w

"This book is an important contribution to the social history of the Negro." E. F. Frazier

+ Am Soc R 8:364 Je '43 500w

Reviewed by W. W. Sweet

Crozer Q 20:351 O '43 600w

"The only important weakness is a lack of familiarity with some phases of Puritan ideas that sometimes leads to serious misinterpretation. . . Other errors are minor and do not detract seriously from the value of this well-written work, which summarizes competently large blocks of scattered material and often throws light on neglected corners of New England history." Oscar Handlin

+ — New Eng Q 16:346 Je '43 600w

"This is the first book in which a comprehensive study is made of the Negro in colonial New England. It covers a period of 150 years, roughly from 1625 to 1780, and it deals with the social, political and economic results of the slave traffic upon Puritan institutions. It is a scholarly work and deserves a wide reading." S. R. Harlow

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 31 '43 250w

GREENE, THEODORE MEYER, and others. Liberal education re-examined. See American council of learned societies

GREENHOOD, DAVID. The hill; il. by Charles B. Wilson. 266p 275p Duell

43-51115

The narrator, a San Francisco free-lance writer, wandering thru the hills in a tin lizzie, is stranded one day in Wabash Hill, once a booming gold mining town, now a ghost-town of forty inhabitants. While he waits for some chance passerby to take him back to the city, the visitor learns a good deal of the lives and characters of the people—Walt, the innkeeper, and Blackie the drunken ex-jockey who can cook; Jonquil, the postmistress and Ma Wong, the old Chinese woman who had lived in Wabash since 1854.

"The homely, human, often comic, occasionally tragic incidents that make up the lives of these people are blended in a refreshing way that will make you forget for a few hours the worries of today and feel better for the work of tomorrow." Patricia Smith

+ Book Week p9 Ap 25 '43 450w

Booklist 39:354 My 1 '43

Bookmark 4:18 My '43

"The book is not a novel, rather a string of incidents and conversations—variations on a well-worn theme, a musician might call them—but full of vivid life, and couched in the authentic accents of a race." J. K. Paulding

+ Commonweal 38:19 Ap 23 '43 480w

Reviewed by H. P. Lazarus
Nation 156:608 Ap 24 '43 450w

"Mr. Greenhood has a knack for reporting dialogue. He is neither Bernard Shaw nor William Saroyan in accurately setting down the popular speech, but he does all right. His convincingly meandering conversations are a pleasure to read. But his book is scattered. While it has plenty of color, it lacks depth. Give him a couple of ancient miners killing a demijohn of whiskey and he is in his element. Give him a cosmic Significance to worry at, and one wishes he would let it alone. Mr. Greenhood is possessed of that nerveracking asset, 'promise.' He has only placer-mined his town—the rich vein of gold lies still untouched." Jane Cobb
+ — N Y Times p16 Ap 11 '43 400w

"Mr. Greenhood, author of this charmingly rambling and inspiring volume, is an unusually deft storyteller, with a keen eye for character and a felicitous hand at dialogue." Stanley Walker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 4 '43 750w
Wis Lib Bul 39:74 My '43

GREENLAW, MRS OLGA (SOWERS). Lady and the Tigers. 317p il map $3 Dutton

940.544 China—Air force—American volunteer group. World war, 1939—Burma. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-13146

The author of this book is the wife of Harvey K. Greenlaw who was Colonel Chennault's chief of staff and executive officer of the AVG. During the year when the Americans trained and then fought for China and the Burma road, Mrs Harvey was with them serving as the "diarist" of the group. Her book is based both on this official diary and on her own personal diary.

"Cross references with Mme. Chiang's own reports on the A.V.G., with the reports of the better informed correspondents, and with 'Burma Surgeon' show that Olga Greenlaw is an accurate and truthful reporter, who compensates in courage and perception for what she may lack in stylistic perfection. Few who read this book will ever forget what fighting was like above the malaria-infested jungle and the tortuous ribbon of the Burma Road; and few will forgive the way the army treated the Tigers when the group was disbanded." Sterling North
+ Book Week p3 S 5 '43 650w
Booklist 40:43 O 1 '43

Reviewed by E. F. Kelly
Library J 68:621 Ag '43 90w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
Nation 157:386 O 2 '43 150w

"The story is rambling, poorly constructed and executed with great bad judgment in selection of material. But Mrs. Greenlaw has brought it to lusty life with injections of her world-wise personality." Joyce Garn
+ — N Y Times p3 S 5 '43 850w

"Very readable, though not particularly well done."
+ — New Yorker 19:78 S 4 '43 70w
Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 440w

Reviewed by J. B. Powell
Weekly Book Review p5 S 5 '43 1300w

GREENSLET, FERRIS. Under the bridge. 237p il $3 Houghton

B or 92 43-16298

Urbane and witty autobiography of an American author, one-time editor of the Atlantic Monthly, angler, and director of the publishing house of Houghton, Mifflin. Among the many authors he has known and published are Willa Cather, John Buchan, and Lafcadio Hearn. Anecdotes of many of his friends in both England and America are scattered thru the pages. Index.

"I should call this the reverie of a man of letters whose features are illuminated as he broods before the fire by the flickering warmth of his humors,—his delight in Virgil which tuned his ear for the memorable phrase, his Shandean humor (as when he recalls the knitted decorum of the Fields mansion), his fellow feeling as revealed in his dear friendships with John Buchan and Leslie Thompson, his impatience with the percentage side of publishing, and his solace in the trout streams and the deft, selective company of Isaac." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 172:129 D '43 650w

"This charmingly written and witty autobiography of one of the most distinguished of American publishers reads as easily as an autobiographical novel and the adventures of its hero—which are described by Mr. Greenslet with admirable detachment and modesty as well as refreshing sincerity and humor—hold the reader's attention from the first word to the last. Life has entertained Mr. Greenslet enormously and on the pages of his book we share that entertainment with a scholar, philosopher, fisherman and friend. . . From the point of view of style, of graceful, pleasing writing, it is a book to be highly recommended to all lovers of good literature." M. A. Barnes
+ Book Week p1 N 21 '43 650w
Booklist 40:144 D 15 '43
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 N 19 '43 700w

Reviewed by Edward Kingsbury
+ N Y Times p4 N 21 '43 1400w

"Mr. Greenslet belongs to that dying race of men of letters who quote Latin without self-consciousness, abhor sloppy scholarship, and have editorial standards derived from a lifetime of serious reading. They are a group who belong, as Mr. Greenslet himself would put it, to the pre-internal-combustion-engine era. But there is nothing quaint or funny or old-fashioned about them or about the world Mr. Greenslet casually revives for us. That world lacked many things ours has, but it seems, as ours does not, to have been largely populated by mature people." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:105 N 13 '43 280w

"A pleasant picture of the development of a catholic literary taste and rare publishing discernment." F. G. Melcher + Publishers' Weekly 144:2024 N 27 '43 800w

"For this reviewer, in the cant phrase, the book reads itself, whatever the subject. The style is simple and graceful, though occasionally perhaps too allusive for some tastes. But that is a fault in the right direction." Leonard Bacon
+ Sat R of Lit 26:4 N 13 '43 800w

"Because the author is patently youthful without striving to be, one is sure he will not resent the reader's comment on the joy to be found in listening to the story of mature experience. It has been somewhat of a fashion, lately, to write one's autobiography at 30 or 40. As a source of light contemporary gossip, that sort of thing is well and good. But for sheer enjoyment, an evening spent in the sort of company mustered up from memory in 'Under the Bridge,' they are no rival. This is a book to be read hungrily at one sitting, then tasted at frequent intervals many, many times for tonic reassurance. Life can be good, and fun, and satisfying. That is the welcome testimony of Ferris Greenslet." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 400w

"The great value of the book lies in the breadth and fullness of Mr. Greenslet's evocations, whether he be writing of peacetime operations or of his experiences on the fringe of the first world war. The sensitiveness and skill of the man of letters steadily prevail." Royal Cortissoz
+ Weekly Book Review p3 N 21 '43 1700w

GREENWOOD, ERNEST JOSEPH ADOLPH, and SILVERMAN, JOSEPH R. Stress analysis for airplane draftsmen. 291p il $3 McGraw

629.1341 Airplanes—Design and construction. Strains and stresses 43-13757

"Review of principles of applied mechanics and applications in solving some elementary structural problems encountered in designing airplanes. Assumes knowledge of applied mechanics. Both authors are associated with Chance Vought. Was used in mimeograph form with elementary airplane structure classes at Vought Sikorsky." (Library J) Index.

GREENWOOD, E. J. A.—Continued

Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:51 Jl '43

GREENWOOD, ROBERT. Squad goes out. 318p $2.50 Bobbs
43-6645

Novel based on the Battle of Britain of 1940. The scene is the Bermondsey section of London. The story describes the activities of an ambulance squad, presided over by a young architect, known as Brownie, three other men, and a girl driver. They are all terrified—except one of them—but they do their best, and as the parson watches them set out on their last trip together he decides they are "jolly nice people."

"Robert Greenwood has written of his people with a fine understanding. Tenderness, comedy, tragedy and courage are woven into a stirring testimonial to the gallant men and women of London who found rebirth and not death in the blitz." Patricia Smith
+ Book Week p4 Jl 11 '43 380w
Booklist 39:388 Je 1 '43
Bookmark 4:18 My '43

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p3 Je 18 '43 50w

"Robert Greenwood's first fictional venture, 'Mr. Bunting in Peace and War,' though sound, good stuff, did not prepare one for the full measure of beauty, dramatic force and artistic rightness of his second, now published less than eighteen months later. 'The Squad Goes Out' is alive with both maturity and youth—a tested maturity and a burgeoning Springtide youthfulness." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p6 My 23 '43 440w

"The story is an appealing one, made memorable by the quiet courage of the characters. Robert Greenwood has done a good job of presenting people whose prototypes are known to us all, people who in similar crises would no doubt react in the same way as Brownie and his squad." N. S. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 23 '43 360w
Times [London] Lit Sup p305 Je 26 '43 300w

"Quietly written novel." M. C. Blackman
+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 16 '43 700w

GREET, WILLIAM CABELL. War words: recommended pronunciations; pub. for the Columbia broadcasting system. 137p $1.50 Columbia univ. press

411.5 English language—Pronunciation. Names, Geographical. Names, Personal. World war, 1939-43-3577

This long list of words, chiefly place-names, was designed originally to assist the speakers of the Columbia Broadcasting system. "In the first column is the word to be pronounced. In the second column the pronunciation is given by a simplified Websterian alphabet, and in the third column by a phonetic respelling without special accents." (Introd) Introduction contains some explanatory notes, arranged by language, dealing with reasons for choice of principles of pronunciation.

Booklist 39:313 Ap 1 '43

"Mr. Greet's manual is of much use and great fascination." C. B. P.
+ N Y Times p12 Ap 18 '43 550w

GREG, WALTER WILSON. Editorial problem in Shakespeare; a survey of the foundations of the text. 265p $3.75 (12s 6d) Oxford

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Criticism, Textual
A43-1123

"In this volume (in its original form a series of lectures at Cambridge University) Dr. Greg carries further the line of inquiry pressed so far by the late R. B. McKerrow in his 'Prolegomena for the Oxford Shakespeare.' Mr. McKerrow at the time of his death had been at work upon the new edition of Shakespeare which is planned to follow the Oxford edition of Ben Jonson now nearing its completion. Dr. Greg supplements the principles of editorial procedure laid down by his predecessor, taking issue with him on certain points, but in the main amplifying and refining upon the earlier investigation." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by John Berryman
Nation 157:218 Ag 21 '43 950w

"Especially significant are his comments on prompters' copies and authors' 'foul papers,' the integrity of Heminge and Condell, the reliability of the text of the First Folio, and the criteria for distinguishing between 'good' and 'bad' Quartos. Though I cannot speak with the authority of one who has edited Shakespeare, I find Dr. Greg's treatise to be characterized by scrupulous documentation, exhaustive knowledge, expository excellence, and imaginative understanding." Paul Mueschke
+ N Y Times p22 Ag 1 '43 190w
Times [London] Lit Sup p216 My 1 '43 600w

"These lectures, it must be obvious, are for the specialist rather than for the general reader; but the general reader may derive from them, if he is curious, some idea of the great and complex task of preparing an authoritative edition of Shakespeare which shall conform to the exacting standards of modern scholarship."
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Je 6 '43 450w

GREGORY, HORACE, ed. Triumph of life; poems of consolation for the English-speaking world. 603p $2.50 Viking

821.08 American poetry—Collections. English poetry—Collections
43-15409

A collection of poems written in English offering consolation. The editor has included the famous and well-known elegies but has added to them many shorter poems, some little known, "which sustain and vary and modify [the elegy's] theme." His purpose he says, "is not to celebrate the presence of death, but to reaffirm the existence of a light that is felt and known in darkness, of a spirit that lifts the heart in time of grief and relieves its burden." (Introd)

Booklist 40:90 N 15 '43
Christian Century 60:1233 O 27 '43 60w

"It is hard to think of anything that is left out when it should have been included. It is hard to make the usual reservations about the editor's choice. It is difficult not to say, simply, that this is an extraordinarily fine collection of enduring poetry."
+ Commonweal 39:184 D 3 '43 240w

"Despite the forbidding title and the equally viscous headings to the various sections into which the poems are divided, this is a well chosen anthology of English and American verse. Along with the deservedly familiar are a number of poems which have rarely, if ever, been included in an anthology before. Surprisingly for a modernist, Mr. Gregory's taste runs to the post-romantics, but this serves to give his book an occasional extravagance and warmth that has been missing in recent anthologies chosen from the stringent viewpoints of humanism and the new neo-classicism."
+ New Repub 109:630 N 1 '43 100w

"Before selecting the 300 poems in 'The Triumph of Life,' Horace Gregory obviously read with patience and love through whole libraries of English poetry—and made such demands on his authors that, simply as a demonstration of poetry, his anthology is a delight to explore." R. G. Davis
+ N Y Times p42 N 21 '43 600w

Reviewed by Louise Bogan
New Yorker 19:106 N 13 '43 1000w

"I could not have believed, before I saw it, that such a book could contain so much that was excellent, so little that was commonplace. . . Mr. Gregory, a remarkable poet in his own right, has such unerring taste for what is real poetry, and manifests such distinction in his particular choices, that this small volume is a delight." W. R. Benet

+ Sat R of Lit 26:24 O 16 '43 200w

Weekly Book Review p34 N 7 '43 450w

Wis Lib Bul 39:156 D '43

GREGORY, JACKSON. Lonely trail. 243p $2 Dodd

43-3663

Western story.

"It is a dashing, lively, romantic tale of the kind Jackson Gregory is adept in fashioning, but he has written better ones." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p16 Je 6 '43 230w

"Splendid Western." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 14 '43 80w

GREGORY, JACKSON. Man from Painted Rock. 214p $2 Dodd

43-9192

Western story.

Booklist 40:15 S '43

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p9 Jl 4 '43 100w

GREW, JOSEPH CLARK. Report from Tokyo; a message to the American people. 88p $1.50; pa $1 Simon & Schuster [4s 6d; pa 2s 6d Hammond, A.]

952 Japan. World war, 1939—Japan

43-377

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Who other than Mr. Grew could speak of the Japanese and command closer attention from the American people? Mr. Grew has been speaking to the nation. In his speeches, particularly in these ten, he has answered briefly many questions which the attack at Pearl Harbor forced upon the minds of a shaken and aroused public. But the Report from Tokyo leaves us eagerly, even anxiously, awaiting the book that none but Mr. Grew can write." J. T. Watkins, IV

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:371 Ap '43 380w

"A clear, dispassionate discussion of the rise of the militarists and their control over the fanatically obedient Japanese people."

+ Bookmark 5:12 Ja '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:580 Ap '43 70w

"Straight talking from someone who knows his subject and everyone who is in this war would do well to think it over." H. V. Redman

+ Pacific Affairs 16:361 S '43 490w

Pratt p13 F '43

"I warmly commend [these speeches] to every Englishman who thinks the end of the war is in sight. We are apt to imagine—and the Prime Minister's recent broadcast did nothing to discourage this illusion—that the collapse of Japan will be an inevitable by-blow of Germany's defeat. But Japan now possesses in her conquered territories perhaps the strongest economy in the world. She has already done far more direct harm to the British Empire than Germany has encompassed. She has now had time to develop her conquests, and she must be immeasurably stronger than when she entered the war. Let's not be deceived by Guadalcanal or a winter of military doldrums. The defeat of Japan is one of the nastiest tasks that face us. For that reason Mr. Grew's warning is more than timely." Simon Harcourt-Smith

+ Spec 170:390 Ap 23 '43 600w

"Those who expect diplomatic revelations from this book of the late Ambassador of the United States to Japan will be disappointed. There is a brief and vivid account of Mr. Grew's dealings with the Foreign Minister in Tokyo during the night on which the attack on Pearl Harbour was launched, but that is all. The importance of this book lies in the fact that it is written by a man admirably situated to assess the problem and having behind him ten years' continuous experience of Japan."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p184 Ap 17 '43 420w

Wis Lib Bul 39:27 F '43

Reviewed by A. K. Reischauer

Yale R n s 32:798 summer '43 350w

GRIFFIN, ALEXANDER R. Here come the marines! the story of the Devil Dogs, from Tripoli to Wake island. 219p $2 Howell, Soskin

359.96 U.S. Marine corps 42-50299

Stories of the United States marine corps from July, 1798 when they were officially commissioned by Congress, to the battle of Wake island.

"This lively, often tempestuous and always thrilling story will be of moment to some men as well as to the boys of all ages to whom it is offered." M. L. Becker

+ Books p28 N 15 '42 280w

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '43

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 24 '43 80w

GRIFFIN, ALEXANDER R. A ship to remember; the saga of the Hornet. 288p il $2.50 Howell, Soskin

940.545 Hornet (aircraft carrier). World war, 1939—Naval operations 43-17297

The chronicle of that gallant ship, the Hornet. In the one year and a few days of her existence she took Jimmy Doolittle and his fliers to the vicinity of Japan, fought thru the battle of Midway, and, when she was the only American carrier left in the South Pacific, relieved the marines at Guadalcanal at their most perilous moment.

"The book is 99¾ per cent on the plane of high achievement and high adventure. It is a thriller, but it will make you proud, and thoughtful, too." W. F. Morse

+ Book Week p4 D 19 '43 360w

Booklist 40:162 Ja 1 '44

Cath World 158:411 Ja '44 90w

" 'A Ship to Remember, The Saga of the Hornet' is a must for those who like to read their history contemporaneously and get it straight." Foster Hailey

+ N Y Times p9 D 12 '43 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 9 '44 440w

"This book is a distinct addition to the literature of the war. It tells a magnificent story in sharp and realistic fashion; and all the officers and men aboard the Hornet throughout her career are given their just due. It is from books like this that the American public must piece together the real history of the war." Lincoln Colcord

+ Weekly Book Review p3 D 5 '43 1550w

GRIFFIN, HENRY FARRAND. Paradise street. 364p $2.50 Appleton-Century

43-7756

Romantic tale of the New Bedford whaling industry in the 1830s. When the hero, young Dave Mayo, is thrown over by his skipper's daughter, he comes under the influence of the mysterious Graciosa, entertainer on a pleasure ship. Graciosa prevails on Dave to go with her to Portugal and there he becomes involved in that country's civil war, leading to further adventures.

"Good romantic fiction." E. J. C.

+ Book Week p9 My 16 '43 250w

"This is an action novel of the two-dimensional type which makes no pretensions other than to entertain. In this objective it is wholly successful; something to take your mind off the grim realities of the present."

+ Boston Globe p19 My 19 '43 180w

GRIFFIN, H. F.—Continued

"A well-told adventure story." Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p12 Je 20 '43 240w

"A vivid tale of the whaling days. . . It is a book that rushes the reader swiftly on to the end." M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 220w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p21 My 9 '43 300w

GRIFFITH, ERNEST STACEY. Modern government in action. 91p $1 Columbia univ. press

320.15 Political science. Administrative law. Democracy 42-22075

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"An interesting, stimulating, and often provocative little book which will amply repay the time that anyone spends in reading it." W. B. Munro

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:140 F '43 450w

"One can see in these courageous and realistic essays the wholesome influence which contact with public administration has upon a student of politics. In a recent book review, Charles E. Merriam urged political scientists to pay attention to developments in the field of management. Mr. Griffith has associated with management-minded students and officials at Washington, a fact which is quite evident in the stronger aspects of this book." J. M. Pfiffner

+ Ann Am Acad 226:189 My '43 310w

Christian Century 60:169 F 10 '43 130w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:4 Jl '43 30w

"This is a timely document by an author who is well-qualified for his task. Mr. Griffith is well-known as the Director of the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress and as the author of several books on municipal government. His work will be of unusual value to the teacher who wishes to interpret present governmental trends to the high school or college student." Katherine Smedley

+ Social Studies 34:236 My '43 750w

GRIFT, CORNELIS VAN DER. See Van der Grift, C.

GRIMM, JAKOB LUDWIG KARL, and GRIMM, WILHELM KARL. Three gay tales from Grimm; freely tr. and il. by Wanda Gág. 63p $1.50 Coward-McCann

398.2 Fairy tales 43-51302

Three fairy tales retold from the Brothers Grimm, and newly illustrated. Contents: The clever wife; The three feathers; Goose Hans.

"For this entertaining little book, Wanda Gag has selected three lesser known tales and with her lively translation has made them far more readable than most tales from the Brothers Grimm seem to us today." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p12 N 14 '43 90w

Booklist 40:82 N 1 '43

Reviewed by H. A. Masten

Christian Science Monitor p12 D 13 '43 90w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:405 N '43 50w

Reviewed by Fritz Eichenberg

Horn Bk 20:20 Ja '44 70w

"Good book for reading aloud or telling; format and size attractive for child's own reading." V. W. Schott

+ Library J 68:893 N 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale

Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

"Wanda Gag takes the child with her straight into the folk-tale world, where a key is sure to unlock the little door among the rocks that leads to magical secrets underground and where every fir tree, every little peasant house and garden seem to suggest that wonders are close at hand." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p21 O 24 '43 220w

"Three not-so-familiar stories done into humorous, colloquial English that is simple enough for young children. The pictures, although not Miss Gág's best, have her happy combination of the fanciful and the familiar that delights a small child."

+ — New Yorker 19:132 D 4 '43 40w

"In a format like that of 'Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs'—with the war economy evident in binding and printing—Wanda Gag presents three comparatively unknown folk-tales, worded as only Wanda Gag can word them, and illustrated as only she can illustrate them." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 26:27 N 13 '43 250w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p12 N 14 '43 200w

GRIMWOOD, VICTOR REDMOND. American ship models and how to build them. 187p il $6 Norton

623.822 Ship models 43-51033

"This book offers twelve ship plans suitable for the beginner, arranged in a progressive course of instruction. A welcome relief from repetitions of the Constitution and Flying Cloud, these plans introduce smaller craft of less popular reputation—the skipjack, bugeye, gundalow, anchor hoy, whaling schooner, brig, sloop, privateer, and sailing yacht. Glossary and bibliography." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 39:271 Mr 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

"One of the best in the field."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 28:17 Ja '43

GRINTER, LINTON ELIAS. Elementary structural analysis and design; steel, timber, and reinforced concrete. 383p il $3.75 Macmillan

624 Structures, Theory of. Building 42-18281

"Prof. Grinter's new book is largely a reorientation of information contained in the two admirable books he has already published, 'Theory of Modern Steel Structures' and 'Design of Modern Steel Structures.' The purpose of the new book is to present this information from a more elementary point of view as an aid to students and engineers who require structural design knowledge, yet have no need to become specialists in the subject." (Eng N) Index.

Eng N 129:96 D 3 '42 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:17 Ja '43

GRONOWICZ, ANTONI. Chopin; rendered in English by Jessie McEwen; drawings by George Avison. 202p $2.50 Nelson

B or 92 Chopin, Frédéric François—Juvenile literature 43-15248

Biography of Chopin written for junior and senior high schools. It covers the whole of his short life, from his birth in Poland in 1810, to his death in Paris in 1849. Contains a list of his compositions, a bibliography, and index.

Booklist 40:82 N 1 '43

Commonweal 39:121 N 19 '43 40w

"Delightful biography of Fryderyk Chopin. . . Recommended for ages twelve to sixteen." S. J. Robinson

+ Library J 68:895 N 1 '43 140w

"A particularly sympathetic interpretation, possibly because the poet-author played Chopin's music in his youth and understands its inspirations. . . Young people will glimpse from the vivid Chopin revealed here a clear vista of his genius. They also will meet other famous personages of the time, especially Franz Liszt and George Sand. The expressive pictures add considerable interest." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p8 N 14 '43 220w

New Yorker 19:136 D 4 '43 50w

"Musical biographies for the teens sometimes appeal only to those who play that man's music, but Chopin's life was so dramatic that everybody comes in time to know something about it. An excellent beginning may be made with this full-length life: like every biography for older boys and girls, it leaves much to be filled in by later reading, but all it tells is true to time, place and national spirit. The last of these gives the book its distinctive value." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p36 N 14 '43 400w

GRONOWICZ, ANTONI. Paderewski: pianist and patriot; rendered into English by Jessica McEwen; drawings by George Avison. 216p $2.50 Nelson

B or 92 Paderewski, Ignacy Jan—Juvenile literature 43-51131

"Intimate biographical record of the great musician and patriot, by one who knew him." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 39:373 My 15 '43

"Written in a lively conversational vein, from the hand of a personal friend, this biography gives many intimate and revealing pictures of Paderewski." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:176 My '43 80w

"In spite of nice selection of anecdotes and the burning passion for Poland shared by the author and subject, this remains something of an old-style biography, with too many details of little interest to children and too much irrelevant mention of important names and events." J. L. Sauer

Library J 68:330 Ap 15 '43 70w

"Interesting. Informative."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 15 '43 20w

"As literature the story is undistinguished, but for its interpretative purpose style is less important than sympathy." M. L. Becker

+ — Weekly Book Review p22 My 23 '43 550w

GROSS, FELIX. Grand seigneur; the life and loves of Prince Hermann Pueckler-Muskau, 1785-1871; il. by Jan Hoowij. 330p $3 Creative age

B or 92 Pückler-Muskau, Hermann Ludwig Heinrich, fürst von 43-15432

"Biography of the amazing Prince Hermann Pueckler-Muskau, who was born in Prussia, at Muskau, Silesia, in 1785, and died at Brintz, Brandenburg, in 1871. The Prince, who had zest for life and learning, gained success as soldier, landscape gardener, writer, and traveler. In addition to story value, book presents interesting picture of life among the nobles and the wealthy during latter eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries." Library J

Reviewed by H. P. Bolman

Library J 68:286 Ap 1 '43 70w

"Mr. Gross is exceedingly stylistic in his account of this Phoenix who laid no egg, and there are times when his prose reads like a nineteenth-century romance. Perhaps he meant this. A series of illustrations and decorations by the Dutch artist, Jan Hoowij, adds to the pleasure of this finely manufactured book." Herbert Gorman

N Y Times p8 Ap 25 '43 700w

"Mr. Gross is humorous and indulgent concerning his hero's antics; but his final interpretation of Pueckler's character is realistic and concise. The story itself proceeds at a rapid pace, allowing for unexpected side glances, as Mr. Gross is quick to debunk some of the pseudo-glory of Pueckler's contemporaries. We miss a more detailed description of Pueckler's main achievements, however." Felizia Seyd

+ — Weekly Book Review p12 My 2 '43 800w

GROSSNICKLE, FOSTER EARL; BRUECKNER, LEO JOHN, and HANCE, LYLE S. Practice in essential mathematics; refresher course. 272p pa $1.35; text book ed $1.08 Winston

510.76 Mathematics 43-5839

"The outstanding feature of this 'refresher' is the large number of problems. Answers are given, also logarithmic and trigonometric tables." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:12 Ja '43

GROVER, NATHAN CLIFFORD, and HARRINGTON, ARTHUR WILLIAM. Stream flow; measurements, records and their uses. 363p il $4 Wiley

627.1 Stream measurements 43-6299

"This book treats primarily of stream-flow records and describes in an elementary way their collection, computation, publication, and subsequent use. Related phases of occurrence, control, and administration of water have also been presented briefly. . . The authors have had long service in the field and office work of the Geological Survey related to the collection, computation, and publication of records of river discharge. They have assisted in the development of the methods, instruments, and equipment that are used and that are accepted as standard in this country and in foreign countries." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter

Book Week p11 Jl 18 '43 70w

Eng N 130:128 Je 3 '43 120w

Library J 68:575 Jl '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:33 Ap '43

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p22 Je 6 '43 190w

GRUEN, MRS MARGARET ELLSWORTH. Moonset. 309p $2.50 Fischer, L.B.

43-9095

Story of an unconventional theatrical family. Sandy, queen of the theatre is a grandmother, but still too young looking to play "mother parts." Dan, her son-in-law, charming and unstable, plays juvenile leads. Elisabeth, Sandy's daughter, is the mother of three delightful children, and is no actress at all. The crisis of the story comes when Elisabeth's acute illness sets up a strange train of events.

"The characters are likable and convincing, despite their habitual staginess, and the fashions of 1917 are described with nostalgic charm."

+ Atlantic 172:131 S '43 70w

Reviewed by Mary Poore

N Y Times p10 Je 20 '43 500w

" 'Moonset' is a very likable story. The atmosphere of unreality which, as in the episodes between Elisabeth and Capt Jeffries, give the story a fairy-tale touch, are mainly achieved through Mrs Gruen's light and simple style. However, the story itself is no fairytale; in fact, the same story written by one of our contemporary realists, Cain or Faulkner, for example, could become quite a nasty little treatise. As it stands, 'Moonset' is heartily recommended to anyone with a sense of humor who is seeking a few hours relaxation. Yet it must be added that some readers may be puzzled by the final scene and by Dan's pursuits away from home, as out of key with the rest of the book."

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 220w

"The charm of this story is in a zest and flavor which are best gotten from its own pages. To find analogues I have to go back a long way in fiction. Surely, however, there must still be many readers who remember 'Elizabeth and Her German Garden' and 'The Constant Nymph.' If you can imagine a blend of the humor and forthrightness of these you will have some idea of what 'Moonset' offers in its own way. It is that rare find—a neatly

GRUEN, M. E.—Continued
made light novel, with originality and character. Not world-shaking, and for that very reason exceedingly pleasant in a world which is already well shaken." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Je 13 '43 650w

GRUENBERG, MRS SIDONIE (MATSNER), ed. Favorite stories old and new; il. by Kurt Wiese. 372p $2.50 Doubleday 42-36411

Collection of stories and poems for children, selected by the director of the Child Study association. The book is divided into eight sections: Real children and real things; Stories about animals; Stories of make believe; Fairy tales; Folk tales from many lands; Myths and fables; Bible stories; Tales of laughter. Index.

Booklist 39:205 Ja 15 '43

"Excellent collection, but as in similar collections, stories lose much of their charm and value when separated from original illustrations. . . Fine as suggestive list for storytellers and teachers, but does not take place of original books. Selections show compilation was made by an expert." Sonja Wennerblad
+ — Library J 68:38 Ja 1 '43 70w

"There is a preface addressed to boys and girls, but the book's bulk and inclusiveness will discourage some child readers. Useful as the collection is, it should not be a substitute for the individual books with the original illustrations. . . Mrs. Gruenberg's book, however, will be a library in itself for a Summer holiday when the number of volumes that can be transported is limited, and it will serve as a helpful guide in selection for parents, teachers and story tellers." A. T. Eaton
+ — N Y Times p11 Ap 18 '43 280w
Wis Lib Bul 39:31 F '43

GRUNDY, R. H. Theory and practice of heat engines. 736p il $6.25 (18s) Longmans
621.4 Heat engines

"Up-to-date study of both theory and practice, with many drawings, examples, and exercises. By a British authority." Library J

Library J 68:431 My 15 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:8 Ja '43

"On the whole the book is adequate but diffuse, and to the mind of this reviewer, ill-arranged. Many of the illustrations appear to be largely freehand and are in some cases very congested and difficult to read. The illustrative examples at the end of each chapter are numerous and good." Lionel Marks
+ — N Y Times p26 Ag 29 '43 450w

GUBERLET, MRS MURIEL LEWIN. Seashore parade; with il. by Jan Ogden. 197p $1.75 Cattell 591.92 Marine fauna—Juvenile literature
42-19880

"Plankton, sponges, jellyfish, starfish, the various kinds of shellfish, sea angels, devil fish and other forms of sea life are described in readable, lively fashion in this little book which will answer the questions of those boys and girls whose curiosity has already been aroused and will no doubt stimulate an initial interest in others." N Y Times

"Since a book of this type is more often used to find information on a specific point than read in its entirety, it seems a pity that the black and white drawings are not more explicit. . . The colored illustrations may serve a purpose in attracting children's attention, but do little to inform the reader on the life of the sea. An index would add to the usefulness of the book." A. T. E.
N Y Times p8 Ap 11 '43 160w
School & Society 56:88 Jl 25 '42 20w

GUEDALLA, PHILIP. Two marshals: Bazaine, Pétain. 346p $3 Reynal [10s 6d Hodder]
923.5 Bazaine, Achille François. Pétain, Henri Philippe Bénoni Omer 43-11498

This work consists of two separate but related biographies of French soldiers. The first and longer section tells the story of a Marshal of France who was court-martialed after the retreat from Metz in the war of 1870. The death sentence passed on him was commuted to imprisonment. Tho he escaped from prison he was forced to live out his life in exile. Contrasted with this story is that of Pétain who surrendered France to Germany in 1940 and was rewarded by becoming the "head of the state." Index.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 Ag 1 '43 700w
Booklist 40:46 O 1 '43

" 'The Two Marshals' is a brilliant book. All books by Mr. Guedalla are brilliant. It sparkles with wit, which is sometimes malicious, and always barbed. It is ornately decorated, invariably entertainingly, if not relevantly. It is better, perhaps, in the criticism than in the presentation of character. It conveys much information. It makes a great many jokes. It is tolerantly superior in attitude, with an eighteenth-century urbanity. It does not throw a very piercing light on modern European politics, but it can be read with discriminating pleasure." Harold Hobson
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 My 29 '43 800w

"Mr. Guedalla knows his history and the art of arms and has written a pioneer book for laymen. Brilliant, interesting, and so pertinent that it will be widely purchased and widely read." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 68:571 Jl '43 70w

"The book is at once history and politics; both a vindication of Bazaine and an attack on Pétain. For seventy years Bazaine has been condemned as a traitor by all French opinion, and it is a good stroke to show how much more honourable and sincere was his record than that of Pétain. All the same, this book might have been better if Mr. Guedalla had resisted the temptation to drag Pétain in." A. J. P. Taylor
Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 21 '43 350w

"The obvious has to be said: let us get it said quickly. The youngish Old Master is still his coruscating self. He can entitle his last three chapters Vidi, Vici, Vichy. He has evolved a style halfway between Oscar Wilde's and Lytton Strachey's. There is a Guedallese as there is a Carlylese; and both are acquired tastes. He is a conscientious artist, and takes tremendous pains with his baroque instrument. A superb climax like 'the painted army of a painted Emperor' is reached after a patent strain. But he enjoys the effort, and so do we. We like to see a pyramid of acrobats get into place; and when they jump down with a smile, we do not grudge our applause." Albert Guérard
Nation 157:103 Jl 24 '43 550w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 25:325 My 15 '43 800w

Reviewed by Eleanor Kittridge
N Y Times p8 Jl 25 '43 700w

"A good, smooth, standard job."
New Yorker 19:64 Jl 24 '43 80w

"Told with a verve and a brilliance that make the generals seem the more stodgy by comparison. . . As biography, the book is less satisfying. Hidden behind Mr. Guedalla's glittering style and an amazing collection of vivid trivia, there are omissions to trouble the serious reader." G. D. Crothers
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:9 Ag 7 '43 650w

Reviewed by Pierre Maillaud
Spec 170:364 Ap 16 '43 1000w

" 'The Two Marshals' is excellent reading and the author is certainly right in believing that the stories of Bazaine and Petain should be more widely known. The section on Petain (which takes up only a third of the book) bears evidence of more hasty writing than the chapters on Bazaine, but a more journalistic quality is probably inevitable in dealing with contemporary events and personalities and Mr Guedalla is always a skillful and entertaining writer, if sometimes less than profound." W. H. H.

+ — Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 27 '43 750w

Time 42:99 Jl 26 '43 1150w

"As an historical revision of a conviction too easily won, the life of Bazaine is a brilliant success. At the least, Mr. Guedalla has 'broken' the verdict of the court-martial and ordered a new trial. The section of Mr. Guedalla's book devoted to Pétain is of much less importance and interest. . . Only in his account of Pétain's role in the last war does Mr. Guedalla show the qualities of judgment and justice that mark his account of Bazaine."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p186 Ap 17 '43 1550w

Reviewed by Leo Gershoy

Weekly Book Review p2 Ag 8 '43 1300w

GUERARD, ALBERT LEON. Napoléon III. (Makers of modern Europe) 338p il $3.50 Harvard univ. press

944.07 France—History—Second empire, 1852-1870. Napoléon III, emperor of the French A43-1888

"Napoléon III was a precursor, a prophet. He grappled with the problems of the future—problems still unsolved by either democracies or dictatorships, to the development of both of which he may be said to have contributed. Of this complex career Mr. Guérard has chosen to write an 'interpretation' rather than a formal and conventional biography." (Editor's pref) Chronological summary. Biographical essay. Index.

Reviewed by M. D. Irish

Am Pol Sci R 37:958 O '43 340w

"Whether or not his readers are thoroughly convinced, they will thank [Mr Guerard] for a particularly thoughtful and stimulating book." Gordon Wright

+ Ann Am Acad 230:219 N '43 450w

"The book is well written and the material is ably organized, particularly in the opening chapters dealing with the formative years of the young prince. For the majority of the readers it will shed novel light upon a misunderstood man." H. P.

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 14 '43 700w

"This [is a] scholarly, well written and highly personal study." Cuthbert Wright

+ Commonweal 38:496 S 3 '43 750w

Reviewed by George Libaire

Nation 157:74 Jl 17 '43 950w

"Guerard's new 'interpretation' of the enigmatic Napoleon is often brilliant, more often bewildering and seldom convincing. It is definitely not helpful for 'present perplexities.' " H. W. Ehrmann

— + New Repub 109:368 S 13 '43 900w

"To sentimentalists, professional radicals, twentieth-century Rocheforts, Hugolaters, ossified parliamentarians and confirmed republicans who value the name more than the essence [this work] will not appeal at all. They will be apt to assert that 'Napoleon III' is a slick whitewashing of a bloodstained sepulcher. To rationalists, to impartial students, to those impregnable to violently reiterated defamation and hysterical, colored rhetoric and narrow party-linism, the book will offer much more." Herbert Gorman

+ N Y Times p18 Jl 18 '43 1000w

"Mr Guerard's version of the emperor and his regime may be too rosy. But a sympathetic interpretation of Napoleon III—particularly one as well and interestingly written as this—is a needed corrective to the violent prejudice which has colored so many earlier studies and which still lingers on in the school books." W. H. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 20 '43 550w

"Albert Guerard's newest book should furnish material for vigorous disputation for a long time to come. Each of the three interrelated parts of his stimulating 'Interpretation' is well calculated to provoke his readers either to sharp dissent or enthusiastic indorsement." Leo Gershoy

+ — Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 18 '43 1250w

GUERLAIN, ROBERT, pseud. They who wait; tr. by Theodore R. Jaeckel. 206p $2 Crowell

940.547243 World war, 1939—Prisoners and prisons, German 43-10652

Pseudonymous account of life among French prisoners of war in Germany during the long months they waited for repatriation after the armistice.

"This is an uncommonly interesting book. It is interesting, not tragic or stirring, because it is written quietly and sometimes coldly to inform and not to excite. The translation is not all that could be asked, being often awkward and occasionally ungrammatical." Mark Saxton

+ Book Week p4 Ag 8 '43 650w

Booklist 40:9 S '43

Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 7 '43 330w

Commonweal 38:445 Ag 20 '43 600w

Current Hist 5:79 S '43 140w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:158 O '43 20w

N Y Times p33 O 3 '43 380w

"Well written and in general well translated."

+ New Yorker 19:80 Je 19 '43 70w

Social Studies 34:286 O '43 90w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 11 '43 700w

" 'They Who Wait' is an extremely good book. Robert Guerlain is a pen name. The publishers give no indication as to whether the author is a professional writer or not. But either he is greatly accomplished in the difficult art that conceals art or he is greatly gifted for the telling of at least this one tale. For 'They Who Wait' achieves, with apparent artlessness, an effect that few writers ever achieve." W. R. Deuel

+ Weekly Book Review p7 Je 20 '43 750w

GUERNEY, BERNARD GUILBERT, ed. Treasury of Russian literature. 1049p $3.95 Vanguard

891.708 Russian literature—Collections 43-17369

"Being a comprehensive selection of many of the best things by numerous authors in practically every field of the rich literature of Russia from its beginnings to the present, with much material now first made available in English, and all of the accepted favorites newly translated or their current translations thoroughly revised." Subtitle

Booklist 40:161 Ja 1 '44

Commonweal 39:306 Ja 7 '44 750w

"Compared with the translations in Mr. Cournos' volume, those by Mr. Guerney seem close to perfection. The two great qualities of his work are: a rich, pliant vocabulary and a gallant determination to render the original in full. One feels he loves tricky passages for the pleasure derived from the English quadrature of a Russian circle. The ingenuity of his verbal devices is so brilliant that at times the result seems a trifle too elegant, not to say precious (which on the whole is only welcome after the drabness one is accustomed to in these matters.)" Vladimir Nabokov

+ New Repub 110:93 Ja 17 '44 600w

"Bernard Guerney's anthology, which makes no pretense of being a comprehensive selection, nor an academic textbook, succeeds far better than the usual compendium of 'best' Russian tidbits. . . There is nothing in the field of the essay, unless one counts Belinski's famous 'Letter to Gogol,' following the publication of the latter's 'Selected Passages from Correspondence with Friends.' It is this lone apparition, a 'must' in any collection of Russian literature and thought, which points up the absence of literary or other criticism, of speculation, or debate so potent in Russian nineteenth-century intellectual life, but which could hardly be expected, except in a more academic anthology." J. E. Thal

GUERNEY, B. G.—Continued
+ N Y Times p16 Ja 9 '44 480w

"Mr. Guerney's anthology of Russian literature is an excellent introduction to the psychology and belles lettres of the Russian people. . . With the exception of Goncharov and Ostrovsky all the great literary figures are thus represented and the reader will get a very fair conception of their work. It is not, however, a complete picture. For curiously enough Mr. Guerney begins his compilation with the very earliest writers, but does not bring the anthology down to the present time." Manya Gordon
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:18 Ja 22 '44 700w

GUINAGH, KEVIN, and DORJAHN, ALFRED PAUL, eds. Latin literature in translation. 822p $5; text ed $4 Longmans
870.8 Latin literature—Translations into English 42-4040

Selections from the works of twenty-eight Latin authors, in translations, some old, some new. Background text for many of the authors, and some short bibliographies. A map shows place of birth and death of authors. Partial contents: Plautus; Terence; Caesar; Cicero; Catullus; Vergil; Horace; Propertius; Livy; Ovid; Seneca; Pliny; Tacitus; Juvenal; and Saint Augustine. Glossary.

Booklist 38:327 My 1 '42

"One admires the courage and devotion of authors who are willing to expend as much time and labor as are involved in a work of this kind. To read the volumes of existing translations, to weigh this translation against that, to acquire new translations in the place of those forbidden by copyright, to read nearly a thousand pages of proof—only a classicist would undertake the task. . . A glossary of some seventeen pages concludes the volume. This is handy, although inadequate, as most glossaries are. Such an implement, augmented by a handbook of classical mythology, a work on classical antiquities, a Roman history, a work on Roman private life, assures the student of an understanding and enjoyment of Latin literature in translation." D. S. White
+ Class Philol 38:212 Jl '43 1000w

GUITERMAN, ARTHUR. Brave laughter; with an introd. by Eleanor Graham. 224p $2.50 Dutton 811 43-14632

Posthumously published book of poems by a much loved American writer of light and humorous verses as well as serious poetry. The introduction is an informal biographical sketch by Eleanor Graham.

"Arthur Guiterman died last January [1943] and 'Brave Laughter' is his last book. In it his rhymed journalese is as amusing, as good and as bad, as careless and as American in flavor as the nine volumes that went before it." Leo Kennedy
Book Week p7 N 7 '43 340w
Booklist 40:90 N 15 '43

"Out of this collection comes the Arthur Guiterman of the last five years we knew him, years when he was setting down fighting words with all the vigor at his command, trying to make blind men see what he saw so clearly." Hal Borland
+ N Y Times p4 D 19 '43 320w

"Guiterman was a skillful versifier and this final collection of his verse includes some of the best of his pleasantries and satire."
+ New Yorker 19:100 O 9 '43 80w

"I think that for generations his book will give pleasure to the many." W. R. Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 26:23 O 16 '43 180w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 200w
Reviewed by Elizabeth Drew
Weekly Book Review p3 D 12 '43 450w
Wis Lib Bul 39:156 D '43

GULL, EDWARD MANICO. British economic interests in the Far East; issued under the auspices of the Royal inst. of int. affairs. 272p $3 Inst. of Pacific relations [16s Oxford]
330.95 Great Britain—Relations (general) with the East (Far East). East (Far East)—Economic conditions

"This book is a comprehensive survey of British economic interests in China, Japan, Malaya, Burma, Borneo and other Far Eastern countries. It is intentionally limited in its scope by the author's clear determination that it shall be of practical value to the countries of the British Empire. The make-up of the work clearly indicates the important position which Mr. Gull believes that trade with China will hold in the future, as it has in the past." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Index.

Booklist 40:190 F 1 '44
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 3 '43 300w

"Mr. Gull is well qualified for his task, having served in the Chinese Customs, as secretary to the Shanghai British Chamber of Commerce and later to the China Association in London. That his heart is in his subject is clear from his power of infusing life into bones which are by nature dry. Some readers may think that his enthusiasm has led him a little unnecessarily far down certain side-paths." G. E. Hubbard
+ — Spec 171:462 N 12 '43 460w
Times [London] Lit Sup p542 N 13 '43 650w

GUPTA, MAHENDRA NATH (M. pseud). Gospel of Ramakrishna. See Ramakrishna

GURY, JEREMY. The 'round and 'round horse; pictures by Reginald Marsh. [47p] $1.50 Holt 43-17314

Story of a small boy living on a mechanized farm, where he dreamed long dreams of having a horse to ride. Then his grandfather carved one out of wood and boy and horse rode off for New York, finally ending up at the Merry-go-round in Coney Island.

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 29 '43 90w

"Quite a special book for the 5-to-8-year-olds. Many fine illustrations."
+ Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w
Commonweal 39:119 N 19 '43 40w

"The happy-go-lucky drawings have a tremendous dash and vitality; they are original, although I think our children will consider them a little too sloppy and sketchy for waxing highly enthusiastic about them. Anyhow here is a salute to Reginald Marsh for his new artistic side line." Fritz Eichenberg
+ — Horn Bk 20:22 Ja '44 70w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:32 Ja '44 50w

"Just the sort of story that small boys invent and expect to happen. Pictures by Reginald Marsh are realistic and vigorous. Recommended for primary grades." J. E. Wooster
+ Library J 69:33 Ja 1 '44 130w

"Here is a story made to order for wishful small riders. Reginald Marsh's full-page pictures are an integral part of it, and if they are sometimes a little confusing at first glance, they have as grand a dash and vigor as Hurricane's own." E. L. Buell
N Y Times p7 N 14 '43 300w

"A five-year-old boy who wants things to happen fast in his picture stories will find plenty taking place to please him in this one. It surprises such boys with the lively fantasy for which many of them show a decided preference even before they begin to read; the dreamlike story such as a small boy of a mechanical turn might imagine for himself as he is going to sleep." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 N 14 '43 400w

GUTHRIE, ALFRED BERTRAM. Murders at Moon Dance. 284p $2 Dutton

43-5434

Combination of Western and detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
— N Y Times p10 My 2 '43 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p16 Ap 4 '43 100w

GUTHRIE, WOODY. Bound for glory; il. with sketches by the author. 428p $3 Dutton

B or 92 43-6606

Autobiography of an American itinerant, born in Oklahoma in 1912, who has traveled from the Atlantic to the Pacific, riding freights, walking, wet, cold, and penniless, but always carrying his guitar, on which he plays the accompaniments for his own songs.

"This 'Bound for Glory' isn't just another good book. It's a huge, rich, juicy chunk of life and it's bound for its share of glory, too, I'll wager. I'm excited about it, the kind of excitement that makes me want to say a dozen things at once and use a lot of big adjectives, so excited that I want to start right off with a prediction that Woody Guthrie is going to walk straight into the hearts of a million readers . . . and stay there." Edith Roberts
+ Book Week p1 Ap 4 '43 1150w

"Too careful reproduction of illiterate speech through most of book makes slow reading." Margaret Owen
Library J 68:246 Mr 15 '43 110w

"Woody writes well. There's a glory hallelujah madness of imagery here which is exciting and compelling, a psychological counterpoint for the violence of the physical action. He writes much in the evangelical mood. As one reads him, one sees a Negro singing 'On That Great Gittin'-Up Mornin',' his arms stretched up to heaven like a pair of crazy sticks. One catches echoes of the 'Grapes of Wrath.' Yet Woody doesn't neglect the quieter moments. . . The book is like pictures, both moving and still. The writing has that kind of vividness and that sort of limitation." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p7 Mr 21 '43 900w

"Some day people are going to wake up to the fact that Woody Guthrie and the ten thousand songs that leap and tumble off the strings of his music box are a national possession, like Yellowstone and Yosemite, and part of the best stuff this country has to show the world. Woody's own history, 'Bound for Glory,' will never rank among the classic autobiographies, for it lacks entirely that element of egotism, even of pomposity, that all the great confessions seem to me to have. It is written not in a personal prose but in a kind of dialect, as the poems of Burns were written, a language that has the exact speed and timbre of colloquial speech and yet is nervous and alive with metaphor and simile, and musical, too, in its balladlike way. I know of no book in our literature exactly like it; it may not have great stature but it certainly has originality." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:68 Mr 20 '43 550w

"Woody Guthrie [is a] born artist, whether he is singing songs or making pictures or putting down words in a story. What distinguishes his first book, 'Bound for Glory,' is the almost perfect fusion of form and content, and the quality of value which gives that content meaning. Like Whitman, Guthrie believes in people." Louis Adamic
+ Sat R of Lit 26:14 Ap 17 '43 700w

"Reading 'Bound for Glory' is an emotional experience far more stirring, for some readers at least, than even the penetrating 'Grapes of Wrath' was. For Guthrie writes (at times with touches of sheer poetry) from the heart and not from economic perspective. He didn't hit the hard road to wind up by tying his experiences into a neat package and delivering them to the nearest publisher. With his book just out and almost a certain best seller, Guthrie is still plucking his guitar in crummy joints and singing his ballads for nickels and dimes." M. R. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 28 '43 550w

"Guthrie has something in him of Vachel Lindsay though not the security of his poetry. He has something of Saroyan though not the beauty of his imagery. He has something of John Steinbeck though neither his breadth nor his literary style. His speech and his thinking have more a childlike than a folk quality although he himself and everything about him are close to the soil."
Theatre Arts 27:386 Je '43 800w

"Woody Guthrie's book, most of it, is good going. I regret he has given further currency to the wholly erroneous term of 'Skid Row,' as applied to the bowery districts of Western cities. It is 'Skid Road' and as such has sound etymological standing. I could have wished, too, that the editors, or Woody himself, either had stuck to double negatives or foregone them completely. The illustrations by the author are pretty bad and add nothing at all to the book's flavor. But the book is a fine narrative job, with undertones of real poetry, and it doesn't need illustrations, good or otherwise." Stewart Holbrook
+ — Weekly Book Review p4 Mr 21 '43 1450w

GUY, EARL. Heaven is a sunswept hill. 220p il $2.50 Macmillan

43-8949

"Story of substantial river-bottom farmers who, almost every year, are forced to leave their homes because of floods, but who return to rebuild and harvest another crop on the rich black land. Exciting account of the flood and rescue work." Library J

Atlantic 172:121 Ag '43 120w

"This is the finest first novel I have found in many months—a vigorous and absorbing story with elements of greatness. . . Earl Guy's novel isn't without faults. Too often he has used two words where one would have been better. Sometimes he has given two details when one sufficed. But these faults are superficial. His craftsmanship is essentially sound—in the proportion and organization of the book, in the pace and timing and emphasis and tone of the story as a whole." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p4 Je 20 '43 850w
Booklist 39:464 Jl 15 '43
Commonweal 38:520 S 10 '43 170w

"Interesting and worth-while light reading. Probably will be popular with men. Recommended." Emily Garnett
+ Library J 68:363 My 1 '43 60w

"I wish Mr. Guy had looked at his people with the discrimination he devotes to natural phenomena. As it is, the most interesting character in the book is the Mississippi. The struggle is certainly unequal, but it is not men against a river, it is a river against those brave puppets of oppression who live only in novels." Marjorie Farber
+ — New Repub 109:116 Jl 26 '43 120w

"There is much in Mr. Guy's book that is interesting; he knows his people and their ways; he knows their speech and their humor. But the novel fails as a piece of fiction. However important a flood is in the life of a group of characters, it is not sufficient to hold the reader's attention for two hundred pages, at least not in the way Mr. Guy develops it. His book reads a little like a series of human interest stories written by a man reporting a catastrophe, stories telling of the bravery and hardihood of men and women under the stress of disaster. The novel has little contrast in character and practically no plot." Rose Feld
+ — N Y Times p6 Je 27 '43 500w

"'Heaven Is a Sunswept Hill' is a beautiful title, in this case poignant and wistful, and the book that follows the title is an honest, foursquare, well-done novel, with an important and consistent thesis, considerable drama, characters clearly outlined, and much good writing." Struthers Burt
+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 Jl 17 '43 1150w

GUY, EARL—continued

"Warm and sympathetic novel." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 27 '43 390w

"Most of the tale goes forward in the speech of the people of the bottomlands, phrase after phrase rolling out cogently and with a verbal freshness that suggests it must be indigenous, and by the same token that the author is blessed with a good and authentic ear. Only the two young children in the novel talk and act in a wooden fashion." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Je 27 '43 750w
Wis Lib Bul 39:145 N '43

GUYER, MICHAEL FREDERIC. Speaking of man; a biologist looks at man. 321p $3.50 Harper

573.1 Man 42-24840

In a series of essays dealing with the contributions of biology to the understanding and shaping of human conduct, this biologist of the University of Wisconsin, discusses such subjects as biology and the happy life; man's place in nature; the rise of intelligent behavior; the educated failure; etc.

"Professor Guyer writes well when he is concerned with scientific matters, and he is always honest and high-minded. It is the more regrettable, therefore, that he indulges too often in a humor that is by contrast crude and in flights of rhetoric that fail somehow to attain the level of his biological exposition. The book as a whole lacks originality; its spirit is highly commendable, but much of its content has been said as well or better before." H. M. Parshley
+ — Books p44 D 6 '42 800w

"A series of essays, easily read, although not popular in the usual sense."
+ Wis Lib Bul 39:11 Ja '43

GUYTON, BOONE TARLTON. This exciting air; the experiences of a test pilot. (Whittlesey house publication) 219p $2 McGraw

629.1345 Airplanes—Piloting 43-8068

Experiences of a test pilot who has served with the U.S. navy and in France in 1939, and later became a test pilot of Vought-Sikorsky Aircraft.

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Book Week p6 Je 20 '43 400w
Booklist 39:440 Jl 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43
Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 40w

" 'I have no intention,' Mr. Guyton assures the reader in his preface, 'of glamorizing the ever-more-serious business of test flying.' We're certain he means it, but few adults and certainly no adolescents will have to strain to find glamour in these pages." Meyer Berger
+ N Y Times p4 Je 6 '43 550w
New Yorker 19:135 D 4 '43 40w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 26:21 Jl 31 '43 150w

Reviewed by R. B. Cochrane
Weekly Book Review p22 Je 27 '43 650w
Wis Lib Bul 39:121 O '43

GWYNN, JOHN MINOR. Curriculum principles and social trends. 630p il $3.50 Macmillan

375 Education—Curricula 43-11582

"The book discusses the evolution of the curriculum in the elementary and secondary schools of the United States, and it gives special emphasis to recent curricular developments. It describes numerous curricular experiments which have been conducted in various schools and school systems. It relates all curricular developments and experiments to current social trends, and it constructively discusses those developments, experiments, and trends." (Editor's introd) Index.

Am J Soc 49:196 S '43 40w
Booklist 40:107 D 1 '43
School & Society 58:48 Jl 17 '43 90w

"After a careful reading, the reviewer laid down the book with a definite judgment that here is a book of superior merit but also with a conviction that it could have been improved by a better organization, which would have brought related materials into closer juxtaposition and, at the same time, have brought into sharp focus the relative significance of these materials and curriculum issues. . . In spite of this criticism, the reviewer anticipates an extended use of this book in general survey courses in the curriculum and among curriculum workers." N. L. Bossing
+ — School R 51:566 N '43 700w

H

HAAGENSEN, CUSHMAN DAVIS, and LLOYD, WYNDHAM EDWARD BUCKLEY. Hundred years of medicine. 444p il $3.75 Sheridan

610.9 Medicine—History 43-15095

History of the progress of medical science and surgery during the last century, with an introductory section on medicine up to a hundred years ago. Includes a study of the new social aspects of medicine, a bibliography and index. Dr. Haagensen is a surgeon and pathologist on the faculty of Columbia University's School of medicine; Dr Lloyd is a specialist in public health, working in England. Bibliography. Index.

"The presentation is clear, technicalities are reduced to a minimum without oversimplification. A fascinating volume for those whose interest in health is not limited to periods when they are confronted by sickness." Israel Davidsohn
+ Book Week p6 O 3 '43 230w
New Repub 109:530 O 18 '43 90w

"One of the best general accounts of the progress of medicine during the last hundred years that we have. Wisely realizing that their material was in itself sufficiently dramatic, they have made no attempt to put on a show. Instead, they have been content to present the facts in a readable and interesting manner and to act as guides and interpreters. The result is an absorbing book which should find appreciative readers among laymen—for whom it is chiefly intended—and the medical profession alike." M. F. A. Montagu
+ N Y Times p4 O 31 '43 700w

"A sound, not too inspiring job designed for the layman and the first-year medical student."
+ — New Yorker 19:86 S 25 '43 50w

" 'A Hundred Years of Medicine' is the American edition of a work originally prepared for a British audience. It lacks the fireworks —the excitement with which American journalists have so often infused their accounts of the 'men in white'. Indeed, to the reader of popular magazines the style may seem pedestrian. But doctors will appreciate its scholarly presentation of their profession's achievements and will be glad to recommend it to readers who enjoy honest science." M. S. Ulrich
+ Sat R of Lit 26:64 D 4 '43 600w

"Primarily intended for the layman and for first-year medical students, this excellent book was written on the well-founded assumption that 'from the historical approach we learn not only of the foundations upon which the science is built, but something of the human side of the men who laboriously sought out its basic truths. The subject is thus brought to life and made into an integrated whole.' . . Breadth of vision and scope of material are happily attained in this 'United Nations' effort."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 O '43 240w

Reviewed by H. M. Davis
Springf'd Republican p6 D 20 '43 550w

HABE, HANS, pseud. (JEAN BEKESSY). Kathrine; tr. from the German by Harry Hansen. 416p $2.75 Viking 43-15325

"This is the story of Kathrine von Hugh, for fourteen years mistress of Bertrand Lacoste, the automobile magnate, and of her intrigues to marry her daughter, Manuela, to his son, André, thus ransoming for her child the security and position she herself had never attained. The plot is played out against the backdrop of pre-war France—strikes, defeatism, Nazi infiltration, sabotage and greed." N Y Times

Atlantic 172:135 N '43 120w

Reviewed by J. N. North
Book Week p3 O 10 '43 380w

Booklist 40:79 N 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
— Nation 157:507 O 30 '43 90w

Reviewed by Catherine Maher
N Y Times p4 S 26 '43 1000w

New Yorker 19:86 O 2 '43 90w

Reviewed by Struthers Burt
Sat R of Lit 26:32 O 30 '43 2050w

"In some measure the success of 'Kathrine' is due to Harry Hansen's unobtrusive translation, so expertly done that there is no feeling of an alien language, but behind the translation lies Habe's own innate ability as a novelist. His craftsmanship is exquisitely deliberate, although his dramatic power is somewhat weakened in carefully contrived scenes by retreat from action and dialog into mental soliloquies. However, in spite of this fault, which is more evident in the character of Kathrine herself than in the others, the novel is a brilliant conception of warring conflicts between personalities and generations." L. S. Munn
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 700w

"Hans Habe has a great gift. He is in complete control of his material, a regisseur who can manipulate accents of tone, of fighting, of dramatic emphasis so that even the most didactic or pedagogic purpose he has becomes a natural part of his novel. . . The translation of Habe's sensitive writing was obviously a difficult task because of its frequent subtlety of meaning and expression. Harry Hansen has accomplished that in a manner that leaves the reader completely unaware of a translator's efforts or interference—certainly the most desirable situation a reader can ask." William Soskin
+ Weekly Book Review p2 S 26 '43 1250w

HACKETT, FRANCIS. Senator's last night. 272p $2.50 Doubleday
43-11549

Character study of an Old Guard senator, a man who loved power, and fought for it even on his death bed. Washington, some months after Pearl Harbor is the scene, and the action takes place on the night of a brilliant dinner party at Senator Copley's—the night which was to be his last.

" 'The Senator's Last Night' is a somewhat unusual performance for the biographer of Henry VIII, and not a very rewarding one." Jack Conroy
— Book Week p8 Ag 8 '43 380w

"Not Hackett's usual overfluent style but a sensational one that shows he still can play with words and juggle language to portray his scathing judgment of society in general and the Senator (John Copley of the story) in particular." M. H. Zipprich
Library J 68:573 Jl '43 70w

"Much of the dinner conversation is interesting, the clash of philosophies is sufficiently well done, but this is not the powerful and burning novel of Washington that somebody is surely going to write some day." Lorine Pruette
N Y Times p7 Ag 1 '43 700w

"A good enough story, touched up with loss of entertaining though not quite first-rate ideas, but it ends in a whiff of poorly handled melodrama and the senator, like most of the others in the book, never quite comes through as a character."
New Yorker 19:63 Jl 24 '43 80w

"The thing is skilfully done, every person in the story coming on, obliquely, to contribute one more panel to make the Senator's portrait. But the talk is the best, the long and rich arguments on government, ideologies, the conduct of the war, the powers that are lunging to control the peace. This is Mr. Hackett's say as he knows how to say it." L. R. Nathan
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 S 4 '43 270w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 5 '43 170w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
Weekly Book Review p3 Jl 25 '43 950w

HACKFORTH-JONES, GILBERT. Torpedo! stories of the royal navy [Eng title: One—one—one; stories of the navy]. 247p $2.50 Morrow [7s 6d Hodder]
43-6283

Twenty-two stories of the British navy in World war II.

Book Week p9 My 16 '43 180w

Booklist 39:388 Je 1 '43

"Shipshape, unpretentious yarns."
+ New Yorker 19:79 My 15 '43 20w

"Mr. Hackforth-Jones is a story-teller, and a very good one at that; moreover, fiction such as his is worth more than its mere entertainment value in that it helps readers, as no mere narrative of actual events could, to understand the sea service to which they owe so great a debt."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p5 Ja 2 '43 300w

Reviewed by C. J. Searles
Weekly Book Review p21 Je 6 '43 500w

HADER, MRS BERTA (HOERNER), and HADER, ELMER. The mighty hunter. [49p] il $2 Macmillan 43-15369

"A tale about a brave little Indian boy who wanted to be a hunter but decided after he met a hungry bear that he had better go on to school." Library J

"A most attractive picture book." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p8 N 14 '43 110w

Booklist 40:200 F 1 '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:402 N '43 60w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by M. L. Goodwin
Library J 68:963 N 15 '43 70w

New Yorker 19:119 D 4 '43 40w

"The pictures of animals are so large and so pleasantly colored that the smallest child enjoys them, while the story's repetitions and rising interest make it fine to read (and re-read) aloud." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p12 N 14 '43 250w

HADLEY, CHALMERS. John Cotton Dana; a sketch. (Am. library pioneers) 105p $2.75 A.L.A.

B or 92 Dana, John Cotton 43-11446

"A biography describing the colorful career of a man whose interests and whose influence reached far beyond the world of librarians, of which he was for so many years a part. His philosophy of books and learning in their relation to human society is a living heritage of special importance today when librarianship is seeking once again to evaluate its role in a complex world." School & Society

Booklist 40:11 S '43

"The author knows how to strike the tuning fork and find the keynote for a salute of honor. The study is wholly impersonal. It is searching in its examination, but unfailingly tactful and understanding. Without overemphasis and yet with generous implication, he notes that a leader among us has passed and we are in his debt." Adam Strohm

HADLEY, CHALMERS—Continued
+ Library J 68:889 N 1 '43 1150w

"This is a book that will delight all librarians who knew John Cotton Dana. To other librarians the book will bring an intimate knowledge of Dana." C. H. Compton
+ Library Q 14:63 Ja '44 650w

School & Society 58:79 Jl 31 '43 70w

HAEDRICH, MARCEL, pseud. Barrack 3, room 12; tr. from the French, with foreword, by Katherine Woods. 229p $2.50 Reynal

940.547243 World war, 1939—Prisoners and prisons 43-2955

Portrays the reactions of a collection of French officers and men, captured by the Germans and confined in a dreary prison camp for several months. After a meticulous account of the lives of the men confined in room 12, the author escaped and went back to France, bearing messages to the families of his former fellow prisoners.

"The book is written by a Marcel Haedrich, whose whereabouts are unknown and whose name is assumed. It is told in the form of a diary, an old-fashioned pattern indeed, but one that comes alive as the sad and pathetically simple experiences are recounted. Yet this is not altogether a sad tale because from the episodes recorded here rises a plea for spiritual enrichment to fortify men when they fall helplessly beneath the juggernaut of evil. . . A special word of praise must be recorded for Katherine Woods, the translator of 'Barrack 3 Room 12.' She has given us not merely a beautiful translation but she has caught the essential spirit of the French language and of the French people who will be free again." Louis Zara
+ Book Week p5 Ap 4 '43 800w

Booklist 39:329 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:12 Mr '43

"Restrained, unsensational account that omits the sordidness frequently found in personal narratives of war prison experiences. Will appeal to discriminating. Recommended for all public libraries." H. A. Carpenter
+ Library J 68:170 F 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:462 Mr 27 '43 30w

Reviewed by Alfred Kazin
New Repub 108:569 Ap 26 '43 390w

Reviewed by Meyer Berger
N Y Times p7 Mr 7 '43 700w

"It is a remarkable volume from any point of view. . . Perhaps, it is still too soon for such books. But this one should be read." Robert Pick
Sat R of Lit 26:18 Mr 13 '43 320w

"The book, with its restraint and tenderness, is excellently translated. Written almost without mention of the Germans, with no attempt to decry the brutality of the enemy world outside, it concentrates on the little room. Room 12 is an island in an alien world, cloaked in the somber colors of nostalgia, but alive with the courage, the sacrifice and the generosity which are the heritage of man. It would be good to think that we, who are only the prisoners of our own limitations, could hold on to our humanity as firmly as these men behind their bars." Virgilia Sapieha
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Mr 7 '43 1200w

HAGEN, OSKAR FRANK LEONARD. Patterns and principles of Spanish art. rev ed 279p il $4 Univ. of Wis. press

709.46 Art—Spain 43-52552

"Professor Hagen's Patterns and Principles of Spanish Art, a completely new work having only its title in common with the one which he published several years ago [1936] is in substance a history of Spanish art, but not a merely narrative and descriptive history with illustrations, though it is all of that. The author's primary interest is in the analysis and interpretation of the national art as an expression of the characteristics of the Spanish people." Christian Century

"Few indispensable books on art are published. This is one of them." A. McC. Sholl
+ Cath World 157:327 Je '43 900w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 60:638 My 26 '43 390w

HAIG-BROWN, RODERICK LANGMERE HAIG. Starbuck Valley winter; il. by Charles De Feo. 310p $2 Morrow

43-14764

An independent, thoughtful sixteen-year-old boy, and a younger and less experienced partner, spend a winter hunting and trapping in the woods of British Columbia. For older boys.

Booklist 40:116 D 1 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 20:40 Ja '44 100w

"Fine atmosphere. Excellent character portrayal in which the boys develop self-reliance, judgment and skill. Keen understanding of adolescence when adult interests and ambitions overlap the impatience and disappointments of childhood. Book should find many readers in sections where hunting and trapping are of paramount interest but will probably need personal introduction to others." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 68:964 N 15 '43 100w

"Good writing and good characterization." Lena Barksdale
+ Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

"Throughout the book the author manages to put before us Don's problems and ambitions, his pride in being independent, his determination, his adventures and his triumphs, from a boy's standpoint. A book that boys from 12 to 15 will enjoy and one that they should not miss." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p6 N 14 '43 480w

Wis Lib Bul 40:13 Ja '44

HAIGHT, ELIZABETH HAZELTON. Essays on the Greek romances. 208p $2.50 Longmans

880.9 Greek fiction—History and criticism 43-6099

"These essays are for the most part of a light descriptive nature calculated rather to win new readers for the ancient Greek prose romances than to contribute a work of scholarship to the study of ancient literature. A brief introductory chapter provides a summary of trends in modern critical study of the Romances and of the many strains to be detected in the genre. Reference is also made to the redating of much of our material necessitated by new discoveries in papyri. The rest of the book consists of studies of the several works involved; Chariton, Xenophon of Ephesus, Heliodorus, Achilles Tatius, 'Daphnis and Chloe,' Lucian, Apuleius." Times [London] Lit Sup

Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 19 '43 500w

"Though the bulk of each chapter consists in a precis of the plot, Dr. Haight contrives to indicate effectively the varying combinations and relative emphases shown in the exploitation of the main component strains—the historical, the semi-historical and the fictitious: the erotic, the moral, the religious and the element of pure adventure. Her comparisons between the different writers in her survey and her suggestion of the literary influence they have severally excited are apt and serve to commend the book to students of comparative literature and of the modern novel."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p383 Ag 7 '43 200w

HAILE, BERARD. Origin legend of the Navaho flintway; text and translation. 319p il pa $3 Univ. of Chicago press

398.22 Navaho Indians. Navaho language 43-5468

"The Flintway is one of a dozen or more Navaho cycles of chant, legend and ritual, each of which has its special purpose. . . The Navaho text of the legend and chants is given in full (nearly 100,000 words) with the English translation in parallel. . . The author is a member of the Franciscan mission at St. Michaels, Arizona, members of which have for many years conducted scholarly research in the Navaho language and literature." Christian Century

"Any publication by Father Berard is necessarily a major event for all students of the Southern Athabascan and indeed of Southwestern Indian cultures generally. For profundity of knowledge, richness of detail, honesty of workmanship he has few or no peers, living or dead. The blend of linguistic and ethnological research reaches new heights at his hands." Clyde Kluckhohn

+ Am Anthropol 45:611 O '43 750w

Christian Century 60:799 Jl 7 '43 420w

Reviewed by F. G. Speck

Crozer Q 20:249 Jl '43 1300w

HAINES, CHARLES GROVE, and HOFFMAN, ROSS JOHN SWARTZ. Origins and background of the second World war. 659p maps $4.25; college ed $3.25 Oxford

909.82 World war, 1939-. World politics 43-7065

A summary of the political conditions and events which led up to the outbreak of the second World war. The time covered is from about 1900 to the close of 1941. Bibliography. Index.

"The accounts of Fascist, Nazi, and Communist ideologies and their repercussions on international affairs are clear-cut. The Ethiopian, Spanish, Austrian, Czechoslovak, and Polish crises are all well written and properly fitted into the picture of growing European complications. In conclusion, it may be said that the volume is clearly and interestingly written." J. E. Gillespie

+ Ann Am Acad 229:187 S '43 450w

Booklist 39:460 Jl 15 '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 My 28 '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:155 O '43 50w

"The authors have given a clear, authoritative, well-balanced and by no means dull presentation of an extremely complex and certainly alarming body of materials. Without cynicism, despair or lack of faith in democratic ideals, but also without softness or sentimentality, they show how badly the democratic countries, including the United States, handled not only their political but their economic problems during the last generation." John Storck

+ N Y Times p16 Je 13 '43 950w

Social Studies 34:287 O '43 40w

"Although 'The Origins of the Second World War' is designed primarily to be used with college classes, it is easily within the comprehension of any intelligent reader, most of whom would profit from its perusal." R. J. Conklin

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 9 '44 1150w

HALE, CHRISTOPHER, pseud. See Stevens, F. M. R.

HALE, NANCY. Between the dark and the daylight. 248p $2.50 Scribner

43-6813

A group of short stories by the author of Prodigal Women. Contents: Those are as brothers; The six-fifteen; Though it breaks my heart to go; The fair; The Japanese garden; Sunday—1913; Book review; Cab-taxi; Gone are the days; Who lived and died believing; Between the dark and the daylight; The marching feet; Odd Fellows' Hall; That woman; The season of summer; "Days become dear"; A place to hide in; The first one; Halloween; Georgetown nights.

"So much praise—and justly—has been sung of the brilliant and exquisite talent of Nancy Hale that it would seem superfluous to repeat all the adjectives here. Her latest book contains some 21 stories, of which I thoroughly enjoyed 20. As to the 21st—an account of three pregnant women trundling along by the sea, called 'The Season of Summer'—if I found it a bit ludicrous, especially in contrast with the satisfying veracity of the others, you might, on the other hand, think it the best in the book: certainly it does not fall beneath this author's superlative quality of writing." Elizabeth Van Deusen

+ Book Week p3 My 30 '43 750w

Booklist 39:464 Jl 15 '43

Reviewed by Diana Trilling

Nation 156:748 My 22 '43 180w

"While Nancy Hale's rich subject matter is one of intense conflict, her treatment is almost purely neutral; the modern tradition of restraint (which has made a virtue of repression) keeps her from committing a single passional act while she writes. A writer's access to character may be facilitated if he can suspend moral judgment; but not if he lacks it. Miss Hale's preoccupation with surface, with the mere texture of narrative, suggests this lack. In her stories the surface tension mounts, as in a glass, reaches its climax, breaks, spills over—but at no point is it more than water." Isaac Rosenfeld

+ — New Repub 109:51 Jl 12 '43 800w

"Miss Hale says easily and well what she wants to say, as usual, and for this reason any group of her stories has that special interest which attends good writing. Cruelty, which is in some of the stories, has interest as well as tenderness, but one feels that it does not tell as much in the end. The stories of childhood go through a door which the other stories halt before and find locked." Eudora Welty

+ — N Y Times p8 My 2 '43 650w

New Yorker 19:79 My 15 '43 20w

"It is good that 'Between the Dark and the Daylight' brings together between covers so many of the masterful stories which we read once in magazines and then mislaid. Rereading them, one realizes that Miss Hale is much more than a smart and disillusioned commentator on the ways of her own kind. She is waging a private war with weapons she can handle with exceptional skill. The enemy she fights is common to us all and we are grateful for her courage and her strength." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 390w

Reviewed by Rose Feld

Weekly Book Review p5 My 2 '43 1200w

"Miss Hale has an admirable command of the kind of detail which gives fiction immediacy. Her stories have good surface, a 'feel' of plausibility. They do not have much more." Mark Schorer

+ — Yale R n s 32:xii summer '43 180w

HALECKI, OSKAR, ritter von. History of Poland [tr. by Monica Gardner and Mary Patkaniowska]. 336p il $3.50 Roy pubs. [15s Dent]

943.8 Poland—History 43-4046

Outline history of Poland, from its early origins to the time of the destruction of Poland by the German invasion in 1939. The book was written in French in 1932-1933 and is now enlarged, brought down to date, and translated into English to meet the need for a succinct history. The author, who was formerly dean of the University of Warsaw, is now director of the Polish institute of arts and sciences in America. Index.

"There exists no better brief statement of Poland's thousand years of struggle." Paul Super

+ Am Hist R 48:317 Ja '43 600w

HALECKI, OSKAR—Continued

"This voluminous history of Poland should be read by every American of whatever origin if he is interested in world affairs, by all Americans of Polish origin and by Poles who, as refugees, enjoy our hospitality." M. W. Fodor

+ Book Week p5 Ap 18 '43 320w

Booklist 39:317 Ap 1 '43

Christian Science Monitor p12 N 14 '42 450w

"As a whole this is absorbing reading. Halecki has the knack of being informative without being stuffy. It is a book that merits a lot of praise. But a good bibliography would have been a helpful addition." J. S. Roucek

+ Commonweal 38:104 My 14 '43 420w

"Author tries, not always successfully, to combine objective scholarship with ardent patriotism. None too well translated; lacks bibliography. Nevertheless, best background book on complex topic. Recommended for college and public libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ — Library J 68:170 F 15 '43 130w

"An outline of Polish history, written by a distinguished Polish professor and most ably translated into English, is sure of welcome, giving us a body of facts hitherto difficult of access. . . It has indeed the weakness of all books on Poland by Poles or, still more, by her admirers: it does not distinguish clearly between earlier Poland, when the Polish nation was exclusively the landed class, and contemporary Poland, where people and nation have become synonymous. Hence its failure to penetrate to the heart of the Russo-Polish conflict. . . But it would be foolish to expect a Polish historian to be impartial in this tremendous issue; and it would be altogether wrong, for the sake of a few controversial paragraphs, to discredit the many pages, indeed chapters, of concise and accurate narrative." A. J. P. T.

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 28 '42 200w

Reviewed by B. E. Schmitt

New Repub 109:754 N 29 '43 1100w

"It is not astonishing that in his 'History of Poland' Mr. O. Halecki, though 'one of Poland's most distinguished historians,' was unable to rise 'above the battle.' All through the book we see him under the spell of his country's romantic past which stands and falls with the glorification of its proud nobility—the only class that ever had any say in the shaping of Poland's destinies. The bias appears from the very start." Max Nomad

Sat R of Lit 26:18 S 11 '43 600w

"Prof Halecki has avoided complicating his narrative with useless names and dates and has concentrated on explaining the events and persons which seem to him most important in interpreting Poland's past. He has stressed, throughout, the continuity of Polish culture and institutions and the part the country played in general European history. Unfortunately, this scheme leads to oversimplification, to a too great dependence on broad generalizations rather than on specific analysis of the factors involved in a particular situation." W. H.

+ — Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 18 '43 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p416 Ag 22 '42 600w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun

Weekly Book Review p16 Je 13 '43 1300w

HALEY, J. EVETTS. George W. Littlefield, Texan; drawings by Harold D. Bugbee. 287p $3 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Littlefield, George Washington 43-16971

Biography of a Texan cowman, who remained all his life an unreconstructed rebel. He "was born in Mississippi in 1842 and raised on a Texas plantation. He joined Terry's Texas Rangers at nineteen to serve the Confederacy, and at twenty-one was breveted a Major for gallantry in action and retired for wounds received. After the Civil War he went into the cattle business, trailing herds to Kansas, grazing his cattle in the Panhandle and on the Pecos, making a fortune, and interesting himself in the welfare of his state. . . He left his fortune to higher education, with large endowments at the University of Texas to be invested in buildings, library collections, and the writing of a definitive history of the South." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

"Haley has done his job well. There is no lack of revealing human detail in his record of Littlefield's active and productive career, and indeed no lack of entertaining and enlivening incidents. The two books supplement one another admirably in their treatment of the same region and period and the same colorful life from two different points of view." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p4 N 28 '43 110w

"Mr. Haley has told well the story of Littlefield and of the men who followed him to fortune. If there is at times a reluctance to name names and identify people . . . well, Texicans are 'techy folk,' as Mr. Haley knows. He should also know that the ordnance of the Lincoln County War did not include .30-30 rifles and that the 'jingle-bob' was not an earmark." Hoffman Birney

+ — N Y Times p12 Ja 2 '44 320w

"The story is packed with information and anecdotes, giving a rich picture of life in west Texas and New Mexico. It is handsomely illustrated with drawings by Harold D. Bugbee, one of our best-known Western illustrators, who also lives in Texas." Stanley Vestal

+ Sat R of Lit 26:32 D 11 '43 360w

HALL, CHARLES GILBERT. How a plane flies; are you sure you know? il. by Paul Laune; flying explained so that all may understand. 235p $2 Funk

629.13 Aeronautics 43-367

"Introduction to aviation for reader of any age who wants a 'first' book. Covers, with little recourse to mathematics or physics, the weather, avigation, instruments, principles of flight, plane design and testing, pilot and ground crew training; gliders, helicopters, and autogiros, airports and traffic rules, planes of the future. Shows the interrelation of all phases. Informal without being chatty. Weaving in of personalities and bits of flying history adds perspective. Appendixes give sources of information, up-to-date bibliography, and glossary. Indexed." Library J

"I have learned more from this book than from all the other flying books I have read. I have been building model planes and reading books on airplanes for several years. I think any boy or girl interested in flying should read this book for a really clear idea of what flying means." Paul Finfer

+ Book Week p6 Mr 21 '43 140w

"Skilful, nontechnical, but dependable. . . Highly recommended for children's rooms and young people's collections, to supplement basic textbooks." M. C. Scoggin

+ Library J 68:131 F 1 '43 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:3 Ja '43

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p20 My 16 '43 60w

HALL, CHARLES GILBERT, and MERKLE, RUDOLPH A. Sky's the limit! 195p il $2 Funk

387.7 Aeronautics as a profession. Aeronautics, Commercial 43-13537

Informal chapters on the various types of jobs in commercial aviation, how to train for them, qualifications, etc. Index.

Booklist 40:88 N 15 '43

"Will be useful handbook in vocational collections." Eileen Riols

+ Library J 68:773 O 1 '43 30w

Weekly Book Review p26 O 24 '43 80w

HALL, CHARLES SWAIN. Benjamin Tallmadge; revolutionary soldier and American businessman. 375p il $2.50 Columbia univ. press

B or 92 Tallmadge, Benjamin 43-9105

Biography of an American patriot (1754-1835) who was a colonel in the Revolutionary army, and was put in charge of the American secret service by General Washington. After the war he engaged in business, made a substantial fortune, and represented Litchfield, Connecticut, in Congress for many years. Bibliography. Index.

"This is a distinctly better than average study of one of the 'forgotten men' whose work made possible the heroic achievements of the 'distinguished leaders . . . who transformed thirteen British provinces into a new American nation.' . . It is all that careful scholarship, skillful handling of sources and a nice sense of perspective can make it. The full bibliography, notes and index add to its interest and usefulness."
+ Christian Century 60:990 S 1 '43 200w

"Benjamin Tallmadge's lifetime, 1754—1835, constitutes a big slice of American history, and this volume is indeed rewarding as a study of that interesting and crucial period. The author is a librarian of the Franklin D. Roosevelt Library at Hyde Park." Mitchell Bronk
+ Crozer Q 20:359 O '43 300w

"Recommended for all Connecticut libraries and for those specializing in United States history, 1750-1825." F. L. D. Goodrich
+ Library J 68:326 Ap 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by J. B. Hedges
New Eng Q 16:672 D '43 750w

HALL, HELEN. Simplified home sewing; with complete diagrams. 341p $2.75; to schools $2.20 Prentice-Hall

646.43 Dressmaking. Sewing 43-7136

"An experienced designer and teacher presents a detailed, step-by-step introduction to home sewing that may, if desired, lead to professional dressmaking. The material, arranged in nine parts, is concerned with first steps in sewing, stitches, cutting and assembling, waist finishing, sleeve and skirt finishing, tailoring, materials and trimmings, individual fitting, 92 fitting problems, remodeling and sewing commercially. Numerous illustrative diagrams. Questions at chapter ends, index." Bookmark

Bookmark 4:9 My '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

"This is really personal instruction, and the author knows how to teach."
+ Weekly Book Review p21 Jl 11 '43 200w

HALL, JAMES ROBERT. Practical wood patternmaking; with the editorial collaboration of Charles L. Webber. 188p il $3 McGraw

621.72 Pattern making 43-7872

The book is designed for vocational or technical high schools or for apprenticeship training; and it proposes to prepare the individual to become a skilled patternmaker in the shortest possible time. With photographs and diagrams and simple text it teaches how to read blueprints, handle and care for tools and machines; how to use glue and shellac; the use of patternmaking in aircraft work, etc. Index.

"A large-size page makes possible excellent drawings illustrating patternmaking." L. E. Grinter
+ Book Week p11 Jl 18 '43 50w
Booklist 39:458 Jl 15 '43
Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:32 Ap '43

HALL, WALTER PHELPS. World wars and revolutions; the course of Europe since 1900. 406p $4.50; students ed $3.50 Appleton-Century

940.5 Europe—History 43-16308

Political and military history of Europe from 1914 to the spring of 1943. "The largest part of this book is taken from the last eleven chapters of The Course of Europe since Waterloo in which the late Professor William Stearns Davis was co-author." (Pref)

Reviewed by J. H. Berthel
Library J 68:843 O 15 '43 100w
School & Society 58:416 N 20 '43 40w
Social Studies 35:94 F '44 30w

HALL, WILLIAM NORMAN. Telltime the rabbit; pictures by Charlotte Steiner. unp spir $1 Crowell

Little book with a format which resembles the face of a clock. Thruout the story the little rabbit whose ears did not match is the means of carrying on the story, and at the back a pair of moveable ears on a clock face make it possible to train a child to tell time.

"Learning to tell the time of day is one of the most confusing problems a child has to master. 'Telltime the Rabbit' simplifies matters considerably and tells an amusing story as well." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p44 D 5 '43 140w

"Usually stunt books are impractical for public libraries though this is more durable than most. Nice for parent shelves." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 69:33 Ja 1 '44 80w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p12 D 26 '43 140w

"The idea and execution are ingenious, and it ought to save considerable wear and tear on grandpa's watch or the family alarm clock when the youngsters in your household insist on learning to tell time. The type is too small and pale to be read easily by beginners, which seems a pity, but the illustrations are amusing and the extremely simple story is suitable for the book's purpose."
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 110w

HALLIDAY, BRETT, pseud. See Dresser, D.

HALLIDAY, EVELYN GERTRUDE, and NOBLE, ISABEL TILTON. Food chemistry and cookery. 346p il $3 Univ. of Chicago press

641.1 Food—Analysis. Cookery 43-4167

"This explanation of the chemical principles in food preparation and preservation provides a background for courses in nutrition and dietetics. A series of chemical experiments is outlined for each group of foods, and in most cases these are followed by tests in cooking. References are cited at the end of every chapter." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The book is well illustrated and presentation is simple and clear, with experiments in numbered steps and in sufficient detail to be easily followed. Suggestions for class assignments and lists of the food materials and chemicals required should make the manual easy to use." F. B. King
+ J Home Econ 35:656 D '43 250w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:27 Ap '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 4 '43 80w

HALPER, ALBERT. Only an inch from glory. 276p $2.50 Harper

43-14786

Four young people trying to solve their difficulties in New York city are the main characters. Dorothy, an art student from the middle west, has a desire to know successful people, since she herself is a failure; Frank is the young accountant who loves her, and remains faithful while she runs thru several love affairs; Sam, a Broadway press agent, is a disappointed playwright; and Anne, his wife, is Dorothy's friend. The book ends in tragedy.

HALPER, ALBERT—Continued

"This all reads rather grimly, and a grim little tale it is, wherein every principal reaches to within an inch of the happiness that would have made something of value out of a drifting, dissatisfied life. Yet it is a stirring and beautiful story about the kind of people who always do the wrong thing, and do it the hardest way that they know how." Leo Kennedy
Book Week p5 O 24 '43 360w

Reviewed by H. G. Kelley
Library J 68:725 S 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 157:506 O 30 '43 270w

"Halper is less successful with Dorothy than he is with his male characters. Sam and Keenan make sense, bitter in the first instance, tender in the second, but Dorothy is never completely clear. The fact of her amorous life is there but not the characterization. Anne Gluckman, however, is excellent as the wife and friend whose life is submerged by the people she loves." Rose Feld
N Y Times p4 O 10 '43 500w

"Unfortunately, although Mr. Halper's characters have gone up in the world, his commonplace prose remains just the same."
— New Yorker 19:98 O 9 '43 90w

"Readers will like this unusually slanted love story whose pathos reflects the pathos of the entire generation grown to manhood between two wars, the generation that individually and collectively missed 'glory' in their individual lives and the larger glory of a peaceful civilized future." Benjamin Appel
+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 O 9 '43 1100w

"Without being the least mawkish or sentimental, without doing more than giving the bare essential outlines of fact and event, Halper has succeeded in doing for the average out-of-town girl in New York what Christopher Morley tried to do for the average secretary in 'Kitty Foyle.' Dorothy Lynch, without surrendering her own individuality, becomes a type which the student of life, contemplating the age in which we live, must pause to understand." Sarah Schiff
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 700w

"And it's life, this stuff that Halper's novels are made of, all of them. And 'Only an Inch from Glory,' vivid and sad as it is, is a true story—a thousand times true each year." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 10 '43 700w

HALSTED, WINIFRED. Tomorrow fair. 241p $2 Dodd
43-606

Because her ambitious young husband seemed to be neglecting her, Kitty Bishop suggested divorce. To her surprise her husband agreed, so Kitty went to Florida for a time and returned with her divorce. In the New Jersey suburb, where she went to gain her bearings, Kitty found temptation in the form of one MacGregor; her ex-husband was pursued by a glamorous blond. All complications were smoothed out, however, and the reunited Bishop family had the promise of "tomorrow fair."

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p18 Ja 31 '43 350w

"Winifred Halsted writes with such witty penetration of her New York-and-suburbs people that they are just as real as the neighbors and much funnier." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p27 Ja 24 '43 290w

HAM, ARTHUR WORTH, and SALTER, MARY D. Doctor in the making; the art of being a medical student; il. by Jean McConnell. 179p $2 Lippincott

610.7 Medicine—Study and teaching. Students
43-4828

As the result of investigations by a faculty committee at the University of Toronto this small book on advice to medical students by two of the professors has been issued. The motives and mind necessary to a medical course are first discussed. The second section consists of suggested methods of study, conduct at lectures, personality, and orientation. The last part of the book is on the responsibilities of the medical student. Index.

"This seems to be the first instance in which a university has recognized the duty of teaching students to become competent students in addition to teaching them how to become competent physicians. The authors are evidently masters of their subject and every page contains good advice. . . The illustrations are excellent. It is hard to commend this book too highly both to students for whom it is written, and to professors. The one criticism is that short as it is, it is still too long for the average student with his crowded curriculum and the many outside activities often forced on him." M. P. Ravenal
+ Am J Pub Health 33:895 Jl '43 550w
Booklist 39:364 My 15 '43
Wis Lib Bul 39:121 O '43

HAMBRO, CARL JOACHIM. How to win the peace. 384p $3 Lippincott [10s 6d Hodder]

940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. International cooperation
42-24540

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Reviewed by R. H. Shackford
Ann Am Acad 230:202 N '43 700w

Reviewed by G. L. LaFuze
Christian Century 60:798 Jl 7 '43 950w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:575 Ap '43 30w

"It is to be hoped that his factual and stimulating book will be the harbinger of others by Continental statesmen who see the struggle and the issues from their temporary residence in London. Truth is many-sided. There is certainly no need for them to write with unanimity or without Mr. Hambro's disarming candour." Jan Masaryk
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 14 '43 550w

"This present book shows, unfortunately, very little of the man whom everybody in Geneva respected and not a few loved. His great parliamentary skill has led the author to concentrate on questions of parliamentary procedure, technique, and machinery. Mr. Hambro undoubtedly has a definite concept of the basis of peace. He believes in world-federation, he is convinced that the League of Nations must be the starting-point for all peace-planning, and he sees the main problem as one of neutralizing the Great Powers. But he does not argue any of his points. And while the reader will applaud his insistence that the small countries not be bullied by the Great Powers, he will hardly be satisfied with Mr. Hambro's proposal to solve the problem by means of parliamentary technique. . . And altogether the best part of Mr. Hambro's concrete suggestions are in the field of procedural details, whereas, as he himself points out often enough, it is fundamentals which we need today." P. F. Drucker
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:15 Mr 20 '43 700w
Spec 170:394 Ap 23 '43 210w
Times [London] Lit Sup p148 Mr 27 '43 600w
Wis Lib Bul 39:28 F '43

HAMBURG, MERRILL C., and TWENEY, GEORGE H. American student flyer. 692p il $1.50 Pitman

629.13 Aeronautics
42-23136

Textbook for a high school course in preflight training. Index.

Booklist 39:195 Ja 15 '43
Library J 67:952 N 1 '42 10w

HAMBURGER, MAX. Awakening of Western legal thought; tr. by Bernard Miall. 167p $3.25 Norton [10s 6d Allen, G]

340.1 Law—Philosophy. Philosophy, Ancient. State, The A42-3072

"The aim of this book is to describe the first awakening of modern ideas of legal thought. . . In the first part of the book the reader will be presented with the classical Greek bases of the Western ideals of law, as far as possible in their original wording. . . But in the second part of the book, since the writer has not restricted himself to historical research and description but has endeavoured to keep in mind the needs and demands of the present and the future, after giving an outline of the history of dogmatics, he has endeavoured to formulate, as simply and concisely as possible, what the ancients have to teach us about Law and State." (Pref) Bibliography.

"Hamburger's little book (only 152 pages of text) is an excellent way to make the acquaintance of the important Greek thinkers. The title unfortunately belies the book, for it really deals with the much wider field of social thought rather than those ideas which make up law as narrowly construed. The excellence noted lies in the method of direct quotation; over seven hundred passages taken from about one hundred twenty works of more than fifty ancient writers provide the essential stuff of the book. It is not, however, a mere ragbag." Howard Becker

+ Am Soc R 8:95 F '43 400w

"Dr. Hamburger covers a great deal of ground, most of it rather superficially. . . Dr. Hamburger is at his best in his study of the pre-Socratic pioneers, using the extant fragments skilfully to trace the gradual emergence of a philosophic from a hieratic or mystical conception of law. . . But in estimating the great names of the classical age his brief treatment proves inadequate to the abundance of the material."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p274 My 30 '42 450w

HAMILTON, ALICE. Exploring the dangerous trades; autobiography; with il. by Norah Hamilton. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 433p $3 Little

B or 92 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Diseases, Industrial 43-51090

"Autobiography of a pioneer investigator of occupational diseases in industry whose collateral work in social service led her from Hull House to the Health Committee of the League of Nations. . . The author is a professor emeritus of the Harvard Medical School." New Yorker

---

Reviewed by W. M. Gafafer
Am J Pub Health 33:1012 Ag '43 180w

Reviewed by Dorsey McCarthy
Book Week p9 My 2 '43 600w

Booklist 39:331 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:16 My '43

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 68:286 Ap 1 '43 140w

Reviewed by Frances Perkins
New Repub 108:514 Ap 19 '43 600w

Reviewed by Muriel Rukeyser
N Y Times p3 Ap 11 '43 1300w

"A wise and charming book."

+ New Yorker 19:83 Ap 17 '43 90w

"Terse and circumstantial narrative, more exciting than any fiction, sweeps us along with Dr. Hamilton, during her investigations of the smelting and enamelling trades in Pittsburgh, Trenton, and elsewhere. I have never read a grimmer portrayal of men at work." H. M. Robinson

+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 My 8 '43 550w

Reviewed by Sarah Cleghorn
Survey G 32:301 Jl '43 500w

"It is probably through the Harvard post which she held from 1918 until she became a professor emeritus in 1935, that she appears most distinguished to her scientific colleagues and the newspaper-reading public. Quite unconsciously, this simple account of her work and other experiences shows her with an even greater distinction than her formal honors portray—the distinction of a person who has lived her life with clarity of mind, warmth of heart, courage, friendliness and enjoyment." Mary Ross

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 11 '43 1750w

Wis Lib Bul 39:84 Je '43

HAMILTON, EDITH. Great age of Greek literature. 347p $3.50 Norton

880 Civilization, Greek. Greek literature—History and criticism 43-590

New edition of the author's earlier book The Greek Way (Book Review Digest, 1930). It incorporates that book and has five added chapters: Pindar, the last Greek aristocrat; Herodotus, the first sight-seer; Thucydides; Xenophon, the ordinary Athenian gentleman; and The religion of the Greeks, and constitutes a study of the Athenian writers of the Periclean age. It has been the author's aim to catch the Greek spirit at its highest point and develop its meaning for the men of today.

Booklist 39:254 F 15 '43

"Miss Hamilton's sharp focus on a single period of Greek culture necessarily excludes some of the most vital figures in Hellenic literature. . . Within the Periclean period, moreover, Miss Hamilton is apt to generalize about the Athenians on the basis of a selection from their best qualities, and she is not averse to drawing very sweeping conclusions about other civilizations, notably those of ancient Egypt and modern Europe. Some distortion of this sort is no doubt inevitable in a brief discussion of a large subject. Aside from this defect, Miss Hamilton's book is a clear and powerful exposition of the reasons why the study of Greek civilization is an indispensable introduction to complete living. Among popular treatments of a difficult and complex subject this is surely one of the best ever composed." G. F. Whicher

+ Books p17 Ja 24 '43 600w

"A readable work produced, not for scholars, but for those who, knowing no Greek, yet feel that they ought to learn something about the great Greek writers. It serves its purpose all the better by avoiding the formality of a manual, by telling amusing stories and by trying to give some picture of how the Greeks lived at this time." Theodore Maynard

+ Cath World 157:104 Ap '43 500w

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 1 '43 450w

"This book is a treasury of inspiration for those who would appreciate the contribution of ancient Greece to the civilization of the world." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 157:16 Mr 15 '43 360w

"There are two things such a book as this may do, instruct as knowledge or delight as literary appreciation. Miss Hamilton's gift is for the latter, and no one can say that, in the present state of classical literature in this country, it is not an important task." E. P. Richardson

+ Commonweal 37:594 Ap 2 '43 390w

"Miss Hamilton writes with ardor, clarity, and high spirit; at the same time she has constantly in mind the Greek principle of 'Nothing too much.' A good thing, too; for just a little more, and she would seem to be gushing, and adoring 'her' dear Greeks. She does not trim, or hedge. This forthright habit leads her, at times, into inconsistencies, or statements that sound pat, or sweeping. The reader will find many questions raised, and not all answered; he is not relieved of the responsibility of doing some thinking for himself." Rolfe Humphries

+ — Nation 156:173 Ja 30 '43 650w

"This book is no mere literary compendium but a penetrating study of the Greek mind and spirit in relation to both the ancient and the modern worlds. It is beautifully written." E. K. A.

+ Springf'd Republican p8 F 11 '43 550w

Theatre Arts 27:258 Ap '43 1350w

HAMILTON, EDITH—Continued

"Intended for a more popular audience than a small circle of classical scholars, this book is both attractive and stimulating. It is at times also an unreliable guide: a desire for sharp contrasts, for epigrammatic turns of expression has sometimes led to oversimplification; there is an occasional touch of nostalgic romanticism, and some of its judgments are questionable." C. M. Dawson

+ — Yale R n s 32:803 summer '43 420w

HAMILTON, ERIC RONALD. Air navigation. 175p $2 Ronald [5s Nelson]

629.1325 Navigation (aeronautics) 43-4841

"Provides elementary discussions of position and direction on the earth, maps, Mercator charts, wind, fixing and reporting position, plotting, instruments, etc. Contains a number of exercises with their answers as well as a chart on which these can be worked." N Y New Tech Bks

---

"Like most English books, this one is direct and exact. There is no attempt to make the subject entertaining as in recent American texts."

Book Week p11 My 30 '43 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:14 Ja '43

"Brief and sometimes too sketchy for would-be navigators." Theodore English

N Y Times p26 My 2 '43 100w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p22 Je 27 '43 40w

HAMILTON, THOMAS JEFFERSON. Appeasement's child; the Franco regime in Spain. 341p $3 Knopf

946.08 Spain—Politics and government. Spain—Foreign relations. World war, 1939—Spain 43-2388

"Answers clearly and frankly the question of what has happened in Spain since the civil war. The author, starting with the easily demonstrable thesis that Franco's victory was the war's first great defeat for our side, goes on to plead for a United Nations policy that will eventually line up the real Spanish people —not Hitler's stooges—with us." (New Yorker) Index.

Atlantic 171:129 My '43 90w

"Hamilton's book is extremely timely because here we can study at close range the first product of our diplomatic stupidity. We tossed Spain to our foes and here is the economic, social and cultural result. As a study of a people and a mentality it is superb. Read it." Ernest von Hartz

+ Book Week p3 Mr 14 '43 1100w

Booklist 39:289 Mr 15 '43

Bookmark 4:12 Mr '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 F 18 '43 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '43

"Well written and interesting, this correspondent's book contains only one chapter of the type correspondent's personal difficulties, how I felt when I crossed the frontier, how hard it was to find an apartment, etc. It contains only one inexcusable lapse of taste —in a reference to Suner's private life. The account of the Civil War is judicious. . . The deplorable state of present day Spain is described with compassion. For many of us 'Appeasement's Child' will make useful reading. It is, however, comment post facto. It is evidence not proof, of fascism's evil: the proof, the only kind of proof which has superior and compelling validity for us, was within fascism from the start."

+ — Commonweal 37:498 Mr 5 '43 650w

Reviewed by J. S. Gurley

Current Hist 4:152 Ap '43 1200w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:13 Jl '43 70w

"Readable. Recommended for insight relevant to present campaigns and postwar problems." Walter Hausdorfer

+ Library J 68:81 Ja 15 '43 100w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 20 '43 250w

"Mr. Hamilton has a keen eye and a sharp, able pen, and his character can be read between the lines. He has many principles and scruples, and he abhors dishonesty, double standards, corruption, and fascists. When he doesn't know he says so, and when he is merely giving his opinion he tags it as such. Consequently, when he states a fact as a definite fact I feel we are safe in trusting him. Now and then a pro-Franco partisan took him for an informational ride and told him what happened during the war against the Republican government. But it is confined to a few paragraphs." Louis Fischer

+ Nation 156:421 Mr 20 '43 1600w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 108:288 Mr 1 '43 1700w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

New Statesman & Nation 26:93 Ag 7 '43 1100w

"Here is a valuable record. . . It is the first thoroughgoing description we have had of appeasement's first child, and a more rickety and ill-favored offspring has seldom been held up to public view. Mr. Hamilton spares no detail of its misshapen body or its malignant mind. He shows it a failure at home and a menace abroad, whose only excuse for continuing to exist is the hope that it may profit by someone else's war." Mildred Adams

+ N Y Times p1 F 14 '43 1050w

"An important book."

+ New Yorker 19:59 F 20 '43 80w

"An exceedingly interesting and timely book. . . The book is crowded with information. It gives a short history of the beginning of the Falangist movement and the inner conflicts between the groups which formed the combination now ruling Spain." Stephen Naft

+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 F 27 '43 850w

Reviewed by Gerald Brenan

Spec 171:109 Jl 30 '43 800w

"Mr. Hamilton has rendered a real service to us by getting the lid off the malodorous Spanish pot. This reviewer, who has some experience in analyzing dictatorial governments, takes his hat off to his young colleague for his brilliant, searching, impassioned and yet fair treatment of one of the nastiest by-products of this Fascist era. May the good Lord save us from having Franco on our side of the table, once the peace conference is convened." Karl Loewenstein

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p400 Ag 21 '43 850w

"I think Mr. Hamilton has written his book in haste; it tends to be episodic and even casual at times rather than to present an organized analysis of the whole problem, but it supplies a great deal both of information and of shrewd comment." Walter Millis

+ — Weekly Book Review p1 F 14 '43 2000w

HAMILTON, WILLIAM JOHN. Mammals of eastern United States. 432p il maps $4 Comstock pub. co.

599 Mammals 43-6765

Study of all the species and subspecies of mammals native to the region east of the Mississippi river. Includes a brief description of each, with facts as to distribution, habits, and economic importance of each. Identification keys to the orders and genera, and in the case of rodents, to families. Maps and photographs. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:382 Je 1 '43

"Any one ambitious to make a serious study of the mammals in the hope of widening the apparently narrow boundaries of knowledge will obtain a good foundation from the author's previous book, 'American Mammals,' [Book Review Digest, 1940] and in the book under review he will find an excellent practical manual for the identification of all the native species living on land and around fresh water. It may be noted that the author has omitted from his second book such sea-going species as the whales, seals and dolphins, although these picturesque mammals are, in a way, native along our eastern coast."

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ag 8 '43 330w

HAMMOND, C. S., and company. Hammond's comparative wall atlas, showing the world as man found it, physical maps; as man developed it, political maps. self-revising ed 16p $12.50 c1942 Hammond

912 Atlases

"The atlas contains the following maps: the Western Hemisphere; two maps of the Eastern Hemisphere, one showing Asia and Australia, the other Europe and Africa; political and physical maps of North America, the United States, South America, Europe, Asia, Africa; a physical map of Australia; and a map of the Pacific Ocean. Small insert maps on the pages with Africa and Australia show the former German African colonies and Cape Verde Islands, and New Zealand." Subscription Bks Bul

"All the maps are well colored, clearly printed, and easy to read without so many details and small place names as to be confusing. Under present conditions however, the omission of names of small towns and cities may prove a handicap. Each political map indicates capitals of countries, international boundaries as established before the present World War, railroads, canals, and principal cities. There is no index, however, to aid in locating places. . . While these maps are legible for wall display, they are actually smaller than the map supplements of the National Geographic Magazine already in general use. The format is not of sufficient advantage to make it worthwhile to duplicate any material, nor is the promise of future revision of great importance at the moment. Most libraries therefore would weigh the cost of the atlas against the use they would make of the physical maps. The atlas is not recommended."
— Subscription Bks Bul 14:20 Ap '43 500w

HAMMOND, C. S., and company. Hammond's universal world atlas; new maps, new indexes, new statistics, new gazetteer. [3d ed] 176p $3 c1942 Hammond

912 Atlases Map 43-133

"This atlas is identical in part with others of slightly differing titles issued by C. S. Hammond & company in recent years. It most closely resembles Hammond's New Era Atlas, c1941, 159p. It contains 6 economic maps in black and white; 96 pages of colored maps including one of Europe showing the territory annexed and occupied by Germany, U.S.S.R., Hungary, and Bulgaria; 62 pages of index to United States cities and towns; 9 pages of index to foreign cities and towns; and 2 war-area maps, one for the Atlantic Ocean and one for the Pacific Ocean. The same material is in the New Era Atlas with the exception of the index to foreign cities and towns and the two special war-area maps. An unsatisfactory feature is the arrangement of the index to cities and towns in the United States by states rather than in one alphabet. The foreign index is in one alphabet. Most of the maps are as of September 1939." Subscription Bks Bul

Christian Science Monitor p8 F 6 '43 200w

"While the information so far as it goes seems adequate, there is little reason for libraries to purchase this atlas if they have a similar volume published in the 30's, as there are only a few new pages in the work. For this reason it is not recommended."
— Subscription Bks Bul 14:20 Ap '43 390w

HAMNER, LAURA VERNON. Short grass and longhorns. 269p il maps $2.75 Univ. of Okla. press

917.64 Ranch life. Frontier and pioneer life —Texas 43-9473

"Miss Hamner, originally from Memphis, Tenn., arrived in Texas long after the great days of the big ranches had disappeared, but there were still enough survivors scattered about the Panhandle and elsewhere to supply many tales of the old times. In this book she tells the story of most of the larger Panhandle ranches. . . Here are the stories of the XIT, the Bar CC, the T-Anchor, the Matador, the Turkey Track, the JA (Colonel Charles Goodnight's old outfit), the Rocking Chair, the Frying Pan and many others." Weekly Book Review

Booklist 40:57 O 15 '43

"Miss Hamner is obviously a tireless researcher and she has gone to headquarters for her material—virtually all of it is taken from the memories of men and women who had a part in early Panhandle history. It is inevitable that such material should be uneven in quality. Some of her chapters are pretty prosy for anyone except a Panhandle resident. Other chapters are excellent in presenting detailed pictures of ranch life and history." Hal Borland
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 25 '43 600w

"Miss Hamner had a fair-sized bibliography to start with. In addition she obviously had done a vast amount of research on her own, checking one recollection with another—and sometimes getting confusing results. Although there is little of importance in her book that is new, she has pieced together many details, particularly concerning the life of the early families, which add up to a wonderful contribution to the history of that region." Stanley Walker
+ Weekly Book Review p11 Jl 4 '43 430w

HANC, JOSEF. Eastern Europe and the United States. (America looks ahead) 95p 50c; pa 25c World peace

940.5 Reconstruction (1939-). U.S.—Relations (general) with Europe. Europe—Relations (general) with the U.S. 42-24637

"The latest publication in the 'America Looks Ahead' series is devoted to eastern Europe and the United States. Its author is Dr. Josef Hanč, who is at present connected with Tufts College. In a very condensed but clear style the author presents interesting data concerning America's stake in eastern Europe, which includes not only dollars and cents but political, moral, and social stakes." Am Hist R

"Considering the limited space within which Dr Hanč had to present his extremely complex subject, the book is admirably done and deserves favorable comment." A. G. Mazour
+ Am Hist R 48:842 Jl '43 200w

Reviewed by D. F. Fleming
Am Pol Sci R 37:940 O '43 230w

"Mr. Hanč is the historian of the period between the two wars, and as such he covers ground which has now become familiar. Nevertheless, his account of these matters is welcome, for he offers rather more than a restatement of commonly known facts, and his narrative is better documented than the bulk of those already available. He deserves credit, too, for maintaining a steady detachment."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p2 Ja 1 '44 450w

HANCOCK, LUCY AGNES. West End nurse. 272p $2 Macrae Smith co.

43-728

Story of a public health nurse and her work in the slum district of an up-state New York city. Mary Bradford has to work under a doctor who seems hard and cold while she is friendly and sympathetic, but in time these two find true understanding in their pursuit of a common objective.

Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Books p18 Ja 31 '43 150w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p27 Ja 24 '43 220w

Wis Lib Bul 39:110 Jl '43

HANDLEMAN, HOWARD. Bridge to victory; the story of the reconquest of the Aleutians. 275p $2 Random house

940.542 World war, 1939—Aleutian islands. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-16487

An American newspaper man writes of life in the army on the Aleutians and particularly of the Battle of Attu in May, 1943. Index.

Reviewed by J. I. Greene
Book Week p19 N 14 '43 180w

Booklist 40:112 D 1 '43

Christian Century 60:1369 N 24 '43 100w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

"An able job of reporting." Marcus Duffield
+ Nation 157:590 N 20 '43 150w

Reviewed by Ira Wolfert
New Repub 109:820 D 6 '43 400w

"Considering the circumstances under which it was written—Mr. Handleman did the job while on a month's leave back in the States before he returned to the Aleutians to cover the Kiska occupation—the book is well done and excitingly written. It has the faults of all writing that is done against a deadline, and Mr. Handleman is a bit off on his naval terminology, but those are faults to be expected when correspondents are still deep in the job and must write their books between assignments." Foster Hailey
+ N Y Times p4 N 7 '43 950w

"The core of his volume is a full-dress, eye-witness report on the battle for Attu—a good job, too, entitled to rank fairly close to John Hersey's 'Into the Valley' in its faithful detail and its grasp of the situation, though not perhaps in its literary quality."
+ New Yorker 19:107 N 6 '43 90w

"Howard Handleman has given us not only a dramatic report of a long and arduous campaign, but a worthwhile study of our enemy." P. R. Knauth
+ Sat R of Lit 26:5 N 6 '43 1350w

Reviewed by L. B. Kromer
Springf'd Republican p6 N 15 '43 700w

"'Bridge To Victory' is a valuable contribution to the record of the war. It is an able piece of reporting." Ernest Gruening
+ Weekly Book Review p1 O 31 '43 2000w

HANKIN, EDWARD K. ed. See Merriman, M. Strength of materials

HANKINS, ROBERT MAXWELL. Lonesome River justice. 250p $2 Macrae Smith co. 43-2510

Western story.

"The story is above average for a Western and maybe you will like 'Sheep Dip' Sherman; or the gambler, Honest John, who for years has been trying to convince his clientele that they can't win; or Father Antonio, who discovers that, whenever the poor in his parish are especially hungry, it is very easy to win fifty dollars at Honest John's poker tables." E. J. C.
+ Book Week p6 Ap 4 '43 180w

Booklist 39:321 Ap 1 '43

"As lively and engrossing a yarn as any Western fan could ask for." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 4 '43 200w

Wis Lib Bul 39:74 My '43

HANNA, PAUL LAMONT. British policy in Palestine; with an introd. by Josephus Daniels. 214p $3.50; pa $3 Am. council on public affairs

956.9 Palestine—History. Zionism. Jews in Palestine 42-19513

"This book is a narrative of the British conduct of affairs in Palestine from 1919 to the present day, presumably based upon a review of the literature and documents listed in the appendix." Am Hist R

"So far as I can see, it is accurate, nonanalytical, untendentious, with the minimum of inference and interpretation, hence conventionally 'objective.' It recounts what happened but does not attempt to evaluate the alternative theories as to why it happened, beyond showing a definite sympathy for the—superficial and mistaken—explanation that a high-minded and even generous mandatory has been trying to reconcile the irreconcilable interests of Arab nationalists and Jewish Zionists. Its virtues put the essay in the category of chronicle rather than history, since history must supply an insight into dynamics and a theory of causes." H. M. Kallen
Am Hist R 48:566 Ap '43 420w

Reviewed by W. W. White
Am Pol Sci R 36:1192 D '42 300w

"This study by Dr. Hanna is one of the best available. It deals in detail, and with clarity, with one of the most confused and complex subjects of present-day life: the British-Jewish-Arab triangle in Palestine." S. D. Myers, Jr.
+ Ann Am Acad 229:188 S '43 280w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:374 Ja '43 20w

Social Studies 33:380 D '42 10w

HANSEN, EMIL M. Ship outfitter's handbook. 291p il $3 Cornell maritime

623.86 Ships—Equipment and supplies 43-13766

"Details of constructing and installing furniture and fittings are supplemented by an explanation of how to read drawings, shipbuilding terms and abbreviations, a description of a ship's structure, and tools and tests for the jobs. Written primarily for the new man in the shipyard. Many drawings and illustrations are in a separate folded supplement." Booklist

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p18 N 21 '43 50w

Booklist 40:73 N 1 '43

Eng N 131:116 N 4 '43 10w

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:51 Jl '43

"The book will be especially adapted to the beginner and will help him to become an efficient worker in the shortest possible time." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p25 Ja 23 '44 100w

HANSEN, HOWARD JAMES. Modern timber design. 232p il $3 Wiley

694 Timber. Strains and stresses. Building 43-15391

"All the basic information needed by the design engineer working with wood is included in this volume which was prepared primarily for senior civil engineers at the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas where the author is associate professor. Frankly a textbook, the volume contains complete details that will enable the designer to follow through the theory and mechanics of design for timber structures." (Eng N) Index.

Eng N 132:95 Ja 13 '44 150w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 20w

HANSON, EARL PARKER, ed. See New world guides to the Latin American republics

HARDISON, PRISCILLA (MRS FELIX M. HARDISON), and WORMSER, ANNE. The Suzy-Q. 170p il $2 Houghton

940.544 World war, 1939—Aerial operations 43-16488

Story of the famous bomber, the Suzy-Q, compiled by the wife of the pilot, Lieutenant Colonel Felix M. Hardison, and based on the stories of the men who made up her crew. The period covered is from January 1942 when the Suzy-Q set out, to her return eleven months later. During that time the bomber saw action over Java, the Celebes, Australia, the Solomons, and New Guinea.

Booklist 40:162 Ja 1 '44

"Told with charm and understanding by wife of commander Major (now Lieutenant-Colonel) Felix M. Hardison. . . Should prove popular reading, especially with those interested in combat flying." M. J. Messler

+ Library J 68:844 O 15 '43 100w

"It is a gallant and a thrilling story." F. S. Adams

+ N Y Times p22 D 12 '43 480w

"Not prime writing, but a better-than-average job, worth reading not only for its description of the Flying Fortress missions but for its unsentimentalized insight into the psychology of a bomber team."

+ New Yorker 19:110 N 20 '43 120w

"The woman's-eye view of the life of a bomber crew; a wife's honest endeavor to understand the problems besetting its commander and the little handful of men who are thrown together for long hours in the face of danger. Despite this second-hand viewpoint Mrs Hardison makes every incident interesting, no matter how unpretentiously related." M. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 19 '43 140w

"Mrs. Hardison has done a job of setting down the under-stated, restrained emotions of these men—and the emotions of the waiting wife, too—into a book that has verity and power. The writing is direct, and has the dignity—and the humor—that the subject itself requires." Diana Forbes-Robertson

+ Weekly Book Review p2 D 5 '43 600w

HARDT, MICHAEL. Stranger and afraid. 303p $2.50 Bobbs

43-7712

Spy story of the present war. A young Austrian nobleman, who had left his home after the Anschluss, was serving as a private in the American army in 1941. He was sent back to his homeland on a dangerous mission as an American Secret service agent, and the steps in his triumphant course are traced in this book.

Booklist 39:446 Jl 1 '43

"As an adventure story, 'A Stranger and Afraid' certainly packs the works. It is filled with intrigue, secret inventions, beautiful and sophisticated women, and convenient coincidences. . . The book has other assets. For one thing, Mr. Hardt can write. Technically he is equipped for a far more important job than this one, and through his slick competence emerge flashes of serious talent. But the plot, as a whole, is unresolved." Jane Cobb

+ — N Y Times p12 Je 6 '43 450w

"The mystery and undercover conflict of rival espionage systems in this war is well-conveyed in Michael Hardt's exciting novel, 'A Stranger and Afraid.' It is a swift moving story full of action and drama. Michael Hardt has the knack of jumping quickly over events of lesser importance, to plunge the reader (in two or three terse sentences) into situations full of tension and suspense." M. R. Burroughs

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 20 '43 270w

"It's a better than average spy tale with lighter pages for relief. We weren't as scared as the blurbist, but we were somewhat scared." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p13 My 30 '43 250w

HARE, CYRIL, pseud. See Clark, A. A. G.

HARING, DOUGLAS GILBERT. Blood on the Rising Sun. 239p il $2.50 Macrae Smith co.

915.2 World war, 1939- —Japan. Japan—Politics and government. Japan—Civilization

43-9551

"Thoroughgoing analysis of inscrutable, 'face-saving so-sorry' Japan. Affords clear appreciation of appalling task America faces to defeat a nation that unquestionably believes in superiority of race, in its destiny to rule the world. Mr. Haring spent seven years in Japan, graduated from School of Japanese Language and Culture, in Tokyo. His ability to read Japanese gives book special value, for it digs deep into the inherited centuries of opinion, temperament, beliefs, part and parcel of the Japanese today." (Library J) No index.

Am J Soc 49:197 S '43 30w

Reviewed by Herbert Blumer

Am J Soc 49:283 N '43 340w

"Haring tries to make the Japanese people a comprehensible and humanly understandable enemy, but the facts interfere; and the picture that emerges is blurred in outline and confused in detail." R. T. LaPiere

Am Soc R 8:733 D '43 300w

Reviewed by Mark Saxton

Book Week p2 Ag 22 '43 550w

"Well written, authentic, with almost overwhelming fund of knowledge. Recommended." S. E. Sherman

+ Library J 68:473 Je 1 '43 130w

"Mr. Haring follows well-worn grooves. His book is really a summary of certain aspects of Japanese history and politics in popular style and vivid language, of which the title is a sample." H. W. Chamberlin

N Y Times p20 Je 20 '43 220w

"Many American missionaries, teachers and just plain tourists, following long residence or extensive travel in the islands of Japan, returned to the United States before the war with copious notes on their observations in the hope of finding some publisher who would preserve them between the covers of a book. Fortunately or unfortunately, as the case may have been, American publishers were hardly on speaking terms with writers on Japan at that time, but after the attack on Pearl Harbor publishers suddenly discovered Japan. . . Yellowing notes were therefore carefully removed from old trunks, dusted off and rushed to the printer to help us win the war. Mr. Haring's belated book on Japan seems to be of this type, but behind the lurid title of his volume is material well worth keeping in mind." Joseph Newman

Weekly Book Review p15 Je 20 '43 900w

HARK, ANN. Story of the Pennsylvania Dutch; with lithographs by C. H. De Witt. [32p] $1 Harper

974.8 Germans in Pennsylvania—Juvenile literature 43-51179

Regional geography, telling the story of the Pennsylvania Dutch in large colored lithographs and simple text. For children eight to eleven.

Booklist 39:432 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:242 Jl '43 70w

Reviewed by M. A. Herr

Library J 68:576 Jl '43 70w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield

Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 50w

"Any one, old or young, who has even a passing acquaintance with the rich land of the Pennsylvania Dutch will succumb at once to the charms of this book, the fifth in Mr. De Witt's brilliant series of pictorial geographies about American regions. . . Ann Hark tells their story with well-chosen incidents, the kind which children remember, thus leading them, as youth needs to be led, from the particular to a wider interest." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p12 My 30 '43 260w

"The fifth, and one of the best, in a series which must make American history and geography positively exciting to anyone under eleven."

+ New Yorker 19:69 My 29 '43 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 19 '43 40w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p12 My 23 '43 380w

Wis Lib Bul 39:111 Jl '43

HARKINS, PHILIP. Coast guard, ahoy! 229p $2 Harcourt

43-14816

Tells the story of the coast guard in peace and war thru the experiences of the young apprentice, Peter Shute. For older boys.

Booklist 40:82 N 1 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:420 N '43 90w

"A book of more vigor than the usual service story."
+ New Yorker 19:135 D 4 '43 60w

"'Coast Guard, Ahoy!' will be of special interest to relatives and friends of servicemen, and to prospective coast guardsmen." S. M.
Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 110w

HARLOW, ALVIN FAY. Bret Harte of the Old West; il. by Hamilton Greene. 307p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Harte, Bret—Juvenile literature
43-6195

Biography in fiction form for readers of fourteen and older. It begins with Bret Harte as a child of six, running away from his Greenwich Village home to trade with the Indians and make a fortune, after the Astor pattern. After that unsuccessful attempt, the course of his life is followed thru his New York period, his early days in the West, his work on the Overland Monthly, and his gradual rise to fame. Index.

Booklist 39:448 Jl 1 '43

"Though somewhat uninspired, a good biography for young people of twelve to sixteen." J. E. Stromdahl
Library J 68:480 Je 1 '43 90w

"Mr. Harlow has done a homely book on Bret Harte. It has some of the peculiar literary flavor of a Horatio Alger story except that the ending is not happy. . . Mr. Harlow's book is beautifully illustrated by Hamilton Greene, who has a soft corner in his heart for the Old West. His drawings add immeasurable warmth to the text." M. B.
N Y Times p13 My 30 '43 550w

"Adequate."
Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 15 '43 10w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 7 '43 650w

"A subject hard to present to young people with faithfulness, Bret Harte receives from Alvin Harlow in this book for the teens an attention that places it among those from which an older reader may get light on a difficult character. The difficulty is not that Bret Harte's character was enigmatic, but that it had so many qualities that canceled each other out. In this record—it is record rather than appraisal—these qualities are presented through circumstances and conditions rousing intelligent sympathy." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Je 20 '43 320w
Wis Lib Bul 39:112 Jl '43

HARLOW, ALVIN FAY. Theodore Roosevelt, strenuous American; drawings by Oscar Ogg. 302p $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Roosevelt, Theodore 43-10008

Sympathetic, full-length biography written in a style which should appeal to young readers. Chronology. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Harve Fischman
Book Week p10 S 12 '43 230w
Booklist 40:18 S '43

Reviewed by D. M. MacDonald
Library J 68:628 Ag '43 60w
Wis Lib Bul 39:127 O '43

HARPER, ALLAN GARLAND; CORDOVA, ANDREW R, and OBERG, KALERVO. Man and resources in the middle Rio Grande valley. 156p il $2.25 Univ. of N.Mex. School of inter-Am. affairs, Albuquerque, N.Mex.

333.72 Natural resources. Rio Grande valley
43-53161

A study of the economic and social problems of the Rio Grande country of New Mexico. The underlying cause of the trouble, the authors find, is deterioration of natural resources. Several proposals for alleviation are put forth in the final chapter.

"The book should be widely read for its lessons in democracy as well as in conservation." Roderick Peattie
+ Am J Soc 49:279 N '43 130w

Reviewed by Scudder Mekeel
Am Soc R 8:740 D '43 1100w
Booklist 40:54 O 15 '43
New Repub 109:497 O 11 '43 120w
School & Society 58:64 Jl 24 '43 50w

HARPER, FRANK. Military ski manual; a handbook for ski and mountain troops. 393p il $2 Military service

356.16 Ski troops 43-4092

"The subject is treated exhaustively, composition of ski divisions, training, equipment, tactics, bivouacs in the snow, camouflage, rations, being among the many topics. Particularly informative is the discussion of little known ski campaigns, during the Russo-Finnish War and World War II. Dozens of good illustrations add to the book's worth." Weekly Book Review

---

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 20w
New Yorker 19:59 F 20 '43 20w

"A manual on military skiing which, with its mixture of technical and popular, will prove of interest to the unskilled layman." P. J. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p26 My 23 '43 150w

HARPER, HERBERT DRUERY. Printing shop mathematics. 127p il $1.50 Van Nostrand

655.3 Printing, Practical. Mathematics
43-5864

"A concise text providing mathematical essentials for students of printing. Illustrative problems and exercises supplement each of the following chapters: I, Lay of the case; II, Justification; III, Printing system of measurement; IV, Type calculations; V, Art work, photoengraving, and electrotypes; VI, Paper; VII, Stonework and imposition; VIII, Pamphlet binding; IX, Ink; X, Estimating." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:30 Ap '43

HARRIMAN, GRACE (CARLEY) (MRS OLIVER HARRIMAN). Book of etiquette; a modern guide to the best social form. 646p il $3 Greenberg

395 Etiquet 42-24525

"Although the author remembers frequently that she and her friends have been accustomed to butlers and maids and her advice is tuned to above the average circumstances, simpler establishments are not neglected. Her insistence is on courtesy and consideration of others as the fundamentals of etiquette, and her rules cover a wide range, from the home management to army and navy usage. Miscellaneous questions are answered in the appendix and a glossary of French terms is given." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 39:115 D 1 '42
Bookmark 5:3 Ja '43
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 60w

HARRIS, MRS BERNICE (KELLY). Sweet Beulah land. 389p $2.75 Doubleday 43-3848

Another novel about conditions in that corner of North Carolina between the sea and the Virginia line. Impoverished Southern landowners, poor-white sharecroppers, and a farm worker with no known background, who falls in love with a daughter of an aristocratic family, provide the chief characters.

"It is a rich and human theme, and Mrs. Harris makes the most of it... 'Sweet Beulah Land' is panoramic in scope and introduces a whole community of characters and, as many facets as there are to life itself. Scenes like Miss Partheny's eviction, and her funeral, and old Mr. Matt's harvest-moon dinner party, and the women's club meeting at Mrs. Price's, to name only a few, are superb." Elizabeth Van Deusen

+ Book Week p2 Ap 4 '43 900w

Booklist 39:320 Ap 1 '43

"The book has collective life, and never preaches in any social-study manner to rob it of that life. Each little glimpse has concrete narrative, an intimate landscape with its times of planting and harvest, characters filling it by the score with precisely expressive faces, spontaneous pantomimes, colored costumes and possessions and toys in hand, all somewhat like a painting of Peter Breughel's. In the midst of any and all of this, Lan is unreal; perhaps he is symbolic, and so lost among the rich every-dayness which is the life and charm of 'Sweet Beulah Land.'" Eudora Welty

+ — N Y Times p9 Mr 7 '43 800w

"An original and moving novel. Mrs. Harris deserves a medal for introducing us to the first fictional sharecroppers who aren't grim."

+ New Yorker 19:66 F 27 '43 60w

"The particular part of America in which Mrs. Harris places her story is the South but it seemed to me a story of land and people which would be in most respects true of every part of this continent. Certainly it is brilliantly true of the South, a truth born of an almost miraculous eye and ear for detail and a skill with words which matches Mrs. Harris's understanding of her people. As the South of this book happens to be my particular part of the South, I may be prejudiced in my pleasure over Mrs. Harris's picture of it. But as it happens to be my South I can also testify to the good reality of that picture." Jonathan Daniels

+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 Ap 3 '43 550w

"Bernice Kelly Harris is certainly at her best with her share croppers; she brings them together successfully in crowds and lets them enjoy their revivals and their layings-out and funerals. The tough old woman who captures Lan when he is sick, intent on keeping him to plow, is the livest and strongest character in the story. To fall into the poor white's language that the author handles so well, the book has west coast—it's quite different—'charm and logic.'" Frederick Wight

+ Weekly Book Review p8 F 21 '43 750w

Wis Lib Bul 39:55 Ap '43

HARRIS, CHARLES OVERTON. Slide rule simplified. 250,8p il $2.50; with slide rule $3.50 Am. tech. soc.

510.78 Slide rule 43-12226

"Eight chapters, intended for the beginner, deal clearly and fully with the simpler types of calculation. Additional chapters for more advanced students are titled: Sines and Cosines; The tangent of an angle; The log scale; The reciprocal scale; How to check a slide rule. The text is liberally supplied with practice problems, and the answers are furnished." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 40:89 N 15 '43

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:51 Jl '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p36 N 28 '43 100w

HARRIS, MRS FLORENCE LA GANKE. Victory vitamin cook book for wartime meals. 185p $1.50 Penn

641.5 Cookery. Vitamins 43-3474

"The purpose of this book is to supplement an already adequate (peacetime) cookbook shelf with recipes geared to the present food shortages and with a sensible discussion of vitamins and other nutrients as well as the necessary amounts and varieties of foods per day per person. . . There are 400 recipes, including meat substitutes and extenders and desserts that save sugar." Book Week

Book Week p4 Ap 25 '43 180w

Bookmark 4:8 My '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '43

Reviewed by Nina Browning
J Home Econ 36:40 Ja '44 100w

"Crammed with valuable information on all the essential food factors, it is still pleasantly readable." Jeanne Owen

+ N Y Times p26 My 23 '43 160w

HARRIS, LEONORE. Big lonely dog; pictures by Dorothy Allyn Deets. (Nursery bks) [41p] 85c Houghton
43-51141

Hamlet was a Great Dane dog, purchased for a watch dog. His first few days in his new home were full of tragic mistakes, but finally Hamlet proved his worth as a watch dog, and was allowed to stay. For very young readers.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p9 My 23 '43 140w

Booklist 39:373 My 15 '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 1 '43 90w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:236 Jl '43 40w

"The pleasing repetitive element in this story and the full page illustrations in color, by Dorothy Allyn Deets, would appeal to five- and six-year-olds. Recommend for larger library collections." M. M. Clark

+ Library J 68:479 Je 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:820 O 15 '43 30w

"Little children will enjoy Hamlet's mistakes and the ensuing disasters and also his final triumph, all clearly set forth in the many spirited drawings made by some one who loves and understands dogs."

+ N Y Times p17 My 16 '43 200w

"Simple tale of animal life with just enough action to hold the attention of the youngest book lovers." A. M. Jordan

+ Sat R of Lit 26:27 My 15 '43 30w

Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 15 '43 10w

Wis Lib Bul 39:87 Je '43

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN, ed. Postwar economic problems. 417p $3.50 McGraw

330.9 Economic policy. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-4284

This symposium "written by 23 of our most eminent economists, mostly from Harvard and nearly all employed by the government, investigates every present tangle in our industrial relationships and anticipates some new ones that are bound to crop up when we demobilize. . . Alvin Hansen's essay on 'The Postwar Economy' is of considerable interest to those who want to keep an eye on the 1943 New Deal brain trust. Joseph Schumpeter's analysis of the place of capitalist enterprise after the war is a brilliant defense of the new conservatism." (Book Week)

Reviewed by R. M. Weidenhammer
Am Econ R 33:664 S '43 1950w

Reviewed by William Orton
Am Soc R 8:729 D '43 340w

HARRIS, S. E.—Continued

"Much of the material in the book has appeared elsewhere; it is written primarily by and for academicians, but bringing the materials together should serve a useful purpose." E. P. Schmidt

Ann Am Acad 228:125 Jl '43 360w

Reviewed by R. H. Rovere

Book Week p2 My 23 '43 400w

Booklist 40:2 S '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:156 O '43 20w

"For every one who is interested in the vital question of the form and direction of the post-war American economy this book is essential reading. For readers with special interests there are contributions by such authorities as John D. Black on agricultural problems, Sumner H. Slichter on labor, R. B. Bryce of the Canadian Finance Department on international investment, and Guy Greer in his familiar field of city planning." J. H. Crider

+ N Y Times p21 Je 13 '43 480w

Reviewed by Spurgeon Bell

Pol Sci Q 58:458 S '43 950w

HARRISON, MRS MARGARET (HAYNE). Captain of the Andes. 216p il $3 Smith, Richard R.

B or 92 San Martín, José de 43-2045

Biography of the South American patriot, Don José de San Martín, liberator of Argentina, Chile, and Peru. He was born in South America, educated in Europe, where he fought with the armies of Spain during the Napoleonic war, and then returned to South America to fight for the liberation from Spain. He is contrasted with Bolivar, who is blamed for San Martín's exile and poverty. Bibliography. Index.

"Works of popular biography may have serious significance if they show close acquaintance with the environment (social, geographical, and intellectual) in which the subject of the study lived. It does not appear, however, that the author of Captain of the Andes fully meets this requirement. . . More important to the general reader is the failure of the author, in spite of a readable style, to give convincing realism to the story. The book seems to be written in the style of 'statuary biography' once current in this country in dealing with our own political leaders." C. C. Griffin

— + Am Hist R 49:134 O '43 650w

"It is popular, but not sensationalized, history. It succeeds adequately in making its epic hero live again." E. J. C.

+ Book Week p10 Mr 14 '43 230w

Booklist 39:291 Mr 15 '43

Cath World 157:332 Je '43 160w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 17 '43 550w

"Mrs. Harrison's book on San Martin is almost, but not quite what an ideal book of this kind should be. She has done a good deal of research in archives and libraries, and at times the reader feels the living presence of the Argentine hero. The chapters that deal with the last days of San Martin in exile . . . are written with feminine tenderness and dramatic force, and are probably the outstanding pages of the book." A. T. Rioseco

+ Nation 156:745 My 22 '43 330w

"A popular, readable biography. . . Mrs Harrison has given San Martín all the breaks in this controversy, portrayed Bolivar as a megalomaniac and generally tugged at history until it settled into shape for her, but the concrete achievements of her hero furnish a justification of her point of view."

+ — New Repub 109:54 Jl 12 '43 120w

Reviewed by Ernesto Montenegro

N Y Times p22 Ap 18 '43 1000w

" 'Captain of the Andes' conveys effectively the checkered contrasts, the dreams and glory and heart-break of San Martin's life. It is first-rate reading." M. J. J.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 25 '43 550w

"Mrs. Harrison recounts the historical facts briefly. Her portrait of the man himself is well rounded. . . This book is an excellent introduction to the man and his times. A fuller treatment of San Martin's campaigns is badly needed in English." W. A. Roberts

+ Weekly Book Review p16 Mr 28 '43 1150w

HART, ALAN. These mysterious rays; a non-technical discussion of the uses of X rays and radium, chiefly in medicine. 218p il $2.75 Harper

616.0757 X rays. Radiotherapy 43-7409

"Subtitled: 'A Non-Technical Discussion of the Uses of X-Rays and Radium, Chiefly in Medicine.' Dr. Hart writes an informal, personal account of his experiences, citing many cases in use of X-ray and radium and noting importance of roentgenologist's role today." (Library J) Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter

Book Week p11 Je 13 '43 60w

Booklist 39:421 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:286 Ap 1 '43 110w

"Dr. Hart gives the layman an insight into what is being accomplished today by roentgenologists, chiefly in the medical field. His story has a scientific dignity combined with a flowing style and occasional dramatic approach."

+ N Y Times p26 My 16 '43 240w

"In an exceptionally friendly and informal manner, Dr. Hart, radiologist, presents a vivid picture of the people and the problems that come to his X-ray laboratory. Case histories, yes, but treated as important human beings who must be helped at all costs."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 My '43 150w

Wis Lib Bul 39:105 Jl '43

HART, MRS MARION (RICE). How to navigate today. 84p il $1.50 Cornell maritime

527 Navigation 43-2593

The essentials of navigation used in the United States navy simply presented. Index.

Booklist 39:313 Ap 1 '43

"Clear and simple text."

+ Library J 168:432 My 15 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:14 Ja '43

"[The] book well fulfils the promise of its subtitle—'a straightforward guide to practical navigation.' " James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p16 Mr 21 '43 270w

HART, MOSS. Winged victory; the Air force play. 201p $2 Random house

812 World war, 1939—Drama 43-17549

A play based on the training and experience of a group of American aviators in the present war.

Booklist 40:141 D 15 '43

"Recommended."

+ Library J 69:72 Ja 15 '44 50w

"This is a moving and exciting story about the men who train to fly our planes. It is more than that, however, for Moss Hart has taken an intimate look at these men and has written a warm human story about them, about their wives and their families. He succeeds in achieving many moods in his drama, some deeply touching, others robustly comic. He handles scenes that stand in danger of mawkishness with a delicacy that makes them truly compelling." H. L.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 12 '43 160w

HARTDEGEN, STEPHEN J. Chronological harmony of the Gospels; using the rev. text of the Challoner-Rheims version of the New Testament. 220p maps $2.50 St Anthony guild

226.1 Bible. New Testament—Gospels—Harmonies 42-21021

"A Roman Catholic harmony of the Four Gospels based on the revised text of the Challoner-Rheims Version. The Fourth Gospel furnishes the general chronological pattern." J Religion

"The single drawback to this carefully and conveniently fashioned chronological harmony of the Gospel text is the smallness of the print. Apart from that, the book is admirably suited for use, either as an aid to study or as spiritual reading."

+ — Cath World 156:252 N '42 110w

Reviewed by John Knox

J Religion 23:75 Ja '43 30w

HARTLEY, LODWICK CHARLES. This is Lorence; a narrative of the Reverend Laurence Sterne. 302p $3 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 Sterne, Laurence 43-9230

An introduction to the life and works of the Reverend Laurence Sterne, author of Tristram Shandy. The main purpose of the book is to stimulate wider reading of Sterne himself. Selected bibliography. Index.

Atlantic 172:131 S '43 70w

"A brief, readable story of Sterne's career. . . I feel that the author hasn't altogether succeeded in sifting sufficiently the mass of details—many of them conjectural—accumulated by earlier biographers of Sterne, with the result that 'This is Lorence' sometimes seems crowded with trifles. . . But his enthusiasm is genuine though by no means uncritical, the atmosphere of Sterne's time is brilliantly suggested, and the key personalities of Sterne's stormy years—his mother, his wife, his daughter, his Eliza—are strongly presented." J. T. Frederick

+ — Book Week p2 Je 6 '43 450w

Booklist 40:12 S '43

"Heartily to be recommended to those readers who have not the time to master Prof. W. L. Cross's definitive two-volume biography of the author of 'Tristram Shandy.' And it will be enjoyed by those who have already read the larger work—perhaps all the more enjoyed because they are acquainted with all the details." S. C. C.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 19 '43 950w

Reviewed by K. A. Porter

Nation 157:72 Jl 17 '43 1750w

"As a child Laurence Sterne once made a long-nosed caricature of himself and labeled it 'This is Lorence.' It makes a temerarious title for a biography, but Mr. Hartley's admirable pages go far to justify it. . . Mr. Hartley's second purpose—to furnish 'the apparatus for making such a subtle and amusing book as "Tristram Shandy" less difficult for the general reader'—is perhaps not completely fulfilled." Edward Wagenknecht

+ — N Y Times p8 Je 20 '43 700w

Reviewed by H. E. Woodbridge

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 650w

"Prospective readers must not allow themselves to be put off by the fancy title and flashy dust jacket of this book. It is not a trashy 'fictionized biography' but a seriously conceived, though entertainingly written, narrative of the leading events in Sterne's life with attention centered upon his baffling character and with intermingled critical and appreciative comments upon his writings." S. C. Chew

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 11 '43 800w

HARVEY, ARTHUR FRANK. High frequency thermionic tubes; with a foreword by E. B. Moullin. 235p $3 Wiley [18s Chapman]

537.53 Vacuum tubes 43-10850

"English book giving details of special thermionic tubes for operation at ultra-high frequencies. Most important half of book is devoted to magnetron. Includes chapter on klystron." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter

Book Week p11 Jl 18 '43 50w

Booklist 40:5 S '43

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:35 Ap '43

Reviewed by H. M. Davis

N Y Times p33 O 17 '43 320w

"There is evidence in the text and in the arrangements of the bibliography that the book was written prior to 1940 and hastily revised before publication. Inasmuch as the emphasis is on recent developments, with few fundamentals, one wonders if it might not have been more satisfactory to have had the original contributions published in periodicals, leaving to a later, less trying time the problem of digesting the literature for a book on the subject." J. B. Fisk

R of Scientific Instruments 14:311 O '43 480w

"Though it tends to be overly academic and lacks practical details, 'High Frequency Thermionic Tubes' is a valuable addition to the literature. . . It is well documented, and it will be easy to refer to the sources for the material which has been omitted." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p19 Jl 11 '43 80w

HARVEY, RAY FORREST, and others. Politics of this war. 328p $2.50; college ed $2 Harper

330.973 U.S.—Economic policy. U.S.—Politics and government. World war, 1939— U.S. 43-2382

Discussions of politics as they affect various phases of wartime society, written by eleven specialists, most of them newspapermen. Contents: The politics of grand strategy, by Russell Barnes; The politics of domestic strategy, by Blair Moody; The politics of conversion, by Peter Edson; The politics of profits, by H. M. Fleming; The politics of big business, by Ralph Hendershot; The politics of small business, by W. J. Enright; The politics of the farmers in wartime, by A. D. Stedman; The politics of labor in wartime, by Wesley McCune; The politics of price-fixing, by F. W. Neal; The politics of the armed services, by R. F. Harvey; The politics of war financing, by H. M. Fleming; The politics of lend-lease, by John MacCormac; The politics of peace, by C. H. Grattan; The politics of politics, by R. F. Harvey. Index.

Reviewed by D. O. Walter

Am Pol Sci R 37:536 Je '43 500w

Reviewed by Josef Hanč

Ann Am Acad 228:108 Jl '43 550w

Reviewed by R. H. Rovere

Book Week p2 Ap 18 '43 160w

Booklist 39:327 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:5 Mr '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:7 Jl '43 20w

New Repub 108:358 Mr 15 '43 150w

Reviewed by John MacCormac

N Y Times p24 My 23 '43 400w

"A useful background book."

+ New Yorker 19:70 Mr 20 '43 60w

"The fourteen chapters of this book supply a valuable antidote to many of the too facile discussions of our war activity to which we have been subjected. The premise of these authors is that politics, like the poor, we always have with us, that politics is inevitable in public action, and that any realistic appraisal of how we are going to win the war and make the peace depends upon political factors. This is a healthy approach. It gives the book toughness of a kind we miss in discussions based upon rigid philosophical or hortatory absolutes." Frank Kingdon

+ Sat R of Lit 26:28 Mr 20 '43 700w

HASKINS, CARYL PARKER. Amazon; the life history of a mighty river. 415p il $4 Doubleday

981 Amazon river. South America—History 43-51195

"This book is intended as a general picture of the valley of the Amazon, mightiest of the earth's watersheds, and of those portions of the South American continent which it drains. . . Fully half of the book is devoted to a history of the six countries drained by Amazon waters—Brazil, Venezuela, Colombia, Ecuador, Peru, and Bolivia—and of their relationships to one another and to the hemisphere at large." (Pref) Index.

HASKINS, C. P.—Continued

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p2 Ag 8 '43 300w

Booklist 39:445 Jl 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:168 O '43 20w

"Recommended for public and college libraries where more such material is needed." Isabel Douglas
+ Library J 68:208 Mr 1 '43 90w

"It is no pleasure to fall upon Haskins's thrust-forth neck, for it must take a great deal of courage and an appalling amount of research to write a book of this kind, and so valuable a book. It is simply that the packaging is bad. It should not be called 'The Amazon' and it should not purport to be the life history of a river." Desmond Holdridge
+ — N Y Times p22 Je 13 '43 900w

"The book is stronger on details than on interpretation; it does not yield much that is new to the understanding of the people who inhabit this great area. Its closing discussion of recent events in inter-American relations is on the official side, quite respectable, but not illuminating." Hubert Herring
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:7 Je 12 '43 110w

"This fat, well written and timely volume represents four years of writing and many times that of study on the part of its scientist-author. Reviewing it, however, is a curiously baffling job. While excellent in itself, the book has little connection with its title. By and large, it is not a book about the Amazon, and as 'The Life History of a Mighty River' it can only be condemned." E. P. Hanson
+ — Weekly Book Review p5 Je 13 '43 1600w

Wis Lib Bul 39:84 Je '43

"The author's factual foundation and interpretative approach are, in the main, sound. The writing, especially in the early chapters, is vivid, but the reader occasionally gets lost in the mass of detail about tributaries, flora, and other matters. Despite its undoubted good points, 'The Amazon' is not a definitive study." R. H. Fitzgibbon
+ — Yale R n s 33:172 autumn '43 170w

HASTY, JOHN EUGENE. Done with mirrors; admissions of a free-lance writer; foreword by Sheila Barrett. 337p $2.50 Washburn

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-2651

A free-lance writer discusses, with plenty of anecdote, his own adventures in the publicity field. Press agency and promotion are considered, but radio work—how documentary films are made, how broadcasts are prepared, and rules for keeping peace with the censors—receives most attention.

Sat R of Lit 26:10 F 6 '43 280w

"Mr. Hasty, no cloistered artist, declines to take himself or his vocation too seriously. His book is amusing, and he passes along the knowledge he has acquired the hard way with gusto." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p14 F 14 '43 400w

HATCH, ALDEN. Bridle-wise; il. by Diana Thorne and A. G. Peck. 156p $2 Messner 42-23598

Ken Langdon had a paralyzed leg, but it did not keep him from joining in many sports, even baseball. Riding, however, was Ken's favorite sport, and his proudest accomplishment was his ability to ride his own pony and care for it. On a summer camping trip in Maine, Ken's knowledge of riding, plus his sheer determination, saved a life and made him a hero. For older boys.

"Seems to have definite moral in view and should inspire other handicapped children; also should be enjoyed by lovers of horses and other ungraded boys needing good print and not too difficult reading." Alice Martin
+ Library J 67:1069 D 1 '42 90w

"This is a good story of horses and adventure for 8 to 11 year old readers, but its chief value lies in the tonic treatment of the handicapped child's problems of entering into a world of activity and sport without self-consciousness or fear, and since the author himself has solved a problem like Ken's, doing all the things and more that Ken could do, the boy's achievements carry a ring of true conviction and a challenge." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p28 Ja 24 '43 260w

HATCH, ALDEN. Glenn Curtiss; pioneer of naval aviation. 294p il $2.50 Messner

B or 92 Curtiss, Glenn Hammond 42-50534

Biography of the American inventor and pioneer in naval aviation, Glenn Curtiss. Among his inventions are the aileron, without which no plane can fly; the tricycle landing gear, and the V8 water-cooled motor. He was the first to fly from and land on water, he won the first airplane race in history, and won the Gordon Bennett cup for America. Contains a chronology of the life of Glenn Curtiss, a list of his inventions, bibliography, historic dates in the progress of naval aviation, and index. For older boys and men.

Booklist 39:297 Mr 15 '43

"Lively, straightforward in style, keeping a neat balance between hero-worship and plain statistics, this life of Curtiss qualifies as a book for older boys, because boys generally know more than they are credited with knowing about the fascinating subject of aviation. It is as much a man's book as one for the 'teens; it will stand the stern test of being read by men who lived through those times it describes. . . In short, the book will be like Old Home Week to more than one father, who will buy it to give his son and get a jolly good read before he lets it go." M. L. Becker
+ Books p6 Ja 3 '43 350w

"This is the story of Glenn Curtiss among his friends and associates as well as of a vital period in the history of aviation. It is a story well worth the telling, a story of faith in a vision, unfaltering courage and determination to succeed by the power of his creative mind. The list of his inventions given by Mr. Hatch is an impressive one. It is to be regretted that the reproductions from old photographs are not better." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:105 Mr '43 100w

"Young readers will be thrilled by the daring flights. Recommended for high schools." M. L. Pappas
+ Library J 68:131 F 1 '43 130w

New Yorker 19:72 My 29 '43 10w

Wis Lib Bul 39:32 F '43

HATCH, ERIC. Words and music. 294p $2 Farrar 43-1292

Two short novels, each describing the New York adventures of a girl from the country. One heroine wants to be a singer; the other is determined to be an actress. Hard times and poor jobs hamper both of them, but eventually each has some small measure of success in her chosen field.

"Two long novelettes, or maybe they are two short novels, make their appearance in this Eric Hatch book. They are both a bit on the Cinderella side, polished off in the light prose which Mr. Hatch has constantly on tap, and it wouldn't be astonishing to find them turning up in due season as screen drama." Lisle Bell
Books p11 F 7 '43 200w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p12 Ja 31 '43 200w

HATHAWAY, MRS KATHARINE (BUTLER). Little locksmith. 237p $2.50 Coward-McCann
B or 92 43-51295

At the age of five the author was stricken with a tubercular disease of the spine and spent the next ten years of her life strapped to a hard bed. Her autobiography begins with those happy years when she created a life for herself in which she was the center of an adoring family. At fifteen she was pronounced cured, but she made a most shattering discovery—she was deformed, and no bigger than a child of ten. In beautiful, sensitive chapters she describes her adjustment to her new life, her courage as she faced years which she thought held no love. With the purchase and restoring of an old house in Maine a new chapter of her life was opened, which closed only with her death in 1942.

"Like Amiel's Journal, her book is a beautifully precise instrument with which to compare and measure human thought and aspiration. And how refreshing it is to turn away from the immensities of a world out of joint and to feel oneself gradually absorbed in this eager struggle of an individual to find her place in a not always compassionate universe. Something of Emily Dickinson walks again in this prose with its precision, its femininity, and its unimpeachable color of New England." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 172:123 N '43 480w

"This would be a fine and valuable book if only for its simple and compelling style, its epigrammatic and romantic quality, its realistic mysticalness—but the facts of the author's life make it unique and important. . . Here, in this book, is a testament to the human spirit unbound. Here is a story, told with extremely personal detail, which is without the slightest tinge of bitterness or self-pity." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p1 O 24 '43 1000w
Booklist 40:77 N 1 '43

"This autobiographical sketch is written with a rather unusual charm and freshness and a perceptiveness not often found in contemporary writing." N. E. Monroe
+ Cath World 158:507 F '44 270w

"The book left behind her by Katharine Butler Hathaway is the analysis of a brilliant mind in a dwarfed body; a mind which could probe itself with the finest of needles and record its findings in prose so sensitive that it is a cobweb of delicate yet clear design—an intellectual's map of the cripple's battlefront area." E. V. R. Wyatt
+ Commonweal 39:50 O 29 '43 550w

"As beautiful a piece of prose writing as has been my pleasure to read in some time, this moving little tale of quiet courage and sensitive perception should find extremely responsive if small audience." E. P. Potter
+ Library J 68:767 O 1 '43 100w

"Katharine Hathaway mentions Walter de la Mare twice in 'The Little Locksmith,' but without making it clear whether she ever read 'Memoirs of a Midget' or not. She did read Marie Bashkirtseff's journal. . . This posthumous autobiography comes so fresh out of life, and falls so clear of established classifications, that the only way the reviewer can give the prospective reader a taste of its quality is thus to offer some suggestion of the company in which it must take its place. If these names which I have written here mean something to you, then this is your book. You must not miss it: indeed you will not be able to do so, for it will be with us for some time, and for you it will remain unescapable." Edward Wagenknecht
+ N Y Times p4 O 24 '43 900w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:89 O 30 '43 400w

Reviewed by Ivy Litvinoff
+ Weekly Book Review p5 O 24 '43 950w
Wis Lib Bul 40:8 Ja '44

Reviewed by C. C. Fry
Yale R n s 33:362 winter '44 1050w

HAUCK, MRS LOUISE (PLATT) (PETER ASH, LOUISE LANDON, pseuds). Cary Fordyce. 241p $2 Dodd 43-10500

Story of two sisters, living in a Midwestern city. When they both fell in love with the same man, it was the older and more dependable sister who lost out. But war work and another man mended Cary's heartbreak. The time is the present.

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p14 Ag 15 '43 230w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 8 '43 180w

HAUCK, MRS LOUISE (PLATT) (PETER ASH, LOUISE LANDON, pseuds). Evergreen house. 282p $2 Dodd 43-3658

Romantic story of Southern hospitality and the present war. Cynthia and a frail old grandmother were all the Barshows left, and they insisted on keeping open house for the soldiers and flyers stationed near their Kansas home. It worked very well, rationing and all, until two lovely cousins arrived, intending to reap part of Cynthia's harvest. The results were complicated and sometimes hectic for poor Cynthia.

Booklist 39:389 Je 1 '43

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p14 Ap 11 '43 240w

"Gay and sympathetically handled." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p16 Mr 14 '43 200w

HAUGLAND, VERN. Letter from New Guinea. 148p $1.50 Farrar
940.542 New Guinea—Description and travel. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-6881

Vern Haugland, Associated press correspondent, was a passenger on an army bomber when the airplane met with an accident over the jungles of New Guinea. This book contains his story, based on a brief diary, of the seven weeks he wandered thru the forests and over the mountains until he finally reached a native village.

"As a record of a sudden conversion to Faith it is remarkably good of its kind. And as a record of the human mind facing a life-and-death situation it is wonderful; an utterly frank, almost dispassionate account, full of deep insight and awareness. If for nothing else, the book would be worth reading for the 12-page transcription of Haugland's hospital delirium, an entire disordered cosmos he invented with everything from a new Book of Revelations to newsreels in the sky." S. E. Hyman
+ Book Week p2 Ag 8 '43 330w
Booklist 39:443 Jl 1 '43

"The little book gives an intimate glimpse into the life of the Papuans and data which no thorough reporter like Vern Haugland could overlook, even though he had not eaten real food for 32 days." M. W. B.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 17 '43 350w

"Young people as well as adults will read. Heartily recommended for purchase." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 68:473 Je 1 '43 60w

Reviewed by J. W. Vandercook
N Y Times p4 Je 13 '43 1050w

"Written with a simple, awkward sincerity, plus a good bit of evangelizing."
+ New Yorker 19:80 Je 19 '43 50w

"Tales of endurance have become, as the author says himself, almost a commonplace now that so much of humanity has had to be superhuman to survive. With a reasonable

HAUGLAND, VERN—Continued
mixture of pride and humility the author explains his survival as a miracle of God. . . This 'Letter From New Guinea,' shot through with a certain naivete which is essentially American, strips the reserve from the author's soul to say quite simply to those who do not know it: 'We are not alone.' " Virgilia Sapieha
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Je 13 '43 1050w

HAUSMANN, ERICH. Elements of electricity. 260p il $1.24 Van Nostrand
537 Electricity 43-3127

"This book was written to meet the requirements of the Pre-Induction Training Course designated as Fundamentals of Electricity. . . The course covers the fundamentals of electricity at the first level and its purpose is to equip men intending to enter military service with a sound background for further specialized work. The book presumes no previous knowledge of electricity and requires only some facility with arithmetic and the rudimentary steps of algebra." Pref.

Booklist 39:429 Je 15 '43
Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 30w
School & Society 57:224 F 20 '43 70w

HAVEN, CHARLES TOWER. Comprehensive small arms manual; for state guards, regular police departments, auxiliary police departments, coast guard auxiliaries, plant guards and civilians. 159p il $1.50 Morrow
623.44 Firearms 43-1009

"With the thought that a general knowledge of all available small arms, their effectiveness and use, and an understanding of methods of training in the proper utilization of them may help to carry out the aims of State Guard and other local defense organizations, this manual has been written. It is largely composed of material used by the author in lectures to State Guard units." (Pref) Bibliography.

Booklist 39:247 F 15 '43
Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:10 Ja '43
Springf'd Republican p6 Je 1 '43 220w
Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p14 My 30 '43 120w

HAWES, ELIZABETH. Why women cry; or Wenches with wrenches. 221p $2.50 Reynal
396 Woman—Employment. World war, 1939 —Women's work 43-17482

The author of Fashion is Spinach (Book Review Digest, 1938) who gave up her career as a dress designer and took up work in an airplane-engine plant, here tackles the problem of domestic work in a future and probably servantless world. Her ideas for reducing the problems of working women and housewives, or combinations of the two, are interspersed with pungent definitions of different types of women, from gentlewomen and clubwomen to she-wolves and common women.

"It's about women—for women. And every man ought to read it. It's so typically feminine you'll want to tear your hair, vote, or shed a tear. . . You wind up convinced that, though she often goes at things feet first or sideways, Liz Hawes comes out at the end with solid thinking, facts and important ideas. It's an interesting, absorbing, irritating book." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p1 N 28 '43 1200w
Booklist 40:177 Ja 15 '44
Reviewed by Gene Dickson
New Repub 109:892 D 20 '43 480w

"Like a good many people who can state a problem vividly, Miss Hawes is not quite so good at solving it. . . But she has stated the situation trenchantly—and with such wit that its true seriousness may not be visible to the naked eye. She writes well, and her touch is light. The trouble is that she will probably be read with enjoyment by a great many men whose wives are out in the kitchen washing the dishes." Jane Cobb
+ N Y Times p5 D 5 '43 550w

"A readable, straight-talking, warm-hearted book, which barges rather naïvely into some very complicated problems, but perhaps that's the way to get things done."
+ New Yorker 19:108 N 27 '43 110w

"It is a swift book, written with a good, lusty impatience. . . It is a curious thing that only when Miss Hawes sees fit to go sprightly does the reader experience a sensation as of quicksand rising about his ankles. When Miss Hawes is serious and dedicated and passionate, she is a fine writer, and what is perhaps more important, a stimulating one." Dorothy Parker
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 D 11 '43 430w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 19 '43 850w
Reviewed by Iris Barry
Weekly Book Review p4 N 28 '43 950w

HAWKINS, DEAN. Walls of silence. 219p $2 Doubleday
43-17347

Detective story.

"The Southern atmosphere in this book is too thick for comfort." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p44 N 21 '43 120w
"Interesting."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 N 27 '43 30w

"Dean Hawkins's plot may give you a slight buzzing in the ears until you get the major premises down pat. The rest should soothe customers who go in for magnolias, mocking birds, spoon-bread, plenty of violent death and surprises." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p32 N 21 '43 240w

HAWKINS, JAMES HAROLD. Your house; its upkeep and rejuvenation; drawings by Effa Brown and the author. 224p $2.50 Barrows
643.7 Dwellings. Repairing 43-1966

Practical handbook on the right way to make your own repairs on your house. Drawings accompany each chapter. Partial contents: Foundations, footings, waterproofing, drainage, dry wells; Basement, floors, supports, sills, walls, bridging, partitions, painting; Exterior walls, siding, shingles, stucco, veneer, composition, re-siding; Interior, floors, re-flooring, walls, windows, doors, screens, glazing; Plumbing, system, traps, vents, stack, fixtures, draining, valves, faucets; Painting, outside, inside, mixing, ready-mixed, brushes, walls, details; Kitchen, arrangement, rejuvenation, counters, capacity, cupboards, cabinets; Insulation, loose fill, board, batts, application, precautions, values. List of tools for home repairs. Index.

+ Book Week p3 Ap 25 '43 220w
Booklist 39:349 My 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja '43

"The author has been active in the home building field for 25 years. His book will be a useful reference in home management, housing, or household physics courses. It fails in spots to give detailed reasons for firmly stated rules or facts. Timeliness of material and clarity of illustrations entitle it to consideration." Elizabeth Sweeney
+ — J Home Econ 35:521 O '43 200w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:24 Ap '43
Weekly Book Review p14 F 21 '43 150w

HAWKINS, JOHN, and HAWKINS, WARD. Pilebuck. 319p $2.50 Dutton
43-5576

Sam Gallagher, formerly a newspaper correspondent, is assigned by the F.B.I. to a job ferreting out a gang of saboteurs in a huge shipbuilding plant. Sam is eventually successful but not before he has encountered adventures and even romance by the way.

"The story is melodrama, but the writing is swift, tough, knowledgeable."
+ — Atlantic 172:129 Jl '43 90w

"Here is authentic, firsthand shipyard lore, with a fine story built around sabotage, love, intrigue and other exciting elements." Marion Neville
+ Book Week p5 Je 13 '43 110w
Booklist 39:446 Jl 1 '43

"Mystery angle well sustained. Love story involves amusing, though improbable situation. Good 'man's story.' Recommended." G. W. Hill
+ Library J 68:248 Mr 15 '43 70w

"The style runs to the ultra masculine: neck muscles stand out like cords pretty frequently and people go white around the mouth—with pain, rage or exhaustion—surprisingly often. Then, too, there is the matter of 'shining' as a noun. An automatic is 'a black shining' and something else is 'a wicked shining.' Not to ex-correspondents—or pilebucks, either." C. B. Palmer
N Y Times p10 Je 20 '43 800w

"This book consists of one part, 'popular novel,' and one part, 'serious novel.' It appeared in The Saturday Evening Post under the title 'The Saboteurs'; this popular-serious piece of writing reminds me of the formula used by a slick-magazine writer friend of mine who also has done 'serious novels': Major characters, phoney, Minor characters and background, real. . . It must be said that the 'popular' mystery part of this book is above average." Benjamin Appel
Sat R of Lit 26:39 Je 19 '43 500w

"Those who enjoy a story with plenty of action should find much to their liking this one about the rough and ready toilers of the shipyards."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 30 '43 330w

"Sam Gallagher is busy chasing saboteurs who are in the pay of Hitler, and he does a good job of this, but in his philosophical discussions with Jill he seems to rank unionism as a menace hardly less potent than actual treason. . . Verily, it hath been said that a form of totalitarianism might come to this country waving the stars and stripes in both hands." Milton Hindus
Weekly Book Review p10 My 30 '43 800w

HAWKINS, QUAIL. A puppy for keeps; il. by Kurt Wiese. [28p] $1 Holiday
43-51306

A lonely little boy, who longs for a puppy as a pet, finds a mother dog and several puppies in a gopher hole, and digs them out in time to save them from a flood. When the owner comes to claim his dog he gives the small boy a "puppy for keeps." For children four to seven.

"'A Puppy for Keeps' makes excellent supplementary reading for children just learning to read. It is often difficult to find a book with a fair amount of text and a real story for that age." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p12 N 14 '43 90w
Booklist 40:82 N 1 '43
Cath World 158:315 D '43 40w

Reviewed by E. G. Mullan
Library J 68:963 N 15 '43 80w

"This is really an aid and incentive to fluency in a newly acquired ability to read; with large type, short and slightly rhythmic sentences and drawings merry and appealing, a story is told for four-to-seven." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 O 17 '43 250w

HAWTHORNE, HILDEGARDE (MRS J. M. OSKISON). California's missions; their romance and beauty; il. by E. H. Suydam. 237p $5 Appleton-Century
979.4 California—Missions 43-1066

After an introductory chapter giving the historical background of the California missions, the author takes up in turn each of twenty missions, describing their rise and fall. Illustrated with wash drawings by the late E. H. Suydam. Index.

"Hildegarde Hawthorne's story of the old missions of California is a book you'll want if you have the slightest interest in missions, or if you are going to California this summer . . . or wish you could. It is both an artistic, systematic study and first-rate adventure in spite of the uncompromising, matter-of-fact title, 'California's Missions.'" J. D.
+ Book Week p6 My 23 '43 400w
Booklist 39:329 Ap 15 '43

"In this beautiful volume Nathaniel Hawthorne's granddaughter, who is skilled and experienced in writing of charming places and things, makes no serious contribution to the history of the missions, though she summarizes the main facts about the project as a whole in an excellent opening chapter and then tells the story of each individual mission. The value of her work is that, in addition to this, as the title promises, she gives the reader a sense of the 'romance and beauty' of these remarkable buildings, together with accurate descriptions of their architecture."
+ Christian Century 60:394 Mr 31 '43 230w

"Much of the pleasure in 'California's Missions' is provided by the light wash drawings. They add materially to the text. One serious omission is an end paper or frontispiece map which would have indicated the progress of the Padres up the Coast from San Diego de Alcala. . . The treatment throughout indicates that the granddaughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne understands completely the objectives of the Padres who founded California. Her volume makes an excellent gift book."
+ Commonweal 37:592 Ap 2 '43 650w

"Any one minded to visit the missions could have no better guidebook—nor any, in the knowledge of the present reviewer, half so good. Persons unable to go and see for themselves may be commended to the half-hundred full-page pencil drawings with which E. H. Suydam has illustrated the text. . . Hildegarde Hawthorne writes with keen appreciation and wonder that churches such as San Luis Rey or Santa Barbara or Carmel should have been conceived at all in the circumstances, let alone brought to gracious and dignified realization." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p18 Ap 11 '43 440w

Reviewed by E. De Golyer
Sat R of Lit 26:31 Je 19 '43 650w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
Weekly Book Review p15 Je 27 '43 600w
Wis Lib Bul 39:53 Ap '43

HAWTHORNE, HILDEGARDE (MRS J. M. OSKISON). Matthew Fontaine Maury; trail maker of the seas; decorations by Grace E. James. 226p $2.25 Longmans
B or 92 Maury, Matthew Fontaine 43-16995

Biography of an American naval officer, most of whose life was devoted to ocean navigation. Among his other activities he was the instigator of the weather bureau, was interested in the submarine, was the first to map the ocean highways, and invented the first electric torpedo.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p6 Ja 13 '44 240w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:593 N 20 '43 10w

"Hildegarde Hawthorne writes a boy's story of Maury's achievements with warm enthusiasm. She fails, though, to make the most of the vivid background of Maury's boyhood in Tennessee and his days as a midshipman. Vastly more research is needed to color his panoramic life. The book suffers through leaning too heavily on the stilted dialogue of an early biography of Maury written by a daughter." R. E. Berry
+ — N Y Times p10 Ja 2 '44 300w

HAWTHORNE, HILDEGARDE—Continued

"Here is the story of a great and fearless man whose love of country, home and family were held above any personal ambition. . . Today the navy remembers gratefully this great scientist whose important contributions benefit navigation and guard the safety of travelers at sea." M. K. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 19 '43 110w

HAWTHORNE, HILDEGARDE (MRS J. M. OSKISON). Ox-team miracle; the story of Alexander Majors; decorations by James MacDonald. 236p $2 Longmans

B or 92 Majors, Alexander. West—History 42-23536

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p6 S 9 '43 100w

"The book is easy reading and unfolds the life story of Alexander Majors skilfully and simply enough to be good reading for junior high school pupils and the slow readers in senior high school American history classes. The book would especially enrich the study of transportation in these classes. Its chief lack is a rather complete neglect of any discussion or description of the political life and struggles of the time. Its emphasis is on the economic and social life." R. H. McFeely

+ Social Studies 34:95 F '43 450w

"Told 'like a novel' and moves as fast as one, but it stands the tests of a high-school library as historical reference." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 28 '43 450w

Wis Lib Bul 39:43 Mr '43

HAY, IAN, pseud. See Beith, J. H.

HAYCOX, ERNEST. Action by night. 286p $2 Little 43-164

Western story.

Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43

"As a writer of Western novels Ernest Haycox has sometimes shown exceptional ability. But he is a curiously uneven writer and occasionally drops far below his best. This tale cannot hold a candle to some of his finer achievements, such as 'Border Trumpet' and 'Trail Town.' It is none too well organized. Its characterization is not sharp or clear. It shows evidence of having been written too hastily, and at points even carelessly." G. W. Harris

N Y Times p27 Ja 24 '43 220w

HAYCOX, ERNEST. The wild bunch. 245p $2 Little 43-16229

Western story.

Booklist 40:166 Ja 1 '44

Christian Century 60:1305 N 10 '43 10w

"'The Wild Bunch' proves again Haycox's right to foremost rank among today's novelists who take the West for their background. Don't miss it." Baron Ireland

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 220w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p46 N 14 '43 90w

HAYDEN, SHERMAN STRONG. International protection of wild life; an examination of treaties and other agreements for the preservation of birds and mammals. 246p $3 Columbia univ. press

799 Wild life, Conservation of 42-18543

History of the attempts to obtain international cooperation for the preservation of bird and mammal life. The book is divided into three main divisions: Preservation of natural communities; Protection of birds; Conservation of marine mammals. Contains graphs, a bibliography, and index.

Reviewed by W. J. Ronan
Am Pol Sci R 36:789 Ag '42 340w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:363 Ja '43 10w

"Mr. Hayden's book is something more than a competent chronology of ideas and events. It is a spirited and colorful history of an enterprise all but unknown to the public. Although the book was completed before the war, it will be an admirable factual springboard for postwar efforts to untangle wildlife conservation." Aldo Leopold

+ Geog R 33:340 Ap '43 850w

Reviewed by A. Wetmore
Social Studies 34:333 N '43 1300w

Reviewed by Leonard Wing
Yale Law J 52:696 Je '43 700w

HAYDN, HIRAM COLLINS. By nature free. 427p $2.75 Bobbs

43-4642

Story of a few months in the life of Philip Blair, a middle-class American living in a middle-class suburb of Cleveland. Philip has a job but after hours he works on a book intended as a serious study of man's philosophical yearnings. Philip's preoccupation has nearly estranged him from his wife but a succession of events—the return of a wandering brother, the illness and death of his father—gradually bring him to full knowledge of himself.

"I suppose it must be noted that 'By Nature Free' is a first novel. That observation, however, is offered for its factual value and with no implication of condescension. The book has its faults, to be sure. In spots the plot, far from original to begin with, runs to the melodramatic; in other places there is a surplus of sentiment or didacticism. In a word, Haydn occasionally needs restraint. But so, for that matter, do some established novelists. On the whole, his is a mature piece of work with important implications for the present. It deserves a goodly number of readers." Paul Angle

+ Book Week p3 My 2 '43 500w

Booklist 39:368 My 15 '43

Cath World 157:334 Je '43 180w

Reviewed by L. E. Cannon
Christian Century 60:1401 D 1 '43 330w

"I think it is Mr. Haydn's mistaken notion of the function of the novel, his conception of fiction as preachment or warning and his guilty feeling that his pen should be at the immediate service of society, that makes the sum of 'By Nature Free' so manifestly inferior to any of its parts and reduces the end of his book to absurdity. For instance, subordinating his truly novelistic talents to a non-novelistic purpose, Mr. Haydn, before he is through, has washed away all his main characters in political symbolism, a sin against taste that is especially to be regretted in the case of Dad, whose portrait is more than half a really distinguished job." Diana Trilling

+ — Nation 156:570 Ap 17 '43 1100w

"'By Nature Free' is an exciting novel. Philip Blair, like most young idealists, has a tough time growing up. The story of how he manages it and where he comes out will strike a highly personal chord in the minds of most Americans who grew up in anything approximating his generation." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p14 Ap 4 '43 650w

"Haydn presents his characters with warmth and insight and brings an intelligent and literate contemplation to the problems of freedom and faith which confront us all today."

+ New Yorker 19:71 Mr 27 '43 80w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 11 '43 550w

"Mr. Haydn's capacity for commanding a vigorous prose style, and for keeping his characters in motion, illuminates a too familiar plot, and makes less intrusive the constant interjection of political argument. His deep sincerity and his passionate belief in Philip, who has all the reality of an autobiographical hero, give the novel an interest that compensates for its more obvious faults, and makes it readable and sometimes stimulating." Irwin Stark

+ — Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 4 '43 650w

HAYES, DORSHA. Mrs Heaton's daughter. (Alliance bk) 399p $2.75 Ziff-Davis 43-17231

Psychological study of a selfish woman's attempt to compensate for her own frustration by living her daughter's life for her. The mother sinks to woeful depths of degradation, but the daughter remains loyal until the love of a fine young man saves the girl from her entanglement. The background of a large part of the book is Broadway and its theatrical and stage life.

"Presented with skill, imagination and psychological insight into a psychopathic mind. . . The portrayal of the mother as the dominating influence in the character formation and growth of the girl is masterfully done, and the pace of the writing is quick. The plot, though, is sometimes overdramatized." Emily Schossberger

+ — Book Week p4 N 7 '43 600w

"The story is a theatrical one, sincerely and honestly told, but with no distinction of style or great depth of character drawing. The tussle between Nick and Mrs. Heaton over Diana's chance to be herself, and not merely Mrs. Heaton's daughter, is vital enough to make the story exasperating and absorbing." Beatrice Sherman

+ — N Y Times p46 D 5 '43 550w

"The story is perhaps too long; the humiliations piled upon Diana may be too overwhelming; the denouement may smack of melodrama. It can be conceded that, in the hands of a Francis Iles for instance, the horror might be more subtly unfolded and with more condensation. But Miss Hayes's people are vividly alive; we believe in them and suffer with them as the situations develop with mounting intensity. This means story-telling of a high order and this reviewer will watch for Miss Hayes's next." M. S. Ulrich

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:24 N 6 '43 700w

"Herself a dancer, the author provides her novel with a vivid and on the whole an authentic theatre background."

+ Theatre Arts 28:128 F '44 50w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p29 N 7 '43 300w

HAYES, MRS FLORENCE (SOOY). Hosh-ki, the Navajo; il. by Charlotte Anna Chase. 250p $2 Random house 43-51240

Story of a Navajo boy who was sent to a white man's school, where he went thru a hard period learning to apply white ways to Indian problems. For fifth thru seventh grades.

Booklist 40:19 S '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

"Hosh-ki and his friends are very much alive in this fine book and their country is well described." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:321 S '43 100w

"Plot slow in getting started, but quiet humor and understanding of Navajo ways and thought make up for this. Definitely not an adventure story. Will be welcomed as partner of Ann Nolan Clark's Little Navajo Bluebird." Gweneira Williams

+ Library J 68:671 S 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart

Library J 68:823 O 15 '43 60w

"With a humor which never sacrifices understanding or sympathy to effect Mrs. Hayes tells the story of the little Navajo's gradual adjustment to the ways of the white man. The Indians' own ways and thought are so well portrayed that 9-to-12-year-old readers will fully grasp Hosh-ki's first fear and bewilderment while they will learn, too, much about a life which has its own dignity. They will even find that the Indians have a very good time of it among themselves and are not above practical jokes and family teasing. Charlotte Anna Chase's pictures have strength and character." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p9 S 5 '43 400w

New Yorker 19:124 D 4 '43 50w

HAYES, MARGARET LOUISE. Study of the classroom disturbances of eighth grade boys and girls. 139p $1.85 Teachers college

136.7354 Child study. Children—Management. Teachers 43-8813

"A Ph.D. dissertation which investigates the meaning of disturbing behavior to the child himself and the relationship of this behavior to various factors in teacher and child personality. It should be of value to those interested in understanding the child as a means toward guiding his development, and should aid the teacher in establishing a classroom situation favorable to the best growth of children." School & Society

"The study fails to touch the heart of the problem of pupil behavior—the underlying causes of disturbing actions. It makes no attempt to reveal the significance of behavior from the child's point of view. Since it makes no claim to do this it is still a valid study." T. H. Allen

El School J 44:117 O '43 650w

School & Society 57:448 Ap 17 '43 70w

HAYMAN, ARTHUR INGRAM, and PREECE, HAROLD. Lighting up Liberia. 279p il $2.50 Creative age

916.66 Liberia 43-1900

A survey of present day political and economic conditions in Liberia. Mr Hayman is an American engineer who has lived in the country for several years.

Booklist 39:274 Mr 1 '43

Reviewed by Polly Brown

Boston Globe p19 F 10 '43 250w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:16 Jl '43 20w

Nation 157:191 Ag 14 '43 100w

Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 F '43 210w

"A shocking, though obviously well informed book." Arna Bontemps

+ Weekly Book Review p14 F 21 '43 700w

Wis Lib Bul 39:53 Ap '43

HAYNES, WILLIAMS. Chemical front. 264p il $3 Knopf

660 Chemical warfare. Chemistry, Technical 43-16617

"The part chemical munitions [are] playing in this technical war with accounts of men who are making discoveries and using them. Story of the chemists and chemical industries for the layman." Library J

"Interesting factual information about the influence of chemical production upon the war. . . It is the best book of the past several months on popular technology." L. E. Grinter

+ Book Week p10 N 28 '43 550w

Booklist 40:140 D 15 '43

Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 30w

"Many readers today will want to know what high explosives are and how they were developed. . . This potential audience will find in Haynes' pages about all that they will demand, for he ranges over the whole field of chemistry as it is applied at present. His accounts of laboratory work and celebrities are vivid, and in presenting them he properly delves in the history of industrial and organic chemistry." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ N Y Times p4 O 31 '43 450w

"Though the treatment is necessarily sketchy and much in the manner of Paul de Kruif it is adequate for the general reader who wants his science as palatable as a chocolate sundae.

HAYNES, WILLIAMS—Continued
Haynes knows how to present his facts skilfully and arrestingly, so that there is not a single tiresome line in what he has written. For the general reader who wants a good straightforward account of the chemical war effort this can be commended." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:41 D 11 '43 310w

HAYNES, WILLIAMS. Stone that burns; the story of the American sulphur industry. 345p il $3.75 Van Nostrand

338.2 Sulfur industry 42-19530

Outline of the American sulphur industry, which incorporates in the telling: the constant improvement of mining technique; the battle of the new American industry with the Sicilian monopoly; the efforts of the American mining engineers to supply the American government with sulphur during the first World war; the stories of various American plants; and the story of Herman Frasch, inventor of the Frasch process. Index.

"The latter part of the book, dealing with the period of the first world war and thereafter, is particularly valuable from an historical point of view. . . This book is more than a monograph on a special chapter of chemical engineering. The story it tells illustrates in a striking way the functioning of our economic system based on the profit motive. Naïve persons are often impressed with the philosophical weakness of this motive and it is true that as society develops this motive requires control. However, the particularized information and factual account of the development of the sulfur industry as given in this book cannot but impress the thoughtful reader with the ceaseless, multifarious, indomitable and ultimately successful operation of the profit motive." A. B. Lamb

+ Am Chem Soc J 64:2521 O '42 320w

"Chemical industry's foremost historian has given us another highly readable and intensely interesting story of a great American industry. . . There are, unfortunately, a few minor technical errors. . . But these are indeed slight blemishes on an otherwise nearly perfect work, and they can readily be corrected in the next edition." S. D. Kirkpatrick

+ — Chem & Met Eng 50:203 F '43 300w

"It is unfortunate that the book is somewhat marred by the repetitive histories of the various mining companies and by an occasional overabundance of technical detail. Mr. Haynes, apparently an expert himself, sometimes forgets the lay reader and buries him under heaps of esoteric data." E. J. Cronin

Commonweal 36:451 Ag 28 '42 280w

"The author has made a worthy contribution to chemical literature in his interesting portrayal of the American sulfur industry." S. C. Lind

+ J Phys Chem 46:1012 N '42 150w

HAYS, HOFFMAN REYNOLDS. Stranger on the highway. 275p $2.50 Little

43-6285

A murder story laid in a small mid-western town, long fallen into decay.

"A strange, morbid story of the unhappy sordid, warped people who make up the half dozen families of Stubblestone, a cancerous outgrowth on the highway, where no one ever stops unless he has to; a fascinating mixture of perverted psychology, mystery, pathos and love; that is the narrative that H. R. Hays spins with skill and understanding." Patricia Smith

Book Week p6 My 30 '43 430w

Booklist 39:388 Je 1 '43

"Mr. Hays has a conscience. He is able to appreciate that a collection of grotesque sufferers is not in itself worth $2.50 and he wants to give the reader his money's worth. So he has spun his psychology and gloom expertly over the bones of a perfectly good detective story." Jane Cobb

+ — N Y Times p18 My 16 '43 500w

"Mr. Hays' plot is only fair, but 'Stranger on the Highway' depends for its effect on atmosphere rather than story. This unpretentious shocker is one of the bitterest novels I have ever read about the kind of isolated citizens who hate the city, the outsider, with all the 'ferocity of the commonplace,' in the author's phrase. Mr. Hays' people are as ugly as Mr. Faulkner's and considerably easier to understand. . . This novel is a mere experiment. I shall watch for Mr. Hays' next with some avidity." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 19:82 My 8 '43 300w

"Much of 'Stranger On the Highway' is written from the dramatist's point of view rather than the novelist's and could easily be transferred to a play script. The text reeks of Eugene O'Neill of the 'Diff'rent' period, and although frequently selfconscious in its barnyard realism, at the same time the novel occasionally possesses a similar compulsion and dramatic fervor." L. S. Munn

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 390w

"The small decayed settlement of Stubblestone is the scene and in a sense the villain of the piece. Its portrait is drawn with a grim realism that makes the most somber of 'depression' novels or W. P. A. paintings seem comparatively jocund. A touch more, and we should be across the borders of realism into the acrid satire of a native Cold Comfort Farm." Iris Barry

Weekly Book Review p11 My 9 '43 600w

HAYS, HOFFMAN REYNOLDS, ed. 12 Spanish American poets; an anthology. 336p $3.50 Yale univ. press

861.08 Spanish-American poetry—Collections A43-2754

Contains poems (in the original and in English translation) by twelve Spanish American poets: Ramon Lopez Velarde (Mexico); Luis Carlos Lopez (De Escuariza) (Colombia); Vicente Huidobro (Chile); Eugenio Florit (Cuba); Jorge Luis Borges (Argentina); Jorge Carrera Andrade (Ecuador); Jose Gorostiza (Mexico); Pablo De Rokha (Carlos Díaz Loyola) (Chile); Nicolas Guillen (Cuba); Pablo Neruda (Neftalí Ricardo Reyes Basualto) (Chile); Cesar Vallejo (Peru); Jacinto Fombona Pachano (Venezuela). Bibliography. Indexes.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy

Book Week p7 N 7 '43 340w

Booklist 40:55 O 15 '43

"The translations, which are close but not slavish, and are the better for not being forced into the patterns of meter and rhyme of the originals, will be most useful to those whose limited command of Spanish leaves them in need of some assistance. The editor contributes an intelligent introductory survey of the place of poetry in Latin American culture and on modern trends, and a biographical sketch of each poet included in the anthology."

+ Christian Century 60:1201 O 20 '43 170w

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan

Christian Science Monitor p16 N 27 '43 650w

"A most interesting selection of the works of representative modern Latin American poets, with an excellent, comprehensive introduction by the editor. Mr. Hays writes a brief scholarly history of the development of this art in Latin America which prepares the reader for a fuller understanding of the contents of the book." Lulu Vargas Vila

+ Commonweal 39:21 O 22 '43 380w

"Highly recommended." E. L. Lewis

+ Library J 68:571 Jl '43 120w

"The publication of this new anthology should bring cheer to the hearts of those who love Latin American poetry and want it to reach a wider audience on this side of the Rio Grande. Not that the book itself is of such supernal quality, but because it bears evidence of having learned from its predecessor's mistakes. Last year Dudley Fitts's omnibus volume, like a traveler doing the grand tour of South America by air in two weeks, covered much and discovered little. Now H. R. Hays, contributor of notes and a few translations to that earlier volume, takes a second trip. This time he covers less ground, looks more closely at what is in front of him, and lays a basis for the beginning of understanding on the part of his reader." Mildred Adams

+ — Nation 157:454 O 16 '43 600w

"Mr. Hays' translations of the poems, printed by the side of the originals, do not, as a whole come up to his biographical and critical notes. In his care to 'add nothing of his own' the translator has, here and there, detracted from the original expression and, in certain cases, has even misinterpreted the original meaning of separate words. But (except in the case of Velarde, who should not have been represented, as he is here, in his pedestrian and epic moods) the poems chosen do give a fair 'birdseye view' of the fields explored." Jenny Ballou

+ — N Y Times p30 O 3 '43 700w

Reviewed by Julia Bowe

Poetry 63:230 Ja '44 750w

"'Twelve Spanish American Poets' is one of the best collections of its kind. Not only does it, in its selections, offer a broad and clear view of the current poetic trends of Latin America, but in the introduction Mr Hays gives a clear, comprehensive resume of the whole career of modern poetry in Latin America. This is a great asset in understanding the poems in this collection, as is the short survey of each poet's life which appears at the heads of the respective sections of the anthology." Doris Casamello

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 950w

"The anthology as a whole fulfills its purposes in workmanlike fashion and is clearly the fruit of much labor and much knowledge of contemporary Hispanic American poetry. The Fitts collection of last year, the present work, and the stout and solid volume (without translations) edited by Federico de Onis in 1934, together serve as an admirable introduction to the impressive volume and fairly high level of contemporary poetic activity in Latin America." B. D. Wolfe

+ Weekly Book Review p22 D 12 '43 850w

HAYWARD, WALTER SUMNER, and HAMILTON, DOROTHY ADAMS. American people; a popular hist. of the United States, 1865-1941. 307p il $3 Sheridan

973.8 U.S.—History—1865- 44-634

A popular history of the United States from the close of the Civil war to Pearl Harbor. "Written in the vernacular, it talks with the easy informality of the popular lecturer, connecting the dim past with the obvious present. Fifty-two chapters permit the use of several devices for holding interest—wide variety in subject-matter, frequent change of pace in style, and ingenious story form. . . In short, the book consists of a series of vignettes—each of which tells a part of America's story through selected personalities, types, events and movements. Profuse photographs illustrate the text." (N Y Times) Index.

"This is high-lighted, almost lurid history, related with a minimum of dates, relieved of professional jargon, and stripped completely of such academic paraphernalia as footnotes and bibliographies." P. M. Angle

Book Week p5 D 26 '43 340w

"Is this history? Not as the professors like to 'dish it up' (to show you the flavor of the book). If they do not ignore it, academic critics will probably pick this book to pieces. It could de done easily. Yet moviegoers will like 'The American People.' By highlighting the obvious it identifies an era in American history—just as a rapid pen portrait identifies a personality by flick of hair, rakish eyebrow, hawked nose and quizzical mouth." G. H. E. Smith

N Y Times p7 D 19 '43 500w

HAYWOOD, CAROLYN. Back to school with Betsy; il. by [the author]. 176p $2 Harcourt 43-51225

The fourth volume in the series about Betsy describes her doings in third grade. For earlier books see B is for Betsy; Two and Two are Four; and Betsy and Billy (Book Review Digest, 1939-1941).

Booklist 40:19 S '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 25 '43 160w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield

Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 30w

"The school year is full of activities and interests which child readers will recognize with pleasure as similar to their own. . . The author writes with a sure touch. She knows children well and enjoys them; thus Betsy and her friends ring true in every particular." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p24 S 26 '43 320w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 140w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p8 O 24 '43 350w

Wis Lib Bul 39:124 O '43

HAZELETT, CLARENCE WILLIAM. Dynamic capitalism; the philosophy of incentive taxation and incentivism. 172p $2.50 Harper

330.16 Economics. Taxation 43-10380

Presents a plan to solve our economic problems thru "incentive taxation." "The author is a graduate of De Pauw University with a Master's degree from the University of Iowa. He is the Chairman of the Board of Hazelett Metals, Inc., and in recent years has divided his time between his work as executive and inventor and his extensive researches into problems of economic reform." (Publisher's note)

Reviewed by D. M. Wright

Ann Am Acad 230:225 N '43 430w

Commonweal 38:376 Jl 30 '43 210w

Reviewed by H. W. Cross

Springf'd Republican p10 S 10 '43 700w

HAZELTON, ROGER. Root and flower of prayer. 137p $1.75 Macmillan

264.1 Prayer 43-3692

The dean of the chapel at Colorado college, Colorado Springs, considers public prayer, its lack of sincerity, conventionality, and "planned emphasis," and points out the needs in human life, which give rise to prayer. There is a chapter on the relation of prayer to poetry, and one on preparing and delivering prayers.

"A really fine little book on public prayer—fine in its spirit and feeling and in its intelligence. Most ministers would be helped by giving attention to its counsels, and it is to be hoped that many of them will be."

+ Christian Century 60:394 Mr 31 '43 40w

Churchman 157:18 D 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by R. E. Keighton

Crozer Q 20:262 Jl '43 350w

"Library seeking to serve churches of community will find book an asset." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 68:81 Ja 15 '43 100w

HAZLITT, HENRY. A new constitution now. (Whittlesey house publication) 297p $2.50 McGraw

342.733 U.S. Constitution. U.S.—Politics and government 42-23821

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Two general criticisms might be made of this work, neither of which derogates from Mr. Hazlitt's main thesis. First, there is the common error of which many advocates of the parliamentary system are guilty—the exaggerating of the quality of the personnel, the responsibility, and the general behavior of the British Parliament. . . Secondly, Mr. Hazlitt falls into the error of most advocates of constitutional change. They 'freeze' too much into the constitution. Mr. Hazlitt would fix constitutionally the magic numbers, nine for the Supreme Court, ten for the cabinet, a hundred and fifty for the house. If the British constitutional system has one great virtue, it is its flexibility, because no one has painted an exact detailed picture to which it must conform. The general suggestions for reform made in this book are altogether sound and reasonable. They will not be adopted." J. G. Kerwin

HAZLITT, HENRY—Continued
Am Pol Sci R 37:334 Ap '43 900w

"This is a gallantly challenging book. It contains much penetrating analysis and political wisdom. It bristles with startling and controversial proposals, and these are not all equally well supported. It should be required reading for all smug-minded Americans, which includes most of us; for whether Mr. Hazlitt wins his campaign or not, this kind of intelligent self-criticism is what this Nation needs if it is to deal wisely with the many defects in our governmental system which he so cogently exposes." R. E. Cushman
+ Ann Am Acad 227:170 My '43 750w

"Mr. Hazlitt's various proposals are worthy of earnest study by any American, and any observant citizen can see in the news from Washington evidences of the need for reform. . . If Americans understood that it is not the division of powers but mainly the Bill of Rights and their own understanding of freedom which keep their Constitution from becoming an instrument of despotism—as almost identical Constitutions have become in some Latin-American countries—they might be more willing to examine it objectively and improve its operation. Mr. Hazlitt's book is a useful effort to obtain such improvement." D. M. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 20 '43 800w

Discussion by the author
Current Hist 4:85 Mr '43 750w

Discussion by Carol Thompson
Current Hist 4:86 Mr '43 750w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:583 Ap '43 40w

"While Mr. Hazlitt has performed a meritorious service in stimulating consideration of a basic constitutional issue, it cannot be said that he has carried the discussion appreciably beyond the point where it rested thirty or forty years ago. . . In short, Mr. Hazlitt's argument does not take us anywhere, but it is reassuring to know that the spirit of governmental reform still lives in the land." V. O. Key, Jr.
Pol Sci Q 58:132 Mr '43 850w

Pratt p20 F '43

"As a term paper in a college course in government, Mr. Hazlitt's pages would receive an 'A' and be marked 'Constructive, clearly reasoned and stimulating.' Indeed, the student responsible for the work would be watched as full of more than ordinary promise, once he had a chance to accumulate more knowledge of the realities of government today than is provided by acquaintance with Bentham, John Stuart Mill, Bagehot, Bryce and even Woodrow Wilson, all of whom are meticulously quoted. As a carefully thought out presentation by an experienced newspaper man, the book is quite another matter. In its entire concern with mechanics and devices, it has a nineteenth century belief that progress in government lies in reform of machinery rather than concern with the total picture of government as a going organization." J. P. C. Carey
+ — Survey G 32:100 Mr '43 650w

HEAD, MATTHEW, pseud. Smell of money. 307p $2 Simon & Schuster
Mystery story. 43-1685

"Very good."
+ Boston Globe p15 F 17 '43 80w

"A literate and exhilarating job."
+ New Repub 108:574 Ap 26 '43 70w

"Not a conventional ending, but then this is not a conventional story." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p14 F 14 '43 240w

"Characters a frenzied crew—except amateur sleuth—with generally base and considerably fascinating motives. Puzzle good and solution unorthodox. Out-of-the-ordinary."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 F 20 '43 40w

"All in all, 'The Smell of Money' ranks with the finest in detective fiction." S. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 7 '43 250w

"Here's a likable, easy-to-read offering that should entertain any reasonable fan. Our guess is that it will panic the feminine trade, especially, with its knowing stuff about clothes, interior decoration and the like." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p18 F 14 '43 250w

HEANEY, NORMAN STEWART. Public trusteeship. 130p pa $1.50 Johns Hopkins press
332.14 Trusts and trustees 43-9355

"The contemporary socialization of trusteeship, whether under public or under corporate management, demands more attention than has yet been given it; but Norman Stewart Heaney's slim volume . . . goes far toward filling the gap. He shows how the difficulty of finding a reliable individual to act as trustee led to experimentation by English-speaking people in all new countries in the nineteenth century. In the United States, these experiments produced the trust company; in New Zealand, the public trustee. In England itself, both movements have had their backwash. . . But it is in New Zealand that public trusteeship has had its fullest development. Lieutenant Heaney shows how in seventy years it has spread its activities so wide that it there lends money now to the farmer and to local government, looks after pension funds and the property of enemy aliens, handles receiverships, provides free legal aid for the common man, and eliminates many expensive court formalities." Am Pol Sci R

"In its brevity, clarity, and scholarship, this is a distinguished addition to a long line of notable Johns Hopkins studies." W. H. Wickwar
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:764 Ag '43 230w

"Dr. Heaney has chosen an ideal subject for a Ph.D. thesis. It is new to American legal and economic literature; it is discreet and rounded; it is significant and yet not illimitable. Doubtless the thesis itself covered more ground than the published volume, in which details are confined to New Zealand and England. Dr. Heaney's presentation is so lucid and interesting that the reader almost forgets that it is an academic exercise." Geoffrey May
+ Ann Am Acad 229:206 S '43 340w

HEAPS, WILLARD ALLISON. Book selection for secondary school libraries. 335p $2.50 Wilson, H.W.
028.5 Book selection. School libraries (high school). Bibliography—Bibliography. Children's literature—Bibliography 43-1206

"The purpose of the book is to serve as a guide to the basic factors of book selection in a functional school library serving Grades VII-XII. The volume is intended for school librarians and teacher-librarians both in the professional training curriculum and in service, as well as for state and local school library supervisors, workers in school and young people's departments in public libraries, and educators and workers who may welcome its help. Before the component parts of the study are analyzed, it is well to note the limitations which the author states in his Preface: 'It is not a book of literary appreciation, nor is it intended to be a textbook in adolescent literature. It is not a guide to specific titles and authors.'" (School R) Index.

"Two things strike one when studying Mr. Heaps' book: the enormous amount of careful research that has gone into the text and the making of the bibliographies, and the constant evidence that throughout his book he has taken account of present educational trends. Furthermore, the organization of the book is logical and in keeping with the belief that the school centers around the individual. He begins his book with the individual and does not bring up the technical processes of book selection until all other problems have been discussed." Mabel Turner
+ Library J 68:734 S 15 '43 700w

"Heaps has attempted to do too many things in his volume, and, as a result, has left many important issues and salient problems with a superficial treatment; this is particularly noticeable in the sections which deal with reading. . . Other limitations of the volume center in its failure to take cognizance of many progressive educational practices in the modern school and in the absence of 'book-talk' in the text. . . If Book Selection for Secondary School Libraries is considered as a bibliographic rather than a critical work, it has definite values. Many excellent bibliographies and book lists are included; indeed, these occur with such frequency that the volume might be best characterized as a sourcebook." Frances Henne

Library Q 13:247 Jl '43 1200w

"An analysis of the volume reveals that it lightly skims the surface and briefly and superficially suggests some of the underlying principles involved in a study of the book needs and interests of the adolescent. . . The volume, however, makes several important contributions in its field. It brings together, in an organized and convenient form, heretofore isolated facts pertaining to book selection. Good book lists and bibliographies on various subjects and curricular fields of the school follow the discussion of each subject. . . In conclusion, one finds that, good as these points are, they are greatly offset by the limitations set by the author, plus the incomplete nature of the evaluations and criteria found in the book. The publication leaves much to be desired in the important field of book selection for secondary-school libraries." Alice Lohrer

— + School R 51:440 S '43 800w

Wis Lib Bul 39:118 O '43

HEATH, ELIZABETH ALDEN. See Holton, E. A.

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Fanatic of Fez. 239p $2 Doubleday

43-9681

Tale of international intrigue in which Private Detective Paul Kilgerrin goes to Morocco to recover a secret formula from a disgruntled American professor, and meets foreign agents of several countries.

"Makes Pepe le Moko look like kid stuff, though it's not quite as convincing." Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p6 Je 6 '43 180w

"Swift action, thrilling adventure and international intrigue." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p8 My 30 '43 80w

"Thriller."

Sat R of Lit 26:32 My 29 '43 40w

"Mr. Leonard has strewn his yarn with suitable color and persons with pleasantly outlandish names, such as Hasif Ben, Ali Baumleigh. He has a knack at this sort of timely entertainment." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p30 My 23 '43 200w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Murder goes astray. 218p $2 Doubleday

43-10422

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p6 Jl 18 '43 130w

Booklist 40:48 O 1 '43

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p8 Je 27 '43 140w

Sat R of Lit 26:23 Je 26 '43 30w

"This is not awfully grownup, but it reads smoothly enough and Desmond is always in there punching. Big surprise at the finish." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p18 Je 27 '43 230w

HECTOR, LUTHER GRANT; LEIN, HERBERT S., and SCOUTEN, CLIFFORD E. Electronic physics. 355p il $3.75 Blakiston

537 Electricity. Light. Electronics 43-14030

"How the electron is related to other branches of physics is clearly shown in [this] introductory text intended for beginners. Electrical and magnetic effects are explained from the electron (and proton) viewpoint. Light is shown as an electronic phenomenon. The long electro-magnetic waves radiated by an alternating current circuit are discussed as well as X-rays, which are produced when electrons are suddenly stopped by a metallic target." Weekly Book Review

Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:43 Jl '43

"Any person interested in learning about physics from this modern approach will profit by this book with its lucid explanations and excellent diagrams." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p30 O 17 '43 250w

HEED, H. L. Ship structure and blueprint reading. 258p il $2.50 Cornell maritime

623.8 Shipbuilding. Blueprints 42-51283

"Very simply written book intended to introduce men who are engaged in shipbuilding trades to the elements of blueprints. Illustrated with plans, drawings, and photographs of different types of boats." Booklist

Booklist 39:220 F 1 '43

Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:34 Ap '43

Reviewed by Waldemar Kaempffert

N Y Times p22 F 14 '43 120w

HEHMEYER, ALEXANDER F. W. Time for change; a proposal for a second constitutional convention. 211p $2 Farrar

342.73 U.S. Constitution. U.S.—Politics and government 43-9809

"A plea for the early call of a second (federal) constitutional convention, plus some reasonably practical blueprints for the 20th century modernizing of our 18th century basic law." (Book Week) The author is a lawyer and journalist. Bibliography. Index.

"While differences of opinion will naturally arise regarding some of the suggestions for reform, the book will furnish stimulating and suggestive reading for all students of our government." Isidor Loeb

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:1107 D '43 450w

" 'Time For Change' is opportune, useful and readable. . . Alexander Hehmeyer has written a book which the masses can read and the technicians will not scorn. He provides such good balance between historical background and the current problem of adjusting legal framework to a much changed world that the thoughtful citizen will welcome it as a refresher on civil government as well as a stimulus to reforms." H. H. Allen

+ Book Week p6 Ag 1 '43 550w

Booklist 40:54 O 15 '43

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers

Sat R of Lit 26:6 Ag 7 '43 1900w

"For the most part, the changes which Mr. Hehmeyer advocates are rather minor patches, not a few of which might be added without a new fundamental document. On the whole the author is so reasonable and moderate that his new scheme does not stand out with any great vividness. The reader is not likely to be aroused to enthusiasm in advocacy or protest. Perhaps his greatest profit will come from a better understanding of the mechanisms which now operate. Such understanding may come more pointedly from the pen of a critic than from the pen of a mere transcriber. So we can be grateful for a helpful essay in civics even if the plans of the architect are never translated into a new constitutional structure." T. R. Powell

+ Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 25 '43 400w

HEIL, EDWARD WILLIAM. Consumer training. (Am. youth ser) 584p il $2.72 Macmillan

339.4 Consumer education 43-7926

"This is one of the American Youth Series for use in secondary schools. It deals almost entirely with the problems of consumers as buyers, though one short unit deals with budgeting and credit problems and another with savings, investments, and insurance. In the final unit wartime problems of consumers are discussed." J Home Econ

Booklist 40:72 N 1 '43

"The book is well written. Suggested projects and activities and sources of information follow each chapter. Undoubtedly it will be valuable not only as a text but as a reference for high school students—a useful addition to the material available on consumer buying for students and teachers at this educational level." J. V. Coles

+ J Home Econ 39:591 N '43 150w

School & Society 57:676 Je 12 '43 60w

HEILBUT, IVAN. Birds of passage; tr. from the German by James A. Galston. 331p $2.75 Doubleday

43-14976

Novel based upon the adventures of a refugee family in France before the fall; during the period when the head of the family was interned, while his wife and infant son waited for his release; and on their flight thru France, to Spain, and the United States. The author is a poet of renown, his works being known in Germany and France.

"Not all birds of passage reach the hospitable shores where the sun of freedom still shines. It burdens our conscience that so few of them survived, but we are thankful that Ivan Heilbut is among them. His creative power, his innate love for decency, beauty and liberty will soon make him a favorite with the American public. 'Birds of Passage' is an excellent start." H. L. Reich

+ Book Week p8 O 10 '43 400w

"Written with lightness and refreshing humor." J. S. Cleavinger

+ Library J 68:769 O 1 '43 80w

"Beautifully written and intensely felt novel. . Written with poetic insight and excellently translated from the German, this book is profoundly disturbing. To read it is to realize that man within his civilized frame is yet an illusion; that the degradation of one part of mankind must be the degradation of all." Nona Balakian

+ N Y Times p4 O 17 '43 1050w

"When Herr Heilbut examines the maggoty body of the Third Republic and reports on its self-seeking petite bourgeoisie, its treacherous politicians and venal small functionaries, and the brutality of the Germans in the concentration camp, he is interesting. When he writes about his hero's happy relations with his wife and infant son, he is a fairly dull fellow."

+ — New Yorker 19:98 O 9 '43 120w

"Strange as it may seem, this novel of persecution, struggle, flight from Nazi-brutality, and revenge is full of charm and the joy of life. It is as if the author had gone through the frightful experiences so long ago, that they now seem somewhat unreal. The fall of France, the stupidity—if not treachery—of the petty French officials, the defeatism of the French soldiers who had less hope in France than the refugees who were interned in a concentration camp, all this is described in a casual, even elegant, prose, and at no moment does the author mourn his fate or ask for pity." R. R. Plant

+ Sat R of Lit 26:44 O 16 '43 450w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock

Weekly Book Review p8 O 10 '43 600w

HEINE, HEINRICH. Works of prose; ed. by Hermann Kesten; with a pref. by Louis Untermeyer; in a new tr. by E. B. Ashton. 346p $3 Fischer, L.B.

838 43-3600

Translations of some of Heine's works, notably excerpts from The Harz Journey; French Affairs; English Fragments, etc. A final chapter contains translations from some of Heine's letters—A biography in miniature (1815-1856). Bibliography.

Booklist 39:365 My 15 '43

"Connoisseurs will turn to Heine's prose for the sheer delight of its melody. Here rather than in the strained simplicity of his somewhat overrated songs Heine grew in perfection. . . But you are urged to read this slender volume of Heine's prose neither for love's nor for fun's sake. This is a book on the war. The important difference between Heinrich Heine (1797-1856) and contemporary writers on nazism is that Heine knows more about it. It's all there." W. S. Schlamm

+ N Y Times p2 Mr 28 '43 1300w

"To stimulate the readers' wish for more reading of Heine's prose, and to encourage the publisher to meet that wish, the present selection seems to be very well fit. It gives a good picture of the brilliant commentator on arts, philosophy, and politics; the witty and melancholic letter writer, the utopian dreamer with so much realistic sense; and (to quote Mr. Kesten's congenial definition) 'the cousin of the romantic Wandering Jew, that universal schlemihl and wittiest victim of each tragic world convulsion.' " F. C. Weiskopf

+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 Mr 6 '43 550w

Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 19 '43 500w

HEITNER, JOSEPH; SHIDLE, NORMAN GLASS, and BISSELL, THOMAS A. Elements of automotive mechanics; a pre-induction training course. 395p il $1.92 Van Nostrand

629.2 Automobiles. Automobile engines 43-2734

"Designed to meet the Army's need as expressed in the pre-induction training-course outline, 'Fundamentals of Automotive Mechanics.' Aimed particularly at students who subsequently will be learning to do practical work on motor vehicles, the principles explained in this volume are drawn exclusively from current American practice, and emphasis throughout is laid on designs and constructions in current use." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:429 Je 15 '43

"Excellent, much-needed textbook."

+ Library J 68:212 Mr 1 '43 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:4 Ja '43

School & Society 57:196 F 13 '43 60w

HELDT, PETER MARTIN. Torque converters or transmissions, for use with combustion engines in road and rail vehicles, tractors and locomotives; mechanical, hydraulic, electric, pneumatic, differential; stepped and continuously-variable; hand-controlled, automatic and semi-automatic. 406p il $4 The author, Nyack, N.Y.

629.2444 Automobiles—Transmission devices 42-21892

"Description and explanation of the various transmission mechanisms, from the early friction clutches to the present automatic and power-controlled types. The text is restricted to an explanation of the operating principles of the latter, while designs of the more conventional transmission are treated in detail. Intended to assist designing engineers and service mechanics." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 67:1067 D 1 '42 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:23 Ap '43

HELION, JEAN. They shall not have me (Ils ne m'auront pas) the capture, forced labor, and escape of a French prisoner of war. 436p $3 Dutton

940.547243 World war, 1939—Prisoners and prisons, German 43-12737

The experiences of a Franco-American abstract painter, who left this country in 1940 to join the French army. Later in the year he was captured by the Germans, and sent into forced labor in Germany. In the German labor camp the Frenchmen refused to be downed and had their own methods of getting even with their captors. Hélion planned an escape, and aided by all his fellow prisoners, he carried it thru, and finally reached the United States.

"I shall not attempt to review it. This is not a book. It is a document that no Goebbels will be able to dispute; a weapon that shall help destroy Nazism; but, above all, it is a cry that wrested itself from the distorted lips of French prisoners of war who were made to feel the humiliation of defeat in every conceivable way. . . This book, Adolf Hitler, is your moral Stalingrad. Whenever you are brought to trial, on it alone the prosecutor could rest his case." H. L. Reich
Book Week p4 S 5 '43 600w

Booklist 40:43 O 1 '43

Reviewed by Paul Kennedy
Boston Globe p17 S 1 '43 230w

"Parallel in subject and visceral detail with The Enormous Room, but Helion is no Cummings. Informative, vivid, without either tragedy or humor, story is too long and by now too familiar to be widely read." E. L. Lewis
Library J 68:621 Ag '43 140w

Reviewed by James Stern
Nation 157:355 S 25 '43 1350w

"Helion's book is as informal and candid as a personal letter. He writes in English, but part of the time he thinks in French, with the result that some of his idioms are engagingly incorrect. . . He has a painter's passion for accuracy; he never falsifies a situation to produce a political or dramatic effect. Though he is telling his own story, he gives a picture of France in defeat, and it is curiously heartening. You feel that the French, humiliated and starving, have nevertheless survived a moral crisis; they have stumbled through a morass that we may still have to cross." Malcolm Cowley
+ New Repub 109:289 Ag 30 '43 1150w

"Jean Hélion's book is extremely well written. The painter's meticulously cultivated skill in observation here emerges in words, not in paint. Added to this is a native shrewdness, a wry humor and a wisely tolerant, quite humanistic appreciation of man in all shapes and sizes. One begins to comprehend the mental furniture with whch Jean Hélion faced captivity. His book, for these reasons, is no ordinary book." Catherine Maher
+ N Y Times p4 Ag 29 '43 1150w

"Much of the book, which was evidently written in English, reads like a high-school translation from the French. Even so, it is an intelligent, sensitive, heartwarming narrative of considerable literary quality."
+ New Yorker 19:67 Ag 28 '43 110w

Reviewed by H. C. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 26:9 S 4 '43 550w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 5 '43 900w

"The successful escape from a German prison camp of Jean Hélion ranks with the escape of Casanova from the Leads or Peter Kropotkin from the fortress of Peter & Paul. . . As a breath-taking narrative of captivity and escape and as a unique firsthand description of the miseries of life among Germany's French prisoners, They Shall Not Have Me is one of the half-dozen most remarkable books of World War II."
+ Time 42:96 Ag 30 '43 1300w

"The plain facts which M. Hélion reports of war-time France, Nazi Germany, and the servitude and escape of a war prisoner would be absorbing reading. The character of the writer and his insight into the men with and for whom he worked make this book, further, memorable and inspiring." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ag 29 '43 650w

HELLMAN, CHARLES I. Elements of radio. 318p il $2 Van Nostrand
621.384 Radio 43-5256

"This text was written to meet the requirements of the Pre-Induction Training Course in Fundamentals of Radio as set forth in the War Department Outline PIT 201. The author was a member of the group who prepared the outline and the course of study given in this book adheres closely to the syllabus. The book is designed for a full year course in the first study of radio principles; it assumes no previous knowledge of radio." Pref.

Booklist 39:430 Je 15 '43

Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:16 Ja '43

School & Society 57:420 Ap 10 '43 40w

HELLUM, AMANDA WATKINS, and GOTTSHALL, FRANKLIN H. You can whittle and carve. 82p il $2.25 Bruce pub.
736.4 Woodcarving 42-50226

"The instinct to work with a knife is common to all boys and many girls. In this well-made craft book the first lessons show how to hold the knife and wood, later comes instruction in carving different objects, ending with the most difficult, the human figure. No large outlay is necessary, since strictly necessary equipment is limited to one or more sharp pocket knives and a small oilstone." Horn Bk

Booklist 39:365 My 15 '43

Bookmark 4:9 My '43

Horn Bk 19:44 Ja '43 70w

"Librarians should examine carefully before purchasing."
Library J 68:39 Ja 1 '43 30w

"Whittlers will agree that 'there's something challenging about a small block of wood that makes the fingers itch,' and will find the same sensation starting at the sight of the many photographs that make this pocket-knife compendium so pretty to look at. It is more than a guide to the use of the pocket-knife, for those who want to go further will find a small, carefully chosen kit of additional tools described and photographed in use and at rest."
+ Weekly Book Review p29 Mr 7 '43 80w

Wis Lib Bul 39:39 Mr '43

HEMLEBEN, SYLVESTER JOHN. Plans for world peace through six centuries. 227p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press
341.1 Peace. International law and relations 43-266

Concise history of the various plans to outlaw war which have been fomented from the early fourteenth century to the League of nations. It considers the objectives and plans of such men as Penn, Rousseau, Erasmus, Grotius, Kant, Lorimer, Lord Bryce, and others. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. T. Ellis
Am Hist R 48:753 Jl '43 500w

Reviewed by David Fellman
Am Soc R 8:359 Je '43 160w

"Honest peace planners cannot ignore the deductive historical approach to their problem. Either they must reread and study for themselves the entire history of the idea of peace, or they must resort to a reliable historical treatise of a responsible scholar who has done this vital work for them. When peace planners come to know that such a book has just been published, they cannot escape reading it, and they will have, I may predict, an unforgettable enjoyment when they study Sylvester John Hemleben's Plans for World Peace Through Six Centuries. They will find therein not only a comprehensive and lucid historical presentation of the most important peace plans from Pierre Dubois to Bryce and Wilson, but conclusions as well which are invaluable for the judgment of what is needed for our present and future struggle for peace." Hans Heymann
+ Ann Am Acad 227:158 My '43 800w

Booklist 39:348 My 1 '43

Bookmark 4:13 My '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:3 Jl '43 20w

HEMLEBEN, S. J.—Continued

"Important ideas in readable form. Scholarly; excellent bibliography. Essential for small libraries with limited collection on international politics; important key to extensive material in larger libraries." D. F. Lucas

+ Library J 68:33 Ja 1 '43 140w

Library Q 13:182 Ap '43 180w

Reviewed by Merle Curti

Pol Sci Q 58:317 Je '43 390w

"Professor Hemleben has fulfilled a useful task by presenting in a short and concise book a survey of the different peace plans, which, from the beginning of the fourteenth century on, were proposed by writers and statesmen for the formation of a world organization to guarantee world peace. . . The presentation of all the different personalities, movements, and ideas excels by clarity, by a readable style, and by a welcome bibliography, yet the small compass of the book leads to a certain sketchiness, which does not result in helpful conclusions for the present." Hans Kohn

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:37 Je 5 '43 700w

School & Society 57:84 Ja 16 '43 40w

"Contains an excellent bibliography of books and pamphlets on the topic. Carefully indexed."

+ Social Studies 34:191 Ap '43 40w

"Professor Hemleben has written a book so compact, so well documented, and so perspicacious that there is really very little the reviewer need do but recommend most heartily his Plans for World Peace through Six Centuries both to the numerous classes in problems of world reconstruction and to all arm chair architects of the future throughout the country. . . To teachers and students already familiar with the subject, this book will nevertheless prove useful as well as interesting. Considerable aid is afforded both in the twenty-seven page bibliography and in the extended footnotes in each section where reference is made to articles and books supporting, controverting or extending views therein expressed." Caroline Robbins

+ Social Studies 34:232 My '43 550w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn

Survey G 32:456 N '43 200w

Reviewed by R. H. Rovere

Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 28 '43 380w

HENDELSON, WILLIAM, and ZUCKER, PAUL, eds. Music lovers' almanac. [200p] il $3.95 Doubleday

780.59 Music. Musicians 43-18977

An article on music or musicians for every day in the year. Includes many dates important in musical history, as well as portraits of musical personalities. Glossary. Index.

"It is difficult, of course, to compile such a work as this without encountering pitfalls; but the writers should have been able to avoid the mistake of assuring their readers that the death of Mili Alexeievitch Balakirew occurred at Boston, March 11, 1889, when that master never set foot in America, and died at St. Petersburg in 1910. These and other errors the authors and publisher should correct in a second edition. It should be pointed out that the book is beautifully printed and that it is filled with illustrations of real value and interest." Felix Borowski

Book Week p6 Ja 2 '44 250w

"This almanac will absorb the amateur music lover and prove a constant source of fact-straightening for the professional. . . The straight musical history and 'explanatory' comment are always first rate. The 'critical' comment, almost always admissible, is not entirely consistent or pleasing to the music lover who knows what he likes. Apparently the two editors disagreed on some questions, which probably makes it a better book. Most pages are illustrated, including pictures of your favorite composers. There are five pages of glossary and a highly serviceable index."

+ Commonweal 39:260 D 24 '43 140w

"The amount of information provided by this convenient book is equal to the contents of a small popular cyclopedia of musical productions. The facts, pleasantly expressed for the general reader, are made easily available by a 23-page double-column index by which, instead of page reference, one discovers, for instance, that you are to look at Feb. 7 for Deems Taylor's 'Peter Ibbetson,' Sept. 9 and Nov. 20 for Beethoven's 'Fidelio,' and Oct. 21 for 'The Merry Widow.' Pictures include portraits, photographs of places famous in music, miniature scores and scenes from historic productions. This would make a lively, useful addition to a home library."

+ Weekly Book Review p12 D 19 '43 150w

HENDERSON, DANIEL MACINTYRE; KIERAN, JOHN, and RICE, GRANTLAND, eds. Reveille; war poems by members of our forces. 254p $2 Barnes, A.S.

811.08 World war, 1939—Poetry. American poetry—Collections 43-11156

A selection of poems sent in by service men in a contest sponsored by the publishers. Index.

Booklist 40:7 S '43

"The volume is in three sections, serious poems, narrative ballads, and humor, and it contains some good poetry, some verse and some doggerel; it also contains as good a cross-section of the servicemen's thinking just now as this reader has found anywhere." Hal Borland

+ N Y Times p22 S 26 '43 440w

Reviewed by A. M. Jakeman

Springf'd Republican p10 N 3 '43 700w

Wis Lib Bul 39:143 N '43

HENDERSON, LE GRAND (LE GRAND, pseud). Augustus helps the army. 130p il $2 Bobbs

43-7237

Having helped the Navy in Maine, Augustus and a new friend, Jaybird, help the Army in Georgia. Augustus and family settle near an army camp, where his father helps with carpentry. Augustus and Jaybird turn their attention to secret weapons, and when saboteurs appear in the camp, the boys play an important part in the ensuing chase.

"Perhaps it's because Augustus is so thoroughly a real boy that you know real boys will love his story. I have only to look out my own suburban window to see young Americans playing war games up and down the street. They know it's make-believe, but it looks (and sounds) pretty real at the time. So with Augustus helping the Army. It's make-believe, and we won't really believe in it—but it's a lot of fun while it lasts. Any boy who isn't acquainted with Augustus is missing something in his reading life." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p8 Je 13 '43 400w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p9 Je 13 '43 220w

"The author-illustrator, Le Grand, has once more brought to life an exciting situation which is dealt with by a credible and lovable group of children and grown-ups. We pin our medal on Augustus, hero and gentleman in brief dungarees."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 6 '43 190w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p14 My 23 '43 350w

HENDERSON, LE GRAND (LE GRAND, pseud). Augustus helps the marines. 134p il $2 Bobbs

43-14493

Augustus continues his help toward winning the war, this time with the aid of his friend Ted and a seagoing mule. Together they are in the neighborhood of a Florida Marine base, and help to save a transport from being torpedoed by the Germans. Ages nine to twelve.

"Although everything happens just in the nick of time, the story has the same freshness as the other Augustus books. Illustration by the author exactly right for story in which action and conversation predominate." F. W. Butler

+ Library J 68:894 N 1 '43 90w

N Y Times p26 N 21 '43 140w

"Packed with exciting humorous incidents." M. E. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 10 '43 60w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p32 N 14 '43 250w

HENDERSON, YANDELL, and HAGGARD, HOWARD WILCOX. Noxious gases and the principles of respiration influencing their action. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser) 2d rev ed 294p il $3.50 Reinhold

612.014464 Gases, Asphyxiating and poisonous 43-2694

"A second edition of a book from the American Chemical Society Monograph Series. The authors discuss the subject of the principles of respiration which influence the toxic action of war gases. The book deals primarily with the special features of toxic action dependent upon volatility. Subdivisions are irritants, asphyxiants, volatile drugs, inorganic and organometallic gases." (Book Week) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1927.

"The authors of this book are well known for their researches in applied physiology and for their skillful exposition of both technical and general aspects of their field. It is not surprising, therefore, to find that the second edition of their standard treatise on 'Noxious Gases' is a competent and readable survey of the subject." Ancel Keys

+ Am J Pub Health 33:1015 Ag '43 230w

Book Week p10 My 2 '43 70w

"The style of the text is unnecessarily complex most of the time, but the chapter on resuscitation is a masterpiece of brilliant scientific writing, no less thorough because it is entertaining at the same time. All in all, this is a book which should find a ready place on the shelf of anyone apt to meet the problems presented therein—and that means practically every chemist and chemical engineer as well as many others." Otto Eisenschiml

+ — Chem & Met Eng 50:214 N '43 500w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:9 Ja '43

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 4 '43 150w

HENDRICKSON, ROY F. Food "crisis." 274p $2.50 Doubleday

338.1 Food supply—U.S. World war, 1939— Food question 43-17096

"Mr. Roy F. Hendrickson is Director of the US Food Distribution Administration. Of course he is careful to point out that his new book is merely an expression of his personal views and in no way affects the United States Government. Yet it seems doubtful whether any well informed officials would seriously dispute the main outlines of his discussion. His object is to supply briefly all the facts necessary for a citizen's understanding of the problem. He does his best to avoid entering into farm politics, but makes it very clear that he approves the idea of subsidies and does not side with those farm organizations which have been fighting them and trying to strangle the FSA." Commonweal

Booklist 40:190 F 1 '44

"Almost anything Americans want to know about food except how to get more steak and the other things they like best, they can find in Food Crisis. . . Mr. Hendrickson's book has the advantage and the disadvantage of being timely, but as long as America is the chief granary for a war-torn world, the problems he describes and his story of their solution will be of interest to students, and to citizens in general who remain awake to the shifts and hazards of the 'kitchen front.' " M. H.

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 D 21 '43 600w

"Careful examination does not provide a single instance of his directly criticizing any of the farm pressure groups—which means that his book is remarkably free of polemics and therefore all the more useful to those who would like the American public really to have some knowledge of what it is all about."

+ Commonweal 39:255 D 24 '43 900w

Reviewed by Walter Davenport

N Y Times p3 Ja 2 '44 240w

Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 Ja '44 130w

"Unfortunately, this book bears evidence of hasty writing and poorly conceived organization. It is not always clear where exposition ends and argument begins. Certainly, since we all eat and hope to continue doing so, the subject matter is of interest. But even then, the appetite for reading about it needs to be whetted by the spice of good writing and appeased by the substance of a well-prepared dish. Perhaps Mr Hendrickson has been too busy cooking the nation's broth to do a good job in ladling it out in delectable form. And perhaps this culinary simile is getting too involved. But the point is that a good book about the nation's food 'crisis'—with or without quotation marks—still remains to be written." H. M. Davis

— + Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 650w

HENDRYX, JAMES BEARDSLEY. New rivers calling. 239p $2 Doubleday 43-10062

Story of adventure and love in the north woods of Canada, and a brave man falsely accused of murder who worked out his salvation in the "bush" and as a commando in the present war.

Booklist 40:15 S '43

"This sturdy, swinging, down-to-the-minute romance is in every way the equal of any of its predecessors from the prolific James B. Hendryx, old master at the depiction of life in the wilds of Northern Canada. Also it contains one of the most scathing indictments of the Nazis ever put into print." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 22 '43 200w

"This is another smooth adventure tale by the amazing Mr. Hendryx, who never lets his faithful readers down, whether he's singing of Halfaday Creek, Corporal Downey, Connie Morgan or one-shot heroes like Stan Klaska." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p9 Jl 4 '43 150w

HENDRYX, JAMES BEARDSLEY. Strange doings on Halfaday creek. 269p $2 Doubleday 43-51009

Story of life in a small mining village up in the Yukon territory, a village ruled by a gangster czar, Black John Smith, who measures out to wrong-doers a crude kind of justice and thereby maintains law and order.

Booklist 39:225 F 1 '43

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Books p15 Ja 31 '43 80w

"Told in the camp lingo, these tales are humorous and vastly diverting. Wise and shrewd Black John is a most likable old reprobate, and a host of old friends will be glad to meet him again, as well as Corporal Downey of the Mounted, who also reappears." G. W. Harris

+ N Y Times p27 Ja 24 '43 240w

HENIUS, FRANK, ed. & tr. Songs and games of the Americas; il. by Oscar Fabrés. 56p $2 Scribner

796.13 Singing games

Collection of games, many of them singing games, from Mexico, Cuba, Argentina, and Brazil, or others of our neighbors to the South. Includes directions for the games, native words for the songs, their translations, and music. Illustrated.

HENIUS, FRANK—Continued

"This is an altogether charming book, and one which is a lot of fun as well. . . Oscar Fabres' delicate and enchanting illustrations add the final touch to a beautiful book." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 Ag 8 '43 270w

Booklist 40:19 S '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:327 S '43 70w

"The drawings have verve, gaiety, and much charm. Fills great need. Children will enjoy it, teachers will welcome, and librarians will be relieved to have something to offer." M. N. Miller

+ Library J 68:671 S 1 '43 100w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield

Library J 68:820 O 15 '43 70w

"Singing games have their roots deep in folk history and should be a part of every child's experience. For our boys and girls to make the acquaintance of the games known and loved by the children of the Latin-American countries is, in a sense, an experience that will count toward mutual understanding and appreciation in the future. Households where family singing is the custom will enjoy this book, and teachers will welcome its fresh and interesting material for their classes." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 29 '43 260w

"So well do the fine illustrations by Oscar Fabres complement the text that teachers and parents as well as children will enjoy this book for its beauty as well as its practical uses." M. E. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 10 '43 110w

"Whatever collections of song-games are in a library, this one should be added, seldom are melodies easier and prettier for young voices or games with more interesting backgrounds than these. . . Graceful gesture of intercontinental amity though it may be, it is also a source of practical ideas for our playgrounds or for pretty numbers on our school programs. For these the colored pictures help." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 Ag 15 '43 270w

HENLE, FAYE. Au Clare de Luce; portrait of a luminous lady. 205p $2.25 Daye

B or 92 Boothe, Clare (Mrs Henry Robinson Luce) 43-16902

Full-length biography of the glamorous congresswoman from Connecticut—Clare Boothe Luce.

"In spite of Miss Henle's conception of the 'luminous lady' as a composite of Theda Bara, Joan of Arc, Hedy Lamarr, Portia, Helen of Troy and Cato the Younger, some readers may be inclined to concur with Norman Cousins, who deplored globaloney, the Time-like hybrid. . . Examples of what Miss Henle is pleased to call La Luce's 'withering wit' and 'polished invective' are almost as feeble as the biographer's puns, one of which has to do with 'knitting up the ravelled sleave of Clare.'" Jack Conroy

— Book Week p2 N 21 '43 700w

"A fairly neat piece of work, though the tone of satirical detachment breaks down into realistic analysis now and again. Apart from all this, a few of the facts need straightening out and the proofreading is horrendous."

+ — New Yorker 19:110 N 20 '43 80w

HENLEY, MRS CONSTANCE MATILDA (JORDAN). Grandmother drives south; with phot. by Joseph Smith Henley, Hector Burr, and the author. 276p $3.50 Putnam

918 South America—Description and travel 43-51189

Beginning at Rio de Janiero Mrs Henley, and her nephew and companion, drove down to the southern end of South America, then turned north and followed the Pan-American highway back to her native California. In all the speedometer registered 38,000 miles, nearly 30,000 of them in Latin America.

"There are many people in this account—bankers and presidents, peons and sheepherders—all of them interesting, friendly, and amazingly kind and helpful to two North Americans with little Spanish and less Portuguese. Mrs. Henley's book is both informative and entertaining."

+ Atlantic 172:129 Jl '43 150w

Booklist 39:424 Je 15 '43

Bookmark 4:15 My '43

"Cheerful common sense is the keynote of the book. There was no attempt to set records, to accomplish the impossible. Mrs. Henley was traveling purely for pleasure. . . We are earnestly assured that all the actual dangers and hardships were encountered on side-trips, not on the highway itself. Any careful driver can do it, Mrs. Henley says. In a final chapter she gives some practical hints for the motorist inspired to follow her trail. To reinforce his inspiration, thirty-two splendid photographs are grouped together at the end of the book in an enticing pageant." N. B. Baker

+ N Y Times p16 My 30 '43 600w

Reviewed by C. A. Hutchinson

Sat R of Lit 26:27 Je 19 '43 380w

"Mrs. Henley is an observant traveler and an entertaining writer. She was eager for new impressions, and she has recorded her experiences with an animation which is infectious. There are many photographs; they are of places and people and not of the author, and that in itself indicates the spirit of the book." David Tilden

+ Weekly Book Review p21 Je 13 '43 350w

HENNRICH, KILIAN JOSEPH. Better life; the true meaning of tertiarism. 326p $2.50; pa $1.50 Wagner, J. F.

271 Franciscans. Third order 43-7257

"Most of the old orders founded before the fourteenth century have also Third Orders for seculars. . . The most influential and the most widespread of them today is the Third Order Secular of Penance founded by St. Francis of Assisi. . . Father Hennrich, for many years director of the Third Order of St. Francis, has written an excellent treatise describing its aims, its rules, its benefits, its spirit of penance, its sanctification of the home, its fostering of the Eucharistic life." Cath World

+ Cath World 158:411 Ja '44 80w

"'The Better Life' is a valuable contribution to Tertiary literature. . . In spots, there is over-enthusiasm. The repeated reference to 'the order' is apt to be misinterpreted. The Third Order is not, nor in canon law has it ever been reputed to be, an order. There are only four canonical religious orders in the Church. But on the other hand it is not just another pious society. It is definitely a rule of Christian life and a seminary of sanctity." J. P. Ascherl

+ — Commonweal 37:595 Ap 2 '43 140w

HENRIQUES, ROBERT DAVID QUIXANO. Voice of the trumpet; with a foreword by Stephen Vincent Benét. 184p $2 Farrar 43-2512

A group of Englishmen on a commando raid on the Norwegian coast are caught at the last moment by the Germans. In a last long moment of consciousness the captain, and, to a lesser extent, his men, review their past lives. The book is a mixture of prose and poetry.

Reviewed by Nelson Algren

Book Week p5 Mr 14 '43 650w

Booklist 39:320 Ap 1 '43

Bookmark 4:19 Mr '43

"Perhaps this reviewer is incompetent, but The Voice of the Trumpet makes about as much sense as T. S. Eliot. Supposedly the psychological workings of the brain of a commando leader, it has no evident central theme, no organization, and virtually no goal. Parts of it are beautiful literature, and some of the poetry that drifts into the story is exquisite. But what this British Commando officer is driving at is anybody's guess." G. E. Shipler

— + Churchman 157:16 Je 1 '43 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '43

Reviewed by J. E. Tobin
Commonweal 37:572 Mr 26 '43 500w

"I find myself not only temperamentally antagonistic but theoretically opposed to a book like 'The Voice of the Trumpet.' It is a novel about the war, and the reader approaches it with respect for the fact that the author is himself a commando officer—here, we think, is someone who has known the real thing, and it imposes a certain delicacy on us. But the book is so subjective that we quite lose the experience of war in the welter of the author's self-expression." Diana Trilling
— Nation 156:424 Mr 20 '43 600w

"The book is not easy to read or to understand. Yet in a measure it is successful because one grasps that Smith is Everyman, and one is quite well prepared for his surrender to death. There are some passages of a queer, murky beauty in which war is symbolically represented as a mountain, a cruel crest over which a fighting people must climb to reach the dawn and the plain beyond. . . As for the many lines of verse, perhaps a quarter of the book, these are lost on me. Indeed, the prose, rich, intricate, finely wrought, invariably is more poetic." Harold Strauss
+ — N Y Times p6 F 28 '43 850w

" 'The Voice of the Trumpet,' written in an elevated, artificial prose that every so often fountains into metaphysical verse, is a brilliant but unsuccessful attempt to give generalized form to an intense war experience." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:64 F 27 '43 250w

" 'The Voice of the Trumpet' is a book that might possibly be shouldered from sellers' counters by crowding, hurried jobs of tough, factual reporting. Because it is worth a thousand such, this must not be allowed to happen." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 26:5 Mr 13 '43 1100w
Time 41:82 Mr 8 '43 950w

" 'The Voice of the Trumpet,' written by an Englishman who has seen many fronts in the present fighting, is more of a song than a novel. Slipping from prose to verse and back again without a catch of breath, it maintains a line of authentic melody. But like all fine tunes, it defies description." Virgilia Sapieha
Weekly Book Review p2 F 28 '43 1000w

HERALD, GEORGE W. My favorite assassin. [23p] $1 Vanguard

B or 92 Tessier, Ernest, originally Ernest Werner Techow 43-22828

Story of Ernst Werner Techow, one of the murderers of Walther Rathenau. Techow enlisted in the French Foreign Legion on his release from prison, and from that time on studied Jewish problems, and helped hundreds of refugees to escape from France. The story first appeared in Harper's.

"The story is stirring, unforgettable—not thanks to any literary devices, but by virtue of its dramatic simplicity and inherent moral meaning. Techow-Tessier's case may be too extraordinary to be typical; yet it has a certain symptomatic and symbolic significance. If he could redeem his crime, and find his way from darkness to light—maybe those millions in Germany who feel today as Tessier used to feel when he still was Techow, will also prove capable of repentance and improvement." Klaus Mann
+ Book Week p3 D 26 '43 550w
New Yorker 19:98 D 18 '43 90w

HERB, CHARLES OLIVER. Machine tools at work; applications of modern machine tools of various types. 552p il $4 Industrial press

621.75 Machine shop practice. Machine tools 42-13662

"In addition to such standard machine tools as lathes, drill presses and millers, there are many special machines for speeding certain operations. Even a machine of more usual type can be used for many unusual applications. As a guide to these, 'Machine Tools at Work' will find one of its principal fields of usefulness. A shop executive or a production manager will use it to advantage. The 434 excellent photographs show close-ups of the actual machining operations, as well as the tooling, work-holding and other auxiliary equipment. These have been selected from shops throughout the country." Books

Reviewed by James Stokley
Books p17 Ja 31 '43 130w
Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '42
N Y New Tech Bks 28:11 Ja '43

HERBERT, XAVIER. Capricornia; foreword by Carl Van Doren. 649p $3 Appleton-Century [8s 6d Rich]

43-5520

Powerful story of northern Australia in the period from 1885 to about 1925. The theme of the book is the wholesale miscegenation which flourished earlier in the building of the continent, and its results. The central character is Norman Shillingsworth, half-caste son of an English settler, and his struggle to make a place for himself occupies an important part of the book.

"Capricornia has humor, pathos, and tragedy. For burlesque in the grand manner, the Callow-O'Cannon wedding celebration—what old Tim O'Cannon called the 'noopshals'—has few parallels in recent literature. The novel teems with people and anecdotes. If prodigality in the use of material is any criterion of the stature of a book, then Mr. Herbert has written a tremendous one."
Atlantic 171:129 Je '43 150w

"In style, Herbert's book has the freshness and speed of the Richard Hughes of 'In Hazard,' the intense, proletarian, often bitter humor of B. Traven's 'The Bridge in the Jungle,' the warmth and understanding of half-caste and black that one glimpses in Garnett's mannered 'The Sailor's Return,' and in Wright's 'Native Son.' Yet there is a newness and originality here which is as different from American and English writing as the kangaroo is different from our familiar animals. And there is a power (not only in the style but in the sure handling of a great, working chunk of life) which one is tempted to state categorically can only emanate from one who has lived the vital life of a new frontier." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p1 Ap 25 '43 1150w
Booklist 39:368 My 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '43

"In a period when Australia is so much in headlines, and readers are earnestly curious about the psychological background of their neighbors, it is regretted that the people of the commonwealth were not made more representative. The work is hardly what its author calls it: 'a hymn book written in adoration.' There is nothing to adore, and little to admire." J. E. Tobin
— Commonweal 38:151 My 28 '43 750w

"If the author has not produced a masterpiece, at least it is a book to excite thought and that part of its job it does well." J. R. Lewis
+ Current Hist 4:406 Ag '43 800w

"The little-known country of northern Australia comes vividly to life in this panoramic novel, unusually rich in incident and characterization. Conflict between white men, pitted against the physical extremes of the land, and aboriginals and half-breeds, ruled by a merciless white society, produces unique and dramatic situations. Tough and fibrous in tone, yet possessing warmth and understanding, this rewarding book is certain to find wide and responsive audience." Rice Estes
+ Library J 68:289 Ap 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
— Nation 156:843 Je 12 '43 200w

" 'Capricornia' is without a doubt an important Australian novel. But as some American reviewers have suspected, it deals not with the central facts of Australian life, not even with a typical frontier region, but with a peculiarly recalcitrant area which has always defied the best efforts of the Australians to do something with it. . . In placing 'Capri-

HERBERT, XAVIER—Continued
cornia' in perspective I do not intend to deprecate its power qua novel, though I do think the reviewing boys and girls a bit extravagant in their praise. It is, however, a staggering piece of work. Appleton-Century Company deserves great credit for having brought it out five years after it was first offered for publication in this country." C. H. Grattan
+ — New Repub 108:708 My 24 '43 1200w

"'Capricornia' should interest an American audience because, with all its strange compounds of the tropics and the East, the Australian frontier is still close to our own, and because the novel bears down hard on an issue as crucial to us as it is to Australia. The problem of the black race has preoccupied our own writers in America from Tocqueville to Richard Wright, but seldom has it been presented with such remarkable honesty." Maxwell Geismar
+ N Y Times p3 Ap 25 '43 1200w

"Mr. Herbert's voice is vigorous, reckless, and impolite. It will be heard. 'Capricornia's' . . . author has only a rudimentary sense of plot, very little sense of selection, and no notion of when he has finished making his point. For all this, 'Capricornia' is one of the most powerful novels I have read in the last couple of years, though there are dull stretches. . . The impression one gets from this book is of a new country, tormented by flood and drought, but miraculously vigorous and healthy." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:72 My 1 '43 450w

"The violence of 'Capricornia' achieves in the end only incredulity—what remains as successful and often beautiful is the description of the country, both in the wet and the hot seasons, and the sympathetic treatment of Norman, of Tim O-Cannon, and some of the half-castes." R. E. Roberts
Sat R of Lit 26:10 My 1 '43 700w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 2 '43 550w

"'Capricornia' is not a romantic novel. It is prodigious in its energy, in the swarming life of its hundreds of characters, in the vast conceptions of its geographical background that covers thousands of miles, in its wild jungle treks, and its oscillation between the muddy obscenity of its city life and the atavistic savagery of its life in the jungles. Xavier Herbert has apparently known this life intimately and he has seen the tragedy of its people at close hand." William Soskin
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 25 '43 1700w
Time 41:102 My 10 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
Yale R n s 32:viii summer '43 180w

HERBERT D. HALL FOUNDATION. The machine tool primer. 280p il $2 The foundation, 1060 Broad st, Newark, N.J.
621.9 Machine tools 43-4957

"A broad introduction to the subject of machine tool use and operation, written in clear and simple language. Part one is a general discussion of metal-working processes and the various uses to which machine tools are put. Part two, while not a detailed explanation of the operation of all types of machine tools, does describe tools utilizing the basic operations of drilling, turning and boring; planing and shaping; milling and grinding. The book is well illustrated with photographs and diagrams. For beginners in machine shop training courses." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 39:458 Jl 15 '43
N Y New Tech Bks 28:46 Jl '43

HEREFORD, ROBERT A. Old Man River; the memories of Louis Rosché, pioneer steamboatman; il. by Lee Conrey and Daniel S. Bishop. 301p $3.50 Caxton printers
B or 92 Rosché, Louis. Mississippi river 43-76

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 F 27 '43 500w

"A fine volume of adventure, romance and solid information. . . Mr. Hereford loves what he writes about—otherwise he could not do so good a job. His Negro talk is above the average. The slap of paddlewheel and the muted far-off notes of steamboat whistles remain ringing in your mind after you have closed the book." G. L. Eskew
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 25 '43 650w

HERMAN, FREDERICK SAWYER. Dynamite cargo; convoy to Russia [introd. by Madeleine Carroll]. 158p il $2 Vanguard
940.545 World war, 1939—Naval operations. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. Merchant marine—U.S. 43-51109

An American merchant sailor's account of a trip to Russia in a convoy which went thru an eight day battle with Nazi planes and submarines.

Reviewed by Frank George
Book Week p10 My 16 '43 360w
Booklist 39:352 My 1 '43
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 29 '43 300w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

"It is almost unbelievable that men could stay sane through the horror of that Arctic passage as Fred Herman describes it, simply and vividly and almost without adjectives. . . Mr. Herman himself signed on again. One hopes that a young man who can write so honest and moving a book will live to write more." Marcus Duffield
+ Nation 156:710 My 15 '43 600w

"Madeleine Carroll, who writes a brief introduction, says that our country has many Fred Hermans sailing the seven seas. That may be so, but there are not many of them who can write so brilliantly as the original Fred Herman. His book has nothing literary about it, but it is literature." William McFee
+ N Y Times p9 Ap 25 '43 1150w

"Moving and well written; one of the best of its kind, in fact."
+ New Yorker 19:82 Ap 17 '43 40w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 26:7 My 15 '43 550w
Times [London] Lit Sup p14 Ja 8 '44 180w

"If any book can awaken Americans to what the Merchant Marine is doing, this book should do it." Robert Carse
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 11 '43 750w

HERMAN, STEWART WINFIELD. It's your souls we want. 315p $2.50 Harper
274.3 Germany—Religion. Church and state in Germany 43-3309

The author of this book, an American Protestant minister, lived in Berlin from 1936 to the spring of 1942. During that time, as minister of the American Church in Berlin, and later as a member of the Embassy staff, he was able to make extensive studies of the position of religion in Nazi Germany. The results of his studies are found in this book, with its title taken from a Nazi song. Index.

Booklist 39:381 Je 1 '43
Bookmark 4:3 Mr '43

Reviewed by B. L. Conway
Cath World 157:549 Ag '43 320w

"Although this well written book does not labor the point, it is full of thought-provoking parallels which provide a much needed perspective on the church-state struggle in other countries, including our own. One may open it at almost any page and find graphic descriptions of events and practices whose significance bears thoughtful consideration." H. E. Fey
+ Christian Century 60:1014 S 8 '43 800w

Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 16 '43 480w

Reviewed by W. C. Kernan
Churchman 157:17 Je 1 '43 330w

"This story of the ten years' conflict between Paganism and Christianity inside Germany is one of the most significant contributions to current world interpretation. The author, from 1936 to 1942, was pastor of the American Church in Berlin." Max Fischer
+ Commonweal 38:55 Ap 30 '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:12 Jl '43 20w

"Factual, vigorous and informing book." H. S. Leiper
+ New Repub 108:389 Mr 22 '43 650w

"A discriminating and restrained description of the religious side of the National Socialist movement." Douglas Miller
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 14 '43 1050w

"I conclude that although few readers will be willing to accept as true everything Mr. Herman writes, none will doubt that his book is a moving, absorbing and enlightening commentary on what is after all the true meaning of Adolf Hitler." G. N. Shuster
+ — Weekly Book Review p16 Ap 18 '43 1050w

HERMANN, HAUPTMANN, pseud. Luftwaffe; its rise and fall; with an introd. by Curt Riess. 300p $3 Putnam

358.4 Germany. Luftwaffe. World war, 1939 —Aerial operations 43-9310

An account first of the growth and development of the German aircraft industry during the years after 1918, and secondly of the successes of the Luftwaffe in World war II, of its decline and its probable fall in the future. The author, who writes under a pseudonym, was a German flyer in World war I and connected with the aviation industry later, but he left Germany shortly before the outbreak of World war II. Selected bibliography.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 Jl 4 '43 360w

Booklist 39:457 Jl 15 '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 28 '43 600w

"A good exposition, and well told."
+ Current Hist 5:79 S '43 200w

New Repub 109:294 Ag 30 '43 120w

"This is a book extremely valuable for its historical facts, of which it has an excellent supply, nearly every one of them fresh." Fletcher Pratt
+ N Y Times p7 Je 27 '43 700w

"His book is full of inside revelations, Luftwaffe gossip and scandal, sharp personality sketches, and what seems to be more or less exact figures on Germany's airpower potential. How much of what he writes is true, how much of it derives from his obvious hatred of the Messerschmitts and Milchs who helped to get rid of his boss, Junkers, for their own illicit purposes, the reader will have to judge for himself. In any case, the course of the war now appears to be bearing out the author's main and highly comforting contention." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:67 Je 26 '43 550w

"The book is a valuable and creditable piece of work both in composition and in style; it is rare indeed to find an author using another medium than his mother tongue with such skill and sureness of touch. It is of natural appeal to the air-minded but I would like to call the attention of the public to it, too." Murray Harris
+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 Je 26 '43 650w

Time 42:98 Jl 12 '43 350w

"Mr. Hermann leans toward the view that the Luftwaffe has been weak all along. He leans so far, in fact, that the reader may wonder about the author's sense of equilibrium." W. R. Deuel
Weekly Book Review p21 Jl 18 '43 1150w

HERRIDGE, WILLIAM DUNCAN. Which kind of revolution? 162p $1.75 Little

330.9 Economic policy. Democracy. Fascism. World war, 1939- 43-14559

The author, a Canadian politician who was minister to the United States in the early '30s, has written this book in protest against certain tendencies in the democracies which he feels will result in an anti-Communist front after the war and eventually in a conflict with Russia.

"Like most prognosticators, Herridge is long on the negative but short on the positive. His hindsight would appear to be clearer than his foresight, which he admits is nebulous. What he wants to do is cry the alarm while there is yet time. His thinking sometimes appears to be confused and even contradictory, but he is alive and forthright—naming names and boldly treading on sacred corns." Jack Conroy
Book Week p8 O 31 '43 500w

Booklist 40:190 F 1 '44

Reviewed by J. H. Powers
Boston Globe p17 O 27 '43 250w

Reviewed by F. H. Underhill
Canadian Forum 23:213 D '43 500w

Reviewed by J. K. Gordon
Nation 157:564 N 13 '43 800w

New Repub 109:925 D 27 '43 1250w

"Some will scoff at Mr. Herridge's disturbing thesis and others grow wroth. Those who prefer to meet him on his own ground may argue that even if nations devoted themselves to production for use our imperfect enlightenment might still lead through national, as once through corporate, self-interest to imperialism and war. Even a clash of communisms is conceivable while nationalism remains. And Mr. Herridge is all for nationalism. But his is not a book which anyone can put down without having been forced to think, and to have felt the impact of an original mind powerfully expressing itself." John MacCormac
N Y Times p10 O 10 '43 1050w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 O 30 '43 370w

HERRON, FRANCIS. Letters from the Argentine. 307p map $3 Putnam

918.2 Argentina—Description and travel. National characteristics, Argentine 43-12491

"Herron, for six years news editor of The Sibley Gazette Tribune, a weekly newspaper printed in the northwest corner of Iowa, went to Argentina shortly before Pearl Harbor and returned eight months later. Echoes of the war reached his letters, but his interests were not primarily international or political. His interests were the people and the country. However, out of the mass of data that he acquired and wrote about comes an understanding of the Argentine mentality—which after all varies with the contour of the land—that makes that country's political position somewhat more clear." Book Week

"A book filled with keen observations." Ernest von Hartz
+ Book Week p2 S 12 '43 550w

Booklist 40:77 N 1 '43

"Mr. Herron made many friends in Argentina, and he has succeeded in bringing a good deal of the charm of the country to these pages. He has written a book that should be read by everyone interested in Argentina or, indeed, in South America. It is the best recent book on its subject." H. A. Charles
+ Sat R of Lit 26:48 O 16 '43 360w

"The reader may be disappointed to find that the letters are only travel reports. . . Nonetheless, the book is not without intrinsic merits, being a travelog of a specific, more responsible and serious kind." Karl Loewenstein
Springf'd Republican p8 S 14 '43 600w

"It is too much to hope that these 'Letters from the Argentine' will set a style in news gathering, yet precisely such pedestrian, detailed, rather inconclusive but penetrating reportage on foreign places is needed before the common man can make himself at home in one world, and not be at the mercy of the generalizers and the torrents of terrible disconnected facts." Ernestine Evans

HERRON, FRANCIS—Continued
+ Weekly Book Review p4 S 19 '43 1350w

HERSEY, JOHN RICHARD. Into the valley; a skirmish of the marines; il. by Donald L. Dickson. 138p $2 Knopf

940.542 World war, 1939—Solomon islands. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-1318

Story of the deeds of one company of marines during a small, unimportant battle on Guadalcanal, as told by a reporter for Life, author of Men on Bataan. The story is simply and briefly told but gives many details, concerning the sights and sounds of the jungle, the conversation and reactions of men ready for battle and in the thick of the fight, of how the wounded were evacuated, and other work of unsung heroes.

Atlantic 171:123 My '43 120w

Reviewed by Will O'Neil
Book Week p1 Mr 21 '43 600w

Booklist 39:272 Mr 1 '43

Bookmark 4:14 Mr '43

"It is a great story, the kind that any war correspondent would be proud to write if he could." Allen Raymond
+ Books p5 Ja 31 '43 850w

Cath World 157:558 Ag '43 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '43

"Mr. Hersey is skilful in communicating what he saw and felt, and his skill gains strength from the fact that he describes, not a brilliant action, but an obscure one which was successful in a qualified and unspectacular way, gaining its ends only after some things had first gone wrong. His story is successfully, in fact, what it claims to be: a reality of war, seen at the closest of quarters." J. M.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 17 '43 150w

"This is the kind of book one reads, puts on the shelf, and then reads again. . . The Marines in this book are not motion-picture devil dogs. They are simple American boys, and Hersey's story about them will be part of the abiding literature of this war. It is written with the art that conceals art so completely that there is nothing to say about it. But for those who are more interested in a brush than a painting, here is a hint: Observe how the too-long sketch of the boyhood of Captain Rigaud builds a sense of impending tragedy that covers the whole expedition." Irving Brant
+ New Repub 108:292 Mr 1 '43 240w

"Mr. Hersey's moving little book brings home, as do few war stories, one of the hundreds of thousands of little episodes which make up this war. . . It is simply told, yet it reveals more about war and its weird psychology than many another so-called important volume. As a piece of writing, it might be held up alongside of Stephen Crane's 'Red Badge of Courage' without too much inflation." S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p4 F 7 '43 1000w

"A terse, faithful, moving narrative good enough at its best to remind you of Stephen Crane."
+ New Yorker 18:64 F 6 '43 60w

"This book, which can and will be read at a single sitting, grips both mind and ear in descriptive flow of fact and language. . . John Hersey has produced one of the good pieces of writing which must emerge from this war. It is so good in fact, that it leaves one touch of regret. After such an ample sentence as 'His father kept four or five cows, and they had to be filled and drained all the time,' comes a paragraph upsettingly bad for its unedited repeating of the word 'dance'. The author shows a masterful use of repetition as a true literary tool, and this makes his rare but glaring lack of revision the more distressing. I move for more from this same pen, but with the few necessary hours of revision not neglected." John Goette
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:10 F 13 '43 550w

"'Into the Valley' is a thoroughly honest and highly effective piece of reporting, which does present a vivid snapshot of what land-fighting in the southwestern Pacific involves. Maj Donald L. Dickinson, of the marine corps, has contributed 15 pencil sketches made on the spot which add a great deal to the effectiveness of the volume." R. J. Conklin
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 7 '43 480w.

Time 41:91 F 8 '43 650w

"Mr. Hersey's writing is vivid without effort and the drawings by an American Marine major are quite first-class."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p491 O 9 '43 120w

Reviewed by J. D. Adams
Yale R n s 32:790 summer '43 50w

HERSHEY, BURNET. Air future; a primer of aeropolitics. 258p $2.75 Duell

629.13 Aeronautics. Aeronautics, Military. Aeronautics, Commercial 43-16701

An attempt to forecast what part aviation will play in the post-war world—in international politics, and in social and economic conditions. Contents: An aeropolitical world; Higher, farther, faster; Overture to war; The sun never set; Horatio Alger takes wing; Russia—a thing apart; Laboratory of war; Freedom of the air; All God's chillun got wings; Bases—symbols and safeguards; The American air century; Questions—and some answers. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:107 D 1 '43

Reviewed by William Agar
Commonweal 39:18 O 22 '43 800w

"Intriguing peep into future of aviation. . . Very readable. Should be of great interest to lay reader." J. B. Fogg
+ Library J 68:622 Ag '43 70w

"Mr. Hershey's book is a sobering one, for it shows us on the one hand, the potential happy air future of teeming skyways and helicopters in every garage; and on the other, the specter of another war fought for the air dominion of the world. His formulae for the attainment of a happy air future and the avoidance of future disaster would seem entirely acceptable to Americans of good-will. Even those who might take issue with him on some point of aeropolitical dogma will find his book of value for its definition of the immense and inevitable impact of aviation upon the post-war years. No one can pretend to think or talk intelligently of the future who has not considered the role the airplane will play. Mr. Hershey's book affords a full and exciting prevision of that role." Lincoln Barnett
+ N Y Times p7 O 10 '43 1050w

"Future types of planes, regulations, bases, and other matters all get due attention in this clearly written and enthusiastic forecast."
+ New Yorker 19:85 S 25 '43 50w

Reviewed by Raymond Holden
Sat R of Lit 26:18 N 20 '43 360w

Reviewed by Walter Millis
Weekly Book Review p4 S 25 '43 950w

HERZBERG, MAX JOHN; PAINE, MERRILL PUTNAM, and WORKS, AUSTIN MELVIN. Happy landings. 322p il $2.50; school ed $1.48 Houghton

629.1308 Aeronautics in literature 42-50722

Twenty-five selections from literature about flying. Partial contents: Delayed jump, by Wolfgang Langewiesche; Night formation flight, by B. J. Lay, Jr.; Test pilot, by F. V. Drake; Ground instruction, by A. F. MacLiesh; From The airmen's alphabet, by W. H. Auden; First combats, by Richard Hillary; The challenge to America, by A. P. de Seversky; Bomber to Britain, by J. L. H. Peck; Adventure in the desert, by Antoine de Saint Exupéry; Flight over Africa, by Beryl Markham; Return to earth, by Jimmy Collins; From North to the Orient, by A. M. Lindbergh; Mr Chips ignores an air raid, by James Hilton; The coming air age, by I. I. Sikorsky. Only material of the last ten years is used.

Booklist 39:195 Ja 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '43

"Recommended for high school browsing collection. Most attractive of new aviation anthologies." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 68:131 F 1 '43 100w

"There is very little that is forced about any of the stories told in 'Happy Landings'; rather does beautiful prose and poetry seem to flow freely from the minds of men who spend their lives free, in large part, from the narrowing confines of the earth."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 17 '43 440w

"Will help meet the demand for airplane material from boys and interest many others."

+ Wis Lib Bul 39:11 Ja '43

HESSEL, FREDERICK ADAM; HESSEL, MRS MARY STANLEY (HINRICHS), and MARTIN, WELLFORD. Chemistry in warfare; its strategic importance; with a technical appendix. new rev & enl ed 179p il $2 Hastings house

623.45 Chemical warfare 43-802

Revised edition of a book which first appeared in 1940 (Book Review Digest, 1940). It summarizes the contributions of chemistry to modern warfare, in food, clothing, preventive medicines, and other forms of protection for the soldier; guns, bombs, and explosives; steel and its products—battleships, tanks and planes; gases and incendiaries. Bibliography.

"The book will provide a pleasant evening's reading largely because of the interesting style of the writers. A good bibliography of some 80 references tells where to look for more complete coverage." R. C. Kintner

+ Book Week p9 Ap 4 '43 180w

"The only criticism which might be offered is that correction was not carried far enough. For example, they still say that the Graf Spee was sunk 'last December' (p. 104) and 50 lb. of toluene are required to produce 1 lb. of T.N.T. (p. 159). Errors of this type give evidence of too much haste in preparing the new edition."

Chem & Met Eng 50:194 D '43 100w

"Although the authors have not produced, and probably did not try to produce, a popularly written account of chemical research, the subject itself is a fascinating one, and the clear objective treatment it receives here emphasizes its intrinsic interest." C. T.

+ Current Hist 4:85 Mr '43 130w

"A well written account of the way that chemistry has become an essential weapon." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 4 '43 80w

HESSEL, MRS MARY STANLEY (HINRICHS); MURPHY, WALTER JOSEPH, and HESSEL, FREDERICK ADAM. Strategic materials in hemisphere defense; with a section on petroleum by Harold J. Wasson. 235p $2.50 Hastings house

338 Commercial products. World war, 1939— Economic aspects 42-22072

Statistical presentation of essential materials which normally are imported, as well as copper, zinc, lead, petroleum, chemicals and drying oils. Gives their sources, uses, substitutes and stock available. Includes a brief survey of materials that Latin America can provide. Bibliography.

Booklist 39:63 N 1 '42

"As a book on the background of those raw materials originally designated as 'strategic' and 'critical,' this volume is excellent, and it has a style that should make it interesting and comprehensible to the beginner. But the book hardly lives up to its impressive title. Too much of the data gives evidence that it follows the reports of the various strategic materials committees which functioned prior to Pearl Harbor." G. S. Brady

+ — Chem & Met Eng 50:216 N '43 350w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:589 Ap '43 40w

"Since one of the authors is editor of a chemical journal and another president of a commercial research laboratory concerned with these materials, the discussion (at the time of publication) was as up-to-date as the day's newspaper, and is presented with the sanity characteristic of business undertakings. It is interesting reading also, for the authors possess the skill to present their material so clearly that it is never dull. Strangely enough, there is no index and the table of contents is so abridged that the only means the reader has of finding a specific topic is to read the whole book, unless he is able to guess that the discussion of molybdenum is in the chapter on steel, while that of magnesium is in the chapter on chemicals. Even with this defect, it is the most useful of books on the subject, since it is the only one that is really up-to-date." T. T. Read

+ — Pol Sci Q 58:148 Mr '43 260w

HETHERINGTON, JOHN AIKMAN. Airborne invasion; the story of the battle of Crete. 178p $2.50 Duell

940.542 Crete, Battle of, 1941. World war, 1939—Aerial operations 43-11817

An account of the invasion and fall of Crete by an Australian war correspondent. The record includes personal adventure, observations on the technical aspects of the fighting, and comments on the controversial questions of whether Crete should have been defended and how.

"A brilliantly detailed account and analysis of the most revolutionary tactic this war has produced, airborne invasion." Sterling North

+ Book Week p3 Ag 8 '43 450w

Booklist 40:9 S '43

"'Airborne Invasion' is more than just another war book, it is an attempt to record history, to sort out and set down accurately and in proper sequence the tangled tragedy and heroism of those volcanic days—so far as this reviewer knows the only attempt outside the archives of the War Office." E. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 11 '43 360w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '43

"There will be other and better books on the battle of Crete. The author's collection of vivid incidents and first-hand accounts is thrown together without sufficient consideration for the reader's desire to analyze sequences of time and timing. Nevertheless, during these days, when the problem of island invasion is uppermost in the minds of us all, a careful perusal of 'Airborne Invasion' offers ample food for thought." Lawrence Thompson

+ — N Y Times p5 Ag 1 '43 1000w

"It is good that we should have a book now on the Battle of Crete. If ever there was a desperate, hopeless fight it was that fight; if ever there was a band of heroes, it was Major-General Bernard Freyberg and his men. John Hetherington, the Australian correspondent who has been covering the Middle East and Mediterranean area for three years and a half, watched that fight and he has written a report of it that should go down in history." P. R. Knauth

+ Sat R of Lit 26:37 Ag 21 '43 1100w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 800w

"Hetherington, an able Australian war correspondent, has done a scientifically thorough job of accumulating all the pertinent facts and figures about the Cretan campaign. If the book has a fault, it is that it's written more from the military point of view than from the human." Robert St. John

+ — Weekly Book Review p15 Ag 8 '43 1350w

HEWES, J. V. High courts of heaven: a story of the R.A.F. 240p $2 Doubleday [7s 6d Davies]
(W) 43-2268

A story of one R.A.F. squadron during the battle of Britain. It follows in particular the stories of four men, Oliver, Lloyd, Chacksfield and Barham who arrived at Goudhurst in Sussex together on the night of August 5, 1940, and were all dead by September 16.

Booklist 39:333 Ap 15 '43
Bookmark 4:18 My '43

"'The High Courts of Heaven' is a grim and relentless narrative of war, filled with the sound of giant motors and staccato beat of machine guns, and it leaves your eardrums tingling and your nerves on edge. Mr. Hewes wants you to feel what war is like, and he brings it off with notable success." Lisle Bell
+ Books p22 Ja 17 '43 200w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 10 '42 50w

"Packed with sharp-etched descriptions of air combats over England during the battle's crucial weeks are numerous fine points of pilot psychology: the effects of nerve shock, the danger of overconfidence in ardent neophytes, what cautions a squadron leader can express to a pilot that will help him to survive his first battle and what must be left to the expensive school of experience." Drake de Kay
+ N Y Times p20 Ja 17 '43 400w

"A rather amateurishly novelized account. . . When the author is giving us straight detail, he is superb; when he attempts characterization, he fails. Nevertheless, this will stand as one of the most thrilling and authentic stories of the big blitz."
New Yorker 18:51 Ja 9 '43 60w

"The book has two good points: an unusual (and true) sense of the strain—physical, mental, moral, nervous—of keeping aircraft and aircrews in the air throughout weeks of continuous emergency; and the story's quiet ending on a note of dignified, unexpected and yet unforced tragedy. A curiously mixed book—its best good enough to bear no relationship whatever with its worst." H. G.
+ — Spec 168:424 My 1 '42 170w

Reviewed by C. C. Trubey
Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 18 '43 330w

"Whenever Mr. Hewes gets his men into the air truth gets into the cockpit with them. Mr. Hewes knows his Hurricane—what it can do, how it should be fought, how in fact its squadrons did use it to meet and defeat the odds of those weeks. Goudhurst, the squadron, is after all the hero of this yarn: Goudhurst, which filled up the holes in its aerodrome and the holes in its list of pilots, which patched its riddled planes, cleared up its wreckage and itself survived the deaths of its pilots because they went on till they dropped. Mr. Hewes gives us this; and it is something to be going on with in the long account of glory."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p173 Ap 4 '42 360w

HEWITT, ARTHUR WENTWORTH. The shepherdess. 200p $1.75 Willett
253 Clergymen's wives 43-5971

Book of advice addressed to the wives of clergymen, covering a variety of topics from personal habits to the niceties of presiding at public meetings. Index.

Reviewed by E. C. Thompson
Churchman 157:16 Je 1 '43 120w

"From all reports this is the first book of counsel for the minister's wife. Even if there were others, it is difficult to believe that they would be serious competitors. . . Dr. Hewitt is evidently a man of liberal mind and generous character, who has developed by experience an equilibrium of seriousness and humor that is the true sanity. . . While the book sheds a direct light upon the 'Shepherdess,' let the Shepherd himself beware! Educators and engineers agree that the best form of illumination for reading is indirect lighting." R. E. Keighton
+ Crozer Q 20:263 Jl '43 200w

HEWITT, EDWARD RINGWOOD. Those were the days; tales of a long life. 318p $3 Duell
B or 92 43-51333

Reminiscences of a grandson of Peter Cooper, the son of Abram S. Hewitt, one time mayor of New York, as was his father before him. The book abounds in anecdotes of many of the mechanical geniuses of the nineteenth century —Maxim, Edison, Monel, and Tesla. Andrew Carnegie was a personal friend and some new stories about him are included. The period covered is some seventy years, with brief glances back over most of the years of American history.

"In his informal and placid way, Hewitt has put together a remarkably entertaining collection of anecdotes and vignettes of the great ones of several generations. Abraham Lincoln, Ulysses Grant, the Sultan of Turkey, Buffalo Bill, Hudson Maxim, Jay Gould and Andrew Carnegie are some of the stellar performers, but not a few of the minor characters are fully as diverting." Jack Conroy
+ Book Week p31 D 5 '43 700w
Booklist 40:144 D 15 '43
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 29 '44 600w

"'Those Were the Days' is a good book, especially a good book for New Yorkers, though anyone can relish it. It is written with almost no system or attempt at chronological sequence. What is more, such volumes add a great deal to historical knowledge, for they humanize the past and serve to correct 'official' versions of events. . . [It] criminally lacks an index."
+ — Commonweal 39:183 D 3 '43 650w

"His book is crammed with anecdotal nuggets garnered from the famous people he has known and his adventures on moor and stream. . . But the value of Mr. Hewitt's book does not lie so much in its vivid and significant pictures of a surprisingly diversified and active career as in its proof that in an era usually associated with the corruption of the Tweed Ring, the looting of the Erie by Gould and Fiske, and the 'Gold Rush' of the 'robber barons' and their families to crash the gates of Fifth Avenue society, there were living in New York City honorable and patriotic citizens who were conscious of the responsibilities of wealth and who sought to build rather than to destroy." Arthur Train
+ N Y Times p3 D 19 '43 2300w
New Yorker 19:99 D 18 '43 90w

"'Those Were the Days' is an after-dinner conversation—leisurely, vivacious, interested, witty, urbane, mellow—extending without ennui to more than three hundred pages, and although it does not profess to be autobiography it becomes, in the end, a beautiful and rather moving self-portrait. What the reader is likely to remember longest is not the amazing series of good anecdotes that Mr. Hewitt tells with endless enjoyment, good as they are, but a serene, golden Horatian quality that pervades every chapter." George Genzmer
+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 D 11 '43 400w
Time 42:95 D 27 '43 1800w

"The yarns and inside stories packed between these covers will brighten many a dinner table for weeks to come. They will take their place among the amazing Americana of that era when business and getting ahead weren't frustrated by too high a moral code." Richardson Wright
+ Weekly Book Review p2 D 19 '43 1050w

HEWITT, KATHLEEN DOUGLAS. Mice are not amused. 272p $2 Arcadia [8s 6d Jarrolds]
43-7889

Spy story of London in wartime, with a girl who attempts to do a man's work as heroine. Glenda Blake takes a head-porter's job in a large apartment house, and with "friendly aliens," Nazis, a doctor's daughter who is always talking about mice, thefts, and murder, she has her hands full.

"It's a well-knit story, with spies and love taking equal honors throughout the many complications." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p6 Je 6 '43 200w

"A clumsily constructed yarn which leans much too heavily on coincidence." Isaac Anderson
— N Y Times p8 My 30 '43 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Je 20 '43 50w

HEXNER, ERVIN. International steel cartel. 339p $6 Univ. of N.C. press

338.4 Trusts, Industrial. Steel industry and trade 43-1940

"Analysis of one of the most powerful and yet least known of the pre-war international industrial combines. The complex and often bewildering structure of the cartel, which was based upon a loose alliance of numerous national and individual export groups, is carefully dissected, and its attempts to control world markets are effectively described. Although Dr. Hexner underestimates the baneful political influence of the cartel, he points out that we may be able to adapt its type of organization for socially useful purposes after the war." (New Repub) Index.

"A comprehensive and well-documented study about one of the most important, and also one of the most controversial, instruments of international economic cooperation. . . To this reviewer, Hexner's treatment of the political implications of the steel cartels appears somewhat vague and inconclusive and perhaps not fully convincing; nor do the lengthy digressions of idealism and realism in world politics, of Chamberlain at Munich, or Thyssen and Hitler, shed any new light on the focal questions of national and international economic control. But this criticism does not touch the main body of the work, which is highly informative, and which will prove of considerable help to both economists and political scientists who are interested in the important task of reorganizing the world's steel markets at a future peace table." Fritz Ermarth
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:758 Ag '43 450w

"This is a 'must' book because it contains new source materials. . . This book is written from the inside. The scholar-author was not only a technical student of international business, but was one of the co-ordinators of the trade policies of the Czechoslovak steel industry, a constituent part of the International Steel Cartel. Therefore he was not wholly dependent on written materials, as most students have been. He knew the states of mind and the personalities involved in its management. . . As professor of economics at the University of North Carolina he has had the opportunity to reflect upon his experiences and to put them at the disposition of American students. He does so dispassionately, scientifically, and without selecting facts to prove any preconceived theory." O. T. Mallery
+ Ann Am Acad 229:222 S '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:157 O '43 30w

"A well documented and judicious analysis. . . Post-war planners should not ignore this worthwhile suggestion."
+ New Repub 108:518 Ap 19 '43 90w

"The concluding chapter discusses, among other topics, the relationship of the international steel cartel to the framework of government policy and general law within which it operated, and its past performance and future possibilities in contributing to the stabilization of our civilization. To this reviewer's mind, this discussion shows the same sound mixture of vision and sober, unemotional and unbiased realism which distinguishes the book throughout. A lengthy appendix contains documentary and statistical material, and an index completes the book." Herbert von Beckerath
+ Pol Sci Q 58:282 Je '43 750w

"The volume does not attempt theoretical treatment. In fact the author repeatedly disavows such an approach. Yet there are necessary references and implications as for example to inelasticity of demand, foreign dumping, etc. As an enlightening description presented with scholarly caution and with a realization of the intricacies and difficulties of the subject, it is excellent." E. M. Patterson
+ Social Forces 22:227 D '43 550w

HEYDENAU, FRIEDRICH. Wrath of the eagles; a novel of the Chetniks; tr. by Barrows Mussey. 318p $2.50 Dutton

43-7868

A fictionized account of the guerrilla fighting against the Axis in Yugoslavia. The story is told largely from the point of view of an imaginary American officer who has brought the Chetniks military supplies and decided to stay with them. The real hero of the novel is, however, General Mikhailovich. The conclusion is projected some time in the future with the coming of really formidable help from the Allies.

"Description of both the military life and the mountainous countryside of southern Yugoslavia is realistic and convincing. Although style is journalistic and without much literary merit, it makes interesting wartime reading." Rice Estes
+ Library J 68:476 Je 1 '43 70w

"There is a strange silence in the book about the activity of the Partisans, that other guerrilla army in Yugoslavia which gets so little publicity because it does not have the blessing of the Yugoslav Government-in-Exile. 'Wrath of the Eagles,' if you race through it merely as a Robin Hood adventure story, is exciting reading. And you do learn a lot about the Yugoslav countryside, Frederick Heydenau's publishers were well advised in stressing his knowledge of Yugoslav geography." Robert St. John
+ — N Y Times p6 Je 27 '43 800w

"The stirring accounts of the Chetnik raids have the ring of authenticity. So, unfortunately, have the atrocities of the Ustashis and Axis troops."
+ New Yorker 19:70 Je 26 '43 100w

Reviewed by Emanuel Slotnick
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 20 '43 600w

" 'The Wrath of the Eagles,' like most of the novels about underground Europe which have appeared so far, is more of a tract for liberty than a story. Underground Europe is a great theme, but the novel which will make us see, hear, smell and feel it has yet to be published." Virgilia Sapieha
+ — Weekly Book Review p10 Je 20 '43 750w

HEYEL, CARL, ed. Foreman's handbook. 410p il $3 McGraw

658.3124 Foremen. Factory management. Efficiency, Industrial 43-2990

"Reference manual for the foreman who wants to make the most of his job and prepare himself for larger responsibilities. Eighteen experts combine in it to give you the facts you need on every phase of the work, from direct day-to-day supervising production, to the background of economic and management fundamentals needed to qualify you for advancement." (Publisher's note) Index.

"The book is well written in an elementary manner. . . It is recommended as a good survey of the field of foremanship." C. L. H.
+ Book Week p10 Mr 28 '43 200w
Booklist 39:349 My 1 '43
Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:44 Jl '43

"This is a welcome addition to the growing list of books designed to tell the foreman what he should know today and to prepare him for what may come tomorrow. The book is of the 'editor plus collaborators' variety, which means that the collaborators determine its merits or defects. The author has chosen wisely contributors who are all well known in their respective fields. Some of them are recognized as high authorities." J. M. Juran

HEYEL, CARL—Continued
+ N Y Times p19 Jl 11 '43 200w

"An excellent and simply written manual. . . Because of the skill of the editor, despite the diversified authorship and the fact that each chapter is in itself a complete discussion of the subject, the entire book is a unified presentation of the things that a foreman should know and do." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p25 Mr 28 '43 230w

HEYER, GEORGETTE (MRS G. R. ROUGIER). Penhallow. 309p $2.50 Doubleday [9s 6d Heinemann] 43-12653

A murder story but not a mystery story. At first apparently a picture of family life in a Cornish setting in the middle thirties, the tale as it develops shows why anyone of Adam Penhallow's family might have been his murderer and why his second wife was actually the one driven to perform the deed.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 S 5 '43 450w
Booklist 40:47 O 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

"The best psychological murder story of this and several seasons past." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p12 Ag 15 '43 320w

"Smooth enough entertainment if you don't expect too much of it."
New Yorker 19:66 Ag 28 '43 110w

"There are moments when the author manages to produce a scene or two that rise above the monotony of the violent language and of the repetitious unpleasantness of the family gathering, but for the most part the novel has little entertainment." Bess Jones
— Sat R of Lit 26:24 S 18 '43 230w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 390w

"The true value of the story depends primarily on the characterization and interplay of the many persons involved, all of them admirably portrayed and differentiated and, except for old Penhallow, only just perceptibly romanticized. None of them strongly invites our sympathy. They are all powerfully self-centered, with no interest in matters outside their own personal affairs. But we come to know them very well, and for some of them come to feel if not admiration, at least a certain liking. . . Within the limits she has imposed upon herself, Miss Heyer has built up an impressive drama of family life, though it is not representative of our own times."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p537 O 31 '42 360w

"'Penhallow' brims with unbridled emotions, and Miss Heyer serves them up without dilution." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p17 Ag 22 '43 180w

HEYNEMAN, ANNE (MRS HUGH KAPPEL), and KAPPEL, HUGH. Happy hippopotamus. [32]p il $1.75 Scribner
43-16588

Picture story book for the very young, describing the antics of a herd of hippopotamuses when they were fenced in by two gullible hunters.

"A very funny picture book with an endearing hero and a gentle moral." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p2 N 14 '43 180w
Booklist 40:184 Ja 15 '44

"Maybe it's her husband's collaboration which has helped to make this book so gay, playful and entertaining. This kind of humor with a meaning is a rare feature; it's simple enough and yet has substance and a flavor that lingers in one's mind." Fritz Eichenberg
+ Horn Bk 20:20 Ja '44 70w

"Children who liked William Wigglewhistle by same author will welcome this as 'funny book.'" R. O. Bostwick
+ Library J 68:1050 D 15 '43 80w

"Pure nonsense is a wonderful instrument for pointing out truth. The children who laugh with and over Stubby will remember him when they find they have accomplished an impossible task and, in the meantime, here is sheer tomfoolishness to enjoy." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p8 Ja 9 '44 180w

"A pleasant picture book with cheerful illustrations."
+ New Yorker 19:119 D 4 '43 70w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 5 '43 110w

HIBBITS, JOHN JOSEPH. Take 'er up alone, Mister! as told to F. E. Rechnitzer. (Whittlesey house publication) 234p il $2.50 McGraw

358.4 U.S.—Army—Air corps. Aeronautics, Military 43-13460

A heavy bomber pilot of the United States army air forces, describes every step in his progress from the day he enlisted to his graduation to the pilot's seat of a Liberator bomber. For young readers with flying ambitions, and their friends and families.

"Not the least of the virtues of 'Take 'Er Up Alone, Mister!' is its authenticity. It is told with modesty, candor and vigor. The authenticity is heightened by photographs made by Lt. Leslie Bland, an Air Forces photographer, that follow Lt. Hibbits and his instructors and fellow-students through the several steps of the training process." Frederic Hudson
+ Book Week p9 S 26 '43 290w
Booklist 40:54 O 15 '43

"Recommended for young people's collections. Note: where funds are limited, better compare with Ryan's Spin in, Dumbwhacks, which covers same ground in lighter vein." M. C. Scoggin
+ Library J 68:773 O 1 '43 120w

"The luxurious coated stock used in the publication recalls the high school annual. Unfortunately the resemblance does not stop there. Mr. Rechnitzer, writing the story for Lieutenant Hibbits, does badly. Lieutenant Hibbits gives sighs of relief. He makes the big team. His instructor's jaw drops. . . Lieutenant Hibbits is a flier. He is embarrassingly out of his element when he offers advice to civilians on the subject of keeping closed mouths and buying bonds. All this spoils the book. Nevertheless, it is something of a homespun story—perhaps, strangely enough, because of its chestnuts. There are accuracy and detail, both in full measure, for those who want to follow the cadet's every step to his wings. The book is for those alone." George Barrett
— + N Y Times p31 O 3 '43 600w

"There is little that Hibbits' tale can add to the flood of books and articles on the same subject, but it is well and breezily told and contains thirty-seven illustrations."
Weekly Book Review p18 O 3 '43 100w

HICKEY, JOSEPH J. A guide to bird watching; with il. by Francis Lee Jaques and bird tracks by Charles A. Urner. 262p $3.50 Oxford

598.2 Birds 43-16391

Handbook for the amateur bird watcher. Contents: How to begin bird study; The lure of migration watching; Adventures in bird counting; Explorations in bird distribution; The romance of bird banding; The art of bird watching. The appendix contains: A. An introduction to bird tracks; B. Some results of breeding-bird censuses; C. Outline for a life-history study; D. An annotated list of bird books; E. Bird clubs in Canada and the United States. Index.

Booklist 40:108 D 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '43

"It is an excellent job."
+ Commonweal 39:121 N 19 '43 30w

"Valuable appendices . . . and excellent, very inclusive, annotated list of books. Illustrated by Francis Lee Jaques. Can be highly recommended to all libraries for authoritative, readable content, and valuable references." L. M. Kinloch

+ Library J 68:666 S 1 '43 90w

"While noting the aesthetic side of bird watching, Mr. Hickey's book places most emphasis on 'the unexplored bypaths of ornithology; the blank pages in our knowledge of bird life.' His volume is likely to have a lasting effect by giving direction to the enthusiasm of many amateurs. It is an inspiring and practical book; one of the most satisfying volumes of the kind I have read in many years." E. W. Teale

+ Weekly Book Review p2 D 19 '43 600w

Wis Lib Bul 40:6 Ja '44

HICKMAN, FRANKLIN SIMPSON. Signs of promise; with an introd. by Charles A. Ellwood. 186p $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

230 Christianity. Sociology, Christian. Civilization, Christian 43-5306

The Mendenhall lectures for 1942. "The lectures attempt to come to grips with the significance of religious faith for a world passing through the convulsion of a world revolution." (Foreword) The author is professor of preaching and dean of the chapel, Duke university.

Christian Century 60:298 Mr 10 '43 70w

Reviewed by H. L. Bowman

J Religion 23:225 Jl '43 180w

HICKS, HERBERT J. Principles and practice of radio servicing. 2d ed 391p il $3.50 McGraw

621.384 Radio 43-7573

"Written for 'radio service men, present and future.' The principles are briefly, yet carefully, explained and the applications of these to the parts of a radio receiver are then discussed. The last chapter deals with the business side of radio servicing. Though the second edition, much of the material is new, and the book will help greatly in keeping radio sets running despite war-time shortages." (Weekly Book Review) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1939. Index.

"This book sticks closely to its purpose of giving the troubleshooter enough background information to help him do this job. It is not a low-level book or one written for casual reading."

+ Book Week p11 Je 13 '43 70w

Booklist 39:467 Jl 15 '43

Library J 68:575 Jl '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:33 Ap '43

"While there is a minimum of mathematics (a common omission even in the best of the 'short cuts' to radio), it is no elementary work, and requires concentration as well as natural interest in the subject-matter." George Barrett

N Y Times p42 S 26 '43 400w

"Intensely practical." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p19 Jl 11 '43 100w

HIGGINS, ALEXANDER PEARCE, and COLOMBOS, CONSTANTINE JOHN. International law of the sea. 647p $17 (42s) Longmans

341.57 Maritime law A43-2002

"A text on a single branch of international law. It is twice the length of Professor Potter's book [The Freedom of the Sea, published in 1924] and takes up first the law of the sea in time of peace, and later the law in time of war. About half the book is given to each division. . . The first half of the book deals adequately and clearly with the jurisdiction of states, and the limits to exercising such jurisdiction, over the high seas, and contiguous territorial waters, such as bays, straits, rivers, and canals. It gives the rules of law which have developed within the scope of the title. It shows the historical setting of the various rules and how they have been applied. . . The latter half of the book is more interesting than the first because of the changes in the conduct of war since 1914 and their effect upon the law as it then existed." Harvard Law R

Reviewed by R. S. Morris

Harvard Law R 57:267 D '43 550w

Manchester Guardian p3 My 5 '43 250w

"A most valuable and timely work."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p302 Je 26 '43 600w

HIGGY, ROBERT CHARLES. Fundamental radio experiments. 95p $1.50 Wiley

621.384 Radio 43-16616

Laboratory manual describing thirty-two experiments or tests presenting the fundamentals of electricity and radio, with an explanation of principles involved and laboratory procedure. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 20w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p8 Ja 9 '44 100w

HILDEBRAND, DIETRICH VON. Liturgy and personality. (Golden measure ser) 218p $2 Longmans

264.02 Roman Catholic church—Liturgy and ritual. Personality 43-4804

"The spiritual formation of the individual who lives in accordance with the spirit of the [Roman Catholic] liturgy, and the personality thereby developed, is the important theme of this work by the well-known German theologian now living in the United States. His treatment of the theme embraces an analysis of the essence of the liturgy and of personality, and the development of personality in general." Publisher's note

"These pages will stimulate the aspirations and wisely guide the efforts of souls dedicated to the pursuit of holiness—although the reader must be prepared to encounter abstract ideas not always crystal clear. The reservations made in the opening pages hardly provide sufficient counter-balance to some exaggerated statements which seem to exclude the possibility of arriving at perfection by any other means than the Liturgy. . . Nevertheless, Dr. von Hildebrand has given us a valuable work which will enable those who know 'how to read a book,' to intensify their participation in the liturgical life of the Church. It is very evidently the fruit not only of profound study but of deep inner experience."

+ — Cath World 157:220 My '43 360w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

"How empty all other 'personality guides' become before the picture unfolded by Dietrich Von Hildebrand! Indeed, how soon personality analysis itself is forgotten in reading this work. What impresses is the beauty and splendor of the Liturgy. Primarily the book is a hymn to the Liturgy. It is only on second reading and reflection that one perceives the skill with which the author has illustrated the essential qualities of personality. Equally penetrating are his analysis of defective, incomplete and false personality traits. The whole is so concrete that the reader cannot fail to recognize himself and others." Emerson Hynes

+ Commonweal 38:50 Ap 30 '43 1000w

HILL, ALFRED TUXBURY, ed. Campus and classroom. 347p $1.52 Harper

810.8 American literature—Collections. Education—U.S. 42-21744

"Selections in the form of short stories, excerpts from novels, and essays on school and college life. Intended for reading in high schools and provided with questions for thought and discussion." Wis Lib Bul

Booklist 39:134 D 15 '42

Wis Lib Bul 39:26 F '43

HILL, MABEL BETSY. Along comes Judy Jo; pictures by [the author]. 124p $1.50 Stokes 43-12461

Story of Judy Jo's summer in Duck Light Cove when she was ten and a half, culminating in the doll show given by the Willing Workers to aid an Orphan's home. For third and fourth grade girls.

Booklist 40:82 N 1 '43

"A sunny realistic story of nineteenth century childhood in New England." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:318 S '43 60w

"Third and fourth-grade girls will enjoy, but probably too many dolls to interest boys. Many illustrations in black and white by the author add much to setting." A. M. Anderson
Library J 68:728 S 15 '43 90w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 60w

"Judy Jo is beginning to grow up a little as she comes along, and the story is appropriately more grown up. But it is marked by the same simple charm that distinguished her earlier history, and mothers will be grateful."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 90w
Wis Lib Bul 39:161 D '43

HILL, RUSSELL. Desert conquest. 339p maps $3 Knopf

940.542 World war, 1939—Campaigns and battles—Africa, North. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-15206

The Herald Tribune reporter, who at twenty was assistant to Joseph Barnes in Berlin, serving at the same time as assistant to William L. Shirer, has written his second book about the war in North Africa. This is a close-up of the Eighth army campaign back and forth across North Africa, beginning in June, 1942.

"Russell Hill's picture of the ground and air sides of war is balanced. And he injects enough about his own experiences to document his whole report and give it a continually personal touch. His narrative style is well above average and his publishers have included excellent maps to help you see what happened." J. I. Greene
+ Book Week p19 N 14 '43 230w
Booklist 40:112 D 1 '43

"This is a good piece of reporting and is like reading 'between the lines' of the news currently released by the papers." Margaret Winning
+ Library J 68:890 N 1 '43 90w

"Mr. Hill has skillfully combined a clear, nontechnical account of the principal moves of the rival armies with a convincing picture of what the desert war really looked like to the men who were doing the fighting. There is also generous praise in his book for the British First Army and the American Second Corps, which shared with the Eighth Army the final triumph in Tunisia, but it is Montgomery and his 'Desert Rats' who live most vividly in his account." F. S. Adams
+ N Y Times p47 N 21 '43 280w
Springf'd Republican p6 D 6 '43 390w

"'Desert Conquest' contains no artificial bids for popularity and no lyrical or melodramatic devices. Instead, Russell Hill has done a first-class job of war reporting coupled with sound analysis, honesty and fairness. His book is well balanced, a remarkably mature piece of work from a veteran war correspondent of twenty-five." Leland Stowe
+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 31 '43 900w

HILTNER, SEWARD. Religion and health. 292p $2.50 Macmillan

258 Medicine and religion. Mental hygiene. Medicine, Clerical 43-1141

"A book for religious workers which explains the significance of religion for physical and mental health. Partial contents: What mental hygiene teaches the church—the religious worker and mental illnesses—Pastoral counseling—Pastoral work and community resources—The church in relation to hospitals and other institutions." (Booklist) Index.

"Public health workers will do well to be familiar with a rapidly growing movement in the churches which has enormous potentials for healthy minded attitudes toward mental and physical health. The book is commended." R. M. Atwater
+ Am J Pub Health 33:607 My '43 120w
Booklist 39:285 Mr 15 '43

"It would be no serious deviation from the canons of strict truthfulness to say that the word 'useful' gives a reasonably clear idea of Dr. Hiltner's book on the relation of religion to health. Although it gives evidence of first-hand contacts with the problems with which it deals, it is not outstanding for its original contributions to its field. It is, however, noteworthy for its sanity and practicalness. To say that no other book in the field has more possibilities of being valuable to both preacher and layman is not an exaggeration." L. H. Chrisman
+ Christian Century 60:423 Ap 7 '43 500w

"It is a good book for a general background study of the whole subject with which the author deals. It is the tendency of the author to take in too wide a field and to deal rather sketchily with the matter in hand. It would be well if some editor had told him to cut the book to one third its length." H. J. Simpson
+ Churchman 157:19 Ap 15 '43 240w

Reviewed by Alexander Mackie
Crozer Q 21:74 Ja '44 850w

"A very useful book. To begin with, it broadens the concept of the relations between religion and health by reminding us that Christian interest in bodily welfare began with Jesus' healing ministry... Dr. Hiltner's style is clean cut. He is as easy to read as he is to listen to when he is on a platform. His writing, like his speech, deals immediately with matters of central concern." W. B. Blakemore, Jr.
+ J Religion 23:223 Jl '43 900w

Reviewed by E. R. Groves
Social Forces 22:226 D '43 320w

"By all means this is a book which ministers and all other persons in the Church who work with people may well desire to possess." Russell Bowie
+ Weekly Book Review p28 N 21 '43 750w

HILTON, JAMES. Story of Dr Wassell. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 158p $1.50 Little

B or 92 Wassell, Corydon McAlmont 43-51118

The true story of the navy doctor from Arkansas who took care of the wounded American officers and men from the Houston and the Marblehead in Java. Later he succeeded in getting most of the men safely to Australia and was awarded the Navy Cross for his superb courage.

"The author does not portray this man as a hero, in the heroic sense: the doctor makes mistakes, has self-doubts, his temper gets frayed, he has good luck and bad and stands by his men on nothing more prepossessing than the normal human qualities of skill and devotion. He grows on you with these qualities, this unpretentious man with the Arkansas accent, as he grew on the men whom he attended. Hilton's telling of his story is tender and convincing." Nelson Algren
+ Book Week p6 My 2 '43 400w
Booklist 39:354 My 1 '43

"James Hilton is to be commended for his restrained and skillful treatment of a story that is as poignant as it is dramatic. The hospital scenes are naturally of a clinical character, and the repetitious introduction of mild drinking would seem superfluous, but the book as a whole is so compact and taut with suspense that to read it is a memorable experience." M. W. S.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 27 '43 550w
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '43

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
Nation 156:710 My 15 '43 240w
Reviewed by Clark Lee
N Y Times p6 My 9 '43 750w

"A moving story though somewhat sentimentalized. Oddly enough, Dr. Wassell turns out to be something of a Hilton hero too. He doesn't seem quite adequate at first, but comes through in the pinch."
+ New Yorker 19:80 Ap 24 '43 90w

"Mr. Hilton has told a great history with his usual clarity and simplicity and the inoffensive sentimentality that all of his readers know, but to this reviewer Mr. Hilton seems to have paid inadequate attention to the grim and unsentimental heroism of the boys who were actually doing the suffering. That is probably a bigger story." Phil Stong
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:12 My 15 '43 700w

"In the course of the book Mr. Hilton builds up the personalities of Dr. Wassell's 'boys' just sufficiently to make the group live, and the story move vividly from point to point. One of the striking characteristics of Mr. Hilton's method is that he never offers any cloying obiter dicta about the nature and character of the heroic Arkansas doctor. . . It is no news to readers of 'Good-bye Mr. Chips,' that Mr. Hilton would know exactly what to do in a semi-fictional narrative with such a man as Dr. Wassell!" F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 25 '43 1250w
Reviewed by J. D. Adams
Yale R n s 32:790 summer '43 50w

HILTON, RONALD, ed. Handbook of Hispanic source materials and research organizations in the United States; with a foreword by Herbert I. Priestley [prepared under the auspices of the Bancroft library]. 441p $5 Univ. of Toronto press [22s 6d Oxford]

980 Latin America—Civilization. Spain—Civilization. Portugal—Civilization 42-11990

"'A series of statements describing collections of Hispanic source materials and organizations engaged in Hispanic research in the United States.' The source materials listed include those in the fine arts, humanities, social services, and occasionally natural sciences. Arrangement is alphabetical by locality. A supplement containing information on additional collections and a conspectus of the whole field according to subject matter is to be published later." Booklist

Reviewed by A. P. Whitaker
Am Hist R 48:383 Ja '43 450w
Booklist 38:423 Jl 1 '42
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:168 O '43 20w

HINDEN, RITA. Plan for Africa; a report prepared for the Colonial bureau of the Fabian society; foreword by A. Creech Jones [maps by J. F. Horrabin]. 224p maps $2.50 Norton [7s 6d Allen, G]

330.9689 Great Britain—Colonies—Africa. Africa—Economic conditions 42-12851

"Using Northern Rhodesia and the Gold Coast as examples, Dr. Hinden analyzes the shortcomings of British colonial policy in Africa and makes a number of concrete proposals for reform. This report was prepared for the Colonial Bureau of the Fabian Society." (Foreign Affairs) Bibliographical note. Index.

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:15 Jl '43 40w

"A balanced and not unwieldy picture, full of pointed detail, and indispensable to everyone with an interest in Africa or in the meaning and character of British colonial rule. . . However, the radical changes she proposes in colonial economic arrangements cannot take place until certain basic features of world economy change too. Here is an issue of political, and doubtless military, power. A fully realist plan for the colonies needs to make some explicit assumptions about its handling and its probable outcome." L. B.
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 13 '42 330w

"In the author's view this policy, by creating new African markets for European industry, would enormously enrich both imperial and colonial countries. These practical suggestions are among those which are now advocated by the widespread and increasing body of people interested in colonial problems, to whom Dr. Hinden's book offers a valuable service." Freda White
+ New Statesman & Nation 23:293 My 2 '42 470w

"To give information and to stimulate inquiry are the first tasks of the reformer, and Dr. Hinden has borne them constantly in mind. It is the great merit of this lucid volume that the reader is left with a desire for further knowledge."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p74 F 14 '42 800w

HINDS, NORMAN ETHAN ALLEN. Geomorphology; the evolution of landscape. 894p il maps $5 Prentice-Hall

551 Physical geography. Geology 43-4067

"This book tells how the face of the earth has come to look as it does today. It tells also of some of the facial changes which have occurred during the long past. It is written as an introduction to landscape evolution. Its purpose is to give a better understanding of the world about us rather than merely to set forth the elements of a technical subject required for credit in a college course. . . The book is planned for the student and the general reader uninitiated, or nearly so, in earth lore. It is not written to inform those already expert in the subject. Abundant illustrations supplement the text." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Recognizing that landscape is something that should properly be studied in the field or through accurate representation of field conditions, Hinds has assembled a remarkable array of almost 800 photographs, diagrams and maps from all over the world. Unlike authors of other texts bearing the same title, he relies much more on well-chosen aerial photographs for illustration than on skillful sketches and block diagrams. Consequently the book has something of the appeal so amply demonstrated in the success of our high-grade pictorial magazines." L. R. Thiesmeyer
+ Book Week p9 Ag 15 '43 310w

"In a book of some 900 pages, including 33 pages of classified bibliography, Professor Hinds places before the student as eye-filling a volume as has ever come off the press. It is entitled 'Geomorphology,' but in the use of this term the author allows himself more latitude than would seem desirable. He makes no distinction between physiography and geomorphology (p. 13) and in the presentation of his subject feels free to draw upon many related fields. . . In a word, Professor Hinds has succumbed to a temptation always present in the preparation of a text covering some aspect of the earth science—to include more than is necessary. This deprives the subject of geomorphology of its essential meaning and cannot be considered helpful by those who see in it a clean-cut science of limited scope with its own peculiar problems and technique." A. K. Lobeck
+ — Geog R 33:517 Jl '43 500w

HINDUS, MAURICE GERSCHON. Mother Russia. 395p il $3.50 Doubleday

947.084 Russia. World war, 1939—Russia 43-51201

"Maurice Hindus is one of the few writers on the Soviet Union who for many years has understood the new national development of Russia; perhaps one reason is that Hindus makes no pretense of understanding or even studying the fine parts of Marxian dogma. Another is perhaps, as he points out in the preface to 'Mother Russia,' his consistent refusal to base his opinions about Russia on interviews with leading political figures. He has tried to talk to ordinary people and by and large has succeeded very well. Thanks to repeated visits to Russia during the last two decades, he has a large circle of acquaintances, many of whom

HINDUS, M. G.—Continued
he saw while in Russia as a war correspondent for The New York Herald Tribune in 1942-3. This trip, and the conversations with these individuals, forms the basis for 'Mother Russia.' " N Y Times

"The book is at one and the same time a plea for better understanding of Russia and a means through which this understanding may be achieved."
+ Atlantic 172:121 Ag '43 130w

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p1 Je 20 '43 480w

Booklist 39:443 Jl 1 '43

Reviewed by B. L. Conway
Cath World 158:216 N '43 320w

"The net effect of the book is constructive, and in a field where every ounce of mediation helps lessen the peril of another conflict. There are rambling and diffuse pages, not altogether uncharacteristic of the country they describe; but a conscientious reader cannot but find countless stirring passages, and a rich supply of information to stretch his mentality and break off at least some of the roots of prejudice." S. R. D.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 15 '43 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Jl '43

"Mr. Hindus prides himself on having spent his Russian research days among the workers and the peasants. He has imbibed their stories and maintains that he is thoroughly familiar with their aspirations. Not for him the masters of the Kremlin, the generals, the district governors. At best Maurice Hindus is an ardent believer in the current Russian Soviet idea; at worst he is a most clever apologist. So that from his latest book you get the leading arguments as to the case for Stalinism."
Commonweal 38:302 Jl 9 '43 1000w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:163 O '43 40w

Reviewed by Lena Ruppert
Library J 68:473 Je 1 '43 90w

Manchester Guardian p3 O 20 '43 250w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 108:800 Je 14 '43 550w

Reviewed by H. J. Laski
New Statesman & Nation 26:253 O 16 '43 800w

"Probably the most interesting, if not the best written of the Hindus library on the Soviet Union. . . Mr. Hindus's background and knowledge of Russia place him in a much better position than any of the other American correspondents who have written books on wartime Russia. On the other hand, 'Mother Russia' is extremely ambitious. It is obviously intended to be not just a correspondent's account of what he saw in Russia, but a résumé in 400 pages of the history of Russia, its industrial, cultural, social achievements, the factory, home, family, moral lives of its 193 million people. This the book fails far short of portraying. One reason is the obvious haste in which it was written. 'Mother Russia' is, nevertheless, one of the most effective books which has appeared in English on wartime Russia." John Scott
+ — N Y Times p6 Je 6 '43 1250w

" 'Mother Russia' is a warm, somewhat sentimental report." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:81 Je 5 '43 550w

"The secret of Mr. Hindus's reputation as a reporter lies to a considerable degree in his painstaking and personal approach. He has solicited no interview with Stalin and other high officials of the Soviet. He has always felt that 'a single day in a village or a single meal with young people in a factory would tell me more of the heart and the mind of Russia than an interview with any leader, however exalted.' . . In setting forth the causes of Russia's stupendous military performance Mr. Hindus becomes the interpreter of the Soviet revolution." H. C. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 26:4 Je 5 '43 1100w

"Against the vivid impressions of his experiences in Russia as a correspondent for the New York Herald Tribune in 1942, Mr. Hindus projects his extensive knowledge of conditions there in the pre-war years, gained during his many visits since 1922. His opinions are all the more valuable because they are based not on interviews with political leaders but on intimate acquaintance with hundreds of ordinary people. His writing has all the earmarks of frank honesty and unbiased integrity. Whether one approves or disapproves his conclusions, one cannot but have confidence not only in Mr. Hindus as a reporter but also in the people about whom he writes."
Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 Jl '43 360w

"Mr. Hindus' book is a brilliant addition to our literature on Russia. It stands with Sir John Maynard's The Russian Peasant as one of the few books without which it is well-nigh impossible to understand the sturdy and virile life which has been created there." Godfrey Wilkinson
+ Spec 171:366 O 15 '43 500w

"Granted that Hindus has given us another panegyric on the country that he loves, even a critical reader must conclude that it is based on grassroots observations. And the best feature of a book like this one is that its informality of style, its intensity of purpose, make it readable for a great number who find statistics and factual material dull going. A book like this is a great service to Russia, to America, to the cause of friendship between two great and (in some ways) similar nations." Edrie Van Dore
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 4 '43 800w

"Mr. Hindus, who knows and loves Russia, and has from the beginning shown a deep faith in the abilities of the Russian people and government, has written the most detailed description of the new spirit animating Russia's war of national liberation. The value of his book consists in the very fact that he does not write about visits by American or British emissaries to Moscow, but that he writes of the people themselves, of Russia's new society, of women and children. The book suffers from excessive length and discursiveness, but it is a valuable portrait of the new Russia so totally different from that envisaged twenty years ago by so many hopeful observers of the communist experiment." Hans Kohn
+ — Survey G 32:456 N '43 190w

"Pictures vividly, sympathetically and at length the commonplaces of the Russian scene in war. It is almost too thorough a survey of the Russian home front for in its institutional aspect the war has not so much transformed the character of Soviet life as intensified the processes of peace, and Mr. Hindus thus covers a good deal of well-trodden ground in recapitulating views and conclusions which he has set forth in earlier books. For this, however, he has some excuse. It needed, it would seem, the testimony of Russian patriotism and Russian endurance in the war to bring home to our minds and imaginations the full measure of revolutionary Russia's achievement in peace."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p469 O 2 '43 1250w

"It is a warm, friendly account of the Russian people at war. I wish I could have had it with me when I was a correspondent in Moscow. For Mr. Hindus has been in Russia many times and has a keen eye for seeing and a good background against which to interpret the changes that have taken place. . . His two finest pieces of reporting are about his trips to Tolstoy's old home near Tula and to Pohoreloye behind the Rzhev front, both ravaged by a beaten German army that went mad in defeat." Walter Kerr
+ Weekly Book Review p1 Je 6 '43 1500w

Wis Lib Bul 39:108 Jl '43

HINKLE, THOMAS CLARK. Shep, a collie of the old West. 224p $2 Morrow
43-7521

Shep, a golden collie, lost on the Kansas plains as a puppy, was captured and ill-treated, and decided to avoid human beings as a result. But when young Jimmy Blain rescued Shep from a deep pit, he won the dog's absolute devotion. Some time later when the boy was lost in a Kansas blizzard, Shep repaid his debt to Jimmy, and saved his life.

"A typical Hinkle book, not especially well written. Reveals author's sympathetic understanding of dogs, but is not an important book and will not be missed from collection if not purchased." J. E. Stromdahl

Library J 68:671 S 1 '43 70w

"Written in a simple direct style and with genuine knowledge of dogs and the West, 'Shep,' like 'Black Storm,' 'Tawny,' 'Mustang' and the many other books by Mr. Hinkle, will please and satisfy a large number of boy and girl readers from 9 to 12, and bring back nostalgic memories to their elders." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p9 Jl 25 '43 300w

HINMAN, CHAUNCEY WEED. Die engineering layouts and formulas; a reference book illustrating and describing the key designs of punches and dies based on precept and formulas. 497p il $5 McGraw

621.984 Dies (metal working). Pressing machinery 43-10624

"This handbook for the tool engineer combines the mechanical principles of assembled die designs with their operating details; gives the mathematical formulas for laying out the dies; and stresses the importance of a clearly rendered drafting technique. More than 350 designs are included, 90 per cent of which are working drawings of completed tools. The production of war equipment receives attention in several chapters devoted to the shaping of aircraft parts and the forming and drawing of ammunition shells and cartridge cases. A chapter on welding has been included because of its use in built-up types of units." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:42 Jl '43

HINSHAW, DAVID. Home front. 352p $3 Putnam

940.5373 World war, 1939—U.S. U.S.—Politics and government—20th century 43-10649

An analysis of what Americans on the home front—from the President and Congress to labor and the farmers—have accomplished—or failed to accomplish—in the winning of the war. Partial contents: National unity achieved; The administration makes war; Congress and the war; The newspaper and the war; Politics, too much as usual; Considerable reform as usual; Tomorrow's world: Will it be brave and new? Index.

"Despite the holes in his logic and his information, this is a remarkably complete picture of the home front as seen by a man who has been the adviser to presidents. He is a highly articulate conservative who makes a valiant effort to give credit even to his enemies. And his belief in the self-cleansing nature of democracy should be read by revolutionists both to the Right and the Left. You may not agree with him, but no one can fail to see the justice of much he says—nor is his complete sincerity ever in question." Sterling North

+ — Book Week p3 Ag 8 '43 600w

Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 30 '43 500w

Reviewed by Lloyd Mallan

N Y Times p22 Ag 29 '43 500w

"An interesting job."

+ New Yorker 19:63 Jl 31 '43 80w

"It is to be doubted that Mr. Hinshaw has contributed anything to a clearer understanding of the home front; but he has produced a magnificent Republican campaign document." G. W. Johnson

Sat R of Lit 26:20 S 4 '43 500w

"'Home Front' is a shrewd piece of work, and heartening. Since David Hinshaw has been adviser to three Republican Presidents, it would be too much to expect him to be entirely non-partisan. But with Quaker conscientiousness he strives toward that ideal. Of late our British allies, deceived on the one hand by the extreme frankness of the American press and on the other by the propaganda of Herr Goebbels, have viewed us with a touch of alarm. A few copies of 'Home Front' bestowed in the right places might do wonders to promote understanding." Will Irwin

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 8 '43 1350w

HIRSCH, JULIUS. Price control in the war economy [foreword by Leon Henderson]. 311p $3 Harper

338.526 Prices. U.S.—Economic policy. World war, 1939—Economic aspects 43-3229

An explanation of the theory and practice of price control in the United States today, based on the author's experience as an official of the German government during the inflation period after the first World war. The author left Germany in 1933 and is now living in the United States. Index.

Reviewed by Rita Davidson

Am Pol Sci R 37:954 O '43 260w

"Professional economists will, of course, find parts of the study a bit elementary, but for them, nevertheless, there is a mass of interesting new material especially regarding European experience. From the layman's point of view, anyone interested in economics, but unacquainted with the 'jargon of the trade,' will find here an easily grasped and impartial explanation of most of the basic economic issues which divide the country today. Dr. Hirsch has done a good job of putting difficult ideas into simple words." D. M. Wright

+ — Ann Am Acad 229:222 S '43 400w

"The explanation of just what price control is and how it works is presented here in simple terms. . . Certain of Dr. Hirsch's statements on controversial political subjects may be challenged by the critical reader." S. D.

Book Week p6 My 23 '43 180w

Bookmark 4:5 My '43

Library J 68:249 Mr 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by H. W. Cross

Springf'd Republican p7e My 23 '43 1050w

HIRST, HENRY. X-rays in research and industry. 127p il $2.50 Chemical pub. co. [5s; 7s 6d Tait]

537.53 X rays. Radiography—Industrial applications 43-4871

"This monograph presents the material of a series of lectures before the Physical Metallurgy Division of the Melbourne Branch of the Australian Institute of Metals. On this account the research and the industry mentioned in the title are almost exclusively metallurgical. Six chapters present, respectively, the production of x-rays; properties of x-radiation; structure of crystals; methods of crystallographic examination; applications of x-ray methods; and industrial radiography." Chem & Eng N

"The chief criticisms which might be raised are, in large measure perhaps, the result of the brevity and necessarily popular approach to the subject. The author's point of view is considerably narrower than is justified by the progress and growth of x-ray science. Many parts of the subject are not brought up to date, and reference to most of the newest books, methods, and results, particularly from American laboratories, is conspicuously omitted." G. L. Clark

+ — Chem & Eng N 21:54 Ja 10 '43 410w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:36 Ap '43

"A well-thought-out analysis. . . The results of X-ray work are embodied in photographs, and their reproduction is of first importance in producing any book on the subject. It is unfortunate, therefore, that this work is published on a poor grade of paper stock and with illustrations reduced in size until they are hardly decipherable. This book will probably be of value only to specialists in the field to whom the textual information is worth the eye-strain." H. M. Davis

+ — N Y Times p51 N 14 '43 100w

HISS, PHILIP HANSON. Netherlands America; the Dutch territories in the West. 225p il $3.50 Duell

917.29 West Indies, Netherlands. Dutch Guiana 43-17727

Study of the Dutch colonies in tropical America, which have come into prominence in the present war, because of their oil and bauxite, needed in the war effort, and because the Axis powers have seized all the other Dutch possessions. Bibliography. Index.

"Those to whom Curacao is familiar only as an ingredient in a cocktail, and who have never even heard of Aruba and St. Eustatius, except perhaps as points where Burton Holmes was briefly inconvenienced, will find this book extremely informative." Peter De Vries
+ Book Week p3 D 19 '43 400w
Booklist 40:163 Ja 1 '44

"Mr. Hiss spent part of 1942 visiting and traveling there and did a great deal of research subsequently. Telling about it, he moves back and forth in both space and time, with some confusion resulting. There is none of the personal touch—the interview, the personality sketch, the intimate human quantities involved—and not much description. If these things are lacking in the text, however, they are found in rich abundance in the photographs. These are superb. . . Mr. Hiss' pictures, and the glimpses of flamboyant history his text supplies, should make post-war travel planners put an asterisk beside the Netherlands West Indies." C. B. Palmer
+ — N Y Times p6 D 26 '43 700w

"Mr. Hiss presents his views on the postwar position of this part of the Caribbean, realizing the many ramifications of the problem. He is not only an acute observer who puts his information into clear, interesting, and informal prose but he is also a photographer whose pictures are unusually graphic and beautiful and are liberally included in his book. Vital statistics are contained in appendices and therefore do not unnecessarily clutter the text."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 15:3 Ja '44 360w

"The need for a book such as Mr. Hiss has written is abundantly clear. . . His approach is painstaking, his style matter-of-fact. He gravely brushes aside the romantic exaggerations of other writers in regard to the Bush Negroes of Surinam and to the strange little island of Saba. . . Mr. Hiss seldom indulges in humor or colorful anecdotes. . . The outline maps are adequate, the index good. Mr. Hiss will be the factual authority for some time to come on the Dutch possessions in the New World." W. A. Roberts
+ Weekly Book Review p3 D 26 '43 700w

HITCHENS, MRS DOLORES (BIRK) (DOLAN BIRKLEY, NOEL BURKE, D. B. OLSEN, pseuds). Cat's claw. 186p $2 Doubleday 43-14562

Detective story.

"Pleasant, but with more than an average amount of whimsy—which, of course, some may consider an asset." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — Book Week p8 O 3 '43 160w

"This is top-notch mystery and detection." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 S 19 '43 120w

"A sound enough story aimed at readers who find the vagaries of elderly spinster detectives appealing."
+ New Yorker 19:96 S 18 '43 50w

"Pretty good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 S 25 '43 30w

"Suitable for armchair sleuths of mild disposition." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p22 S 19 '43 180w

HITCHENS MRS DOLORES (BIRK) (DOLAN BIRKLEY, NOEL BURKE, D. B. OLSEN, pseuds). Catspaw for murder. 279p $2 Doubleday 43-5895

Detective story.

Booklist 39:369 My 15 '43

"Admirers of Rachel Murdock, with her insatiable curiosity and her infinite capacity for getting into trouble, will find this story fully up to standard." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p12 Ap 4 '43 140w

"Entertaining."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 Mr 27 '43 30w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 21 '43 200w

HITLER, ADOLF. Speeches, April 1922-August 1939; an English tr. of representative passages arr. under subjects and ed. by Norman H. Baynes. 2v $15 Oxford [50s Royal inst. of int. affairs]

943.086 Germany—Nazi movement A42-5189

"Translations of the Führer's speeches delivered between April 1922 and August 1939, with extensive bibliographical notes and indices. Volume II is devoted to foreign policy. These volumes were prepared for the Royal Institute of International Affairs." Foreign Affairs

"The work constitutes perhaps the most important source book on the state of thought which is expressed in Hitlerism. Professor Baynes approaches the difficulties of translation with a marked feeling for the nuances of German. His reading does much to clarify the terminology of Nazism, which has an atmosphere all its own. And his selection reduces the Hitler torrent to a compass which loses little of its comprehensiveness, but gains much in utility. It is recommended reading for all those who will have to piece the world together again after the present war."
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 21 '43 420w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:584 Ap '43 40w
New Repub 108:597 My 3 '43 2150w

Reviewed by Leonard Woolf
New Statesman & Nation 24:208 S 26 '42 1300w

"Mr. Norman Baynes is responsible for the editing and the arrangement as well as the translation, which is always his own except when authorised English versions have been published in Germany; and he has added copious bibliographies. He has been successful in turning the speeches into forceful idiomatic English which appears to do justice to Hitler's rhetorical style." R. A. Scott-James
Spec 169:244 S 11 '42 500w

"The essential shallowness of Hitler's Weltanschauung, another of his favorite words, is shown by his speeches. One searches in vain for an original idea. He had a message for the moment (for any and every moment, it is true), but beyond that there is nothing in the man—nothing that points a path to a better Europe, a happier way of life, a saner Germany. Time has revealed him, indeed, as a mere elongation and elaboration of the old pan-German."
Times [London] Lit Sup p446 S 12 '42 1300w

HITTI, PHILIP KHURI. Arabs; a short history. 224p maps $2 Princeton univ. press

953 Arabs. Mohammedan empire. Arabia—History. Civilization, Arabic A43-1634

"This is a lucid condensation and simplification of Professor Hitti's great 'History of the Arabs,' published in 1937 [Book Review Digest 1937]. . . The work of condensation has been done by Mr. Byron Dexter in collaboration with the author. . . In so far as is possible within limited space the general plan of the larger history is followed. The scope is not limited to political, economic and military history but embraces a large variety of cultural topics. . . The original work was brought to a close with the Ottoman conquest of the Mameluke dynasty in 1517; but to this present abridgement there has been added a concluding chapter outlining . . . the 'risorgimento' of the Arabs which has been a major event in world history during the past sixty years." (Weekly Book Review) Index.

Reviewed by E. E. Calverley
Am Hist R 49:83 O '43 600w
Booklist 39:460 Jl 15 '43
Christian Century 60:919 Ag 11 '43 260w

"The arrangement of the book is excellent. . . For the general reader the book offers a stimulant to memory, facts long dormant spring to mind. . . Dr. Hitti, a naturalized American, is a native of Mount Lebanon, Syria, and a graduate of the University of Beirut: he knows that the meeting of East and West is fraught with difficulties, and offers a work which will lessen these. Naturally, the style of the book suffers from condensation; it requires careful reading to get proper sequence at times. And those interested in the records of English travelers in the Middle East would like to see a mention here and there of the rich literature of which the uninitiate could so readily be made aware." D. H. Moseley
+ Commonweal 38:207 Je 11 '43 420w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:165 O '43 20w

Reviewed by J. C. Shipman
Library J 68:428 My 15 '43 90w

"Hitti's brilliant little book furnishes evidence of the old truth that history is not necessarily a dull science. Historians are sometimes bores, but Hitti is certainly not."
+ Nation 157:135 Jl 31 '43 360w

" 'The Arabs: A Short History' is from its very start provocative as well as informative. . . The method employed is not one of straight chronology but of broad subjects—the separate trends and developments that marked the rise and fall of the Arab world. As such it is excellent for the purpose in hand. Necessarily the book covers much ground at a rapid rate; a condensation on this scale must. It is harder to explain a contradiction in the text: in an early chapter the story that the Caliph Harun al-Rashid sent the keys of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre to Charlemagne is said to be 'discredited'; later on it is mentioned as fact. This, however, would seem to be an exception to a general standard of fine workmanship." C. B. Palmer
+ N Y Times p24 Je 6 '43 800w

"Altogether this is an excellent primer of its subject for those who have not the time for the larger history."
+ Weekly Book Review p29 My 23 '43 400w

HIX, HORACE G.; KINGSBURY, WARREN T., and REED, TRUMAN G. Towards a better world. 500p il $1.80 Scribner
300 Citizenship. Democracy 43-8447

Textbook in civics and social sciences for high school students. Book is in four main sections: the first shows how democracy developed thruout the ages, from the days of Greece and Rome, and the beginnings of Christianity, to the emergence of the political ideals of England and the United States. The second part is concerned with the role of the school in developing good citizenship; part three with the understandings, skills and attitudes of the good citizen. Finally the fourth part takes up the essential drives in human living, the desire for social approval, for security, for sensory satisfactions, etc. Index.

"This book is so interestingly written, so sensible and so positively democratic in spirit and method that I have found it truly absorbing reading, textbook though it is, and I wish that many adults would read it. Such chapters as 'Thinking About Ourselves,' 'How Problems Are Solved,' 'Understanding the Other Fellow,' 'Stumbling Blocks to Critical Thinking,' and 'Attitudes in Democracy' will help any of us to make better citizens of ourselves." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p4 Ag 29 '43 140w

Reviewed by K. B. Thurston
Social Educ 8:90 F '44 450w

Reviewed by Grace Davis
Social Studies 35:41 Ja '44 500w

HOBART, DEAN ESTES. Blue print reading. rev ed 58p il pa $1 Harper
744.532 Blueprints 43-8768

"First published [1941] under the title Notes and problems in blue print reading." (Library of Congress card) "The chief revisions in this new edition consist of the addition of eight pages on dimensioning, scale of drawings, threads, and fasteners. Some examples of blueprints as they are received in the shop are also included." (N Y New Tech Bks)

N Y New Tech Bks 28:24 Ap '43

Reviewed by R. P. Hoelscher
N Y Times p37 O 3 '43 180w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 22 '43 50w

HOBBS, GLENN MOODY, and others. Fundamentals of machines, for those preparing for war service. 294p il $2 Am. tech. soc.
531 Physics. Engines

"The first half of this PIT text explains mechanics. The second half demonstrates the application of mechanical principles in blocks and tackle, and automobile, aircraft, and Diesel engines, with particular emphasis on their operation and maintenance." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 39:430 Je 15 '43
N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

Reviewed by L. S. Marks
N Y Times p21 Je 27 '43 100w

HOBSON, MRS LAURA (ZAMETKIN). The trespassers. 410p $2.75 Simon & Schuster 43-51230

Two themes are interwoven in this novel: the first is the sorry plight of Europe's refugees too often denied entrance into the United States; the second is the love story of Vera Marriner, a successful business woman and Jasper Crown, radio magnate.

"Laura Hobson has written a powerful and symbolic novel about refugees. . . This novel is a cry for tolerance, for abolition of the wicked and moronic quota system, and for a return to the freedom of movement which brought to America its greatest natural resource." Sterling North
+ Book Week p2 S 19 '43 450w
Booklist 40:13 S '43

"The writing is good, but most of the incidents are offensive and unreal, and the neat ladling up of sex to counterbalance internationalism make the story almost ridiculous." N. E. Monroe
Cath World 158:314 D '43 130w

Reviewed by E. H. Crowell
Library J 68:668 S 1 '43 110w

"Despite its praiseworthy plea for visas for refugees, which comes a bit late after all, 'The Trespassers' is an inept and rather tasteless book." Diana Trilling
Nation 157:454 O 16 '43 150w

Reviewed by Harvey Breit
New Repub 109:723 N 22 '43 210w

"The motivation of Crown's fear of marriage and his drive toward power seems convincing. But as a character he remains pretty much the standard Ruthless Tycoon of fiction. In fact, this half of the book seems to have been written in an emotional vacuum; all the warmth and directness of feeling are devoted to the refugee problem. This unevenness is reflected in the style." Marjorie Farber
+ — N Y Times p5 S 19 '43 600w

"The author does better with her major than with her minor motif. Energetic writing, overcharged at times."
+ — New Yorker 19:93 S 18 '43 70w

"Mrs. Hobson has not been able to merge her two themes entirely smoothly. The story of the individuals and the saga of the migrant exiles,—the two do not quite meet in the end. But the experiment is interesting in itself and gratifying in bringing to the novel a breadth and depth so often lacking in entertainment fiction. And 'The Trespassers' is entertaining." G. G. Bates

HOBSON, L. Z.—Continued
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:18 S 18 '43 700w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 390w

"So good a job is this first novel of Miss Hobson's that I believe it is not out of order to suggest that she has invaded Nancy Hale's and Clare Boothe's field, 'the women,' and, in one respect at least, beaten both at their own game—chiefly, perhaps, because Miss Hobson imparts more meaning, more significant character-in-the-making, into the people she creates and the story she tells about them. She is, in fact, a writer of large ideas." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p6 S 19 '43 850w

HOCKING, ANNE (MRS M. N. A. MESSER). Death loves a shining mark. 239p $2 Doubleday 43-6827

Detective story.

"Me, I was calm all along. I will say, in Austen's defense, that he gives out with his solution in as bland and flat a way as possible, apparently as little impressed with it as was I." Elizabeth Bullock
— Book Week p11 My 2 '43 160w

"The story moves much too slowly, and the solution is too easily guessed." Isaac Anderson
— N Y Times p12 Ap 25 '43 100w

"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 Ap 24 '43 40w

"This is a smooth, harmless pipe dream, with views of Cairo, Ismaila, Agazig and such places." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p24 Ap 25 '43 200w

HODSON, JAMES LANSDALE. War in the sun. 449p $3 Dial press [11s 6d; colonial ed 6s 6d Gollancz]

940.548142 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English
43-10316

War diary kept by an English correspondent during his trip to the Middle East, India, Burma, North, South and West Africa, during 1941 and 1942. "The mixture is one-third of curious information, acquired through Mr. Hodson's insatiable habit of asking everybody questions about their jobs; one-third of first-rate eye-witness reporting and one-third of astringent comment on the things which seem to Mr. Hodson to be wrong with the way we run this war." (Manchester Guardian)

Reviewed by Ernest von Hartz
Book Week p4 Jl 18 '43 70w

Reviewed by Harold Hobson
Christian Science Monitor p13 D 12 '42 200w

"Mr. Hodson's latest book, the fourth of his war diaries, is the mixture as before, and one need ask for nothing better. . . His book is full of curious lore about life in tanks and ships and far-off places, with vivid pictures of battles in desert or jungle or on the darkened sea." E. A. Montague
+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 14 '42 280w

"James Hodson has written a first-class war book. He has done this as a writer, not simply as a journalist looking for stories." Stuart Cloete
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 25 '43 650w

"A fine, hard, quiet book full of the everyday human grist of war in Africa, Syria, India, and Burma. Intelligent professional writing of the kind that makes good reading, done with taste, humor, and a stubborn sincerity."
+ New Yorker 19:70 Je 26 '43 90w

"This is a wise, informative book, which your serious student of the war will want to read. But how much of Mr. Hodson's wisdom will he recall five minutes after he has turned the last page? War in the Sun loses half its effect by reason of its excessive length (nearly 400 pages of close minute print), and the singular flatness of the writing. It is rich in anticlimaxes, and poor in evocation. . . At the risk of seeming to carp, I must add one more criticism. It is a pity, I think, that Mr. Hodson, so shrewd in other respects, should apparently swallow whole the conventional club bar opinion of the East. 'Expect no gratitude from an Oriental; whatever you give him, he wants double. . . .' It is disquieting to think that in this age, such nonsense can still find currency among Englishmen." Simon Harcourt-Smith
+ — Spec 169:364 O 16 '42 420w

"The notice on the cover of 'War in the Sun' announces in very large type that it is 'one of the most fascinating and revealing of all the war books.' It further announces that 'this volume of over 200,000 words,' &c., &c. In fact this is hardly a book in the strictest meaning of that word, for it is really only a very long and minutely kept diary by Mr. Hodson. It is true that there are at least 200,000 words, but half of them need never have been published. Nearly all the matter recorded on these pages is not evidence: it is only hearsay. Those things connected with the war which the author saw for himself and has written about are very different and well worth the reading."
Times [London] Lit Sup p494 O 10 '42 800w

HOELDERLIN, FRIEDRICH. See Hölderlin, J. C. F.

HOELSCHER, RANDOLPH PHILIP; SPRINGER, CLIFFORD HARRY, and POHLE, RICHARD F. Industrial production illustration for students, draftsmen and illustrators. 172p il spir pa $3.50 McGraw

744.4 Art, Commercial. Mechanical drawing
43-7310

"For students, drafsmen, and illustrators. Pictorial drawing, theoretical and practical. Discusses freehand and instrumental layouts for illustrations in aircraft, shipyard, and ordnance fields." Library J

"This book is recommended for study where a thorough knowledge of the theory of pictorial representation is needed. It does not provide specific applications to industry, nor does it offer, compared to a number of current books on commercial art, adequate training in the technique of pictorial linework and shading." H. C. Spencer
+ — Book Week p8 Jl 4 '43 500w
Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:25 Ap '43

"A series of forty-one loose-leaf plates serve as a basis for student problems and exercises. These are well chosen to cover the entire subject matter. Together with the text, they form a scholarly yet practical manual on Industrial Production Illustration." J. M. Juran
+ N Y Times p26 Ag 29 '43 300w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 22 '43 130w

HOELTJE, HUBERT H. Sheltering tree. 209p $3.50 Duke univ.

B or 92 Emerson, Ralph Waldo. Alcott, Amos Bronson
43-15140

Study of the friendship of almost fifty years duration between two of America's greatest scholars: Ralph Waldo Emerson and Amos Bronson Alcott. The word is based upon the journals of the two men, altho Alcott's journal is still in manuscript. The author is associate professor of English in the State university of Iowa. Index.

"It seems to me that Hoeltje's own writing has been influenced a little by the prose style of Alcott—certainly one of the worst writers ever to win a place in literary history—and I could wish that he had indicated a little more clearly the passages in which he paraphrases the Alcott journals. But 'Sheltering Tree' is a sound and valuable contribution to the new understanding of the great writers of our American past which is so much to be desired today." J. T. Frederick
+ — Book Week p6 O 24 '43 290w

"Pleasant book, contemplative, not comprehensive, but a contribution to the literature on friendship. Small libraries will find it useful if they do not have the source material." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 68:473 Je 1 '43 120w

"In its rounded, mellow style, this book might almost be called old-fashioned, save that the skills of modern scholarship are so proficiently used. . . This is a charming book on a topic of real interest in American literary history." Townsend Scudder III

+ Sat R of Lit 26:56 D 4 '43 450w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
Weekly Book Review p28 N 28 '43 650w

HOFER, JOHANNES. St John Capistran, reformer; tr. by Patrick Cummins. 411p $4 Herder

B or 92 Giovanni da Capistrano, Saint 43-14736

"Capistran, who died in 1456, was beatified two centuries and a half later, and canonized in 1724. A few years ago, a new biographer, Father Johannes Hofer—after a diligent study of archives and the discovery of much fresh material—published the German original of the book named above. The translator has simplified Hofer's work, summarizing passages, omitting many notes and citations, and thereby producing the most readable and satisfactory account of Capistran thus far obtainable in English." Cath World

"We have here a truthful and balanced description of a man who drew upon himself both praise and blame. We have a record of the evidence offered by both sides in the various issues that affected the character and reputation of this widower, Franciscan friar, popular preacher, religious reformer, theological writer, ecclesiastical Inquisitor, papal nuncio, military leader alongside Hunjadi in that battle near Belgrade which kept the Turks from invading Europe." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 158:409 Ja '44 290w

Reviewed by D. H. Moseley
Commonweal 39:49 O 29 '43 950w

HOFF, EBBE CURTIS, and FULTON, JOHN FARQUHAR, comps. Bibliography of aviation medicine; prepared for the Com. on aviation medicine, Division of medical sciences, Nat. research council, acting for the Com. on medical research, Office of scientific research and development, Washington, D.C. (School of medicine. Yale medical lib. Hist. lib. Publication) 237p $4 Thomas, C.C.

016.62913256 Aeronautics—Medical aspects—Bibliography 42-20544

"A comprehensive list of significant books, monographs, and articles covering the entire field of medicine and physiology in relation to aeronautics. The references are grouped according to subject matter and include citations from ten or twelve languages. Nothing is included beyond May 31, 1942." N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 28:39 Jl '43

Reviewed by C. P. Rollins
Sat R of Lit 26:28 Ag 7 '43 70w

HOFFMAN, WILLIAM GEORGE. Speaker's notebook. (Whittlesey house publication) 334p $2.50 McGraw

808.5 Public speaking 43-4673

"[This volume] discusses methods of effective speaking and gives actual examples of outstanding speeches, stories, epigrams, and aphorisms which can be employed in planning any kind of speech. Includes 232 stories classified and indexed for easy reference, which will supply illustrations for almost any point a speaker wishes to make." (Publisher's note) Index.

Book Week p11 Ap 18 '43 180w
Booklist 39:384 Je 1 '43

"Advice is definite, practical and up-to-date."

+ Weekly Book Review p24 Ap 11 '43 90w

HOFFMANN, ELEANOR. Feeding our armed forces. 86p il $1.75 Nelson

355.63 U.S.—Army—Rations 43-15388

Short account of the Subsistence branch of the Quartermaster corps service, the organization which has charge of feeding the five million men in our armed forces at home and at the front. Illustrated with photographs. For junior and senior high schools.

Booklist 40:99 N 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

HOFFMANN, ELEANOR. Mischief in Fez; il. by Fritz Eichenberg. 109p $2 Holiday

43-51143

Fairy tale with a Moroccan background. It is the story of little Mousa whose father brought home a beautiful stepmother for the boy. The stepmother turned out to be a powerful evil spirit, with a son in the form of a pet gazelle. Luckily Mousa consulted a learned man, acquired a pet fennec, and together they broke the power of the wicked stepmother.

"Eleanor Hoffmann's prose is not only vivid and her story fascinating, but the book itself is unusually beautiful, thanks to Fritz Eichenberg's illustrations. Here are the imagination-releasing virtues of the fairy tale, combined with a splendid picture of Morocco and its customs. For children from seven up who like stories of magic." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p9 My 23 '43 320w
Booklist 39:373 My 15 '43

"Miss Hoffmann is at her best in this story of Morocco, with its date gardens and fountains, its market places and minarets. There is a corresponding air of enchantment in Fritz Eichenberg's sympathetic spirit of the Orient." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:170 My '43 100w

"A tale of djinns and magic that should be popular with readers of the Hobbit and Midnight folk." E. W. Turpin

+ Library J 68:433 My 15 '43 50w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:825 O 15 '43 60w

"Fritz Eichenberg's pictures have caught the atmosphere of the country, his Djinns and other monsters are properly horrifying, and the book is designed with charm and distinction. Fairy tale lovers among the 8 to 12 year olds—all boys and girls, indeed, of that age will enjoy stirring adventures—will take pleasure in Miss Hoffmann's lovely tale." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p20 My 2 '43 400w

"A spirited, well-written fairy tale for the middle years of childhood and one which incidentally gives a colorful picture of life in Mohammedan Morocco."

+ New Yorker 19:67 My 29 '43 70w

"It is a tale of Djinns and gives also a realistic picture of life in Morocco, with an entirely exotic atmosphere in both its text and authentically conceived drawings by Fritz Eichenberg. The book is beautifully designed, with endpapers, chapter heads, and illustrations of unusual merit." Maria Cimino

+ Sat R of Lit 26:50 Ap 17 '43 70w
+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 15 '43 20w

"A little English girl, a friend of this reviewer's, read this book through three times in as many days. 'It fascinates me,' she said. 'It simply fascinates me.' This is a fairly good summing up of 'Mischief in Fez.' Children and grown-ups, too, are going to be fascinated by it." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 D 11 '43 360w

"Eleanor Hoffmann knows North Africa, having spent part of every year there for a decade. She also knows how to write for children with style, sparkle and the touch of difference that devoted readers of fairy stories deserve." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 My 2 '43 450w

HOFMANN, MELITA. Pearls of Ferrara. 213p il $2.50 Dutton
43-11693

Stories of Isabella and Beatrice d'Este, picturing their lives in the courts of fifteenth century Italy. For girls of ten to fourteen.

Booklist 40:49 O 1 '43
Cath World 158:318 D '43 70w

"The constant change of scene, the details of various ceremonies, the rapid succession of historical events, the intermarriages of leading families, the introduction of famous names give an air of confusion that spoils book for average reader. Drawings by author illustrate the scene so well that the lack of captions is not annoying. For small library, 'No.' For central children's room, 'Yes.'" K. H. McAlarney
+ — Library J 68:672 S 1 '43 90w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:826 O 15 '43 50w

"Girls, in particular, will find the lives of these two young noblewomen an absorbing story, and no one can read the book without a realization of what it was like to live as an Italian noble in a great and splendid period of the world's history. Miss Hofmann has visibly enjoyed her task of setting in motion the life of Italian castles and palaces in the fifteenth century, and the two girls of whom she writes will no longer be mere names in history to young readers. The author has illustrated her own book. Her drawings have delicacy and charm." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p18 S 12 '43 360w

"Lifted gently and sympathetically from the pages of history is a charming book for young girls called, 'Pearls of Ferrara.'"
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 180w

"Something about Beatrice d'Este refuses to die. Whatever people write about her, people read. Let her come into your cosmos, and she won't come out. This is her story and that of her more prudent, less lovable sister Isabella. It is concerned far more with the parties given for them than for their personalities; every last jewel on the last dress is detailed to the point when it gets actually funny—if you don't find it fascinating. Yet somehow that is just what you do find it." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 O 10 '43 350w
Wis Lib Bul 39:162 D '43

HOGAN, INEZ (MRS RANDOLPH BOWERS). Listen Hitler! the gremlins are coming [il. by the author]. [41p] $1 Dutton 43-4524

Story and pictures about the gremlins, those little atoms who "want to have fun with gadgets and hinder people." When they discovered they might lose their freedom the gremlins held a great conclave and decided in future to hinder only Axis members.

"Miss Hogan's gremlins seem to have been sweetened up from their original orneriness for juvenile consumption. Her pictures suggest plenty of activity which emphasizes wartime jobs and duties." E. L. Buell
N Y Times p9 Je 13 '43 140w

"Since no one has ever seen a gremlin, Miss Hogan's conception of how they look can be considered fairly authentic unless you have some ideas of your own on the subject. Her illustrations are delightful and refreshing. It would have been better if Miss Hogan had concentrated on more illustrations and fewer words for the story is a bit forced at times." E. P.
Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 190w

HOGAN, INEZ (MRS RANDOLPH BOWERS). Monkey twins: they saw it all [il. by the author]. [49p] $1 Dutton 43-163

Picture-story book for six-year-olds. The war comes to the jungle, and the animals, led by the lion, form an organization, and in time of danger each has a special duty to perform, and their safety becomes more secure.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Books p8 Ja 24 '43 250w

"Very timely but somehow doesn't seem as appealing as other Hogan twin books. For very young readers and children-to-be-read-to." S. J. Johnson
+ — Library J 68:212 Mr 1 '43 40w

"The story is humorous and teaches a timely lesson, since the rumor-mongering monkey twins are soon converted into useful helpers."
+ New Yorker 19:65 My 29 '43 50w

"This is a grim subject for a storybook for such little children. But it is told with such humor and good sense that the needed lesson is as painless as it can possibly be."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 14 '43 90w

HOGAN, INEZ (MRS RANDOLPH BOWERS). Nicodemus helps Uncle Sam [il. by the author]. [48p] $1 Dutton
43-8950

Nicodemus, the little colored boy, and his playmates, collect newspapers, tin cans, rubber, and all kinds of scrap, to help Uncle Sam. When they have sold the scrap to the junkman, each one of the gang has enough to buy a war stamp. There is a pocket with a war saving stamp book in the back of the book.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p10 Je 27 '43 230w

"United States Treasury Department gave author a citation for this book. Format makes it more suited to a home than public library." R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:627 Ag '43 70w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 80w

"I can't say that it is up to their standard, but as it goes all out for filling your stamp album and provides one in a pocket on the back cover, Miss Hogan already has a citation from Secretary Morgenthau, reproduced on the jacket, 'for distinguished services rendered in behalf of the War Savings Program.'" M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 11 '43 230w

HOGARTH, GRACE ALLEN. Australia: the island continent; from material supplied by Joan Colebrook; il. by Howard W. Willard. 60p $2 Houghton
994 Australia—Juvenile literature 43-51317

Geography, discovery and exploration, settlement and political and social history of Australia are all briefly covered in this book for young people. Profusely illustrated with informal drawings in part color, part black and white. Index.

"So little has been written for children about the island continent of Australia that this book is particularly welcome. It is a lively, interestingly written account that brings history out of the dry-as-dust class and makes it extremely readable." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p45 D 5 '43 230w
Booklist 40:99 N 15 '43
Commonweal 39:122 N 19 '43 20w

"With inviting pictures and well-chosen descriptive text, this is a welcome addition to material now available on Australia." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:414 N '43 60w

"A timely history and geography of a country heretofore little known to young people. . . Recommended." A. E. Brown
+ Library J 68:964 N 15 '43 120w

"Clear, accurate and well-rounded picture. . . Joan Colebrook, who supplied the material, is a native Australian who grew up in North Queensland, where her father was practically a pioneer. On nearly every page there are lively and enlightening pictures, with a double-page map of Australia and its divisions, and end-papers that show the island continent in relation to the rest of the world. Adults as well as boys and girls will find this volume readable and enlightening." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p24 N 7 '43 280w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 5 '43 110w

"From the outside, with its jacket on, you might take this for a picture book; it does have plenty of pictures in color and line. But its age range is higher: it starts at nine or so, while many an American grown-up will get his first coherent idea of Australian history, physical geography and economic experimentation through this lively run-through of these timely subjects." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p12 N 14 '43 400w

Wis Lib Bul 40:12 Ja '44

HOGUE, MRS HELEN GIBSON. Bringing up ourselves. 162p $1.50 Scribner

150.13 Psychology, Applied 43-17807

"Family relationships and their importance in character, conduct and community complications are the general subject of this practical, personal little book. What it says is in effect that we must learn as children in the home, first that we are loved and that we are wanted; and then that we are—to put it simply—likely to be loved through our own loving, and so come to consider the feelings of other members of the family. This, however, is not just stated and left; it is shown in case after case, easily recognizable in the experience of any one who goes about among his neighbors, and often found in his own family." Weekly Book Review

"There is nothing new in the book, but there is a combination of good psychology and good sense, presented simply and concretely, which ought to be a real help not only in 'bringing up ourselves'—which is the prime essential—but in bringing up those whose developing attitudes and personalities are largely dependent upon ours. The final chapter on 'The Religious Need' is excellent."
+ Christian Century 60:1537 D 29 '43 80w
+ Weekly Book Review p26 D 12 '43 200w

HOKANSON, NELS MANGUS. Swedish immigrants in Lincoln's time; with a foreword by Carl Sandburg. 259p il $3 Harper

973.743 Swedes in the U.S. U.S.—History—Civil war—Swedish troops 43-1027

"After short description of first Swedish settlements here, a well-rounded view of Swedish immigrant life in Lincoln's time is offered. Shows contribution of these newcomers to American life, attitude to Civil War, Lincoln's relation to them and Swedish Government." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"As a catalogue of names the entire volume might have a value, and it is little more than a catalogue of more or less prominent Swedes in America from the founding of the Delaware colony to the end of the Civil War. But its bibliography is inadequate for further and more reliable information while its footnotes are most unsatisfactory. There is no way by which the reader is able to determine when the author has based his statements on hearsay or on authentic records. The appendixes, which are numerous, serve no valuable purpose. The illustrations, however, are excellent. To the ordinary layman the above objections will matter very little, and if the volume stimulates an interest of an immigrant group in its own history, Mr. Hokanson will have succeeded where others have failed." O. F. Ander
— + Am Hist R 48:867 Jl '43 320w

"Appealingly written and excellently documented, will interest wider public than that of migration experts and Swedish-Americans. Recommended for college and public libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 67:1065 D 1 '42 120w

Reviewed by S. V. Gustafson
Springf'd Republican p8 F 24 '43 390w

"Mr. Hokanson has made a very real contribution toward a greater and better understanding of the part played by the Swedish element in America around the middle of the nineteenth century. The careers of many of the immigrants—even certain prominent ones—often are sketched too briefly; we are not always told what a man did in the ten or fifteen year period between his arrival in the United States and his commisssioning in the Union Army or Navy. This, I suppose, is almost inevitable in a volume so full of biographical data. My real quarrel, however, is with the proofreading of the book. This work seems to have been intrusted to persons unfamiliar with the Swedish language. Misspellings of Swedish names occur so often as to be irritating to the reader and to make the Index not infrequently a source of misinformation." Holger Lundbergh
+ — Weekly Book Review p14 Jl 4 '43 900w

HOLBERG, MRS RUTH (LANGLAND). Marching to Jerusalem; il. by Henrietta Jones. 149p $2 Crowell

43-16227

"Story of tragic Children's Crusade but does not duplicate Mrs. Hewes' splendid Boy of the Lost Crusade, as it ends at Marseilles, where ill-fated children took ship for Holy Land. Son and daughter of the Lord de Courtenai are saved through an accident and returned safely to their home." Library J

"A colorful picture is presented of a time that seldom seems real to us. The author has caught the flavor of medieval France, yet has kept the manner of telling her story lively and modern." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p3 N 14 '43 140w

"Over half of the book relates to their home life in the castle, the games they played and the customs of the time, so the story is not as painful as most records of the Children's Crusade." A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:411 N '43 90w

"Much French history and geography are painlessly presented, and graphic picture of medieval times and customs. Can be recommended as introduction to Mrs. Hewes' book, Boy of the Lost Crusade, though it by no means matches it in literary merit." Gertrude Andrus
+ Library J 68:671 S 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:826 O 15 '43 60w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 10w

"The Children's Crusade, so alluring to psychologists, has been the subject of not a few books for adults. It is indeed an adult subject, the story cannot have a happy ending; the actual, piteous snuffing out of its gayly kindled flame is too well known. Yet even its mention allures children: attempts at stories for them about it have been made. None have done so well with it as this." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p38 N 14 '43 450w

HOLBERG, MRS RUTH (LANGLAND). Tibby's venture; il. by Phyllis N. Coté. 122p $1.75 Doubleday

43-51303

Story of everyday happenings in the family of a New England sea captain living on the shores of Cape Ann. The time is about 1870. For ages nine to eleven.

"'Tibby's Venture' is a thoroughly delightful book for 8 to 10-year olds. The attractive drawings present the first work of a young New England artist, Phyllis N. Cote, who obviously has an important future ahead of her as an illustrator." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p3 N 14 '43 110w

Booklist 40:82 N 1 '43

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ja 31 '44 110w

"A friendly little story. . . Natural children and a warm sense of time and place give color to this New England story for little girls." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:318 S '43 90w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 30w

HOLBERG, RUTH—Continued
Reviewed by E. M. Beal
Library J 68:893 N 1 '43 110w

"With a quiet ease, an engaging humor and genuine understanding of children, Ruth Holberg has told a convincing tale of a little girl who lived in a town on Cape Ann more than fifty years ago." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 Ja 2 '44 220w
Wis Lib Bul 39:161 D '43

HOLBORN, LOUISE WILHELMINE, ed. War and peace aims of the United nations, September 1, 1939-December 31, 1942; introd. by Hajo Holborn. 730p $2.50 World peace

940.531 United nations, 1942-. World war, 1939—Documents, etc, sources 43-15931

"This is a very useful compilation of documents bearing on the war and peace objectives of the Allied powers issued in the first three and one-fourth years of the war. Beginning with the Atlantic Charter and other statements of the United Nations, it presents country by country the pronouncements which bear on the subject which is uppermost in public discussion all over the world." Christian Century

Reviewed by E. A. Beder
Canadian Forum 23:259 F '44 420w
Christian Century 60:1305 N 10 '43 160w
Springf'd Republican p8 D 24 '43 330w

HOLBROOK, MARION. Wanted: a murderess. 300p $2 Dodd 43-14289

Detective story.

"A commendably romantic tale, with a good mystery, although the line of action sags once in a while." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — Book Week p10 S 26 '43 200w
Booklist 40:95 N 15 '43
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 O 3 '43 80w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 S 26 '43 300w

HOLBROOK, MRS SABRA. Children object. 197p $2 Viking

371.84 Youthbuilder's clubs 43-3803

This book is a record of some of the experiences of a leader of the Youthbuilders, a movement organized in the New York public schools to help children express themselves on the problems of democracy.

"The publisher recommends this as a book for every teacher. I'd like to make the recommendation a great deal stronger than that. I feel that it's a book deserving of the consideration of every adult who gives a single hoot about the future. It's that good, it's that exciting and the ideas it stands for are that important to the future of democracy." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p8 My 2 '43 900w

"Mrs. Holbrook's book is full of concrete incidents and details and is written with humor and gusto. Reading it is a stimulating experience." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p4 Ag 29 '43 100w
Booklist 39:348 My 1 '43

"For anyone concerned with the training of children towards good citizenship in a democracy, Children Object is an exciting and challenging description of the Youthbuilders groups in the United States. . . The book is full of amusing descriptions of the struggles of the children against the apathy and incredulity of adults." Frances Crowther
+ Canadian Forum 23:70 Je '43 600w
Reviewed by E. F. Lynch
— Commonweal 38:55 Ap 30 '43 350w

"Her book is live, absorbing, filled with true stories of alert, serious-minded boys and girls who have learned the meaning of equality and freedom in Youthbuilders. If such groups can be formed in many places they will be a great force in shaping the society of the future." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:179 My '43 100w

"A little book that is strenuously readable, one that cries out to be read aloud, one whose reading aloud in any mixed group will be interrupted by protests that will in turn be cried down by those who learned pedagogy from the children they taught. By stories of children apparently recalcitrant, the story of an experiment in teaching democracy is told."
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Mr 28 '43 300w
Wis Lib Bul 39:119 O '43

HOLBROOK, STEWART HALL. Burning an empire, the story of American forest fires; with a foreword by William B. Greeley. 229p il maps $2.50 Macmillan

634.9618 Forest fires 43-15944

"Whether roaring upon a hurricane of its own down the Miramichi Valley of New Brunswick, sweeping into the booming lumber town of Peshtigo, Mich., in 1871, levelling the thriving city of Cloquet, Minn., in 1918, or destroying 12,500,000,000 feet of fine old timber in the Tillamook fire of 1933 in western Oregon, forest fire is a terrific and costly force. Visiting the scenes of the disasters, Mr. Holbrook has dug into the records and talked with many witnesses. An excellent reporter, he gives poignant details." (Christian Science Monitor) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 O 31 '43 320w
Booklist 40:109 D 1 '43
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 N 6 '43 750w

"The subject is of immense interest and importance, and the book is an excellent presentation of the subject. We are fortunate that the project was undertaken by a man who combines the two professions of writing and of fighting forest fires." G. R. Stewart
+ N Y Times p8 N 7 '43 600w
Reviewed by Edward Hungerford
+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 D 18 '43 550w

"Holbrook has made a very real and valuable contribution to the story of American forest history." N. W. Hosley
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 280w

"Mr. Holbrook is not only a crusader—and a sensible one—but he is one of the best storytellers ever to tackle his subject. More power to him. His book is illustrated with many excellent photographs and drawings, and for good measure, at the end, there is a collection of forest fire ballads—a whole school of Americana in itself." Stanley Walker
+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 31 '43 1450w
Wis Lib Bul 40:7 Ja '44

HOLDERLIN, JOHANN CHRISTIAN FRIEDRICH. Some poems; tr. by Frederic Prokosch. [32p] $1; pa 50c New directions

831 44-47

"The author of a number of the most magnificent lyric poems in German and of a fierce stigmatization of Germany, Friedrich Hoelderlin died, an old man, exactly one hundred years ago—after having lingered on earth, a peaceable lunatic, for almost forty years. . . A nursling of German idealism, the friend of Hegel and Schelling, he hymned the all-animating totality of nature. . . Hoelderlin had begun writing under the influence of Schiller's hymnic poems. . . Schiller for a while interested himself in his young fellow-Suabian. . . But Goethe's ascendancy over Schiller was increasing, and Goethe, who shrank from exalted temperaments, shrank from the intense Hoelderlin. . . Poetry as unfailingly deep in mood and musical as are his elegies and dithyrambs, as singularly sublime in pitch, rhythmically unified, and ethereal in phraseology, naturally kindled other enthusiasts. . . What particularly attracted the circle was his realization of the Greek ideal of the Poet—the interlocutor of the gods." Nation

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p3 D 1 '43 40w

"The Prokosch pamphlet is to be saluted. . . Something like a glow cast up from a mysterious world seems to meet the mind's eye through these pensive incantations. To be sure, the translation at times verges on doggerel. It is cold in spots. . . Admirably, none the less, it keeps the elevated pitch: this, in the circumstances, is of prime importance. And we want Hoelderlin for English readers: not only for the reason that he possessed a perfect sincerity equaled by no recent German poet, not by Rilke or by George. He is decidedly a most desirable prize and ally because of the dazzling purity with which the transcendental direction sustained itself in him. That direction is the finally noble one. In the transcendental lies the only commonwealth. There alone all men can meet." Paul Rosenfeld
+ — Nation 156:839 Je 12 '43 1050w

Reviewed by Conrad Aiken
New Repub 110:27 Ja 3 '44 60w

Reviewed by C. M. Bowra
New Statesman & Nation 26:221 O 2 '43 170w

"Mr. Prokosch's language is sometimes too Shelley-like in its music, too unenergetic in its expression. But, on the whole, he has produced a careful and interesting translation of a remarkable poet that will please many readers, particularly those who can follow the German text printed opposite the English." M. M. Colum
+ N Y Times p22 My 23 '43 210w

"The difficulty Mr. Prokosch encounters is the difficulty of transposing the textural firmness intact. Any small slips make the poetry sound exactly what it is not, slide it back to the region of aspiring and elegaic romanticism which is the one place it does not belong. The selection, arranged in roughly chronological order, is quite good, but one would have liked to see the two great poems 'Heidelberg' and 'Der Abschied' included." Louise Bogan
+ — New Yorker 19:63 Ag 7 '43 320w

Reviewed by Edwin Honig
Poetry 63:169 D '43 500w

Reviewed by Klaus Mann
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:8 Ja 8 '44 950w

Times [London] Lit Sup p502 O 16 '43 850w

HOLDING, MRS ELISABETH (SANXAY). Old battle-ax. 247p $2 Simon & Schuster 43-17233

Mystery story.

"The first half of the book is both realistic and exciting and if, in subsequent chapters, the reality wanes to the point where you're conscious of pure fabrication, you will already have established enough momentum to keep you going to the somewhat surprising end. The solution is one which neither you nor Mrs. Herriott could possibly have foreseen." Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p5 D 19 '43 230w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p18 D 12 '43 160w

"The solution to the murders in this may strike you as farfetched; as a character sketch, it's shrewd and entertaining."
+ — New Yorker 19:99 D 18 '43 70w

"Readers of Mrs Holding's previous stories of violent death know she is a master at constructing a tightly interwoven plot and at creating an atmosphere rife with terror. Those who meet her for the first time as the author of 'The Old Battle-Ax' will do well to remember her name, for she has real people to portray, and the skill by which she may bring her devotees excitement and a puzzle worth solving." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 19 '43 190w

"'The Old Battle-Ax' is a tale of crime and character, rather than a detective story, strictly so-called. Mrs. Holding knows her way about in detectivism, but this time she's giving that branch of learning a rest, letting the reader guess hard and often. . . As for the motive, Lizzie Bascom, local seamstress, observed, 'I've been wondering if it had anything to do with sabotage.' It hadn't, we can tell you that much." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p28 D 12 '43 400w

HOLLAND, ROBERT EMMETT. Song of Tekakwitha, the Lily of the Mohawks; il. by Le Roy H. Appleton. 167p $2.50 Fordham univ. press

811 Tegakouita, Catharine—Poetry 43-24

"A narrative in verse of the life of Venerable Kateri Tekakwitha, 'the Lily of the Mohawks.' It runs to some 3,680 lines and the meter used is that of the celebrated Kalevala made familiar to Americans by Longfellow in 'The Song of Hiawatha.' Father Holland seeks to do for a real heroine of our American forest what Longfellow accomplished for an Indian youth of legendary prowess. He has not departed from the recorded facts of Tekakwitha's life but he has brought out their significance in the making of a saint and invested them with the emotional appeal essential to poetry." Cath World

Reviewed by J. J. Reilly
+ Cath World 157:101 Ap '43 250w

"While the rhythm cannot be wholly divorced from monotony, it is very competently handled by Father Holland. One is ready to believe that younger readers in particular will relish it. If so, it will bring them profit and pleasure." G. N. Shuster
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 28 '43 400w

HOLLAND, RUPERT SARGENT. Freedom's flag; the story of Francis Scott Key. 256p $2 Macrae Smith co.

B or 92 Key, Francis Scott—Juvenile literature 43-7869

Story of the life and times of Francis Scott Key, the American lawyer who wrote The Star Spangled Banner. A man of wealth and social standing, Key was a great admirer of George Washington, and a friend of Jefferson, Madison, and Andrew Jackson, all of whom appear in this book for older boys and girls.

"'Freedom's Flag' is a timely addition to books about our country's past, which teachers will welcome and boys and girls from 12 to 15 will enjoy." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p12 Ag 8 '43 500w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p7 Jl 4 '43 450w

Wis Lib Bul 39:112 Jl '43

HOLLINGWORTH, LETA A. (STETTER) (MRS HARRY LEVI HOLLINGWORTH). Children above 180 I Q, Stanford-Binet; origin and development. 332p $3 World bk.

136.765 Children, Gifted 42-16902

"This is a posthumous report on a case-history study of the twelve children who tested at or above 180 IQ whom Leta S. Hollingworth was able to locate during twenty-three years of somewhat desultory effort. The three introductory chapters and reports on five of the cases are as she had written them up for publication. The remaining seven cases were prepared, apparently by Harry L. Hollingworth, from data in her files." Am Soc R

"The addition of these twelve cases to the literature on gifted children will no doubt be welcomed by those who follow the Galton-Binet tradition."
Am Soc R 8:248 Ap '43 80w

School & Society 55:708 Je 20 '42 130w

HOLM, GUSTAV. This was Lidice; tr. by Elisabeth Abbott. 235p $2.75 Putnam 43-51291

Novel based on the tragedy that was Lidice. It begins with the peaceful pre-war days, and changes into the grim struggle with the coming of the Nazis, and ends a few days after the savage destruction of the village.

"Gustav Holm, of Czech descent, poured his heart and soul into his book and endeavored to give a comprehensive picture of the dramatic events that led to this monstrous Nazi act. The task was much too difficult and huge to be accomplished in a mere 235 pages. Too many threads of different quality were woven in to assure an evenly fine texture. But I can honestly advise you: Read this book, by all means! Its great value lies in the authenticity of its events, in the realism of the lovingly drawn milieu, and above all, in the successful conveyance of that indomitable Czech spirit, so magnificently expressed in their rallying cry: Nedame se—We never surrender!" H. L. Reich
+ Book Week p5 O 3 '43 290w
Booklist 40:79 N 1 '43

"Will be popular. Recommended." E. M. Olcott
+ Library J 68:725 S 15 '43 110w

"The book contains scenes of beauty—for example, the opening scenes picturing life in Lidice before the terror struck it; it contains scenes of stark, unrelieved horror. But the author has neglected his characters, and chosen to present much of the material by the reportorial method, instead of evoking it in the form of human experience. The impact, even of this tale of horror and unbelievable fortitude, remains largely intellectual rather than emotional." J. R.
— + N Y Times p21 O 10 '43 360w

"Touching and full of regional color and warmth."
+ New Yorker 19:82 S 25 '43 20w

"The author's straightforward plot, the warmth of his sentiments, and his unobtrusive intimacy with the milieu add to the commendable qualities of his volume. In Mr. Holm's account, the pathetic story of Lidice remains as deeply moving as it was the morning the newspapers revealed to its horrified readers the scope of that monstrous crime. And this cannot be said of all anti-Nazi and underground tales." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 26:22 O 2 '43 450w

Reviewed by Emanuel Slotnick
Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 650w

Reviewed by Herbert Kupferberg
Weekly Book Review p14 O 3 '43 600w

HOLMES, HENRY WYMAN. Road to courage; sources of morale in men and nations. 249p $2.50 Knopf
301.1522 Morale. Courage 42-51443

"These chapters were presented as lectures before the Lowell institute in Boston, in the spring of 1942." The author, dean of the Harvard Graduate school of education, shows how courage springs from faith in a good way of life. It celebrates the courage of ordinary men in their daily lives; not the courage of heroism in battle. Contents: Courage in a crisis and courage for life; Stamina; Efficiency; Happiness; Possessions; Beliefs; Loyalties; Education.

Booklist 39:286 Mr 15 '43
Bookmark 5:3 Ja '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 Jl '43

"Among many current formulas for postwar efforts toward a durable peace, this constitutes a dynamic guide to thought and action of a kind demanding individual and collective courage. Belongs in group with Prelude to Victory (Reston) and A Time for Greatness (Agar)." J. S. Cleavinger
+ Library J 68:33 Ja 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by John Cournos
N Y Times p20 Ja 17 '43 550w
School & Society 57:56 Ja 9 '43 30w
Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 22 '4
330w
Weekly Book Review p16 Ap 11 '4
290w

HOLMES, JOHN ALBERT. Map of my country. 104p $2 Duell
811 43-17027

"Lyrics and soliloquies wherein a poet in his thirties seriously tries to delineate his circumstances and place himself in a dislocated world." New Yorker

---

"This is real poetry because the writer has something to say and is truly a poet. His unpretentious, honest verses have the meat of intense experience and profound thought; and he has subjected his expression to a discipline as sound and rigorous as it is unobstrusive." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p9 N 7 '43 140w
Booklist 40:193 F 1 '44

"Holmes utilizes a variety of forms and meters, ranging from chapters of autobiography in free verse of loose rhythm to more concentrated, usually metrical, pieces on single incidents of significance for the poet. The chapters, lacking the cement of a prior unity of attitude or perspective, tend to fall apart into the mere atoms of memory, names, dates, events and labels by which we recall our emotions rather than renew them. The single poems suffer from related defects. Beginning well, usually his vision fails to sustain itself, and the poems remain unrealized." William Poster
+ — New Repub 109:890 D 20 '43 180w
New Yorker 19:110 N 27 '43 20w

"John Holmes writes clean, clear stuff of life as he is experiencing it, and gives the reader a word or two about it in prose as a preface to his new book. . . This man is growing, and already has a deal of sympathy and insight. His is a friendly book, a good companion for the young." W. R. Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 26:23 D 4 '43 110w
Springf'd Republican p7e D 5 '43 550w

"Mr. Holmes is an orthodox New England traditionalist. At his best, in the metaphoric 'West Mountain Water' and 'The New View,' he strongly resembles Robert Frost, whom he most admires among contemporary poets. Like Frost, he is also a good teacher." Ruth Lechlitner
+ Weekly Book Review p16 D 12 '43 500w

HOLMES, JOHN HAYNES. The second Christmas, and other stories. 65p $1.25 Macmillan
Jesus Christ—Fiction 43-14540

"Three versions of episodes in the Gospels. . . In the title tale, Mary awaits the first anniversary. . . In the second, the innkeeper of Bethlehem appears as no churlish fellow, but a hotel man with a full house who did his best in the emergency and stayed a friend of the family. In the third, light falls on the conduct of the Wise Men." Weekly Book Review

---

"This book will be at or near the top of the list of Christmas books for this year, and will be a classic for many years to come."
+ Christian Century 60:1233 O 27 '43 70w

Reviewed by E. C. Thompson
Churchman 157:18 D 15 '43 120w

"Stories for Christmas warmly human and reverent."
+ Weekly Book Review p20 O 31 '43 200w

HOLMES, MARJORIE. World by the tail. 320p $2.50 Lippincott
43-7895

Polly Andrews was the ambitious, brainy member of a harum-scarum family. Polly had a chance to get away from the family, to become a lawyer and marry a fellow-student with a future career bought and paid for, but another man who could love and understand Dad, and Mom, and Jean, and the boys proved to be in the end what Polly really wanted.

"I think the book is quite above ordinary (this is apart from any realization that it is a 'first novel'). It is fundamentally a family story demanding, therefore, a sure hand at characterization. Miss Holmes passes the test." E. J. C.

+ Book Week p12 My 9 '43 230w

"The reader becomes inevitably involved in the foibles of this gallant family. Their pathetic tragedies wring your heart, and you identify yourself with them even if you've never been in their predicament: that is, of poor people trying to eke out a meal for six on a measly dollar, and striving to remain spiritually uncrushed in the process. You sympathize with them in their frailties, vanities, posturings, and their constant childlike faith in miracles. And you love them for not profiting at all from past experiences of failure." Marion Fradin

+ N Y Times p14 Je 6 '43 650w

"While the course of Polly's love and ambitions makes the central theme of the book, the best of it lies in Mrs. Holmes's portrayal of the Andrews household, especially of the laughter-loving, salty-tongued Sam. . . Mrs. Holmes is less successful in her portraits of Polly's two suitors. . . It is hard to believe that a person as fundamentally sound as Polly, however ridden by ambition, could have found the choice between them so difficult. In spite of the weaknesses, however, 'World by the Tail' makes a pleasant, homespun story." Rose Feld

+ — Weekly Book Review p10 My 2 '43 550w

HOLMES, OLIVER WENDELL. Mind and faith of Justice Holmes; his speeches, essays, letters and judicial opinions; sel. and ed. with introd. and commentary by Max Lerner. 474p $4 Little

340 Law 43-6772

Selections from the speeches, essays, letters, and judicial opinions of Justice Holmes. The editor has added comments on many of the sections. "My intent is through these selections to give a rounded portrait of the mind and faith of one who was perhaps the most complete personality in the history of American thought. . . My principle has been to view Holmes not primarily as a legal technician but as a humanist thinker and a human figure." (Foreword) Table of cases. Index.

Reviewed by S. I. Hayakawa
Book Week p2 Ag 1 '43 1050w

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p4 Ag 22 '43 100w

Booklist 39:386 Je 1 '43

"This is the most of Holmes that has yet been brought into one volume and much the most satisfying selection and arrangement for the lay reader of the great justice. A masterly piece of organization, Lerner's book has headlined Holmes' thought and separated his many sides for ready reference and reading in selected decisions, essays, letters and speeches." L. M. Lyons

+ Boston Globe p18 My 19 '43 500w

"Whatever the alleged or actual shortcomings or unconscious prejudices displayed in previous biographies and commentaries, Mr. Lerner has provided for us a comprehensive and reasonably complete record. His interpretations, analyses, and the excerpts he has selected, usually fairly in relation to their context, are, of course, his own. The reader is afforded a valuable opportunity to reach his own conclusions and to weigh them in the balance, for or against those quite eloquently and convincingly set down by an expert." F. L. P.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 My 17 '43 420w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Columbia Law R 43:955 S '43 900w

"Highly recommended for adult readers." H. P. Bolman

+ Library J 67:680 Ag '42 60w

Reviewed by I. F. Stone
Nation 157:76 Jl 17 '43 1250w

Reviewed by Bernhard Knollenberg
New Eng Q 16:516 S '43 800w

"One finds it refreshing, indeed, to be able to see the man entire, even to his occasional slips—which the editor demonstrates are but natural consequences of his general views—as well as the great pieces on which his fame so securely rests. Here is reasoned, if sympathetic, evaluation, not the adulation now all too common." C. E. Clark

+ New Repub 108:868 Je 28 '43 1200w

"The book makes me wish that I had never known Holmes—in order that I might here experience the joy of his acquaintance. It is mostly Holmes; but in a prologue which is a preview, and in little pieces which he speaks before each of Holmes's appearances, Lerner has condensed material from a large and growing literature. If at times his comment runs longer than the original text, it throws into sharp relief the brittle, compact style of the one whom 'my good brother Brandeis' used to call 'the Old Roman.' And it indicates a writing so filled with overtones that from it one is forever pulling fresh meaning." Walton Hamilton

+ N Y Times p5 My 16 '43 1250w

"An excellent job of selection."

+ New Yorker 19:79 My 15 '43 90w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
Sat R of Lit 26:18 Je 12 '43 550w

"Superb collection of the man's varied utterances. . . The commentator could not have done so fine a job were he not obviously warmed and fascinated by Holmes the man."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 950w

Reviewed by Phillips Bradley
Survey G 32:358 S '43 900w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager
Weekly Book Review p5 My 30 '43 2400w

HOLSAPPLE, LLOYD BURDWIN. Constantine the Great. 475p il map $3 Sheed

B or 92 Constantine I, the Great, emperor of Rome 43-356

A recreating of the life of Constantine the Great, from the slender evidences provided by history, and a panorama of the Eastern and Roman worlds during the early years of the struggle of the Christian faith for an existence. Index.

"Given this author's approach and convictions, his reconstruction of the first Christian emperor and the religious developments of his time is scholarly, consistent, and reasonable. Much of his reconstruction does not claim more than probability, and if others do not go as far as he does in accepting the stories of the church fathers and the authenticity or provenance of documents, they can for the most part only oppose another probability to his. While the professional historian who deals with Constantine and his period will not look to this biography for critical enlightenment, the general reader will find it the best available presentation of Constantine and his times from the point of view of the scholarly churchman." C. B. Coleman

+ Am Hist R 48:770 Jl '43 430w

"Having carefully sifted the available sources of information on the life, character, policy and influence of the first Christian emperor, the author presents his conclusions in the spirit of an honest, well-trained historian, pointing out various ways in which reckless and prejudiced writers have distorted the portrait of a ruler who, though limited and imperfect, was a noble and significant figure. Some pages are hard reading; but the book as a whole, provides a more complete account than can easily be obtained elsewhere."

+ Cath World 157:109 Ap '43 230w

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 1 '43 700w

"There are historical points that scholars would find debatable, but ultimate values are vivid and clear." A. H. Campbell

+ — Library J 67:1012 N 15 '42 110w

HOLSAPPLE, L. B.—Continued

"It is the thesis of this scholarly biography, written from the Roman Catholic point of view, that Constantine's effect on history can be accounted for only by his original genius. It is definitely a book for Catholics. Others may find it slightly elliptical."

Nation 156:463 Mr 27 '43 100w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson

N Y Times p16 Mr 14 '43 550w

"The appearance of a big book about Constantine raises the hope that systematic search will have assembled all the pertinent material, and thorough analysis will have reduced it to an authoritative account. Unfortunately the hope is not realized. For one thing, more space goes to the history of the Church than to that of the Empire, for another, Mr. Holsapple's critical ability is not equal to his extremely difficult task. He has honestly attempted to sift the evidence and to present us with the real Constantine, but his bias is too much for him, as it is for most of Constantine's biographers." A. R. Bellinger

Sat R of Lit 26:21 F 20 '43 700w

"An interesting and exceedingly readable account of the emperor's life." W. H. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p8 F 18 '43 950w

"No final word can ever be written on Constantine for scholars will always disagree over the credence to be placed in the conflicting accounts of contemporary writers. Dr. Holsapple, though, has made a notable contribution in that his study is based on sound and competent scholarship, is eminently fair and unprejudiced, and is presented in a style to capture and hold attention." P. J. Searles

+ Weekly Book Review p18 F 28 '43 800w

HOLT, ALLISON. Bier for a hussy. 253p $2 Phoenix

43-16442

Detective story.

"The red herring element in this story is a little too obvious." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p16 N 28 '43 80w

"Thin."

— Sat R of Lit 26:20 N 27 '43 30w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p28 D 12 '43 170w

HOLT, LUTHER EMMETT. Care and feeding of children; rev. and enl. by L. Emmett Holt, jr. 16th ed 321p il $2 Appleton-Century

649.1 Children—Care and hygiene. Children—Nutrition 43-7202

"A thoroughly revised edition of a standard work, retaining its original question and answer form." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 39:467 Jl 15 '43

"First published in its original form nearly half a century ago, this standard work has been kept abreast with advancing knowledge by constant revision, as testified by the no less than twenty-two copyright dates of successive editions."

+ Christian Century 60:668 Je 2 '43 50w

Reviewed by M. E. Breckenridge

J Home Econ 35:589 N '43 300w

"The tone of the book throughout is firm, confident and final. Undoubtedly, this is one of its chief values. It is no part of a doctor's role to admit two sides to every question, especially when dealing with an inexperienced mother. When a child develops croup, or hiccoughs, or swallows a button, she wants someone to tell her exactly what to do. Dr. Holt tells her. Half a century of experience lends weight to his counsel." Catherine Mackenzie

+ N Y Times p25 S 26 '43 750w

School & Society 57:612 My 22 '43 20w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 11 '43 110w

HOLT, MRS MARGARET VAN VECHTEN (SAUNDERS) (RACKHAM HOLT, pseud). George Washington Carver; an American biography. 342p $3.50 Doubleday

B or 92 Carver, George Washington

43-51106

Biography of the distinguished Negro scientist, one of the pioneers in chemurgy and scientific agriculture. He was born of slave parents in Missouri, and after his mother's death, was brought up by a white family. His youth was spent in wandering from place to place, working at various occupations, in order to earn money for an education. In 1896 he went to Tuskegee, where he became famous for his work with the peanut and sweet potato, from which he produced hundreds of byproducts. Dr Carver died in 1943. Index.

"Here is a book that will be an inspiration and a challenge to every American youth. And to every citizen of this democracy it will present two stinging accusations, 'Who is my neighbor?' and 'What are we fighting for?' Rackham Holt has written a fascinating biography. Somewhat episodic in its earlier portion, perhaps because of the antiquity and the fragmentary nature of the material, it soon swings into an epic stride. Not the least of Rackham Holt's virtues as a writer are her sense of the dramatic and her masterful manipulation of veiled irony. Here is a story that will cause you to chuckle, that will touch your heart, make your blood boil and enlarge your soul." Walter Hendricks

+ Book Week p4 Ap 18 '43 1400w

Booklist 39:332 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:16 Mr '43

"It is to be hoped that the book will attain a wide circulation, for every honest reader who becomes familiar with this extraordinary man will be in a position to refute the most common and most devastating criticisms directed against the American Negro."

+ Cath World 157:669 S '43 230w

Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 10 '43 600w

Reviewed by R. C. Batchelder

Churchman 157:16 Je 1 '43 300w

Commonweal 37:645 Ap 16 '43 1000w

"Will be needed by many libraries, large and small. . . For white and Negro alike, for young and old; inspiring and ennobling book, that should be in as many hands as possible." Ernestine Rose

+ Library J 68:286 Ap 1 '43 70w

"The author has engaged in no 'debunking.' Indeed, she approaches her subject with something of reverence and develops his life story with that loving tenderness which Dr. Carver was peculiarly able to evoke, particularly from white admirers. Her work, nevertheless, is not the mere effusion of an ardent admirer. It is a well conceived and readable volume, the result of diligent research and competent workmanship. Moreover, it reveals an understanding of the basic social and economic factors which have retarded the development of the South." H. L. Moon

+ New Repub 108:515 Ap 19 '43 950w

"Mrs. Holt's book is warm with intelligent understanding and unmarred by that fatuous indulgence which is only another kind of condescension. She sees quite clearly that certain aspects of Carver's personality were provincial or defensive, and shows us why. In one of the most attractive biographies of the season she puts an appropriately lyrical colloquial prose to good use in conveying the character of a gifted scientist, the most likable of ascetics, who dedicated himself to the improvement of his own group and a firmer cordiality between Negroes and whites in America. . . If Mrs. Holt's book . . . has shortcomings, we may well blame its minor lacks on the difficulties of a pioneer work in a field that may have very broad implications. We should like to have been given a more general evaluation of Dr. Carver's thought, of his markedly Deweyan sense of process in science, and perhaps some hint of the effects of his example on ecology and regional planning. As it stands we have a good book about an American who deserved well of us." Vincent McHugh

+ — N Y Times p1 Ap 4 '43 700w

"You will find his life described, rather sentimentally, it is true, in Rackham Holt's 'George Washington Carver.' Dr. Carver, who taught and labored at Tuskegee for many years, had, through an accident of biology, rather more melanin in his skin than most of us. Someday it will be possible to write a biography of him without mentioning this unimportant fact." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:77 Ap 3 '43 60w

"I can think of no book published in recent years that has a greater claim to be placed in every school in the United States. The author's work merits it, and the subject is compelling. It was not written as a tract and reads not at all like one. Yet, as an antidote to the unutterably stupid racephobia which is at this very moment making doubtful the final victory of the United Nations, it is priceless. The best thing that can be said about it is that it embodies much of the philosophy of Dr. Carver himself." O. G. Villard
+ Sat R of Lit 26:15 Ap 17 '43 900w

"George Washington Carver lived such a varied life and has contributed so much to so many, that it would seem almost impossible to evaluate his place among scientists and humanitarians. But Mrs. Holt has accomplished this feat. She has created the complete picture—the multiplicity of interests and the cheerful, kind, simple dignity of a great-hearted and great-minded man. This book should prove one of the popular biographies of the year."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Ap '43 500w

"The early years of Dr Carver's life, about which little is known, are a little overwritten, but the story soon takes on a magnificent stature one cannot soon forget, like the shadow of a great man falling gently across a country with forgiveness in its touch." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 900w

"This is a book to be read as much for its social as its human import: it really justifies its subtitle, An American Biography." Alain Locke
+ Survey G 32:301 Jl '43 230w
Wis Lib Bul 39:72 My '43

"Mrs. Holt has headed her cumulatively fascinating chapters with lines from familiar spirituals. These make it a singing book, quite in keeping with the persistent, child-like faith and humor of the man." Richardson Wright
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ap 4 '43 1900w

"To her vivid account of Dr. Carver's life and work Mrs. Holt gives the subtitle, 'An American Biography.' This is a modest understatement, for the book is not only the story of a great American and of a great scientist but, indirectly, the record of the progress made by a whole race." F. B. Hutt
+ Yale R n s 33:155 autumn '43 850w

HOLT, MRS RACKHAM, pseud. See Holt, M. V. S.

HOLTOM, DANIEL CLARENCE. Modern Japan and Shinto nationalism; a study of present-day trends in Japanese religions. 178p $2 Univ. of Chicago press

299.56 Shinto. Japan—Nationalism and nationality. Japan—Religion 43-1539

"The study of the problems of Shinto nationalism and religion in modern Japan presented in the following pages contains the material of the lectures delivered on the Haskell Foundation at the University of Chicago." (Foreword) Contents: The religious foundations of the Japanese State; Shinto and Japanese nationalism; Nationalism and universalism; Japanese Christianity and Shinto nationalism; Buddhism and Japanese nationalism; The overseas expansion of State Shinto. Index.

"The study is well documented and the thesis is well knit. The only possible exception that can be taken to it is that, in stressing the growth in the state Shinto and Japanese nationalism, the existence of many skeptics in urban middle-class Japan tends to be overlooked and that little is said of the existence of the older forms of popular Shinto in the rural areas where state Shinto is still more the concern of officials and teachers than of the people at large." J. F. Embree
+ — Am J Soc 49:272 N '43 380w

Reviewed by R. T. LaPiere
Am Soc R 8:356 Je '43 400w

Reviewed by K. S. Latourette
Ann Am Acad 228:114 Jl '43 340w
Booklist 39:419 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 60:264 Mr 3 '43 490w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
Churchman 157:31 Mr 15 '43 250w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:16 Jl '43 30w

"Those who are acquainted with Dr. Holtom himself and the scholarly character of his writings in the past will place great confidence in his discriminating appraisal. His reputation will not suffer from the quality of this, his most recent publication." A. G. Baker
+ J Religion 23:220 Jl '43 600w
Nation 156:786 My 29 '43 70w

"The documentation is impressive, but the writing ponderous."
New Repub 108:486 Ap 12 '43 100w

"Dr. Holtom's book, written just before the war but published this year, is an excellent background study." Wing-tsit Chan
+ N Y Times p8 Ap 18 '43 1550w

Reviewed by M. S. Bates
Pacific Affairs 16:365 S '43 750w

"Mr. Holtom has a tremendous amount of highly interesting and valuable material in his book. However, the book offers many pitfalls to the reader unversed in knowledge of Japan. This is a directed research and does not present a full picture of the problems we have to face in dealing with Japan and her present carefully nurtured delineation of her cultural background. And even the earnest student will find its theological phrasing and its almost unbelievable redundancy tiring. Yet to those of patience, there is much to be gained here." Wenzell Brown
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:6 F 20 '43 800w

"Dr. Holtom's scholarly book is of great interest for an understanding of Japanese philosophy and of its fundamental similarity with that prevailing in Germany. Though his book is not easy reading, it should be most warmly recommended as one of the indispensable first-hand accounts of the Japanese mind. Dr. Holtom, the leading non-Japanese authority on Shintoism, has written out of a deep sympathy with the Japanese people and in a charitable hope for the better side of Nipponism, which only future events can justify." Hans Kohn
+ Survey G 32:455 N '43 260w

HOLTON, EDITH AUSTIN (ELIZABETH ALDEN HEATH, pseud). For those in peril. 277p $2 Putnam

43-5574

A story of two sisters living in a small Cape Cod village a hundred years ago. Cynthia Lewis had loved Abner Baker for years but when Abner first saw "little" Lydia grown up he forgot his leanings toward Cynthia and Lydia had an easy time of it. In the end after years of separation while Abner was away at sea both sisters were awarded their due.

"The portraits of the two sisters are well drawn, and their fortunes plausible. . . But it is Falmouth itself, with the smell of the sea and the salt marshes and the home-baked bread, with its courage and its prejudices, its gossips and its unsung heroes, which lingers longest in the reader's memory." L. M. Field
+ N Y Times p16 Ap 25 '43 400w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p21 My 9 '43 330w

HOLTON, EDITH AUSTIN (ELIZABETH ALDEN HEATH, pseud). Romantic detour. 282p $2 Kinsey

42-50912

When Damaris King discovered that the man she loved was going to marry her only for her money, there seemed no choice but to disappear. Her refuge was a small Vermont village and there a wise woman, a young doctor, and a shrewd old man helped Damaris to create a new personality and a new life for herself.

"With a New England background, a folksy flavor and a sympathetic heroine whose problems are made genuine and dramatic, 'Romantic Detour' captures your interest at the start and maintains it throughout its quiet course. It is one of those novels that conveys its message without raising its voice or straining for effect." Lisle Bell

+ Books p22 Ja 24 '43 230w

"The chief interest of the story lies in Damaris's discovery of the simple charms of the Vermont village, her happiness in working for Aunt Sarah, and the stiffening of backbone which enabled her to deal coolly with a mercenary mother and stepfather." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 3 '43 220w

"A charming story."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 24 '43 190w

HOMES, GEOFFREY, pseud. See Mainwaring, D.

HONE, JOSEPH MAUNSELL. W. B. Yeats, 1865-1939. 535p il $6 (25s) Macmillan

B or 92 Yeats, William Butler . 43-741

Biography of the Irish poet, senator, and playwright, written by a countryman who knew Yeats for thirty years, and was allowed to use quantities of family letters and papers in his work. "Yeats, and all that went to make him artist, poet, and dramatist, is here, but the book is also packed with intimate glimpses of intellectual life of Ireland from 1880 to 1939. Yeats' national interest included politics, so this biography may be said to touch every phase of life and every important man and woman who moved through the Irish Renaissance." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

"In general Mr. Hone has used the material at his disposal, published and unpublished, with sound judgment, and we have a good picture of Yeats, which was not an easy thing to accomplish. To be sure, there are certain sides of Yeats which are only hinted at rather than described. For one thing we should like to hear more than Mr. Hone tells of Yeats's activities as a senator. And Mr. Hone does not bring out very clearly the fact that Yeats was, for a long portion of his career, something of a poseur. . . But Mr. Hone is doubtless right not to put much importance on such matters, though they add to the total picture, for the splendid thing about Yeats is that he had, not merely the secondary characteristics of genius, but the primary ones as well." Theodore Spencer

+ — Atlantic 171:148 Mr '43 700w

Booklist 39:291 Mr 15 '43

"Mr. Hone's account, while correcting and clarifying some facts of the poet's personal life slurred in the autobiographies, and giving, in scattered paragraphs, glimpses of the political and philosophical beliefs that animated so much of his poetry, records a good deal of what we already know without the further elucidation that it warrants. Although he had the advantage of having known the Yeats family for thirty years, and had access to all the necessary documents, including the poet's notebooks and diaries, he is not beyond making a misstatement, either out of ignorance, which he might have corrected, or out of carelessness. He is neither a penetrating thinker nor a skillful writer. He has given us the authorized but not the definitive biography." Babette Deutsch

+ — Books p1 F 7 '43 1750w

Reviewed by Margaret Meagher

Cath World 157:99 Ap '43 650w

"Mr. Hone's biography is something of a disappointment. It is not nearly so lively as his biography of George Moore. Perhaps this is because the subject, though a nobler one, is not so entertaining. Parts of it are too much spun out; there is too much occultism and too much of Irish politics and affairs. At various points one feels that there is more to be told. . . As the authorized biography, this book must be read by all interested in the great poet. If they will restrain their impatience at Mr. Hone's long-windedness and occasional dullness, they will find in it much to supplement the portraits of Yeats which have already been drawn by himself and so many of his friends and enemies." S. C. Chew

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 6 '43 1000w

"It is a valuable book for those who already know the poems of Yeats." W. L. C.

+ Churchman 157:16 My 1 '43 120w

"Most conclusive biography; fascinating, readable, yet profound and scholarly. . . Expensive but, for those libraries that need it, a valuable contribution to Irish literature and the history of the Irish Theatre." M. H. Zipprich

+ Library J 68:127 F 1 '43 90w

"Not the least value of this biography is that it corrects the lop-sided view of Yeats as only becoming a poet of any significance when he began to do stylistic penance for the romantic sins of his youth. The unity and true proportions of his life and of his achievement are restored. Both the inward movement of his fiery yet elaborately masked spirit and the outward pattern of his dynamically picturesque career are depicted with exemplary candour and fascinating fullness." H. I'A. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 17 '43 350w

"The work of biography could hardly, at this early stage of Yeats's posthumous history, have fallen into abler hands than Mr. Hone's. His skill and tact . . . here work under official privileges which, though they have imposed inhibitions that make the poet's later career obscure at a good many points, will be enjoyed by none of his successors." M. D. Zabel

+ Nation 156:348 Mr 6 '43 1200w

"Joseph Hone's authorized life of the poet is not miraculous or even a work of human genius, but it is a careful, wise and necessary book. There is almost no end to the sources on which it could draw. Yeats himself was, I think, the best autobiographical writer of our time, and Mr. Hone quotes from him at length, while sometimes pointing out his factual errors. . . On the other hand, assistance like this puts limitations on what the biographer can say. Nothing must be printed that will hurt the poet's family or his public standing or the many friends who have been so kind. Nothing must deeply offend Yeats's enemies, or they will bring suit for libel before obliging judges. The Irish censorship, which never sleeps, must not be aroused to fury. With all these difficulties to overcome, it is no wonder that Mr. Hone adds comparatively little to what was known already. . . Perhaps the best feature of Mr. Hone's biography is his fashion of quoting the poems so that they illuminate Yeats's life, which in turn illuminates and gives still more effect to the poems. From time to time, however, we feel that some essential detail has been left out of the story." Malcolm Cowley

+ — New Repub 108:185 F 8 '43 2350w

"Though there will undoubtedly be other biographies more important than this one, yet this life of W. B. Yeats is certainly very valuable: the author knew the poet over many years, had the means of assembling the facts of his life, and these he sets down with an intimacy, an understanding, that no person not a fellow-Irishman and a Dubliner could very well get. This biography should have the effect of correcting some of the misinformation current about the poet and his work in this country. . . Joseph Hone's 'W. B. Yeats,' in its very plainness, its abstinence from all that is exalted and highfalutin, is a valuable record of a man who was extraordinary in every facet of his character as well as being a great poet." M. M. Colum

+ N Y Times p1 F 7 '43 1750w

"'W. B. Yeats' is respectful; it is, one fears, highly authorized; and it brings into focus all of the outward and part of the inward incident of a long and hugely fascinating career. . . About the erotic element in Yeats' life—obviously, particularly in his later years, the dominant influence on his work—Mr. Hone tells little. Even the author's account of the famous near-affair with Maud Gonne is too tactful to be illuminating, and Yeats' married life has no reality in Mr. Hone's reverent pages. Perhaps later biographies will remedy these lacks. In the meantime, anyone interested in Yeats should read this useful book, well documented, sensible in judgment, and rich in detail." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 18:61 F 6 '43 1450w

"Mr. Hone has done the simple thing and written a very competent source book. He quite rightly avoids the psychological approach, one which seems to me futile with such a writer as Yeats. Mr. Hone narrates the main events of the poet's life, and is smart enough to include the financial details—an item biographers frequently ignore. He does not, however, go deeply enough into the matter of Yeats' beliefs, nor, what is indeed regrettable, does he give the historical and social background of Ireland enough pertinence to enlighten most American and British readers who are ignorant of the whole subject." J. V. Healy
+ — Poetry 62:223 Jl '43 2000w

"Mr. Joseph Hone has written an excellent book with the most baffling material. His admiration of the poet never clouds his judgment, he keeps a firm step amid the encircling gloom, and nowhere permits his subject to descend to the trivial. Even the shade of Ezra Pound, that might have supplied the comic relief in less conscientious hands, is a discreet shade." Cecil Roberts
+ Sat R of Lit 26:5 F 13 '43 1150w

"Mr. Hone's eagerly awaited official biography of Yeats . . . is a solid, satisfactory piece of work full of the details we want to know, giving a most comprehensive account of Yeats' life without a single dull page. Indeed, I go so far as to say that it is a model of what biography ought to be, and only a practical writer can fully appreciate the skill with which Mr. Hone has digested, selected and condensed the mass of material at his disposal into less than four hundred pages and without the slightest self-intrusion." W. J. Turner
+ Spec 170:176 F 19 '43 900w

"One of the many books we may expect treating the life and work of this interesting Irish poet, but it is by no means a clear book or a definitive biography. Perhaps it is too soon yet to hope for an objective study and evaluation; perhaps another writer will accomplish this; and until then the readers of Yeats will be forced to find their own way through the mystery, myth, and flavor of charlatanism that linger about Yeats. . . It must be understood that everyone interested in Yeats will surely read this book, notwithstanding its great handicap of being written too close to Yeats's time and Yeats's friends." Lee Varley
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e F 21 '43 850w

"This official biography is not by a good deal as great as its subject. Its polished-walnut elegance gives way now to dullness, now to Irish fanciness; its irony and its tact might occasionally have given way to blunter judgment. It goes into local minutiae tiresome to any save the hottest Hibernians. Its biographer cannot with detachment examine Yeats. Yet the book is so rich in its detailing of a significant life, and of the remarkable people who surrounded and shaped it, that it is unlikely that a more valuable work on Yeats will ever be written, and impossible that one will be written without using Mr. Hone's volume as its Rosetta Stone."
+ — Time 41:88 F 8 '43 1900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p78 F 13 '43 2350w

"After reading Mr. Hone's biography of Yeats, I believe that we shall have to wait another ten years before the authoritative Life of Eire's distinguished poet can be written; in that time it is conceivable that an editor can be found who will take delight in giving order to the variety of Yeats's essays, letters, poems, and marginalia; and since the width of the Atlantic provides an admirable perspective for views of John Bull's other island, let us hope the editor will be an American." Horace Gregory
Yale R n s 32:599 spring '43 1300w

HOOK, SIDNEY. Hero in history; a study in limitation and possibility. 273p $2.50 Day
901 History—Philosophy. Heroes 43-5452

"Dividing his great men into those who are more or less 'creatures of events' and the more positive 'event-making men,' the author sets out to inquire just how much weight the 'heroes'—philosophical, scientific, social, and political—have pulled in the making of history." (New Yorker) Index.

"With the touting of the role of the leader by contemporary fascists, and the correspondingly extravagant claims made for impersonal social forces in Marxist dogma and in some forms of 'scientific' history and sociology, it is refreshing indeed to read such a sober and sensible appraisal of the hero's role as Professor Hook gives us in this book." G. R. Morrow
+ Ann Am Acad 229:197 S '43 600w

"One of the oldest of philosophical problems, the issue between free will and determinism, is sanely handled in this wise and witty book."
+ Atlantic 172:129 Jl '43 100w

Booklist 39:385 Je 1 '43

Reviewed by A. W. Levi
Ethics 54:152 Ja '44 600w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:155 O '43 20w

"In this pleasantly and popularly written study of a familiar theme, Sidney Hook illuminates with a wealth of concrete historical illustration his central problems of the conditions of political leadership, and takes occasion to raise many of the theoretical issues connected with the analysis of history and of 'historical determinism.' He exposes acutely the fallacies of the social and economic determinists, especially the Marxians. . . Mr. Hook's general position is clearly set forth, brilliantly illustrated, and, with the clarification about determinism already made, sound. It is his concrete problem of political leadership that leads him to make what is a rather restricted application of his principles to the analysis of history." J. H. Randall, Jr.
+ — J Philos 40:575 O 14 '43 2250w

"Though it is short, this latest work of Sidney Hook's is easily the richest and fullest of his historico-philosophical studies." Jacques Barzun
+ — Nation 157:326 S 18 '43 1550w

"Hook is a better informal logician than social historian: he is better at searching the assumptions and contradictions in other men's views of the hero than in finding out just what the role of the hero in history might be. This polemic frame of mind does not prevent his telling us a lot about the historic role of individuals, for logical analyses of other philosopher's discussions issue from his mind as provocative sociology. He has approached his problem from several standpoints: all of them interesting, some of them penetrating, most of them unfortunately formal." C. W. Mills
+ New Repub 108:834 Je 21 '43 900w

"Professor Hook's study [is] persuasively written and enriched by the author's incisive gifts for exposition, analysis and polemic." Joseph Freeman
+ N Y Times p23 Je 27 '43 440w

"An interesting study and a good corrective to the various single-stress theories of history."
+ New Yorker 19:75 My 1 '43 90w

"In his closing chapters Mr. Hook touches upon some of the most crucial problems of democracy. . . Although sometimes rather sketchy, these chapters are packed with highly suggestive observations. The reader who demands specific solutions of his problems may regret that Mr. Hook does not carry his argument further. His book is, however, a most valuable contribution to that 'new philosophy' which Benedetto Croce foresaw almost thirty years ago." Robert Pick

HOOK, SIDNEY—Continued

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:6 My 1 '43 550w

School & Society 57:484 Ap 24 '43 40w

Reviewed by W. H. Mohr

Social Studies 34:376 D '43 180w

Time 41:90 My 17 '43 550w

"Never has the world been more in the grip of hero mythology than today, and never has the voice of sense and science been more needed to bring the beast to bay. Sidney Hook's book is therefore of importance." Adrienne Koch

+ Weekly Book Review p16 Je 6 '43 1050w

HOOKER, RUFUS W. Ship's doctor. (Whittlesey house publication) 279p $2.50 McGraw

B or 92 Surgeons—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-2412

Autobiography of an American physician who spent fourteen years as a ship's doctor. During those years he traveled over a million miles on land and sea, and his duties varied from human to veterinary medicine, from looking after polo ponies to care of the wounded after Pearl Harbor.

"Many a land-lubber fussily worrying about rationing could get something out of this book which displays so clearly that ingenuity always prevails when necessity is met with courage." Josephine Herbst

+ Book Week p6 Mr 14 '43 600w

Booklist 39:332 Ap 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

Reviewed by C. B. Palmer

N Y Times p9 F 21 '43 500w

"Good yarning, but perhaps too slick."

New Yorker 19:67 F 27 '43 50w

"Dr. Hooker's story is unpretentious, plain, devoid of any literary straining and thoroughly absorbing." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p4 F 14 '43 1500w

Wis Lib Bul 39:52 Ap '43

HOOL, GEORGE ALBERT, and KINNE, WILLIAM SPAULDING, eds. Foundations, abutments, and footings. (Structural engineers' handbook lib) 2d ed 417p il $4 McGraw

624.15 Foundations 43-14108

"Second edition revised by R. R. Zipprodt and E. J. Kilcawley. Authoritative manual on the fundamentals and practice in foundation work, corrected and brought to date with new data on modern excavation processes and equipment." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 40:149 D 15 '43

"The section on excavation contains much new material, chiefly about excavation work other than that directly related to foundations. One of the most valuable elements of the revised text is the discussion of formulas for determining the bearing power of piles, contained in Appendix B."

+ Eng N 131:116 N 4 '43 90w

Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 40w

HOOL, GEORGE ALBERT, and KINNE, WILLIAM SPAULDING, eds. Steel and timber structures; comp. by a staff of specialists; rev. by R. R. Zipprodt and D. M. Griffith. (Structural engineers' handbook lib) 2d ed rev and enl 733p il $6 McGraw

624 Structures, Theory of 42-25285

Revised material has been introduced to cover changes that have been made in design or construction procedure since the first edition (Book Review Digest, 1924). For example, "the plate girder highway bridges in Section 3 have been completely redesigned to be in conformance with the 1941 A.A.S.H.O. Standard Specifications for Highway Bridges. Much new material on the design of timber highway bridges has also been added. Latest A.S.T.M. Specifications pertaining to several basic products or materials have been substituted for other specifications which have long since been revised." (Pref. to second edition)

Library J 67:1067 D 1 '42 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:35 Ap '43

HOOL, GEORGE ALBERT, and KINNE, WILLIAM SPAULDING, eds. Stresses in framed structures; comp. by a staff of specialists; 2d ed rev. by R. R. Zipprodt and George C. Ernst. (Structural engineers' handbook lib) 642p $5 McGraw

624 Structures, Theory of. Strains and stresses 43-180

"Changes from the first edition [Book Review Digest, 1924] have been made to incorporate recommendations of the American Society of Civil Engineers and the American Railway Engineering Association. These relate to design for wind forces, steel railway bridges, train loadings, design of a roof truss, centrifugal and longitudinal forces acting on trains in motion, and wind forces acting on loaded and unloaded bridges. The section devoted to Statically indeterminate frames has been modernized and expanded by the inclusion of the moment distribution method of analysis. A new Appendix C has been added which presents charts for the design of concrete beams and columns with variable moment of inertia." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Library J 68:212 Mr 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:51 Jl '43

HOOTON, EARNEST ALBERT. Man's poor relations. 412p il $5 Doubleday

599.8 Primates 42-50504

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Here is a work which shows Hooton at his best; for once he has succeeded in popularizing without giving an imitation of a submissive member of the hamadryas tribe. Anthropologists and sociologists will be especially interested, for nowhere under one cover is to be found so well-organized and complete a presentation of what is now known about the primates. Further, the photographs which stud the book are very well chosen, and the drawings which enable the ready comparison of the various primates with each other are exceedingly valuable."

+ Am Soc R 8:248 Ap '43 60w

Booklist 39:287 Mr 15 '43

"This is perhaps one of Dr. Hooton's most dignified books. It is as fascinating as most of his writing, but it is more systematic and less personal than previous works of the author. (And where it is funny, it usually is not quotable)." O. Z.

+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 27 '43 350w

"That it is relatively sound and relatively authoritative is above question. However, it is also dry, dull and uninteresting. The scientific layman would do well to spend a night on a rental copy before spending money to buy. The high school biology teacher will find this a valuable reference work." J. McA. Kater

+ — Commonweal 38:56 Ap 30 '43 100w

"This book is the finest semi-popular presentation which Professor Hooton has achieved since the publication of his now classic and widely used volume Up From the Ape. To add to its value and significance the subject matter of the volume lies in a field which has received no sustained, readable and general treatment for some decades." L. C. Eiseley

+ Social Forces 21:492 My '43 500w

HOPE, WINGFIELD. Life together. 199p $2.50 Sheed

173 Marriage 43-15684

Presents the Roman Catholic point of view regarding marriage and family life.

"This book should not merely be recommended but strongly urged upon mothers, fathers and young couples recently married or about to marry It belongs to that sane type of book, too rarely encountered, which deals with what we call 'the facts of life' from a Catholic viewpoint and in a tone both frank and spiritual."

+ Cath. World 158:223 N '43 140w

Commonweal 39:40 O 29 '43 30w

HOPKINS, JOHN APPLETON HAVEN, comp. Diary of world events. 10v il maps pa $18.75 The compiler, c.o. Nat. advertising co, 306 S. Hanover st, Baltimore

940.53 World war, 1939- 42-19535

"A chronological record of the second World war as reported day by day by American and foreign newspaper dispatches. Reproduced photographically." (Subtitle) "The ten volumes contain some 11,000 news clippings in some 2,500 pages, covering the period from Munich through May, 1941. They contain, I should say, two million or more words. The indexing occupies forty-three pages. The chief sources are the New York Herald Tribune and 'The Baltimore Sun.'" (Books)

Am Hist R 48:632 Ap '43 50w

"In the rush of current happenings, it is amazing how many important occurrences of even last winter have escaped our memories. The 'Diary of World Events' is the most useful refresher I can think of, and its value should increase materially in the years to come." Ann Ireland

+ Book Week p8 Ag 29 '43 250w

"The work has the faults inherent in its originally experimental nature. Some of the clippings are badly blotched or lacking in essential portions, for which the compiler duly apologizes. And it seems to me that Mr. Hopkins has not yet found the most satisfactory formula for indexing. . . But with all the blemishes, which everybody can discover for himself, this work seems to me a must for every large library, for the history department of every university, for history research organizations, for students of current affairs, and for large newspapers. But even more valuable than the work itself is the idea and method of publication, which is applicable to a thousand different types of research." Hiram Motherwell

+ — Books p12 Ja 17 '43 1050w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:578 Ap '43 40w

HOPKINS, STANLEY, jr, pseud. Murder by inches. 284p $2 Harcourt

43-51084

Detective story.

Booklist 39:334 Ap 15 '43

Christian Century 60:298 Mr 10 '43 10w

"A tale of sabotage and murder with some exceedingly puzzling ramifications. This is Mr. Hopkins's first detective story, and it shows that he has a genuine talent for plot construction, characterization and story-telling."

+ N Y Times p11 F 21 '43 180w

"Diverting."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 F 27 '43 30w

"A well-plotted, highly entertaining, and not particularly gory murder mystery."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 28 '43 140w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 F 21 '43 230w

Wis Lib Bul 39:86 Je '43

HORAN, JAMES DAVID, and FRANK, GEROLD, eds. Out in the boondocks; marines in action in the Pacific; 21 U.S. marines tell their stories. 209p $2.75 Putnam

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. U.S. Marine corps. World war, 1939—Pacific ocean 43-51271

The experiences of twenty-one marines are here set down in first-person narratives as they were transcribed by the two newspaper men who interviewed these veterans of the South Pacific battles.

Reviewed by H. L. Reich
Book Week p6 S 12 '43 180w

Booklist 40:56 O 15 '43

Reviewed by M. E. Clark
Library J 68:622 Ag '43 50w

"This book is solely concerned with blood and death in the battle climaxes on Guadalcanal. Of course there is much more to war than that, but nothing more important to the men in the front lines. It is all very well to read war books that emphasize the glamor, the adventure, the fascination of strategy and high politics; here in these pages one gets right out where the bullets are flying. It is not pleasant reading, but perhaps it is wholesome." Marcus Duffield

+ Nation 157:329 S 18 '43 330w

"A deft, workmanlike job. . . The stories are told in the first person and, through some subtle alchemy of the writing team of Horan and Frank, each episode brims with personality. Although the stories must have been ghost-written they ring true and first-hand." S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p7 S 12 '43 800w

"Rugged stuff and well handled."

+ New Yorker 19:78 S 4 '43 70w

Reviewed by R. B. Cochrane
Weekly Book Review p27 S 19 '43 300w

HORN, STANLEY FITZGERALD. This fascinating lumber business. 328p il $3.75 Bobbs

674 Lumber trade. Lumbering 43-16700

History of the lumber business in the United States which covers the industry in general as well as in particular sections of the country, and in its economic as well as in its technical aspects. One chapter is devoted to a refutation of the prophesies concerning an early depletion of our resources; another to lumber in warfare; and one to Research—and the future. Index.

Reviewed by Otto Eisenschiml
Book Week p14 D 5 '43 320w

Booklist 40:159 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:1006 D 1 '43 30w

"A sound book on America's oldest and perhaps most colorful industry." Stewart Holbrook

+ Weekly Book Review p12 N 28 '43 1000w

HORNBECK, STANLEY KUHL. United States and the Far East; certain fundamentals of policy. 100p $1; pa 50c World peace

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations—China. China—Foreign relations—U.S. U.S.—Foreign relations—Japan. Japan—Foreign relations—U.S. Eastern question (Far East) 42-24113

"Ever since the publication, in 1918, of his Contemporary Politics in the Far East, Dr. Hornbeck has been recognized as an authority in the field of Far Eastern international relations. In 1928 he went to Washington as Chief of the Division of Far Eastern Affairs, and in 1937 he took up his present position in the Department of State as Adviser on Political Relations. Within the brief space of fifty-seven pages—the remaining portion of his volume being given up to pertinent official documents—he lays down the basic principles of United States foreign policy and reviews the application of these principles to American relations with the Far East during the past century." Pacific Affairs

Am Hist R 48:863 Jl '43 280w

Reviewed by H. M. Vinacke
Am Pol Sci R 37:739 Ag '43 100w

"In his defense of American policy in the Far East against the charge of militaristic tendencies, Dr. Hornbeck has all the facts on his side. The United States, in its dealings with the peoples of East Asia, has not been im-

HORNBECK, S. K.—Continued
perialistic or aggressive. . . The one unfortunate feature of United States Far Eastern policy, a feature which Dr. Hornbeck completely ignores, has been its failure to recognize the fact that its major interests in that part of the world are not derived from its interests in Europe or from the Far Eastern interests of its European friends." G. N. Steiger
+ — Pacific Affairs 16:241 Je '43 1050w

Reviewed by F. M. Mohler
Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 11 '43 700w

HORNER, JOYCE MARY. Wind and the rain. 274p $2 Doubleday
43-8213

Simply told story of life in a quiet English village, and of Marian who fell in love with Nickie when they were both in their teens. Because of her fondness for the brilliant but unstable Nickie, Marian refused to marry a steadier man, and studied to be a teacher. And Nickie went his own way, too, and became an actor.

Booklist 39:426 Je 15 '43
Bookmark 4:19 My '43
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 12 '43 600w

"Shows promise; good characterization. Recommended." E. F. Kelly
+ Library J 68:363 My 1 '43 70w

" 'The Wind and the Rain' has the uneven qualities of a first novel: excellent characterization, poetically descriptive prose, but weak narrative." Evelyn Sager
+ — N Y Times p18 My 16 '43 500w

"Miss Horner tells this tale of sentiment without a trace of sentimentality. In fact, there is not one flaw of taste—or of style, for that matter—in the book."
+ New Yorker 19:78 My 15 '43 90w

"Perhaps there is nothing in the kind of virtues Miss Horner displays or in the plot she has chosen that makes for exciting reading, but they do make the kind of reading that wins the admiration and attention of those who want something more than a quick and superficial literary stimulant. They also make the kind of writing that will win for Miss Horner eager readers of her next book." Bess Jones
+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 29 '43 400w

"The apparent simplicity of the book is misleading, like that of a superlatively well-cut dress. The substance of the story lies in the author's skill in conveying precise meaning through children's chatter, chance episodes and the remarks of people whose words give only a fragment of what they are thinking and feeling. It would have been easy to let a story like this sink to preciosity or ravel out into something merely pretty and graceful. What Miss Horner has achieved is a novel which has dignity and strength as well as sensitiveness." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p10 My 9 '43 600w

HORSCH, JOHN. Mennonites in Europe. (Mennonite history, v 1) 425p il $2 Mennonite 289.7 Mennonites

"This book, which is to be followed soon by a companion volume, Mennonites in America, from the competent pen of H. S. Bender, was written by John Horsch for the instruction and edification of the members of the Mennonite churches. Mr. Horsch, who died shortly before the book was published, was for many years associated with the Mennonite Publishing House of Scottdale, Pennsylvania, and spent most of his long life investigating the early history of his co-religionists. . . The material is organized in three parts: the medieval background, the rise and growth of the Mennonite church (canton by canton, country by country, and pari passu leader by leader), and the life and faith of the early Mennonites." Am Hist R

"This book crowns Mr. Horsch's many briefer studies. It will be welcomed by the historical fraternity everywhere, for it clears up many a foggy issue which has obscured the record of the first modern champions of religious toleration." G. C. Sellery
+ Am Hist R 48:788 Jl '43 1000w

Reviewed by R. C. Smith
Am Soc R 8:486 Ag '43 180w

HORTON, WALTER MARSHALL. Our eternal contemporary. 180p $2 Harper
232 Jesus Christ 42-51077

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Booklist 39:245 F 15 '43

"The book is intended 'for Christians, by a Christian,' says the author; and this perhaps accounts for the fact that it contains so little apologetical material. It is expository rather than argumentative; and the critical reader will find it disappointing because his questions, while recognized, do not receive painstaking consideration. Since the writer classifies himself as 'a liberal Catholic in the Evangelical Protestant camp,' it may be that he has abandoned apologetics. The result is not much happier than his self-classification, so far as enlightening the reader is concerned. . . As an indication of the direction in which the author's mind is moving, this book is disturbing. It looks as though he is in danger of sacrificing his critical activity as a theologian to homiletics and traditionalism." E. E. Aubrey
Crozer Q 20:156 Ap '43 850w

"The reader will study the lectures in book form by relating them to the theological pattern from which they were derived. And he will come to the conclusion that, while the message is deeply moving, the theological criteria in terms of which it was designed are not solid and not uncontradictory." Wilhelm Pauck
+ — J Religion 23:138 Ap '43 1400w

"What induced Professor Horton to revive so heartily this ancient supernaturalistic interpretation of Jesus? The answer is apparent. When he wrote this book he was under the spell of his recent devotion to Karl Heim, an orthodox reactionary of modern Germany. It is one of the charming features about many of Professor Horton's books that they are written to popularize other authors' opinions, and the popularization is so effectively accomplished that it serves as an excellent substitute for the original on which it is based. That fact is true of the present volume." S. J. Case
+ Weekly Book Review p16 F 14 '43 800w

HORTON, WALTER MARSHALL. Theology in transition. 206p $2.50 Harper
230 Theology. Liberalism (religion) 43-15114

"Professor Horton's volume on theology is a reissue of two volumes previously published, which were entitled 'A Psychological Approach to Theism' and 'Realistic Theology' [Book Review Digest, 1931, 1935]. In these two volumes we may trace the gradual shift in emphasis in the thought of one of America's leading theologians from the empiricism of the past decades of liberal theology to a more confessional and traditional statement of the Christian faith. Professor Horton supplies an introduction in which he interprets and justifies this shift." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by Harold Bosley
Christian Century 61:142 F 2 '44 1300w

"All readers will welcome this new chance to obtain the best books Prof. Horton has written." R. C. Miller
+ Churchman 158:16 Ja 1 '44 130w

"Walter Horton's genius is not that of the rare original thinker nor yet that of the flaming prophet or evangelist, but rather that of the sanely noble teacher and superbly gifted writer in his vast field of theology. He possesses vast learning to match his chosen field; but what is more, he has imagination and creative insight. He holds all currents of western thought in balanced tension. If this book is thoroughly scientific, it is profoundly religious; if it is philosophical, it is practical and ethical; if it is logical, it is also prophet-ical. It is very difficult to see how Mr. Horton can surpass himself, for this book belongs to the general culture and very soul of the western world in this agonized era." F. H. Young

+ N Y Times p50 N 21 '43 650w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
Weekly Book Review p13 Ja 2 '44 200w

HOSTER, GRACE. Goodbye, dear Elizabeth. 243p $2 Farrar 43-9099

Detective story.

"On the whole, you can pass up this one—unless you're stuck in the house with nothing else to read but Roberts' 'Rules of Order.'" Elizabeth Bullock
— Book Week p11 S 12 '43 140w

"All the persons in this story are teachers with the exception of one, who is the wife of a school principal. The plot of this novel is much better than the author's manner of telling it, which is too often confused and foggy." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p8 Ag 29 '43 120w
New Yorker 19:68 Ag 28 '43 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p30 O 3 '43 200w

HOTZ, ROBERT B. With General Chennault; the story of the Flying tigers; with the assistance of George L. Paxton, Robert H. Neale, and Parker S. Dupouy. 276p il $3 Coward-McCann

940.544 Chennault, Claire Lee. China—Air force—American volunteer group. World war, 1939—China 43-51360

Combination of biography of General Claire Lee Chennault, the ex-school teacher from Waterproof, Louisiana, who became the leader of the Flying Tigers, and a narrative of the activities of the American Volunteer Group—the Flying Tigers. Three chapters are devoted to an account of the life and attainments of the General, the remainder traces the history of the AVG from their fight at Kunming, China, to their absorption by the United States army air forces on July 2, 1942. Contains list of personnel. Map on end papers.

"It is a book that deserves wide reading. The story is told matter-of-factly, as the fliers themselves would prefer it told. The days were long and grueling, and the nights were short and restless. Although the author, a New York newspaperman, painstakingly avoids romanticism, the glorious exploits of the Flying Tigers shine forth too brightly to be dimmed." W. F. Morse
+ Book Week p4 D 19 '43 400w
Booklist 40:181 Ja 15 '44

"Including three chapters of biographical material on Chennault and his uphill development of art of pursuit, Captain Hotz's book is not less than a saga of brief meteoric career of Flying Tigers. Recommend for general purchase." J. M. Brittan
+ Library J 68:844 O 15 '43 130w

"Conscientious, readable account of a great fighting unit."
+ New Yorker 19:98 D 18 '43 70w

"Captain Hotz, pilot and newsman, tells a superb story superbly." H. C. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 27:11 Ja 22 '44 950w

"This is as authentic an account of Chennault's career, both in this country and in China, of the evolution of his theories, of the recruiting and training of the volunteers and of the amazing things they did, under the inspiration of Chennault's iron will and burning purpose, with so pitifully little, as one is ever likely to get. It is not the first time the story has been told, but it is told more fully and frankly here than in any version that this reviewer has yet seen. . . The story is also an improvement upon nearly all authors of a good factual yarn with a China setting who have a superficial knowledge only of China." Rodney Gilbert
+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 19 '43 1050w

HOUGEN, OLAF ANDREAS, and WATSON, KENNETH MERLE. Chemical process principles; pt. 1, Material and energy balances. 452p $4.50 Wiley

660 Chemistry, Technical (43-17574)

"This book presents applications of general physical chemistry, thermophysics, thermochemistry, and the first law of thermodynamics; elaboration of generalized procedures for estimating vapor pressures, critical constants and heats of vaporization, as well as new methods for dealing with equilibrium problems in extraction, adsorption, dissolution and crystallization, including construction and use of enthalpy-concentration charts." (Chem & Eng N) Index.

Book Week p11 Ja 23 '44 90w
Chem & Eng N 21:2139 D 25 '43 70w
Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 20w

HOUGH, DONALD. Snow above town. 282p $2.75 Norton

818 Wyoming—Social life and customs
43-2820

The author and his family were stranded in a narrow valley in the Grand Teton mountains of Wyoming. Perforce they settled down in a village of some five hundred souls and waited for a check, the evidence of the author's skill, to appear. Eventually the check appeared, but in the meantime the sketches of the life and the people of this little remote valley were written.

Booklist 39:290 Mr 15 '43

"For all its slap-dash style and lack of focus, 'Snow Above Town' is a constant delight. The author has poured in enough of his own ebullient spirit to make sure of that." William DuBois
+ — N Y Times p7 F 14 '43 850w

"Friendly, perceptive, informal, enormously readable book. . . Mr. Hough has a shrewd and discerning eye, and anyhow he likes these people, his friends, just as he likes his valley, its dust, mud and snow, and the magnificent frowning mountains in which it lies." J. H. Jackson
+ Weekly Book Review p2 F 14 '43 900w
Wis Lib Bul 39:53 Ap '43

HOUGH, LYNN HAROLD. Living democracy; the record of an interpreter. 153p $1.50 Revell

940.53 World war, 1939—Great Britain. Democracy. Great Britain—Religion 43-9013

"Dr. Hough spent eighty days in England in the summer of 1942. Here he reports his observations and evaluations and presents the substance of many addresses delivered to both civilian and military audiences. Some of the material has appeared in British and American publications." Christian Century

Christian Century 60:519 Ap 28 '43 40w

"As thoughtful and as beautifully written as is all Dean Hough's work." W. L. C.
+ Churchman 157:17 S 15 '43 120w

Reviewed by G. O. Kelley
Library J 68:247 Mr 15 '43 80w

HOUSE AND GARDEN (periodical). Complete guide to interior decoration; ed. by Richardson Wright. 304p il $5 Simon & Schuster

747 House decoration 42-4888

"Designed both as a working guide to the amateur decorator and as a reminder to the professional, its topics and problems extending from the simplest to the more difficult, this inclusive, practical and suggestive volume on interior decoration has drawn both text and illustrations from a decade of House & Garden's decoration pages which 'have been brought up to date to cover all contemporary ranges of taste, style and necessities.' The work of 75 leading decorators is assembled

HOUSE AND GARDEN—Continued
here, while the illustrations include 140 color plates, 300 photographs and 850 drawings. Index." Bookmark

Bookmark 4:8 N '42

"Fascinating as seed catalogues to a gardener, as cookbooks to a housekeeper, as building plans to a bride with a kitchenette, the charm of this vast volume takes hold as soon as it starts... Room portraits in glowing colors of famous apartments give rich settings their chance, but there are many photographs to show what has been done on a limited income. It lives up to its title, as near as one book can; it is a complete guide to methods and means of modern decorating."
+ Books p12 S 20 '42 250w

"This gorgeous compendium should prove a brisk stimulant to winter-weary homes and domestic morale."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 15 '42 330w

HOUSMAN, LAURENCE. Palestine plays. 146p $2 Scribner [6s Cape, J]
822 43-6360

Four plays on biblical themes. Contents: Abraham and Isaac; The story of Jacob; Ramoth Gilead; The burden of Nineveh.

Reviewed by Peter Quinn
Book Week p11 My 16 '43 130w
Booklist 40:7 S '43

"These plays could doubtless be played, and effectively; indeed, two of the four have already been staged in England. But they read so well that they do not need to be played... To say that the present collection measures up to Mr. Housman's Little Plays of St. Francis would perhaps be saying too much. It is enough to have reached that degree of excellence once in a lifetime. These have the added merit of proving that, while religious drama does not have to be biblical, it nevertheless may be biblical and still be good."
+ Christian Century 60:799 Jl 7 '43 260w

"Recommended for drama collections, particularly in college libraries where they may attract performances."
+ Library J 68:574 Jl '43 60w

"How effective they would be on the stage is difficult to judge, but their dialogue, a half-poetical mixture of Biblical and modern colloquial English, makes them a pleasure to read, and one of them at least ('Abraham and Isaac') has proved itself an ideal broadcasting script."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 14 '42 130w

"Mr. Housman doesn't know the ancient Hebrews as well as he knew Queen Victoria. He is best with Jacob and Laban, and worst with prophets like Micaiah; it is clear that he understands shepherds and business men better than those through whom God speaks." David Daiches
New Repub 109:149 Ag 2 '43 60w

Reviewed by R. A. Scott-James
Spec 169:180 Ag 21 '42 500w

"Mr. Housman's ear is full of the music of the Old Testament English; he contrives with considerable skill to mingle with it the sort of English which a modern reader would recognize as the language of real men and women."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p424 Ag 29 '42 450w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Weekly Book Review p22 Jl 18 '43 230w
Wis Lib Bul 39:143 N '43

HOWARD, MRS ALICE (BARRETT). Mary Mapes Dodge of St Nicholas; il. by Corinne Malverne. 256p $2.50 Messner
B or 92 Dodge, Mrs Mary (Mapes). St Nicholas (magazine) 43-8222

Biography of the first editor of St Nicholas, and author of Hans Brinker. Beginning with Mary Elizabeth Mapes' fourth birthday in the family home on Greenwich street, New York, in 1835, the book follows the course of her life up to her quiet death in 1905. For younger readers. Bibliography. Index.

"This book has nothing to do with the sad ending, but only with the years of success and literary triumph, and with the live, dynamic personality that was Mary Mapes Dodge. Alice Howard has given us a fine picture of a past era." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p10 Jl 18 '43 340w
Booklist 39:448 Jl 1 '43

Reviewed by Helen Henley
Christian Science Monitor p8 Jl 9 '43 90w

"While the book will bring happy memories to many older readers who owe St. Nicholas their loyalty and affection, they will regret that at no time does the character of Mary Mapes Dodge really come alive." A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:244 Jl '43 140w

"Mrs. Howard's style is lively and readable, but in appearance the book lacks distinction." A. T. Eaton
+ — N Y Times p9 Je 6 '43 600w

"As two of my happiest years were spent in her editorial chair, facing her glorious bookcase with a full set of bound volumes, I can speak for the fidelity with which [the author] has brought back the creator of that beloved institution. I never saw her, and cannot tell whether this is Mary Mapes Dodge as she was in the flesh, but I know it is as she lingered, more than a memory, in the living tradition of the magazine." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p10 My 16 '43 750w
Wis Lib Bul 39:112 Jl '43

HOWARD, DONALD S. WPA and federal relief policy. 879p il $4 Russell Sage 331.1377 U.S. Work projects administration. U.S.—Public works 43-14619

"A review of the nation's experiment with a huge work relief program and an analysis of the issues which arose around its functions, administration, financing. The early chapters give the setting of the WPA in relation to the general relief program and other forms of public assistance. Then follows an exhaustive study of the WPA itself, covering its administration, types of projects, wage policies, eligibility, numbers employed, and adequacy of WPA employment. This part of the report is fully substantiated with data, some of which are new or newly organized for this publication. The last section of the book reviews the major issues about the WPA, presenting the points of view of the Administration, Congress and the public, as expressed in legislation, official hearings, and public statements." (Survey) Index.

"As a piece of writing it is too long, due to a lack of discrimination in the selection of evidential material. Much of this material is not worth quoting; still more of it is so remote from the point at issue as to belong either in the footnotes or in the Appendix. But this is the worst that can be said of Mr. Howard's monumental effort. It will remain the source book on one of the most consequential social ventures entered upon by any government at any time. The text is well written, well documented." R. W. Kelso
+ — Ann Am Acad 231:187 Ja '44 360w
Booklist 40:72 N 1 '43

Reviewed by Reginald Robinson
Survey 78:349 D '43 800w

HOWARD, HARRY PAXTON. America's role in Asia. 463p $3 Howell, Soskin
950 Eastern question (Far East). Asia—Politics. U.S.—Foreign relations 43-7947

A review of the Eastern question by an American journalist who has worked in the Far East for more than twenty-five years.

Atlantic 172:129 Jl '43 90w
Booklist 39:461 Jl 15 '43

"After long exposure to the experts in power politics, this is a stimulating and refreshing book." F. H. Underhill
+ Canadian Forum 23:235 Ja '44 490w

"Knowledge and understanding of the Far East has gone completely blank in this generation. Now the older men who do know are beginning to speak up; some of them angrily, as they well may, for they have despaired until now of making it clear to anybody. Harry Paxton Howard is one of these. He knows what he is talking about." W. F. Sands
+ Commonweal 38:174 Je 4 '43 550w

Current Hist 5:80 S '43 80w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:166 O '43 50w

"It is the chief merit of this book by Mr. Howard . . . that it furnishes a factual underpinning for our speculations about the future of Asia. If Wendell Willkie, for instance, should read Mr. Howard's work he would find new reasons for believing that his generalizations about the necessity for a new era in Western Asiatic relations are sound. . . At times Mr. Howard's hatred of Western imperialism makes him lean over a little backward." W. H. Chamberlin
+ N Y Times p14 My 16 '43 1100w

Reviewed by Tyler Dennett
Pacific Affairs 16:372 S '43 350w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Survey G 32:455 N '43 130w

"The reader of Far Eastern history will at first think, as he makes his way through this swift-moving, readable and often eloquent book, from one evidence of prejudiced heterodoxy to another, that he is being treated to the malicious mischief of a complete cynic. Then he will conclude that the author is a long-haired radical. . . But before he gets to the end he will discover that he is in the presence of an uncompromising idealist. . . For the sake of his own illusions I should not want to see him made supreme director of Asia's adjustment to peace. But such true Jeffersonian faith in mass common sense, irrespective of breed, and such a readiness to fight for it, are so rare these days that I should like to see him widely and understandingly read." Rodney Gilbert
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Je 13 '43 2100w

Wis Lib Bul 39:108 Jl '43

HOWARD, JOSEPH KINSEY. Montana; high, wide and handsome. 347p $3 Yale univ. press
978.6 Montana—History A43-3702

"As the editor of The Great Falls Leader, the author has pride in his state's colorful history but believes that its resources have been wantonly squandered. He illustrates this by the story of mining and the overgrazing of the range. His chief emphasis is upon the homesteaders who were lured into a section where there was not enough water most of the time. He regrets that the suggestions of James W. Powell, made in 1870, were not carried out and feels that the necessary planned economy for Montana is still insufficiently developed." New Repub

---

"Howard's story of 'high, wide and handsome' Montana stacks up with the best, both for its readability and comprehensiveness, though there are some rather pedestrian sections concerning financial manipulation, stock rigging and the like." Jack Conroy
+ Book Week p2 Ja 2 '44 700w

Booklist 40:182 Ja 15 '44

"The book is a rare compound of interesting history and intelligent analysis."
+ New Repub 109:926 D 27 '43 90w

"A brave, clear-sighted book that open-minded Montanans will read with satisfaction and strangers with appreciative interest. It is the first in its field about a State which, born in violence and raised in the spirit of the quick clean-up, is still suffering from its beginning." J. K. Hutchens
+ N Y Times p7 D 26 '43 700w

"Superior history of the State of Montana, by an indigenous editor who understands ecology as well as gun-play and who is tearing mad about what a mistaken land policy, monopoly practices, dust storms, and two wars have done to his native earth. Critical, well informed, and brightly written."
+ New Yorker 19:97 D 18 '43 50w

"A passionate, straight-shooting, straight-visioned, informed book, this book of the news editor of The Great Falls Leader, and a beautifully written one, too; colorful, amusing, and quick moving. It is a history and a description of that great and beautiful and various state, Montana, but it is more than that, for its thesis is one of the two most important domestic questions confronting our future; the other is employment." Struthers Burt
+ Sat R of Lit 27:10 Ja 29 '44 750w

"While his book is not likely to raise hymns of praise in Montana Rotary clubs, or create a boom in Anaconda copper stock, Mr. Howard has presented a brilliantly clear picture of a political and geographical unit, of a state that has not reached its full stature but shows promise of being the most beautiful swan of them all." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 2 '44 470w

"This book is the best single volume I know on the subject. Scholarly, yet eminently readable, entertaining all the way, it is obviously written out of a wide knowledge and deep understanding of what's the trouble with Montana, a state that stands alone in individuality and to the glory of us all." Stewart Holbrook
+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 26 '43 1300w

HOWARD, LEON. The Connecticut wits. 453p $4.50 Univ. of Chicago press
810.9 Barlow, Joel. Dwight, Timothy. Humphreys, David. Trumbull, John 43-808

Study of the lives, works and influence on American culture, of four of the men known as the Connecticut wits: John Trumbull; Timothy Dwight; David Humphreys; and Joel Barlow. The author does not give full biographies of these men, but he gives "especial attention to the cultural influences of a period which he correctly appraises as more interesting and important in itself than in the literature it produced. Full-length biographies of the four authors are elsewhere available." (Books) Bibliographical notes. Index.

"This is a work in which American scholars may take pride. It is solid, learned, pungent, and illuminating. That a few historians will quarrel with Professor Howard's preferences may be anticipated. That competent literary critics will stumble on flaws in detail is, of course, possible. That any serious student of our national character will fail to profit from this analysis of the American state of mind between the Stamp Act and the Era of Good Feeling is wholly improbable." G. W. Pierson
+ Am Hist R 48:802 Jl '43 700w

"The complete check-list of the writings of these four men will prove of great practical value, as will the bibliographical notes on the chapters, which take the place of the profuse footnoting that the study would otherwise have required. Together they constitute the foundation of the work." S. E. Mead
+ Christian Century 60:1041 S 15 '43 550w

Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 27 '43 550w

Reviewed by Odell Shepard
Nation 156:316 F 27 '43 850w

"At length, the group of writers in the lower Connecticut valley who made themselves nationally celebrated between 1770 and 1800 have received both authoritative and competent treatment in Professor Howard's book. . . Only three or four misprints caught an eye fairly accustomed to such slips. . . Far outweighing the virtue of negative correctness, however, is that of an admirable prose style which without striving to be entertaining nevertheless enlivens the serious discussion of a body of writings that possess relatively little juice of their own." Milton Ellis
+ New Eng Q 16:508 S '43 1300w

HOWARD, LEON—Continued

"This volume will be of more value to the student of the period than to the novitiate or general reader. For in spite of the commentary which Dr. Howard has lavished on them, the works themselves are not alive. . . Their occasional detached views and insights are interesting, but the same may be said of any writer without distinction. The truth is that as writers they were men of small caliber. . . Dr. Howard's labors have given them dimensions if not stature. To say that he has done them justice is an understatement. The question is, do they deserve it." Thomas Lask
+ — N Y Times p4 F 14 '43 850w

"It is to Professor Howard's credit that he does not overrate the writings of his Wits. . . In general the book must be regarded as a scholar's book for scholars. Yet amateurs of history and literature will welcome the fresh light it throws on various aspects of our national beginnings—political, intellectual, and social." M. A. D. Howe
+ Sat R of Lit 26:14 F 27 '43 750w

Reviewed by S. L. Jackson
Springf'd Republican p8 Mr 25 '43 850w

"It should be emphasized that Professor Howard is not writing a group biography, but an intellectual analysis of the whole literary output of the elder wits, some seventy-five books plus many fugitive items. This work has never been completely done before, and it may be some time before any one will think it necessary to rework the material. The present monograph is a particularly satisfactory and clear-minded one, and in its field has no rival. . . In this quadruple study Professor Howard has given us for the first time a competent and searching analysis of the cultural forces which affected young American writers during the first period of national expansion." G. F. Whicher
+ Weekly Book Review p14 F 14 '43 950w

Reviewed by S. T. Williams
Yale R n s 33:175 autumn '43 1100w

HOWARD, MARY. Gay is life. 248p $2 Doubleday
43-14287

Story of present day England, and of two sisters and the men they loved. Judy, the elder and dependable sister, goes to live with her married sister, when the latter's insanely jealous husband takes a war job in Scotland. Two personable young officers from a nearby camp fall in love with the sisters and the situation becomes more and more complicated until stark tragedy strikes their lives.

"The author concentrates on the suspense and horror of Gregory's progressive insanity, and a most effective job she makes of it. She has a fine gift for conveying the mounting terror of waiting for a blow to fall. The usual happy endings are provided for the two pairs of lovers, but the story itself is well above the average of light fiction." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p16 Jl 18 '43 240w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 8 '43 180w

HOWAY, FREDERIC WILLIAM; SAGE, WALTER NOBLE, and ANGUS, HENRY FORBES. British Columbia and the United States; the North Pacific slope from fur trade to aviation; ed. by H. F. Angus. (Carnegie endowment for int. peace. Division of economics and history. Relations of Canada and the United States) 408p maps $3.50 Yale univ. press

971.1 British Columbia. Northwest, Pacific
A43-654

History of the North Pacific area, especially in regard to its relation to the American northwest. It begins with the period of the earliest explorations and is brought down to the present. Analytical table of contents, but no index.

"The book is clearly and interestingly written, and unlike too many scholarly productions it can be read for pleasure as well as for profit. It satisfies the research criteria of the scholar, and at the same time it should appeal to the well informed public." L. A. Mills
+ Am Hist R 48:837 Jl '43 500w

"This volume is one of the best of the series on Canadian-American relations. It is interesting reading. . . [It] is the work of experts, long recognized for their original research in this field, and they have provided the reader with a considerable amount of detail not available elsewhere. For that reason, an index would have been very helpful." Carl Wittke
+ Ann Am Acad 226:182 Mr '43 500w

Booklist 39:273 Mr 1 '43

Reviewed by H. A. Innis
Canadian Hist R 24:311 S '43 1050w

"This scholarly history . . . comes as a valuable contribution to the history of both the United States and Canada." J. S. Gurley
+ Current Hist 3:357 D '42 140w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:581 Ap '43 20w

Reviewed by H. F. Raup
Geog R 34:165 Ja '44 330w

Reviewed by B. H. Kizer
Pacific Affairs 16:123 Mr '43 420w

"In most respects the level of accuracy is high, though there are slips. . . The bulk of the material used in the preparation of the book has appeared before in print, but never in one volume or with a similar purpose.. The range of sources consulted is usually, though not invariably, wide enough, and the documentation is altogether satisfactory. An analytical table of contents goes far toward compensating for the absence of an index. The work is an important contribution in its field and should prove to be of permanent value." D. J. Pierce
+ Pol Sci Q 58:312 Je '43 390w

"There are parallels as well as conflicts, contrasts as well as similarities: and this is well brought out in the account of the various gold rushes. The habit of discipline imposed by the traditions of the Hudson Bay Company stood the cause of law and order in good stead. The three authors have collaborated with skill and learning."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p395 Ag 14 '43 300w

HOWE, ELEANOR. Household hints for homemakers; decorations by George Anrig. 304p $2 Appleton-Century

640.2 Home economics 43-2836

Miscellaneous collection of suggestions for making housekeeping easier, more efficient, or more interesting. Material is grouped under five main heads: foods, clothing, laundering, the house, and the family. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '43

"There is something about a book like this that attracts even the most casual housekeeper. . . Most of the tricks in this book are very new—the onion comes out well here—and when, as sometimes happens, they are time-honored, that has an excellent effect on the morale of one who says to herself, 'that's just what I do.' "
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Mr 21 '43 180w

Wis Lib Bul 39:38 Mr '43

HOWE, HELEN HUNTINGTON. Whole heart. 315p $2.50 Simon & Schuster
43-51026

Composite portrait of Jim Hurd, author and radio commentator, as presented by three sets of letters and a diary—the outpourings of four women who had loved him.

"Miss Howe did not quite trust herself as a novelist, and in her timidity she fell back upon her technique as a monologuist. Her sardonic allusions to current history, so amusing on the stage, do not create in print the fiction of only yesterday: they are too deliberately sarcastic, too self-conscious. The same can be said of the four monologue-portraits, and it is a pity, for in the drawing of Constance, and in such scenes as the meeting between Constance and Mary, and in Jim's speech at Symphony Hall, Miss Howe shows what she could have done, had she had more courage."

— + Atlantic 171:146 Ap '43 420w

Booklist 39:252 F 15 '43

"The outstanding woman's novel of this season."

+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 27 '43 400w

"Though the story Miss Howe has to tell is fairly interesting, it has been told many times before, and fails to convince because the hero is too weak for the ideals with which she burdens him or for his many love affairs, and because the medium is unreal." N. E. Monroe

— + Cath World 157:217 My '43 230w

"In 'The Whole Heart,' as in most writing for the contemporary stage, what you eventually feel is that either the author should have used more intelligent and articulate characters to speak for her, or she should herself be a poet, in order to give another dimension to simple speech." Diana Trilling

Nation 156:246 F 13 '43 250w

Reviewed by Isaac Rosenfeld

New Repub 108:483 Ap 12 '43 300w

"To show Jim's character from the different angles of four women who loved him, and at the same time to portray the women themselves, is the interesting task Miss Howe has set herself. She doesn't accomplish it completely, but the attempt makes a stimulating and engrossing book." Beatrice Sherman

+ — N Y Times p6 F 7 '43 750w

"Here is a book which male reviewers, if they are honest, cannot properly judge. It's a woman's book, written by a woman for women. Good hunting, ladies." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 18:60 Ja 30 '43 250w

"Miss Howe, like her four heroines, and for that matter, like women novelists in general, pampers [the hero]. Yet for all the vast outlay of emotion on him, she never quite convinces the reader either that he is entirely real or that all of his ladies would remain so utterly blind to his moral cowardice. Nor does she give inevitability to his ultimate choice. That is contrived, as he himself is contrived, for purposes of very entertaining, skillful (if not too subtle) monologue sketches of four prodigal women and a man against a background of a rapidly deteriorating social order." Bess Jones

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:6 F 6 '43 470w

"The basic idea behind all this is sound, but it needs to be handled with greater penetration and artistry. Anything written so completely on the surface at least must have excitement and suspense to prop it up." Jessica Potter

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e F 7 '43 220w

"A remarkable first novel. . . It is by turns howlingly funny, shrewd, sinister, ferocious, painful with the pain of a fluctuating personality. It is also a disappointment. For Miss Howe, a ranking monologuist, brings into fiction both the virtues and the faults of her art. She has a fine ear for the devilish ironies and self-betrayals of normal speech (or writing), and her whole book is nervous and vivid with them. But she has also the monologuist's weakness for over-emphasis, for sacrificing psychological integrity in favor of a laugh or a sniff. Even so, The Whole Heart is an impressive, realistic piece of work."

+ — Time 41:88 F 22 '43 800w

"Miss Howe does a notable piece of work in presenting her characters. That the women, especially the two Jim didn't marry, are limned more clear than the man is a little disconcerting. One is left at a loss at the close of the book to know whether his is the portrait of a cad or a Puritan, and the two are not synonymous. But this doubt is held in abeyance until the end of a book which shows a rare gift of dramatic narrative and possesses a high degree of suspense." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 31 '43 1200w

HOWE, HENRY FORBUSH. Prologue to New England. 324p il maps $3 Farrar

973.1 America—Discovery and exploration. New England—History 43-2702

Record of the period of New England exploration between 1498 and 1620. It brings together much scattered material on the voyages of such explorers as Cabot, Verrazano, Gosnold, Champlain, John Smith, and others. Contemporary maps. Bibliography. Index.

"A brief review can only hint at the richness of this solid work on early American history and its revaluations have a place today when geography is once again going through a world-shaking re-shuffling." Josephine Herbst

+ Book Week p8 Ag 1 '43 450w

Booklist 39:385 Je 1 '43

Bookmark 4:13 My '43

"Dr. Howe, a Mayflower descendant, reared in an atmosphere of New England lore in the Massachusetts Bay town of Cohasset, has made an avocation of collecting maps and records of precolonial New England. He has not only used this to produce a book packed with information for readers with an historical bent, but by the clearness and vigor of his style and his constructive conclusions has put his book in the category of good reading." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 22 '43 900w

"Good reading; will be useful for reference and will offer hitherto unexplored history to many readers. Recommended." Thelma Brackett

+ Library J 68:208 Mr 1 '43 80w

"An excellent combination of history and adventure story. . . For the general reader, one of the best things about this book is its feeling for terrain and locality. The author knows his New England coast. He sees it not only through the eyes of the old explorers but through modern eyes as well. This quality, aided by the maps and charts that accompany the text, should make 'Prologue to New England' a delight to yachtsmen when pleasure cruises are again possible." Allan Taylor

+ N Y Times p7 My 2 '43 440w

"Attractive, scholarly book."

+ New Yorker 19:83 Ap 17 '43 30w

"It is no slight achievement in this day and age to tackle the field of New England history and produce a work whose freshness of style and approach, and whose originality of conception, at once make a place for it on the shelves devoted to this well-studied subject. The present book accomplishes this feat with one hand tied behind it; not for a long while have I dipped into so profitable and enjoyable a volume." Lincoln Colcord

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Je 20 '43 2000w

HOWE, LAURENCE LEE. Pretorian prefect from Commodus to Diocletian. (A.D. 180-305). 141p $2 Univ. of Chicago press [12s Cambridge]

937.07 Rome—Politics and government 42-50651

"This book is a study of the history and development of the pretorian prefecture during its period of greatest influence—from the beginning of the reign of Commodus to the abdication of Diocletian. It seeks to trace and explain the changes which took place in the character and personnel of the office, and to correlate the history of the prefecture with the general history of the times, in order to show how the prefecture affected and was affected by the total political situation. Biographical material and the discussion of special problems have been avoided except where they seemed to have bearing on the history of the office." (Pref) Selective bibliography. Index.

"The author has done his work conscientiously and the results are worth having, but this reviewer would nevertheless like to see the book rearranged and expanded into a study of all the known prefects. . . Nevertheless, the present work is a useful contribution, just as it stands, to the study of these problems." R. O. Fink

HOWE, L. L.—Continued
+ — Am Hist R 48:770 Jl '43 500w

"Mr. Howe shows a thorough mastery over his often intractable source material, and his narrative is clear and convincing. In short, his dissertation is a very competent piece of work, which leads one to hope that he will have opportunity for undertaking further researches in Roman imperial history." M. L. W. Laistner
+ Class Philol 38:277 O '43 550w

HOWER, RALPH MERLE. History of Macy's of New York, 1858-1919; chapters in the evolution of the department store. 500p il $3.75 Harvard univ. press

658.871 Macy, R. H., and company, New York A43-1889

"The book describes the founding of Macy's, the business policies that influenced its growth, the development of the retail trade both in America and Europe, and the emergence of the department store. Interpolated in the business history are the personalities who played leading roles in the development of Macy's, the changes in ownership, and the expansion of the store under the Straus management." Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by J. F. Pyle
Am Econ R 33:932 D '43 1300w

Reviewed by F. T. Hypps
Ann Am Acad 230:228 N '43 420w

"Dr. Ralph M. Hower, the historian of Macy's is an earnest man. If he did not tabulate the number of trips each elevator in Macy's makes each business day, it is simply because his teaching at Harvard set certain limits to his research. . . Dr. Hower can never be accused of the sin of attempting to amuse or entertain the public. It never occurred to him to tell the story of Macy's in terms of the New York of the times, nor did it ever dawn on him that he should say something about Macy's competitors."
Commonweal 39:286 D 31 '43 280w

New Repub 109:466 O 4 '43 60w

Reviewed by S. I. Pomerantz
N Y Times p23 Ag 1 '43 500w

"The story of Macy's is by far the most comprehensive and definitive account so far published. It is simultaneously a revealing picture of the place retailing occupies in the national economy. It should be of immediate and vital interest, naturally, to everyone engaged in the retail industry. But its appeal extends even beyond this to the millions of men and women who have pushed through the revolving doors of 'The World's Largest Store' during the past forty years." Robert Strunsky
+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 Jl 31 '43 650w

Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 29 '43 450w

"What should please every student of the fluid progress of American society, as well as every student of the task of buying and selling, is the fact that this story of a typical American market-place is so rich and has been so meticulously and solidly and readably told. Despite its compromise between the drowsy idiom of higher economics and the drama of free and human Yankee enterprise and action, the pace does not halt for 422 pages. There are a lot of tables of figures, as fascinating as crossword puzzles to the addicts; those who do not need them can skip them. There are a lot of pictures, and well chosen." Paul Hollister
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 25 '43 1650w

HOWLAND, HAZEL POPE; JARVIE, LAWRENCE LEE, and SMITH, LEO F. How to read in science and technology. 264p il pa $2 Harper

507 Science—Study and teaching. Technology—Study and teaching 43-12659

"Analyzes and describes the more important abilities demanded for effective reading in the sciences and provides practice exercises for the student. An instructors' manual accompanies this volume free of charge." School & Society

School & Society 57:420 Ap 10 '43 30w

"The book is better suited to relatively mature students than to beginners. In view of the current influx of immature students into science classes, an instructor might prefer to choose some of the more popular written selections for immature students instead of following the order in the book. The manual is self-teaching in that it contains all necessary directions for the student. The assistance of an instructor is required, however, in evaluating the reactions of the students because correct reactions may vary and no specific key is used." J. M. McCallister
School R 51:503 O '43 700w

HOYE, BJARNE, and AGER, TRYGVE MARTINUS. Fight of the Norwegian church against Nazism. 180p $1.75 Macmillan

284.7481 Norway—Church history. Norway—History—German occupation, 1940- 43-4831

"Here is the whole heroic story of the resistance of Christian Norway to the cult of Germanic blood and soil, dated and documented for the present reader and the future historian. No more need be said. This is a factual narrative of the fidelity of a church and a people. The authors are connected with the Norwegian government's information offices in London and Washington." Christian Century

"The authors have some difficulty with English idioms, and their story could have been told with greater skill; but the saga is heroic as well as moving—one that strengthens faith in mankind and hope for its survival." Paul Knaplund
+ — Am Soc R 8:484 Ag '43 400w

"The church is still a force to be considered in modern society. The Norwegian church is a fine case study of how potent that force is when confronted by those that would destroy it." Conrad Bergendoff
+ Ann Am Acad 231:170 Ja '44 380w

Booklist 39:381 Je 1 '43

Bookmark 4:3 My '43

Cath World 157:666 S '43 270w

Christian Century 60:363 Mr 24 '43 70w

"There is a clear authenticity about the narrative of this little book, and it gives in outline the whole story up to the present. Despite the characteristic Nazi nonsense about the church having trespassed on political grounds, it is perfectly clear from this well-documented record that the leaders of Norway's church have kept strictly to their own concerns." H. S. Leiper
+ Churchman 157:15 My 15 '43 420w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:162 O '43 30w

"Heartily recommended for every library." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 68:171 F 15 '43 140w

"The volume with its various manifestoes should be and will be read as a whole. For it is more than the record of an imperishable service rendered by intrepid Norwegians to the cause of citizenship throughout the world. It is an education in those fundamentals of faith that are apt to be taken for granted until the moment comes when, once again, brave men and women are called upon to arise, ready to die if need be for what alone makes life worth living." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p24 Ap 18 '43 600w

"The book is well worth reading. It is a case book of the courage of the human spirit, and of the heights to which the Christian church can rise in these days. The authors are not too clear on the nature of Nazism beyond particular political expressions of it, but for this book it really doesn't matter." C. D. Kean
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 18 '43 1100w

Reviewed by Sigrid Undset
Weekly Book Review p3 My 16 '43 1000w

HOYLAND, JOHN SOMERVELL. Indian crisis: the background. 193p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d; pa 6s Allen, G]

915.4 India 43-17947

Short background sketch of India, which outlines Indian history, personality, the caste system, religion, the British system, and some Hindu leaders. Index.

"The book contains some bad mistakes in the proofreading of Indian names. It is however a substantial contribution to the discussion of a very important question." H. E. Fey

+ — Christian Century 61:113 Ja 26 '44 700w

Reviewed by W. F. Sands

Commonweal 39:381 Ja 28 '44 100w

"An excellent background book for the layman. Strictly nonpartisan, simple in style [this is] . . . a must book for all public libraries." M. E. Clark

+ Library J 68:1005 D 1 '43 50w

"On the historical and social sides of his subject Mr. Hoyland writes persuasively, and such personal opinions as he expresses are the result of experience and knowledge. But wherever he touches politics, there the avowed admirer of Mr. Gandhi comes out in full strength." J. C.

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 O 22 '43 200w

Reviewed by L. M. Schiff

New Statesman & Nation 26:10 Jl 3 '43 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p456 S 18 '43 240w

HOYT, JOHN ROBERT. Manual for aviation cadets. (Whittlesey house publication) 199p il $2.50 McGraw

629.13252 Airplanes—Piloting 43-9603

"Manual [which] aims to give correct mental attitude toward problem of learning to fly. Intended to supplement training of aviation cadets in Army, Navy and C.A.A. war programs. Illustrated." (Library J) Index.

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:39 Jl '43

Reviewed by Theodore English

N Y Times p33 O 17 '43 240w

"The interesting and personal way in which the story is told and the numerous illustrations should do much to make it successful. At the same time, the book will also be of interest to any one who wants to know what embryo aviators go through before acquiring their wings." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p26 S 19 '43 100w

HOYT, SAMUEL LESLIE. Metals and alloys data book. 334p il $4.75 Reinhold

620.17 Metals—Tables, calculations, etc. Alloys—Tables, calculations, etc. 43-12236

"Dr. Hoyt is technical advisor of Battele Memorial Institute. Three hundred and forty tables of properties and important data on wrought and cast steels, stainless steels, cast irons, heat- and corrosion-resistant casting alloys, aluminum, copper, nickel and tungsten alloys, and rare metals. A book for metallurgists, chemists, aircraft and industrial designers, and others working with metals." Library J

Chem & Met Eng 50:191 D '43 70w

Library J 68:669 S 1 '43 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:47 Jl '43

"One of the most valuable of recent additions to the metallurgical literature since it is a compilation not only of useful but of usable data." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p14 F 6 '44 100w

HRDLICKA, ALES. Alaska diary, 1926-1931. 414p il maps pa $5 Cattell

917.98 Alaska—Description and travel. Indians of North America—Alaska. Eskimos—Alaska 43-9753

"Dr. Ales Hrdlicka is a legendary figure in Alaska. . . For ten summers, Dr. Hrdlicka traveled along Alaska's rivers and coast in search of skeletal remains that might show how Asiatic man first came to America. . . Here, in his daily notes, which he calls 'Alaska Diary,' are the touching, serious, funny, arduous experiences of a man who brought to his adopted land, America, and later Alaska, not only his scientific knowledge but much of the charm and social thinking of his native Czecho-Slovakia." (Weekly Book Review) Index.

Booklist 40:11 S '43

Cath World 158:111 O '43 230w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 50w

"The daily notes of which the book is composed, although confessedly without 'pretense to any literary value, nor to any other virtue aside from reality,' are none the less too meager, as their observations are rather too attenuated, to give more than a hint of the larger perceptions which to the exploring imagination constitute the meaning, if not the virtue, of reality. For the casual layman this qualification may limit the interest of the book, but it is well worth reading for descriptions of places seldom visited, for stories of hardships endured and hospitalities enjoyed, for Dr. Hrdlicka's abundant sympathies, and, most important, for its rare accuracy."

+ — Nation 157:135 Jl 31 '43 270w

"'Alaska Diary' could be condensed to advantage. It might also be improved by larger, even if fewer illustrations and more subdivision into parts corresponding to the vast areas visited, would be helpful to the reader. As a source book it is a storehouse of first-hand information on anthropology and Alaska." T. S. Farrelly

+ — N Y Times p16 My 30 '43 750w

Reviewed by Ernest Gruening

Sat R of Lit 27:5 Ja 1 '44 350w

"Anthropologists will look forward to the publication of the formal scientific reports. But the layman who is interested in Alaska and who may be planning a post-war cruise down the Yukon River, will find the Diary rich in humor, adventure, rambling facts about health, natives and sour-doughs, and an understanding of the strange disease which makes any one who has traveled through Alaska and fallen in love with it, unhappy until he returns." Ruth Gruber

+ Weekly Book Review p7 Jl 18 '43 1200w

HSI YU CHI. See Wu Ch'êng-ên (supposed author). Monkey

HSIUNG, SHIH-I. Bridge of heaven; with a prefatory poem by John Masefield. 305p $2.75 Putnam [10s 6d Davies]

43-10687

Novel of China during the last years of the nineteenth and the first years of the twentieth centuries. It ends with Sun Yat-Sen's coup d'etat in 1911.

Atlantic 172:129 S '43 120w

"There is something delightfully Dickensian about the characters in this witty Chinese novel. Hsiung is a caricaturist with a robust sense of humor and a great love for the fallible human race." Sterling North

+ Book Week p3 Jl 25 '43 470w

Booklist 40:59 O 15 '43

"Mr. Hsiung's quietly ironic style gives a delectable flavour to what might have proved to the English reader an arid narrative of obscure and alien intrigues, and the interest is further intensified because 'The Bridge of Heaven' is at the same time also the story of a great love defying all the hazards of hostile and implacable circumstance." Wilfrid Gibson

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 29 '43 100w

"Like any one of the dozen American novels on national themes which appear each season, Mr. Hsiung's novel is a useful refresher in history but no real contribution to world literature. Perhaps I should add that this opinion

HSIUNG, SHIH-I.—Continued
runs counter to the copious judgments, quoted on the dust jacket, which compare Mr. Hsiung to everyone from Goldsmith to Dickens. Myself, I found the irony which pervades the first section of the book self-conscious and tiresome, and the humor heavy-handed. In fact, I am afraid that my admiration for this first novel by the author of the highly successful play 'Lady Precious Stream' pretty much ends with my admiration for his tasteful prose." Diana Trilling

— + Nation 157:162 Ag 7 '43 550w

"A full, vivid, moving novel." Chen Yi

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 25 '43 500w

" 'The Bridge of Heaven' isn't a very profound novel or a very intense one. . . There's quaintness in the book, too—not anything to be uncomfortable about, but it's there just the same. Also, the publishers might have been tactful enough to persuade the author to accept the three per cent or so of editing that would have given the book the proper finish. What we do get, however, is plenty of interest and variety in the story and character departments, presented with a very decent amount of skill, plus that playful, intelligent, unsuperior delight in human beings just being human that may be—who knows?—the first ingredient in any world of good will." Vincent McHugh

+ — New Yorker 19:60 Jl 24 '43 550w

Reviewed by E. H. Carlson

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 15 '43 550w

"The Chinese may have another and more expressive word for it, but 'quaint' is the surprised and delighted word for it here. Dip where you will in 'The Bridge of Heaven' and you will be sure to pick up a strange and exotic small plum. Whether the fruit is crystallized Chinese-fashion one dare not presume to tell; the artful mystery may be Chinese or only Chinese in England or Mr. Hsiung's very own. To be quite un-subtle, the style of this novel may or may not derive in some degree from Chinese classical sources; to English taste it certainly has a teasing, elusive and continually unexpected charm."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p53 Ja 30 '43 950w

"It is excellent story-telling. The author is at his best when he is having a thoroughly good time in his impish way with Li Ming 'the philanthropist,' and he comes nearest to being dull when, in his account of Ta Tung's revolutionary career, he self-consciously undertakes to glorify young China's revolutionary spirit. . . Unsatisfactory as this novel is structurally, and juvenile as the English sometimes is . . . it is a gold mine of information about Chinese customs and modes of thought." Rodney Gilbert

+ — Weekly Book Review p3 Ag 1 '43 1300w

HUBBARD, LEONARD EGERTON. Soviet labour and industry. 314p $3.25 (15s) Macmillan

331.0947 Labor and laboring classes—Russia. Russia—Industries and resources 42-19481

"Mr. Hubbard's industrial topics inevitably lead him into every major problem of Soviet economy. The first four or five chapters are largely historical. A brief, and necessarily superficial, sketch of Russian economic development under the Tsars is followed by a more detailed discussion of the successive transfigurations of Soviet economy from the days of 'war communism' to the eve of the German attack. The following fifteen or sixteen chapters analyse the system, as it functioned in the 'thirties: the structure of industry, the standard of living, the financial and fiscal policy, and the general mechanism of planned economy. There are even chapters on the Jews and the women." Spec

"A worthy sequel to the author's three other factual studies of various phases of Russia's economic life." R. G. Woolbert

+ Foreign Affairs 21:13 Jl '43 50w

Reviewed by A. Dubitzky

J Pol Econ 51:373 Ag '43 1450w

"After his earlier excellent books on Soviet finance and agriculture Mr. Leonard E. Hubbard's book is rather disappointing. Its objectivity is less and its history and choice of material more scrappy. Only unfamiliarity with sources could, for instance, have led Mr. Hubbard to attribute to a newspaper article the last Ministry of Labour investigation into family budgets. The book, however, has much interesting comment and many useful (if acid) personal impressions of Russia in the last ten years."

— + Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 25 '42 100w

"Mr. L. E. Hubbard's book is a painstaking disparagement of the Soviet political, economic and social system in favour of Tsarism, presented with an appearance of sober reasoning and statistical argument. . . Soviet Labour and Industry with its Romanov nostalgia and its frowns on the Soviet past will not contribute to good Anglo-Soviet relations." Maurice Edelman

New Statesman & Nation 23:277 Ap 25 '42 480w

Reviewed by John Scott

N Y Times p16 Je 13 '43 550w

Reviewed by M. T. Florinsky

Pol Sci Q 58:472 S '43 500w

"Books and booklets about U.S.S.R. are in full flood, and it would be a pity if Mr. Hubbard's book were submerged by the torrent. . . One criticism. Mr. Hubbard's economic arguments, though not always watertight, are invariably expert and well-informed. On the other hand, his sociological arguments are, to put it mildly, ingenuous. Most of his historical generalisations about the way things are done east of the Polish frontier (or is it east of the Rhine?), about national psychology and racial characteristics, are out of place in a book as serious as his." Matthew Porson

+ — Spec 169:131 Ag 7 '42 850w

Times [London] Lit Sup p182 Ap 11 '42 850w

HUBBARD, MARGARET ANN. Lone boy. 259p $2 Macmillan

43-11459

Pioneering days in Montana in the 1860's provide the background for this story for readers in grades five to seven. The Posey family, in search of gold, settles in what is now Helena, and Ellen Jerusha, called Jerry, has some exciting times in this tale of mystery and adventure. An old Chinese laundryman is one of the chief characters.

Booklist 40:49 O 1 '43

"Well written and a distinct addition to children's literature of pioneer life." E. E. Frank

+ Library J 68:772 O 1 '43 80w

"An original, satisfying Western for boys and girls 10 to 13." I. S.

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 2 '44 260w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p7 S 19 '43 450w

HUBBEN, WILLIAM. Exiled pilgrim. 261p $2 Macmillan

B or 92 43-14602

The author was born in Germany in 1895. Originally a Roman Catholic he became first a free thinker, then a Quaker, in part as a result of his experiences during the first World war. Unable to conform with Nazi ways of thinking he emigrated to the United States in 1933. This book tells the story of his life up to the time he left his homeland.

"As the personal narrative of one man of intelligence and character, it is a valuable record. Perhaps the most interesting part of the book is the picture of his boyhood in the border town of his birth."

+ Christian Century 60:1201 O 20 '43 240w

Reviewed by Rittenhouse Neisser

Crozer Q 21:88 Ja '44 300w

"Readers of religious biography will enjoy this sincere, quiet, and highly philosophical account." R. J. Hurley

+ Library J 68:666 S 1 '43 120w

"It is a pity that Mr. Hubben—who has been active in this country for several years—still accepts certain post-1918 concepts, such as the guilt on the part of the victors. . . Some readers, too, may envy the author his freedom from hate when reading his comments on the 'harsh' treatment inflicted upon German burghers by the occupying Belgians in 1919 (which seems to have been a trifle indeed when compared to the notorious German behavior in Belgium a year before). But even so, Mr. Hubben's small volume is one of the most appealing pieces of writing among the numerous memoirs of exiled Germans who have made their home in this country." Robert Pick

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:7 O 9 '43 410w

"By temperament, experience and power of understanding emotional experiences that take on the semblance of ideas with more than their power, Mr Hubben is particularly well fitted to interpret states of mind of Germany between wars, and of the organizations—such as the Youth Movement—that preceded Hitler worship. His report is thus uncommonly enlightening upon conditions yet dark to the outside world."

+ Weekly Book Review p34 N 7 '43 380w

HUDSON, MANLEY OTTMER. Permanent court of international justice, 1920-1942; a treatise. 807p $7 Macmillan

341.1 Hague. Permanent court of international justice 43-8416

"Since the publication of the author's treatise on the Permanent Court of International Justice in 1934 [Book Review Digest, 1935] important developments have taken place and both the structure and the procedure of the Court have been changed. . . While the present volume follows the general lines of the earlier treatise, it is the result of a fresh approach to the materials. New chapters have been added on the proposed International Criminal Court and the Institution of Proceedings; a chapter on the Exercise of Contentious Jurisdiction has been omitted and the material redistributed; and the original treatise has been rewritten in view of the whole record and in the light of the author's experience." (Pref) The author is a judge of the Permanent court of international justice and a member of the Permanent court of arbitration.

Reviewed by E. M. Borchard

Am Pol Sci R 37:933 O '43 490w

"It is an invaluable study, whether to the student of judicial organization and practice or to the student of international organization." Clyde Eagleton

+ Ann Am Acad 229:179 S '43 450w

"While not necessary in general library, highly recommended for libraries specializing in law, government, or foreign relations." H. H. A. Bernt

+ Library J 68:474 Je 1 '43 70w

"An important work." H. W. Weigert

+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 Jl 10 '43 500w

HUDSON, ROY P. The blast furnace; its raw materials, products, by-products and their chemical analysis. 254p il $3.75 Chemical pub. co.

669.8 Blast furnaces 42-50575

"Most of Hudson's pages are occupied with factors governing the operation of the furnace and should be helpful to those concerned with such processes. Throughout, theory is subordinated, with main emphasis on the actual observation of what happens." Books

Reviewed by James Stokley

Books p20 Ja 24 '43 150w

Library J 68:212 Mr 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:53 O '42

HUEPER, WILHELM C. Occupational tumors and allied diseases. 896p $8 Thomas, C. C.

616.994 Cancer. Tumors. Diseases, Industrial 42-17684

"As indicated by the title, major emphasis is placed on occupational tumors, particularly epitheliomata of the skin, but consideration is also given to carcinomata of the internal organs, benign and malignant tumors of the mesenchyme, diseases of the blood forming organs, and allied conditions such as dermatoses, polyposes, and cirrhosis of the liver. The presentation of the subject is exhaustive." (Am J Pub Health) Bibliography. Index.

"The work can be highly recommended for its comprehensive analysis of the action of the well recognized chemical and physical carcinogenic agents and their effects on the skin, genitourinary system, and blood forming organs. In the discussion of tumors of certain internal organs, and of the relation of occupational neoplasia to theories of cancerigenesis, however, the author enters on high speculative ground." A. B. Robins

+ Am J Pub Health 33:609 My '43 380w

"In addition to being an encyclopedic work in this field, the book is not without great value from a critical viewpoint. The author has demonstrated critical ability in the selection of material and in the weighting of its presentation. In a few places the style appears to be somewhat involved but this does not in any way detract from the value of the volume as a first-class reference book on occupational tumors." Leonard Greenburg

+ Chem & Eng N 21:447 Mr 25 '43 290w

HUESTON, ETHEL (POWELSON) (MRS E. J. BEST). Drink to me only. . . 268p $2.50 Bobbs

43-18238

Denise, the heroine, a charming and clever girl, married Brad Jamieson, a brilliant man with one failing—he went on periodical blind drunks. Denise's best friend Marian, who tells the story, describes the night when Brad came home, dead drunk, and Denise was hit over the head with a blunt instrument. Denise did not die, and the identity of her assailant is left in some doubt.

"Starts out as a straight novel about a dipsomaniac and ends as a mystery yarn. Whatever its virtues on either score, the result suffers from this division of techniques." Rose Feld

N Y Times p24 Ja 9 '44 340w

"The book is one of tremendous struggle to save a man from himself. No maudlin sympathy is given the drinker, neither is he baldly condemned. Jamieson is a man in the clutches of a disease, and while the reader may condemn Denise's folly in marrying him, the fight she puts up to save Bradbury is absorbing and dramatic." M. D.

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 2 '44 330w

"Miss Hueston hammers her point with more zeal than artistry. The theme is far from diverting and the author's attempt to treat it with a certain lightness is of dubious effectiveness. Her novel is a tract on which to pin a white ribbon—but no medals." Lisle Bell

— + Weekly Book Review p16 Ja 16 '44 280w

HUGHES, MRS DOROTHY BELLE (FLANAGAN). Blackbirder. 250p $2 Duell

43-14286

"A young French refugee in this country, trying to avoid being charged with murder, keeps the conventional one jump ahead of both Nazi and anti-Nazi agents in her efforts to find the man who smuggles refugees across the Mexican border." New Yorker

"Miss Hughes is, as usual, capable of making terror rise out of a sentence which, from any other writer, would seem innocuous. A superior tale." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p8 S 19 '43 160w

Booklist 40:80 N 1 '43

"Without question this is the best book that Dorothy Hughes has written." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p8 S 12 '43 160w

New Yorker 19:88 S 11 '43 80w

"Action is the word in this highly recommended thriller. It's Mrs. Hughes's most exciting opus to date." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p18 S 12 '43 180w

HUGHES, MRS DOROTHY BELLE (FLANAGAN). Omnibus of terror; three mysteries. 3v in 1 240;289;312p $2.49 Duell
43-11139

Omnibus volume containing The So Blue Marble, and The Cross-eyed Bear (Book Review Digest, 1940); and The Bamboo Blonde (Book Review Digest, 1941).

"This omnibus is a real break for fans who may want to catch up with one of the bright and shining lights of American mystery." Will Cuppy
+ Books p22 Ja 24 '43 220w

"Tops."
+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 13 '43 50w

"Very good buy."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ja 30 '43 40w

HUGHES, ERNEST RICHARD, ed. and tr. Great learning; and, The mean-in-action; newly tr. from the Chinese, with an introd. essay on the history of Chinese philosophy. 176p $2 Dutton [8s 6d Dent]
181.1 Philosophy, Chinese 43-1988

"Mr. Hughes, for seven years Reader in Chinese Religion and Philosophy in the University of Oxford and now seconded to Chungking, has rendered a signal service to the understanding of China, and also to philosophic thought . . . by publishing simultaneously and in extenso, with a full and learned and enthusiastic introduction, translations of two Chinese books by writers of the Confucianist school which have a particular interest and were translated into Latin by the Jesuits (along with the 'Analects' of Confucius) as long ago as 1687." Manchester Guardian

Reviewed by Leo Melancon
Commonweal 37:547 Mr 19 '43 450w

Reviewed by W. S. Urquhart
Hibbert J 42:89 O '43 600w

"There are few dull pages for one who is interested in the genius of Chinese life. The translations are good and the style is easier to take than some of the previous and more ponderous renditions. . . Scholars in the field will doubtless challenge some of the author's conclusions. At any rate this volume represents a great deal of hard work well done and it should prove to be a useful addition to the libraries of those working in Chinese philosophy." K. P. L.
+ — J Philos 40:363 Je 24 '43 360w
J Religion 23:299 O '43 50w

"Written during critical times some twenty-three centuries ago, these books still live and have their influence on the Chinese and other peoples." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 68:81 Ja 15 '43 110w

"Mr. Hughes is versed in Western philosophy as well as the philosophy of China; he has an instinct for good translation and scholarly interpretation, and though he is perhaps too prone to seek analogies and affiliations, the zest of his thought is enough to excuse the ardour of his hypotheses." Ernest Barker
+ Manchester Guardian p5 N 21 '42 220w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 2 '44 70w
Times [London] Lit Sup p215 My 1 '43 330w

HUGHES, EVERETT CHERRINGTON. French Canada in transition. 227p maps $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press 971.4 Quebec (province). French Canadians
A43-2759

This book is in three parts. The first discusses in generalized terms the transformation of French Canadian farming communities into industrial towns and cities. Part two, the longest in the book, goes into the minutiae of the changes which occurred in one town, here called Cantonville, during the last third of a century. The final part deals with the problem of the metropolis and the effects of Anglo-Saxon business on the French-Canadian way of life. Bibliography. Index.

"Dr. Hughes is eminently qualified to carry his investigation of French Canada into this wider problem of socioeconomic development. It is to be hoped, therefore, that the present study constitutes simply one chapter of a much larger one. Within its limits, however, we have been provided with a very excellent statement of the relationship of English-speaking and French-speaking Canada." S. D. Clark
+ Ann Am Acad 231:180 Ja '44 800w

"Here is a book which any Canadian interested in his country will find important. For any citizen who is actively participating in national politics, it is a volume which should be read at once, and then kept available for constant reference in the future." G. O. Rothney
+ Canadian Forum 23:236 Ja '44 550w

"Frank and forthright to a degree in dealing with questions usually buried under sentimentalities and diplomatic half-truths, Dr. Hughes has done much to promote a better understanding of a complex society by its neighbors and by itself. It should be noted that though this is a sociological treatise, the author has shunned the professional cant which makes so much sociology unreadable and written his book in a vigorous and vital English. Only a slight over-indulgence in statistical tables which might have been verbally expressed stands in the path of the average reader." Mason Wade
+ Commonweal 39:282 D 31 '43 650w

Reviewed by A. R. Foley
New Eng Q 16:675 D '43 420w

HUGHES, PAUL. Retreat from Rostov. 586p $2.75 Random house
43-14759

A reconstruction of the battle of Rostov, November 4 to December 7, 1941, the first land victory against the Nazis. It describes the battle as seen thru the eyes of soldiers in both armies, and their women, and the people of Rostov.

"The author has a genuine dramatic talent. And if no Germans or Russians are exactly like the people in this book, we have the pleased feeling that they should be."
Atlantic 172:129 O '43 100w

"No one who opens this book will fail to read to the final page. And although it is not a perfect work of art, it is often effective in its very naivete. The author and publisher are to be commended for a daring major attempt to portray the essentially unportrayable." Sterling North
+ — Book Week p2 S 26 '43 550w
Booklist 40:94 N 15 '43

"Improbable situations weaken novel. Recommended for adults only." L. I. Poste
Library J 68:668 S 1 '43 70w

"In the welter of current fiction whose chief boast seems to be that art needs no masters, 'Retreat from Rostov' is a rare phenomenon, a novel that consciously sets out to learn from the past and take its stand in the best literary tradition." Diana Trilling
+ — Nation 157:452 O 16 '43 850w

"Paul Hughes has rescued the individual from the panorama. He has known how to surpass the living moment in order to delineate it authentically. To have accomplished this in our day, when it is not only an indecent luxury to have a life of one's own, but even a death of one's own, attains the importance of a military victory." Jenny Ballou
+ N Y Times p5 S 26 '43 1100w

"Mr. Hughes' characters (Russian, German, and American) are sadly unconvincing and his plot rather operatic, but one must admire the energy and intrepidity of this full-scale, remote-control attempt at a current-events 'War and Peace.' "
New Yorker 19:82 S 25 '43 90w

"Mr. Hughes is young and this is his first novel. He set himself a difficult task in it in the depiction of an epic struggle. If he contents himself in his next book with a less ambitious subject, there is reason to believe that he may meet with greater success." Robert Pick
Sat R of Lit 26:42 O 16 '43 600w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 440w
Time 42:102 O 18 '43 350w

"There is no doubt that Mr. Hughes has done a monumental task of research. Nor is there any doubt that he has stretched out taut, not only his excellent imagination but also his eager heart, to encompass this far-off drama of foreign figures in a foreign world. It is not his fault that more ink than blood flows through the veins of his Germans, Russians, Czechs, and Poles. For in the last analysis no effort of his can outweigh the fact that Mr. Hughes is at home not in war but in peace, not in Russia but in Oklahoma." Virgilia Sapieha
Weekly Book Review p5 S 26 '43 900w

"There is plenty of horror, violence, and excitement in Retreat From Rostov; but there is no unifying over-all conception, and there are no characters interesting in themselves. Brave, daring, heroic, Russians and brutal corrupt, arrogant Nazis plot and fight and love and die, but every one of them seems only a wooden puppet dancing awkwardly to Mr. Hughes's direction. The result is an enormous and ardently ambitious failure that by its sheer bulk and by the extraneous factor of our intense interest and sympathy in the Russian war effort may be received more respectfully than it deserves to be." Orville Prescott
— Yale R n s 33:x autumn '43 400w

HUGHLEY, JUDGE NEAL. Rethinking our Christianity. 242p $2 Dorrance
230 Christianity 43-3142

"Mr. Hughley is a young Negro professor on the staff of the North Carolina College for Negroes at Durham. He received his theological training in Union Seminary, New York, 1929-32... Since 'the nature, meaning and function of Christianity in our time . . . presents one of the major, crucial issues in contemporary civilization,' Mr. Hughley's purpose is to make clear the nature of Christianity." Christian Century

"This is a curious and in many ways extraordinary book. Seldom does one find a book so weak in some of its fundamental features but withal so worthy of praise, so clear in its lesser parts but so indefinite in overall structure. Again, it is uncommon to have an author so highly assertive of his major thesis while failing to explain more effectively how that thesis is superior to the positions he criticizes." W. M. Mitchell
+ — Christian Century 60:577 My 12 '43 600w

"The breath of life blows through this strong and challenging book. The work of its young author promises further light and leading." E. S. Brightman
+ — Crozer Q 20:157 Ap '43 1200w

HUIE, WILLIAM BRADFORD. Fight for air power. 310p il $2.50 Fischer, L.B.
358.4 Aeronautics, Military. U.S.—Army—Air corps 42-51537

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:7 Jl '43 30w

"Most of the book is devoted to the past troubles of the Army Air Corps. With the aid of informants whom he quotes but neglects to name, Mr. Huie builds a case of neglect of air power against the President, the army, the navy, Congress, and others. . . The author is well informed regarding the important function of air power as a long-range striking weapon, and his comments on the Flying Fortress are worth careful reading. But nowhere does he reveal the slightest sign of understanding the importance of command of the sea, the cooperative role of air power, or the use of land armies." D. W. Mitchell
+ — Nation 156:462 Mr 27 '43 390w

"The author has done a commendable job on behalf of the war effort by keeping this book from being 'hidden under a bushel' and, while it is grand reading now, in later years it will supply the answer to the question—'Why did we have only nineteen poorly equipped heavy bombers when this war broke out in Europe?' " H. E. Hartney
+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 Mr 6 '43 850w

HULL, HELEN ROSE. Circle in the water [Eng title: Darkening hill]. 408p $2.50 Coward-McCann [9s 6d Jarrolds]
42-36435

Beginning in the Harding era, this story of modern marriage, continues for some twenty years. The central characters are Hilary Sedgewick, a talented but neurotic young college instructor; Vera, his beautiful and well-balanced wife; and Bill, their son. When Hilary publishes his realistic first novel, he not only loses his contemplated professorship, but his job as well. The next step is New York, where Hilary strives for success, and Vera has to make both ends meet on very little money. Hilary's casual affairs with other women finally lead to a divorce, and second marriages for both Hilary and Vera. Bill drifts along aimlessly until his interest is caught, and held, by aviation.

Booklist 39:201 Ja 15 '43

"A three-dimensioned, fine-textured story of family life to which Miss Hull gives both substance and insight. Incidentally, it is also a thoroughly interesting chronicle of American life among the successful middle-class intelligentsia from the year in which Harding took oath of office to that when it became clear that war was overhanging the United States... The actuality of Miss Hull's story makes it, like its predecessors, engrossing reading. It gets under your skin; you could not help being eager to know how things turned out for the Sedgewicks, as you would be eager to know about friends." Mary Ross
+ Books p3 Ja 17 '43 950w

"Recommended, especially for women." Margaret Winning
+ Library J 68:35 Ja 1 '43 110w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:172 Ja 30 '43 180w

"As always, Miss Hull's writing possesses the strength of sound and beautiful architecture... Apart from its moving story and its searching portrayal of the writer as an artist and lover, Miss Hull's novel prods the reader into thoughtful examination of her theme... Miss Hull, by the proof of her writing, is neither prig nor preacher... On second thought, it is not morality that Miss Hull is concerned with; it is something that goes beyond that, the breaking of faith with one's self and the destruction of things rooted in that faith." Rose Feld
+ N Y Times p5 Ja 10 '43 1100w

New Yorker 18:61 Ja 30 '43 60w

"Despite the Shakespearean reference in its title the theme of this novel is marriage and the ravages made on it over a period of twenty years by a selfish and fanatically ambitious husband. Miss Hull, an experienced novelist, would probably be the first to disclaim any originality for it, but in writing of it freshly, with intelligence and at times startlingly minute penetration of character, she has shown that mere newness is not necessarily the test of a thoroughly readable and enjoyable story."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 Ja 16 '43 450w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien
Spec 171:370 O 15 '43 120w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 31 '43 250w

Wis Lib Bul 39:41 Mr '43

HULL, HELEN ROSE. Mayling Soong Chiang. 32p 75c Coward-McCann
B or 92 Chiang, Mei-ling (Sung) (Mme Chiang Kai-shek) 43-14748

"This . . . little book describes with warm affection the recent visit of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek to the United States. It is a personal introduction of China's First Lady to the vast audience which knows her only as a public figure. Miss Helen Hull, the gifted novelist, has turned her skill to the interpretative portrait of a living character. The author has known Mme. Chiang well, ever since the days when Mayling Soong was a freshman at Wellesley College and Miss Hull was her English teacher. And during Mme. Chiang's extended visit in this country Miss Hull was constantly her close companion." N Y Times

HULL, H. R.—Continued

"The author does not pretend her work is a formal portrait. It is, to me, at least, a profile done in the quick interpretative strokes of a true artist. The finished product is charming and often brilliant, but as in a profile, it shows only half of the subject's face." C. C. Cheng
+ Book Week p9 S 19 '43 180w

"Written with penetrating skill and easy craftsmanship, this book tells of things which might be only vaguely sensed by most of us: it brings to the readers an intimate glimpse of this famous woman." Chen Yih
+ N Y Times p7 S 26 '43 280w

HULL, RICHARD, pseud. See Sampson, R. H.

HUME, EDGAR ERSKINE. Victories of army medicine. 250p il $3 Lippincott

355.34 U.S.—Army—Medical department. Medicine, Military 43-8061

"The one department of the Army whose victories are as great in peace as in time of war is also one of the oldest. Founded in 1775 at the specific request of George Washington, the Army Medical Corps can boast of many victories even more important than the care of the wounded and Walter Reed's famous conquest of yellow fever. Colonel Hume cites the proud record in this first general, but concise, history of its scientific achievements." Weekly Book Review

"It is a 'must' book for all medical libraries and contains information which educated people generally should have." M. P. Ravenel
+ Am J Pub Health 33:1127 S '43 800w
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '43

"Colonel Edgar Erskine Hume, who served as librarian of the Army Medical Library from 1932 to 1936 and who is probably the most prolific author in the military service, has written a very meaty and instructive work. 'Victories of Army Medicine' is a noteworthy addition to the accomplishments of the Medical Department of the United States Army." Iago Galdston
+ N Y Times p16 My 2 '43 440w

"The book is somewhat episodic and pious, but evidently comprehensive."
New Yorker 19:83 My 8 '43 70w

"'Victories of Army Medicine' is scholarly rather than popular. To condense 168 years of crowded history into a single book leaves many a story but half told. It includes, however, a fine critical list of other books to supplement each chapter, a list of Army hospitals and another of the executive officers throughout the years. It is itself a distinguished service to the Army and to American medicine." Gerald Wendt
+ Weekly Book Review p13 My 9 '43 750w

HUMMEL, GEORGE FREDERICK. Joshua Moore, American. 456p $2.75 Doubleday 43-51156

A family chronicle following the fortunes of Joshua Moore, immigrant from England, and his descendants thru successive generations from the seventeenth century to the present.

Booklist 39:389 Je 1 '43
Reviewed by R. B. Rankin
Library J 68:248 Mr 15 '43 100w

"George Hummel's newest novel is described on the dust jacket as 'a great panoramic novel of the growth of America.' The story itself is big enough to fill the hollow spaces in this great meaningless phrase without too much rattling around. Happily, it is neither portentous nor tiresome." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p12 My 9 '43 440w

"A rather wearisome execution of a sound though not original idea."
New Yorker 19:82 My 8 '43 140w

"It is a book to read slowly in order to savor each epoch, each life of the Joshuas. Truly—as the title intimates—an American book." M. D.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 30 '43 600w

"Mr. Hummel has set himself an ambitious goal in trying to depict America's physical and traditional growth in a single novel. For the purposes of fiction he has selected the most stirring episodes of the country's development. In a story of such scope there is little chance to make people real. What is lacking in subjective characterization, however, is compensated for in action. Essentially, the book is a series of five novelettes, with occasional flashbacks to give it unity." Rachel Meisenhelder
+ — Weekly Book Review p10 My 9 '43 850w

HUMPHREYS, WILLIAM JACKSON. Fogs, clouds, and aviation. 200p il $3 Williams & Wilkins

551.57 Fog. Clouds 43-13776

"Dr. W. J. Humphreys, a retired meteorological physicist of the U.S. Weather Bureau, has written several books on weather, particularly a book called 'Fogs and Clouds.' This was a simple but thoroughly scientific explanation of fogs and clouds with a complete collection of cloud photographs. This new volume brings the older book up to date and adds to it the significance of each type of fog and cloud as it might affect the pilot of an airplane." Book Week

Reviewed by J. C. Penn
Book Week p10 N 7 '43 220w
Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 10w
Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p45 N 14 '43 200w

HUMPHREYS, WILLIAM JACKSON. Ways of the weather; a cultural survey of meteorology. 400p il $4 Cattell

551.5 Meteorology. Weather 42-50509

"The book by Dr. Humphreys, for thirty years meteorological physicist in the U.S. Weather Bureau, is a complete handbook about the weather for everyone, groundlings as well as 'bird-men.' Without recourse to mathematical formulæ, it discusses authoritatively the chief problems of weather and climate, dispelling many popular fallacies and giving the correct answers to the questions that all of us have so frequently asked about the most popular topic of conversation in all communities at all times." Scientific Bk Club R

"'Ways of the Weather' is practically a 'must' for anyone who wishes a nonmathematical yet complete and stimulating treatment of the whole subject of weather." M. A. Countryman
+ Book Week p9 Ag 15 '43 110w
Booklist 39:287 Mr 15 '43
Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

"This 'cultural survey' is precisely what any student needs to understand how meteorology evolved from the descriptive into analytic stage. As an introduction to the systematic study of the weather and its vagaries we know of no more comprehensive and readable book than this. Dr. Humphreys ranges over the whole subject whether he deals with folklore or science." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ N Y Times p24 F 28 '43 160w
School & Society 57:28 Ja 2 '43 20w

"Dr. Humphreys has long been acclaimed among scientists for his ability to present complicated subjects accurately, but simply and clearly. In this book he has attained new heights in his attempt to humanize and popularize the science of meteorology."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Ja '43 120w

"All is written in the author's clear and entertaining style." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p22 F 28 '43 150w

HUND, AUGUST. Frequency modulation. 375p $4 McGraw

621.384152 Radio frequency modulation 42-50376

"An engineering text covering both basic principles and the design of commercial apparatus. The author is a member of the Navy Radio and Sound Laboratory, San Diego, California." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:16 Ja '43

Pratt p20 D '42

"It is the feeling of the reviewer that the last chapter should be disregarded or used with caution, that a few of the more general conclusions should be checked before being applied to conditions far removed from FM broadcasting, but that within these limitations the book represents a useful addition to the existing literature." S. N. Van Voorhis

+ — R of Scientific Instruments 14:103 Ap '43 800w

HUNGERFORD, EDWARD. Transport for war, 1942-1943. 272p $3 Dutton

385 Transportation—U.S. World war, 1939— Transportation 43-8543

A popularly written survey of American transportation problems and achievements in wartime. The author, tho as an "old railroader" he is chiefly interested in rail traffic, gives due attention also to transport by air and by water, by bus and truck and trolley lines. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

Eng N 131:116 N 4 '43 280w

Reviewed by J. C. Shipman

Library J 68:529 Je 15 '43 120w

"In the face of undoubted inhibitions imposed by the Office of War Information, Mr. Hungerford has assembled in readable form information that is valuable and inspiring to the American public." E. F. Allen

+ N Y Times p20 Jl 18 '43 360w

"Not very well organized, but gossipy, rapid-fire stuff."

+ — New Yorker 19:71 Je 26 '43 40w

"An interesting, informative, and comprehensive account." Arthur Train

+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ag 14 '43 850w

Wis Lib Bul 39:119 O '43

HUNT, MABEL LEIGH. Peddler's clock; il. by Elizabeth Orton Jones. [28]p 50c Grosset 43-8182

"In 1822 when the Bellamy family lived in a Connecticut farmhouse, timepieces of any kind were rare. Father Bellamy, very proud of the big silver watch which had been his father's and entirely satisfied with it, saw no need for a clock. . . The children's mother, however, hankered for a clock. . . How she thought a cow was not too much to exchange for this treasure, how Timothy grieved to see his loved Muley led away, how Timothy's father felt about the bargain when he got home and what steps he took, makes a friendly little story." N Y Times

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield

Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 50w

Reviewed. A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p9 Je 6 '43 220w

"The book leaves a good taste in the mouth." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 23 '43 330w

HUNT, ROCKWELL DENNIS. John Bidwell, prince of California pioneers. 463p il $3.50 Caxton printers

B or 92 Bidwell, John 42-50936

Biography of an American pioneer, who was born in 1819 in Chautauqua county, New York, and died in California in 1900. John Bidwell went to California as a young man with the first overland emigrant wagon train; he was employed for a time by John Sutter; he was congressman for California, 1865-1867; was defeated in several campaigns for governor; and owned and operated a huge ranch, part of which he donated to the state for a town site and educational enterprises. Index.

"A well-written and well-organized biography of one of California's great pioneers. . . It is to be regretted that there are only occasional footnotes, no maps in the body of the work, and that the brief bibliographical note does not include more of the more significant manuscripts Professor Hunt must certainly have consulted in order to write such a volume. Regardless of these minor criticisms, John Bidwell stands as a substantial contribution to California history." R. J. Parker

+ — Am Hist R 48:879 Jl '43 280w

Christian Century 60:330 Mr 17 '43 330w

"If Professor Hunt had never met General Bidwell, it is probable that he would have written a more exact, less idealized, biography. He knew the noted Californian in his later years, and came under the spell of his gentle charm. The result is a historic pageant, with the hero ever in the foreground, more than life-size, possessed of more than human virtues, lacking in none of these, apparently."

Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 13 '43 500w

Reviewed by E. L. Sabin

Sat R of Lit 26:19 Ja 16 '43 270w

"Until now Bidwell has not had his story told in detail, and this first full length biography will be useful reference material for the student in the field. Mr. Hunt—he is dean of the Graduate School at the University of Southern California—has worked painstakingly and earnestly, and the fact that he knew both Bidwell and his wife in their later years enables him to present the man at first hand, something the biographer is too often unable to do." J. H. Jackson

+ Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 4 '43 500w

HUNTER, DARD. Papermaking; the history and technique of an ancient craft. 421p il $4.50 Knopf

676 Paper making and trade 43-2735

Aims "to give accomplished bibliophiles and amateur booklovers an insight into the methods employed by the makers of paper in all parts of the world and from all periods; and to interest and instruct papermakers, workers in watermarking, etchers, engravers, printers, book-binders, paper salesmen, and all users of paper." (Foreword) Index.

"Only an enthusiast, who is likewise a good scholar, could have written this book. . . Because of the close relationship between paper and printing the latter industry comes in for considerable attention throughout the book. Mr. Hunter makes a valuable contribution when he codifies the knowledge regarding the dharani charms, the earliest extant specimens of printing on paper, produced in Japan in 770 A.D. . . But in other references to printing history, the author is surprisingly inaccurate. Almost a quarter of his book is devoted to a chronology of papermaking and printing. The statements regarding paper are for the most part accurate; the statements regarding printing, apparently drawn from two unreliable authors, are often misleading." D. C. McMurtrie

+ — Am Hist R 49:82 O '43 650w

Booklist 39:313 Ap 1 '43

Bookmark 4:7 Mr '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

Library J 68:212 Mr 1 '43 30w

"This 'history' is mostly a descriptive catalog of papermaking methods at various times, with a preliminary chapter on writing materials other than paper and with two final sorrowful chapters on Nicholas-Louis Robert and his papermaking machine. Read it and like it, as this reviewer did, as a straightforward, accurate, and interesting manual of an ancient and little-known craft; read it and like it as the partial autobiography of a modern Thoreau; but don't read it—though it is the only book on the subject—as rounded and satisfying history." Stanley Pargellis

HUNTER, DARD—Continued
+ — Library Q 14:64 Ja '44 500w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:31 Ap '43

"A complete and scholarly story of paper. The work is a pleasant transition of research into an easily read story. . . Perhaps no man is better equipped to measure a new contribution to the subject of papermaking, and it must be a satisfaction to Dard Hunter to know that in the eighteen hundred years since Ts'ai Lun's report there has been no more comprehensive a study than the book just issued." Elmer Adler
+ N Y Times p24 Mr 14 '43 850w

HURST, JOHN SHIRLEY. Then gilded dust. 279p $2 Bobbs
43-51077

Romantic story of the adventures of a young American aviator who flew for China before the days when Americans came openly to help China in her fight against the Japanese.

Booklist 39:334 Ap 15 '43

"Although some of the writing is vivid, the story as a whole is marred by sensationalism and the constant teetering back and forth between the demands of war and of sex. It is to be hoped that some day we shall have a novel about war which will make us understand what it does to man, but apparently the time for that is not yet ripe."
— + Cath World 157:334 Je '43 180w

"For all its eloquent message and vivid details, 'Then Gilded Dust' lacks reality. The soul of China does not figure here, and at times her tragic struggle is used merely to provide an exciting scenic backdrop. But as a love story in the best cinema tradition, there is plenty of color and fireworks to hold your interest for three or four hours." Nona Balakian
N Y Times p17 Ap 11 '43 440w

"In prose that is graphic and hard-hitting John Shirley Hurst depicts the action at Shanghai and Nanking, with an American and a Russian flyer sharing top billing. . . Summing up each encounter with the enemy in which he could chalk up a satisfactory score, Alan would say, 'It was a good show.' You will find Mr. Hurst's novel emphatically a good show." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Mr 28 '43 270w

HUTCHINS, ROBERT MAYNARD. Education for freedom. 117p $1.50 La. state univ. press
370.4 Education, Higher. Colleges and universities—U.S. 43-4919

"Presenting with some additions, a series of lectures he delivered at Louisiana State College in 1941, President Hutchins of the University of Chicago makes a strong and well reasoned plea for the Chicago Plan of education. This plan, which at present includes the awarding of the B.A. degree after two years at the university, has been condemned by many of the learned educational societies." Current Hist

Reviewed by J. W. Nason
Ann Am Acad 228:147 Jl '43 400w
Booklist 39:381 Je 1 '43
Current Hist 4:84 Mr '43 170w

"In manner of writing the book is gay and spirited. But in purpose it is grim and resolute. Mr. Hutchins is an under-dog. As a controversialist he is fighting against the dominant intellectual tendencies of his time." Alexander Meiklejohn
+ New Repub 109:147 Ag 2 '43 1350w
School & Society 57:224 F 20 '43 30w

HUTCHINSON, MRS DOROTHY CARLETON (HEWITT). In quest of foster parents; a point of view on homefinding; pub. for the N.Y. school of social work. 145p $1.75 Columbia univ. press
362.73 Children—Placing out 43-4578

Discussion of the psychology of homefinding for children, as it affects both the worker and the foster parent. Partial contents: The wish for parenthood; Introduction to a foster mother; High-lighting the home visit; Refusing foster parents; Homefinding in wartime; In praise of foster parenthood. The author is assistant professor of social work at Columbia university. The book contains case histories. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:3 S '43

"An intelligent, technical study." Elisabeth Wallace
+ Canadian Forum 23:117 Ag '43 850w

"While designed especially for those engaged in the placement of children, and, in a sense, for prospective foster parents, it is of interest to readers generally, because of the always present problem of home finding, now greatly accentuated by the enlistment of mothers in war industries and by the need of providing homes for juvenile évacués. By disposition, training, and experience the writer has unusual qualifications for her task. The material is presented in a clear, convincing, and common-sense way. The case reports are intensely interesting and revealing." Rittenhouse Neisser
+ Crozer Q 20:263 Jl '43 200w

Reviewed by S. H. Spencer
Social Forces 22:117 O '43 350w

HUTCHINSON, PAUL. From victory to peace. 226p $1.50 Willett
940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. World war, 1939—Religious aspects. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-51351

The managing editor of The Christian Century discusses postwar problems of economics, imperialism and its control, race hatreds, disarmament, and aid for the defeated nations. Appendix contains texts of: Proposals of British church leaders; The Malvern manifesto; The Delaware findings; The six pillars of peace; The Princeton messages; Declaration by American Protestant, Catholic and Jewish leaders. No index.

Booklist 40:162 Ja 1 '44

"The greatest merit of this book is that, while stressing the paramount responsibility of the church, it is not written exclusively for church leaders or for church people. The chapters discussing the problems of world community and of empires and the brilliant criticisms of Walter Lippman's or Henry Luce's imperialistic 'realism' are a delight for every intelligent student of world politics, 'unchurched' though he may be." Franz Schoenberner
+ Christian Century 61:81 Ja 19 '44 1000w

HUXLEY, JULIAN SORELL. Evolution, the modern synthesis. 645p $5 Harper
575 Evolution 43-4332

"An up-to-date, over-all study of the subject by a great authority. The author reinstates Darwin, who has received some knocks lately, and carefully summarizes the most recent findings. Not 'popular' reading." (New Yorker) Bibliography, p579-613. Index.

"The whole book is a beautiful and awe-inspiring job of building up, piece by piece, from the discoveries of many scientists, a picture of the pattern of forces at work in all living things. Prof. Huxley's learning is vast. He surveys and systematizes the main branches of evolutionary study from cytology and genetics to paleontology and ecology and, gathering what seems to be lifetimes of study into each chapter, he documents his discussion intricately with cases and examples." Margedant Peters
+ Book Week p6 Ap 18 '43 950w

Reviewed by J. McA. Kater
Commonweal 38:176 Je 4 '43 490w
Library J 68:212 Mr 1 '43 20w

"The author expresses the hope that the work 'will appeal mainly to professional biologists,' and indeed it would appear that few who lack the training of the professional biologist could readily cope with its major complexities. As a reference-book it will doubtless prove useful to students of genetics and evolution. To the professional biologist certain statements will perhaps appear slightly naive." F. W. Jones
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 O 9 '42 250w

Reviewed by R. W. Gerard
New Repub 109:53 Jl 12 '43 700w

Reviewed by P. G. 'Espinasse
New Statesman & Nation 24:275 O 24 '42 1150w

"Mr. Huxley has painstakingly compiled, and appraised, the recent biological discoveries. 'Evolution, the Modern Synthesis,' is a vast library of naturalistic material which is exciting in itself and which is important for the broad concepts which are drawn from it. While it is not written nor assembled in the spirit of a textbook, it contains the essentials for a modern college course in evolution." Myron Gordon
+ N Y Times p23 Jl 25 '43 1200w
New Yorker 19:88 Ap 10 '43 30w

"This is a book for professional biologists interested in the more general aspects of their subjects. Laymen will find much good reading in the first two and last two chapters, but are almost certain to bog down among the technicalities and italicized binomials of the six intervening chapters, which occupy more than three-fourths of the pages of the text. Those six chapters, however, constitute an admirable digest of most of the important literature dealing with the problems of the origin of species that has appeared in Europe and America in the last twenty years. Together with the extensive bibliography and the unusually satisfactory index, they provide ready access to data otherwise scattered almost hopelessly through tens of thousands of printed pages."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Ap '43 420w

"This book is unquestionably the magnum opus of its author. One cannot read it without being astonished that a single mind can cover so adequately so wide a field. The subject might have been tackled by a team of several first-rate biologists, but then the synthesis would inevitably have been much less perfect. Dr. Julian Huxley has not been exceptionally distinguished as an investigator, but in the synthesis and exposition of the biological discoveries of others he is almost without a rival. Whether he is dealing with plants or animals and whether the subject is genetics or cytology or geographical distribution or ecology or taxonomy or palaeontology, Dr. Huxley writes with authority. He acknowledges help from friends, but the synthesis is clearly his own." J. R. Baker
+ Spec 169:340 O 9 '42 900w

Reviewed by B. C. Gruenberg
Survey G 32:300 Jl '43 150w
Times [London] Lit Sup p508 O 17 '42 1500w

HUZARSKI, RICHARD. Brushland Bill; il. by Bob Kuhn. 264p $2 Crowell

43-6639

"A boy's trapping and hunting adventures in northern Wisconsin. Bill learns to live alone in the woods and a friendly old man teaches him about animals and wood lore." Sat R of Lit

"'Brushland Bill' is a book that should appeal to young people because of its simplicity and action. It is obviously written by a man who knows well the life he writes about." William Sheridan
+ Book Week p8 Je 20 '43 180w
Booklist 39:390 Je 1 '43

"Some of characterization is weak, and at times author strains the point to make story exciting; but hard work, perseverance, love and respect for the woods are well presented." Dorothy Lawson
+ — Library J 68:434 My 15 '43 70w

"This is a well-written story which offers suspense and excitement for the author handles his plot skillfully, and also a great deal of authentic information about trapping and life in the woods. The characterization is unusually complete and consistent, with emphasis on the qualities of independence, honesty and self-control. A story that will have a strong appeal to boy readers from 12 to 16." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p9 Jl 25 '43 280w

"Good adventure."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:28 My 15 '43 30w

"A well-told story." R. L.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 9 '43 60w

"Now and again we need a book to show boys that this country is not so overpopulated as city folks think, that not all trees grow in parks and not all fur-bearing animals on fur farms, and that, while it is hard to make a living in the woods, it is no harder now than it was for Daniel Boone. All this information, in a good story, is conveyed by 'Brushland Bill.'" M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 My 9 '43 500w
Wis Lib Bul 39:75 My '43

HYATT, ADA V. Place of oral reading in the school program; its history and development from 1880-1941. 140p $1.85 Teachers college

372.4 Reading 43-14623

"This study has a threefold purpose: (1) to discover what method predominated in the elementary school about 1880; (2) to ascertain what influences contributed to the decline of oral and to the rise of silent reading; and (3) to indicate the outlook for a wider use of oral reading in the classroom." page 3

"Anyone interested in the elementary school —teachers, supervisors, administrators, reading specialists, and teachers of teachers—should become acquainted with this book because it has historical significance and because it provides a basis for the extension of oral reading in the schools." Helen Huus
+ El School J 44:183 N '43 700w
School & Society 58:80 Jl 31 '43 60w

HYLAND, PATRICK HENRY, and KOMMERS, JESSE BENJAMIN. Machine design. 3d ed 562p il $4.50 McGraw

621.81 Machinery—Design 43-2020

"This is the third revision of one of the standard textbooks on machine design. It follows the accepted pattern of subdividing the study into cams, bearings, riveted joints, screws, shafts, keys, gears and machine frames. A study of machine design follows the courses in mechanics and strength of materials." Book Week

"The reader will find this book reasonably easy to read and highly useful."
+ Book Week p11 My 30 '43 70w
Library J 68:626 Ag '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:10 Ja '43

"This would be a fine book for the man who knows and works with machines and who desires more background on design." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p18 My 9 '43 80w

HYLANDER, CLARENCE JOHN. Flying power; il. by the author. 164p $2 Macmillan

629.134 Airplane engines 43-15048

"Author of this authoritative book on aircraft engines and their operation is at the Bureau of Aeronautics, Washington, supervising engine courses in flight schools throughout the country. The subject matter which is presented adequately and clearly, in as nontechnical language as possible, will be of interest to several groups of readers. Purpose of book is to explain by text and drawings the airplane engine of today which is one of the marvels of engineering science. Author has succeeded in doing this in readable form which can be understood by the average high school student and layman." Library J

HYLANDER, C. J.—Continued

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:420 N '43 50w

Reviewed by B. W. Bell

+ Library J 69:34 Ja 1 '44 90w

HYLANDER, CLARENCE JOHN. Out of doors in winter; il. by the author. 146p $1.50 Macmillan

574 Natural history—Juvenile literature 43-2137

The fourth in a series of nature books for readers of ten or older. The present book describes walks in the winter woods, the evergreen and deciduous trees to be seen, the birds encountered, and the wild life which may be brought into the house for study.

"Recommended as a set of four." A. E. Brown

+ Library J 68:250 Mr 15 '43 70w

"All four of these books are appealing and useful, but perhaps this latest volume has an especial value since it encourages us to realize that the outdoor Winter world, often thought to be dead and desolate, is very much alive and full of beauty and interest. . . Mr. Hylander's style is simple and very readable. His own interest in the outdoor world is genuine and young readers will find themselves moved by a like enthusiasm." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 F 28 '43 280w

"There is information here for an enterprising child, but the best feature of the book is that in forming the habit of going to see for himself it is likely to make a child enterprising. It will soon be time to have 'Out of Doors in Spring' ready at hand; all four books will be constantly used." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 14 '43 200w

Wis Lib Bul 39:38 Mr '43

HYND, ALAN. Betrayal from the East; the inside story of Japanese spies in America. 287p $3 McBride

351.74 Spies. Japanese in the U.S. 43-16895

Popular account of how the FBI and the O.N.I. (Office of Naval Intelligence) tracked down some of the Japanese and German spies who had been working in America since 1932.

Reviewed by John Goette

Book Week p18 N 14 '43 700w

"This could have been a good book. Most of the material is there. More of it could have been there. In this treatment, it emerges as a hurried job, a loosely told yarn in the style of the fact-detective magazine, interlarded with big moments which fail to come off, marred by amazing errors." Burton Crane

— + N Y Times p30 N 28 '43 480w

"This vivid and exciting book has a flaw in common with Carlson's 'Under Cover.' When Carlson reports what he saw and heard personally, his story bears the stamp of truth. So does Hynd's, so long as he sticks to the checked and re-checked information from our own intelligence departments. But when at the end, on the basis of what the author has heard from others, Carlson depicts a larger Fascist plot still in being and Hynd looks with horror on the release of Japanese from internment, they paint the lily. If 'Betrayal from the East' proves anything, it is that the F.B.I. and Naval Intelligence know their business. And those two bodies control the releases—which is all that this reviewer needs to know." Will Irwin

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:19 N 27 '43 1000w

Reviewed by J. H. Fifield

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 9 '44 550w

HYND, ALAN. Passport to treason; the inside story of spies in America. 306p $3 McBride

940.548743 Spies. Secret service—Germany. Sabotage 43-51166

"The purpose of this book is to acquaint the American public with the complete, overall inside story of the machinations of German spies and saboteurs in this country from 1939 up to 1943." Foreword

"This is one of the most exciting books ever written about the relentless battle being fought against the enemy within our country. . . Alan Hynd has meticulously gathered every bit of available and hitherto unknown material to give us for the first time a comprehensive picture of one phase of the tremendous struggle that ended with the annihilation of three gigantic Nazi spy rings in America." H. L. Reich

+ Book Week p1 My 9 '43 500w

Booklist 39:385 Je 1 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:161 O '43 30w

New Repub 108:742 My 31 '43 120w

"Court records are dull and nobody can be blamed for trying to transform them into something warm and human. This Mr. Hynd has attempted to do. The general effect, however, is disappointing; for the author, who is an experienced and competent writer of true detective stories, too often makes serious situations seem farcical by presenting them in the form of a kind of cops-and-robbers game." Fowler Hill

— N Y Times p20 My 16 '43 450w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 2 '43 350w

"Mr. Hynd is at his best in portraying the what and when and how of events. His characters are feebly realized as personalities." W. A. Roberts

+ — Weekly Book Review p17 My 9 '43 800w

I

IAMS, JACK. Prophet by experience. 309p $2.50 Morrow

43-1150

A hilarious satire on American life before the war, advertising, publicity, journalism, etc. The hero, Hylobates Hoolock, is a hermit who has lived for fifteen years in a cave in the western Pennsylvania wilderness. He is discovered by the staff of a news weekly, Birdseye, brought back to civilization, where a lot of people supposed to profit by his reactions, get badly mixed up.

" 'Prophet by Experience' is wonderful fun. Iams has reeled off the record of Hylobates Hoolock's side-splitting career with a straight face, but with a devilish twinkle in his eye. He is one more natural-born funny man." Arna Bontemps

+ Book Week p5 Mr 21 '43 600w

Reviewed by Dorsey McCarthy

Book Week p7 Je 27 '43 70w

Booklist 39:293 Mr 15 '43

"It is Mr. Iams' sharpest, funniest novel, even better than 'The Countess to Boot.' " Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p25 Mr 7 '43 550w

"This isn't a subtle volume. It has the gentle impact of a block-buster, only lots funnier. It's so good for you it ought to take 14 points from your ration book. But it would be worth it. . . Read 'Prophet by Experience.' It's wonderful." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 28 '43 250w

"The plot develops systematically from confusion to chaos to sheer, wonderful madness. Mr. Iams has added to it trenchant wit, coruscating satire and a nice feeling for both the sublime and the bawdy elements of human nature. His characters, no matter how selfish and nasty their behavior, gradually become lovable, though the reader doesn't know why." Thomas Sugrue

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Mr 14 '43 850w

ICKES, HAROLD LE CLAIR. Autobiography of a curmudgeon. 350p $3 Reynal

B or 92 U.S.—Politics and government

43-51100

Autobiography of the Secretary of the interior, describing in his well-known style, his battles of more than half a century with newspapermen, politicians, Fascists, and just plain citizens. Index.

Reviewed by Robert Lasch

Book Week p1 Ap 18 '43 650w

Booklist 39:332 Ap 15 '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 24 '43 700w

"The chief value of Mr. Ickes's book resides in the picture it presents of city politics and politicians, both machine and reformist, over a considerable period of time. The city is Chicago, but the conditions he describes and the types of men who dominate or seek to control them are the same as those to be met with in any large American city. . . Beyond defending himself for his conduct of the PWA and his later action in the oil and transportation shortages, Secretary Ickes has comparatively little to say of his contributions to the present administration. Perhaps he felt that would be bad taste, even for a curmudgeon." J. K. Paulding

+ Commonweal 38:102 My 14 '43 750w

Library J 68:249 Mr 15 '43

Reviewed by Eliot Janeway

Nation 156:671 My 8 '43 1550w

Reviewed by Alan Barth

New Repub 108:676 My 17 '43 950w

Reviewed by Luther Huston

N Y Times p3 Ap 18 '43 1600w

"The book does not quite measure up to the title. For his own amusement, Mr. Ickes puts on a not too expert imitation of a man with a gastric ulcer. He delights in his admission that he is a self-made curmudgeon who has greatly enjoyed grousing his way through public life. His comic churlishness extends even to his dedication: 'If to anyone, of course to Jane'." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 19:79 Ap 17 '43 500w

"Sometimes he has the air of sticking out his tongue to us for medical inspection, and at others of sticking it out at us in defiance; but from page to page a suspicion grows that in reality he is folding it away in his cheek. A stock character in fiction is what Goldoni described as a beneficent bear—whose gleaming teeth and shaggy hide are a mere mask for a heart of gold. To Goldoni, certainly, the portrayal of a curmudgeon was altogether a labor of love. It is not that one doubts the present bear's occasional beneficence. . . Yet in this picture of bear-like beneficence something is lacking." John Corbin

Sat R of Lit 26:30 Ap 17 '43 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 18 '43 650w

"While the world may now understand why Harold L. Ickes was a curmudgeon in 1933, the mystery of his remaining proudly a curmudgeon in 1943 is still unexplained. Perhaps in the eventual sequel we will learn—as in the end of other mystery stories—that he never was a curmudgeon at all, but just a kindly, generous crusader who talked gruffly when his eyes were moist with unshed tears, pitying human frailty. Somehow the author seems to hint that such should be the ultimate judgment." D. R. Richberg

Survey G 32:266 Je '43 550w

Time 41:102 Ap 26 '43 1150w

"Mr. Ickes's book can be denounced with justice on various grounds. Its humor is sometimes heavy-footed and sometimes strained. Its defiant attitude looks very much like the operation of a defense mechanism. . . These blemishes exist and they will be pointed out with great assiduity by those who dislike Mr. Ickes—with reason. But they do not constitute the whole story. The book has its values, as well as its defects, and the one defect that is fatal from the reader's standpoint is conspicuously absent from the book. It is not dull." G. W. Johnson

+ — Weekly Book Review p1 Ap 18 '43 1600w

Wis Lib Bul 39:84 Je '43

"Secretary Ickes here reveals himself as the humblest public servant, if not indeed the most modest man, alive. Through these absorbing pages one sees revivified, out of season but never beyond honor, the self-flagellations of a contemporary Jonathan Edwards. This is the keynote of the tome; and if I seem to overplay the author's motif, I do so because without this emphasis the book is puerile; with it this and all things else grow great. Ickes is Edwards secularized, modernized—and perfected in humility. When Edwards makes himself a worm, you surmise a chrysalis and begin already to hear the angelic flutter of butterfly wings. Ickes, to the contrary, is metaphysically, not strategically, modest. The only flutter the curmudgeon yields is that of heartfelt self-renunciation." T. V. Smith

Yale R n s 32:827 summer '43 1050w

ICKES, HAROLD LE CLAIRE. Fightin' oil; chapter heading sketches by Clare B. Metzger. 174p $1.75 Knopf

338.2 Petroleum industry and trade. World war, 1939—Petroleum supply

43-9736

Inside story of the present petroleum problem in the United States, and its relation to global war, as described by the man in charge of the delivery of this vital necessity, to both the civilian and the fighter.

"Harold Ickes is again doing a job. And the next time you read half truths to the contrary, check your facts against this definitive little volume, 'Fightin' Oil.'" Sterling North

+ Book Week p3 Jl 18 '43 550w

Booklist 39:457 Jl 15 '43

"There is little of the curmudgeon in 'Fightin' Oil.' Mr. Ickes has put personality aside to give the reading public a straightforward, simple picture of the oil situation that can be easily read and digested in a couple of hours." M. H.

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 12 '43 500w

"The subject of Mr. Ickes's little book [is] 'Fightin' Oil,' and we do not know what kind of a mind can grasp it. Not ours. It is not for us. Mr. Ickes writes in simple sentences, alertly, using a popular language, using technical terms only after they have been clearly explained. There is no mystery anywhere. . . A child could read it. Thousands of adults will read it. Everyone who reads it will understand what it is all about. They will understand what it is all about in the sense that an audience in a moving picture theater looks at a travel picture. . . The audience will understand readily that the camera man has been taking a trip. . . But all that remains in the mind of the audience as they come out into the street is a series of images."

Commonweal 38:397 Ag 6 '43 750w

"For all libraries." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 68:474 Je 1 '43 80w

"Much of the book is written in Mr. Ickes' pungent and vigorous style and with much real humor, for which he is not so famous. One suspects that the forthrightness of Mr. Ickes has been no small factor in his winning the respect and even admiration of the petroleum fraternity with whom he has been working so closely, particularly since shortly before Pearl Harbor." B. T. Brooks

+ New Repub 109:344 S 6 '43 650w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:49 Jl '43

"Mr. Ickes has fashioned an extremely informative book, written in entertaining style, and in the doing has managed to drive home the arguments on behalf of wartime conservation of petroleum." C. E. Egan

+ N Y Times p2 Je 20 '43 900w

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson

Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 18 '43 1100w

ICKIS, MARGUERITE. Arts and crafts; a practical handbook. 309p $2.50 Barnes, A.S.

680 Arts and crafts. Handicraft 43-16623

Practical introduction to many types of handicrafts, by an instructor in education at the College of the City of New York. Contents: Starting a craft program; A word about design and colour; Papercraft; Printing from blocks; The silk screen printing process; A hand printing press; Bookbinding; An introduction to weaving; Leathercraft; Working in wood; Metal work for beginners; An introduction to pottery; Puppetry for everybody. Bibliography. Index.

"The book has a special value for teachers, but in the hands of any adventurous child from 8 up it will provide useful and inexhaustible recreation." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p7 D 19 '43 90w

Booklist 40:159 Ja 1 '44

"A well chosen bibliography adds appreciably to the value of the volume."

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 4 '43 140w

Wis Lib Bul 40:7 Ja '44

IDELL, ALBERT EDWARD. Centennial summer. 426p $2.75 Holt

43-9542

Jolly story of family life in Philadelphia during 1875 and '76. The action revolves about the Rogers family—father, who worked for the Philadelphia & Reading, and thought himself the dominant male; mother who was Italian and a beauty, and could wind father around her little finger; and their four children. When mother's sister from Paris came to the Centennial, bringing a handsome nephew, the two beautiful Rogers girls went into immediate action.

"When a book like 'Centennial Summer' comes along we have to be happy about it, for in its gay humor and its candid sentimentality we are going to find escape from our immediate trials and, having relaxed for a little while, we will be clearer-eyed and better equipped to go about our more serious missions. 'Centennial Summer' will give us a twinkle in the eye, a sly smile on our lips and a warm glow inside." John Storm

+ Book Week p1 Jl 25 '43 1450w

Booklist 40:13 S '43

"Centennial Summer gives a good picture of Philadelphia during the summer of 1876 . . . but the story is too unreal and the method too ponderous to sustain any very great interest." N. E. Monroe

+ — Cath World 158:109 O '43 90w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 21 '43 550w

"Pleasant, inconsequential period piece. . . Rather successful as an evocation of the vitality, customs and costumes of an earlier day."

+ — Commonweal 38:497 S 3 '43 40w

"The love story is interesting but never heart-wringing. The prime interest is the bubbling family atmosphere with the widely different temperaments of Jesse and Gussie keeping it continually stimulating. Incidents such as the illness of Mr. Quinby the horse; the securing of a job for Henry; the time Mr. Rogers got drunk; the Fourth of July family party—these are all great fun to read about." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 1 '43 650w

"Just when it looked as if escape literature, about which we used to hear so much, had gone out of fashion, here comes the genuine article. If anybody wants to escape, which seems doubtful, this story of the doings of a lively Philadelphia family the year of the great Centennial Exposition is his dish."

+ New Yorker 19:62 Jl 31 '43 110w

"This gay novel, in spite of its unique and brilliant backdrop of the Centennial celebration in Philadelphia, is full of echoes: the Rogers family is strikingly like the Clarence Day family . . . but the familiarity is cozy and agreeable. . . The charm of the novel lies in its characterization, the amusing re-creation of the Philadelphia of 1876, and its robust humor." R. A. Cordell

+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 Jl 17 '43 500w

"One could enumerate incident after incident, all with a bit of excitement in them: and one never tires of the family itself. The book is light, witty and joyous reading." M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 1 '43 460w

Reviewed by Rose Feld

Weekly Book Review p3 Ag 1 '43 750w

Wis Lib Bul 39:123 O '43

IN commemoration of William James, 1842-1942 [ed. by Brand Blanshard and Herbert W. Schneider]. 234p $2.75 Columbia univ. press

191.9 James, William 42-52145

"This book commemorates the centenary of the birth of William James. . . In its four parts, it brings together addresses made at the celebrations held by the Conference on Methods in Philosophy and the Sciences, November 23, 1941; the Eastern Division of the American Philosophical Association, December 29, 1941; The Western Division of the American Philosophical Association, April 24, 1942; and several papers read before other groups at different times." Foreword

Reviewed by E. S. Ames

Christian Century 60:134 F 3 '43 400w

Reviewed by G. W. Davis

Crozer Q 20:170 Ap '43 250w

Reviewed by H. A. Larrabee

J Philos 40:657 N 25 '43 1000w

Reviewed by W. B. Blakemore, Jr.

J Religion 23:217 Jl '43 300w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun

+ Nation 156:208 F 6 '43 800w

Reviewed by H. A. Larrabee

New Eng Q 16:324 Je '43 600w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun

New Repub 108:218 F 15 '43 2200w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 10 '43 60w

INCHFAWN, FAY (MRS ATKINSON WARD). Who goes to the wood; il. by Diana Thorne. 229p $2 Winston [6s Lutterworth]

42-22294

"If a child in the family has outgrown the Beatrix Potters and is ready to listen to a continued story, here is the book to read aloud to him—of course letting him look over to see the many pictures. The little creatures of wood and river—Duck and Mouse, chief characters, and their kitten Whatever-it-Was, the Rabbits and Weasels and Frogs and Foxes—might just as well be people. They drink tea and sweep their houses and earn money, just like anybody, chattering happily all the time." Books

"A charming book with a real English flavor. . . To follow Duck and Mouse and Whatever-It-Was, as they learn to know all the little people of the wood and meadow is a treat you will want to share with the family. We recommend this book for reading aloud." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Ap 26 '43 90w

"Who Goes to the Wood will doubtless be compared to The Wind in the Willows, but it has its own charm and lightheartedness." R. A. Hill

+ Library J 67:884 O 15 '42 50w

"Diana Thorne's drawings follow every turn of a story long enough to last through many a bedtime reading. Chances are good that the reader at its close may be asked to begin again at its beginning. If there still are mothers who tell homemade long-continued stories to very small daughters at bedtime, this will save them much strain on their ingenuity." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 4 '43 230w

INFANTRY JOURNAL, INCORPORATED. Reader; sel. and ed. by Joseph I. Greene. 679p $3 Doubleday

355 Military art and science 43-15004

Collection of articles on a variety of subjects, both military and non-military, and even some poetry. All have been selected from the magazine Infantry Journal. An appendix gives a list of editors of the Infantry Journal from 1904 to 1940.

Booklist 40:88 N 15 '43

"Among the most individually expressed articles in the reader is one from an instructor in the Infantry School at Fort Benning, a lieutenant colonel named Stilwell, who holds forth in homely phrase upon proper defense tactics. . . One might look anywhere in this reader and come up with direct, earthy prose. It may be by the murderous Bert (Yank) Levy with a few practical hints upon sabotage and throat slitting, or it may be by captains, majors and colonels sounding off against the manners of young lieutenants or against the jargon of military textbooks and communications." S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p7 O 10 '43 1250w

"Professional, of course, but civilians should find it pleasantly readable. Servicemen will eat it up."

+ New Yorker 19:87 O 2 '43 110w

"Colonel Greene's purpose in publishing this collection of writings is thoroughly accomplished. The citizen will know his army better and for the new soldier and even for the old one, it is particularly useful in revealing the trends of our recent military thought." Donald Armstrong

+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 N 13 '43 700w

INFANTRY JOURNAL, INCORPORATED. What to do aboard a transport. See American association of scientific workers. Science from shipboard

INGERSOLL, RALPH MCALLISTER. Battle is the pay-off. 217p $2 Harcourt

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Tunisia 43-51296

An attempt to describe in detail one battle—in this case the battle of El Guettar in Tunisia—as it appeared to an American soldier who took part in it. The author is a newspaper man, former editor of PM, but he has endeavored to present the point of view of a soldier trained for long months to meet the requirements of actual battle.

"His prose has the speedy, graphic quality of television. It sees the booby traps, the shell bursts, the dive bombing. It hears the sniping, the machine-gun fire and the scrappy, unaltered talk of men under fire. Strong medicine in places, but how else will you know?" Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 172:129 N '43 180w

"His book is at once a remarkable achievement in battle reporting and a testimonial to personal growth. It should be as widely read as it is honestly and passionately written." S. E. Hyman

+ Book Week p1 O 24 '43 700w

Booklist 40:76 N 1 '43

"As a factual report to the nation on what modern fighting really is, this is not likely to be excelled. It has all the vividness and concreteness of the one-man's-story type of war book, with the added values of breadth of view and intelligence of understanding of the whole process."

+ Christian Century 60:1233 O 27 '43 130w

"One thing that has been badly needed in this war is a primer that tells how an army works in the field, how it is set up into various compartments and why, and what a battle really looks like. This book is that primer. Written by the editor of New York's liberal newspaper, PM, now a captain in the Army Engineers, it is probably the most educational book to come out of the war, as well as one of the most fascinating." G. E. S., Jr.

+ Churchman 157:18 D 15 '43 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '43

"For a man who gave such intimate details about his differences with his draft board to the readers of PM Mr. Ingersoll has produced a remarkably objective and impersonal account of things. . . He has done a mighty good job in explaining in simple terms the organization of various army units, the importance and character of supply, the technique of finding sufficient drinking water, the ingredients of a C ration. When it comes to mortars, half-tracks, mine detectors and other implements he is even better, while the roles of staff and weapons in attack get their due place."

+ Commonweal 39:41 O 29 '43 650w

"An excellent, important book. . . Highly recommended." H. G. Kelley

+ Library J 68:767 O 1 '43 110w

"War reporting at its best. Thanks to [the author's] gift for detail, one gets right into the middle of the battle; and thanks to his ability to synthesize complicated military operations, one sees the whole picture. This capacity for portraying both the forest and the trees is rare; newspaper correspondents seldom achieve it in their chopped-up daily cables, and few authors of books possess the requisite combination of inside information, battle-front experience, and narrative talent." Marcus Duffield

+ Nation 157:532 N 6 '43 700w

"Any man who has been in battle will recognize the accuracy of the captain's report of the one he took part in and will admit, yes, that's pretty much what it's like and what you're likely to see of it. The captain is a talented and eloquent newspaperman. He knows how to tell a story so that it rides right along, and in this story there is, from the nature of it, hard riding." Ira Wolfert

+ — New Repub 109:596 O 25 '43 800w

"There is more accurate, concise, forcefully expressed information on the realities of war in 'The Battle is the Pay-off' than in any American book this war has so far seen. I do not hesitate at all to put it at the top of the war books as of late 1943, and to hope that it has the widest reading." J. I. Greene

+ N Y Times p1 O 24 '43 2100w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 19:93 O 23 '43 320w

"The whole book has practically nothing to do with Ralph Ingersoll the personality. From start to finish in these pages he is only a vehicle carrying the reader through the vast, complex, intensely human machinery of an army moving into battle. Ingersoll himself is anonymity, 'one-four-millionth or one-seven-millionth or one-eight-millionth part of the Army of the United States.' He is the best salesman of that Army, the best teacher of its working, that we have had in World War II. And in that anonymity Ralph Ingersoll has done his best work yet as a reporter and an author." P. R. Knauth

+ Sat R of Lit 26:5 O 23 '43 1100w

Reviewed by S. H. F. Johnston

Spec 171:558 D 10 '43 500w

Reviewed by G. K. Moriarty

Springf'd Republican p7e O 24 '43 600w

"Not only is this the story of a particular Tunisian engagement, told by a writer with a vivid pen as well as a most observant eye; it also contains many general reflections of modern warfare and many shrewd comments on the nature of the task yet before us."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p566 N 27 '43 750w

"The Ralph Ingersoll who founded and edited 'PM'—the crusading journalist and social trend finder inclined to get tangled up in his own big ideas—appears briefly in the introduction and concluding twenty pages of this book. Through all the rest, it is Lieutenant (now Captain) Ingersoll speaking, giving a remarkably detailed and vividly observed account of just what he saw and heard, did and felt in the course of one day of battle in Tunisia. It is a brilliant piece of straight, evocative reporting, and no one with any interest in our combat soldiers or in the mechanics of the new American Army in battle action can help reading it with avidity." Walter Millis

INGERSOLL, R. M.—Continued
+ Weekly Book Review p3 O 24 '43 1850w

INMAN, SAMUEL GUY. Latin America; its place in world life. rev ed 466p $3.75 Harcourt
918 Latin America 42-50297

"A bird's-eye view of Latin American civilization, which attempts to interpret the philosophy behind political, economic, and social movements. The publishers say the book is almost rewritten to bring it up to date. Excellent 20-page annotated bibliography." (Booklist) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest, 1937.

"The author has had the opportunity over a long period of years to perfect a wide acquaintance with Latin American lands and peoples. The result in this volume is a style that is almost uniformly chatty, at times anecdotal. Dr. Inman can illustrate the many matters he discusses with a wealth of personal experience and observation. This personal touch has the unquestioned and distinct advantage of adding vividness and color to the volume. . . The 'biographical notes' form an indispensable part of the volume. They are valuable not only because they include critical evaluations (even if those are sometimes open to question), but also because so many unusual and unorthodox items are included. The bibliography leans heavily on Spanish sources." R. H. Fitzgibbon
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:359 Ap '43 650w

"The book is crowded with truths that the average citizen, as well as scholars, should know about the southern republics, portrayed by a man who has had wide experience and intimate acquaintance with those nations and their people. . . He does not take isolated incidents to define the attitude and the character of those people, as do many popular writers, but his facts are well grounded in historical background." L. E. Fisher
+ Ann Am Acad 226:175 Mr '43 500w
Booklist 39:204 Ja 15 '43

"Dr. Inman's well known book with this title, published in 1937, has been so thoroughly rewritten and brought down to date that this is virtually a new book. The author is one of the outstanding experts in Latin American affairs and one of the most sympathetic interpreters of our neighbors to the south, of their culture and of their struggles for the attainment of liberty and economic well-being. . . He presents a well rounded account of the history of these republics, of their cultural and social characteristics and economic conditions, and of their present situation in relation to the United States and to the world as a whole."
+ Christian Century 60:140 F 3 '43 200w

"Mr. Inman has accomplished a difficult task meritoriously. He has given us a thorough and exhaustive picture of our Latin American neighbors, whom he knows well from first-hand experience, and he has done it in such a spirited manner that one easily becomes absorbed in his book." W. C. Kernan
+ Churchman 157:16 Ja 15 '43 650w

"Commercial issues, boundary disputes and Pan-American relations are intelligently discussed from an objective point of view, and he displays easy familiarity with Latin American literature, its poets and its thinkers. Delightfully free of the customary errors in misspelling of names and places, it is an example of how a book containing foreign words can be carefully edited. . . It would be long and tedious to cite his many prejudiced innuendos, and the reviewer quarrels more with the overall lack of comprehension than with individual statements. It should not be utterly impossible for a man of Dr. Inman's obvious intelligence to accept Latin America's Catholicity as part of its 'different' cultural background, for until then he will not have crossed the last barrier to a real understanding of his neighbor's spiritual undercurrents." L. V. Vila
+ — Commonweal 37:283 Ja 1 '43 490w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:589 Ap '43 10w

"The present reviewer had a variety of reactions to Dr. Inman's work. He admits that some of these reactions may have been as much a consequence of his own predilections as they were true reflections from the materials. At any rate he feels that the author made his most significant contributions on the topics usually classified as sociological and educational, topics upon which the general reader in this country encounters much difficulty in the way of materials. Certainly this does not mean that the author has not made substantial contributions also on many other topics. Indeed, it would be difficult to find a single volume on Latin America in any language that offers more information than this one by Dr. Inman. . . Finally, here is a volume packed with good material for the general reader and for the student. Dr. Inman's long experience in Latin America has borne much fruit." L. F. Hill
+ Pol Sci Q 58:452 S '43 550w

Reviewed by Wilhelmina Hill
School & Society 57:636 My 29 '43 900w

Reviewed by G. V. Price
Social Educ 7:328 N '43 650w

INNES, MICHAEL, pseud. See Stewart, J. I. M.

INSTITUTE OF PACIFIC RELATIONS. 8th conference, Mont Tremblant, Quebec, 1942. War and peace in the Pacific. 164p $1.75; pa $1.25 The institute [4s 6d Royal inst. of int. affairs]
940.53 World war, 1939—Pacific ocean
43-10659

"A preliminary report of the Eighth Conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations on war-time and post-war co-operation of the United Nations in the Pacific and the Far East." (Subtitle) "Contained in this preliminary report of the conference are the summaries of the round-table discussions, plus a number of important statements by leading delegates and an annotated bibliography of some sixty papers prepared as documentation for the two-week meeting." (Weekly Book Review)

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:166 O '43 40w

Reviewed by M. G. Harris
N Y Times p22 My 16 '43 240w

"The report is and ought to be valuable material for the statesmen whose duty it will be to plan, organize, administer, and maintain the future security of the Pacific region and of the whole world. A sympathetic understanding and appreciation of the hopes, fears, suspicions, and worries of the Pacific peoples as manifested in these pages can be most helpful to future constructive statesmanship in its effort to forestall and dispel those fears and suspicions and to create a new atmosphere of goodwill, mutual trust and cooperation, without which no scheme of global or regional security can ever have a chance of success." Hu Shih
+ Pacific Affairs 16:368 S '43 1250w

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith
Spec 171:90 Jl 23 '43 450w

"The report tends to be somewhat diffuse, and some relatively unimportant issues are given excessive space, while a number of important aspects of the problem are entirely ignored. . . Despite these omissions, however, this conference record constitutes an important contribution to a clearer understanding of the problems which the United Nations must face in the Pacific, not only in the future but today." K. L. Mitchell
+ — Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 4 '43 1300w

INSTITUTE ON WORLD ORGANIZATION, WASHINGTON, D.C. World organization; a balance sheet of the first great experiment. 426p $3.75; pa $3 Am. council on public affairs

341.1 League of nations. International co-operation 42-17298

"The twenty authors of the papers contained in this volume address themselves to the general problem of the degree of success or failure encountered by the League of Nations between 1919 and 1939. They also explore the reasons for such success or failure as they discern and add a number of suggestions for the future. The authors—eight Americans and twelve non-Americans, both men and women—had all been in intimate contact with the League in Geneva and elsewhere. About half of them had held administrative posts under its authority—chiefly in the Secretariat; the others had acted as delegates to different sorts of meetings or had been engaged in educational work and the activity of private international organizations intimately related to the League in various fields." J Pol Econ

"The present volume can be heartily recommended as one of the many fine works now appearing which provide material of an informative and challenging nature and which can provide the basis of more popular articles and discussions calculated to influence the great body of public opinion on the judgment of which, in the last resort, the free societies now fighting for survival will or will not win the peace." L. A. Mander

+ Ann Am Acad 224:200 N '42 430w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:362 Ja '43 20w

"If he might be allowed to criticize his colleagues adversely, the reviewer would complain, in conclusion, of two traits in their general treatment of League problems. These are lack of perspective and a seeming leniency in attitude which may derive partly from lack of perception, partly from lack of candor, and partly from a choice of tactics or of a certain dosage in tactics concerning which, it is true, there is great room for differences of opinion. . . These, however, are problems for the individual reader. . . He will be given ample material for thought on such questions and ample provocation in what the reviewer, false modesty and detachment aside, does not hesitate to call a vivid and challenging volume." P. B. Potter

+ — J Pol Econ 50:949 D '42 1050w

INTERAMERICAN statistical yearbook, 1940-1941; Paul C. Migone, director [with the assistance of] Marcelo Aberastury, Emilio Fuente [and] Jorge E. Iturraspe [pub. under the auspices of the Argentine comm. of the Int. studies conference]. 2v ea $6 Macmillan

310 Yearbooks (statistical, historical, etc.)

"Title and text in Spanish, English, Portuguese and French. . . The Committee has examined carefully the 1940 yearbook and will consider it chiefly in this review. The purpose of this book as stated by Dr. Migone is 'To serve the American community—as it is, as it might be, as it should be. To serve that community in its search for the harmonious growth in which twenty-one sister nations may be drawn closer together, and in which the levels of life may be lifted for all who dwell therein.' . . Gathered together in this volume are statistical tables of population; agricultural and mineral production; industrial data such as commodity prices and industrial production; export and import trade; labor data including wages, hours of labor, strikes, cost of living; transportation and communication; financial data including investments, currencies, and public finance; public education; army, navy, and air corps; public health; and international cooperation. These data are supplied for Canada, The United States, Mexico, Costa Rica, Cuba, Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Nicaragua, Panama, Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay, and Venezuela. In many instances data are included for other countries of the world." Subscription Bks Bul

"Economists, statisticians, newspaper men, students, and others accustomed to statistical forms used in United States publications will find the notation used in the book confusing, because of their unfamiliarity with continental European practice, particularly since no explanation of the use of this system is given. . . A table on a specific item does not always follow the same plan throughout. . . Although the year 1940 appears on the title page, there are few figures for years later than 1938. Many of the figures are adapted from yearbooks such as The Statesman's Yearbook and the Statistical Yearbook of the League of Nations. Consequently these figures are a year or two old. Since many of the figures are not copied verbatim but translated into a common denominator, such as kilometers, there is possibility for error. . . A table of abbreviations used is lacking as is also an index. . . Despite shortcomings mentioned above these yearbooks are a distinct contribution to sources of information on the Americas, and will be welcomed by government officials, traders, editors, bankers, economists, teachers, students and others. They are recommended for large libraries and for special libraries providing a business or statistical service."

+ — Subscription Bks Bul 14:21 Ap '43 1700w

INTERNATIONAL motion picture almanac, 1942-43; ed: Terry Ramsaye; associate eds: James P. Cunningham and George Schutz. 1258p il maps $3.25 c1942 Quigley publications, 1270 6th av, N.Y.

791.4 Moving pictures—Yearbooks

"This is the 14th edition of an annual volume first issued in 1929 under the title Motion Picture Almanac. It is a handbook of the motion picture industry, devoting 680 pages to a 'who's who' of actors, actresses, directors, producers, writers and theater operators. . . The usual biographical data, e.g., place and date of birth, parentage, education, etc., is somewhat sketchily given and the major emphasis is placed on the biographee's connection with the motion picture industry. The volume also contains directory and encyclopedic information as follows: a section on the motion picture in the war, a list of motion picture corporations, financial statements of these corporations, statistics of the industry, texts of the production and advertising codes, lists of manufacturers and distributors of theater equipment and supplies, etc. There is also an alphabetical list of feature releases 1937-42 giving name of production company, date of release, principal actors and length of film in minutes." Subscription Bks Bul

"Medium-sized and large public libraries will find this rather complete 'who's who,' handbook and directory of the motion picture industry of value. The amount of local interest in the motion picture industry will determine its usefulness to other libraries. The volume is recommended."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:44 O '43 500w

IRELAND, MRS NORMA (OLIN). Index to indexes. (Useful reference ser) 107p $1.75 Faxon

016.01 Indexes—Bibliography 42-15629

The purpose of this volume is "to assemble into one volume a selection of published indexes which will aid librarians and students who wish to quickly locate the index-sources of the various subject fields." (Pref) The arrangement is alphabetical, with author-title index.

"The book is neither comprehensive nor consistent, and it does not bring all the indexes mentioned down to date." Winifred Gregory

— Am Hist R 48:393 Ja '43 210w

"Mrs. Ireland by her broad and somewhat loose definition of 'index,' permits the inclusion of indexes to periodicals, documents, and books, bibliographies and check lists, and related publications. It is obvious that she had to limit herself to a selection. Foreign indexes are a priori excluded. The result is somewhat discouraging." Rudolf Hirsch

Library J 68:203 Mr 1 '43 250w

IRELAND, PHILIP WILLARD, ed. Near East; problems and prospects, by Count Carlo Sforza [and others]. 265p map $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press

956 East (Near East). World war, 1939— East (Near East). Eastern question (Near East) 43-637

Addresses delivered by several noted authorities, American and foreign, at the Harris Institute in June 1942. Contents: The Near East in world politics, by Count Carlo Sforza; Social change in the Near East, by H. A. R. Gibb; The future for Arab unity, by H. A. R. Gibb; Prospects of peace in Palestine, by S. W. Baron; British policy in the Near East, by C. K. Webster; The future of the Near East, by Quincy Wright.

"This book is a timely and valuable contribution in view of the fact that the Near East is once more playing its historical strategic role in a global war." A. I. Tannous

+ Am Hist R 48:760 Jl '43 550w

Reviewed by A. H. Lybyer
Am Pol Sci R 37:540 Je '43 750w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Ann Am Acad 228:116 Jl '43 550w

Booklist 39:250 F 15 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:587 Ap '43 20w

Reviewed by Rustem Vambery
Nation 156:567 Ap 17 '43 480w

IRISH, WILLIAM, pseud. See Woolrich, C.

IRWIN, WILLIAM HENRY, and JOHNSON, THOMAS MARVIN. What you should know about spies and saboteurs. 227p il $2.50 Norton

351.74 Spies. Sabotage. World war, 1939— Secret service 43-7475

Manual on espionage and counter-espionage, and the ways in which spies and saboteurs get information, and send it. Contains stories of some cases. A final chapter gives rules for civilian behavior. Index.

Booklist 39:420 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:161 O '43 20w

"Not definitive nor particularly well written, but high school and adult public will want it." D. R. Starie
Library J 68:361 My 1 '43 50w

"An intelligently conceived and honestly presented manual. . . In it the reader will find little that chills the marrow and even less that is glamorous. But he will discover how agents of foreign powers operate in America, what their function is in modern warfare and what steps he may best take to help government agencies stamp them out." Fowler Hill
+ N Y Times p30 Je 6 '43 500w

Springf'd Republican p10 Je 8 '43 440w

"The volume is what it sets out to be, a useful guide." W. A. Roberts
+ Weekly Book Review p20 Je 27 '43 450w

ISRAELS, JOSEF. He's in the Marine corps now. 191p il $2.50 McBride

359.96 U.S. Marine corps 43-51272

Describes the routine of becoming a member of the United States marine corps, with enough of the history of that branch of the service to provide a background, and chapters on the marines in the present war. Partial contents: The induction of marines; Advanced training; The flying marines; The weapons of the marines; The lady marines; Marine slanguage.

Booklist 40:61 O 15 '43

"Will be invaluable right now and source book of great value later. Men and boys will thoroughly enjoy it and many women will, too." G. E. Cartmell
+ Library J 68:773 O 1 '43 70w

"A chapter is devoted to marine 'slanguage,' the more printable portions of which make a fascinating dictionary for the citizen. There are numerous action photographs from the files of the marine corps scattered throughout the book, which, added to the story of our toughest fighters, make the book almost a must for John Citizen." K. M. Carter
+ Springf'd Republican p10 O 21 '43 160w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p40 N 14 '43 300w

ISWOLSKY, HELENE. Soul of Russia. 200p il $2.75 Sheed

274.7 Russia—Religion 43-16644

"[The author is] daughter of the Russian Ambassador to Paris during the First World War, experienced in the field of journalism, intimately associated with leading thinkers of Russia and of France, and a convert from Russian Orthodoxy to Roman Catholicism. . . Out of the richness of her experience and the depths of her passionate devotion, she has been able to place proper emphasis upon the most significant trends and episodes of Russian history, and thus to show how Russia became what she is at present, and why we may hope for great things from the Russia of the future." Cath World

"Miss Iswolsky is enthusiastically Russian; and the reader might, from some of her pages, hastily infer that she is just another imaginative idealist, thinking loosely, writing carelessly, claiming too much, excusing all. That inference, however, would be a blunder; for her view is broad, her method is sound and her deductions are reasonable, even persuasive. Her personal history has been a good preparation for the writing of this book." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 158:407 Ja '44 200w

"An attractive little volume of less than two hundred pages, obviously an eminently successful attempt at popularization requiring neither deep philosophic insight nor a wealth of factual knowledge on the reader's part. 'Soul of Russia' is in fact filled with intriguing facts for the general American reader."
+ Commonweal 39:181 D 3 '43 600w

IVES, MRS MABEL (LORENZ). He conquered the Andes; the story of San Martin, the liberator; il. by Forrest Orr. 241p maps $2 Little

B or 92 San Martin, José de—Juvenile literature 43-6919

Life story of José de San Martin, liberator of Brazil, Peru, and Chile. For ages fourteen and older.

"This book is one of the most interesting books that I have ever read. Though it is written in such simple terms that a child can understand it—and was written primarily for the youngsters—it is interesting enough so that anyone can enjoy it." Richard Williams
+ Book Week p8 Je 13 '43 200w

Booklist 39:432 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:244 Jl '43 70w

"A 'first book' that is well and colorfully written. Black-and-white illustrations by Forrest Orr. Recommended for boys and girls of twelve to sixteen." Emily Hutson
+ Library J 68:531 Je 15 '43 100w

"This is an able portrait of the man whose resolution, vision and devotion fanned high the blaze of liberty in the Americas. And a small but significant detail of Mrs. Ives' book is her neighborly use of the word American, without qualification, to denote our fellow-citizens of this hemisphere." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 22 '43 340w

"Well told."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 15 '43 20w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p22 My 23 '43 450w

IZARD, THOMAS CLARENCE. George Whetstone; mid-Elizabethan gentleman of letters. 297p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

B or 92 Whetstone, George 42-50647

Scholarly monograph on an Elizabethan man of letters whose only claim to remembrance has hitherto been that he wrote a play, Promos and Cassandra, from which Shakespeare borrowed the plot of Measure for Measure. Bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Izard's lively and often witty style lightens and invigorates his subject-matter. In other hands a monograph such as this might have been merely a piece of dry-as-dust antiquarianism; but this scholar has succeeded in giving a new vitality to the accomplishments and aspirations of a mid-Elizabethan gentleman of letters." S. C. Chew
+ Books p19 Ja 24 '43 600w

"Dr. Izard's research not only supplies all needed information about Whetstone and corrects some misinformation which has crept into even the most honored works of reference but also sheds light from a new angle on the spacious, but very confused, times of great Elizabeth."
+ Christian Century 60:330 Mr 17 '43 390w
Times [London] Lit Sup p322 Jl 3 '43 800w

J

JABOTINSKY, VLADIMIR. See Zhabotinskii, V. E.

JACKH, ERNST. War for man's soul. 303p $2.50 Farrar

943.086 Germany—Nazi movement. National characteristics, German. World war, 1939—Germany 43-14978

Dr Jäckh was the founder and for a number of years the head of the Hochschule für Politik in Berlin. He left Germany in 1933 to go into exile in Great Britain and he is now a British subject. In this book, analysing world politics and the growth of National Socialism, he presents Hitler as anti-God and calls upon all free men to resist and defeat him. Index.

Reviewed by O. G. Lawson
Library J 68:768 O 1 '43 110w

"Dr. Jackh pleads for the spiritual reëducation of all nations to follow this war. As the former president of the Hochschule für Politik in Berlin, and a respected European statesman, he speaks sincerely and with authority."
+ New Repub 109:757 N 29 '43 120w

Reviewed by Eleanor Kittredge
N Y Times p42 N 28 '43 800w

"Here is a fresh synthesis of our times, bold in thought, brilliant in comment, on men and trends, lighted and warmed by emotion, defiant in the faith that Hitlerism can never win the world because the world is religious." Leon Whipple
+ Survey G 32:451 N '43 1250w

"I think that this book may be termed an honest, heart-warming profession of faith, even as it is a commentary on the well-nigh mortal disease of our time." G. N. Shuster
+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 N 6 '43 600w

"There is little in this book which has not been expounded previously and sometimes more skillfully. Its difference, however, derives from the personal account and biographical narrative, woven into the theory and prophecy of globalism. This makes the book colorful, more poetic than scientific." Paul Hagen
Weekly Book Review p26 N 21 '43 950w

JACKSON, MRS CHARLOTTE E. (COBDEN). Roger and the fishes; pictures by Kurt Wiese. 76p $2 Dodd

43-11957

Nine-year-old Roger spends a vacation with his family at a summer camp on a lake in the California Sierras. Rogers had never gotten around to learn to swim and his older sister was quite superior about it. Then Roger had a long, delightful dream about cavorting with the fishes, and after that swimming was easy.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p11 Ag 29 '43 180w

Reviewed by Margaret Abildgaard
Library J 68:728 S 15 '43 70w

JACKSON, GEORGE PULLEN, ed. Down-East spirituals and others. 296p il $5.50 Augustin

784.4 Folk songs, American. Ballads, American. Hymns 43-10671

"In his third book Professor Jackson leaves the South and turns his attention to the Northeast, and presents the contents of the old singing-books that were used in New York and New England. After examining the evidence as to how these songs were spread through the country, the author concludes that it was primarily among the Baptists that the folk-hymn-singing tradition came to Western shores over two hundred years ago. . . The hymns, with tunes, in Professor Jackson's collection are divided into three classifications: sixty religious ballads, including carols and songs of farewell, religious experience, and exhortation, intended chiefly for individual singing; one hundred and fifty-two folk-hymns, songs of praise for assemblages; and eighty-eight revival spiritual songs." New Eng Q

"These songs are expressive, and deserve consideration as folk art." Q. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 10 '43 270w

"The whole compilation, with its annotations and explanations of sources and derivations, continues the reputation Professor Jackson has earned as one of our soundest folk-scholars. Moreover, the contents of the book are presented with a kindly, sympathetic humor which never stoops to ridicule, but which does allow a quiet chuckle on almost every page. The indexes and bibliography are splendidly arranged, and the illustrations are delightful." J. T. Howard
+ New Eng Q 16:344 Je '43 700w

JACKSON, GILES, pseud. See Leffingwell, A.

JACKSON, LUTHER PORTER. Free Negro labor and property holding in Virginia, 1830-1860 [pub. for the Am. hist. association]. 270p $3.75 Appleton-Century

325.26 Negroes—Virginia. Negroes—Economic conditions. Negroes—Employment. Freedmen 42-25804

History of the status and economic condition of the free Negro in Virginia from 1830 to 1860. "Dr. Jackson identifies important problems which were inherent in the fact of being born or manumitted as a free black during the period 1830 to 1860, analyzes these problems, and notes their implications in a society so overwhelmingly proslavery. He points out on the basis of authentic records that the free Negro, contrary to opinion of demagogues, was no economic liability, but actually a contributing factor, though not of any 'great' significance, to the economic and commercial life of Virginia. By employing his free labor in town and city, on the farm and as a tradesman, the free Negro accumulated property of considerable amount, the number of property owners having been increased 128 per cent in the thirty-year period." (Ann Am Acad) Index.

"On the whole, the work is a valuable volume. It presents data of great importance to all persons interested in the improvement of social conditions. It is at the same time striking evidence of the Negro's ability to endure in face of terrible odds against his race. In thus presenting this unknown record of the free Negro population in Virginia, Dr. Jackson has discounted the gloomy comments of a host of writers, and he has set a high standard for rewriting the history of these people." C. G. Woodson

JACKSON, L. P.—Continued
+ Am Hist R 48:811 Jl '43 900w

"The book is a distinct contribution to economic history. . . All students of social science, as well as the general reader, will profit by perusing this book. It deserves a wide circulation and careful examination." H. W. Greene
+ Ann Am Acad 226:181 Mr '43 380w

"Dr. Jackson's book will receive careful attention from scholars. The picture which it draws of the actual conditions of slaves in Virginia during the three decades just before the Civil War is far different from that generally held."
+ Christian Century 59:1495 D 2 '42 130w

JACKSON, MABEL V. European powers and South-east Africa; a study of international relations on the South-east coast of Africa, 1796-1856. (Royal empire soc. Imperial studies) 284p il $8.40 (21s) Longmans
967.8 Africa, East. World politics 42-24469

"From original papers preserved in the Foreign Office, the India Office, and the British Museum in London, and in the Arquivo Historico Colonial in Lisbon, the author has succeeded in bringing out of obscurity some of the historical facts that lie back of recent and present developments in an important part of our world. . . Miss Jackson has a modern historical approach. Her thesis is that geography and history are inseparable and should be studied together. . . In this study the East African shore is presented as the key to the domination of the other shores in the early years of European expansion before the days of the Suez Canal." Ann Am Acad

Reviewed by Paul Knaplund
Am Hist R 48:643 Ap '43 210w

"Her work is interesting, timely, and important." D. W. Bittinger
+ Ann Am Acad 226:169 Mr '43 600w

"A below average Ph.D. thesis which is dull, obscure and devoid of any capacity to add to our perception of why mankind is moving along its present paths." H. S.
— Canadian Forum 22:358 Mr '43 420w

JACOBI, JOLAN. Psychology of Jung; an introduction; tr. by K. W. Bash; with a foreword by C. G. Jung. 166p il $2.50 Yale univ. press [12s Routledge]
131.3464 Jung, Carl Gustav. Psychology
A43-3800

"Since the death of Freud, Dr. Jung has been widely regarded as the leading psychologist of these times. His work, which is scattered over more than a hundred books and pamphlets, has never been brought into proper focus, by either himself or any other psychologist. Working in close coöperation with Jung, Dr. Jacobi has produced a short but comprehensive book which serves this purpose. It is not 'Jung made easy'; it is a work of genuine synthesis, which Jung himself, in a foreword to the volume, welcomes as a general survey of his researches which will save the reader much time and trouble. Included is the most complete bibliography of Jung's writings yet published." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"Though relatively brief (146 pages of text) and as clear in style as the nature of the matter permits, this is not to be considered as Jung in words of one syllable or as psychology made easy. It is for the serious student, and to him it will be of great value as a concise and orderly account of a body of psychological research and theory which has had immense influence. A full bibliography of Jung is appended."
+ Christian Century 60:1507 D 22 '43 90w

"The book is hard reading, and competent rather than inspired. But it will be a long time before a better job is done on the subject. . . This much may be said of Carl Gustav Jung, that if, as some hope and I do not expect, his hypotheses are exploded or superseded, then his very errors will have taught his aftercomers. To use a hateful seven-dollar-and-a-half word, whatever he has written has heuristic importance." Leonard Bacon
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:9 D 25 '43 950w

"'To describe in all its fulness a man's lifework, the fruit of forty years' research, in a few pages is a practically impossible task.' That Dr. Jacobi has done an excellent job of condensing into a concise presentation the elements of Jung's psychological theories, is applauded by Professor Jung himself in a foreword to her little book. Praise must go also to K. W. Bash for his translation into English from the German."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 D '43 420w

Reviewed by Julian Hammersley
Spec 168:468 My 15 '42 700w

JACOBS, DONALD HARRY. Fundamentals of optical engineering. 487p il $5 McGraw 535 Optical instruments. Optics 43-17131

"[This work] offers a comprehensive introduction to the methods and principles of optical design. After outlining the fundamentals of optics, the author gives an analytical description of the functioning and design of representative military optical instruments. In the next section the basic principles of the mechanical design of optical instruments are stated. The book concludes with an introduction to optical design that will enable the student to design aplanatic objectives and eyepieces." (Publisher's note) Indexes.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p6 D 26 '43 600w
Booklist 40:178 Ja 15 '44
Library J 68:670 S 1 '43 40w

JACOBS, EMMA ATKINS. Trailer trio; il. by Pelagie Doane. 280p $2 Winston 42-23551

Adventures of the three MacDonalds on their way to Idaho in a homemade trailer. They were going to settle on a homestead farm until the older sister, Anne, recovered from an illness. Their meeting with a young college professor brings a touch of romance to the story. For older girls.

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 22 '43 90w

"While the story has several Hollywood touches . . . the picture of resourcefulness and perseverance in the face of little money and adversity is a good one. There are few modern stories of Far West, and this will fill need until a better comes along. Not a first purchase but merits consideration. For girls twelve to fifteen." E. A. Groves
Library J 67:1107 D 15 '42 70w

JACOBS, HELEN HULL. By your leave, sir. 260p $2 Dodd
43-11945

A story for girls telling what happened to Becky McLeod during the weeks after she joined the WAVES.

"Sincere, mature writing that should appeal to senior high school girls." E. A. Groves
+ Library J 68:730 S 15 '43 70w

"Miss Jacobs succeeds pretty well in answering, through her Wave characters, nearly every oppositional question raised about the reserve." Libby Lackman
+ N Y Times p18 S 26 '43 300w

Reviewed by Catherine Redmond
Sat R of Lit 26:36 Ag 21 '43 180w

Reviewed by E. R. Maliette
Springf'd Republican p7e O 10 '43 280w

"The story, accurate in detail, is most valuable for its expression of the spirit of the Waves. It will be one of the minor documents of a major event in the woman movement, the entrance of women into the armed forces at Armageddon."

+ Weekly Book Review p22 Ag 15 '43 410w

Wis Lib Bul 39:127 O '43

JACOBS, ROBERT H., and CADY, EDWIN LAIRD. Marine engine and fire room guide. 740p il $3.50 Cornell maritime

621.12 Marine engineering 43-3838

"A comprehensive and detailed manual on the work of a ship's black gang. The duties of the wiper, fireman, oiler, and watertender are outlined and followed by a discussion of small equipment such as valves, pipes, and fittings, leading into descriptions of the operation and care of engines and boilers. Useful hints, suggestions, and safety precautions are frequent." Booklist

Book Week p10 My 2 '43 20w

Booklist 39:314 Ap 1 '43

Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 10w

Reviewed by A. F. Johnson

N Y Times p31 O 24 '43 80w

"Treats the subject in a highly practical manner. It would be good for any one who wants to learn, without theoretical details, the general facts of the operation of marine machinery. Members of the 'black gang,' which includes oilers, firemen, wipers, etc., who may want to advance themselves to the grade of licensed engineer will find it of special benefit." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p25 My 23 '43 100w

JACOBSON, DAVID. Social background of the Old Testament. 327p $2 Hebrew union college

220.83 Sociology, Biblical 42-17890

"This volume is a series of essays relating to questions of Semitic social anthropology. It examines some of the central institutions of the primitive world of Semitic antiquity. The book is a thorough revision of a doctoral dissertation presented to Cambridge University. The discussions are in the main technical, though some of them, like 'The Individual and the Group,' should be intelligible and interesting even to the layman." Christian Century

Am Hist R 48:387 Ja '43 30w

"His work is carefully and painstakingly done, and the literature in each one of the fields has been carefully covered. This volume makes a valuable addition to the sociology of the Old Testament." S. C. Kincheloe

+ Am Soc R 8:236 Ap '43 480w

"The book as a whole is of importance to students of the Old Testament and anthropology. It is superbly, even elaborately, documented. An uncommonly complete and detailed bibliography is appended at the close. The most commendable feature of Jacobson's treatment of primitive institutions is its caution and restraint." James Muilenburg

+ Christian Century 59:1492 D 2 '42 260w

"One weakness all too often characteristic of comparative studies is felt by the reader of this book. Facts drawn from Arab life on the one hand and from the ancient cultures of western Asia on the other are combined with the Old Testament data in such a way that it is sometimes difficult to tell which of them are being presented. The author himself, doubtless, does not assume that what is true of one people must be true of others, but an unwary reader might easily be led to such an inference. In spite of these limitations, the book deserves a wide reading and careful study. It brings together in convenient form many significant facts with which students of the old Testament should be acquainted. The reviewer expects to consult it often and to bring it to the attention of his students." Millar Burrows

+ — Crozer Q 20:155 Ap '43 550w

JAEGER, WERNER WILHELM. Humanism and theology; under the auspices of the Aristotelian society of Marquette university. 87p $1.50 Marquette univ. press

144 Humanism. Theology 43-17104

"Professor Jaeger, formerly of Berlin University, later at the University of Chicago, now director of the Institute for Classical Studies at Harvard, is one of the truly great classical scholars of our time. His treatment of the humanistic elements in Aristotle and Thomas Aquinas opens out in many directions into an enlightening discussion of many phases of medieval, Renaissance and modern thought. He finds, beginning with Plato and Aristotle and running through the centuries of Christian literature, a tradition of 'theocentric humanism' which is all the more adequately humanistic (i.e., based on a more adequate conception of man) because it is theocentric." Christian Century

+ Christian Century 60:1075 S 22 '43 120w

Reviewed by Otto Bird

Commonweal 39:20 O 22 '43 360w

JAFFARY, STUART KING. Mentally ill and public provision for their care in Illinois. 214p pa $1.25 Univ. of Chicago press [pa 7s 6d Cambridge]

362.2 Insane—Care and treatment 42-20428

"One of the . . . monographs in the University of Chicago Social Service series. The approach is essentially social but with liberal informative data on the legal and institutional aspects. The focus is well expressed in the introduction, 'The present study lies in the field of public responsibility for the care of the mentally ill.' " Am J Pub Health

Reviewed by M. A. R. Hennessy

Am J Pub Health 33:91 Ja '43 310w

"For the time being, this book, like many others that do not rate a high war priority, will probably not be used as a planning guide. After the war, however, mental hygienists may well ponder this able critique of public provision for the mentally ill in Illinois." N. J. Demerath

Social Forces 21:363 Mr '43 160w

JAMES, GLENN, and JAMES, ROBERT CLARKE, eds. Mathematics dictionary. rev ed 273,46p il $3 Digest press, Van Nuys, Calif.

510.3 Mathematics—Dictionaries 43-2806

"Definitions of the basic words and phrases from arithmetic through calculus are given, with formulas for solving triangles, and computing interest, areas, volume, etc. The principal changes in the revision of the first edition are the inclusion of additional terms, and integral tables; and the substitution of five-place for four-place logarithm tables." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1942.

"The mathematics dictionary will be quite useful to those in the chemical field, whether using mathematics continually or infrequently. A copy should be in every laboratory." F. J. Van Antwerpen

+ Chem & Eng N 21:1006 Je 25 '43 300w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:46 Jl '43

Special Libraries 34:385 S '43

"In its subject field there is no work directly comparable to the Mathematics Dictionary. Because of its usefulness to anyone seriously interested in mathematics, the volume is recommended for personal, school or library purchase. For those already possessing the 1942 edition, purchase of the 1943 edition is suggested only if the dictionary is extensively used or a second copy is desired."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:46 O '43 600w

JAMES, SELWYN. South of the Congo. 347p il $3 Random house

968 South Africa. Africa, South Central. Madagascar 43-51050

A newspaper reporter's survey of economic and political conditions in the Union of South Africa and the other African lands lying south of the Congo including the island of Madagascar. The author includes some historical background and travel notes, but stresses the bad economic conditions of most of the natives, the evils of the racial problem, and the machinations of German Nazi sympathizers.

"It all seems very distant and comparatively unimportant. But imagine what would happen to Allied convoys if the Germans had control of the Cape. It's an exciting story about an area that is all too little known by Americans. James' book is well worth your attention." Ernest von Hartz

+ Book Week p3 Ap 18 '43 340w

Booklist 39:290 Mr 15 '43

"What ever he writes, the brilliant young foreign desk man of New York's PM makes vivid and interesting. Whatever he really knows of this great tract of Africa, from the Congo to the Cape, he drives home with vigor and a sure hand. But the assurance of his dogmatic pungent style betrays too often the symptoms of oversimplification and misleading finality, and while his main conclusions regarding Africa's many unsolved problems are no doubt true, the reader is constantly left wondering whether they are based on a full knowledge of the premises. However, with all his drawbacks, Mr. James performs a useful function." H. J. S.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 My 8 '43 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Jl '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:166 O '43 60w

"Recommended. . . Style makes for easy reading and, therefore, for popular consumption." Thelma Brackett

+ Library J 68:81 Ja 15 '43 110w

"The writing is lively and colorful; the facts are up-to-the-minute. Plenty of military analysis for global strategists, but the material on South Africa after the war is on the thin side."

+ New Repub 108:422 Mr 29 '43 90w

" 'South of the Congo' has the qualities of a Sax Rohmer or an E. Phillips Oppenheim thriller, with a background of solid political facts. It is a strange tale, a new light casting its beam on the last dark continent." Stuart Cloete

+ N Y Times p3 Mr 7 '43 1450w

"Sidelights on Smuts and other leaders help to enliven a good job of reporting."

+ New Yorker 19:59 F 20 '43 80w

"Not only does this book contain a wealth of interesting and useful information but it is also very readable. Now that we are plunged into a global war, we might as well realize the fact that global ignorance is no virtue. America is in Africa for the duration and the vast region south of the Congo is a vital part of Africa." Emil Lengyel

+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 Mr 13 '43 950w

" 'South of the Congo' is undoubtedly one of the most interesting books that has appeared in recent years on a vital portion of the world about which so little is known. It is warmly recommended to all who wish better to understand the issues, the men, and the events that are determining Southern Africa's decisive role in the war." E. C. Van Wyk

+ Weekly Book Review p6 F 21 '43 1400w

Reviewed by C. H. Driver

Yale R n s 33:157 autumn '43 800w

JANEWAY, ELIZABETH. Walsh girls. 314p $2.50 Doubleday

43-15762

Psychological study of two New England sisters, daughters of a pompous minister. Helen had married a German professor and when he died at Dachau, had returned to her home and married the "boy next door." Lydia, the spinster sister, after the bank took over the family home, went to live with Helen and her husband. The ensuing months were a time of bitterness and readjustment, until Lydia solved some of her difficulties by moving to a home of her own.

"One can only regret that such expert craftsmanship be put to so morbid a use—for the morbidity of the sisters casts a fog of gloom over the book that is only deepened by contrast with George Peterson's vitality and normality. You come away from 'The Walsh Girls' with a despairing feeling, 'If life is like that—' and—orchids to Miss Janeway—you know, worse luck, that it is!" Edith Roberts

+ Book Week p21 N 14 '43 650w

Booklist 40:94 N 15 '43

"Highly readable, 'The Walsh Girls' is more observant than profound."

+ — Commonweal 39:100 N 12 '43 150w

"Will interest women chiefly, but not for the very conservative reader." Emily Garnett

Library J 68:846 O 15 '43 70w

"Mrs. Janeway starts with a perfectly good fictional idea. . . But you follow the history of the Walsh girls to its weak and contrived resolution with the increasing certainty that everything Mrs. Janeway has finally set down as her finished novel should have been simply spade work, the things she thought in her own head before she ever put pen to paper." Diana Trilling

— + Nation 157:534 N 6 '43 750w

Reviewed by Harvey Breit

New Repub 109:723 N 22 '43 420w

"This is Elizabeth Janeway's first novel. . . It is this reviewer's considered opinion that she has entered the field of the novel with talent at her fingertips. 'The Walsh Girls' deals with problems that are essentially feminine. Perhaps its tremulous stream-of-consciousness method, its awareness of things sensed but not seen in the amorphous half-world of the imagination, will frighten masculine readers away. Man, being essentially a romantic animal, may not enjoy seeing women under that kind of microscope. . . But no man who wishes to make even a fumble at understanding the other sex can afford to miss this novel." William Du Bois

+ N Y Times p1 O 17 '43 1500w

"As lucid and subtle a psychological novel as has turned up in a good while."

+ New Yorker 19:86 O 16 '43 160w

"In this story Mrs. Janeway proves that she has not only an unusual talent for distinguished, clean-cut writing but also an unusually mature mind. . . The importance of 'The Walsh Girls' lies mainly, I think, in the fact that it introduces to us a new and brilliant young writer. Certainly it affirms that much may be expected from her succeeding work." M. S. Ulrich

+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 N 6 '43 600w

"Reading today is, to few of us, an idle pastime. It is giving a piece of time, a little of our lives, in exchange for something we can only find in words on a printed page. Most of us consciously attempt to spend these rare interludes in exchange for courage or laughter or dream which makes it possible to meet the world more steadfastly. To this reviewer 'The Walsh Girls' made no such return. Lydia and Helen made her a little ashamed of women. There was George, of course. But with all his patient labor of love George could not lift this book above a dark, unhappy level. One reviewer has said that men who wish to understand women should read 'The Walsh Girls.' Gentlemen, gentlemen—there are other and truer textbooks." E. M. B.

Springf'd Republican p7e O 31 '43 600w

Time 42:98 N 29 '43 650w

"In spite of occasional overwriting, Miss Janeway has a real gift for getting down some very acute observations on small-town life. And her very insistence on our sitting through a succession of evenings of Hackettson small talk; through each rehearsed proposal of the town bore to the incurably prudish Lydia; and each tiff between Helen and George, does drive home her point and make the book ring all too true. Here is Middletown in fiction; and that is no small achievement." G. G. Stevens

+ — Weekly Book Review p8 O 17 '43 400w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 33:xviii winter '44 500w

JANOWSKY, OSCAR ISAIAH, ed. The American Jew; a composite portrait. 322p $2.50 Harper

296 Jews in the U.S. 42-23786

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Reviewed by E. V. Stonequist
Am Soc R 8:365 Je '43 650w

"American Jew is as fresh and stimulating as a breeze from the ozoned upper air. There is nothing defensive, servile, or apologetic about it. There is no divided allegiance. To its editor, the Jewish fathers are as much the soul of America as the Pilgrim fathers. Jewish culture is integrally woven into the American pattern. Without it, America would not be America. Judaism's religious phases only make it identifiable." C. W. Coulter
+ Ann Am Acad 227:192 My '43 470w

Bookmark 4:4 Mr '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:583 Ap '43 20w

"The volume is a valuable source book for the American teacher. The high level of presentation makes it doubtful whether students of senior high school level may profit from it as much as the mature and educated reader will." William Hubben
+ Social Studies 34:92 F '43 500w

"The present volume is doubly welcome. It is valuable not only because it is the product of the joint labors of a corps of splendidly equipped Jewish leaders but also because it concerns itself with the totality of Jewish life, the normal as well as the abnormal, the living stream as well as the poisonous vapors. . . This finely integrated volume deserves a very wide distribution." A. L. Sachar
+ Weekly Book Review p25 Ap 11 '43 450w

JANSEN, JON B., pseud, and WEYL, STEFAN, pseud. Silent war; the underground movement in Germany; with a foreword by Reinhold Niebuhr [tr. by Anna Caples]. 357p $2.75 Lippincott

943.086 Germany—Nazi movement. World war, 1939—Germany 43-1615

"This book is an attempt to give the American public a picture of what the German underground movement is and what it is not, what it has accomplished and what it has not accomplished, what can be expected of it and what cannot be expected of it." Author's foreword

Reviewed by H. H. Gerth
Am Soc R 8:481 Ag '43 700w

Booklist 39:273 Mr 1 '43

Reviewed by Otto Zausmer
Boston Globe p19 Ja 27 '43 550w

Reviewed by J. F. Thorning
Cath World 158:107 O '43 400w

Reviewed by S. B. Barnes
Christian Century 60:547 My 5 '43 900w

"The book is the first complete and authentic report on the German underground movement. It deserves attention not only for its tale of heroic deeds, but even more for its competent analysis of Germany's internal situation. The authors make two things clear: that real underground work is a far cry from the 'through-terror-to-happy-end' Hollywood version; and that a strong anti-Nazi feeling has sprung up in almost every stratum and group of the German people." E. S. P.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 6 '43 430w

Reviewed by Max Fischer
Commonweal 38:398 Ag 6 '43 850w

Reviewed by J. S. Gurley
Current Hist 4:81 Mr '43 600w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:12 Jl '43 30w

"Although somewhat long drawn-out, it is recommended for larger public libraries as a sound, sober, and undramatized account of breathtaking activity." H. H. A. Bernt
Library J 68:33 Ja 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Karl Billinger
Nation 156:279 F 20 '43 900w

"Compiled mostly from the authors' experiences in the underground, which ended years ago, and from letters since received, the book is exciting if not always convincing."
New Repub 108:454 Ap 5 '43 120w

"Jansen and Weyl have written a book of simple heroes. They are not Germany's heroes alone—they are democracy's, too." P. R. Knauth
+ N Y Times p4 Ja 31 '43 1100w

"A rather miscellaneous and anecdotal report on the underground movement in Germany, which apparently consists of a tiny organized minority and a good deal of unorganized discontent. You've seen much of the material elsewhere."
New Yorker 18:63 Ja 30 '43 60w

" 'The Silent War' is a book which should be read widely. It is the story of heroes about heroes. It gives proof that liberty and freedom are not mere slogans but ideas for which thousands of men all over the world are laying down their lives." H. B. Kranz
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Mr 6 '43 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p539 N 6 '43 240w

" 'Jansen' and 'Weyl' are pseudonyms, and certain other names and further details, naturally, have had to be disguised in telling the story of 'The Silent War.' None of these alterations and omissions impairs either the readability or the fundamental reliability of this book, however. Nor do they detract from the very great importance of the story the authors tell." W. R. Deuel
+ Weekly Book Review p7 Mr 21 '43 1400w

JAQUES, HARRY EDWIN. Plants we eat and wear. 171p il $2.50; spir pa $1.50 The author, 709 N. Main, Mt Pleasant, Iowa

581.6 Botany, Economic 43-7172

"The first section, 'Now, Plants Are Like This!' gives some facts pertaining to plant structures and plant classification. . . How plants feed and grow, make proteins, store food, and how plants are used for the manufacture of wearing apparel are treated. . .The second part, 'How to Use the Keys,' provides well-planned identification keys which make the naming of plants comparatively simple and accurate. . . In the third section, 'Pictured Keys for Identifying the Plants We Eat and Wear,' seventy plant families supplying human food and twenty-seven plants important in providing clothing needs are treated. Tropical-zone as well as temperate-zone plants are included, and the part or parts of each plant utilized by man are described fully. The fourth part of the book gives a list of 'Plants We Eat and Wear Arranged in Their Botanical Order.' " El School J

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

"The book will be read with interest by biology students and all those who find joy in knowing fascinating facts about commonplace, everyday things, such as potatoes, beans, cucumbers, black-eyed peas and apples." O. D. Frank
+ El School J 43:559 My '43 550w

JAVSICAS, GABRIEL. Shortage of victory; cause and cure. 372p $3 Appleton-Century

940.5311 World war, 1939—Causes. Germany—History. Europe—Politics 43-1902

"Treatise against totalitarianism. How Germany, losing first World War, sabotaged the peace. The Weimar Republic, fruit of no genuine revolution, amounted to no more than an appeal for mercy and was used to cloak recrudescence of old designs for world su-

JAVSICAS, GABRIEL—Continued
premacy. Appeasement failing, the democracies unprepared, Britain alone, by superhuman effort and luck extricated herself from the blitz as a nucleus of resistance. Essence of totalitarian state is transformation of whole country into gigantic armament trust. Safety for postwar world will depend upon stopping totalitarianism cold, when it starts tooling up for production, not when it has started consuming victims." Library J

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:3 Jl '43 40w

"Stimulating. Recommended." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 68:33 Ja 1 '43 110w

"This is a serious book by an original thinker. It will stimulate any reader interested in new ideas. Its thesis is one that cannot fail to quicken the mind of any thoughtful student of contemporary world politics." Frank Kingdon
+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 F 27 '43 750w

"Mr. Javsicas is a Lithuanian who has lived most of his life, until recently, in Germany, England, and France. He writes with clarity and conviction concerning the European scene that he knows so well."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 F '43 360w

"Mr. Javsicas's volume is a welcome addition to the growing literature on the politics and strategy of peace. In a large measure Mr. Javsicas's discussion is an elaboration of the known and the now obvious. This is no reflection on its merits. For it is precisely the failure to see the obvious that led to the present world tragedy." Nathan Reich
+ Weekly Book Review p26 Mr 7 '43 800w

JEANS, SIR JAMES HOPWOOD. Physics and philosophy. 222p $2.75 Macmillan [8s 6d Cambridge]

530.1 Physics—Philosophy. Philosophy
43-4063

"Sir James Jeans discusses with his usual brilliance the philosophical implications of modern physical theory, particularly the quantum theory that has resulted from exploring the realm of the very small. His main conclusion is that most of the general philosophical questions which the nineteenth-century physicist thought he had answered are still open. Causality, determinacy, indeterminacy, probability are all measures of human knowledge or ignorance." (Manchester Guardian) Index.

"This is a remarkably bad book. The author makes a clean miss of the target he set up for himself, hits nothing much else, and retires with a straight face. He has a formidable record as a popularizer ('The Mysterious Universe,' a pretty fair job, sold 375,000) and maybe people will buy this book, too. It won't do them any permanent injury, and that's the best I can say for it." Fred Brandeis
— Book Week p6 My 9 '43 550w
Booklist 39:328 Ap 15 '43

Reviewed by V. C. Aldrich
Christian Century 60:796 Jl 7 '43 700w
Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

Reviewed by L. W. Grensted
Hibbert J 41:282 Ap '43 2300w

Reviewed by V. C. Aldrich
J Philos 40:414 Jl 22 '43 1800w

"The most serious defect of this book is carelessness in matters of detail. An exponent of exact knowledge ought to give references for quotations, to quote correctly, and to avoid misrepresenting the ideas of earlier thinkers." A. D. Ritchie
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 N 6 '42 150w

"The present book can be taken only as a model of what popular science should not be. Its accounts of technical matters, although intended for the layman, are so perversely obscure that several professional physicists have found parts of the exposition unintelligible; and its statements of views which have been held in the history of philosophic thought distort those views almost beyond recognition. Neither colorful pictorial representations of the conclusions of physics nor irresponsible philosophical speculations concerning them are a substitute for a sober description of the way modern theories of physics function and of what they achieve. The world seems full enough of bewilderment and genuine puzzles without the confusions introduced by inadequate popularizations of science." Ernest Nagel
— Nation 156:640 My 1 '43 950w

Reviewed by P. W. Bridgman
New Repub 108:572 Ap 26 '43 1150w

"This is a disappointing book. Readers of Sir James Jeans's popularisations of scientific theories have come to expect from him clarity in exposition and illuminating analogies. This book falls far short of his other works in this respect." L. S. Stebbing
— + New Statesman & Nation 25:13 Ja 2 '43 900w

"There is no more eloquent, interesting or persuasive expositor of what may be called the science of philosophy than Sir James Jeans, and this latest book of his will for that reason be welcomed by those who want questions about the nature of things answered. The modern school of logical empiricists (William James's pragmatists) will have nothing but scorn for an argument which holds that things may not be what they seem to the senses; but a public which wants to read some meaning into nature will extract much pleasure from the pages of 'Physics and Philosophy.' " Waldemar Kaempffert
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 4 '43 850w
New Yorker 19:71 Mr 20 '43 50w

"Probably no outstanding intellectual figure in the world today is guilty of such woolly thinking as is Sir James Jeans. Merely to list his errors would require more space than can be devoted to criticism here. . . In view of these errors one hesitates to recommend the book to the lay reader who is interested in both physics and philosophy. Even the reader interested in physics will find the discussion far too complex and too analogy-ridden to be of much help unless he is already conversant with the contributions of Einstein, Planck, Rutherford, Bohr, Schrödinger, and Dirac." Robert Bierstedt
Sat R of Lit 26:41 D 11 '43 900w

"Sir James Jeans' latest book is most welcome, exploring as it does the borderland territory in which by discussion and contemplation men try to interpret the pattern of events discovered through observation and experiment. Not only physicists and philosophers but many others will find its lucid explanations of physical theories most helpful and its reflection on philosophical inferences most stimulating."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 Mr '43 480w

Reviewed by Herbert Dingle
Spec 169:532 D 4 '42 900w

Reviewed by B. C. Gruenberg
Survey G 32:300 Jl '43 130w
Times [London] Lit Sup p546 N 7 '42 1050w

"The new volume is about as simple as the subject will permit it to be without dangerous distortion. The exposition is happily grounded on historical surveys of the progress of both philosophy and physics. The lighter touch appears only now and then—as it should—and sometimes is conveyed by a mere turn of a phrase or a single apt word. Smooth reading is made possible by smooth thinking." W. M. Malisoff
+ Weekly Book Review p20 Mr 28 '43 1200w

" 'Physics and Philosophy' has all the admirable qualities which made Jeans's earlier books outstanding: it is simple and lucid in conception as well as diction; it bears on issues of widespread interest; it is unprepossessing in its aims and disarmingly modest in most of its assertions. The philosophical flavor is mildly positivistic; the doctrine of empiricsm animates most of the discussion. Only towards the end of the book, where attention is drawn to a distinction between events in an imperceptible substratum and events in the world of phenomena, a distinction reported to be due to Dirac, does empiricism give way to thin conjecture." Henry Margenau
+ — Yale R n s 33:163 autumn 43 1100w

JEFFERSON, THOMAS. Complete Jefferson; assembled and arr. by Saul K. Padover; with il. and analytic index. 1322p $5 Duell

308 43-51352

This volume contains "all of Jefferson's major writings, except his letters, arranged by subject matter in such a way that it may be read for pleasure or consulted for reference. . . Every important paper is included, and in each instance the full text is given. Likewise, Jefferson's two books—Notes on Virginia and Manual of Parliamentary Practice, both published in his lifetime—are reproduced in full. . . Minor pieces, such as routine messages or unimportant papers, have been omitted. Nor will the reader find here narrowly technical papers or collections made by Jefferson. . . The volume contains about eighty letters. These are included either because they supply the necessary background for some text or because they are the only source of certain basic ideas." (Introd) Index.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 D 12 '43 360w

Booklist 40:158 Ja 1 '44

"Few political leaders have been more meticulous than Jefferson in the care and arrangement of their papers for posterity; few have been more sensitive to biased or unjust criticism of their writings; and fewer still have had their personal and official archives so widely dispersed, so greatly abused and so carelessly edited. It is therefore to be regretted that Mr. Padover, having labored so diligently and with such high devotion to produce for wide public use those Jeffersonian dicta that have timeless meaning, has only added to the confusion. What might have been the heart of Jefferson's thought and belief is, through careless and uncritical editing, neither Jefferson in his fullness nor, indeed, is it always Jefferson." J. P. Boyd
N Y Times p5 Ja 2 '44 1150w

" 'The Complete Jefferson' is one of the most valuable books of 1943. Containing the utterances of his 60 fruitful adult years, it deserves wide and repeated reading." Marshall Bragdon
+ Springf'd Republican p6 D 18 '43 650w

JEFFERSON, THOMAS. Jefferson himself; the personal narrative of a many-sided American; ed. by Bernard Mayo. 384p il $4 Houghton

B or 92 42-50339

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Reviewed by E. D. Thomas
Am Hist R 48:806 Jl '43 410w

Bookmark 5:16 Ja '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 13 '43 240w

"This is a splendid tour de force. Mr. Mayo has built up an autobiography for Jefferson out of Jefferson's writings; the result is most interesting, and valuable for making available things otherwise hard to find."
+ Commonweal 37:500 Mr 5 '43 40w

"Mr. Mayo has given us a beautiful Jefferson book—beautiful in makeup, in conception, in execution. It takes the form which no scholar would freely choose or execute without misgivings. Scholars, like other men, must, however, do the best they can with what they have. Mr. Mayo takes what Jefferson gave and renders it into a form as consecutive as may be." T. V. S.
+ Ethics 53:232 Ap '43 440w

Reviewed by Dumas Malone
Sat R of Lit 26:4 Ap 17 '43 900w

"The versatility of Jefferson is an old story, and comes out vigorously in Dr. Mayo's pages; his interest, intense and often expert, in letters, botany, architecture, music, philosophy, zoölogy, law, etymology, archeology, landscape design, art, and education. But this book shows more clearly than any other that the versatile Mr. Jefferson also took a keen and exuberant interest in—himself." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 Ap 17 '43 850w

Wis Lib Bul 39:27 F '43

JELLINEK, ELVIN MORTON, ed. Alcohol addiction and chronic alcoholism; ed. on behalf of the Scientific com. of the Research council on problems of alcohol. (Effects of alcohol on the individual, v1) 336p $4 Yale univ. press

612.01446 Alcohol—Physiological effect. Alcoholism A42-5621

"This is Volume I of Effects of Alcohol on the Individual. It presents an analysis of the literature on the etiology and treatment of alcohol addiction, and the mental and bodily diseases of chronic alcoholism. Much of the material is synthesized in tabular form, and there is an exhaustive bibliography. The purpose of the volume is to clarify the problems reviewed, as a basis for future research, and to serve as a reference work." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"Very few readers will feel that the spadework of the authors has left any treasure uncovered, and if any digging remains to be done, it will have been enormously reduced and facilitated by the work already accomplished in this volume." J. A. Kindwall, M.D.
+ Ann Am Acad 227:199 My '43 450w

Reviewed by Haven Emerson, M.D.
Survey 79:159 My '43 600w

JENNINGS, HELEN HALL. Leadership and isolation; a study of personality in interpersonal relations. 240p il $3 Longmans

301.155 Personality. Social psychology 43-14733

"Systematic investigation of 'choice' process, toward sociometric assignment of individuals to 'right' groups. Meticulous report of detailed surveys of several hundred in community for: qualities of choice, leadership, interdependence, and personality dynamics. Foundations of capacity to choose are the spontaneous gift of reaching out toward others and the capacity to make oneself worthy of choice." (Library J) Index.

Christian Century 60:1169 O 13 '43 120w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay
Library J 68:667 S 1 '43 100w

JENNINGS, JOHN EDWARD. Shadow and the glory. 383p $2.75 Reynal

43-18432

Historical novel chronicling the years 1774 thru 1777 in the life of a Portsmouth, New Hampshire boy, who ran away to join John Stark's ragged troops, and stayed to play a man's part.

Booklist 40:183 Ja 15 '44

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p10 D 19 '43 480w

"If you want a historical novel with plenty of romance and local color, this one will do as well as any, and if you are interested in the reconstruction of some important moments in the fortunes of the Revolutionary Army, it will do rather better than most."
+ New Yorker 19:106 N 27 '43 110w

" 'The Shadow and the Glory' is not a bad or a dull novel; it is simply a run-of-the-mill product." P. V. Stern
Sat R of Lit 26:55 D 4 '43 300w

"Those are the things that Mr. Jennings is skilled in telling. Living through the Revolution with Davy is as vivid as living through Guadalcanal at the movies. Because Davy is a sensitive 16-year-old—not squeamish or introspective but just normally reluctant to suffer—the Revolution comes to us in this novel with freshness and vigor." Edrie Van Dore
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 550w

"The book is splashed with the color of the exciting period it describes. . . Against this bright background some of the characters occasionally seem pale. Davy is a bit precocious in both love and war, and of the others who people the book only old Gaffer Stiles, profane and rambunctious, is likely to remain in one's memory for a while. What does impress the reader is the vivid portrayal of events through which America was coming to nationhood. Despite a plot that is overly contrived, this is an exciting book to read." Herbert Kupferberg

JENNINGS, J. E.—Continued
+ Weekly Book Review p26 D 5 '43 500w

JENNISON, KEITH WARREN, ed. Dedication; text and pictures of the United nations. 94p $2.50 Holt
940.5497 World war, 1939—Pictorial works. Photographic books 43-15335

A series of photographs chosen to illustrate brief sentences or phrases selected from speeches by leaders of the United nations. The pictures begin with one of an American food rationing board and end with one of a New England village church but in between are pictures of soldiers, and ships, military cemeteries and devastated homes.

"Take this book and sit down where you will be quiet and alone. Never mind your mood—start reading, look at the pictures, let the book have its way with you. It won't take 10 minutes to go through it, but in less time than that the thing will have happened. Before you have read the last quickening word, courage will have been rekindled in you, and very great pride." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p1 N 14 '43 420w
Booklist 40:195 F 1 '44

"There is fine feeling in this assemblage of photographs, which bear appropriate captions drawn from the utterances of our leaders."
+ New Yorker 19:96 O 23 '43 50w

"The combined effect has so much of the unity, grandeur, and humility of the Gettysburg Address that the book's concluding passage seems logical and inevitable: 'It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us.' Here is another call to high resolution in a great war." F. L. Kellogg
+ Survey G 32:457 N '43 80w

"Mr. Jennison again has demonstrated his mastery of what might be called the 'photo-poem' technique. Skillfully he has blended the arts to express his own faith and to urge men to think globally and a long way ahead. Behind his buoyant and uncynical attitude there is a muted 'or else,' the slow anger of a mild man." R. F. Crandell
+ Weekly Book Review p6 O 17 '43 500w

JENNISON, KEITH WARREN. Maine idea; stories and pictures arranged by [the author]. 89p $2.50 Harcourt
917.41 Maine—Views 43-6916

Eighty-seven photographs, with samples of Maine wit presented in the form of questions and answers, or in statement and rejoinder, indicating together "the Maine idea."

Reviewed by F. T. Frederick
Book Week p4 Ag 1 '43 70w

"The pictures are good enough for anybody's photograph show. The literary editor referred Mr. Jennison's earlier and similar book, Vermont Is Where You Find It, to a rock-ribbed old Vermonter who commented briefly, 'That's Vermont.' The Maine book will doubtless be similarly endorsed at home, and admired abroad."
+ Christian Century 60:610 My 19 '43 70w
Commonweal 38:229 Je 18 '43 280w
Reviewed by Milton Ellis
New Eng Q 16:528 S '43 280w
N Y Times p5 Jl 4 '43 210w
New Yorker 19:84 My 8 '43 50w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 270w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 My 9 '43 600w

JERVIS, MRS VERA MURDOCK STUART (JANE ENGLAND, pseud). No brighter dawn [Eng title: Farm on the veldt]. 286p $2 Arcadia [7s 6d; 2s 6d Bles]
43-5582

"A novel concerned with a family feud on a homestead in Rhodesia. The widowed Clara Tenby is disappointed when her children shirk the responsibility of farming the fertile acres which were her husband's pride. Her daughter is in love with a man of whom she doesn't approve, and her son would rather putter in a rock garden than oversee the plowing and planting. So she wills the property to a distant cousin, and that insures a bumper crop of hatred." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p30 Ap 25 '43 260w

"A grim narrative against the colorful background of the African veldt." Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p18 My 2 '43 100w

JESSE, FRYNIWYD TENNYSON (MRS H. M. HARWOOD). Saga of San Demetrio. 84p il $1.25 Knopf [6d H.M.S.O.]
940.545 San Demetrio (tanker) 42-25172

A retelling of the story of the oiler San Demetrio, one of the ships convoyed by H.M.S. Jervis Bay. The San Demetrio was shelled and set on fire by the Admiral Scheer, but did not sink. One boatload of her crew succeeded in reboarding the ship, and sailed it to England with its cargo of oil.

Booklist 39:221 F 1 '43

"Miss Jesse writes well of the sea. She might have been more explicit in details of wind, sea, directions and course—matters which many authors neglect, not realizing how necessary they are to the reader if he is not to be confused in his picture of events—and perhaps there is a minor slip here or there. One of them, though trivial as far as the book is concerned, is unfortunate, when the U. S. S. Trenton, lost in the famous Samoan hurricane, is referred to as the 'Trentham.' Such things are more than made up for by an inboard profile of the vessel, which helps greatly to clarify the story of what took place aboard her." Walter Millis
+ — Books p12 Ja 31 '43 650w
Manchester Guardian p3 Je 19 '42 80w
Reviewed by R. G. Doyle
N Y Times p3 Ja 10 '43 800w

"A fair job of writing, though somewhat rhetorical. Illustrated with photographs. Lots of seamanlike detail."
+ — New Yorker 18:52 Ja 9 '43 70w

"One of the most simply told tales of men of the convoys, so beautiful in its simplicity that it must occupy a spot in the best literature of the war, is 'The Saga of San Demetrio.'" G. W. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 4 '43 480w
Time 41:88 F 22 '43 230w

"The story has been told time and again in the Press, but it will bear retelling many times, and few writers are better qualified to do so than Miss Jesse—though she affects the mannerism, so tiresome to the seafaring man, of omitting the definite article when writing of the ship by name."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p279 Je 6 '42 150w

JESSEL, GEORGE ALBERT. So help me; autobiography; with a foreword by William Saroyan. 240p il $2.50 Random house
B or 92 Actors and actresses—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-7962

Autobiography of an American actor, producer, song writer, and traveler. His life has been one of ups and downs, with almost more downs than ups, but at forty-four he has written a cheerful account of it all. Glossary. Index.

"George Jessel's autobiography is a gem in more ways than one. It is a perfect example of the they-laughed-when-I-started-to-play success story. Excerpts and anecdotes from it will provide you with enough after-dinner conversation to last indefinitely. . . There is a foreword by William Saroyan in which he exhibits less than his usual quota of love for his fellow man. Otherwise the book is corny, witty and wonderful. A copy for the time capsule is recommended." America Chapel

Book Week p5 Jl 4 '43 360w

"It's as tawdry and glamorous, as brash and sentimental, as stupid and shrewd, as up and down as show business. It is show business—and just as much fun for anyone who likes the smell of grease paint." Dorothy Hillyer

+ Boston Globe p18 My 19 '43 400w

" 'So Help Me' is no routine stage biography cooked to order by a comical ghost writer but a singularly personal work that is both fascinating and irritating, not alone for what it tells of the show business but also for its revelations of one of the more complex publicized figures of today. . . He provides a blow-by-blow account of his marriages and other incidental romances, and one feels that Mr. Jessel almost has a fixation that his readers might not understand, that he has a way with the ladies, which, of course, he has." Jack Gould

+ — N Y Times p8 My 23 '43 500w

"Jessel tries with ingenuous frankness to make the reader understand him as he would like to understand himself. It's a large order. William Saroyan wrote a blandly noncommittal foreword." L. M.

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 6 '43 450w

Theatre Arts 27:adv:2 Ag '43 300w

"This autobiography is very much like a first night—showy, strident, crowded, drenched in excitement regardless of what there is to be excited about. . . 'So Help Me' is a generous sandwich—a slice of Broadway and a slice of ham on toasted friends, with a side dish of Hollywood slaughter." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p14 Je 13 '43 1050w

JEWETT, ELEANORE MYERS. Told on the king's highway; il. by Marie A. Lawson. 246p $2.50 Viking

43-17395

A medieval abbot, who had once been a minstrel, decides to follow the example of an honored predecessor, and returns to his old calling. As he travels the king's highway he meets with other travelers and from them he manages to extract stories of knights and ladies, of imps and devils, and of fairy folk.

Booklist 40:150 D 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:34 Ja '44 90w

"There are in all sixteen tales, the kernels of which have been gathered from ancient books and manuscripts and retold with such sparkle and spirit that they will be welcomed with enthusiasm both by storytellers and by children ten years and older." M. M. Clark

+ Library J 68:1050 D 15 '43 100w

"These stories will make a prompt appeal to boys and girls who are at the fairy-tale age, or are just leaving it behind them, for the author has emphasized the romantic quality and has touched her retellings with a gracious fancy. As she herself explains, she has changed, added, omitted or combined incidents and elements in order to give them more significance and dramatic tension for modern young folks." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p10 Ja 2 '44 250w

"The sources are authentic and the background detail is faithfully reproduced, but the author's attempt to 'give the stories more dramatic tension for young folk' has somewhat impaired the value of the collection. The decorative black-and-white illustrations do a great deal to enhance the text."

+ — New Yorker 19:133 D 4 '43 70w

Sat R of Lit 26:27 N 13 '43 50w

"A treasury for story-tellers, or for families, this collection of stories drawn from sources familiar to scholars but largely inaccessible to young folks has quality that earns this handsome dress of scarlet and gold, appropriate typography, and obbligato of illustrations." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p22 N 14 '43 300w

JOAD, CYRIL EDWIN MITCHINSON. God and evil. 349p $3 Harper [8s 6d Faber]

111.84 Good and evil. God 43-9214

"There are two themes in this book: the general problem of God and Evil and the personal development of Dr. Joad. . . Dr. Joad, so far as I can see, holds as firmly as ever that evil in all its forms, and more particularly suffering, is intellectually an almost insuperable objection to theism. What has happened to him is that the fact of evil, more particularly of moral evil, has come home to him with overwhelming force. 'The obtrusiveness of evil' which, considered in the abstract, makes against faith becomes, in experience, the great motive-force of faith. Of course this paradox is not invented by Joad, it is inherent in religion itself. The purpose of religion is to provide, as some say, an 'escape' or, as others say, 'redemption' from evil—in either case to deal with it in some manner which transcends 'common sense.' " (Spec) Index.

Reviewed by F. E. Luchs

Christian Century 60:988 S 1 '43 350w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 28 '43 600w

"This is an interesting and significant book by a well-known and able teacher and writer of philosophy and kindred matters. . . The whole argument of the work is keen; materialists, emergentists, and atheistic humanists will not like it; neither will the orthodox traditionalists; liberal theists will find it good meat. So do I." J. A. Leighton

+ Churchman 157:16 S 15 '43 480w

Reviewed by N. F. S. Ferré

Crozer Q 20:342 O '43 1300w

Reviewed by L. P. Jacks

Hibbert J 41:374 Jl '43 1650w

"Dr. Joad is a vigorous thinker with a robust sense of reality and a knack of clear expression. But his interests were limited and he tended to rest on his oars (intellectually) and let the tide take him. . . Dr. Joad is sometimes aggravating and sometimes obtuse, but always stimulating and never evasive, woolly, or obscure." A. D. R.

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 F 3 '43 200w

"God and Evil is a book that compels thought, challenges disagreement and excites admiration. Its readers will await with proper eagerness the record of the next stage in Dr. Joad's spiritual pilgrimage." Sidney Dark

+ New Statesman & Nation 25:61 Ja 23 '43 1100w

"I doubt very much whether Dr. Joad's contribution to the philosophy of religion will prove to have much permanent value but it may well happen that his description of the growth of religious conviction in his own mind, under the stress of the gigantic evils of these days, will be a source of understanding of the men of today for later and, we may hope, happier generations. . . This is a book which is easy to read and worth reading." W. R. Matthews

+ — Spec 170:103 Ja 29 '43 700w

"Dr. Joad's latest book is absorbing in its appeal, not only because of the perennial interest of the two subjects in the title, but as a record of a spiritual pilgrimage."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p68 F 6 '43 1200w

"This book, a discussion of the profoundest problems of religious thought, is characterized by a brilliant clarity of expression. Its reading, like the sweep of a canoe in a swift current, is an experience of real excitement." J. H. Holmes

+ Weekly Book Review p42 N 21 '43 900w

JOBIM, JOSE. Brazil in the making. 318p $3.50 Macmillan

330.981 Brazil—Economic conditions 43-7460

"[This book], written by a Brazilian, and made up of short, descriptive units, 'attempts to make clear, in a compact form, the principle aspects of Brazilian industry, which has developed to high level, if not the highest by Latin American standards.' It is factual and comprehensive. It maintains that 'Brazil suffers at the moment from four hungers: metals, chemicals, fuel, and transport.'" (Scientific Bk Club R) Index.

JOBIM, JOSE—Continued

"Brazil in the Making is more in the nature of a manual of industrial status than of a contribution to solution of the economic problems. The publisher's note is rather inaccurate in describing the book as valuable alike for expert and lay reader. The book is too detailed in its industry-by-industry account and too lacking in broad interpretative analysis to be of much attraction to the layman. For the expert, the work tends to be superficial. The author has traveled extensively, read widely, and written some of the most useful material available on the Brazilian economy. In the present book he has deliberately undertaken so wide a field that the coverage is necessarily thin." S. G. Hanson
+ — Ann Am Acad 229:205 S '43 370w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:168 O '43 20w

"Recommended for all who seriously wish to learn more about this Latin-American neighbor." Walter Hausdorfer
+ Library J 68:208 Mr 1 '43 80w
New Repub 109:206 Ag 9 '43 60w

"In the course of his explanation Mr. Jobim documents industry and commerce in great detail. So this is a useful book, maybe indispensable to exporters and importers, industrialists who have any buying and selling to do in Brazil, economists, entrepreneurs, and students. And to wistful capital it is an exciting invitation." Anita Brenner
N Y Times p22 Ag 1 '43 280w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring
Sat R of Lit 26:7 Je 12 '43 550w
Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Je '43 120w

"Mr. Jobim's book carries its appeal to the United States for greater cooperation; but his appeal is directed with full realization of our own difficulties. He knows and writes intelligently of the burdens which the war has laid upon the United States, and his plea for greater help carries no criticism." Hubert Herring
+ Weekly Book Review p3 Je 20 '43 1350w

Reviewed by R. H. Fitzgibbon
Yale R n s 33:172 autumn '43 310w

JOESTEN, JOACHIM. Stalwart Sweden. 215p $2.50 Doubleday
940.53485 World war, 1939—Sweden. Sweden —Politics and government 43-13418

"By exposé of Sweden's policy of appeasement during past four years, author attempts to give an answer to question: 'What will Sweden do if Norway is invaded by the Allied Nations?' Majority of the American people have accepted misinformation spread here by Swedish propagandists, according to Mr. Joesten, and he feels that careful examination of activities of Sweden during past four years will be revealing." (Library J) The author, at present an editor on Newsweek, was for six years a foreign correspondent in Scandinavia. Index.

Reviewed by Ernest Von Hartz
Book Week p1 Ag 29 '43 400w
Booklist 40:43 O 1 '43

"The more we think about this book, the less we fear to recommend it, because the case Mr. Joesten makes against Swedish policy serves mainly to arouse sympathy for a nation faced with so many dangers and fortunately still surviving."
Commonweal 38:468 Ag 27 '43 700w

"Book is controversial, and it will be difficult at present to check some of information contained in it. Much of Mr. Joesten's great store of information concerning Scandinavian countries was gained through keen observation while living in Denmark and Sweden. Recommended." H. P. Bolman
+ Library J 68:622 Ag '43 110w

Reviewed by Blair Bolles
Nation 157:302 S 11 '43 500w
New Repub 109:496 O 11 '43 120w

"Mr. Joesten believes that Sweden during four years of precarious neutrality has swung over to the German side. He makes use of every scrap of evidence he can find to prove his point, being rather free with the designation 'pro-Nazi' and often putting his own arbitrary interpretation on the facts. . . It seems to this reviewer that the author allows his personal experience to weigh too heavily in his judgments." M. W. Childs
Weekly Book Review p30 O 31 '43 750w

JOFFE, CONSTANTIN. We were free; tr. by Jacques LeClercq. 237p $2.75 Smith & Durrell
940.547243 World war, 1939—Prisoners and prisons, German 43-8438

"Account of a French soldier's life in a German prison camp. A young Russian who had lived in Paris, he fought with a regiment of foreign volunteers, then spent 21 months in an Austrian hell-hole before he was repatriated as unfit to work because of wounds." Book Week

"Joffe's book suffers from a bad title and a poor translation, but remains a vivid and telling account." Robert Lasch
+ Book Week p1 Je 13 '43 350w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:158 O '43 20w

"This book was written without hatred, without prejudice, but untold despair can be felt in some of its pages. . . 'We Were Free' depicts the problems of the living dead, as Mr. Joffe calls them. Of all the crimes committed by Germany the treatment of these prisoners of war is certainly not the least." Raoul Aglion
+ N Y Times p8 Je 6 '43 650w

"With all its simplicity, directness, and even artlessness, this small volume is indeed, as Louis Bromfield puts it in his introduction, 'a remarkable book.' . . The living dead in the German prison camps have found a good messenger. His voice must be heeded." Robert Pick
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 Je 12 '43 700w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
Weekly Book Review p16 Je 27 '43 1350w

JOHNSEN, JULIA EMILY, comp. Independence for India? (Reference shelf) 292p $1.25 Wilson, H.W.
954 India—Politics and government 43-51087

"In this number of the Reference Shelf the endeavor has been made to present material without bias, and with a full recognition of the sincerity of both nations. The case for each nation has been presented both by its own nationals and from the standpoint of more neutral opinion. An ample bibliography is given to afford the student, inquirer and general reader scope for a selective and helpful basis of additional fact and understanding. The great amount of available literature on India makes desirable the restriction of references in large part to writings of recent issue and present relevance." (Pref) Bibliography.

"Julia E. Johnsen has performed a service which will be appreciated by college debaters and by groups in and out of college interested in discussing current controversial issues. The contents have been judiciously chosen, although, in an effort to present the situation as it is rather than as it was, very little of what first appeared in print prior to 1942 is included. As it stands, the book is a useful anthology of the best current literature on the problem of Indian independence, drawn for the most part from leading periodicals." R. A. Norem
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:961 O '43 150w

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 158:506 F '44 70w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:165 O '43 10w

"A particularly useful and suitable book." E. L. Tinker
+ N Y Times p25 My 16 '43 500w

"With commendable promptness but still not quite quickly enough to keep up with the fickleness of American interest and the rapid development of events in India, this collection of articles, excerpts, and bibliographical references has been issued, mainly for the use of North American readers. In general it is a valuable and fairly well-balanced selection of materials. It is limited, understandably, to sources fairly easily available in American libraries but the resulting lack of materials from Indian publications is a decided weakness." W. L. H.
+ — Pacific Affairs 16:379 S '43 100w
Wis Lib Bul 39:85 Je '43

JOHNSEN, JULIA EMILY, comp. World peace plans. (Reference shelf) 281p $1.25 Wilson, H.W.

321.041 International cooperation. World war, 1939—Peace. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-14215

"This 'Reference Shelf' volume contains extracts from the most prominent writers and speakers on this vital subject—Churchill, Culbertson, Hoover, Streit, Hull (et many al.)—with outlines of the various proposed plans for permanent peace, arguments for and against them, and a bibliographical guide to their further study." Christian Century

Booklist 40:61 O 15 '43
Cath World 158:510 F '44 160w
Christian Century 60:1105 S 29 '43 50w

"Can be heartily recommended not only to publicists and others who have a special interest in such discussion but to every literate and thoughtful citizen."
+ Springf'd Republican p10 N 16 '43 330w
Wis Lib Bul 39:144 N '43

JOHNSON, CECIL. British West Florida, 1763-1783. 258p maps $3 Yale univ. press

975.99 West Florida (province). Great Britain—Colonies. A43-959

At the close of the French and Indian war Great Britain received from France the land lying on the Gulf of Mexico between Florida and the Mississippi river. The province of West Florida was thereupon created by the Royal Proclamation of October 7, 1763. This book tells the story of this British province from that date until, at the close of the American Revolution, it was surrendered to the Spanish governor of New Orleans. Bibliographical note. Index.

"This scholarly book will be welcomed by students of American colonial history." L. H. Gipson
+ Am Hist R 49:111 O '43 390w
Christian Century 60:362 Mr 24 '43 130w

JOHNSON, CHARLES SPURGEON. Patterns of Negro segregation. (Carnegie corporation of N.Y. Negro in Am. life ser) 332p $3.50 Harper

325.26 Negroes. U.S.—Race question 43-1802

"This book is divided into two sections: Part I is a study of 'the formal institutions, social conventions, legal codes, and ideology supporting racial segregation and discrimination'; and Part II is exactly what its title indicates—Behavioral Response of Negroes to Segregation and Discrimination. . . Wherever possible, the material is taken from an intensive study made by Dr. Johnson and his staff in twelve areas—three counties in the rural South, five cities in the urban South, two border area cities and two northern cities." (Survey G) Index.

Reviewed by Alain Locke
Am J Soc 49:94 Jl '43 380w
Reviewed by T. C. McCormick
Am Soc R 8:491 Ag '43 350w
Booklist 39:312 Ap 1 '43
Reviewed by R. G. Franklin
Cath World 157:445 Jl '43 360w
Reviewed by E. F. Frazier
Nation 156:496 Ap 3 '43 700w

"Whatever fury the author, himself a Negro, may have experienced in the preparation of this volume, he has effectively sublimated in his writing. The result is a coldly logical documentation of race relations in America today." H. L. Moon
+ New Repub 108:325 Mr 8 '43 1250w
Reviewed by S. R. Harlow
Springf'd Republican p7e F 28 '43 750w

"This volume is remarkable for many reasons. To begin with, it combines a wealth of much needed factual material with an analysis that is both scholarly and alive. . . Dr. Johnson lets his informants (representative of lower, middle and upper class Negroes and whites) speak first-hand. They give the book both additional authority and great poignancy. These remarks are, moreover, enhanced by their juxtaposition to Dr. Johnson's own clear style. He is a master of the simple, final statement." John Becker
+ Survey G 32:101 Mr '43 750w
Wis Lib Bul 39:104 Jl '43

JOHNSON, CROCKETT. Barnaby. 361p il $2 Holt

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons. Humor, Pictorial 43-14851

Cartoons, originally appearing in PM, showing the adventures a determined small boy named Barnaby, and his meddlesome little godfather, with a habit of invisibility. Between them they wreck the peace of mind of Barnaby's parents and the child psychologist, but Barnaby comes out unscathed.

"Originality is the distinguishing feature of 'Barnaby'; nothing as different has come into the comic pages since 'Aladdin, Jr.,' and this came by way of 'Little Nemo in Slumberland.' Barnaby's is the sophisticated appeal to the imagination and the sense of humor bound by no conventions, the appeal to the mystic and fantastic not quite freed from the mundane. Clearly Mr. O'Malley is in the tradition of Krazy Kat, and if the 13 episodes in this fat book do not convince you, you had better wish on a star yourself and angle for a Mr. O'Malley of your own." August Derleth
+ Book Week p3 O 10 '43 300w

"With grace and delicacy Mr. Johnson has rescued fantasy from the dreadful familiarity which threatened her and placed her, faintly smiling, where she rightfully belongs—beyond the daily dozen of our own imaginings." Isabelle Mallet
+ N Y Times p9 O 31 '43 700w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 10 '43 200w

"Though Barnaby is a strain on his parents, he is the answer to many a parent's prayer for a comic over which an intelligent child actually laughs. Such comedy will be as popular with adults as with children; its absurdities come from linking the laws of magic with the practical realities of today."
+ Weekly Book Review p24 O 3 '43 270w

JOHNSON, GERALD WHITE. American heroes and hero-worship. 284p $3 Harper

973 U.S.—History. U.S.—Biography 43-14328

"Chance and circumstance have much to do with the making of a hero or a failure. So Mr. Johnson proves in this discussion of some of America's most prominent men: Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Long, Van Buren, Clay, Jackson, Du Pont, Watson, Theodore Roosevelt, and Wilson. He paints in the background of history that made them what they were." Library J

"Gerald Johnson is entertaining and seldom lets his gift get out of hand; he is scholarly but conceals his pains with grace; he is curious and fairminded and consistently intelligent, an adornment to the ranks of American historians.

JOHNSON, G. W.—Continued
Most important for us, he is a genuine liberal, and this is refreshing in a period of sham liberals who are covert idolaters of the extremely centralized state." Gorham Munson
+ Atlantic 172:129 N '43 150w

Reviewed by Leonard Bullen
Book Week p2 O 10 '43 600w

Booklist 40:91 N 15 '43

"Brilliant prose, penetrating comment, the true historian's detachment, and a sound scholarship make this volume a highly stimulating and profitable experience."
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Ja 15 '44 700w

"Most interesting reading for all serious students of American history and of human nature." L. A. Ruppert
+ Library J 68:667 S 1 '43 80w

"The stream of history is too broad to be covered by the neat little bridge of Mr. Johnson's generalizations. What remains? A good deal of information and not a few challenging comments. If it lacks the solidity of Herbert Croly's 'The Promise of American Life' and A. M. Schlesinger's 'New Viewpoints in American History,' Mr. Johnson's book incites one to think about our national experience—even though he seldom asks quite the right questions." George Mayberry
+ — New Repub 109:432 S 27 '43 550w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus
N Y Times p7 S 26 '43 600w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:78 S 25 '43 360w

"There will be those who will disagree with Mr. Johnson's conclusions, some of them violently. But there will be none who will deny that this is one of the most stimulating books of this time." P. I. Wellman
Sat R of Lit 26:38 D 4 '43 1600w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 S 25 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Oscar Zeichner
Survey G 32:453 N '43 330w

Reviewed by Lloyd Lewis
Weekly Book Review p1 O 3 '43 2150w

Wis Lib Bul 39:144 N '43

Reviewed by Dixon Wecter
Yale R n s 33:375 winter '44 700w

JOHNSON, HAROLD EARLE. Musical interludes in Boston, 1795-1830. 366p il $4 Columbia univ. press

780.9744 Music—Boston 43-11010

"A picture of musical life in Boston in the early part of the nineteenth century. . . [Though] the period surveyed . . . saw the beginning and the whole course of Beethoven's activity in Vienna . . . we were not ready for Beethoven at this time. . . Practically all our music came to us by way of England. Handel and Haydn, Pleyel and Mozart, were known here because they were known in England." (Foreword) Index.

"A lively account which happily combines scholarliness and popular treatment. Careers of local musical celebrities, beginnings of influential musical societies, such as the Handel and Haydn Society, and the work of music publishers and makers of instruments are all given proper emphasis in relation to the whole. Essential book for student of history of music in America." H. A. Carpenter
+ Library J 68:474 Je 1 '43 90w

"Mr. Johnson has selected one interval, and by no means the most important interval, in one aspect, and by no means the most important aspect, in the life of one city. . . Yet he has written with such an adroit combination of gusto and urbanity, he has fortified his pages with so much learning and enlivened them with so much humor, that he has made his chronicle seem at least ten times as important as it really is. This effect, mark you, is achieved in the reader's eyes, not in the author's." G. W. Johnson
+ Weekly Book Review p28 O 3 '43 1150w

JOHNSON, HENRY. Other side of Main street; a history teacher from Sauk Centre. 263p $2.75 Columbia univ. press

B or 92 43-3222

Autobiography of a retired professor of history, who, though born in Sweden, spent the early years of his life in Sauk Centre, Minnesota. Sauk Centre is the town called Gopher Prairie in Sinclair Lewis' Main Street, and Professor Johnson shows another type of life in that small town. A large proportion of the book is about the author's training and his thirty years of teaching at Teachers College, Columbia. The last section is an explanation of his philosophy of education and teaching. Index.

Am Hist R 48:871 Jl '43 210w

" 'The Other Side of Main Street' is neither better nor worse than countless other books of the same stripe; if the reader is not already familiar with such books, this one can be as informative, as profitable, and as entertaining as any other. It is to Prof. Johnson's credit that his own evaluation of it rates it neither too high nor too low; it is only a 'bit of autobiography.' " A. D.
Book Week p10 Mr 14 '43 380w

"Genial and charming autobiography."
+ Christian Century 60:331 Mr 17 '43 120w

"Mr. Johnson's book is titled The Other Side of Main Street. To the millions of Americans of whatever age who live, or have ever lived, in a small city, and on whichever side of Main Street or the railway track, the tempered and scholarly exposition of neighborly virtues and substantial culture under severe handicaps will appeal insistently and convincingly." F. L. P.
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 17 '43 550w

"Entertaining and of especial interest to teachers and parents. Diction is literary, not pedagogical." F. L. D. Goodrich
+ Library J 68:171 F 15 '43 110w

"The author, now Professor Emeritus of History, Teachers College, Columbia University, has some very interesting ideas on the teaching of history, and he goes to some lengths to describe in lucid terms the errors of the purely functional approach, prevalent in our own day. These pages deserves the attention of all history teachers; but the lay reader, too, will find the book absorbing." John Cournos
+ N Y Times p20 Mr 28 '43 600w

Reviewed by Phil Stong
Sat R of Lit 26:39 Je 5 '43 410w

School & Society 57:336 Mr 20 '43 70w

Reviewed by W. C. Bagley
School & Society 58:44 Jl 17 '43 2000w

"Every teacher of history and the related social studies will want to recommend this book not only to his or her adult friends but to pupils in American history as well. It is also one that every teacher will want to own, for interesting and fascinating as it is at first reading, it will continue to be so at each successive review. I say this because, though I was familiar with much of the story before I opened the book, I have read the whole at least five times and parts more often. And each time I have come upon some point which I had previously missed." A. C. Krey
+ Social Educ 7:230 My '43 1750w

"As an autobiography it is fascinating, rugged, witty; good for reading aloud to young and old before the open fire. Teachers can find in it much that will stimulate them to do a better job. Tasting a little of it will compel reading it all, and with reward." L. M. Brooks
+ Social Forces 22:239 D '43 280w

"One might give a long list of reasons why this book should be in every history teacher's library. One only can be mentioned here and that is the concluding chapter—'Balancing Accounts with History Teaching.' Here is the confession of faith of a master teacher. Here is sound philosophy for all who are seeking for help in an age of confusion." W. H. Mohr
+ Social Studies 34:328 N '43 420w

Reviewed by D. W. Brogan
Spec 171:109 Jl 30 '43 500w

"If you are looking for the real American flavor in an autobiography, you might look into 'The Other Side of Main Street'. . . These are the recollections of a teacher, but they bear no resemblance to some teachers' specialized shop talk. Henry Johnson has experienced a wide sampling of the American scene (as an alderman in Rushford, Minn., he once helped to turn out a rotten administration) and his scholarship never led him too far from the schoolhouse on Main street. Unpretentious and quietly humorous, his remembrance of things past and tasks accomplished is a continuing testimony that America's golden age is always in the future." Marshall Bragdon

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 13 '43 950w

"A mellow, yet diverting and illuminating, sketch of the making of a history teacher." Gerald Johnson

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 25 '43 700w

JOHNSON, HEWLETT. Secret of Soviet strength [Eng title: Soviet strength]. 160p $1.50 Int. pubs. [4s; pa 2s 6d Muller]

947.084 Russia—Social conditions. Russia—Economic conditions. Communism—Russia 44-2066

The Dean of Canterbury, author of The Soviet Power (Book Review Digest, 1940) here propounds his theory of Soviet strength: "Russia's strength, to put it in a nutshell, lies in her moral and scientific achievements. Russia has introduced moral principle and scientific method into the heart of productive life. That is the prime cause of her matchless strength." (p. 17)

Christian Century 61:178 F 9 '44 290w

"The Dean of Canterbury's second book on the Soviet Union continues to move on the same high-school level of sophistication and interpretation as his previous effort." H. H. F. Eulau

— New Repub 110:94 Ja 17 '44 270w

"A variegated and wide-ranging sermon rather than a study of Russian realities and their significance for us."

Times [London] Lit Sup p626 D 26 '42 120w

JOHNSON, JANET BASSETT. Robert Alexander, Maryland loyalist. 152p $2.50 Putnam

B or 92 Alexander, Robert 42-13702

Biography of Robert Alexander, the holder of a large estate in Cecil county, Maryland, in pre-Revolutionary days. Before the war he was a leader in the opposition to the policy of the British Government. Later he opposed American independence, and left Maryland never to return when Sir William Howe withdrew his troops from the Chesapeake. Later he went to England, and died there in 1805, at the age of sixty-four. Index.

"Dr. Janet Bassett Johnson has pursued meticulously the life of Robert Alexander, as revealed by surviving records, and has related the story in a dispassionate and scholarly manner, albeit with a minimum of wandering into bypaths of forest or field. A few instances of careless proofreading have been observed."

+ Am Hist R 48:428 Ja '43 210w

"The present study, sympathetic to the point of sentimentality, presents Alexander as an able, conscientious, public-spirited man. It does not probe very deep beneath the surface, but it gives evidence of assiduous search for material pertinent to Alexander's career. Herein lies its contribution." Leonidas Dodson

+ Social Studies 34:46 Ja '43 180w

JOHNSON, MARGARET SWEET, and JOHNSON, MRS HELEN (LOSSING). Derry the wolfhound; il. by [the authors]. 75p $1.75 Harcourt

43-51226

Picture story book for eight and nine-year-olds, telling about a large but friendly wolfhound with a desire to play with the animals on the farm, especially the lambs. After Derry proves his dependability he is put in charge of the sheep.

Booklist 40:19 S '43

"The newest Johnson story is characterized by swift-moving narrative and attractive animal illustrations of its predecessors. Writing lacks distinction but will be popular with eight- and nine-year-olds and slow readers and useful with sight-saving groups because of its twenty-four-point type. Recommend where authors' other titles have proved popular." M. M. Clark

+ Library J 68:672 S 1 '43 100w

"In 'Derry the Wolfhound' these accomplished artists have added another breed to their gallery of dog portraits and have made an attractive, easy-reading book." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p6 D 19 '43 90w

New Yorker 19:119 D 4 '43 50w

"Children who are learning to read will like this simple story and younger ones can appreciate the excellent full page illustrations on every other page." W. H. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 22 '43 140w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p8 N 7 '43 150w

Wis Lib Bul 39:124 O '43

JOHNSON, MARTHA, pseud. See Lansing, E. C. H.

JOHNSON, S. Young Americans' dictionary. 352p $3 c1942 Philosophical lib.

423 English language—Dictionaries 43-9326

"A dictionary of 6256 vocabulary entries in contrast to 23,281 found in The Thorndike-Century Junior Dictionary, 38,500 (including derivatives) in Webster's Elementary Dictionary, and 46,000 in The New Winston Simplified Dictionary for Young People. Walter Bernard, in a brief preface to the Young Americans' Dictionary indicates that this is an English publication which has been adapted for American use. He calls attention to the fact that the volume is actually richer in words than would appear at first glance because often under a listed key word related words are found in the explanation. Even making allowances for this contention the vocabulary is a very meager one. . . Mr. Bernard's preface implies that the dictionary's chief function is to define words as simply as possible. Examination reveals that this simplicity is frequently carried to extremes. . . In the case of words with multiple meanings very often one or more of the meanings has been omitted." Subscription Bks Bul

"All three of the standard dictionaries for young people, in addition to giving lists of defined words, indicate the parts of speech for the words included, show their pronunciation, and frequently augment definitions with drawings and diagrams. The Young Americans' Dictionary, however, in addition to definitions gives only syllabification and the principal accent for each word of more than one syllable. No diacritical marks are used nor are parts of speech indicated. Also, the volume is entirely devoid of drawings, diagrams, colored plates, charts, or other illustrative devices. Because of its very limited scope and its tendency to oversimplification, this dictionary is not recommended."

— Subscription Bks Bul 14:23 Ap '43 700w

JOHNSON, SIDDIE JOE. Texas; the land of the Tejas; il. by Fanita Lanier. [55p] $2 Random house

976.4 Texas—History—Juvenile literature 43-14487

"Here are fair large pages with drawings in outline and in strong color, simple, striking designs full of life, meaning something. The text, moving for the most part decorously across the page, now and again forsakes the

JOHNSON, S. J.—Continued
type in which the book is set and explodes in a parabola of hand-lettered capitals. . . Texas marches on from the days of the Tejas, Indian 'friends' long forgotten, through the alarms and excursions attending history under six flags." Weekly Book Review

Booklist 40:63 O 15 '43

"Recommend highly for children ten to fourteen." Gertrude Andrus
+ Library J 68:672 S 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:826 O 15 '43 70w

"This condensed chronicle is written for children by a children's librarian who knows how to write for anybody. I wish it had a few dates, but these, it appears, are no longer considered quite the thing in writing for the young." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 S 5 '43 270w

JOHNSON, WILLIAM HARDING, and NEWKIRK, LOUIS VEST. Ceramic arts. 158p il $2.50; pa $1.20 Macmillan

666.3 Pottery. Plastics. Glass 42-23137

"Text for the junior high school grades, covering methods and materials in the production of pottery, plastics, glass, alabaster, and cement, with diagrams and instructions for making numerous articles, useful and ornamental." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 39:458 Jl 15 '43

"Simple, clear-cut, and detailed explanations of the ways to construct things make it a good buy for schools with the equipment for making such things as pottery and plastics." H. P. H.
+ J Home Econ 35:242 Ap '43 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:5 Ja '43
School & Society 56:336 O 10 '42 30w

JOHNSON, WILLIAM HARDING, and NEWKIRK, LOUIS VEST. The electrical crafts. 146p il pa $1.20 Macmillan

621.3 Electric engineering

"Well-ilustrated text for junior and senior high school courses. Will be useful also in children's rooms. Contains in addition to other illustrations, working drawings for buzzers, lamps and other simple electrical devices." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:43 Jl '43

JOHNSON, WILLIAM HARDING, and NEWKIRK, LOUIS VEST. Fundamentals of electricity; a pre-induction text. 212p il $2; text ed $1.32 Macmillan

537 Electricity 43-2552

"Fundamentals of electricity based upon the officially approved pre-induction training outlines of the War Department and the U. S. Office of Education as revised in November, 1942. The subject matter of this text has also been validated through a careful study of the specific content and practical applications as shown in Army technical and field manuals." (School & Society) Index.

"The book gives more emphasis to theory. After reading this book the student will be able to distinguish between work, energy and power, he will know the purpose and the make-up of a battery, a condenser, a galvanometer, an ammeter and a voltmeter. And he should also understand the principles of motors and generators. Most of this is physics and, in reality, the main difference between this book and the usual physics text is that the emphasis is shifted from theory to practice wherever possible." L. E. Grinter
+ Book Week p11 Ag 1 '43 150w
Booklist 39:429 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by George Barrett
N Y Times p48 N 21 '43 220w
School & Society 57:196 F 13 '43 60w

JOHNSON, WILLIAM HARDING, and NEWKIRK, LOUIS VEST. Fundamentals of shopwork; a pre-induction text. 200p il $2; text ed $1.32 Macmillan

670 Woodwork. Metal work. Handicraft 43-2733

"A course in fundamentals of shopwork laying the foundation for Army specialization. It includes information and develops understandings and elementary skills which are basic for many Army jobs, including those of automobile mechanic, airplane mechanic, and so forth. The content of this pre-induction text is ample to provide 90 periods of instruction and is designed to provide demonstration-discussion materials for at least 30 periods, interesting and practical laboratory or shop exercises for 53 periods, and review and test exercises for seven periods." School & Society

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p11 Ag 1 '43 150w
Booklist 39:430 Je 15 '43
Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:11 Ja '43
School & Society 57:196 F 13 '43 90w

JOHNSTON, EILEEN. Jamie and the dump truck; with pictures by Ora Brian Edwards. [40p] 85c Harper

43-14820

Small read-aloud book for ages five to eight, describing the adventures of an old dump truck at a fire, and the little boy who saved the day, with Dumpy's help.

Booklist 40:99 N 15 '43

"Well illustrated and well told. Good book to read aloud to children." M. L. Goodwin
+ Library J 68:963 N 15 '43 50w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p8 Ja 9 '44 180w

JOHNSTON, GEORGE HENRY. Toughest fighting in the world. 240p $3 Duell

940.542 World war, 1939—New Guinea. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, Australian 43-51257

A young Australian newspaper man describes his experiences during the Battle of New Guinea, in which he covered every step of the campaign from Darwin to Buna.

Booklist 40:43 O 1 '43

" 'The Toughest Fighting in the World' is never thin or vapory. . . As Mr. Johnston himself admits, the title sounds bombastic and the sensitive book purchaser might well shy from it. This would be a mistake, since the title is thoroughly honest." Meyer Berger
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 29 '43 850w
New Yorker 19:87 S 11 '43 70w

"George Johnston, at thirty years of age, covered every step of the New Guinea campaign from Darwin to Buna. . . He wrote this book almost entirely on the spot. It is a book of episodes which are fitted together into a pattern that tells his story in compelling fashion. Mr. Johnston is a brilliant descriptive writer and the full flavor of this extraordinary battle is in his book. But most of all he knows how to impart the spirit of the men." P. R. Knauth
+ Sat R of Lit 26:39 O 30 '43 400w
Time 42:101 S 20 '43 700w

Reviewed by Robert Shaplen
Weekly Book Review p6 S 5 '43 850w

JOHNSTON, STANLEY. Grim reapers. 221p $2.75 Dutton

940.545 U.S.—Navy. World war, 1939—Aerial operations 43-17854

"This second book by the author of 'Queen of the Flat-Tops' [Book Review Digest, 1942] begins as the combat story of the Navy's Fighter Squadron VF-10, called the Grim

Reapers, and fans out into a history of most of the sea-air actions in the Pacific from Midway on." New Yorker

Booklist 40:162 Ja 1 '44

"Where Mr. Johnston is reporting actions in which VF-10 took part—or rather, retelling the story as Commander Jimmy Flatley, Fighting Ten's fighting skipper, told it to him—'The Grim Reapers' is an excellent story of high courage. When he leaves the squadron, however, and attempts a recital of other Pacific actions, such as the Battle of Midway and the night sea engagements around Guadalcanal, the story does not move as well, nor is it as accurate." Foster Hailey
+ — N Y Times p20 Ja 9 '44 650w

"Some sloppy writing, but the author has a way of giving professional detail in a telling phrase."
New Yorker 19:98 D 18 '43 70w

"Of the present volume the best that one can say is that it is too bad Stanley Johnston used himself up so soon. It traces one of the Navy's best fighter squadrons through the great air-sea battles and a long period of determined action from land-based status on Guadalcanal. But the personal touch that distinguished the earlier book is here missing. . . The book does not even stick to its subject. It reads as though the author were trying to tell the naval history of the war in the story of this one squadron." Fletcher Pratt
— + Sat R of Lit 27:20 Ja 22 '44 250w

"Stanley Johnston has done it again. Continuing the story of naval operations in the Pacific, so admirably begun in 'Queen of the Flat-Tops' . . . he carries on from the smashing victory at Midway to the conclusion of the Guadalcanal campaign, detailing engagements which rank with the most glorious in American history. Daily communiques are usually too brief and technical to be enlightening. It is only when consecutive chronicles, such as 'The Grim Reapers,' appear, that the public can gain a perspective of history in the making." P. J. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p3 D 12 '43 1100w

JOINT COMMISSION OF THE COUNCIL FOR EDUCATION IN WORLD CITIZENSHIP AND THE LONDON INTERNATIONAL ASSEMBLY. Education and the United nations; a report. 112p pa $1 Am. council on public affairs

370.9 Education. Reconstruction (1939-). International cooperation 43-8817

"This report . . . pictures the havoc that the nazi regime has wrought with educational systems in Europe, the necessary steps toward reconstruction and re-education, and the place of education in a postwar order. . . The recommendations include the immediate establishment of a United Nations bureau for educational reconstruction and the preparation of plans for an international organization to promote education in general and especially education for world citizenship." Christian Century

"A brief book making an excellent contribution to thought on international educational activities which will be increasingly a part of the future policies of the United Nations." B. C. Randolph
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:1137 D '43 600w

Am Soc R 8:496 Ag '43 150w

Christian Century 60:991 S 1 '43 80w

"This report deserves the very careful study of all who are interested in the role of education in the post-war period."
+ Social Studies 34:286 O '43 60w

JONES, ELIZABETH ORTON. Twig [il. by the author]. 152p $2 Macmillan

43-55

The adventures of a very real little girl who lived in a city tenement house, and had no toys and very little to enliven her life except a sleepy old ice-cart horse, an alley cat, and some sparrows. When she found an empty tomato can with a split side Twig washed it out and turned it upside down in the back yard, hoping a fairy would come to live there. The new inhabitant was an elf, but he was a very satisfactory substitute. For children eight to ten.

Booklist 39:256 F 15 '43

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ Books p6 Ja 3 '43 300w

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
+ Christian Science Monitor p8 Ap 26 '43 180w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:102 Mr '43 80w

"It is hard to believe any grownup could enter so completely into the realm of childhood as Elizabeth Orton Jones has done in the story and pictures of Twig. . . There are pictures in profusion, enchanting, funny and full of detail." R. A. Hill
+ Library J 67:884 O 15 '42 80w

"Twig is one of the nicest little girls in recent fiction. . . Girls of ten and thereabout will love her. Illustrated in color by author. For all children's libraries everywhere, private or public." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 68:173 F 15 '43 70w

"A story full of fun and magic and make-believe. Children follow Twig's extraordinary but thoroughly convincing adventures with breathless interest. Grown-ups who have not forgotten what it is like to be young are delighted with this portrait of an imaginative child and her secret fancies. Twig is warm-hearted, human and lovable and, like many children in real life, can be practical and wide-eyed with wonder at the same time. Miss Jones writes with freshness and originality. There is genuine humor in her story and events follow one another with a delightful unexpectedness." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 Ja 31 '43 380w

Wis Lib Bul 39:43 Mr '43

JONES, ELMER W. Fundamentals of applied electricity. 341p il $2.60 Bruce pub.

537 Electricity 43-3938

"Practical and well-illustrated work for the secondary school level. Part I presents the principles which are applied in Part II toward the construction of apparatus." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:7 Ja '43

JONES, JESSIE ORTON, comp. Small rain. See Bible. Whole. Selections

JONES, MACK MARQUIS, and AXELROD, AARON. Introductory shopwork; prepared at the request of the War dept. and the U.S. Office of educ. in conformance with official pre-induction training course outline no. PIT 103. 290p il $2.50 McGraw

621.75 Machine shop practice 43-9948

"Textbook on elementary shopwork. . . The scope of operations discussed is quite broad, and there has been an earnest effort to place emphasis on those critical spots where just a bit of emphasized know-how is worth a whole chapter on monotony. The many well-prepared illustrations are an important part of this emphasis." (N Y Times) Copiously illustrated. Chapter questions. Index.

Book Week p11 S 12 '43 20w

Booklist 40:96 N 15 '43

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:45 Jl '43

"Well above the average of the books currently being ground out for preinduction training purposes." J. M. J.
+ N Y Times p26 Ag 29 '43 80w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p12 S 5 '43 50w

JONES, MARY ALICE. Faith of our children. 175p $1.25 Abingdon-Cokesbury
268.6 Religious education 43-5495

"Mary Alice Jones, director of children's work for the International Council of Religious Education . . . in this volume deals with such topics as the development of ideas about God and a sense of his relation to life, the character and life of Jesus, the question of miracles, use of the Bible, the church, worship and prayer." Christian Century

Booklist 39:419 Je 15 '43
+ Christian Century 60:459 Ap 14 '43 60w
Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

JONES, MARY ALICE. Tell me about God; il. by Pelagie Doane. 72p $2 Rand McNally
230 God—Juvenile literature 43-15119

"A non-denominational book to answer many questions concerning God in words and pictures that the very young child will understand." Library J

"The whole is done with beauty and dignity, and Pelagie Doane's lovely full-page—sometimes double page—color illustrations add to the charm of the book." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p8 N 14 '43 110w
Booklist 40:116 D 1 '43

"It is studiously 'non-denominational,' with the result that it seems terribly washed out, for anything which might offend anybody, no matter what his faith, has been eliminated."
— Commonweal 39:122 N 19 '43 40w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:819 O 15 '43 30w

"The manner in which some of the text is presented and the illustrations that accompany it seem a little stilted and not quite natural. However, it is an unusual book and one that fills a long-felt need. Parents especially will welcome it." Olive Brain
+ — Library J 68:1008 D 1 '43 40w

"The mother's answers are gauged to that fine line between a child's satisfaction and its ability to understand. As such, the book is a most excellent aid to mothers and teachers. Whether children will want to read it, or have it read to them, is problematical. Much, perhaps, will depend upon the child's religious grounding. In any case, it is excellent material, attractively presented." Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p22 N 28 '43 140w
New Yorker 19:133 D 4 '43 40w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p7 O 17 '43 230w
Wis Lib Bul 40:11 Ja '44

JONES, RUFUS MATTHEW. New eyes for invisibles. 185p $2 Macmillan
248 Spiritual life 43-3684

"This little book is a companion volume to four former books, 'The Inner Life'; 'The World Within'; 'Spiritual Energies' and 'The New Quest.' It consists in the main of a series of meditations which might or might not emerge into sermons. Each one deals with some great issue of life." Pref.

Reviewed by Dr Preston Bradley
Book Week p12 My 9 '43 600w
Booklist 39:347 My 1 '43

"At the semi-centennial of Pembroke College in Brown University Dr. Jones gave an address on 'Education for Living.' In its concluding sentence, which he has included here, he said: 'To be a teacher who knows how to enlarge the depth and scope of a person's life is the best gift there is.' For many college generations and for the widening circle of listeners and readers, such a teacher, these grateful hosts affirm, has been Rufus Jones." C. D. Brodhead
+ Christian Century 60:545 My 5 '43 550w

"It was written for the layman as well as for the minister, and its short chapters make it an excellent book for daily devotional reading. It is as spiritually refreshing as it is enlightening." F. J. Moore
+ Churchman 157:17 Je 1 '43 100w

"One need not be mystical, nor even formally religious, to have his mind quickened and his heart fortified by such a volume." D. E. Roberts
+ Sat R of Lit 26:26 Ap 3 '43 550w

JONES, SYDNEY ROBERT. London triumphant. 278p pl $4.50 (15s) Studio
914.21 London—Description 43-614

Reproductions of etchings and drawings of the English artist and author known as the "Canaletto of twentieth century London." Pictures and text provide a clear historical portrait of London up to the eve of the war. Some of the pictures are just impressions, as are the scenes of the coronation; others are the result of considerable time and toil. The book contains a considerable amount of historical material. Index.

Times [London] Lit Sup p382 Ag 1 '42 700w
Weekly Book Review p14 Je 6 '43 220w

JONG, DOLA de. See De Jong, D.

JORCH, WILLIAM F. Aircraft electrical systems, their maintenance and servicing; a manual for mechanics. 208p il $3 Ronald 629.1354 Airplanes—Electric equipment 43-7651

"A manual for aircraft mechanics that considers the maintenance and servicing of the electrical apparatus of airplanes. The devices studied are starters, ignition, general wiring instruments, generators, batteries, and control panels." Book Week

Book Week p11 Je 13 '43 50w

Reviewed by Theodore English
N Y Times p23 S 12 '43 80w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p17 Je 13 '43 100w

JORDAN, ELIZABETH GARVER. Herself. 256p $2.50 Appleton-Century 43-3875

Mystery story.

"A delightful book to hold in the hand; not in the head." E. L. Keyes
Commonweal 38:56 Ap 30 '43 80w

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p14 Ap 11 '43 320w

"Novel of character, with murder and mystery trimmings. Elderly spinster heroine and group of medicos ably portrayed. Enjoyable."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:54 Ap 17 '43 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 80w

"Miss Jordan keeps you guessing right up to a tense climax." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Mr 28 '43 270w

JORDAN, HELEN MOUGEY, ed. You and marriage; by lecturers in marriage, Cleveland college, Western Reserve university. 296p il $2.50 Wiley
173.1 Marriage 42-23820

"Educators from the fields of biology, psychology, health, psychiatry, endocrinology, sociology, home economics, and parent education have contributed to this symposium which is the outgrowth of a college course in marriage given at Cleveland College, Western Reserve University. . . Among the strongest chapters are 'Money Management' by Ethel Laney;

'What Is Personality' by Calvin S. Hall; 'Religion and the Family' by Garry C. Myers; and 'Relation of Health to Marriage' by Lee H. Ferguson." J Home Econ

"As is often the case with symposiums, the book lacks somewhat in cohesiveness, but has an advantage in that many chapters can be read without much dependence upon what has gone before. . . The book is scholarly though conservative. . . Students in marriage courses will find the book helpful. Its chief value lies in the comprehensive scope of the material included, ranging all the way from problems of courtship and psychosexual adjustments to discussions of money management and feeding the family." B. H. Rafferty

+ J Home Econ 34:685 N '42 250w

"The chapters, taken separately, are adequate treatments of specific aspects of marital and family relationships. Some of them are extremely practical, presenting answers to detailed questions that would ordinarily arise in the course of married life, while others are extremely theoretical, examining the scientific foundations of mental, physiological, and social behavior. I question whether any one reader would be interested in and get help from both types of treatment." D. S. K.

+ — Social Forces 22:242 D '43 150w

JORDAN, WILBUR KITCHENER, Men of substance. 283p $3 Univ. of Chicago press

942.06 Parker, Henry. Robinson, Henry. Great Britain—History—Puritan revolution, 1642-1660 42-23576

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"In the present work great erudition and considerable understanding are kept from illuminating a subtle and provocative subject by the rigid application of abstract, schematic categories. . . Allowances being made for Mr. Jordan's persistent efforts to induce history to vindicate his protégés, his most meaty writing will be found in the discussion of Robinson's religious views. Here he seems most at home; and here his analysis of books and men . . . rises to something like convincing eloquence. But for the most part, the patchwork of paraphrase and quotation by which the thought of the two English revolutionaries is presented remains verbose, repetitious, and muddy. . . A teacher of English may be permitted to bewail the fate which threw a writer of sharp, hard, pamphleteering prose like Henry Parker into the hands of a scholar who writes of 'a monumental contribution to the ferment of thought which was . . . to fashion the design of a new economic and social order' (p. 1). Robinson deserves nothing better; but alas for Parker!" R. M. Krapp

Am Hist R 48:553 Ap '43 550w

"The volume is a piece of thorough scholarship and, at the same time, good reading." Gladys Bryson

+ Am J Soc 49:278 N '43 280w

Reviewed by E. D. Ellis

Am Pol Sci R 37:378 Ap '43 340w

Am Soc R 8:497 Ag '43 150w

"Professor Jordan's scholarly and well-written volume fills a real need in calling attention to two significant writers whose influence has hitherto been accorded inadequate recognition." Leonidas Dodson

+ Ann Am Acad 228:140 Jl '43 550w

"We are grateful to Mr. Jordan for a useful and interesting book." M. M. Knappen

+ Christian Century 60:545 My 5 '43 500w

"Mr. Jordan, who has already placed us deeply in his debt by his Development of Religious Toleration in England, here sets forth a useful by-product of his larger work and treats more broadly than the earlier theme permitted of the religious, political, social, and economic thought of these two men. . . The book may abound in too many superlatives, and it makes so few comparisons with other reformers' ideas of the time that the reader might be led to believe that Robinson and Parker were the only writers of their kind. However, in justice to Mr. Jordan, it must be added that few competent studies have been made of the others, and, accordingly, intelligent comparisons could not be made without going far beyond the purposes of this book." R. P. Stearns

+ — J Religion 23:148 Ap '43 650w

"Interesting to students of colonial New England because of the light it sheds on the ideas of two 'men of substance.'"

+ New Eng Q 16:149 Mr '43 40w

"Professor Jordan is already well known to English historians for his ample and learned history of religious toleration in England from the Reformation to the Restoration. His new work has many of the merits, if, also, some of the defects, of his earlier writing. He is determined that no fact, however minute, shall escape his notice. He insists that the reader shall have before him a detailed map, as it were, of the immense ground over which he himself has travelled. Since Professor Jordan has clearly not spared himself, he cannot bear not to share his materials with us, with the result that it is a little difficult not to feel that Professor Jordan writes as though life is set by the categories of geological time." H. J. Laski

+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:228 Ap 3 '43 1150w

JORDANOFF, ASSEN. Illustrated aviation dictionary. 415p $3.50 Harper

629.1303 Aeronautics—Dictionaries 43-260

Dictionary of some 2000 aviation terms, each with a small inset drawing. Includes a glossary of aviation "slanguage."

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter

Book Week p8 My 16 '43 550w

Booklist 39:271 Mr 1 '43

Bookmark 4:7 Mr '43

Library J 67:1067 D 1 '42 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:6 Ja '43

Wis Lib Bul 39:26 F '43

JORDANOFF, ASSEN. Man behind the flight; a ground course for aviation mechanics and airmen. 276,32p il $3.50 Harper

629.1341 Airplanes—Design and construction. Airplanes—Maintenance and repair 42-25127

The author "tears an airplane apart and with the help of clear drawings shows how the ground mechanic should go about his task. Since all this cannot be done without some basic knowledge, there are introductory lessons in drafting and whole sections devoted to hydraulics, physics and aerodynamics. The requirements of the civilian and military agencies charged with the construction and operation of aircraft have been primarily kept in view." (N Y Times) Copiously illustrated with photographs and drawings. No index.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:3 Ja '43

Reviewed by Waldemar Kaempffert

N Y Times p35 N 22 '42 150w

"Commendable is the ample use of figures, some of them strictly technical, some more explanatory in nature, and others making their point in a jocose way. In a book of this kind one may expect scientific inaccuracies. 'The Man Behind the Flight' is no exception to this rule." N. J. Hoff

N Y Times p23 Mr 14 '43 240w

Pratt p3 F '43

Wis Lib Bul 39:26 F '43

JOSEPH, ALEXANDER. Fundamentals of machines; a basic pre-induction training course. 255p il $1.20 Scribner

621.8 Machinery 43-4845

"Textbook for high schools following course PIT 102 issued jointly by War Department and Office of Education, to provide information leading to operational skills for such army jobs as airplane inspection, airplane engine mechanic, and armorer." Library J

Booklist 39:430 Je 15 '43

Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 70w

JOSEPH, ALEXANDER—Continued

N Y New Tech Bks 28:46 Jl '43

"A book which by the sheer lucidity of its many illustrations can teach elements of physics. Mr. Joseph's performance in this respect is well above the common run. . . The written text is of a homespun variety without any pretense to precisely clipped phrases. Not infrequently the scholar would find room for misinterpretation, and on occasion there is error. These lapses do not detract materially from a text which is both interesting and instructive." J. M. Juran

+ — N Y Times p27 My 9 '43 320w

"Particularly because of the many experiments described, mostly employing simple home-made apparatus, this will be a good book for any one who wants to understand thoroughly the basis of our mechanical age." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p12 S 5 '43 180w

JUDSON, CLARA (INGRAM) (MRS J. M. JUDSON). Donald McKay, designer of clipper ships; il. by John O'Hara Cosgrave II. 136p $1.75 Scribner

B or 92 McKay, Donald—Juvenile literature
43-14479

Biography of a great shipbuilder. The book describes the life of Donald McKay, from his boyhood on a Nova Scotian farm, thru his struggles to build more and better ships, until the day when his most beautiful effort, The Great Republic, burned at the docks in New York city. For ages ten to fourteen.

Booklist 40:99 N 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:417 N '43 140w

"Handsome book and an addition to our biography shelves." Gertrude Andrus

+ Library J 68:848 O 15 '43 90w

"Even the child who doesn't know about ships will find the book a satisfactory success story of an industrious apprentice. The pictures present admirably the intricate and beautiful construction of McKay's more famous clippers."

+ New Yorker 19:135 D 4 '43 60w

Springf'd Republican p10 D 14 '43 600w

"For younger readers than the audience for whom teen-age biographies are intended, the excellent group of life-stories to which this belongs will interest and inform boys and girls from ten years on. Mrs. Judson's special knack of engaging the interest of such readers can make fascinating, as in this volume, even the success-story of an 'industrious apprentice.' . . The pictures are uncommonly striking; their clear, cool, intricate details instantly suggest the old engravings of ship construction and rigging that so delight the modern eye and mind." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 O 17 '43 350w

JUDSON, CLARA (INGRAM) (MRS JAMES MCINTOSH JUDSON). People who work in the country and in the city; pictures by Keith Ward. 95p $2 Rand McNally

43-4558

Picture story book about nineteen country occupations and an equal number of city ones. Each occupation has a picture and one page of descriptive text. Grades one to three.

Booklist 39:356 My 1 '43

"Third-grade children can read text, younger ones will enjoy hearing it." E. G. Mullan

Library J 68:365 My 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p7 Jl 4 '43 300w

Wis Lib Bul 39:87 Je '43

JUDSON, CLARA (INGRAM) (MRS J. M. JUDSON). They came from France; il. by Lois Lenski. 246p $2 Houghton

43-11744

The adventures of a French family in New Orleans in the 1740's. They come expecting to make money and return to France, but the new country so intrigues them that they decide to stay. For grades five to eight.

"Clara Ingram Judson is perhaps the dean of our local children's writers. This is her 50th book and it shows the careful craftsmanship, the understanding of characterization, the gift of making detail interesting, which marks the skilled writer." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p1 N 14 '43 330w

Booklist 40:19 S '43

Cath World 158:317 D '43 50w

Reviewed by H. A. Masten
Christian Science Monitor p8 D 9 '43 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

Commonweal 39:122 N 19 '43 30w

"A readable story of foreign-born Americans, for the middle age group." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:325 S '43 70w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:827 O 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Burr
Library J 68:893 N 1 '43 100w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p8 Ja 16 '44 320w

Sat R of Lit 26:30 N 13 '43 180w

JUSTUS, MAY. Bluebird, fly up! il. by Helen Finger. 187p $2 Lippincott

43-8209

Series of stories about Glory and Matt who live in the Great Smokies in Tennessee. For readers eight to twelve.

"The real tang of the mountains is to be found here, in the talk of the people, in the way they live, in their homely pleasures and sometimes bitterly serious problems. The stories abound in mountain ballads, fiddle tunes, old games and folklore. A fine picture for the rest of America of how one little known part of the country lives." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p8 Je 20 '43 220w

"Only one who knows and loves the Southern mountaineers could write as intimately about their daily lives. Unexpected turns of phrase and unfamiliar words keep the less able ten- and eleven-year-old readers from many of the books of May Justus, but without her use of dialect much of the charm would disappear." Miriam Snow

+ Library J 68:530 Je 15 '43 120w

School & Society 57:612 My 22 '43 10w

K

KAFKA, MAXIMILIAN MARTYN. Flying health. 248p il $2 Military service

629.13256 Aeronautics—Medical aspects
43-9512

"Dr. Kafka's book is primarily a manual for flight surgeons which can be read with profit by pilots and ground crew. . . [It] is packed with understandable information on the physiology and psychology of flyers, how they can guard against every sort of disorder from high-altitude dizziness to tropical snake bite, and what the medical profession can do to assist." Weekly Book Review

N Y New Tech Bks 28:3 Ja '43

Reviewed by P. J. Searles
Weekly Book Review p26 My 23 '43 150w

KAGEY, RUDOLF (KURT STEEL, pseud). Ambush house. 239p $2 Harcourt

43-5779

Detective story.

"You won't believe a word of it—it's all about revenge, a mysterious gold watch, mines and shipwrecks—you certainly won't be able to follow detective Hank Hyer's intricate reasoning, you'll squirm at his corny winsomeness in his dealings with the fair sex of all ages—but, somehow, I'm sure you'll read on to the end, avidly. . . All right, I did read it through, and so will you, but do I have to approve?" Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p9 Ap 25 '43 140w

Booklist 39:427 Je 15 '43

Christian Century [illegible]:490 Ap 21 '43 40w

"Action swift and unpredictable; dialogue lively and sometimes a bit cryptic; sleuthing in the best Hyer manner." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 11 '43 120w

"Satisfactory."

Sat R of Lit 26:54 Ap 17 '43 40w

"There is a good deal of chasing hither and yon but it all seems to get nowhere except wedding bells for Hyer. It is to be hoped that the clang of these latter will not further deafen him to the still small tinkle of the financial alarm clock tocsin in the future. Hank is better when he's hardboiled." Baron Ireland

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 11 '43 240w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p20 Ap 18 '43 230w

KAHLER, ERICH. Man the measure; a new approach to history. 700p $5 Pantheon bks.

901 Civilization—History. Man. History, Universal 43-16944

"Said the ancient Greek sophist, Protagoras, 'Man is the measure of the universe'; and an echo of this familiar dictum is found in the title of Erich Kahler's latest book, 'Man the Measure.' It is no exaggeration to call this work of some 700 closely packed pages monumental, not merely because of its length, but because it deals with the history of mankind from its primitive beginnings down to our own turbulent age. In short, to use the author's own words, it is his aim 'to write history as the biography of man, and from it to gain a vision of the future of man'; and he makes the interesting observation that 'the unity of humanity and the unity of history both originate in the Christian world religion.' " Christian Science Monitor

"In this important and distinctly readable book, Erich Kahler has carried out a stupendous task with remarkable success." T. L. L.

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 31 '43 600w

"It is not an easy task to do justice to Kahler's complex book which is overflowing with clever observation and keen points of view—and nevertheless as a whole is a bitter disappointment. The author is one of the most sensitive and best read scholars of Europe, who has worked in many fields of history, sociology and social science. . . But the author is caught by a strange self-complacency in claiming to have found 'a new approach to history.' In reality all he does is to appraise the past from a contemporary angle and in the light of his personal philosophy." Max Fischer

— + Commonweal 39:282 D 31 '43 850w

+ Social Studies 35:46 Ja '44 60w

"Erich Kahler is one of those prodigious scholars whose acquaintance with the environment of man runs through most of the cultural areas . . . and, as a result, his book is a compendium of the results of tremendous research in a wide variety of fields. The reader will be impressed by the range of Kahler's undertaking as much as he will by the content of the volume. It is almost overwhelming. . . No one writer in this modern age could possibly have the universal grasp of culture which would not reveal gaps in scholarship. Apart from his almost psychopathic preoccupation with things German, Kahler reveals weaknesses in two fields, both of which are important for his thesis. The first is the evolution of Christianity and the state of the early church. . . The second field is the evolution of modern political economy." C. D. Kean

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 16 '44 1500w

"This is not a contentious book. Kahler does not argue his points; he merely states what he believes and suggests certain consequences. It is, of course, tendentious history; but I have never read any history that was worth reading that did not have an interpretative tendency. The real beauty of this volume is that the reader will be edified and concerned even though he disagrees." E. C. Lindeman

+ Survey G 32:508 D '43 460w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard

Weekly Book Review p24 Ja 23 '44 1500w

KAHN, ELY JACQUES. G. I. jungle; an American soldier in Australia and New Guinea. 150p $2 Simon & Schuster

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—New Guinea. World war, 1939—Australia 43-13145

Personal narrative of a young American infantryman in Australia and New Guinea. Before he entered the army Mr Kahn was on the staff of the New Yorker and some of the material of this book was first published in that magazine.

"Kahn's first book, 'The Army Life,' covered the period from his induction, somewhat unhappy, in pre-Pearl Harbor days, to his shipment overseas. . . The new book is fully as funny as the old, with the same wry and self-deprecatory humor, but the style has a new quality, a leanness and muscularity, that matches the new change in perspective, from civilian's to soldier's, and just incidentally manages to produce some of the best, most honest and least pretentious war reporting yet published in America." S. E. Hyman

+ Book Week p7 S 12 '43 600w

Booklist 40:43 O 1 '43

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield

Nation 157:329 S 18 '43 120w

Reviewed by Walter Graebner

N Y Times p7 S 12 '43 650w

New Yorker 19:87 S 11 '43 70w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 26:9 S 25 '43 290w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 19 '43 330w

"Mr. Kahn is a sensitive, observant fellow who manages to keep his emotions on an even keel. There is little here that concerns the tactics of the operations in which he was involved. He tells, instead, of life in the Army camps in Australia; he has many understanding observations on the character of the tough and independent Australians; finally, he tells what it was like in New Guinea." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p4 S 5 '43 500w

KAHN, FRITZ. Man in structure and function; tr. from the German and ed. by George Rosen. 2v il $10 Knopf

612 Man 43-225

"In ten parts, this monumental two-volume treatise deals first with life, from electron to man, then considers in turn the skeleton, the musculature, circulation of the blood, respiration, digestion, nutrition, the nervous system, the skin and sensory organs, and sex life." (Scientific Bk Club R) "The point of view of the exposition is broadly anthropological, biological and even more, including what the Germans call Erde-Lehre—a kind of combination of physical geography, geology, agriculture, meteorology and chemistry. Kahn sees man in his world—from conception, through birth, to death." (N Y Times)

"Dr. Kahn has the rare gift of visualizing his data, and he reveals a superb skill in projecting his visions in the form of three-dimensional, dynamic drawing. He has also a keen aptness in literally drawing analogies, and

KAHN, FRITZ—Continued
these serve to make abstruse relationships and functions easy to grasp." Iago Galdston

+ Am J Pub Health 33:752 Je '43 490w

"There is a clarity and New Testament simplicity to the prose style in this work that will do a lot toward bringing the layman and the vast subject of biology into closer communion. To the credit of the author, he has carefully related his scientific information to the commonplace, providing constant and legible illustration for what might have been dull or complicated." Jack Conroy

+ Book Week p6 Ap 18 '43 430w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Jl '43

"Widely read in Germany before the war, it has been translated and revised by American biologists for an American audience. For number and character of its remarkable schematic diagrams, it has no equal in English. Simple in treatment, yet immensely detailed, much of it reads like the lively, humorous comment of a talented teacher, surrounded with all illustrative gadgets of the lecture hall. Its price and exhaustiveness may prevent it from achieving the popularity it merits." J. C. Shipman

+ Library J 68:40 Ja 1 '43 100w

"The text is accurate, detailed, adequate, albeit somewhat plodding. Perhaps it is as well that it should be because its principal purpose is to furnish an explanation of the illustrations. To the illustrations I return fascinated, as I am sure any one else will be the moment he opens the book. They have the qualities of the wonderful exhibits in the Deutsche Musee in Munich." Logan Clendening

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 4 '43 850w

"Authoritative, full of illustrative detail, rather elephantine in style here and there. Comprehensiveness is the main feature."

+ — New Yorker 19:88 Ap 10 '43 50w

"Dr. Kahn's work is a notable attempt to provide for popular comprehension the mechanisms of the human body. Dr. Kahn does this with not only a well-proportioned and smooth text but with an unusual set of illustrations, nearly all of which are original. The latter, indeed, contribute largely to the fact that his work reaches so high a plane. . . In some of the drawings, however, Dr. Kahn oversteps the possibilities of a picture to present a concept. . . This work could have been executed by but few persons. The physician is usually poorly prepared, the professor is too narrow, the artist too inaccurate, the popularizer too superficial. One envies anyone ignorant of his bodily mechanisms who is reading this book." W. J. S. Kreig

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:11 Jl 17 '43 700w

"Magnificent and highly original illustrations appear on almost every page and add immeasurably to the text itself. Too much cannot be written of the stimulating, informative effect achieved by the combination. From the discussion of the body, composed of many chemical substances, to the future task of human biology—not to rejuvenate old people but to increase the life span by helping young people to grow old normally—Dr. Kahn's book, so ably translated by Dr. Rosen, makes biology interesting and exciting."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Ap '43 240w

"This work is not for scientists nor for technical students, although it is hard to imagine any one failing to find interest in it. The author has been ruthless in excluding great masses of detail and he has been generous with entertaining matter; yet even a glance through the two volumes conveys an impression of solidity and technical richness. Any one who reads it will find that it is, in reality, that rare phenomenon, a readable book on human biology which is at once sound, sane and scientific." H. M. Parshley

+ Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 25 '43 650w

KAHN, JOAN. To meet Miss Long. 250p $2 Lippincott

43-2942

"The Longs are 'an ordinary American family' living in a New York apartment. There is quiet excitement about such things as formal dresses, high school dances and homework. There are, too, endless pages of talk—the kind families indulge in when no one is looking. But if there is any high point in the story or any point of focus I suppose that must be Mrs. Long's sudden flight Californiaward to attend an ailing sister and the subsequent taking over by Aunt Louise. This Aunt Louise doesn't fit the traditional conception of aunthood in that she is—well, may I say, flighty? But they're a pretty good family, these Longs, and you may enjoy their acquaintance." Book Week

"A restful interlude between Dieppe raids and underground plots." E. J. C.

Book Week p6 Mr 21 '43 180w

"A simple, straightforward, honest young book about a high school girl and her family. . . The book is well written in a skimming, superficial, light way. The style is simple—particularly good in the youngsters' conversation—but so neatly restrained that the reader often has the feeling that something momentous is going to break—and it never does." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p41 Mr 21 '43 550w

"Miss Kahn's tale of Ellen Long and her efforts to arrange the love affairs of her glamorous but rather trying aunt, is like an orange ice on a scorching summer day, delicious, refreshing, no lingering flavor, no regrets." Page Cooper

+ Weekly Book Review p8 F 28 '43 600w

Wis Lib Bul 39:74 My '43

KALICHEVSKY, VLADIMIR ANATOLE. Amazing petroleum industry. 234p $2.25 Reinhold

665.5 Petroleum 43-4715

"An outline for the layman of the production, transportation and utility of petroleum." N Y New Tech Bks

"The facts are interesting enough but the grammatical constructions are oftentimes stiff and the ideas cloudy." H. J. McDonald

+ — Book Week p9 Ap 4 '43 290w

"The book is exceptionally free from typographical errors for a first edition. However, a few inaccuracies have escaped attention. . . These minor defects do not for the most part affect the portion of the book dealing with refining processes, and this is the portion which, in the opinion of the reviewer, will prove to be of greatest value. 'The Amazing Petroleum Industry' fills a gap in petroleum literature, and a large group both within and without the industry representing those who know a little about petroleum refining, but not enough, will be grateful to the author. He is to be congratulated." R. P. Anderson

+ — Chem & Eng N 21:820 My 25 '43 600w

"The book is useful to anyone unfamiliar with the petroleum industry who requires an elementary presentation. It may also be helpful to technical men in the industry who have difficulty explaining their work to the general public." G. F. Fitzgerald

+ Chem & Met Eng 50:211 N '43 280w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Jl '43

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:15 Ja '43

"Dr. Kalichevsky tells the story as it is today, clearly, simply, yet scientifically." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 4 '43 130w

KALICHEVSKY, VLADIMIR ANATOLE, and STAGNER, BERT ALLEN. Chemical refining of petroleum; the action of various refining agents and chemicals on petroleum and its products. (Am. chemical soc. monograph ser) rev ed 550p il $7.50 Reinhold

665.5 Petroleum 42-18280

"Enlarged by 100 pages, this recent edition includes many new investigations and processes developed since the publication of the first edition in 1933 [Book Review Digest, 1934]." N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 27:42 Jl '42

"Graduate students of chemistry or chemical engineering would derive much benefit from reading this book, especially if they were anticipating employment in the industry." Roland Ward

+ N Y Times p26 Ag 29 '43 700w

KALLEN, HORACE MEYER. Art and freedom; a historical and biographical interpretation of the relations between the ideas of beauty, use and freedom in western civilization from the Greeks to the present day. 2v $6.50 Duell

701 Esthetics. Art—Philosophy 43-399

"A two-volume study, sweeping and detailed, of the interrelations between philosophy, psychology, history, and the arts, in which the discussion ranges from the Greeks to the latest swing band. This is probably Dr. Kallen's magnum opus and is intended for reasonably heavy-browed readers only." New Yorker

Reviewed by Eliseo Vivas
J Philos 40:517 S 16 '43 2800w

Library J 67:1067 D 1 '42 30w

Reviewed by Eliseo Vivas
Nation 156:814 Je 5 '43 1200w

"No book review can do justice to this book. It deals with an enormous field of human activity and thought about which Mr. Kallen knows an enormous amount. In a thousand pages he presents his readers with a great deal of information about the history of esthetics, and although many may disagree with his conclusions, many will admire the exhaustive detail of parts of the book as well as its forthright defense of freedom of art." M. G. White

N Y Times p36 S 26 '43 1100w

New Yorker 18:60 Ja 23 '43 50w

"It is sometimes fortunate that our language does contain adjectives of superlative degree. For once in a while a book comes along which deserves them. The present study by Horace Kallen, professor of philosophy at the New School for Social Research, is such a book. Having labored on it during the entire period between the two wars, he now gives us the harvest of his ripe wisdom in what is beyond any reasonable doubt the best book of its kind ever published." Robert Bierstedt

+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ap 3 '43 1100w

"To understand the meaning of freedom deeply enough to bring it to fulfillment in the lives of men is the central task of the present era. The crowning value of this multi-valued work by one of our great contemporary philosophers is its profound insight into this problem: insight such as could come to fruition only through a lifetime in which actively to serve ideals has been an inherent part of the philosopher's role." L. M. Rosenblatt

+ Survey G 32:265 Je '43 550w

"With all its length, detailed scholarship, close reasoning and often complex style, Art and Freedom is the real thing, a book about the philosophy of art which has the feel of genuine and intimate acquaintance with art and which lets the artist do a share of the talking. . . One comes away from Art and Freedom with the feeling of having been in an air clipper and seen both art and life spread out beneath in special clarity. One will regret that through the filter of the author's experience theatre has not sifted—it offers so much to sustain and reinforce the book's point of view—but to the reader it will seem as if the theatre is there. It is that central a study of the way of art."

+ Theatre Arts 27:322 My '43 950w

"Horace M. Kallen is an independent figure in contemporary American philosophy whose thought has arresting qualities of freshness and suggestiveness. Trained in the formal discipline of the schools, close to James, Santayana and Dewey, he writes not as the traditional professor of philosophy, seeking to explain all the elements of our experience in terms of a few comprehensive ideas, but as a lover of wisdom, beauty and freedom, inquiring into their nature and the conditions of their existence in whatever context they are found." Sidney Hook

+ Weekly Book Review p20 Ap 11 '43 1550w

KAMERMAN, SYLVIA E., ed. Writing the short short story. 174p $2 Writer

808.3 Short story 42-50147

"The articles contained here offer suggestions and practical aids for solving the problems in short short story writing as they have been worked out successfully by leading writers, critics, and teachers. For those who will learn the rules, the short short market is a profitable one, and it is my hope that this book will serve as a stimulating guide to success in this popular field. Several of the articles in this book appeared originally in The Writer." (Pref) Partial contents: The mechanics of the short short story, by T. M. White; Short short cut into print, by T. W. Duncan; The short short story form, by W. S. Campbell; Cutting sells a short short, by Robert Oberfirst.

Booklist 39:365 My 15 '43

"This is an excellent and concise textbook, and the first, so far as I know, to deal exclusively with what we Americans, with our love of technical terms, call 'Short Shorts.'" S. T. Burtwell

+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 F 6 '43 1050w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 80w

KANDEL, ISAAC LEON. Cult of uncertainty. 129p $1.50 Macmillan

370.1 Education—U.S. 43-3951

"In this work, the 15th volume in the Kappa Delta Pi Lecture Series, the challenge is hurled with no hesitant note against the philosophy of change which neglects enduring values in an abortive quest for freedom. Dr. Kandel issues a stirring appeal for a philosophy which does not reject the tradition and authority of inherited cultural values, essential permanence, and depth of vision. He speaks to all who are bewildered and baffled by an uncertain educational philosophy." School & Society

"This book is both stimulating and irritating. It provokes re-examination of many placidly accepted stereotypes of modern education, but it also irritates the intelligent reader by the sweeping generality of its conclusions, which are surprising coming from a person of such scholarly attainments. Reading the book will be a good tonic to all who suspect that they have swallowed, unquestioningly, generalities about education, progressive or otherwise." Hilda Taba

+ El School J 44:306 Ja '44 750w

School & Society 57:280 Mr 6 '43 90w

"Dr. Kandel's prose is solid and his argument is clear, cogent, forceful. It will not convince the Progressives but it will give them pause for reply. Writing with earnest conviction, the author has helped to clear the murky educational atmosphere. His position is that of the classical, not pragmatic, humanist." H. H. Horne

+ School & Society 58:349 O 30 '43 800w

"In general, this reviewer tends to agree with the author, but one criticism must be voiced. At times, one gets the impression that Dr. Kandel divides educators into dichotomous categories—either they are completely with him or they are completely against him, whereas in reality on the issues that he cites here are all shades of gray between the black and white. . . [However] this small book is a 'must' for all teachers in elementary and secondary schools." R. H. McF.

+ — Social Studies 34:276 O '43 1000w

KANE, HARNETT THOMAS. The bayous of Louisiana; il. with drawings by Tilden Landry and photographs. 341p map $3.50 Morrow

917.63 Louisiana—Description and travel 43-13809

Describes the lives and customs of the bayou folk of Southern Louisiana, many of them descended from the Arcadians who were driven out of Nova Scotia in 1755. The author is a New Orleans newspaper man and professor of journalism; his first book was Louisiana Hayride (Book Review Digest, 1941). Bibliography. No index.

"A hard book to lay down. It has all the drive and vitality and the competent craftsmanship of his earlier narrative of the Huey Long regime, 'Louisiana Hayride.' It has also, as its subject matter deserves, warmth and depth—a keen appreciation of places and people, a meaning subtly but powerfully suggested." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p4 O 10 '43 300w

Booklist 40:77 N 1 '43

"An intriguing and beguiling volume. This is a pottage of most delectable history flavored with geography." L. L. Marchand

+ Boston Globe p17 O 27 '43 150w

"You will enjoy every page of this delightful book. It holds one's interest from the first page to the last; it is well written by a man who knows every inch of the country he describes." B. L. Conway

+ Cath World 158:311 D '43 230w

Christian Science Monitor p14 N 27 '43 650w

"A valuable and beautiful book. . . The text is illustrated by a few pleasant drawings and many photographs of considerable distinction." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p24 O 31 '43 750w

"Familiar material, some of it, but handsomely taken care of by a sensitive writer who is also a good storyteller."

+ New Yorker 19:98 O 9 '43 80w

Reviewed by Jonathan Daniels

Sat R of Lit 26:60 D 4 '43 450w

"Well written and sympathetic, the book lingers in the memory." Jacques Ducharme

+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 5 '43 800w

" 'The Bayous of Louisiana' is no guide book, no local history, except in the best sense. Here is everything as it should be told in a book of this sort—just enough geography and geology, historical learning that is firm but rests lightly, and plenty of rich first-hand detail on the people and exactly what they are like. In short, this is an affectionate and felicitous job of good reporting." L. L. Engelking

+ Weekly Book Review p7 N 7 '43 1000w

KANE, HENRY BUGBEE. Tale of the crow [il. by the author]. (Wild world tales) [47p] $1.50 Knopf

598.2 Crows. Birds—Juvenile literature. Photography of birds 43-1219

Excellent photographs and brief text describe the life of a crow, from the time it was hatched until it was grown. The account is factual and not sentimental. For young readers.

Booklist 39:338 Ap 15 '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 24 '43 120w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:100 Mr '43 90w

"Factual and yet entertaining. . . Excellent addition to all children's rooms." Gertrude Andrus

+ Library J 68:250 Mr 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

N Y Times p10 Jl 4 '43 240w

"Amazing photographs of crows in the nest and in the forest (there is even one of a crow in a forest fire), combined with excellent text, make a book to interest anyone seven to seventy."

+ New Yorker 19:69 My 29 '43 50w

"Revealing photographs and absorbing text tell the life history of a crow in the pine woods. Beautiful. Truthful."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 15 '43 20w

Wis Lib Bul 39:75 My '43

KANTOR, MACKINLAY. Happy land. 92p $1.25 Coward-McCann

42-36434

A short novel about a boy from a midwestern town who joined the navy and was killed in action somewhere in the Pacific. In the weeks that follow the receipt of the news, his father, the town pharmacist, recalls the principal events in the lives of his son and himself.

Booklist 39:201 Ja 15 '43

"This is a quiet book, but in its eloquence and warmth it will bring a spiritual balm greatly needed in these days." Lisle Bell

+ Books p10 Ja 17 '43 500w

"The characters are all good, kindly, thoughtful, and patriotic, typical of what America likes to think of itself when appearing in print. The story is homely, honest, and sentimental and will be widely read because it fits the mood of the day."

+ Cath World 107:106 Ap '43 230w

"It is a kind of sermon, but does not seem to be a sermon at all. It is a tale with a moral, but the moral is unobtrusive. It arouses inspiration and increases one's patriotism, but nothing appears to be so little intended as that. It is just a story about you and your boy and your boy's friend. When you read it, you feel that no possible sacrifice for the preservation of a country in which such boys grow up in such a way could be too great." R. H. M.

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 F 20 '43 470w

Commonweal 37:474 F 26 '43 140w

"It is a charming life [story], but in the opinion of at least one reader too overwhelmingly on the side of high-mindedness for credibility; the men fighting in the Pacific are heroic but they are also human. We at home ought certainly to be able to draw fortitude from stronger stuff than this." Diana Trilling

Nation 156:138 Ja 23 '43 130w

"The story is as sentimental as any Currier & Ives print, but it is effective and it fits its time." Robert Van Gelder

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 17 '43 440w

"An ever so sentimental tale, but affecting all the same."

New Yorker 18:59 Ja 23 '43 60w

Wis Lib Bul 39:42 Mr '43

"It is a short book, yet into its few pages it packs the feeling and substance of several generations of simple, decent people." Robert Littell

+ Yale R n s 32:vi spring '43 250w

KAPP, ERNST. Greek foundations of traditional logic. 95p $1.50 Columbia univ. press [7s 6d Oxford]

160 Logic. Philosophy, Greek 42-50014

"This book will be of interest to the student of philosophy and its specialized branch of logic. Definitely, it is not a book dealing with logic as such, but one which seeks to disclose the roots of logic in Plato and Aristotle. Treating the four main topics of traditional logic, which are concepts, judgments, syllogisms, and induction, Dr. Kapp traces the origins and meanings of these in Greek philosophical thought." Crozer Q

"The volume is not easy reading. It is not meant for the amateur, but for the mature student of philosophy." G. W. Davis

Crozer Q 20:170 Ap '43 250w

+ Ethics 54:61 O '43 350w

KAPSNER, OLIVER LEONARD, ed. Catholic subject headings; a list designed for use with Library of Congress subject headings or the Sears list of subject headings for small libraries. 256p $3.50 St John's abbey press, Collegeville, Minn.

025.3 Subject headings 42-24753

"A list of religious subject headings from the Catholic viewpoint. It covers all branches of Catholic theology, the Bible, canon law, church history, and more important non-Catholic subject headings in theology. Features include subdivisions, cross references, explanatory notes, and classification numbers from both the Lynn-LC and Walsh-Dewey schedules. Theological determinations of headings are based on the rules and examples of the Vatican Norme." Booklist

Booklist 39:217 F 1 '43

"Catholic Subject Headings cannot be recommended because the ineptitude of the independent contributions betrays a lack of understanding of and familiarity with certain elementary and fundamental aspects of cataloging technique. The L.C. list contains more sound and reliable subject headings suitable to the needs of Catholic libraries than the Catholic list. The few changes and additions required by Catholic libraries may be made in the L.C. list itself with greater convenience than by the employment of a separate list for Catholic libraries." C. J. Farrell

— Library Q 13:275 Jl '43 850w

KARASZ, MARISKA. Good housekeeping see and sew; a picture book of sewing; drawings by Christine Engler. 83p $1.50 Stokes

646.2 Sewing—Juvenile literature 43-51273

By means of simply worded instructions and large, clear drawings, this book teaches little girls how to thread a needle, how to use a thimble and how to make a number of stitches. Step by step directions are also given for making a tray-cloth, a book-cover, a stuffed animal, a pincushion, a skating cap and a skirt.

"The whole subject is explained simply and clearly, with large type and drawings that show how every stitch is made, how to hold the cloth, how various seams are sewed, and all the rest of the mysteries. I wish I'd had a book like this when I was a little girl." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p6 N 14 '43 70w

Booklist 40:63 O 15 '43

"Little girls who want to learn to sew and really make things will cherish this book, which is full of fascinating pictures that make each step perfectly plain. The basic steps here illustrated may be helpful even to some big girls whose fingers happen to feel clumsy with a needle." Helen Henley

+ Christian Science Monitor p8 S 14 '43 50w

"A most practical book for sewing beginners. . . Very little instruction would be necessary with the use of this book." E. S. Littlefield

+ Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by Margaret Miller

Library J 68:893 N 1 '43 70w

"We aren't sure that little girls are so anxious to sew that they are willing to get it all out of a book, but if they are, this certainly is the volume. It tells everything from the right way to thread a needle and knot a thread to how simple garments are made, probably more understandably than Grandmother could tell it, at that."

+ New Yorker 19:134 D 4 '43 50w

School & Society 58:192 S 11 '43 20w

Wis Lib Bul 39:147 N '43

KARLOFF, BORIS, ed. Tales of terror; with an introduction. 317p 49c World pub.

Short stories—Collections 43-16438

"In his introduction to these tales Boris Karloff makes a distinction between 'horror' and 'terror' two terms which are often used interchangeably. By his definition, the essential element of terror is fear, especially fear of the unknown and unknowable, while horror carries with it a connotation of revulsion, which does not necessarily imply fear. Upon this distinction, which appears to be a valid one, Mr. Karloff has based his choice of the stories to appear in this volume." N Y Times

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p42 N 14 '43 400w

"The book includes a few old stand-bys, but for literate shivers, such tales as Helen Hull's Clay-Shuttered Doors and Oliver Onions' brilliant The Beckoning Fair One make the collection well worth reading."

+ Time 42:104 D 6 '43 50w

KATONA, GEORGE. War without inflation; the psychological approach to problems of war economy. 213p $2.50 Columbia univ. press

332.414 Inflation (finance). World war, 1939 —Economic aspects 42-25552

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Dr. Katona's book is not only a very valuable contribution to the analysis of the inflation problem, but also opens up vistas for a new development in economic theory." Carl Landauer

+ Am Econ R 33:161 Mr '43 650w

"Interestingly written, suggestive, and astute, little book." J. A. Ross, Jr.

+ Ann Am Acad 227:172 My '43 850w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:582 Ap '43 20w

"Although the author indicates that he considers himself a pioneer in this attempt to apply the findings of psychology to these problems, he actually presents no ideas that have not been considered by every thoughtful student of consumer economics. For those to whom the ideas may be new, the book will have little appeal because of the academic presentation of the material." F. B. Carleton

J Home Econ 35:303 My '43 200w

Reviewed by William Fellner

J Pol Econ 51:370 Ag '43 900w

"The aversion of many educational psychologists against punitive measures is shared by the author to such an extent that he refrains altogether from discussing them. . . On the other hand, the author's own suggestions are utterly vague or else highly questionable. . . Nevertheless, this is on the whole a thoughtful and well-written book of a learned author. But if he wonders about the fact that textbooks on war economy (and the same is true of monographs) are not concerned with those psychological aspects which he stresses, the answer might very well be that those aspects do not much contribute toward solving the problems of inflation." Arthur Nussbaum

+ — Pol Sci Q 58:444 S '43 650w

"The only criticism about the book is that the author seems somewhat optimistic as to the result of the struggle. This criticism can only be proved by the passing of time. The program laid down is a good one, and War Without Inflation certainly deserves a wide public." W. T. Grenfell

+ — Social Studies 34:187 Ap '43 850w

"Dr. Katona's book is not exactly a primer for laymen. It is a guide to those at the helm and the citizens who make it a duty to watch those at the helm. Here is a complete review of the pitfalls set for our economic disarray and of the means to combat them. Taking war and its economic waste for granted, we must be miserly in all other pursuits." Toni Stolper

Survey G 32:104 Mr '43 650w

KAULFERS, WALTER VINCENT; KEFAUVER, GRAYSON NEIKIRK, and ROBERTS, HOLLAND DE WITTE, eds. Foreign languages and cultures in American education. 405p il $3.50 McGraw

407 Language and languages—Study and teaching 42-50500

"In this book teachers in 23 representative high schools report in their own words how they carried on programs in foreign languages and in foreign cultures. Particular attention is given to the correlation and integration of subject areas in programs centered upon the unification of the American people through a cultural approach in the high-school classroom." (School & Society) Contains an index to anthologies and collections of foreign literature in English translation; and an index to collections by country, literary classifications and authors. Index.

KAULFERS, W. V.—Continued

Booklist 39:270 Mr 1 '43
School & Society 56:588 D 12 '42 60w

KAUN, ALEXANDER SAMUEL. Soviet poets and poetry. 208p $2.50 Univ. of Calif.

891.71 Russian poetry

"A study of Russian poetry that shows theories and trends of individual writers and groups from the period preceding the revolution to the present. Quotations are translated into English by the author. Parts of this work have appeared in various periodicals; it is intended as part of a larger survey of all Soviet literature." Booklist

Booklist 40:110 D 1 '43

"A splendid job of organization." J. E. Thal
+ N Y Times p16 Ja 9 '44 440w

KAY-SCOTT, CYRIL, pseud. See Wellman, F. C.

KAYE-SMITH, SHEILA (MRS PENROSE FRY). Tambourine, trumpet and drum. 356p $2.50 Harper [10s 6d Cassell]
43-13161

The lives of four English sisters, told against the background of three wars—the Boer war, the European war, and the present conflict. The daughters of a retired colonel, the sisters are widely spaced as to age, so that the oldest, Sibylla, is the heroine of the Boer war section. Myra, the youngest, lives two lives, and repents mistakes of the European war years in the midst of the world conflict. Sibylla rounds out her long life in her seacoast home town, and dies a victim of a bombing.

Reviewed by Arna Bontemps
Book Week p7 O 3 '43 500w
Booklist 40:47 O 1 '43
Cath World 158:217 N '43 250w

"One reason that it all seems so actual is the author's skill at drawing character, especially her principal characters. She is particularly good, when the person is as disagreeable as Sibylla's lifelong friend and contemporary, Violet Faircloth. The life story of Myra Landless has convincing religious implications. And the way Sibylla stands up under the terrible blows that descend upon her right down to her defiant end indicates the author's belief that such a life need not be empty at all."
+ Commonweal 38:541 S 17 '43 370w

"Effect of each war on lives and loves of the four women of one generation is well handled, and book is moving, without horror. Good escape for today." J. M. Flexner
+ Library J 68:668 S 1 '43 70w

"Although Tambourine, Trumpet, and Drum, in spite of its startling and not very relevant title, is by no means unconventional in conception, it is at least an extremely competent piece of work." Wilfrid Gibson
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 16 '43 100w

"The three young ladies of the 1900 production of 'Patience' and their schoolgirl sister grow and change between wars as mortals must. There is an inevitable rightness about them when we pick them up again after a lapse of years. Those are the things that would have happened to them; that is what they would have become. . . That the book is a beautiful piece of master craftsmanship will not surprise Miss Kaye-Smith's readers. Perhaps it is not a better book than 'Joanna Godden.' Perhaps it only seems so because we don't get many of its kind nowadays. But if you loved 'Joanna' or 'Cavalcade' or 'Old Wives' Tales,' this is what you've been searching for." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p4 S 12 '43 320w

"A workmanlike study of ordinary human behavior in moments of crisis, in which Miss Kaye-Smith demonstrates her admirable understanding of the fact that essentially decent people often do indecent things and that the cowardly can upon occasion be very brave."
+ New Yorker 19:85 S 11 '43 90w

Reviewed by Bess Jones
Sat R of Lit 26:62 D 4 '43 320w

Reviewed by John Hampson
Spec 171:70 Jl 16 '43 260w
Times [London] Lit Sup p329 Jl 10 '43 950w

"Miss Kaye-Smith's talents as a novelist are of such a substantial sort that her people stand out, living, moving, in the full round, against the background of the changing times. . . Solid, simple, full-textured and without pretentiousness of any kind, 'Tambourine, Trumpet and Drum' presents graphically and with deep understanding the slow social changes that take place in England during the span of four sisters' lives. Here is one more substantial achievement of an able woman who is as English as the Thames—and just about as constant." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p6 S 12 '43 900w
Wis Lib Bul 40:9 Ja '44

KEAL, HARRY MORTON, and LEONARD, CLARENCE J. Essential mathematics for skilled workers; review arithmetic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, slide rule, and applied technical problems. 293p $2; college ed $1.50 Wiley

510.7 Mathematics. Machine shop practice
42-24892

"This book is presented as a text on computation, with a maximum of practice and a minimum of abstract theory. Shop theory has been avoided to make the book suitable for students of any applied science. Simple applications and formulas from many fields are used and classified for their interest and practice values." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 39:247 F 15 '43
Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 20w

"The book is especially valuable for students of any applied science, as simple applications and formulae from many fields are used and classified for their interest and practice values."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 30 '44 60w

KEENAN, JOHN L. Steel man in India; with the collaboration of Lenore Sorsby; introd. by Louis Bromfield. 224p $2.50 Duell

B or 92 Steel industry and trade. India—Social life and customs 43-16702

The author is an American who went out to India in 1913 to fill a three-year contract with the Tata steel company and stayed there for twenty-five years, the last eight as general manager of the company. His book is in part autobiography, in part social anecdote, but chiefly his observations on men and industry in India.

Booklist 40:140 D 15 '43

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 68:768 O 1 '43 140w

Reviewed by Frances Gunther
New Repub 110:60 Ja 10 '44 600w

"Written in a style free of any special distinction, 'A Steel Man in India' is, nevertheless, a great pleasure. More than Keenan's heartiness and zest and humor, the pleasure in the book is of another sort, something more wonderful, some quality of forthrightness that preserved him from getting mixed up in the white man's superiority over the Indian." Harvey Breit

+ N Y Times p6 N 21 '43 380w

Reviewed by Alzada Comstock
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 19 '43 500w

"Regardless of the fact that Mr. Keenan did not choose to fit his many keen observations into a more complete pattern, his 'human interest' story is very revealing. His understanding and appreciation of the fine qualities of the Indian people not only as human beings but as craftsmen should do much to dispel many common and harmful illusions concerning Asiatic peoples." K. L. Mitchell
+ Weekly Book Review p14 O 31 '43 1100w

KEES, WELDON. Last man. 48p $1.50 Colt
811

This volume of poetry is by a modern American poet. "Kees's approach to poetry, typical of the generation now thirty or thereabouts, invites comparison with the typical poets of the older generation. Where Eliot and his contemporaries sought the meaning of the disintegration of society deep in themselves or behind the periphery of events, in the past or in a profound disorder of the spirit, Kees and poets like Nims or Shapiro tend to stay close to the facts of disorder itself, calmly accepting a loss in depth in order not to be tricked into adventures which poetry cannot easily certify without losing itself in the wasteful diffusion of thought and word that characterized many of the older poets." (New Repub)

"'The Last Man' is not only truly distinguished as a book, but it is highly interesting and important as poetry. Weldon Kees is one of the most competent of our younger poets. He has something of the crabbedness of diction, the obliquity of reference, which seem to me to be cultivated as ends in themselves by some of our contemporary versemakers. But he has also truly poetic experience and reflection to express, and shares them sincerely." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p9 D 12 '43 140w

Reviewed by William Poster
New Repub 109:890 D 20 '43 330w

Reviewed by R. G. Davis
N Y Times p42 N 21 '43 60w

"A first book, not free from influences, but bearing the marks of a literate talent with a satiric edge."
+ New Yorker 19:80 Ja 15 '44 20w

KEHL, GEORGE LOUIS. Principles of metallographic laboratory practice. 2d ed 453p il $4 McGraw 669 Metallography 43-2221

"Because of the favorable reception accorded the first edition [Book Review Digest, 1939] of this textbook, the author has kept this revised edition to the original objective of providing a fundamental treatment of metallographic laboratory principles. . . Data on the latest and supplementary laboratory manipulations and processes have been added, and illustrations showing the contrast between results of proper and improper procedures are more numerous than in the previous edition. The appendix, containing extensive data on etching reagents, hardness numbers, etc., has been rearranged and expanded." (Chem & Met Eng) Index.

"The reviewer considers the book a good investment for any one engaged in metallographic test work, youngsters as well as oldsters, particularly if available library facilities are limited." H. S. Rawdon
+ Chem & Eng N 21:726 My 10 '43 650w
Chem & Met Eng 50:195 Mr '43 100w
Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:47 Jl '43

KEITH, DAVID. Matter of accent. 241p $2 Dodd 43-2712

Detective story.

"Good."
+ Boston Globe p15 F 17 '43 50w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:321 F 27 '43 60w

"The narrative moves rather more slowly than spy stories are wont to do, but it has its good points." I. A.
N Y Times p11 F 21 '43 120w

"Intrigues of French factions in America basis of well written yarn that moves a bit too deliberately to effective climax. So-so."
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:20 F 20 '43 40w

"Mr. Keith is no E. Phillips Oppenheim, but he does evoke a feeling of intrigue and a vague sense of confidential matters coming to a boil." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 F 14 '43 170w

KELEMEN, PAL. Medieval American art. 2v pl $22.50 Macmillan
970.6571 Indians—Art. Indians—Antiquities. America—Antiquities 43-8917

"A work in two volumes, one devoted to text and the other to photographs, and probably the most comprehensive survey of pre-Columbian art—Mayan, Toltec, Aztec, and so on—that has yet been attempted." New Yorker

Reviewed by Leo Lerman
Atlantic 173:128 F '44 70w

"The book has that rare quality which will make it equally appealing to novice and scholar." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p4 Je 6 '43 200w

"For the first time I think I understand, after some hours spent with the pictures in this book, the profound excitement and enthusiasm of some of my friends who have seen Chichen Itza and other examples of the architecture, sculpture and other arts of these civilizations in Mexico and Central and South America which were largely destroyed by the white man." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p4 Ag 1 '43 150w
Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 24 '43 600w

"A simple, straightforward digest of the available archaeological information to date, an attempt to assemble a continuous picture out of our scattered bits of knowledge. Anyone who has tried for himself to sift through the writings of archaeologists and anthropologists and historians, each one concentrated on his own interests and locale, will appreciate what this means, and how fine a job has been done. At times the account slips into the natural dulness of the textbook, but for the most part it is so astonishingly good that one is tempted to leave criticism for praise. It is lucid and inclusive, simple enough for the general reader but solid enough to be useful to the student as well, and it is abundantly illustrated. The importance of such a book can hardly be exaggerated." Elizabeth Wilder
+ Nation 157:530 N 6 '43 1200w

Reviewed by Kenneth MacGowan
New Repub 109:855 D 13 '43 1400w

"The most complete and penetrating general survey of native American art ever published in English or in any other language. . . For many years to come this book will be indispensable for both lay-students of many kinds and for professional workers in the fields of art, archaeology, history and science. All libraries really ought to provide their public with it, and individuals will owe it to themselves to acquire it." P. A. Means
+ N Y Times p6 My 30 '43 950w

"The text is crisp, dry, and documentary. The three hundred-odd photographs are as wisely chosen as they are beautifully reproduced. Together, text and reproductions give an unusually attractive opportunity to study those half-mysterious, wholly native cultures that existed on this continent long before the advent of the white man."
+ New Yorker 19:88 Je 5 '43 90w

KELEMEN, PAL—Continued

"This is a fascinating and exceptionally useful work, assembling the fruits of archeological research in a field of peculiar interest. Mr. Kelemen is an erudite writer, but in the preparation of his book he has unmistakably performed a labor of love, and he conveys his hard-won information in a delightfully readable manner." Royal Cortissoz

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 2 '44 1000w

"It often happens that general lay knowledge of a class of works of art crystallizes about a single, copiously illustrated text... In the present case, Mr. Kelemen has presented the public with a book in which the careful and informative selection of photographs will long serve the interests of the general reader, the student, and the specialist." George Kubler

+ Yale R n s 33:173 autumn '43 950w

KELLAND, CLARENCE BUDINGTON. Archibald the Great. 301p $2.50 Harper

43-10065

Gay mixture of Hollywood, a big ranch in Arizona, a bunch of Hollywood people on location, a pompous little authority on Napoleon, his mysterious secretary, two beautiful young women, and a determined widow. Most of the action takes place in Arizona where Hollywood tangles with gangsters operating in stolen tires.

"It's written in Kelland's typical wise-cracking, snappy dialogue style. There are many noble passages, too—but I am sure you will still enjoy this immensely." E. J. C.

+ Book Week p7 My 30 '43 250w

"Here is Mr. Kelland again with another snappy, up-to-the-minute story, full of eccentric characters. . . The plot is practically perfect with respect to suspense and news value." Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p24 My 9 '43 260w

"It is a merry make-believe." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p21 My 9 '43 380w

KELLER, ALBERT GALLOWAY. Net impressions. 349p $3.75 Yale univ. press

304 Social problems A42-4762

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"Throughout the book a virile, positive, and distinctive pen is wielded. Many readers will disagree with some of these 'net impressions,' but all will recognize honesty, clarity, rugged individuality, and an acknowledged indebtedness to William Graham Sumner." E. S. Bogardus

+ — Am Soc R 8:229 Ap '43 650w

"Professor Keller here presents a distillate of his forty years' reflection on the science of society. As such, it is much more personal and expansive than the more closely woven texts which have gone before, but does not differ from them in fundamentals." J. H. Mueller

Ann Am Acad 226:196 Mr '43 450w

"Prof. Keller's discussion of religion provides an interesting application of these evolutionary ideas. Emphatically anti-religious, he notes the facts of religion's evolution and present decay." William Barrett

Weekly Book Review p19 My 9 '43 750w

KELLER, ERNEST GEORGE. Mathematics of modern engineering; v. 2, Mathematical engineering. 309p $4 Wiley

510 Mathematics. Engineering

"The two purposes of this book are implied in its title and subtitle. Its first purpose (along with that of the first volume and a third, which is in preparation) is to present those aspects of mathematics which the experience of a large manufacturing organization, in dealing with electrical and mechanical investigations, has found to be of most value to engineers. The mathematical material treated is not the selection of one or two individuals of what they consider mathematically useful in the engineering work of a large engineering organization, but the composite opinion based on extensive experience of engineers and physicists who apply themselves to the abstract principles of engineering in daily engineering research and practice. The second purpose, which is even more important, is to present an introduction to the methods of mathematical engineering by the analysis of discrete physical systems." (Pref) Index. For volume one see Doherty and Keller in Book Review Digest, 1936.

Library J 67:1063 D 1 '42 10w

"The book under review must be viewed as a valuable contribution to the efforts to make mathematics palatable to engineering students. It is emphatically not a textbook of higher mathematics, nor one of advanced engineering, but an introduction to the methods of mathematical engineering. The author has selected his subject matter as well as the manner of presentation from this point of view." P. G. Bergmann

+ R of Scientific Instruments 14:111 Ap '43 950w

KELLER, JAMES G., and BERGER, MEYER. Men of Maryknoll. 191p $2 Scribner

922.2 Catholic foreign mission society of America—Biography. Missionaries 43-17257

"Annals of the American Catholic missionaries who have gone out from Maryknoll-on-the-Hudson to serve in the Bolivian jungle, the leper colonies of South China, and at Hong Kong, on Bataan, and elsewhere." New Yorker

"The young missionaries whose adventures are recorded in these pages were personally known to Father Keller, either during their training years or during his own visit to China. Their amusing, depressing, tragic, inspiring experiences have been translated into a series of stories whose interest never flags."

+ Cath World 158:508 F '44 90w

"A little sentimental here and there, perhaps, but filled with good and moving stories."

+ New Yorker 19:110 N 27 '43 50w

"The content of 'Men of Maryknoll,' it would seem, has been provided and edited by Father Keller. His model for the portraits of the men he knew so well appears to have been the funeral eulogy, where people are served up filleted. This, of course, is a guess on my part—based on a long appreciation of the works of Berger and a very occasional acquaintance with the worthy The Field Afar. And I would guess further that Berger, with his persistent tenderness—well, simply persisted. The collaboration has produced a book that sees everything plain, but the light is never harsh." Ira Wolfert

N Y Times p4 N 21 '43 800w

"Sampling this book can convey little of its flavor. It is a high-spirited, robust story of American courage, informed by faith and integrated by the love of God." Clare Godfrey

+ Weekly Book Review p42 D 5 '43 650w

KELLS, LYMAN MORSE. Calculus. 509p $5; to schools $3.75 Prentice-Hall

517 Calculus 43-14948

"The material is arranged with the purpose of attracting and holding the interest of the student by applications in fields which are real and obviously useful. This is done by selecting examples which are engineering rather than merely mathematical. Both differential and integral calculus are treated." (Weekly Book Review) Author is professor of mathematics at the United States Military Academy.

"Exceptionally thorough explanation. A freshness, abundancy of problems and fluent English makes this book an outstanding text."

+ Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:46 Jl '43

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p36 N 28 '43 150w

KELLS, LYMAN MORSE: KERN, WILLIS FREDERICK, and BLAND, JAMES R. Piloting and maneuvering of ships. 181p il $2.50 McGraw

527 Pilots and pilotage. Navigation 43-8514

"The instruction offered in this text covers the mathematical computations involved in navigation, in instruments used on shipboard, and the process of finding and recording position. Exercises follow each important topic. An outstanding feature of the book is the abundance of diagrams and pictures." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"It is a beautifully illustrated book on piloting by means of charts and recognized objects such as lighthouses and beacons. Of course, the principles expounded are applicable either to the piloting of ships or planes. The illustrations dramatize as well as illustrate the text."

+ Book Week p10 N 28 '43 50w

Booklist 40:5 S '43

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:31 Ap '43

KELLY, BLANCHE MARY, comp. Eternal purpose; introd. by James M. Gillis. 141p $1.50 Harper

242 Bible. Whole—Selections. Consolation 43-6241

Excerpts from Scripture arranged by subject. The purpose is "to show the meaning of suffering, as given by God himself, and to provide something of the comfort which derives from an understanding of that meaning." The text used is that of the Roman Catholic Douay version. References are listed, by page, in an appendix.

"Religious leaders who urge Scriptural reading as a profitable spiritual exercise do not always recognize the fact that many a novice needs to be introduced to the often bewildering field that lies between the covers of the Bible. Among books which undertake to fulfill this important function of guiding beginners, the volume named above deserves a rank notably incommensurate with its unpretentious appearance and modest tone." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 157:214 My '43 250w

"Protestants might read it without noticing more than a few unimportant variations in the phraseology of some familiar passages, and a few verses from books which they call Apocrypha. Nor are distinctively Roman Catholic doctrines stressed. . . The whole is a beautiful selection and arrangement of biblical material out of which those who suffer, especially from the loss of friends, may build an understanding of the place of suffering in the life of man and in the purpose of God."

+ Christian Century 60:578 My 12 '43 130w

"A good volume to have handy in ordinary times but particularly apposite right now."

+ Commonweal 38:104 My 14 '43 70w

KELLY, ERIC PHILBROOK. Land of the Polish people; phot. by courtesy of Polish information center and Gdynia-American line. 72p $2 Stokes

914.38 Poland—Juvenile literature 43-14136*

Informational book for young readers, describing the history, people, and culture of the people of Poland.

Booklist 40:63 O 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:414 N '43 70w

"Book can be used to answer school reference questions (although it lacks an index), but will be read mainly for its own sake, for it tells clearly and simply the story of a courageous land. Similar in make-up to The Land of William Tell by Bragdon. Many beautiful photographic illustrations by courtesy of the Polish Information Center." Marian Herr

+ Library J 68:895 N 1 '43 90w

School & Society 58:192 S 11 '43 20w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p7 O 10 '43 240w

KELLY, FRED CHARTERS. Wright brothers; a biography authorized by Orville Wright. 340p il $3.50 Harcourt

B or 92 Wright, Orville. Wright, Wilbur. Aeronautics—History 43-51170

"The aim in this book has been to satisfy the curiosity of the average non-technical reader regarding the work of the Wright Brothers, and to do so as simply as possible. No attempt has been made to go into minute technical details. Nor does the book cover the scientific researches and numerous inventions by Orville Wright since the death of his brother." (Pref) Index.

"Many articles and stories have appeared on the work of the Wright brothers, but a definitive book has long been overdue. Mr. Kelly, in this book, authorized by Orville Wright and most certainly written with his co-operation, has written the definitive book in a clear, concise style, nowhere too technical, nowhere too sensational. . . If there is any criticism of Mr. Kelly's book at all, it is that not quite enough of the technical history appears. From a technical point of view there have been better accounts, but for the vast general public now interested in aviation Mr. Kelly has provided an honest and fascinating story." Alexander Klemin

+ Am Hist R 49:129 O '43 650w

"The author, a retired newspaperman and long-time friend of the Wrights, is, of course, an out-and-out partisan of the brothers against all other pioneers, but the facts are on the side of Kelly and the Wrights." W. F. Morse

+ Book Week p8 My 23 '43 600w

Booklist 39:387 Je 1 '43

Bookmark 4:17 My '43

"A gripping report on a fascinating subject." Otto Zausmer

+ Boston Globe p19 My 19 '43 380w

Reviewed by B. L. Conway

Cath World 157:442 Jl '43 700w

Christian Century 60:610 My 19 '43 130w

"Mr. Kelly fulfils his stated aim accurately but does it quite dully and flatly. For that reason, I would not recommend the book except that I realize the scarcity of biographies of subjects much in demand and that, since we somehow have to fill the requests of young readers, we must make the best of this and similar uninspired offerings." Alice Vielehr

Library J 68:480 Je 1 '43 110w

"Authorization by Orville Wright makes this account the standard biography; by skillful writing and detailed research, Fred Kelly has made it an engrossing study in the sociology of invention."

+ New Repub 108:742 My 31 '43 90w

"The trouble with this book is that it is not a biography, as it purports to be. The famous Wright brothers never come alive in it. And still more astonishing is that this 'biography' ends with the winning of the suits against Curtiss." Russell Owen

N Y Times p4 My 23 '43 800w

"The writing has a homespun air that suits the story."

+ New Yorker 19:79 My 15 '43 70w

"This is an important book on two men who were among the greatest America has yet produced. The author writes, obviously, from a wealth of material and says only a small part of what he knows—presumably to keep the book from getting too technical, too heavy. But this material should not be allowed to gather dust in an attic. In short, we want more." Wolfgang Langewiesche

+ Weekly Book Review p1 My 16 '43 2650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:84 Je '43

KELSEY, MRS ALICE (GEER). Once the Hodja; il. by Frank Dobias. 170p $2 Longmans 43-18205

Turkish folk tales about the simple minded teacher-priest, who always managed to get the best of his fellows when they played jokes on him. These retellings of his adventures for young Americans were picked up by the author during her twenty years in relief work in Turkey.

Booklist 40:167 Ja 1 '44

"Chosen from many well-loved Turkish tales about the Hodja, this selection brings to American children the flavor and fun of the people of the Near East who love to hear these stories." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:319 S '43 110w

"This collection of short, humorous stories about the Hodja will introduce to children a new folk character that they will enjoy nearly as much as our own Paul Bunyan." Olive Brain
+ Library J 69:33 Ja 1 '44 60w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p8 Ja 16 '44 250w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 16 '44 100w

"In Turkey Hodja is an honorary title, meaning teacher-priest; the rest [Nasr-ed-Din] is his name, whose mention sends a ripple of smiles through the Near East. Some of his exploits traveled far and made themselves at home in the Western world but The Hodja was first in the field with such stunts, each reaching a point so rapidly and exploding so thoroughly into a laugh that the book is that longed-for treasure of a story-teller's pack—a collection of short, sure-fire funny stories for children." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 D 19 '43 180w

KELSEY, VERA. Bride dined alone. 184p map $2 Doubleday
43-13341

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p7 S 5 '43 250w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 S 5 '43 100w

New Yorker 19:68 Ag 28 '43 50w

"First class."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:22 Ag 28 '43 40w

"Miss Kelsey is favorably known for a flock of mysteries with picturesque tropical backgrounds. In upstate New York she doesn't seem quite the same." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Ag 29 '43 230w

KELSEY, VERA. Satan has six fingers. 276p $2 Doubleday 43-2941

Mystery story.

Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43

"Good."
+ Boston Globe p15 F 17 '43 50w

"You will find [the book] a pleasure, especially if you happen to be interested in Brazil." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p14 F 14 '43 200w

"A story of a bad-luck diamond and of greed which leads to several murders, told in an exciting manner."
+ New Yorker 19:60 F 20 '43 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p20 Ap 18 '43 120w

KENDREW, WILFRID GEORGE. Weather; an introductory meteorology. 96p maps $1 (2s) Oxford

551.5 Meteorology. Meteorology in aeronautics 43-5603

Brief, technical treatise by an English authority. Written primarily for the student pilot. Index.

Reviewed by M. A. Countryman
Book Week p9 Ag 15 '43 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

"High school students with a good training in physics ought to find Kendrew eminently satisfactory. His drawings are much more technical than those of Spitz, but they are well selected and serve their purpose." Waldemar Kaempffert
+ N Y Times p24 F 28 '43 90w

Springf'd Republican p10 Jl 9 '43 60w

"Deals with conditions in the British Isles. However, the general effects of the interaction of air masses is the same whether it takes place in Europe or America, and his little book can be recommended as an easy introduction to technical meteorology." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p22 F 28 '43 90w

KENDRICK, BAYNARD H. Blind man's bluff; a Duncan Maclain mystery. 282p $2 Little 42-50914

Detective story.

Booklist 39:321 Ap 1 '43

"Maclain's performance in 'Blind Man's Bluff' is as surprising as ever. It will distress only those who are allergic to the idea of a sightless detective, depicted no matter how deftly." Will Cuppy
+ Books p12 F 7 '43 120w

"Good."
+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 27 '43 40w

"Maclain's discovery of the method by which the three murders were accomplished and of the identity of the murderer borders on the miraculous, and yet, while it is difficult to believe in Captain Maclain, it is a lot of fun to read about him." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p20 Ja 24 '43 200w

"Absolute tops."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 F 13 '43 40w

"A unique murder method, a well hidden criminal and intelligent writing give the tale stellar honors."
+ Time 41:88 F 1 '43 50w

KENISON, ERVIN, and MCKINNEY, JAMES. Mechanical drawing; rev. by Tom C. Plumridge. 330p il $2 Am. tech. soc.

744.4 Mechanical drawing 42-51754

"The authors deal with the instruments and materials of the draftsman, discuss elementary geometrical problems, explain symbols and terminology and show how drawings are made. A certain amount of drilling in the use of instruments is given. Some interesting problems in drawing and projection are presented." N Y Times

Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:55 O '42

Reviewed by Waldemar Kaempffert
N Y Times p22 F 14 '43 80w

Pratt p9 F '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 22 '43 50w

KENNEDY, WILLIAM J. Pre-service course in shop practice; prepared at the request of the War dept. and the U.S. Office of educ. in conformance with the official pre-induction training course outline no. PIT 103. 337p il $2; school ed $1.52 Wiley

621.9 Machine shop practice. Tools. Knots and splices 43-3480

"The aim of this PIT text is to train high school seniors in the use of hand tools and to familiarize them with shop equipment and methods. Includes chapters on wiring and wire splicing; ropes, splices and knots; blocks and rigging." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Book Week p11 Ap 25 '43 40w

Booklist 39:430 Je 15 '43

N Y New Tech Bks 28:11 Ja '43

KENNEY, ARTHUR WEBSTER, and KENNEY, STEPHEN C. Charles Hampton, research chemist. 252p $2 Dodd

42-50418

In fiction form the authors describe the life and activities of a young research worker in the laboratory of a large industrial organization. In a prefatory note they explain that in order to give interest and verisimilitude to the tale they have "pretended an invention" for the hero to "invent."

Booklist 39:256 F 15 '43

"Value lies in accurate information rather than in literary merit. Authentic scientific information assured by one author's position with Du Pont. Libraries using fictional career material will find this a good addition, since subject is popular. For boys twelve to sixteen." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 68:84 Ja 15 '43 90w

Reviewed by E. M. Morrow
N Y Times p10 My 9 '43 40w

KENNY, ELIZABETH, and OSTENSO, MARTHA. And they shall walk. 282p il $3 Dodd

B or 92 Infantile paralysis 43-14526

Life story of the Australian nurse who has evolved a new treatment for infantile paralysis. She describes her girlhood in Australia, her work as a transport nurse in the last war, her years of struggle to win recognition from the medical profession, and her triumph.

"The book is beautifully written, a human and moving story of a woman's determination to give the world—albeit against the will of pedestrian hidebound medical thinking—the benefit of her miracle-working discovery." Betty Wood
+ Book Week p6 S 26 '43 380w
Booklist 40:58 O 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

"Recommended generally for libraries." Jacqueline Overton
+ Library J 68:667 S 1 '43 100w

"'And They Shall Walk,' in spite of weakness of repetition, is a fine contribution to the literature of human endeavor and medical progress." Rose Feld
+ — N Y Times p12 O 24 '43 1050w

Reviewed by M. S. Ulrich
+ Sat R of Lit 26:63 D 4 '43 850w
Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 S '43 480w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
Weekly Book Review p3 S 26 '43 650w
Wis Lib Bul 39:143 N '43

KENT, MRS LOUISE (ANDREWS). He went with Magellan; il. by Paul Quinn. 200p $2 Houghton

Magellan, Ferdinand—Juvenile literature 43-16550

Story of a young boy from the court of King Manuel of Portugal in the days when Magellan proposed to sail westward to find the spice islands. Because King Manuel refused him a charter, Magellan went to the court of King Charles of Spain, taking Vasco with him. Later when Magellan went on his voyage Vasco accompanied him.

Booklist 40:151 D 15 '43

"The main events of his exciting journey are drawn from contemporary records, and their telling here makes history live." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:412 N '43 110w

"Good reading and painless introduction to history of exploration. Ages twelve to fourteen. Recommended." Gertrude Andrus
+ Library J 68:1051 D 15 '43 70w

"The girl [the hero] left behind him finds him fascinating; so does the young reader for though he is also a walking history lesson, he remains a real boy who has lived through a unique experience and taken other boys along." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p24 N 14 '43 450w

KENT, WILLIAM H. B. Range rider. 193p $2 Macmillan

43-10067

Western story.

Booklist 40:48 O 1 '43

"In this galloping tale the reader will find as likeable a round-up of cowboys as he is likely to meet with in the whole range of Western fiction. . . A swift-paced, action-filled, colorful story, expertly written." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p16 Ag 22 '43 260w
— Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 170w

"Swift and literate." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 25 '43 100w
Wis Lib Bul 39:123 O '43

KENYON, JOSEPHINE (HEMENWAY). Healthy babies are happy babies; a complete handbook for modern mothers. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 3d ed rev 343p $1.50 Little

649.1 Infants—Care and hygiene. Children—Care and hygiene 43-1956

"This is the third edition of Dr. Kenyon's book by this title and changes have been made which bring it up-to-date in many respects. The newer fish liver oils, vitamin concentrates, sulfa drugs, and non-profit hospital service plans are touched upon." (Am J Pub Health) Earlier editions were listed in the Book Review Digest, 1934 and 1939. Index.

Reviewed by J. M. Bierman
Am J Pub Health 33:900 Jl '43 180w
Booklist 39:296 Mr 15 '43

KENYON, THEDA. Golden feather. 390p $2.75 Messner

43-7870

Historical romance of England and the colonies in the days of the Stuarts. Clarissa Brinton loving Ajax Stacy, follows him to Virginia when she discovers she is to bear his child. In America she finds not Ajax, but his brother Gerald, and marries to save herself. From that time for years there is a battle of wills between Clarissa and Ajax, until an Indian uprising resolves the tangle.

Reviewed by Dorsey McCarthy
Book Week p7 Je 27 '43 110w
Booklist 40:13 S '43

"Libraries limiting titles will not add." Catherine Van Dyne
Library J 68:248 Mr 15 '43 70w

"Though her insight into character does not measure up to her insight into history, Theda Kenyon again accomplishes the difficult task of resurrecting from their textbook graves a number of historical figures: Charles I, William Laud, John Pym, Sir John Suckling and Anne Hutchinson, to mention only a few. Miss Kenyon is really inspired when she paints the 'merry' England of the Cavaliers, and, in contrast, the Indian wilderness across the sea. But this tale seems overplotted." Nona Balakian
+ — N Y Times p14 Je 6 '43 550w

Reviewed by George Conrad
Weekly Book Review p12 Je 6 '43 400w

KERCHNER, RUSSELL MARION, and CORCORAN, GEORGE FRANCIS. Alternating-current circuits. 2d ed 553p $4.75 Wiley

621.31 Electric currents, Alternating. Electric circuits 43-11878

"A text on alternating current circuits for junior electrical engineering students. This second edition has been brought up to date. It is assumed that the reader understands calculus and physics." (Book Week) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1939. Problems. Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p10 O 10 '43 30w
Booklist 40:149 D 15 '43
Library J 69:32 Ja 1 '44 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:42 Jl '43

KERNAN, WILLIAM FERGUS. We can win this war. 176p $1.50 Little

940.53 World war, 1939-. Strategy 43-5317

A follow-up of the author's earlier book Defense Will Not Win the War (Book Review Digest, 1942). He suggests several European invasion points besides Italy—the Aegean and Salonika, the Adriatic and Austria, and Toulon and Southern France. He regards the Pacific situation as a prolongation of Hitler's side of the Axis, and believes that that war is being fought to keep us occupied until Hitler can gather strength for another stunning blow in Europe.

"Kernan's great value is that he cuts through cliches, laughs at 'the super-duper, ridiculous nonsense of global warfare,' which he terms a word dodge set up to justify the violations of all principles of strategy. He points out that time is not on the side of the democracies, that it is working 24 hours a day for Hitler. His contention is that we can win this war, but the time to do so is growing short." Ernest von Hartz

Book Week p3 Ap 18 '43 500w

"To the lay reader Colonel Kernan would be more helpful if he were a little clearer in explaining what kind of action meets his concept of strategy. It must be confusing even to military minds when he scorns such attrition campaigns as those in North Africa and Guadalcanal but lauds Wellington's rim-of-the-wheel campaigns in Spain against Napoleon. It would help also if he were not quite so scornful about indicating ways and means, such as bases and supplies." D. M. R.

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 17 '43 750w

"We are lucky to have a colonel on active service, a student of military history who could write this book. For it had to be written. . . The author does not bother with the obvious things such as 'battle of the Atlantic' which we are all beginning to understand has been a losing battle to date. He pitches into the things that matter." William Agar

+ Commonweal 38:16 Ap 23 '43 750w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:7 Jl '43 30w

Nation 157:135 Jl 31 '43 210w

"Kernan's style is as noisy and noisome as in his earlier book, and his slap-dash metaphors are frequently in downright bad taste ('the sanctity which can throw a spiritual "natural" every time we roll the dice of destiny.')"

— New Repub 108:517 Ap 19 '43 120w

"A book like this is probably good for the reading public, since it reminds us that it is not easy to win a war. The good is offset by some confusion as to just what we are to do to win it. . . It is a bit difficult to determine just what Colonel Kernan does wish us to do. One wouldn't wish the job of translating his principles into general orders for men commanding ships and troops." R. L. Duffus

N Y Times p25 Ap 4 '43 700w

" 'Defense Will Not Win the War,' is the most disturbing book our side has produced since the beginning of the struggle. It is chock-full of bad news, but because the bad-news monger is a patriot and not a defeatist, I pass on his message and urge its consideration by all citizens who refuse to allow the optimistic headlines to do their war thinking for them. . . I am not competent to say whether we can win the war by following Colonel Kernan's military prescription, but I am convinced that we will lose it unless we agree with his moral and historical insight. We will lose it though we launch a hundred invasions, and each of those hundred a triumph." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 19:84 Ap 10 '43 600w

"Colonel Kernan's new book is as plausible and at the same time as unconvincing as ever. He puts his case well and treats us to a delectable salad of quotation and metaphor. But he focusses the attention of the reader on one sole facet of the kaleidoscope of war." Murray Harris

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:10 Ap 24 '43 400w

"This reviewer cannot appraise the book expertly, but he is convinced that it is not successful as an exposition for laymen. And he suspects that the colonel has let his popular role of slashing critic carry him to untenable technical positions. That's a pity, for the book begins with a plausible analysis that 'the curse of all armies is administration.' . . When the experts aren't even clear and unequivocal in expounding their differences, the urge to drop the matter and go to a movie is pretty overpowering." Marshall Bragdon

— Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 10 '43 700w

KERR, ANNIE BARCLAY. Strangers no longer. 181p $1; pa 60c Friendship press 43-5433

"Here are thirteen stories illustrating the religious and social adjustment in America of people from various racial backgrounds. Albania, Mexico, Greece, Poland are some of the countries represented. For one seeking material for juniors dealing with the work of the church reaching out to new Americans, this is the book. The stories vary in quality; some could be dramatized or told by children." Churchman

Christian Century 60:458 Ap 14 '43 30w

Churchman 157:16 S 1 '43 80w

KERR, SOPHIE (MRS UNDERWOOD). Jenny Devlin. 279p $2.50 Farrar 43-13681

Story of the effect of the outbreak of the war on a family, part French and part American. Linda, a beautiful and ineffectual American woman, and her two half-grown sons, are placed in charge of Jenny, Linda's daughter by an American marriage. Jenny takes her charges to a small Maryland town and goes thru a long struggle before her own father takes a hand in her life. Then the long-lost French step-father is found, and Jenny is free to live her own life.

"Miss Kerr's dash of French atmosphere, in terms of omelets, salad and cheese, of chic Paris clothes, of quaint family customs, is as synthetic as cheap perfumes labeled 'from Paris' but bottled in New York. Still, 'Jenny Devlin' meets well enough the standards set by the author's eighteen other books and will undoubtedly win approval from her usual circle of readers." Ruth Boorstin

N Y Times p30 N 28 '43 320w

"This book should suit Miss Kerr's customers in every respect." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p27 O 31 '43 280w

KERSH, GERALD. The dead look on. 214p $2 Reynal 43-6290

A novel based on the destruction of Lidice in Czechoslovakia by the Nazis.

"This is not a horror story, but a story of the human spirit which transcends grief and turns horror into triumph. It is a novel of people which you will remember as truth, not fiction. It has the simplicity of the best poetry. It is one of the first works of art directly springing from the war."

+ Atlantic 171:131 Je '43 100w

"Depth or roundness of characterization can scarcely be looked for within the limitations of the form Kersh has chosen to tell this story. Nevertheless his villagers are warmly human, credible, varied and sufficiently individualized to engage our sympathies deeply. As for the Nazis, Kersh properly reminds us once more with this book that our enemies are not unhappy flies invading miles of tanglefoot, but able, calculating, pitiless and brutalized practitioners of the most technologically advanced terrorist imperialism in history." J. H. Friend

+ Book Week p2 My 16 '43 650w

Booklist 39:426 Je 15 '43

"'The Dead Look On' rises head and shoulders above the run-of-the-mill novel of oppression. This book is a small classic." Dorothy Hillyer
+ Boston Globe p17 My 12 '43 270w

Reviewed by J. R. Lewis
Current Hist 4:272 Je '43 500w

"The intensity of his imaginative conception and the economic lucidity of his writing have enabled Mr. Kersh to transmute what might have been the mere reporting of unbearable horror into an integral work of art which performs the true function of tragedy, purging the soul with pity and terror. With the utmost terseness and concentrated force we are made to realise not only the incredible iniquity of the destroyers but also the human richness and beauty of the living entity which fell to their ruthlessness." Wilfrid Gibson
+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 26 '43 150w

"With the deadly monotony of an assembly-line book-writer, Gerald Kersh inserts all the melodramatic clichés, much as one might select a vitamin-rich dinner from a bill of fare. A widespread defect of war fiction lies in the unrepressed temptation to exploit the reader's foreknowledge of events. Mr. Kersh takes full advantage of this possibility, obtaining atmospheric effects by means of a specious mystic symbolism constructed of hindsight and hatred; flowers fail to bloom on the fatal morning; a dog cringes in anticipation of death. However, the subject lends itself to melodrama, and, taken with adequate doses of salt, this book should be useful to produce chills of a sultry summer evening." Robert Gorman
— + New Repub 109:27 Jl 5 '43 150w

"The book is a sufficiently credible reconstruction of Lidice not to offend the average reader's good sense. Its intention is to inspire fury, pity and admiration, and the method is one of heroic frontal assault. Such books are badly needed, for it has become a truism that the very scale and persistence of horror has largely blunted English senses... But horror on a smaller scale might have been a sharper weapon against our thickening skins. Yet The Dead Look On must be judged an effective book, and one which should, in the plain moral sense, be widely read." Philip Toynbee
+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:192 Mr 20 '43 280w

"Here is a searing antidote for those all-out readers who disliked John Steinbeck's 'The Moon Is Down'—a fictional account of the rape of Lidice that should haunt the isolationists for years to come. Here is a propaganda novel, pure and simple, preaching a crusade with hate for its banner—and succeeding magnificently. 'The Dead Look On' is compelling as evil itself and unforgettable as nightmare." William Du Bois
+ N Y Times p7 My 9 '43 950w

"Mr. Kersh's completely inhuman Germans are also completely convincing. Recommended to admirers of 'The Moon Is Down.'"
+ New Yorker 19:83 My 8 '43 50w

"What Donald Kersh has done is to give us a little book with a big wallop—no mean feat these days when good novelettes are as needed as they are rare." Norman Cousins
+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 My 15 '43 700w

"Somehow, in his love for the people of the Czechoslovakian village, Mr. Kersh has made them too arty-and-crafty to be true, too bright, dewy and unreal to carry their side of the awful story." Kate O'Brien
Spec 170:230 Mr 5 '43 70w

"Mr. Kersh salutes the faith and fortitude of the people of Dudicka, but he leaves the reader with, above all else, an unbearable sense of the nightmare evil, the immeasurable depravity and mania of the oppressor."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p101 F 27 '43 900w

"In the course of his short novel Mr. Kersh has not only managed to tell the horrid tale of the last day of a small village whose only crime against the Germans was that of being human and alive but he has managed to take one deep, brief look into the very core and center of every human heart that the story touches. . . 'The Dead Look On' is dramatically written." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p5 My 9 '43 800w

KERSHNER, HOWARD ELDRED. One humanity; a plea for our friends and allies in Europe. 81p il $1.25 Putnam

940.53161 World war, 1939—Children. Children—Charities, protection, etc. 43-15848

"Author is executive vice president of International Commission for the assistance of Child Refugees; also directed, during 1939-42, American Friends Service Committee in Europe. His book is brief but impassioned plea for action to save the children from dying of starvation." Library J

Booklist 40:142 D 15 '43

Christian Century 61:114 Ja 26 '44 130w

Reviewed by L. M. Kinloch
Library J 68:844 O 15 '43 70w

"This is not the sort of book I like to review. For the review should properly consist of four words only: Read it for yourself. To my mind, Mr. Kershner has effectively answered all the diplomatic and 'practical' objections to feeding the children of the occupied countries. . . This small book might well be called a primer of human decency." B. W. Overstreet
+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 D 25 '43 380w

"A small but convincing volume written with restraint and authority." L. D. Lasker
+ Survey 78:349 D '43 450w

Weekly Book Review p26 N 7 '43 250w

KEYES, DONALD BABCOCK, and DEEM, ARDEN GARRELL. Chemical engineers' manual. 221p $2.50; college ed $2 Wiley

660.83 Chemistry—Tables, etc. 42-50128

"A collection of those equations and tables which are constantly needed in the profession, such as equations on fluid flow, heat transfer, separation, and diffusional operations; and tables of logarithms, specific heat, viscosity, safe loads, conversion factors. Students and practicing engineers will find this pocket-size compilation a great convenience, as the material has heretofore been available only in larger handbooks containing many data used only occasionally." N Y New Tech Bks

Chem & Met Eng 50:199 Jl '43 250w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:26 Ap '43

"Surely this pocket-sized book, in its present form as well as in the many subsequent editions through which it will surely go, will find wide use among chemical engineers." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p11 D 20 '42 90w

KEYES, MRS FRANCES PARKINSON (WHEELER). Also the hills. 622p $3 Messner

43-16437

Long novel of the activities of a typical New Hampshire family, showing the effects of this war upon each of its five members. Daniel and Serena Farman were the salt of the earth, but they were the innocent victims when fifth column activities were discovered in their vicinity. One daughter, secretary to a congressman, became involved in un-American troubles and took her own life. The second daughter, a trained nurse, was cited for bravery during the North African campaign. The only son of the family was killed in India. But it was his wife, a gentle Southern girl, who brought the remainder of his family thru their difficulties.

"The novel, a full, rich book, begins on the day that the Japs strike at Pearl Harbor and, whether for reasons of symbolism or not, Mrs. Keyes focuses our attention upon one family and one village in New England, and makes everything that happens occur like clockwork toward an end that, like our part in the war, is none too clear. I do not mean to imply that the novel is vague, for it is far from vague; it is pointed and swift and sharp. It flows smoothly and with a charm that belongs alone to the talents of the author of 'Crescent Carnival,' but in a way it seems staged." G. H. Freitag
+ — Book Week p8 N 28 '43 360w

KEYES, F. P.—Continued

"Tragedy comes in North Africa. Characteristic Keyes' novel running to 620 pages, genuinely patriotic in its motivation, readable, bound to please the author's large following. Recommended." G. W. Hill

+ Library J 68:891 N 1 '43 70w

"The author has certainly accomplished her purpose of showing how even the remotest community is inevitably drawn into this war. Women's magazine readers particularly will enjoy the abundant detail of costume, furnishing, food and setting." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p6 N 28 '43 600w

"In spite of its up-to-dateness, this story brought nostalgically to mind memories of the Pansy books and others of my childhood. It has a curious old-fashioned flavor that I found as beguiling as a revived Victorian model on a movie actress. If you know what I mean. Loads of women will love it, and it should be in every loan library." M. S. Ulrich

Sat R of Lit 27:26 F 5 '44 340w

"The story is sound, moving romance, seldom dragging, with many dramatic moments. Its characters are deftly developed by the lives they live, and they are flesh and blood people. One will hardly lay the book down until he discovers just how each life is 'coming out.' " M. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 460w

"To disclose the ramifications of the plot would be to encroach on the author's prerogatives and diminish the pleasure of her public. It is a timely story and a thoughtful study of the New England character, especially in contrast with the Creole beauty who becomes so vital a part of the disrupted life of Farman Hill farm." George Conrad

+ Weekly Book Review p22 N 21 '43 450w

KEYES, ROGER JOHN BROWNLOW KEYES, 1st baron. Amphibious warfare and combined operations. 101p $1.50 Macmillan [4s 6d Cambridge]

942 Great Britain—History, Military. Tactics 43-12498

"Lord Keyes, as a lieutenant in command of the destroyer Fame, took part in the capture of the Taku Forts in 1900; he was Chief of Staff to three successive admirals in command at the Dardanelles in 1915; as Vice-Admiral, Dover, from January, 1918, until the end of that war, he was responsible for the Zeebrugge raid and other combined operations on the Belgian coast; and from July, 1940, to October, 1941, he was Director of Combined Operations in the present war. His personal experience of that particular branch of war has thus been extensive, and it is not surprising that he should have taken it as the subject of his Lees-Knowles Lectures. He is not content, however, to rely on his own experiences alone, for he begins his pamphlet with a brief—very brief—account of the Quebec campaign of Wolfe and Saunders, and concludes it with equally brief summaries of combined operations which have been carried out since he gave up the Directorate." Times [London] Lit Sup

---

Christian Science Monitor p10 O 16 '43 850w

Reviewed by Noel Annan

New Statesman & Nation 26:108 Ag 14 '43 490w

"There is little that is new in this book—not even Lord Keyes' own opinions. Nor is this book in any sense complete or definitive. It is sketchy—even fragmentary. . . Nevertheless, for those interested in the waging of war, this is a valuable book. It is valuable for Lord Keyes' opinions and conclusions, which, because of the experience of the author, must win respect—if not always agreement." H. W. Baldwin

+ — N Y Times p4 S 19 '43 850w

"The enthusiastic citizen who glibly refers to beachheads in his daily talk would do well to read Keyes and thereby discover the stuff that beachheads are made of. For the military commentator and columnist, the book should be invaluable as a reference work." J. W. Bellat

+ Sat R of Lit 26:34 Ag 21 '43 750w

Spec 171:274 S 17 '43 210w

"Lord Keyes is an outspoken old sea dog who pulls no punches and whether his views are right or wrong his book, especially that portion devoted to the present conflict, is refreshing in its forthright criticism." G. K. Moriarty

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 27 '43 390w

Times [London] Lit Sup p316 Jl 3 '43 550w

Reviewed by Walter Millis

Weekly Book Review p14 Ag 29 '43 450w

KIMBALL, MARIE (GOEBEL) (MRS FISKE KIMBALL). Jefferson, the road to glory, 1743 to 1776. 358p $4 Coward-McCann

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas 43-6215

An extensively documented biography of Jefferson from his birth in 1743 to the year 1776. "The author, who is the wife of Fiske Kimball, Director of the Philadelphia Museum of Art, has been a student of Jefferson for many years. She has written much about his life in Paris, in the White House and at Monticello. It was she who first printed his correspondence with Madame de Staël. . . Mrs. Kimball is also the author of the Thomas Jefferson Cook Book, in which she reveals many of the secrets Jefferson brought back from Paris." (Publisher's note)

"An admirable book, which demonstrates, among other things, that a sound historical work is all the sounder for being at the same time a sound work of art." Carl Becker

+ Am Hist R 49:109 O '43 1300w

"Mrs. Kimball's contribution, is biographical in the very strictest sense. . . [She] could only have achieved her tremendously detailed and dutifully annotated result in the midst of an extensive research library, which is literally the truth, as she is a noted student and authority on Thomas Jefferson." Edith Roberts

+ Book Week p5 Ap 18 '43 320w

Booklist 39:367 My 15 '43

Bookmark 4:16 My '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 13 '43 900w

"Mrs. Kimball has written a curiously unsatisfactory book about the youthful Jefferson, whose personality and character somehow contrive to escape her laborious efforts—based in part upon some hitherto unpublished material of no great intrinsic importance—to fix and portray them. . . It is probable that no 'definitive' biography of Jefferson will ever be written. Not only is his figure by far the most complex in the galaxy of the founders, but his interests are so diffused and many-sided as to leave open east-west varieties of approach. . . Of such a figure standing on the threshold of its national life a country may well be proud and stand ready to welcome any new contribution to its knowledge. Mrs. Kimball's book, if, to the sense of the present reviewer, a little lacking in insight, is doubtless such a contribution and comes opportunely on the two hundredth anniversary of Jefferson's birth." J. K. Paulding

— + Commonweal 38:78 My 7 '43 550w

"From the evident skill with which Mrs. Kimball has, on the one hand, collected her materials and, on the other, composed the revolutionary episodes starring Patrick Henry, one may hope that she will consider the present work a sketch and source book preparing the way to the complete biography she can and ought to produce. In that future work it is also to be hoped that certain ambiguities of expression and some slipshod phraseology that mar the present pages will be avoided: they are bound to seem worse than they are in contrast to the high intelligence and felicitous writing of which the author is capable." Jacques Barzun

+ — Nation 157:47 Jl 10 '43 700w

"Here appears the fullest and most satisfactory account yet published of those early years. It is a record whose main outlines are well known, but Mrs. Kimball has clarified, amplified and occasionally corrected our knowledge of it. It is an amazing record." J. P. Boyd

+ N Y Times p5 Ap 11 '43 1650w

"By filling out the relatively barren record and freshly presenting details of Jefferson's early life which are little known or not known at all, Mrs. Kimball has earned the gratitude of scholars no less than that of the general public. Nowhere else is there so full a story of the young Jefferson or so good a description of his personal background and his daily life." Dumas Malone

+ Sat R of Lit 26:4 Ap 17 '43 900w

"Although she quotes an unpublished document only occasionally, Mrs. Kimball has done an enormous amount of work with material that has not been exhaustively examined by others. Thus it comes to the ordinary reader as fresh and interesting, however well known it may be to specialists... The mystery of personality remains as obscure as ever. Mrs. Kimball has told us much that is worth knowing about the man, in fact everything about Jefferson except how he grew to be great; but there she fails, as biographers have always failed. Genius cannot be explained." G. W. Johnson

+ — Weekly Book Review p3 Ap 11 '43 1200w

Reviewed by Clement Eaton

Yale R n s 33:165 autumn '43 800w

KIMBROUGH, EMILY. We followed our hearts to Hollywood; drawings by Helen E. Hokinson. 210p $2.50 Dodd

817 Hollywood, California. Moving pictures 43-16707

When a Hollywood firm bought the movie rights to Our Hearts were Young and Gay, the authors were asked to come out and write the scenario. This book is a record of their trip across the continent and the hilarious adventures and good times they found among the moving picture folk.

Reviewed by Sterling North

Book Week p3 N 21 '43 430w

Booklist 40:141 D 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

"Recommended for the humor section of all libraries." Emily Garnett

+ Library J 68:890 N 1 '43 50w

Reviewed by Isabelle Mallet

N Y Times p16 N 21 '43 650w

"You may find this pretty mild, even somewhat forced on occasion, after the earlier book."

New Yorker 19:110 N 20 '43 100w

"It is perhaps a mistake to analyze humor. The essential is always 'Is it funny?' not 'Why is it funny?' Here, however, the humor may be said to be effective because of a definite combination. It is half the wide-eyed interest and surprise of a young person and half the sophisticated view of an experienced grown-up... This is Around the Movie World in Eighty Days. It is also the record of a warm, outgiving personality with a talent for making friends and a zest for life." R. C. Benét

+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 D 11 '43 650w

Reviewed by Rose Feld

Weekly Book Review p2 N 14 '43 750w

KINCAID, ROBERT LEE. Joshua Fry Speed, Abraham Lincoln's most intimate friend. ltd ed 70p il $2.50 Abraham Lincoln bk. shop, 33 N. LaSalle st, Chicago 2

B or 92 Speed, Joshua Fry. Lincoln, Abraham 43-16106

"Slightly more than a hundred years ago Abraham Lincoln and Joshua Fry Speed shared a room in Springfield, Ill. Then Speed returned to his native Kentucky and married. Lincoln . . . wrote a series of letters to his friend. . . These letters, which are certainly among the most appealing ever written by any man, are printed in their entirety for the first time in this slender volume. . . With them appears a biographical sketch of their recipient which transforms him from a man remembered only because he was a friend of Lincoln to a personage in his own right." Weekly Book Review

"The author, who is executive vice-president of Lincoln Memorial University at Harrogate, Tenn., has brought to his self-chosen task the enthusiasm of a student who writes on a subject which he knows thoroughly and which is close to his heart." Otto Eisenschiml

+ Book Week p7 S 12 '43 200w

"Mr. Kincaid's biography is brief—partly, one supposes, by design, and partly because the materials for a longer study are unavailable. Even so, it contains far more than has hitherto been known about the man whom he rightly describes as Abraham Lincoln's 'most intimate friend.'" P. M. Angle

+ Weekly Book Review p14 O 3 '43 350w

KINERT, REED C. America's fighting planes in action; il. by [the author]. 144p $2.50 Macmillan

623.746 Airplanes, Military 43-6798

Handbook of American bombers, fighters, transports, trainers, gliders, etc., with pictures in color and wash, by a flying instructor, who has done text and pictures both. Index.

"The author, Reed Kinert, a flight instructor at Ryan Field, and an authority on planes and tactics, is well qualified to present a book of this nature. Meticulously exact in his drawings, he is able to obtain realistic close-ups of planes in action, which for the photographic lens would be a difficult, if not impossible, task. . . The text equals the illustrations." P. M. Reich

+ Book Week p10 Ag 1 '43 260w

Booklist 39:468 Jl 15 '43

"Less technical than a spotter's handbook but of wide general interest for its chatty, accurate text and dramatic drawings in color. Excellent format, full index, comprehensiveness, and up-to-dateness make it a good buy. Recommended for young people's collections." M. C. Scoggin

+ Library J 68:480 Je '43 80w

"Because Mr. Kinert is an artist he has been able to overcome some of the obvious shortcomings of the camera. He has been able to picture the planes in action, thus giving them more life and personality than they could ever have in photographs which show them seemingly hanging motionless in the sky. As a flying man, Mr. Kinert has been careful, too, not to picture any plane in an impossible attitude or to change its outward appearance in the slightest detail." F. P. Graham

+ N Y Times p17 My 16 '43 360w

New Yorker 19:72 My 29 '43 30w

Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p7 Jl 4 '43 250w

KING, CECIL. Atlantic charter. 232p il $4.50 (15s) Studio

973 U.S.—History, Naval. U.S.—Navy—History 43-8141

"The Atlantic Charter depends on British and American fleets, and the late Mr. King, after his successful 'H.M.S.,' added this companion volume to make the story of the sister Navy better known to ordinary readers. He traces the origin of the mighty Navy America is constructing to the decision of 1775 in the Revolutionary War to fit out merchant ships as men-of-war. If warships were scarce then and in 1812 the book shows how the States never lacked daring and skilful seamen for stirring actions against the fringes of British squadrons." (Manchester Guardian) "Mr. King was himself a marine painter. . . Next to the sea itself and the ships that sailed it he loved

KING, CECIL—Continued
pictures and old prints of them; and the Parker Gallery and the Old Print Shop, New York, have both been laid under contribution—besides the National Maritime Museum and the United States National Archives—to provide his illustrations. They have been chosen and arranged with taste and discrimination, and the author has himself embellished his text with thumbnail sketches, inset almost at random, of ships, of boats of various rigs and of ships' fittings, in the manner familiar to readers of the two earlier books of his trilogy." (Times [London] Lit Sup)

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:160 O '43 10w

"It is a compact, readable book enlivened by little sketches by the author and beautifully produced plates of old sailing-ships." H. W. M.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 17 '43 200w

"Histories of the United States Navy that are more complete, more comprehensive and fuller than Mr. Cecil King's have been published before, but certainly none that was more attractively illustrated."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p92 F 20 '43 1100w

KING, DOROTHY N. (MRS JAMES WERBLOW). Help the farmer; pictures by William A. Kolliker. [20p] $1.50 Morrow
43-10278

Toy book for little children. In picture and simple text is told the story of Randy, whose father and mother bought a farm, and set out to stock it with animals. Every time a new animal is purchased there is a cut out animal to take out and fit into the barnyard in the back of the book.

"The pre-school child will learn a great deal about animals by helping the farmer in this new toy book." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 O 3 '43 110w

"Excellently colored pictures and good story." L. M. Palmer
+ N Y Times p18 N 14 '43 40w

KING, RUFUS. Variety of weapons. 213p $2 Doubleday
43-11547

Detective story.

Booklist 40:80 N 1 '43

"The story is excellently plotted, its only fault being that no hint of the motive emerges until the very end."
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 11 '43 90w

"Fine, exciting story, with expert dialogue."
+ New Yorker 19:64 Jl 31 '43 70w

"Dexterously administered poison and lethal poniard figure prominently in high-tension tale. Detecting deft, general effect melodramatic. Fair."
Sat R of Lit 26:19 Jl 10 '43 30w

"One hesitates to think what some authors would have done to the rip-roaring, red hot melodramatic plot Rufus King has used in this recommended thriller. He handles his utterly fiendish material in so special a manner, polite and slightly understated, that he had us believing every word." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p17 Jl 18 '43 230w

KINGDON, FRANK. Jacob's ladder: the days of my youth. 312p $3 Fischer, L.B.
B or 92 43-6958

Autobiography covering the first twenty-odd years of the writer's life. Born in London of devoutly religious parents, Kingdon witnessed the passing of Victorian England, became a democrat when a view of the kings in Edward VII's funeral procession disillusioned him. He came to America in 1912, served as a Methodist minister in a small town in Maine, married there, and finally at nineteen entered Boston University. This part of his story ends with his becoming an American citizen.

Reviewed by Carlos Baker
N Y Times p5 My 16 '43 700w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue
Sat R of Lit 26:32 My 29 '43 850w

"The book is a heartening one to read in these days and it is written in simple and beautiful English." E. K. Adams
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 1 '43 600w

KINGMAN, LEE. Pierre Pidgeon; with pictures by Arnold Edwin Bare. [48p] $2 Houghton 43-15178

Picture-story book about little Pierre Pidgeon who lived on the Gaspé peninsula. Pierre knew how to make little boats, but he did not know how to bottle them. The story describes his joy when be became owner of a boat in a bottle and actually found how it got in.

"This is one of the most beautiful picture books of the season. Arnold Edwin Bare's illustrations are stunning and Lee Kingman's appealing story of the little-known Gaspe Peninsula has more plot than most picture book stories." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p44 D 5 '43 140w

Booklist 40:82 N 1 '43

Reviewed by H. A. Masten
Christian Science Monitor p12 D 13 '43 90w

Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:404 N '43 70w

Reviewed by Fritz Eichenberg
Horn Bk 20:22 Ja '44 50w

"Lee Kingman has written an excellent text, and Arnold Bare, a newcomer, has created charming soft pictures for Pierre Pidgeon." E. S. Littlefield
+ Library J 68:818 O 15 '43 60w

Reviewed by R. O. Bostwick
Library J 68:846 O 15 '43 90w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:591 N 20 '43 20w

"A satisfying story which deals with matters deeply interesting to children. There is a calm and spaciousness in both text and pictures which is good for the child who lives in the high-tensioned world of today." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p24 N 7 '43 240w

"Mr Bare's art is truly expressive of French Canada and its people and his best drawings are the ones with a minimum of the light color that defies definition—it might be flesh color. Little children will welcome warmly this new young author and artist." M. E. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 90w

"This is in large type for boys young as four, and large pictures that may at first seem pretty modernistic. Give them more time; on the second look their sweetness and humorous fidelity to fact win even conservatives." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 16 '43 230w

Wis Lib Bul 40:11 Ja '44

KINGSLAND, JOHN CECIL, and SEAGER, D. W. Navigation. 95p $1 (2s 6d) Oxford
629.1325 Navigation (aeronautics) 43-10934

"[Not] a complete treatise on all phases of the subject, actually it covers only the most elementary aspects, as concerned with flying. There are chapters on the form of the earth, maps and charts, magnetism and the compass, meteorology and dead reckoning." (Weekly Book Review) Index.

Booklist 40:74 N 1 '43

N Y New Tech Bks 28:38 Jl '43

"A very fair job."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:33 Ag 21 '43 20w

"As a simple introduction to the parts treated, it will be a useful contribution." James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p26 S 19 '43 100w

KINGSLEY, SIDNEY. Patriots; a play in a prologue and three acts. 181p $2 Random house

812 Jefferson, Thomas—Drama 43-13038

Play based on the early years of the American republic. Thomas Jefferson is its central character, but Washington, Hamilton, Madison, and others also play their parts.

Booklist 40:56 O 15 '43

"A must for drama collections."

+ Library J 68:727 S 15 '43 40w

Dramatic criticism by Stark Young

New Repub 108:211 F 15 '43 550w

"Sidney Kingsley's play paints a vivid picture of the perils that assailed the fledgling republic and of the faith embodied in Thomas Jefferson that carried it to fulfilment... Mr. Kingsley has ingeniously compressed this epic struggle between the old order and the new into the two-and-a-half-hour traffic of the stage. To do this, he has inevitably taken liberties with time and place, exercising dramatic license to build authentic mood and precipitated action. He has painted Jefferson in the most glowing, Hamilton in the most sombre colors, but he has been faithful, on the whole, to his source material, putting into Jefferson's mouth not only the splendid passages of the Declaration of Independence and the first inaugural but making use of pertinent phrases from his letters and other writings as well. These passages are, of course, used outside their context but they convey authoritatively the content of Jefferson's mind if not the quality of his conversation." Rosamond Gilder

+ Theatre Arts 27:201 Ap '43 1450w (Dramatic criticism)

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

Weekly Book Review p24 N 7 '43 400w

KINNEMAN, JOHN ALBERTUS, and BROWNE, RICHARD GIBBS. America in transition. 581p il $3.50 McGraw

300 Social sciences 42-21677

"A simply written, copiously illustrated text for college freshmen on changing America, 1880-1941; an interweaving of many political, economic, and sociological threads that pattern individual and group life, social institutions, rural-urban, and national-international conditions." Social Forces

"Sociologists will find America in Transition somewhat unsatisfactory because it presents the historical picture of recent social change with little discussion of the implications of those changes. The organization of the material is sometimes quite misleading. . . In spite of its inadequacies, the instructor of a one semester survey course will find many things to recommend this volume in addition to its integration around a single theme. Among them are: excellent charts, tables, and pictures; a good bibliography, and stimulating suggested activities with each chapter; and a very readable style. A new two column format decreases the bulk of the volume and makes for easy reading." Wilbur Brookover

+ — Am Soc R 8:243 Ap '43 250w

School & Society 56:364 O 17 '42 60w

"The authors practice commendable restraint, leaving uncolored the facts on such problems as the poll tax, the consumer, and race, yet presenting them in such a way that a normal class can apply black and white and all the colors of the spectrum." L. M. B.

+ Social Forces 22:242 D '43 130w

KINSLEY, PHILIP. Chicago tribune; its first hundred years; v 1, 1847-1865. 388p il $5 Knopf

071.73 Chicago tribune (43-7191)

It is planned to bring out an annual volume of this detailed history of The Chicago Tribune, ending in 1947, the newspaper's centennial year. The first volume, covering the years 1847 to 1865, is concerned in the main with Lincoln's political career and the Civil war. Index.

Booklist 39:439 Jl 1 '43

"Although the Chicago Tribune has never been an anemic newspaper, its official history is almost as robust as a pressed flower. . . Anyone who wants to find out anything about the Chicago Tribune in the Civil War is advised to look up Strevey's thesis on the subject."

— Commonweal 38:376 Jl 30 '43 130w

Reviewed by Louis Filler

Nation 157:330 S 18 '43 450w

"The Chicago Tribune of the period covered in this volume had some connection, of course, with the paper of that name that is published today. One can trace resemblances, though possibly not very close resemblances, in the manner in which today's particular crisis is dealt with. Later volumes may be expected to make the line of evolution clearer. What we have here, though the narrative is certainly limited in its scope, is a contribution to newspaper history." R. L. Duffus

N Y Times p21 Je 6 '43 750w

Reviewed by Lloyd Lewis

Weekly Book Review p8 S 5 '43 1400w

KIPLING, RUDYARD. A choice of Kipling's verse, made by T. S. Eliot, with an essay on Rudyard Kipling. 306p $2.50 Scribner [8s 6d Faber]

821 43-12375

This volume contains a thirty-page critical essay on Kipling by T. S. Eliot, followed by a collection of about 120 of Kipling's poems. Index.

"In any event, one poet on another is generally a stimulating experience; and in Mr. Eliot's essay there is a fresh reminder of what a lucid, sensitive, and precise instrument, a poet's prose usually displays itself."

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 2 '42 200w

Reviewed by Lionel Trilling

Nation 157:436 O 16 '43 3000w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden

New Repub 109:579 O 25 '43 2400w

Reviewed by G. W. Stonier

New Statesman & Nation 23:10 Ja 3 '42 1450w

"With the freshness and independence of judgment we have come to expect from Mr. Eliot, he clears away much of the critical fog which has obscured Kipling's stature, but he leaves us at the end in a new fog." Marjorie Farber

+ — N Y Times p1 S 26 '43 1650w

"Eliot does not sound as though he were working at a task imposed by anyone but himself, and he seems to know that he has a rather feeble set of facts on which to build a case. He resorts to all the expedients of a seasoned debater who finds himself in a more or less untenable position. He makes fine distinctions, and often leads us right up to a point which dissolves into something else before our very eyes. He does not tell any downright fibs, but the atmosphere of special pleading is strong." Louise Bogan

— + New Yorker 19:84 O 2 '43 900w

Discussion by W. R. Benét

Sat R of Lit 26:20 O 9 '43 800w

"Mr. Eliot's volume assumes particular importance not only as a scholarly and intelligently chosen anthology but in an even greater measure because his essay represents an outstanding contribution in the field of criticism of an author of great stature who has been

KIPLING, RUDYARD—Continued
heretofore almost entirely neglected by the writers and commentators of his time." C. T. Naumburg
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 N 6 '43 1350w

"Mr. Eliot's essay is an admirable example of the finest type of criticism. He succeeds in making us look at his subject's work with freshly opened eyes and he is at once sober, illuminating and sound." W. J. Turner
+ Spec 168:16 Ja 2 '42 550w

"This book is not only an unusual act of literary fraternity, it is a literary event. For Eliot's authority as a critic is great, and by using it in Kipling's behalf, he has done much to restore Kipling to his place as an important English poet."
+ Time 42:98 O 25 '43 1350w

"We see in this collection of verse Kipling at his best and Kipling below his best, sometimes so much below that the reader suspects a touch of harmless mischief in the juxtapositions. The reader will be grateful to Mr. Eliot for his careful and penetrating selection. Rereading brings confirmation that Kipling was a magician whose idealization of concrete facts worked as finally as imagination in transfiguring them in poetry."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p46 Ja 24 '42 1350w

"Will please many readers by bringing Kipling freshly to them at his best, without some of the less happy work commonly thought of in connection with him."
+ Weekly Book Review p25 S 26 '43 400w
Wis Lib Bul 39:157 D '43

KISER, CLYDE VERNON. Group differences in urban fertility; a study derived from the national health survey. 284p $2.50 Wood
312 Fecundity. U.S.—Population 42-22364

"An analysis of the fertility data obtained in the National Health Survey in 1935-1936." Am J Pub Health

Reviewed by R. K. Stix
Am J Pub Health 33:452 Ap '43 340w

"Until the more detailed analysis of fertility based on the 1940 Census is published, this book will be extremely useful, because it furnishes the latest information available on the subjects discussed. Later it should be valuable in connection with the census analysis in showing trends from 1935 to 1940. The charts and tables are excellent. There are a bibliography and an index." P. K. Whelpton
+ Am Soc R 8:742 D '43 900w

"Able and detailed statistical study." N. E. Himes
+ Ann Am Acad 225:254 Ja '43 500w

"Kiser's conclusions are both sound and significant and the careful methodology is a model for this type of study." R. B. Vance
+ Social Forces 22:110 O '43 450w

KJELGAARD, JAMES ARTHUR. Rebel siege; il. by Charles B. Wilson. 221p $2 Holiday 43-51297

Lively story of the Carolinas in 1780, when the mountain men fought against the British and Tory troops and won the battle of King's Mountain. The hero is the fourteen-year-old son of a famous gunsmith. For readers of grades seven thru nine.

"Kjelgaard's prose has warmth and color, his characters are alive and his background so real that it is like living through an actual experience to read the book. . . In his first fight the boy, Kin, learns that the leaders he admires hate a wrong principle, rather than the men who are defending it—and that, above all, is a lesson worth bringing home to young people in these times." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 O 10 '43 180w
Booklist 40:82 N 1 '43
Cath World 158:316 D '43 50w
Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 50w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:413 N '43 90w

"Vivid recreation of period with its strong patriotism and mixed loyalties; good characterization; graphic description of desperate fighting. For readers from twelve upwards who enjoy tales of American Revolution. Well illustrated." E. M. Gordon
+ Library J 68:773 O 1 '43 70w
Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:827 O 15 '43 40w

"The battle descriptions are wonderfully sharp and clear, but there is more to this book than blood and shooting. Older boys will see through Kin's eyes what America's freedom meant to the frontiersman, to the farmer hacking out his few acres of the wilderness with infinite toil, to all those who turned ever westward toward a brave new world." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p7 N 14 '43 220w

KJELLSTROM, ERIK TORSTEN HJALMAR, and others. Price control; the war against inflation. 179p $2.50 Rutgers univ. press
338.5 Prices 42-18740

"This little volume contains sketches of the anti-inflation policies of Sweden, England, Canada, and Switzerland, the accounts being carried through 1941." J Pol Econ

"Both persons interested in comparative economics and specialists in price control should find this an interesting and worthwhile book, providing they are uninterested in the incidental theoretical problems or are ignorant of recent economic events in Sweden, England, Canada and Switzerland. Many persons, including this reviewer, can satisfy one of these requirements. Accordingly this work may prove to be a popular publication." Stephen Enke
+ Am Econ R 33:689 S '43 1250w
Bookmark 4:5 My '43
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:365 Ja '43 10w

"The reader must expect something of the nature of brief interim reports, in which each reporter selects what seemed to him the most significant phases of the experience of one country. As such, these reports are well worth having, if only because the effect on the interested reader is likely to be to whet his appetite for more." J. M. Clark
+ J Pol Econ 51:76 F '43 1250w
Reviewed by Walter Hausdorfer
Library J 67:532 Je 1 '42 80w

KLATZKIN, JAKOB. In praise of wisdom [tr. by A. Ragelson]. 312p $3.50 Fischer, L.B.
892.48 43-16812

This volume by a Hebrew scholar, is composed of three parts. Part one consists of a collection of short pieces—some of a paragraph, some of a page or two—on a vast variety of ethical topics. Part two contains a number of longer psychological essays, while part three contains aphorisms.

J Philos 40:721 D 23 '43 420w

"Highly recommended." Emma Olcott
+ Library J 68:667 S 1 '43 70w
New Repub 109:757 N 29 '43 140w

"Not all of Klatzkin's essays and aphorisms are of equal high quality, and the value of the book as a moral and spiritual guide would be far greater than it is now, had the author himself sifted the chaff from the wheat. Nevertheless, 'In Praise of Wisdom' contains a great deal of undiluted condensed wisdom of long experience." Alfred Werner
+ — Weekly Book Review p14 N 7 '43 430w

KLAUSNER, JOSEPH. From Jesus to Paul; tr. from the Hebrew by William F. Stinespring. 624p $3.50 Macmillan
296 Jews—Religion. Christianity and other religions—Judaism. Paul, Saint. Bible. New Testament—Epistles 43-8434

"This is a book written originally in Hebrew by a Professor of Hebrew in the Hebrew University on Mount Scopus at Jerusalem. Materials laboriously collected for the work were destroyed by anti-Semitic rioters in Palestine and had to be prepared again by a learned and patient scholar. Finally, the work has been rendered into excellent English by a Hebrew authority in his own right. The volume is corollary to Dr. Klausner's earlier interpretation of Jesus, and the two books, taken together, express the considered judgment of the synagogue on the church and what the church stands for." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 39:456 Jl 15 '43

"The great value of Dr. Klausner's work lies in his intimate knowledge of Judaism and his penetrating analysis of the environmental factors of early Christianity. It is also valuable to have a picture of Paul by one who shares his Jewishness but is out of sympathy with the central core of his message. This book will not replace our Christian interpretation of Paul, but it will help greatly in clarifying our conception of the apostle." E. H. Wahlstrom
+ Christian Century 60:943 Ag 18 '43 1000w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 31 '43 700w

Reviewed by F. J. Moore
Churchman 157:14 O 1 '43 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '43

"This worthy presentation of the point of view of a Jewish scholar ought to be read in same scientific spirit in which it is written. Recommended for mature Jewish or Christian student." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 68:326 Ap 15 '43 80w

"The whole of this reconstruction of the past is as much a contribution to Christian as to Jewish thinking. But the very excellencies of this fine and scholarly survey of a period and the man within it who made a difference emphasize the gravity of the issue that has divided the Judaeo-Christian peoples into two groups. The position stated by Dr. Klausner will never be accepted by the worldwide brotherhood of faith and worship which honors Jesus as the Saviour of the world. On the other hand, Dr. Klausner, in his turn, inflexibly dismisses this challenging claim as a later, a gradual surging within the human mind." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 18 '43 650w

Reviewed by S. J. Case
Weekly Book Review p14 S 5 '43 700w

KLEIN, FRANK DUNNE. Process practices in the aircraft industry. 266p il $2.75 McGraw

629.134 Airplane industry and trade. Airplanes—Materials 42-51174

"The primary purpose of this text and reference book for aircraft inspectors is to assist in the standardization of quality and safety of airplanes by making available correct, authoritative, yet practical information on the factory inspection of modern aircraft. The book is based on the author's extensive aircraft factory experience, including eight years of specialization in inspection of aircraft and its components. . . The book covers every step in inspection routine from fabrication and subassembly to preflight and delivery inspection of the complete airplane. Throughout, stress is placed upon authoritative standards of workmanship, and care is taken to present all information necessary for inspections that meet the most rigid requirements of quality, serviceability, and safety." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 39:247 F 15 '43

Library J 67:953 N 1 '42 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:23 Ap '43

"An ambitious title and preface may lead the reader to believe that he will receive more than the expected amount of information. It is disappointing, then, to find that the majority of the processes and methods employed in the aircraft industry are given no consideration whatever, and that the few which are discussed are rather skimpily mentioned. . The author has performed a service, however, in gathering together the scattered information that will be particularly welcomed by those concerned with the procurement, specification and control of materials. The publication of this work may be justified on this score alone." J. E. Englund
N Y Times p22 Ja 31 '43 320w

KLEISER, GRENVILLE. Taking God into partnership; introd. by Roger W. Babson. 175p $1.50 Funk

248 Christian life 43-6420

"This is an imaginary account of a corporation that took God into partnership and based all its activities on the Golden Rule. The names of the officers and the company are wholly fictitious." Note

Christian Century 60:578 My 12 '43 70w

"The book is as forthright and practical as it is inspirational, and deserves to be widely read. Though primarily intended for businessmen and industrialists, who will appreciate its refreshing lack of sentimentalism, its message will be just as helpful to others." T. L. L.
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 5 '43 400w

KLINGBERG, FRANK JOSEPH. Main currents in English history. 209p $1.65 Appleton-Century

942 Great Britain—History 43-16311

Study of the origins and developments of English ideas and institutions, and their effect upon American ideas. The emphasis is upon social and political institutions, economic changes, and the human aspects of history. Suggestions for further reading. Index.

"American readers, no less than the American students for whom it was perhaps especially designed, will find this book a reliable and attractive guide to an acquaintance with those aspects of English history with which it is important for them to be familiar."
+ Christian Century 60:1369 N 24 '43 100w

"An interesting, readable account."
+ Social Studies 35:48 Ja '44 60w

KNAPP, EDWIN JOHN. Basic physics for pilots and flight crews. 118p $1.65; to schools $1.25 Prentice-Hall

530 Physics. Aeronautics 43-7279

"The purpose of this book is to teach the fundamentals of physics as a preparation for Meteorology, Theory of Flight, and Engine Operation. It is designed to meet the requirements of primary flight training or air cadet training." (Pref) "Based on mimeographed text used in several college and army flying schools in the Southwest. Dr. Knapp is professor of physics at College of Mines, University of Texas." (Library J) Index.

"Except in wartime, such a book would be described as superficial. It may serve a purpose today since it is supposed to follow a Civil Aeronautics Administration outline."
Book Week p11 Je 20 '43 80w

Booklist 40:5 S '43

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 30w

Reviewed by Theofore English
N Y Times p33 O 17 '43 70w

Reviewed by I. C. Cornog
R of Scientific Instruments 14:308 O '43 260w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p22 Je 6 '43 100w

KNICKERBOCKER, MRS FRANCES WENTWORTH (CUTLER). Free minds—John Morley and his friends. 288p $3 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Morley of Blackburn, John Morley, 1st viscount A43-1890

"Morley is, as the title of this book indicates, the central figure in Mrs. Knickerbocker's critical study; but she devotes almost as much space to Stephen and Harrison, and George

KNICKERBOCKER, F. W.—Continued
Meredith appears as a fourth figure of equal importance and significance though somewhat to one side of the social, political, and philosophical interests and activities of the other three friends. Behind the entire group loom up the majestic personalities of John Stuart Mill and Auguste Comte." Christian Science Monitor

"The focus of attention shifts from one to another of these friends, but Mrs. Knickerbocker manages to carry on the three or four streams of narrative and comment without confusion. The clarity is due not only to her gifts of organization and orderly synthesis but also to the fact that whether she is dealing with Morley, Stephen, Harrison, or Meredith, the central theme remains the same." S. C. C.
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 16 '43 650w

"Scholarly book. . . Excellent bibliography. Recommended for adult readers." H. P. Bolman
+ Library J 68:361 My 1 '43 120w

"Just now when reactionaries are anxious to exorcise the fascist Satan by employing that Beelzebub which Thomas G. Masaryk termed Caesaropapism, Mrs. Knickerbocker's scholarly work should be made compulsory reading in some of the Allied chancelleries, whose representatives apparently have forgotten that 'history itself is the story of liberty.' It is a gracefully written book, although the enviable literary erudition of the author sometimes leads to digressions at the expense of easy readability. Yet 'Free Minds' will never weary the reader because, like Morley himself, the author has 'learned the biographer's art of letting his subject speak and act.'" Rustem Vambery
+ Nation 157:563 N 13 '43 600w
N Y Times p36 S 19 '43 500w

KNIGHT, ABNER RICHARD, and FETT, GILBERT HOWARD. Introduction to circuit analysis. 447p $4 Harper
621.319 Electric circuits 43-10622

"Textbook for basic beginning course in electrical engineering for students who will enter power or communication engineering. Stress is laid upon 'step-by-step' solution of electric circuits." Library J

"This is a thorough book and is neither overtheoretical nor overpractical. It is recommended for students who have the background of a junior in a technical school." L. E. Grinter
+ Book Week p9 Ag 29 '43 80w
Library J 68:670 S 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:42 Jl '43

KNIGHT, BRIGID, pseud. See Sinclair, K. H. N.

KNIGHT, CLIFFORD. Affair of the fainting butler. 261p $2 Dodd 43-15294

Detective story.

Booklist 40:80 N 1 '43
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 O 24 '43 120w
"High grade."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:15 O 9 '43 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 80w
Time 42:104 N 1 '43 40w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 O 24 '43 250w

KNIGHT, CLIFFORD. Affair of the jade monkey. 239p $2 Dodd 43-5354

Detective story.

Booklist 39:355 My 1 '43

"Interesting characters, several of them with possible motives; scenic embellishments of great beauty; a bit of romance, and first-class sleuthing." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 11 '43 100w
"Good grade."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 Mr 27 '43 40w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p16 Ap 4 '43 180w

KNIGHT, JOHN ALDEN. Ol' Bill, and other stories; drawings by Milton C. Weiler. ltd autog ed 138p $5 Scribner 42-51183

"These are yarns full of nostalgia, complete escape from the horrors that surround us today, that will warm the hearts of any sportsmen. They are primarily for fishermen and gunners." Books

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 17 '43 170w

"The author and his characters are modest, warm, unfailingly gentlemanly. There is change of pace here and variety. Some of the stories deserve to be read aloud, and many will be read again and again."
+ Weekly Book Review p22 F 28 '43 100w

KNIGHT, KATHLEEN MOORE. Trademark of a traitor. 297p $2 Doubleday
43-10174

Tale of murders, kidnappings, and international intrigue, taking place in Central America. A Nazi plot is nipped in the bud by the American, Nicholas Duane, and his sweetheart, Martha, who has a habit of appearing in most unlikely places.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p7 Jl 4 '43 110w
Booklist 40:48 O 1 '43
"There is plenty of excitement in this one." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 Je 13 '43 80w
"Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 Je 12 '43 30w
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 1 '43 110w

"Kathleen Moore Knight has earned the right to dash off a tale of international intrigue if she sees fit to do so. This one is swift, crowded with dangerous action, pleasingly uncomplicated and always easy to read. It keeps your mind on the war with a minimum of mental strain and is abundantly provided with love." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p21 Je 6 '43 350w

KNIGHT, MARJORIE (MRS ELLIOTT BEACH MACRAE). Alexander's vacation; il. by Howard Simon. 106p $1.75 Dutton
43-14781

Further adventures of Alexander, the blue spotted horse, and his toy comrades, Aloysius the clown, and Penney the Scots guardsman. The excitement came about because Alexander got the idea Santa Claus needed a vacation. Their trip took them to Bermuda, and included the exciting experience of having Santa suspected of being a spy.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p11 Ag 22 '43 320w

"The story creaks a little, for it has a superfluity of stage properties, and the rather obviously manufactured incidents obscure the characterization of the amusing and lovable toys, which was the charm of the earlier book. Nevertheless, Miss Knight's story has a kindly quality and a gentle humor which will assure its welcome among child readers and make us hope that we may hear more about Alexander and his companion toys. The illustrations have charm and humor." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 29 '43 380w

"Howard Simon's drawings add to the charm of this cheerful, imaginative little tale."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 15 '43 110w

KNIGHT, ROY E. Machine shop projects for trade, vocational, and high school shops. 112p pa $1 McKnight

621.75 Machine shop practice 43-15277

"Blueprints and operation sheets, arranged as a notebook, for making a number of tools such as hammers, gauges, punch set, tap wrench, mandrel, jack screw, bending jig, etc. It is planned to cover the major machine shop operations." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 68:670 S 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:45 Jl '43

KNIGHT, RUTH (ADAMS) (MRS DICKSON JAY HARTWELL). Valiant comrades; a story of our dogs of war. 238p $2 Doubleday 43-16552

A story about the trained dogs of the K-9 corps. Larry, a lover of dogs, who had been rejected by the army, was able to do his part in the war, thru his ability to train dogs.

Booklist 40:151 D 15 '43

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p6 Ja 27 '44 180w

Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 10w

"While Valiant Comrades is unusually interesting and instructive in its revealing account of the training of war dogs, it is also a compelling story of a young man's conquest of a handicap and his share in stirring action." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:418 N '43 60w

"This 'fiction-based-on-fact' account of the war is 'sure fire' for older boys. Recommended." Margaret Abildgaard

+ Library J 68:1051 D 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:593 N 20 '43 20w

"The story is carelessly written but no admirer of dogs is going to cavil at that when faced with such interesting information, theory and some fascinating canine personalities." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p12 D 26 '43 260w

"The story of Dogs for Defense takes shape in a book that should be in a library whatever else on this subject it contains—and there have been admirable stories this year on our dogs in war." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 F 6 '44 330w

KNOLES, GEORGE HARMON. The presidential campaign and election of 1892. 268p map $2.75; pa $2 Stanford univ. press

329.01 U.S.—Politics and government—1865- 42-17328

"Considerable historic interest is attached to the election of 1892, coming as it did when the wave of agrarianism that swept across American life during the last half of the nineteenth century had reached its crest. No attempt is made here to retell the related story of Southern and Western protest; but Populism is fitted into its proper setting along with the other social and political movements of the times, thereby completing a picture frequently distorted because of independent treatment. Minor parties having little or no significance at the time of ballot counting are included on the ground that they too were a real expression of the life of America. The author is professor of history and head of the Department of Social Sciences at the Colorado State College of Education. Contents include the Democratic and Republican campaigns and conventions, the third party conventions, the organization of the parties for campaigning, the final drive, election day and after, an analysis of results and general conclusions, bibliography, and index." Publisher's note

"This excellent monograph is the best account of the contest in 1892 now in print. . . The injunction to the historian in Ernst Bernheim's Lehrbuch der Historischen Methode that he ought to have at least two independent witnesses for a statement of historic fact should always be applied to this work." A. T. Volwiler

+ — Am Hist R 48:608 Ap '43 900w

"George Harmon Knoles obviously did a prodigious amount of research into biographies,, memoirs, and correspondence of political leaders and into newspapers and journals of fifty years ago. The result might easily have been a dull, dry compendium of factual information; but it is not. The facts are present in abundance, but they are presented in a literary form that makes them almost fascinating reading. This is especially true of the narrative of the political background and play of political forces in both major parties and the Populist party in the period preceding the national conventions." H. R. Bruce

+ Am Pol Sci R 36:990 O '42 220w

KNOWLTON, EDWARD ROGERS (KERK ROGERS, pseud). Beach patrol. 276p $2.50 Mill 43-13079

Craig Anderson had enlisted in the Coast guard partly for revenge; his father had been shot as a rum-runner in prohibition days, and a Coast guardsman was responsible. Captain Hart, in charge of the Maine station, knew what Craig was planning, but he trusted and helped him, and his faith was not misplaced. The call of patriotism was louder than the desire for revenge.

Reviewed by Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p20 S 26 '43 140w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 2 '44 50w

"If a better yarn about this branch of the service in war time has been written, it hasn't come our way. . . Minor characters are crisply drawn, and the dialogue is tough and salty. 'Beach Patrol' is emphatically recommended." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p17 Ag 22 '43 330w

KNOX, JOHN. Marcion and the New Testament; an essay in the early history of the canon. 195p $2 Univ. of Chicago press

225.1 Bible. New Testament—Canon. Marcion, of Sinope 42-25863

"Marcion, according to Caspar René Gregory, was 'in every way the most active and influential man, bearing the name of Christian, between Paul and Origen.' . . Even as conservative a critic as Zahn can write, 'No Christian teacher of the second century holds so significant a place in the history of the ecclesiastical canon as the heretic Marcion.' The purpose of this book is to define as fully, as sharply, and with as much assurance as possible what that place was." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"There is one John Knox who is the author of a delightful book on Jesus and who is an inspiring preacher. There is another who delights in weaving novel hypotheses into gigantic reconstructions. This volume comes from the latter figure. A new study of Marcion in English has long been overdue and all should be grateful for this concise statement of the important place he occupied in the origin of the idea of a New Testament canon. When this is coupled with a reaction to Harrison's thesis concerning the epistles of Polycarp, and Walter Bauer's revolutionary reading of early second century Christianity, it is bound to contain much valuable material. But the author's chief interest lies in propounding some novel theses of his own." C. L. Craig

+ Christian Century 60:14 Ja 6 '43 850w

Reviewed by B. S. Easton
Churchman 157:15 Mr 1 '43 300w

"With this work Professor Knox has added another significant title to the growing list of his publications. Like those that have gone before, the book makes excellent reading, the argument being developed simply and lucidly in spite of the technical nature of some of the material involved in its presentation." C. H. Kraeling

+ Crozer Q 20:159 Ap '43 1200w

KNOX, JOHN—Continued

"The modest size of this little volume is no index of its value. Not only has Professor Knox given an admirably balanced and telling evaluation of one of the most significant and colorful figures which Christianity, early or late, has ever produced but he has thrown a shaft of brilliant light into the murkiness of the early history of a developing New Testament canon and has—most important of all—raised some very disquieting questions which cannot be ignored." M. S. Enslin

+ J Religion 23:140 Ap '43 1750w

KNOX, JOHN CLARK. Order in the court. 341p $2.75 Scribner

B or 92 Lawyers—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-7352

These further reminiscences of the author of The Judge Comes of Age (Book Review Digest, 1940) are chiefly devoted to stories of cases tried before him during his service as senior judge for the Southern district of New York. Index.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p4 Ag 22 '43 100w

Booklist 39:424 Je 15 '43

"Lawyers will read the book with interest and, it may be, individual profit. But what Judge Knox has to say will be equally interesting and instructive to laymen." F. L. P.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 My 5 '43 420w

Reviewed by J. K. Pauling

Commonweal 38:350 Jl 23 '43 300w

" 'Order in the Court' is not for those who find tedium in all things legal, even though it contains many delightful passages that have nothing to do with law—those on the hotel clerk and the irritating half-dollar, for instance. It ought to be good and easy reading for any one else, though." W. M. Farrell

+ N Y Times p10 My 30 '43 440w

"It is my pleasant duty to report that Judge John C. Knox's informal casebook, 'Order in the Court,' is thoroughly delightful. Those who enjoyed 'A Judge Comes of Age' will not be unduly astonished to hear this; others—meeting, for the first time, the author's cool reasonableness and fundamental regard for honorable conduct by men of good will—should be pleased to learn that the art of writing sound legal memoirs is very much alive." J. R. Parker

+ Sat R of Lit 26:37 Je 19 '43 600w

Springf'd Republican p6 My 10 '43 750w

"The judge has done a fine job in this book, which can be read with profit and pleasure by patriots, lawyers, unioneers, and even by other judges." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Je 6 '43 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 39:82 Je '43

KOCH, ADRIENNE. The philosophy of Thomas Jefferson. 208p $2.50 Columbia univ. press

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas 43-14414

"Miss Koch's book may be divided into two groups of chapters. One (parts 1 and 2) analyzes in great detail the ethics and philosophy of Jefferson and those who exercised greatest influence upon him—notably the French philosopher, Destutt de Tracy. Devoted to technical philosophical questions, it is not easy reading. . . The other group of chapters (part 3) is concerned with society. Here are gathered together some excellent thoughts about social organization, government, education and the like. Most readers will find this section appreciably easier going than the others." (Springf'd Republican) Bibliography. Index.

"The reader is challenged to exert himself in absorbing this volume, and can proceed from the more familiar chapters on republicanism, education, morals, and religion to more difficult material on natural rights, ideology, philosophical beliefs, and materialism. The author's thesis is that we have studied Jefferson too much as President and as the political leader of his generation, and too little as the chief philosophical founder of the American way of life. This volume redresses the balance." F. J. Klingberg

+ Ann Am Acad 231:190 Ja '44 410w

"From any point of view this small volume with its simple and alluring title is a great disappointment. It is published by the University Press as a Columbia Study in American Culture, but it is unsatisfactory as a scholarly treatment of its theme. It is also an unexpectedly slim and attractive book which does not resemble a thesis, but it fails to live up to its enticing exterior and intellectual promise. The author, I have no doubt, has taken great pains in her search through the mass of Jefferson's letters and papers; she has read the right secondary works. But she has neither organized the results of her inquiry nor developed a communicative interest in them." Jacques Barzun

Nation 158:22 Ja 1 '44 700w

"The second Woodbridge Prize in Philosophy has been wisely awarded to this admirable study." L. E. Denonn

+ N Y Times p34 N 14 '43 500w

"No one has analyzed as thoroughly and equitably as Adrienne Koch 'The Philosophy of Thomas Jefferson.' Miss Koch's essay, awarded the Woodbridge prize, appears in the Columbia 'Studies in American Culture.' The fact is worth mentioning because, for one thing, it suggests the author's broad treatment of the term 'philosophy.' And, conversely, owing to that very characteristic, the present monograph adds more luster to the 'Culture' series than most of its predecessors." S. L. Jackson

+ Springf'd Republican p8 D 1 '43 750w

KOEHLER, ROBERT PORTNER. Some try murder. 255p $2 Phoenix

43-15064

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p8 O 24 '43 70w

"You can solve this one yourself without too much strain."

New Yorker 19:88 O 16 '43 50w

KOENIG, HARRY CORCORAN, ed. See Roman Catholic church. Pope. Principles for peace

KOENIG, JOHN HENRY, and EARHART, WILLIAM HENRY. Literature abstracts of ceramic glazes. 285p $4 Industrial publications

016.666 Glazes 42-23683

"Includes references before 1941 selected from the Journal, Bulletin, and Transactions of The American Ceramic Society, Ceramic Industry, Transactions of the Ceramic Society (London), and other leading trade journals." N Y New Tech Bks

---

"It is a pleasure to acknowledge a debt of gratitude to the authors for this extremely useful reference book which will undoubtedly find a place on the working bookshelves of most ceramists interested in glazes as well as many of those engaged in the allied fields of glass and vitreous enamels." C. W. Parmelee

+ Chem & Eng N 21:344 Mr 10 '43 400w

"The greatest value of this book is to the plant operator and his control engineer who usually have not the time, and frequently have not had the necessary training, for planning ceramic researches but who nevertheless want to know what others have learned regarding the use of various materials and combinations before approving experiments in connection with their products. The simple, concise mode of presentation employed by the authors should meet every demand in this field." A. S. Watts

+ Chem & Met Eng 50:221 N '43 280w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:5 Ja '43

KOESTLER, ARTHUR. Arrival and departure. 180p $2 Macmillan
43-16520

Psychological study of a European communist, captured and tortured by the Nazis. He escapes and seeks refuge in an unnamed city, presumably Lisbon. Here he is treated by a woman psychoanalyst, who finds that some of his childhood traumas provide the background for the man who is Peter Slavek. On the eve of his planned escape to America, Peter turns back, to live or die in Europe.

"Symbolism flows through this fine narrative, but the reader need take only as much of it as he likes. He may read for the love story and the urgent (if not clearly definable) suspense induced by action that is almost entirely psychological, but if he does so, he is likely to be disappointed by the truncated ending—for the narrative is chopped off short. The brief epilogue is too clearly an afterthought to fit the excellent story that precedes it." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 172:139 D '43 150w

"This novel is . . . definitely an idea novel, but there is a vivid and sustained narrative, done with a skill already known to the thousands who were moved by Koestler's 'Dialogue With Death' and 'Darkness at Noon.'" Peter De Vries
+ Book Week p3 N 21 '43 450w
Booklist 40:165 Ja 1 '44

"There is not an empty word in this book, not a single hollow reflexion, not one 'literary dialogue' splitting the author's monologue in two as a traditional device. It is all life, fascinating, symbolic and great. Although its message is sad, its detail often unsavory and sordid and its outlook hopeless, I shall not retract what I have said: this is a very great book." H. A. Reinhold
+ Commonweal 39:255 D 24 '43 1250w

"Political intrigue, love affairs, an illness colored with symbolic dreams are the ingredients of a story lacking drama and reality because of its disguised setting and allegorical tone. The flawless almost poetic prose style and the dreamlike narrative will attract readers, but the analysis of history and political philosophy will be questioned." Rice Estes
Library J 68:892 N 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by J. D. Beresford
Manchester Guardian p3 N 19 '43 140w

"I know no novel of recent years so interesting in theme as 'Arrival and Departure.' To be sure, its intellectual preoccupation limits its range as a novel; and the movement and conclusion of its argument give us much to quarrel with. But these objections cannot constitute a whole judgment of a book which leads us to such high controversial ground and offers so courageous a challenge." Diana Trilling
+ Nation 157:672 D 4 '43 1450w

"'Arrival and Departure,' although it deals with the exiles, is not the novel he might have written after 'Scum of the Earth' and 'Darkness at Noon.' The trouble seems to be that Koestler is exclusively preoccupied with a moral problem facing most of the refugees. He omits almost everything else, including the real situation in which the moral decision has to be made. . . Some of the scenes are brilliant or deeply moving. . . What you miss in the book as a whole are the details that might explain or lend weight to Peter's decision. Everything except his inner life seems fantastically simple for a refugee." Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 109:721 N 22 '43 1400w

Reviewed by Philip Toynbee
New Statesman & Nation 26:371 D 4 '43 1300w

"Mr. Koestler has given 'Arrival and Departure' the full benefit of his marvelous ability to create a contemporary atmosphere and to make his characters represent the whole of the civilization to which they belong. But he has made his opponent, Dr. Bolgar's ideal of reason, a little too easy to refute. Dr. Bolgar is not the best representative of her type as Rubashov is of his. He is a perfect old Bolshevik. She, however, is too obvious; a priestess of some psychoanalytic cult, single-mindedly serving the native, sinless, unashamed instincts. The character of moral judgments may have been changed by modern psychology, but moral judgments themselves have not been abolished nor the need for them disclaimed." Saul Bellow
+ — N Y Times p1 N 21 '43 1700w

"I cannot too strongly urge 'Arrival and Departure' upon you. It is a book of force, which is not uncommon, but also of understanding, which is rare. It is, in addition, beautifully written, and the sinuous involvements of its plot will lead you mesmerically from the first sentence to the last. If Koestler develops, he may quite conceivably become the great writer of our generation. He has the wisdom, the passion, and the centrality, being close to the inner agony through which we are passing and still must pass." Clifton Fadiman
+ New Yorker 19:105 N 20 '43 550w

Reviewed by Robert Pick
Sat R of Lit 26:7 N 27 '43 900w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien
Spec 171:512 N 26 '43 750w

"Although he is interested in ideas, Koestler has not written just a novel of ideas in 'Arrival and Departure.' His characters, drawn astutely and subtly, are the embodiment of his ideas without being the puppets of his argument. Written brilliantly with clarity and ease, the novel is alive with drama and absorbing both in its story and characters and in the moving problem it presents." Elaine Penn
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 600w

"The book is vigorously written, in a style at times reminiscent of the Communist Manifesto of 1848, at others of the Bible. All the techniques of the narrative art, from chronicle-like recording to sophisticated flashbacks, are skilfully used to keep the reader in a state of suspense. Certain parts of the book ought to rank among the finest specimens of contemporary prose." Alfred Werner
+ Survey G 33:27 Ja '44 600w
Time 42:102 N 22 '43 700w

"It is a difficult and imperfectly resolved fable, but with something like a hundred times as much of the peculiar meat of modernity in it as there is in the run of contemporary novels."
Times [London] Lit Sup p545 N 13 '43 1250w

Reviewed by Virgilia Sapieha
Weekly Book Review p5 N 28 '43 1100w

"Arrival and Departure is heart-breaking, infuriating, humbling to read. But in its very urgency it falters as a work of art. It contains passages of inept writing, some almost ludicrous, and its effort to achieve universality by leaving cities, countries, and political parties unnamed seems only clumsy and artificial." Orville Prescott
+ — Yale R n s 33:xvi winter '44 800w

KOHL, GRACE L. Picture almanac for boys and girls; a fascinating introduction into the wonderland of everyday knowledge; designed and il. by Samuel Nisenson; ed. by William Hendelson. [382p] $1.98 Garden City pub. co.
031 Almanacs. Encyclopedias and dictionaries 43-9088

Interesting facts for every day of the year, illustrated and written for young readers. The information is of a diversified nature: for instance January 8th has the story of the battle of New Orleans; a short paragraph on Wilkie Collins, born on that day; and a brief essay on snow. Index.

"Addressed to an age-level that collects facts like postage stamps, this portly, pleasant volume gives boys and girls—particularly the former—a little of everything, on the date on which it took place." M. L. Becker
+ Books p6 Ja 10 '43 180w

KOHL, G. L.—Continued

"Almanacs are fascinating reading, and this is no exception. Wealth of information; many illustrations; good index. Seems designed more for private ownership than for public library use. Probably should be kept on reference shelf, as foreword invites reader to fill in weather charts and temperature readings for each day." Dorothy Lawson

+ Library J 68:173 F 15 '43 70w

KOLBECK, SISTER ORESTES. American opinion on the kulturkampf (1871-1882) [thesis]. 84p $1.50 Catholic univ. of Am.

943.08 Kulturkampf. Bismarck, Otto fürst von. Public opinion—U.S. A42-2420

"In view of the present conflict between church and state in Germany, this study of American opinion on the Kulturkampf is most timely. Whereas the American press of today has adopted a very hostile attitude toward Hitler's interference in church affairs, most of the commentators of the 1870's, according to Sister M. O. Kolbeck, followed Bismarck's attacks on the Catholic church with sympathetic interest. . . As the Kulturkampf gradually subsided, however, the American press adopted a more critical attitude toward Bismarck's actions." Am Hist R

"Sister Orestes' study is based on a careful examination of representative newspapers and periodicals of the time. Fully realizing that the press molds as well as reflects public opinion, she exercises considerable discrimination and caution in formulating her conclusions. Perhaps the real value of her book lies in the fact that it gives a good background to the Kulturkampf, something that is not readily available in English." R. H. Bauer

Am Hist R 48:416 Ja '43 240w

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley

Cath World 158:106 O '43 270w

KOLTHOFF, IZAAK MAURITS, and STENGER, VERNON ARTHUR. Volumetric analysis; 2v; v. 1, Theoretical fundamentals. 2d rev ed 309p il $4.50 Interscience

545.5 Volumetric analysis (42-14617)

"Revised and enlarged from the first English edition and the second German edition, this volume covers the theoretical fundamentals of an important part of quantitative analysis. Neutralization, ion combination and oxidation-reduction reactions receive extensive consideration. Conductometric, potentiometric and polarimetric titrations and some less common methods are also included. Indicators, titration curves, titration errors, reaction velocity, adsorption and coprecipitation phenomena, and volumetric methods of organic analysis are among the other chapters of the text. The authors promise a second volume which will be 'a critical review of existing methods.'" Chem & Met Eng

"The reviewer obtained the impression that the present edition has been held to a slightly more elementary level than the former one. . . In some few cases it seems unfortunate that topics should be discussed without reference to more recent work. . . The above are minor criticisms of a very valuable book which should be available to everyone seriously interested in the theory and development of volumetric methods of analytical chemistry." E. H. Swft

+ — Am Chem Soc J 64:2730 N '42 420w

Chem & Met Eng 50:169 Ja '43 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:54 O '42

KOMROFF, MANUEL. One story. See Bible. New Testament. Gospels

KOO, HUI-LAN (OEI). Hui-lan-Koo <Madame Wellington Koo> an autobiography; as told to Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer. 364p $3 Dial press

B or 92 43-16023

Autobiography of the Chinese heiress who became the wife of Dr Wellington Koo. She describes her gay life in Java, where her father had his lucrative business; in China, where she went on trips with her father or her husband; and in the various capitals of the world where her husband has held diplomatic posts.

"This is amusing, colorful reading, interestingly presented by Mary Thayer, but no more serious than whipped cream and just about as tempting as that food when you're looking for a good steak." Dorsey McCarthy

— + Book Week p9 N 21 '43 400w

"As you read you get the impression that Madame Koo has met and entertained many world figures without appreciating them. She has traveled without seeing and has mixed with history without understanding its portent. The last pages are slightly pathetic, as the author realizes her uncertain future brought about by the war." Helena Kuo

N Y Times p12 My 2 '43 950w

"These memoirs, exuberant and ingenuous, are completely frivolous and utterly detached from the present state of world affairs. They skirt the significant signposts of the previous decade and perfunctorily, even parenthetically, touch on historic events in which Dr. Wellington Koo was actively involved." Catherine Maher

N Y Times p7 O 31 '43 380w

"Those who take a serious interest now in China's heartrending struggle will find these confessions shockingly superficial, but I believe that Mrs. Koo knows herself and is honest about it. . . [It is] good reading and even an important part of history. Miss Thayer is to be congratulated on her job of mirroring Mrs. Koo so faithfully and entertainingly." Rodney Gilbert

+ Weekly Book Review p6 O 24 '43 2000w

KOOTZ, SAMUEL MELVIN. New frontiers in American painting. 65p pl $5 Hastings house

759.1 Painting, American. Paintings, American 43-6407

"For artists interested in current developments, for laymen who would understand 'modern' art. . . In forceful, occasionally brilliant stye, author attacks the Nationalist school: 'I have tried to show . . . that there is no such thing as an American art, what we have is an international art.' Kootz is concerned with creative thinking of certain painters and makes observations thought-provoking for their fresh point of view." Library J

Booklist 39:441 Jl 1 '43

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist

Commonweal 38:350 Jl 23 '43 600w

Reviewed by M. P. McKay

+ Library J 68:287 Ap 1 '43 90w

"This is one art book which would have been better if its text had been longer. Mr. Kootz's telegraphic style somewhat confuses the reader, and a number of challenging statements about contemporary painting are unsupported by proof. Interesting, though, and with plenty of well-reproduced illustrations."

+ — New Yorker 19:76 My 22 '43 50w

KOOTZ, SAMUEL MELVIN. Puzzle in paint. 254p $2 Crown

43-17315

Detective story.

"After a good deal of discussion about art and artists and some ribald episodes which have nothing to do with the plot, Jason comes up with a solution which many readers will have anticipated. The story will do for those who like that sort of thing." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p16 N 28 '43 80w

"Method of first slaying novel—if impractical —and Jason's philanderings plenty pungent. Otherwise undistinguished."

Sat R of Lit 26:20 N 27 '43 40w

KORNILOV, ALEKSANDR ALEKSANDROVICH. Modern Russian history from the age of Catherine the Great to the end of the nineteenth century; tr. from the Russian by Alexander S. Kaun; with a bibl. by John S. Curtiss. 1v ed 310;294p $4.50 Knopf

947.07 Russia—History 43-2833

"This work, in its English translation, was first published in 1917 in two volumes, with supplementary chapters by Professor Kaun dealing with the reign of Nicholas II. A one-volume edition, containing an Introduction and Bibliography by Professor Geroid T. Robinson, was published in 1924. The present one-volume edition omits the supplementary chapters and substitutes for Professor Robinson's material an entirely new bibliography by John S. Curtiss." (Publisher's note) Selected bibliography. Index.

Am Hist R 48:862 Jl '43 120w

"Professor Kornilov's history is addressed not only to students of history, but to Russian students of Russian history. It is clearly organized, clearly composed, and clearly aimed to pitch the battle between defensive Czardom and the opposition. But almost any page is a shower, nay, a deluge, of minutiae, details marshalled out of the sources, until the mind of any but the practised reader of history is stupefied. These are the disappointments in toto—inherent in the work itself, which is meant to be what it is. What we were hoping for, even twenty-five years ago, was a history which carried us through the dismal eighties and nineties, and which could be read without weariness of spirit. But Professor Kornilov's work must be read by us nevertheless—by all of us, in addition to the professional students of history." E. C. Ross

Sat R of Lit 26:6 Je 5 '43 650w

KORSON, GEORGE GERSHON. Coal dust on the fiddle. 460p $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

398.3 Folk songs, American. Coal miners. Folklore—Pennsylvania 43-10219

Collection of songs, a few with music, poems, and biographical and other sketches, all about the bituminous industry and the people it involves in the United States. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by M. P. Redfield

Am J Soc 49:282 N '43 260w

"I liked George Korson's earlier book about anthracite miners, 'Minstrels of the Mine Patch,' but this new volume is even better. . . No book I know gives so satisfyingly the whole body of experience of which ballads are an expression as does Korson in 'Coal Dust on the Fiddle.' It's a fine book for today." J. T. Frederick

+ Book Week p4 Jl 18 '43 700w

Booklist 40:75 N 1 '43

"Mr. Korson's book contains some incredibly bad verse. But it more than gets by on the background material and background emotion it contributes to the understanding of a peculiar American phenomenon: the psychology of the soft-coal miner."

+ — Commonweal 38:347 Jl 23 '43 1050w

Nation 157:135 Jl 31 '43 180w

"Mr. Korson's book is adequate as a full-length mirror held close to mining life. The mound of sociological description, historical narrative and folk-verse here presented should be a very welcome vantage point to all who are sympathetic to labor's struggle. As background to recent headlines, the book is timely, exciting." D. T. Bazelon

+ New Repub 109:725 N 22 '43 360w

"It is difficult to imagine a phase of the bituminous miner's life from the Eighteen Seventies to the present which Mr. Korson's admirable text does not illuminate. Few industries can show more drama: bigger accidents, more loss of life, more heroism in the face of danger, more of man's inhumanity to man. Nowhere has the fight for democracy been fiercer. Mr. Korson writes the whole story with compassion, restraint and the imagination necessary to recreate scene and feeling." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p22 Jl 25 '43 800w

Reviewed by Nelson Algren

Poetry 63:106 N '43 600w

"The book is in many ways a rarely intimate portrait of the miner painted in his own words and accented with the colors he would himself choose to fill in—as well as a valuable document." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 26:13 Jl 24 '43 450w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 4 '43 390w

KORTRIGHT, FRANCIS H. Ducks, geese and swans of North America; a vade mecum for the naturalist and the sportsman; il. by T. M. Shortt. 476p il maps $4.50 Am. wildlife inst, 822 Investment bldg, Washington, D.C.

598.41 Ducks. Geese. Swans. Birds—North America 43-1099

"In this work a chapter is devoted to each species. The scientific name is given with its meaning, as are the colloquial names used in different localities. Both the adult and the young are completely and accurately described, and the identifying marks are given as they appear in flight, on the water and on the ground. A complete life story of each species has been compiled from various writers. There are more than 200 line drawings, and 36 plates in full color showing each bird in its winter and summer plumage, the young of each species, and the various hybrids." (Book Week) Bibliography. Index.

"Not only is this a valuable book for everyone interested in waterfowl, but it should be required reading for every hunter and sportsman." Leonard Dubkin

+ Book Week p8 Mr 21 '43 500w

Booklist 39:382 Je 1 '43

"A volume that every student of American bird life may possess with profit." A. F. G.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 3 '43 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

KOTSCHNIG, WALTER MARIA. Slaves need no leaders; an answer to the fascist challenge to education. 284p $2.75 Oxford

370.9 Education. Reconstruction (1939-). Fascism 43-51002

Analysis of the effect of Fascist rule upon education in Europe, with some references to the Far East. The author is professor of comparative education at Smith college, and has had long experience in the field of international education, having served as general secretary of the International student service at Geneva. Index.

Reviewed by Reinhard Bendix

Am J Soc 49:280 N '43 750w

Reviewed by J. B. Mason

Am Pol Sci R 37:736 Ag '43 490w

"The book is written with conviction. In many passages the author shows keen insight and analytical power. His analysis (p. 141) of the weakness of mere objectivity is excellent. He answers well those who argue for the use of Hitler's methods to achieve a different purpose (p. 145). His indignation against crimes and errors blazes from many pages, and he does not underestimate the thoroughgoing nature of the philosophy and 'demonic forces' against which we now wage war. The class education which prevails in Europe is justly portrayed as an evil which has had and has far-reaching effects. The book deals with a great problem and makes some contribution toward its solution." E. B. Wesley

+ Ann Am Acad 228:148 Jl '43 650w

"Kotschnig never forgets that education reflects the society in which it functions; nor, certainly, does he err in seeing education as itself a cause in society. But I think he often does forget that what it will cause is determined not alone by educators, but by boards of education and trustees, legislators, politicians—and by every current in society. In short, education, while 'changing the world,' must get a changing world's permission to change it. But it would be unfair, perhaps,

KOTSCHNIG, W. M.—Continued
to attribute this inconsistency to anything other than Kotschnig's zeal for a freer, more democratic world." Joseph Mau

Book Week p4 Ap 11 '43 450w

Booklist 39:218 F 1 '43

Bookmark 4:5 Mr '43

"Mr. Kotschnig's character study is impressionistic and historically not documented. It shares the shortcomings of all essays at a mere psychological approach. But the reader will certainly agree with the educator's conclusion that any alternative other than a sincere attempt to bring Germany back into the family of nations will mean, in its consequences, the 'permanent enslavement of all mankind by war.' Read the book, it is full of challenging ideas and opinions." Paul Hagen

+ — Books p14 Ja 31 '43 1500w

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ap 3 '43 400w

Reviewed by Allison Davis

El School J 44:180 N '43 900w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:577 Ap '43 30w

"Recommendations for postwar reconstruction that will alter 'defeat' pattern of German psychology."

+ Library J 67:1013 N 15 '42 50w

"In the growing literature of post-war planning, the role of education has been almost completely ignored. For that reason alone, this book deserves the widest possible audience." R. R. Munn

+ Library Q 13:269 Jl '43 650w

"The material is so overwhelming that it often gets out of hand, giving a generally cluttered and disorganized impression. But it is all good and valuable stuff, and the author's post-war ideas are sound and clear."

+ — New Repub 108:574 Ap 26 '43 60w

"Building on what Louis Adamic and others have written, Kotschnig makes a number of noteworthy suggestions. On all these complex and difficult topics he writes with a calm and realistic idealism which is all the more impressive because based upon years of experience in education and international cooperation. The book is dedicated to Fritz Beck, the Munich educator who gave his life in the service of a civilization the Nazis would stamp out. It seems to me a monument of which this great leader would have been justly proud." G. N. Shuster

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 24 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Thomas Woody

School & Society 57:304 Mr 13 '43 1200w

"The closing sections of this volume, dealing with specific reconstruction programs in Europe and education in the post-war world, are a fitting climax to a book intelligently conceived, convincingly outlined, and eloquently written. This is a professional publication of crucial importance, and it must not be neglected." C. D. Champlin

+ School R 51:434 S '43 800w

"Perhaps education as a topic for books has produced as much woolly and unsatisfactory writing as any one general subject. Just now the spate of books and periodical articles on postwar questions adds another stream of speculative, hortatory and often nebulous reading. It is therefore pleasant to find that Prof Kotschnig can actually combine these two cloudy topics and produce a book that is fairly specific and steadily interesting. 'Slaves Need No Leaders'. . . deserves wide reading. And its crisp, easy style invites such attention."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 9 '43 1200w

KOZLENKO, WILLIAM, comp. 25 non-royalty one-act American comedies. 430p $2.50 Greenberg

812.08 American drama—Collections 43-7791

Contents: From Paradise to Butte, by Robert Finch; Cupid's bow, by Spranger Barry; The reign of Minnie Belle, by V. B. Weaver; The more the merrier, by Stanley Kauffman; The man of the house, by Robert Welles; Freedom's bird, by Betty Smith; The package for Ponsonby, by John Davis; Man of arts, by Elisabeth Wehner; Bargain rack, by M. A. Taylor; Over fourteen and single, by L. R. Williams; Mary's cerise heart, by E. C. McCarty; Yankee Nickels, by Betty Roberts; Two birds with one stone, by Peter Clandon; Quimby comes across, by Don Perris; For better or worse, by S. S. Sinclair; Keep me a woman grown, by Gladys Charles and George Savage; Triflin', by L. N. Jones; Jennie knows, by Bernard Sobel; Moonlight to match, by D. P. Buck; What's in a name? by Mary Smith; Outbound for romance, by Ruth Kane; For a rainy day, by Barry Heenan; Annie's man, by Herbert Lee; Remember your diaphragm! by Meyer Hanson; Psychologically speaking, by Lucretia Govedare.

"These plays are not bad. . . They do not suffer from too-faulty construction; they do not run off into absurd situations. But they are mostly dull." Maurice Gnesin

Book Week p3 Je 27 '43 290w

Booklist 39:442 Jl 1 '43

"Recommended for high school libraries especially."

+ Library J 68:574 Jl '43 40w

Springf'd Republican p8 Je 16 '43 250w

Weekly Book Review p10 Ag 8 '43 100w

KRAINES, SAMUEL HENRY, and THETFORD, ELOISE SUTHERLAND. Managing your mind; you can change human nature. 374p $2.75 Macmillan

150.13 Psychology, Applied 43-8661

"Produced in collaboration by a physician and a psychologist [this work discusses] the many problems that arise in the attempt to develop a sane and healthy personality through the changing cycle of life in this distracting scene." Christian Century

"The leaving out of the rôle of the unconscious enables the authors to appeal to the intellect of the reader and leave the impression that an individual can obtain conscious insight and control over his psychoneurotic symptoms. While the authors give adequate and repeated warning about self diagnosis and self treatment, the whole purpose of the book and the way it is written is to convince the lay reader that he can cure himself, so to speak. Since the major portion of the book is devoted to psychoneurotic symptomatology, one may be a bit pessimistic about the author's optimism in this direction. In the latter part of the book, which is devoted to living a healthy life, the authors are on safer ground." J. M. Cunningham

+ — Am J Pub Health 34:79 Ja '44 320w

"An uncommonly wise and useful book. . . To some, as to this reviewer, it will seem a defect that religion is not mentioned as a factor of man's personal or social life, or as having any relation to the formulation of a 'philosophy of life,' to which a chapter is devoted. The authors say they 'will leave to the philosopher' the as yet unanswered question, What is life? But on the same page they announce with italic emphasis: 'There is no such thing as the mind.' Might it not be as well to leave that to the philosopher too?"

+ — Christian Century 60:800 Jl 7 '43 100w

"Although the experienced worker in human behavior justifiably will raise an eyebrow, much of authors' practical psychology is valid and can be recommended to intelligent adults." A. I. Bryan

+ — Library J 68:529 Je 15 '43 110w

Wis Lib Bul 39:155 D '43

KRAUS, RENE. Young Lady Randolph; the life and times of Jennie Jerome, American mother of Winston Churchill. 372p il $3.50 Putnam

B or 92 Churchill, Jennie (Jerome) (Lady Randolph Churchill) 43-6374

Lively biography of the American mother of Winston Churchill. It begins with a short sketch of the career of Jennie Jerome's dynamic father. The life of the Jerome family in New York is described, and the years in Paris in the 1870s, and the departure for England after the fall of the Empire. Lady Randolph's courtship and marriage, her friendship with the Empress Eugenie, and the youth of her famous son are all portrayed. The book closes with her marriage to George Cornwallis-West, five years after the death of her first husband. Bibliography.

Christian Science Monitor p18 My 12 '43 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 Jl '43

"Mr. Kraus has drawn skillfully on many books in following his biography of Churchill with this successful portraiture of the great man's mother. It is true that various errors have entered the book. Mr. Kraus repeatedly misspells Ambassador Washburne's name; he refers to Waddington as the American, instead of the French, Ambassador to the Court of St. James; he applies the term 'the Four Hundred' to a period quite some years antedating the time when Ward McAllister invented this society classification. . . But these are minor slips easily forgiven an Austrian writer who has achieved so decidedly enjoyable a volume." G. S. Hellman

+ — N Y Times p6 My 2 '43 900w

New Yorker 19:75 My 1 '43 50w

"This book, for all its faults, actual errors of fact (Mr. Kraus even invents a Mrs. Arthur Balfour and makes Lily Langtry an opera singer), is a fascinating record not only of a past epoch, but of a great and tragic love affair." R. E. Roberts

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:20 My 15 '43 1050w

Springf'd Republican p7e My 2 '43 470w

"It is a brilliant portrait of an era and of one lovely and energetic American woman's part in it. . . Mr. Kraus has been eminently successful in portraying Lady Randolph as she threaded her way through the meshes of British politics, politely plotting and pulling wires." Richardson Wright

+ Weekly Book Review p5 My 2 '43 1100w

KREIDER, CARL JONAS. Anglo-American trade agreement. 270p $3.50 Princeton univ. press

337.91 U.S.—Commerce—Great Britain. Great Britain—Commerce—U.S. A43-1235

"Carl Kreider's [book] is the product of several months of special study of the most elaborate of all the agreements brought about under the Trade Agreements Act of 1934. The author has recognized the political significance of this particular reciprocal pact and does not neglect its international implications in the broader sense. Since this act has been twice renewed and is now pending before Congress for its third lease on life, careful study of the one outstanding achievement during the nine years of its existence is timely. While the author has firm convictions and sympathy for the perpetuation of whatever will liberalize international exchange, his study is critical rather than partisan and propagandistic." Am Pol Sci R

"This is an excellent book embracing careful scholarship and critical judgment in an area in which there are so many favorable biases in the literature of other workers in the field, not to mention the studied and calculating language used in official statements." A. R. Upgren

+ Am Econ R 33:921 D '43 750w

"This volume renders an important service. It is the only comprehensive analysis of any recent American trade agreement which has been made by a person outside the government. Its objectiveness is not greatly impaired by the writer's strong free-trade leaning." E. D. Durand

+ Am Hist R 49:160 O '43 500w

Reviewed by J. D. Larkin
Am Pol Sci R 37:562 Je '43 340w

Reviewed by E. T. Grether
Ann Am Acad 229:185 S '43 500w

"Mr. Kreider has written a brilliant analysis of the Agreement and the negotiations leading up to it with particular reference to its place in and relationship to the commercial policies of the two countries immediately concerned." J. P. Humphrey

+ Canadian Forum 23:140 S '43 1050w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:157 O '43 10w

Reviewed by Constant Southworth
Pol Sci Q 58:467 S '43 500w

"Dr. Kreider's primary interest lies in the field of economics and his book based upon a doctoral dissertation contains much material which is of interest only to advanced students of international economics. However, his work has worth for general readers as an objective evaluation of some recent policies of the world's two greatest commercial nations." H. T. Pinkett

Social Studies 34:235 My '43 550w

KRIDL, MANFRED; MALINOWSKI, WLADYSLAW R., and WITTLIN, JOZEF, eds. For your freedom and ours; Polish progressive spirit through the centuries; pref. by Malcolm W. Davis; tr. and editorial assistance by Ludwik Krzyzanowski [rev. and adapted by Sidney and Edith Sulkin]. 359p $2.50 Ungar

914.38 Poland—Civilization. Poland—History—Sources 43-9073

Collection of documents or excerpts covering six hundred years of Polish history. They were chosen to exemplify the democratic, social-minded and humanitarian aspects of the Polish character.

"The editors promised in their introduction to give the American reader 'a true picture' of Polish thought on various problems. Actually, they have given only a partial picture, omitting all the facts, trends, and utterances that did not conform with their intentions. The outcome is propaganda." E. S. P.

— Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 10 '43 400w

Reviewed by S. J. Hemleben
Social Studies 34:373 D '43 600w

"'For Your Freedom and Ours' is a real contribution to a clearer understanding of the Polish mentality, and I am grateful to the editors for compiling this book. But why 'pink up' the great writings from which they quote with such biased and class-conscious editorial comments? Skarga, Kosciuszko, Staszic and the others have spoken clearly enough for themselves. The accompanying explanations are not only superfluous but also tend to distort the picture of Poland's development which its great men have given us. The editorial contributions to the book are its only flaw." Paul Sapieha

+ — Weekly Book Review p18 Je 6 '43 1000w

KRISTELLER, PAUL OSKAR. Philosophy of Marsilio Ficino; tr. into English by Virginia Conant. 441p $4.50 Columbia univ. press

189.5 Ficino, Marsilio 43-7253

"Ficino was the brightest light in the Renaissance Florentine academy (a coterie, not a school). His translation of Plato brought back into the stream of European philosophy an influence which had been virtually lost. But Ficino was not only the translator of Plato and, in his extended prefaces, the first modern commentator. He was also an independent thinker in the Platonic tradition. . . Dr. Kristeller's research has been thorough and the result is enlightening to those who are prepared to follow the intricacies of a system which combines scholastic, Platonic and neo-Platonic elements with original contributions reflecting the spirit of the Renaissance." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Index.

"This is an addition of the first importance to knowledge of Renaissance thought."

+ Christian Century 60:800 Jl 7 '43 130w

"Professor Kristeller's book is so provocative that it will undoubtedly excite considerable discussion in the more professional reviews. It is the first book in English on the subject. Perhaps I should add that the book, like its author, has found refuge in this country. The manuscript was first written in German (1937). Then the work was translated into Italian (1938). It is from this Italian version that the present English translation was made by Miss Virginia Conant. Amidst the many tragedies of war, it is our happy fortune that so serious and thoughtful a book should appear in America." A. C. Pegis

KRISTELLER, P. O.—Continued

+ Commonweal 38:348 Jl 23 '43 1200w

"Kristeller's research and his interpretations, offered here with love and enthusiasm as well as with a most thorough scholarship and admirable conception, were long due." B. E. Nelson

+ N Y Times p20 N 21 '43 600w

KROLL, HARRY HARRISON. Rogues' company; a novel of John Murrell. 412p $2.75 Bobbs

Murrell, John A.—Fiction 43-16218

Fictionized biography of a scoundrel of the 1830's, known along the Natchez Trace and lower Mississippi. John Murrell was one of the early empire builders and horse thieves known in those days as "speculators." The story traces his career from the time he was in his early teens, to the conclusion of his trial for stealing and selling slaves.

Booklist 40:165 Ja 1 '44

"Anyone who longs for the 'simple life' of pioneer days should dip into 'Rogues' Company' for another slant on it. The book is engrossing enough to guarantee forgetfulness—at least temporary—of the perplexities of today's world." Beatrice Sherman

+ N Y Times p6 N 7 '43 1050w

"Mr. Kroll has gathered together all the available material about Murrell into a smooth-flowing fictionalized biography. It is a fascinating story and the author has been wise enough to step aside and let it tell itself." Herbert Kupferberg

+ Weekly Book Review p5 N 21 '43 500w

KRONER, RICHARD. How do we know God? an introd. to the philosophy of religion. 134p $1.75 Harper

231 God. Religion—Philosophy 43-4796

"The former professor of philosophy in the University of Berlin writes on the ageless question. He does not approve the answers of the modern theological empiricists, of Macintosh and Wieman. He makes a sharp distinction in kind between scientific and religious knowledge. If anything, he sides with the traditional exponents of 'revealed religion,' and has good words to say about Karl Barth. However, he does not fall into liberalism, and points out the spiritual value of what may be historical legend." Churchman

Reviewed by S. L. Riddle
Churchman 157:16 Je 1 '43 150w

"How Do We Know God? is a confusing book—confusing, it seems to the reviewer, not because of the depth of its ideas, but because of their contradictoriness. This is not to say that the book is wholly confusing and contradictory or that it lacks all merit. For its opposition to naturalistic philosophy, for its refusal to surrender to the 'cult' of science, and for its profound appreciation of prophetic religion it is worthy of high commendation. . . Dr. Kroner has written a stimulating and provocative book. It is not consistent; its definitions are not precise; yet it is a book which grows out of rich and sincere experience, out of struggle and suffering. Few will agree with it throughout. Open-minded readers will learn much from it." E. S. Brightman

+ — Crozer Q 20:335 O '43 1200w

Reviewed by B. M. Loomer
J Religion 23:226 Jl '43 430w

KRONER, RICHARD. Primacy of faith. 226p $2.50 Macmillan

234.2 Faith. Christianity—Philosophy 43-9844

"In his Gifford Lectures of 1939-40, Dr. Kroner, of Union Theological Seminary, presents satisfying treatment of timely subject. The re-union of reason and faith demanded by the new Christian philosophy can be achieved, he believes, by recognizing faith's primacy over reason. Thought and faith are not contradictory but complementary. However, faith holds the primacy, surpassing the power of reason and completing its undertaking. Thought alone is incapable of entering sphere of real life. Faith, based on imagination, succeeds where thought fails. It is life's 'burning vital center.'" Library J

Booklist 40:53 O 15 '43

Reviewed by J. C. Bennett
Christian Century 60:1472 D 15 '43 750w

Reviewed by F. J. Moore
Churchman 157:18 N 1 '43 360w

"This book is a fascinating and learned attempt to reinterpret the functions of reason and faith in relation to the theological problem and the Christian faith. But I am not sure that it is illuminating, especially if one is not willing to grant priority at the outset to certain demands of the religious consciousness." P. A. Bertocci

+ — Crozer Q 20:355 O '43 650w

"Recommended for mature readers." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 68:361 My 1 '43 110w

"The book is well-written with, on the whole, as clear a style as is possible in a work dealing with such profound considerations. It suffers from the fact that, although it has been carefully edited in preparing it for publication from its original lecture form, it still has a certain redundancy, appropriate on the platform where difficult ideas are made to sink in by being repeated in different ways. This is an important and significant book." C. D. Kean

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 22 '43 1100w

"It is difficult in a brief account to do justice to the wealth of learning and the profundity of reflection which have gone into this volume. It may well prove to be a book of marked influence upon American thought because it does more justice to the great humanistic and philosophical traditions than continental theology usually accords them. On the other hand it measures the religious problem more profoundly than do most American philosophies of religion. Professor Kroner's presence in America is one of those by-products of Hitler's mania for which we can be profoundly grateful." Reinhold Niebuhr

+ Weekly Book Review p13 Ja 2 '44 800w

KRUEGER, JOSEPH J. Baseball's greatest drama. 409p il $2.75 Classic pub. co, room 806, 104 E. Mason st, Milwaukee 2

796.357 Baseball 43-9504

"A history of the world series from the first series in 1903 through that of 1942. Each year is treated separately with highlights of the season in the National and American leagues, and summary of each game of the series, including comments on outstanding players and plays, comparisons with performances of other years, attendance records, and receipts. No index." Booklist

Booklist 40:7 S '43
Wis Lib Bul 39:121 O '43

KUHN, HELMUT. Freedom forgotten and remembered. 267p $2.50 Univ. of N.C. press

943.086 Germany—Nazi movement 43-8971

"This book is by a German who made America his adopted country of his own free will. An officer in the first World War, a student of philosophy, and secretary of the famous Kant Society in Berlin, an associate of Martin Niemoeller's Confessional Church group, he is now a member of the philosophy department at the University of North Carolina. His essay on freedom is a moving document. Its significance lies only partly in its penetrating anaysis of Germany, of the 'perverted passion' of a desperate and frenzied people under a deified tyrant; here is a most lucid attempt to explore the darkness of the German mind. But what seems to me to make Mr. Kuhn's treatise even more important is that it bears witness to the other Germany and the other Germans. The author's eloquent words echo the voice of men like Niemoeller, Galen, and Preysing, who are silenced today but whose spirit will not perish even if the martyrs die." Survey G

Reviewed by Read Bain
Am Soc R 8:731 D '43 1250w

Reviewed by James Burnham
Ann Am Acad 229:182 S '43 450w

"Dr. Kuhn's book is a rich, meaty volume, compactly written and closely argued." Robert Bendiner
+ Book Week p4 Jl 25 '43 650w

"Professor Kuhn's book is not easy reading. It is often redolent of too abstract German philosophers. It demands concentration and the will to honest self-scrutiny. But it is worth the effort." E. S. P.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 26 '43 600w

Reviewed by J. H. Titus
Churchman 157:14 Ag 1 '43 210w

"The book is sincerely recommended to every thinking person whose intellectual curiosity is directed toward the German problem." A. C. Washburne
+ Commonweal 38:254 Je 25 '43 550w

Reviewed by V. J. McGill
J Philos 40:384 Jl 8 '43 1400w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 7 '44 150w

"This is definitely a book worth reading with care. Incidentally it is written so imaginatively and in so robust a style that one suspects the author of no ordinary linguistic gifts. The retouched prose of average émigré writing is usually more labored." Reinhold Niebuhr
+ Nation 157:738 D 18 '43 700w

Reviewed by John Storck
N Y Times p33 S 19 '43 440w

"The author, a philosopher born and trained in Germany, deals with his subject in a way which makes this book an outstanding contribution for the understanding of our time. The book has great depth, and yet it is written with a lucidity and brilliance which render reading a pleasant effort well rewarded." Hans Kohn
+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 D 25 '43 1200w

"The student of the history of philosophy may feel that the author has neglected the contribution of the Kant-Fichte-Hegel tradition to the unfortunate intellectual climate of Germany, a contribution which Prof Dewey has so ably described. A student of political economy may feel that the author has not given sufficient attention to the evolution of economic society, the eteology of which has been so masterfully portrayed by Peter Drucker. Yet within its limits, and there are definitely such limits, Prof Kuhn's book is an able and valuable presentation of an aspect of modern culture which needs the kind of treatment he gives it. The book has the great value that, in addition to its clarity and its profundity of insight it is well written and readable." C. D. Kean
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Je 6 '43 1200w

Reviewed by H. W. Weigert
Survey G 32:266 Je '43 490w

Time 41:102 Je 7 '43 100w

"Brilliant and extraordinarily sensitive book. . . This book is in my opinion the ablest philosophical essay so far devoted to the study of what is the essence of Hitlerism and the essence of freedom. Like Archibald MacLeish and Professor Joad, Mr. Kuhn speaks to those who know that now, as never before, one must wrestle for the soul of man." G. N. Shuster
+ Weekly Book Review p14 O 17 '43 1000w

KULISCHER, EUGENE MICHEL. Displacement of population in Europe. 171p maps $1.50; pa $1 Int. labor office [6s; pa 4s King]

940.53159 World war, 1939—Migration. Europe—Population L43-213

"The process technically called the 'Displacement of Population in Europe,' described in a book now issued by the International Labor Office in Montreal, has been a process of such stupendous magnitude and intricacy that no one of us possibly can have seen the picture as a whole. More than 30,000,000 men, women and children have been torn from their homes since the war started—'transplanted, deported or dispersed.' The total does not include the exodus from the Ruhr when it was bombed, the exodus from Hamburg when Hamburg was destroyed, the people of Lubeck, of Naples, of a hundred cities. The book has outline maps of Europe with the frontiers indicated. On these maps there are heavy black arrows driving across Europe, across the frontiers. These arrows show the migration of peoples." Commonweal

---

"The reviewer is not competent to pass definitive judgment on the accuracy of Dr. Kulischer's estimates, but it seems to him that they are very conservative—that Dr. Kulischer has leaned backwards in his effort not to exaggerate. Even so, no one can read this book and not be appalled by the immensity of these movements and, I may add, overwhelmed by the difficulties of restoring these millions to even the semblance of normal life. . . This is a book which everyone interested in a peace settlement that will have any chance to succeed should read and ponder. It poses some of the most difficult problems that will have to be faced in arriving at the pacification of Europe." W. S. Thompson
+ — Ann Am Acad 231:169 Ja '44 600w

Christian Century 60:1506 D 22 '43 130w

"There is no book on the war which we should read before reading this report from the International Labor Office. There is certainly no book about the peace we hope for after this war which can have any meaning for us unless we have read Professor Kulischer's statistics, explanations, quiet narration, until we have looked at his maps, followed those dark arrows of despair and separation which cross his maps in all directions."
+ Commonweal 39:146 N 26 '43 600w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Nation 157:618 N 27 '43 600w

New Repub 109:694 N 15 '43 150w

"Although it is in no sense a penetrating work of sociological or political significance, since Kulischer has made no effort even to touch upon [the] consequences of contemporary migrations, the study has the distinction of being the best up-to-date factual survey of its field. In fact, one cannot admire too much the skill with which the mosaic of widely scattered information has been put together out of its thousand details." J. S. Roucek
+ Pol Sci Q 58:632 D '43 420w

KUNITZ, STANLEY J., and HAYCRAFT, HOWARD, eds. Twentieth century authors; a biographical dictionary of modern literature; complete in one volume with 1850 biographies and 1700 portraits. 1577p $8.50 Wilson, H.W.

928 Authors 43-51003

"The lives in brief, the listed works and the dearest opinions of 1,850 authors who have flourished or wilted in our own century, together with critical estimates of their achievements. Here are the late Victorians, the Edwardians and the Georgians; here are the French Symbolists, the Unanimists and a few Surrealists, not to mention Simenon, who is a literature in himself; here are the German Expressionists, the exiles from fascism and some of those who stayed beyond the Rhine; here are the proletarians, the revolutionary novelists, the social realists and the landlords and tenants of ivory towers; here are detective-story writers, ranch romancers and academic historians of the American dream; here is Thomas Mann with his elder brother and two of his six children. . . Here, in a word, is practically every writer of every nationality including the Finnish who has published serious or popular books in America since the turn of the century." (New Repub) Arrangement is alphabetical by author's surname. Photographs of 1700 of the authors are included.

KUNITZ, S. J.—Continued

Booklist 39:222 F 1 '43
Bookmark 4:3 My '43

"It kept us waiting four years and is worth it. . . 'Living Authors' set a standard back in 1931; 'Authors Today and Yesterday' maintained it; this surpasses them both."
+ Books p26 Ja 24 '43 300w

"Invaluable for reference libraries, interesting to everyone who wishes to be informed about the person behind the book he reads." W. K. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Mr 13 '43 430w

"This biographical dictionary is an indispensable tool for any library that boasts even a modest reference department. It will also prove invaluable to anyone with a modicum of curiosity concerning the men and women who have done, or are doing, the imaginative and nonimaginative writing of our time." F. B. Millett
+ Library Q 13:348 O '43 850w

"'Twentieth Century Authors' is not a scholarly work. Even a casual reader finds casual errors. . . The bibliographies are incomplete and not without errors. Most of the critical estimates are perfunctory, and a few of them sound as if they were written by people who never read the books on which they are passing final judgments. These are faults, however, for which the editors should not be severely blamed. With a small staff and limited funds, they had to assemble data about most of the authors living today; and they did their work sufficiently well to make their book invaluable to reference librarians. As for book reviewers and literary editors, I don't see how they can do without it. We can be thankful that Messrs. Kunitz and Haycraft are usually right, for each of their mistakes will be copied so often, in so many lectures, reviews and literary portraits based on their material, that it will end by having the authenticity of a legend." Malcolm Cowley
+ — New Repub 108:257 F 22 '43 1250w

"Brightly written, gossipy biographical dictionary."
+ New Yorker 18:52 Ja 2 '43 30w
Springf'd Republican p8 F 4 '43 380w

"The physical makeup of the volume is good; it is durably bound in buckram. Twentieth Century Authors is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:13 Ja '43 320w

KUNKEL, FRITZ. In search of maturity; an inquiry into psychology, religion, and self-education. 292p $2.75 Scribner

137 Personality. Psychology, Applied 43-15540

"Four-fifths of the book is taken up with an exposition of the so-called 'We-Psychology,' which stems from the great teacher, Jung. Its aim is to rescue man from the inner manias of the Ego, or separate self; and from the outer idolatries which are sham substitutes for 'the real treasure' of faith. Medical knowledge has its place in this psychology, but its essence is religion which emphasizes that spirit of love, or fellowship, which leads through group consciousness to God." Weekly Book Review

"The book is well written and the style is interesting but, as Kunkel admits, conclusions throughout are submitted with very little, if any, evidence of proof. The reader is expected to have faith and accept the theories, formulations, deductions and conclusions as factual. Possibly the naive searcher for new ways in mental health will welcome this contribution; the scientific thinker who obtains his information through a willingness to believe only that which will bear careful clinical and experimental investigation, will consider this text just another attempt of a well-meaning but misguided physician who would like to rescue humanity from the unhappy state in which it finds itself." G. W. Wilson, M.D.
— + Book Week p29 D 5 '43 850w
Booklist 40:157 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by C. E. Beth
Christian Century 61:16 Ja 5 '44 500w
New Repub 109:757 N 29 '43 100w

"The book may have some inspirational value for 'deeply deviated' people who need to find 'a way out,' but a psychological system it definitely is not. It may possibly be considered a kind of therapeutics, but so may Christian Science and Rosicrucianism, to say nothing of the teachings of mystics and healers who dwell in back streets from Pittsburgh to Los Angeles. Those who prefer an empirical psychology to a cloud-cuckoo land of fanciful notions, will not find this book intellectually satisfying." Robert Bierstedt
— Sat R of Lit 26:9 N 20 '43 470w

"In this book we get a sane statement of a sane psychology. It's a pity that Dr. Kunkel does not write better, but a careful and patient reader will come from his pages with a pretty clear notion of what he has to say." J. H. Holmes
+ — Weekly Book Review p32 D 5 '43 350w

KURTZ, EDWIN BERNARD. Lineman's handbook. 2d ed 650p il $4 McGraw

621.3192 Electric lines 42-18250

"A book first published in 1928 [Book Review Digest, 1929] is now thoroughly revised. New material includes sections on rural lines, pole-top resuscitation, tower-line erection, and safety methods." (Booklist) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 39:14 S '42
N Y New Tech Bks 28:7 Ja '43

L

LABBERTON, JOHN MADISON. Marine engineering. 439p il $4 McGraw

623.81 Marine engineering 43-6733

"A book on all phases of ship design and operation but with emphasis upon power and propulsion. This is a starting text in marine engineering but the reader must have a background either of engineering or of physics to read it without intense study." (Book Week) Index.

Book Week p11 Jl 18 '43 40w
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Jl '43
N Y New Tech Bks 28:29 Ap '43

Reviewed by A. F. Johnson
N Y Times p31 O 24 '43 80w

"The book gives information that an engineer beginning intensive work in the marine field will want, while, on the other hand, many an experienced marine engineer will find it useful for reference." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p25 Ja 23 '44 200w

LACY, CREIGHTON. Is China a democracy? 154p $1.50 Day

342.51 China—Politics and government. China—Constitutional history 43-5790

The author, who has lived in China for many years, answers the question in his title with an emphatic Yes! showing in his discussion of Chinese politics and government that while Chinese democracy may differ from the Western ideal, it is based on the fundamental principle: In a democracy it is the people that count.

Reviewed by John Goette
Book Week p6 Je 13 '43 320w
Booklist 39:366 My 15 '43
Christian Century 60:638 My 26 '43 100w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:167 O '43 40w

"Recommended for libraries with other materials but needing concise treatment." L. I. Poste
+ Library J 68:326 Ap 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by K. L. Mitchell
New Repub 109:462 O 4 '43 330w

Reviewed by Wing-Tsit Chan
N Y Times p18 Ag 15 '43 1200w

Reviewed by Hallett Abend
Sat R of Lit 26:22 Jl 31 '43 470w

"I want to repeat that I agree with the enthusiastic Mr. Lacy that, if given a fair chance by others, China will almost certainly develop workable self-government and a conception of nationhood under contractual relations, to replace the ancient conception of herself as a super clan, held together by a kind but stern patriarch but otherwise just a bag full of millions of family units. And she will then meet any definition of 'democracy.' But I must also repeat that she still does not meet any definition that calls for the nonviolent exercise of the will and sovereignty of the people through clearly recognized political channels and that she is not therefore a self-governing democracy." Rodney Gilbert
+ — Weekly Book Review p5 My 23 '43 1900w

LADD, CARL EDWIN, and EASTMAN, EDWARD ROE. Growing up in the horse and buggy days [il. by Al Coleman]. 263p $2.50 Nesterman pub. co, inc, 186 5th av, N.Y.

917.47 New York (state)—Social life and customs. Farm life 43-560

Anecdotes of boyhood days fifty years ago in the farming district of western New York.

Bookmark 4:16 Mr '43

"Set this book down, if you will, as the Dark Horse (and Buggy) of the 1943 publishing season. C. E. Ladd, Ph.D., LL.D., is Dean of the Cornell College of Agriculture E. R. Eastman is editor of 'The American Agriculturist,' director of the Farm Credit Administration, and a trustee of Cornell University. Together they have conspired to write a book so artless, so transparently naive, that this reviewer is ready to accuse them of flaunting their sophistication. . . But if you are one of those who strongly dissents from Karl Marx's view on the rural life, or if you live in the country, or if you grew up on a farm, you are likely to find yourself absorbed, strangely absorbed, by this curious little volume." Philip Wagner
+ Books p2 Ja 31 '43 1200w

"There is no doubt as to the authenticity of the undocumented record which they offer. Corroborating witnesses, numbered in thousands and tens of thousands, stand ready to be called to verify even in minutest detail the simple, rugged, unadorned account of the joys, hardships, privations, bounties, of the experiences of the farm families who sowed, reaped and threshed their crops in what we all now realize was the hard way. A vein of the humor identified with 'David Harum' runs through the book." F. L. P.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 4 '43 270w

"In a most ingratiating, often frankly sentimental way, these memories emphasize the fundamentals of happy and courageous living. 'Growing Up in the Horse and Buggy Days,' mark my words, will find a place on the shelves where stand the dog-eared treasures —'David Harum,' 'Eben Holden,' 'Drums Along the Mohawk.'" Carl Carmer
+ N Y Times p9 Ja 24 '43 700w

LA FARGE, JOHN. Race question and the Negro. 315p $2.50 Longmans

325.26 U.S.—Race question. Negroes. Sociology, Christian 43-15008

The first edition of this book, entitled Interracial Justice, was published in 1937 (Book Review Digest, 1937). Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. E. Fey
Christian Century 61:17 Ja 5 '44 1100w

"A striking piece of comprehension and simple systematic analysis. It can be usefully read as a brief statement of moral theology, as a compendium of official Roman Catholic utterances on the subject of race, as a reference volume on the Negro and the Roman Catholic Church, or as a basic outline for a study course by a religious action group. Its spirit and its findings are thoroughly Christian; its approach is remarkably realistic and optimistic." W. H. Melish
+ Churchman 157:18 D 15 '43 210w

Commonweal 39:40 O 29 '43 10w

"The reader will find solid and precise documentation in the first five chapters, which survey the subject matter. Three chapters on human rights, specification of human rights, and guarantees for human rights are firmly thought out and constructed. A chapter on Christian teaching about human unity might well have been admirable if the author had not chosen to make of it a sort of brief anthology. In reading it I thought of Maritain's remarkable article on human equality in 'Ransoming the Time' and of the excellent texts collected by Father Mersch in his book, 'The Whole Christ.' Where, in my opinion, there is a certain weakness is in the chapter on marriage." J. C. De Menasce
+ — Commonweal 39:147 N 26 '43 1400w

"Though not an essential, libraries without first book probably will want, in view of current emphasis on race problem; also reference collections emphasizing material on the Negro." D. R. Homer
Library J 68:724 S 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by Walter Davenport
N Y Times p5 N 14 '43 300w

"Father La Farge is well qualified to speak on this subject. His career is marked by a lifelong intimacy with and study of the race question including 15 years of missionary experience. Also, he has contributed many brilliant essays to the leading Catholic publications championing the cause of the Negro." Emanuel Slotnick
+ Springf'd Republican p7e D 26 '43 600w

Wis Lib Bul 40:6 Ja '44

LA FARGUE, THOMAS EDWARD. China's first hundred. 176p il $2 State college of Wash, Pullman, Wash.

951 Chinese in the U.S. China—Biography. China—Relations (general) with the U.S. U.S.—Relations (general) with China 42-36437

During the years 1872-1874, the Chinese government, influenced by a certain Yung Wing, sent several groups of young boys totaling over one hundred, to study in American schools and colleges, particularly with the purpose of acquiring technical knowledge. The author traces the future careers of a large number of these Chinese after they were called home and shows how they influenced China's industrial and political development.

"The study is well done and worth doing."
+ Am Hist R 48:864 Jl '43 120w

Booklist 39:198 Ja 15 '43

LAIDLER, HARRY WELLINGTON, ed. Role of the races in our future civilization; symposium; participants: Sir Norman Angell [and others]. 112p pa 50c League for industrial democracy

323.1 Race problems 42-24499

"This pamphlet gives twenty-one addresses selected from those delivered at the League for Industrial Democracy Conference held on May 8 and 9, 1942. Among the contributors, Chinese, Negroes, Indians, and other racial and nationalistic groups are represented; and the speakers include, among others, professional writers, publicists, agitators, practicing politicians and statesmen, and anthropological scholars. The papers as printed are brief and, for the most part, express the points of view and unsupported opinions of the speakers." Am Soc R

LAIDLER, H. W.—Continued

"The League has performed a real service in making available this cross-section of popular thinking." E. B. Reuter
Am Soc R 8:230 Ap '43 200w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:366 Ja '43 10w

LAING, ALEXANDER KINNAN. Way for America. 380p $3 Duell

321.8 Democracy. U.S.—Politics and government. World politics 43-51117

"Defining democracy as a 'kind of government in which the strength of the people, directed through their representatives, is used to create and to keep as much freedom as can be shared equally among all individuals,' author attempts to show what happened to democratic mechanism, here and abroad, that permitted democracy to come to an almost fatally low ebb. With Atlantic Charter as basis, 'plain' people of America should make new declaration of moral way for America to take; a declaration centered upon proposition that peace is best secured by fullest extension of effective democracy." (Library J) Recommended reading. Index.

Reviewed by Jack Van Der Zee
Am Pol Sci R 37:938 O '43 550w

Reviewed by R. H. Rovere
Book Week p2 My 23 '43 380w

Booklist 39:352 My 1 '43

"Much of the material in this book is not new, most of it comes out of the newspapers of the last ten years and some of it has been well threshed by other writers; but nowhere has it been more conscientiously and intelligently organized. Moreover, Mr. Laing has a clarity of style and a freshness of viewpoint which throw new light on the coming of the war and the road to peace." D. M. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 12 '43 650w

Reviewed by C. L. Willard, Jr.
Churchman 157:15 S 1 '43 270w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:160 O '43 50w

"Sincere and provocative; not essential for libraries." M. J. Messler
+ — Library J 68:208 Mr 1 '43 110w

"This is an inspiring book. Maybe its judgments are brutal, but maybe, too, a writer has a duty to be brutal with those who permitted the enemies of mankind to grow strong, and thus made this war so much more dreadful than it need have been." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p4 Ap 11 '43 950w

"Some good chapters, but the book is generally rather wordy and not very concrete, and occasionally it is naive."
— + New Yorker 19:79 Ap 3 '43 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Bingham
Sat R of Lit 26:9 My 15 '43 800w

Reviewed by P. J. Searles
Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 18 '43 950w

Wis Lib Bul 39:104 Jl '43

LAKIN, RICHARD. Body fell on Berlin. 248p $2.50 Putnam [8s 6d Hodder]

Detective story. 43-10689

"In and around the British airport where the action takes place are all kinds of excitement. It's very well done: people are real; actions are believable, necessary and exciting; and Doyle winds up his case with intelligence and discernment. The publishers tell us this is Lakin's first novel. Watch out for more from him." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p10 Ag 8 '43 250w

Booklist 40:15 S '43

"It is a thoroughly good yarn, with much more in it than goes to the making of most 'thrillers.' Mr. Lakin has a keen eye for character, and his construction is admirable. I can imagine his making a success of a novel of a very different type." J. D. Beresford
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 27 '43 100w

"A story that has a bit of romance in it to help keep the reader's interest alive—and that help is needed at times." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 Jl 25 '43 120w

"Written by a young R.A.F. officer while he was on active duty. Couldn't be better."
+ New Yorker 19:64 Jl 31 '43 90w

"A-1."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 Jl 31 '43 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p365 Jl 31 '43 90w

"It's thrilling in spots and full of authentic detail." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 25 '43 250w

LAMARTINE YATES, PAUL, and WARRINER, DOREEN. Food and farming in post-war Europe. (World today) 118p il maps $1.25 (3s 6d) Oxford

338.1 Agriculture—Economic aspects 43-12161

"In this volume of 'The World To-day' series the authors have described the comparative conditions of farming communities in pre-war Europe with a brevity and a clarity wholly admirable. Soil and climate go far to determine types of farming, but the economic status of rural workers is determined in the main by the presence or absence of alternative employment. . . The conclusions of the authors, both well-known authorities on agrarian conditions in Europe, demand the closest attention at the present time, when it is hardly too much to say that the whole future of the human race will be determined largely by the food production policy of the Allied Nations." Manchester Guardian

---

Commonweal 38:587 O 1 '43 900w

"An extremely able and humane little compendium."
+ Commonweal 39:40 O 29 '43 10w

Reviewed by C. S. Orwin
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 28 '43 300w

New Repub 109:726 N 22 '43 70w

Reviewed by Anthony West
Spec 171:220 S 3 '43 800w

LAMB, CHARLES, and LAMB, MARY ANN. Tales from Shakespeare; il. by Elinore Blaisdell. new ed 360p $2 Crowell

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Stories and paraphrases 42-25410

"New edition with eight full-page illustrations by Elinore Blaisdell. Format is pleasing, print is good, and illustrations, in tones of green and white, have strength and beauty and an unusual ethereal quality as well, (most important of all) they fit the text." Library J

Booklist 39:206 Ja 15 '43

"Important addition to illustrated editions of the classics. Recommended." J. E. Stromdahl
+ Library J 68:38 Ja 1 '43 40w

"This substantial, attractive edition of a children's classic that has held its own through the years is very welcome. The characters, as Elinore Blaisdell shows them in her pictures, have a striking quality particularly appealing to young readers." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p11 Ap 4 '43 80w

LAMB, SCOTT GRISELL, and JORDAN, MRS HARRY THOMAS. Air navigation for beginners. 103p il $1.50 Henley

629.1325 Navigation (aeronautics) 43-2732

"Instructs young people in such essentials as measurement of position, instruments, maps and charts, piloting, dead reckoning, aerial astronomy, etc. A section of questions and answers is included as an aid to the student." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:14 Ja '43

LAMBERT, JANET. Glory be! decorations by Woodi Ishmael. 207p $2 Dutton
43-6643

Novel for teen age girls. It continues the story of the West Point families—the Parrishes and Houghtons—thru Penny's wild attempts to start her stage career, thru Pearl Harbor, and tragedy, to Carrol and David's wedding day.

"It's a nice sort of story, but a little too sweet." Ann Doran
Book Week p6 Je 6 '43 80w

"Warm, brisk and timely, 'Glory Be' stands high in the list of juveniles for a difficult-to-please age of readers."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 13 '43 140w

"This is firmly announced as the final Parrish story, but there's a look in Penny's eye that might mean more." M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p9 Ap 25 '43 330w

LAMOND, HENRY GEORGE. Kilgour's mare; il. by Lajos Segner. 124p $2 Morrow 43-13575

Story of men and horses, but especially the horses, on an Australian stock ranch. The mare Amathea is the central character, and her life is described from the time she was foaled, to the birth of her first colt.

"Lamond's fondness for and understanding of horses lend authority and vigor to several episodes in 'Kilgour's Mare.' The life-and-death battles between rival stallions, the stud's difficulty in retaining mastery over his harem, the devotion of a mare whose colt was left in a marsh to fall prey to dingoes—these sections come alive with admirable strength and simplicity. If you're crazy about horses, you'll find the book engrossing and rewarding; even if you aren't you'll be likely to relish parts of it." John Norcross
Book Week p6 O 10 '43 360w
Booklist 40:80 N 1 '43

"It is to Mr. Lamond's credit that with the sparest possible English and no dramatic trimmings, he makes a fictitious horse come to life." Joyce Garn
+ N Y Times p26 O 24 '43 500w

"A piece of authentic horse lore, good reading for any one who is interested in the horse in its natural or nearly natural state. It is a book short enough and good enough to be read at a sitting. The mare herself is only one of a group of horses that emerge from the pages of the book and present themselves to the reader as individuals who think, love, woo, mate, fear, hate, fight and kill. . . The human beings in this story are lightly sketched in, almost as if the author felt shy about mentioning them, or as if they exist to him merely as owners, riders, trainers, breeders of horses. This is satisfactory rather than otherwise, as the horses completely hold the reader's interest." Mary O'Hara
+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 3 '43 700w

LANCASTER, CHARLES MAXWELL, tr. Saints and sinners in old romance; poems of feudal France and England. 438p $3 Vanderbilt univ. press
841.108 Romances. French literature (Old French)—Translations into English 42-16527

"These poems are translations of medieval French and Anglo-Norman works chosen primarily for the student and general reader interested in the opera, the church, and the institution of chivalry. The literature classed under the heading 'The Saints' includes the Sequence of Saint Eulalia, The Life of Saint Leger, The Martyrdom of Saint Thomas of Canterbury, The Life of Saint Alexis, and Robert the Devil. Under the heading 'The Sinners' one finds The Wish of Aucassin, Fair Yolanth, and six selections on the Tristan Theme." Am Hist R

"The volume should help teachers in search of translations and presents in convenient and compact form materials appearing for the first time in English and other items scattered in various collections. The reviewer found the writing of the introduction somewhat too 'literary' to suit his personal taste and is of the opinion that here, as elsewhere, figurative language so often lacks the force and clarity of direct statement." G. C. Boyce
+ — Am Hist R 48:397 Ja '43 100w
Cath World 155:766 S '42 200w

LANCASTER, G. B., pseud. (EDITH J. LYTTLETON). Grand parade. 377p $2.75 Reynal 43-17032

Long historical novel of the early days of Nova Scotia, which chronicles the doings of a large and important Halifax family, the Cochranes.

Booklist 40:146 D 15 '43

"Accurate historical portraits of early governors, as well as fictional account of Cochrane family through four generations. Lusty Scottish seafaring men as well as English dandies crowd pages. Excellent characterization. Will be popular. Recommended." E. H. Crowell
+ Library J 68:769 O 1 '43 70w

"There is no denying that 'Grand Parade' lacks the felicity of G. B. Lancaster's 'Promenade' and 'Pageant.' In those earlier novels, which described the colonizing of New Zealand and Tasmania, plot and people, period and place were root, stem and branch of the same vigorous plant. But in her most recent work the author seems to be using the gay colors of a brilliant age to gloss over a sluggish and unsatisfactory story." Ruth Boorstin
N Y Times p6 N 28 '43 700w

"If you can keep the relationships of the characters straight (or even if you can't), the love affairs, exploits on the high seas, and indomitable family pride of the Cochrane clan make easy, agreeable reading. The novel is too long; for that matter, you get the feeling that it might have been a lot longer if the author hadn't just decided, rather arbitrarily, to stop. Much more interesting than the story is the well-drawn Nova Scotia background, of the time Halifax was Canada's booming social and military capital."
New Yorker 19:106 N 27 '43 140w

"The unfolding of this drama makes a spirited, glittering tale, full of romance and color and derring-do. The author has an excellent eye for period manners, speech, customs, also a gift for working into his story generous slices of history without interrupting in the least the story's lusty flow." Jennings Rice
+ Weekly Book Review p4 D 12 '43 600w

LANDAU, MARK ALEKSANDROVICH (M. A. ALDANOV, pseud). Fifth seal; tr. by Nicholas Wreden. 482p $3 Scribner 43-6454

"Long novel of Paris a few years ago, during the time of the Spanish Civil War and the Moscow trials. [The] characters for the most part are old men—broken, defeated, disillusioned, poor, hunted. The only two young people are a congenital syphilitic with anarchistic leanings who commits a double murder for 1,500 francs and a young Russian girl for whom the author contrives a fate worse than death; i. e., she becomes a writer." N Y Times

Atlantic 171:127 My '43 150w

Reviewed by Nelson Algren
Book Week p6 My 9 '43 500w

Reviewed by N. E. Monroe
Cath World 157:443 Jl '43 480w
Commonweal 38:15 Ap 23 '43 550w

LANDAU, M. A.—Continued

"Most characters indistinct, and plot comes to no conclusion. Long accounts of each character's thoughts and long social conversations make slow but not dull reading; in fact, for leisurely reading, they are the most interesting part. Limited appeal." Emily Garnett
Library J 68:128 F 1 '43 90w

"To say that 'The Fifth Seal' is one of the most disappointing novels I have read this year is of course not to suggest even an oblique compliment to the novels which failed to disappoint me simply because they never promised anything. Rather, I mean it as a compliment to the fine opening chapters of Mr. Aldanov's book and as profound regret that a novel which starts so handsomely should turn out, finally, to be so much less than successful." Diana Trilling
— + Nation 156:609 Ap 24 '43 1150w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 108:641 My 10 '43 1300w

"Two things are certain to be said about 'The Fifth Seal.' First, that it is anti-Soviet; second, that it is written by a man who is the equal of Tolstoy and Dostoevsky. A reading of the book proves neither charge. Aldanov is more than fair to the Moscow regime. As a literary artist he has all the perception, all the acumen, all the skill of a great writer. But he does not descend into his characters until he finds the magic cord which binds them one to another and together to life itself and through life itself to the source of life. Only the giants do that. The translation by Nicholas Wreden is excellent." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Times p6 Ap 18 '43 1100w

"The story of Alvera, the neurotic intellectual, the almost gratuitous murder he commits, the chase, the conviction, the execution—this is all on a high level of smart melodrama. Its connection with the rather wearisome satire on Soviet bureaucracy is never entirely clear. This structural flaw weakens a book which, despite its frigidity and lack of conviction about anything, is the work of an ingenious and practiced novelist." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:78 Ap 24 '43 270w

"In 'The Fifth Seal' a Russian writer lifts the novel to the eminence of the Tolstoyan era. Nicholas Wreden is to be congratulated on his remarkable achievement in translation from the original Russian." Manya Gordon
+ Sat R of Lit 26:12 Ap 17 '43 1100w

Discussion by H. S. Canby
Sat R of Lit 26:14 Ap 24 '43 950w

"Apart from the slender thread binding Nadia's attraction for her three elderly compatriots and the murder committed by Alvera there is little plot as such in this novel. Its claim to interest lies in its probing, scholarly and satiric exploration of a group of people who are living uneasily in a world that has no place for them. But in his absorption with the dead and the lost, Aldanov unconsciously makes a plea for the writing of a book that is concerned with the lives of the young who have no memories of defeat." Rose Feld
Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 18 '43 1300w

Wis Lib Bul 39:109 Jl '43

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
Yale R n s 32:viii summer '43 180w

LANDIS, BENSON YOUNG. Cooperative economy. 197p $2 Harper

334 Cooperation—U.S. 43-9356

Study of the growth, development, and problems of cooperative organizations in the United States, both voluntary and governmental. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:457 Jl 15 '43

"The book is designed for study as well as for reading, and it will well repay study."
+ Christian Century 60:822 Jl 14 '43 100w

"An invaluable and timely addition to Harper's fine list of books on cooperatives."
+ Commonweal 38:253 Je 25 '43 600w

Reviewed by Walter Hausdorfer
Library J 68:429 My 15 '43 120w

"The book fails in its effort to show how current institutions may be integrated with a coöperative economy. It can serve, nevertheless, as a useful introduction to the principles of coöperation."
New Repub 109:118 Jl 26 '43 150w

Reviewed by H. W. Cross
Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 6 '43 650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:142 N '43

LANE, CARL DANIEL. Boatman's manual; il. by the author. 596p $3.50 Norton

656 Boats and boating. Navigation 43-1010

"A complete manual of boat handling, operation, maintenance, and seamanship." (Subtitle) For the small boat operator, owner or crew member. Copiously illustrated. Index.

Booklist 39:271 Mr 1 '43

"Recommended."
Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:17 Ja '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p25 My 23 '43 80w

LANE, CARL DANIEL. Fleet in the forest. 369p $2.75 Coward-McCann

43-16383

Historical novel about the building of Perry's Lake Erie fleet in the midst of the Pennsylvania forests. Chid Alwyn, a young Connecticut shipwright, who starts his adventures aboard a privateer, is the hero.

"So many nice things can be said about this book that it is difficult to know which ones to mention first. The writing is impressive, the subject fascinating and, in a manner of speaking, timely. The plot is simple but convincing, and leads up to a natural and well-executed climax; but perhaps most outstanding are the many unusual characters the author presents." Otto Eisenschiml
+ Book Week p6 N 7 '43 270w

Booklist 40:146 D 15 '43

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p6 Ja 13 '44 90w

"For the reader who likes a slow-moving historical novel. Recommended." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 68:769 O 1 '43 40w

"Mr. Lane, a yachtsman himself, is at his best when he is describing the building and workings of ships. He is felicitous, too, in re-creating the life of the times. His sound research, however, never intrudes unduly on the story. The internal conflict typified in the career of his hero has its obvious parallel in all of the nation's wars and the moral is clear." Allan Taylor
+ N Y Times p38 N 21 '43 380w

"It is a highly engrossing tale of fighters, patriots and rogues and it re-creates with remarkable vividness a period of American life that has been little dealt with in historical novels." Herbert Kupferberg
+ Weekly Book Review p10 O 31 '43 700w

LANE, JAMES WARREN. Whistler; photo research and bibl. by Aimée Crane [pub. under the supervision of André Gloeckner in collaboration with Addison gallery of Am. art, Andover, and many other collections]. (Am. artists ser) 112p pl $1.95 Crown

759.1 Whistler, James Abbott McNeill 42-51548

"A study of one of America's great painters, together with a gallery of reproductions of his most notable paintings." Publisher's note

Booklist 39:203 Ja 15 '43

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist
Commonweal 37:572 Mr 26 '43 120w

LANE, MRS ROSE (WILDER). Discovery of freedom; man's struggle against authority. 262p $2.50 Day

323.44 Liberty. Individualism. Authority 43-433

"Informal discussion of man's struggle against authority. Arranged, not by usual chronological periods, but by ideologies, types of authority, and revolts against authority. Built around two-fold thesis: (1) Progress depends on minimum of governmental control of human energy. (2) The only true control is individual, and individual control is in accordance with religious faith; with the result that prevailing religious faith is a given era's social-progress." Library J

"This book is not to be put aside lightly as of no consequence. Only the fairly well-educated will be astounded at the extraordinary range of subjects about which Mrs. Lane knows for certain so many things that are not so. There are millions of others for whom the Chautauqua orator and the patent medicine spieler are the veritable fountainhead of truth, and for them her book will have the authentic ring of gospel. Once more we are in a cleft stick: it needs to be exposed, but it does not deserve it." Joseph Mau

— Book Week p4 Ap 11 '43 140w

"Mass of historical detail used as illustration, interesting in itself and obviously gleaned from extensive study; result is sometimes confusing, giving feeling, at times, that one cannot see the forest for the trees." R. T. Manlove

— + Library J 68:33 Ja 1 '43 110w

"All through a very stimulating book one is forever saying yes, but, or on the other hand, or that's not entirely what it seems to be. . . Mrs. Lane's book is certainly on the side of the angels and it is certainly exciting reading, but it calls for a constant exercise of critical and historical control." Bernard De Voto

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 Mr 14 '43 1500w

LANG, DON. On the dark of the moon; pictures by Nedda Walker. 235p $2 Oxford

Raccoons—Legends and stories 43-13646

Two raccoons, Bill and his mate Fussy, and a small Negro boy, Siddy, roam about a Maryland farm, go to the fair, and have plenty of adventures in this book for ages seven to twelve.

"Siddy is no comedy character. He is thoroughly real and will be loved and understood by other boys and girls. The author, Don Lang, skillfully avoids the dangers of dialect which might have made for difficult reading, and tells his story with a simplicity and sincerity that make this one of the top children's books of the year." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p2 N 14 '43 250w

Booklist 40:151 D 15 '43

"Boys who like tales of wild life will enjoy his account of Siddy's journey to the fair, Fussy's escape into the woods and her battle against her pursuers and their dogs—and then too—there's Bill's part in the tale. . . This book is unusual for its genuine picture of animal life, its humor as well as pathos, and for Siddy, a real boy, rather than for its storytelling quality." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 N 15 '43 220w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 20:35 Ja '44 70w

"Mr. Lang knows of what he writes. Subject matter rather than style of writing often carry the story along. For ten- to fourteen-year-olds who enjoy humor, animals and the outdoors." Margaret Miller

+ Library J 68:1008 D 1 '43 40w

"Mr. Lang obviously knows so much about raccoons that he doesn't bother to instruct us about them. He just lets information seep through the story and rambles along with a blithe disregard for plot construction. The result is occasionally a bit confusing as to time and sequence, but there is no doubt about Siddy's character. He is a boy with a talent for trouble, but he has all the right instincts and certainly a way with 'coons." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p9 O 31 '43 320w

+ Sat R of Lit 27:32 Ja 29 '44 320w

LANG, EDWARD H. Technical handbook for solving problems in shop or factory. 100p pa $1; to colleges 80c Prentice-Hall

602 Science—Tables, etc. 43-5010

"The first part is devoted to simple information on arithmetic. Then comes elementary trigonometry, enough being explained to enable the student to solve a triangle. A short trigonometric table is given, as well as a small logarithm table and directions for its use. Formulas for finding the areas of plane figures and the areas and volumes of solids; symbols used by draftsmen, instructions for using the slide rule, tables of atomic weights and for converting from English to metric units are also included." Weekly Book Review

"Certainly the students to whom it is addressed will find Mr. Lang's book of great value, while others, who have reached higher positions, will profit by having a copy handy for refreshing their memories." James Stokley

+ Books p11 D 20 '42 230w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:28 Ap '43

Reviewed by G. H. Burnham

R of Scientific Instruments 14:114 Ap '43 190w

LANGDALE, MRS HAZEL LOUISE (RAYBOLD). Jon of the Albany Belle; il. by Sandra James. 212p $2 Dutton 43-52

Canalboat story of New York state in the 1850's. Jonathan Hedges, Jon for short, after he left the family canalboat, the Albany Belle, had his fill of adventure. He was kidnapped twice, and got mixed up with the underground railway, before he discovered the pot of gold on his grandparents' old farm, and bought back the Albany Belle.

Reviewed by Paul Slimmer

Book Week p9 My 9 '43 140w

Booklist 39:297 Mr 15 '43

"Vivid historical narrative, so packed with plausible adventures that history comes alive for boys and girls of eleven to fourteen. Every library will want this excellent story of two interesting phases of American history." R. W. Stewart

+ Library J 68:131 F 1 '43 70w

"It is a live story on every page."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 7 '43 170w

"The atmosphere is historic, for there is a sense of the Great Golden West waiting in the background, and of the competition offered to the canal-boat by the prairie schooner. The background is full of people on the move in a time of ferment. But in the foreground is a boy who goes after something and gets it." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p7 F 14 '43 300w

LANGER, WALTER C. Psychology and human living. (Progressive educ. assn. Comm. on human relations. Publications) 286p $1.50 Appleton-Century

150 Psychology, Applied 43-5132

"This work—a new approach to the problems of behavior—is written in a direct style and discusses topics which are of deep personal interest to youth. It is designed for use as a textbook for orientation courses and courses in personality development, personal problems, social relations, etc." (School and Society) Index.

Reviewed by R. E. L. Faris

Am Soc R 8:617 O '43 300w

Booklist 39:371 My 15 '43

LANGER, W. C.—Continued

"The reviewer would hesitate to recommend this book to readers with limited psychological backgrounds, except in combination with readings representing broader and more eclectic psychological approaches to problems of human living. Langer appears to be so engrossed with the Freudian contributions to the understanding of human personality and behavior that he fails to recognize as non-Freudian the contributions that he uses from other sources. . . Despite these limitations, thoughtful readers will find Langer's volume stimulating to their thinking, broadening to their understanding of human motivations and behavior, and enriching as an addition to their professional libraries." Ethel Kawin

+ — El School J 43:620 Je '43 550w

School & Society 57:336 Mr 20 '43 50w

LANGFORD, RICHARD VICTOR. British foreign policy; its formulation in recent years. 226p $3.25; pa $2.75 Am. council on public affairs

327.42 Great Britain—Foreign relations 42-25092

"This book concentrates on policy formulation and leaves to others the content of that policy, the factors that determine it, and the machinery through which it is executed. It ranges over the period 1870-1939. It gives some eight hundred references to published documents. And it groups its material under such headings as 'the monarch,' 'the cabinet,' 'the foreign secretary,' 'the prime minister.'" Am Pol Sci R

"Mr. Langford's book is well written and well documented. The chief criticism is that it lacks reality. The British cabinet is fundamentally a political body whose members are affected by current modes of thought and action. The separation of members of the cabinet from the entire complex of formulation produces an effect too schematic to be real. Out of it emerges, as in many diplomatic histories, the isolated and abstract 'diplomatic man.'" Francis Williamson

+ — Am Hist R 48:565 Ap '43 450w

Reviewed by W. H. Wickwar

Am Pol Sci R 37:180 F '43 300w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:586 Ap '43 20w

LANGSAM, WALTER CONSUELO. World since 1914. 5th ed 837,107p il maps $4 Macmillan

909.82 History, Modern. World politics. International law and relations. European war, 1914-1918 43-10162

"All material printed in supplements in previous editions [Book Review Digest, 1936] has been incorporated in the text which has been largely rewritten." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:17 S '43

"The index is excellent. Illustrations and maps enhance the value of this book."

+ Social Studies 34:288 O '43 40w

LANSING, MRS ELISABETH (HUBBARD) (MARTHA JOHNSON, pseud). Ann Bartlett at Bataan; the adventures of a navy nurse. 328p $2 Crowell

43-9098

Story for older girls of a navy nurse in Hawaii, Wake Island, and Bataan, on and after the day of Pearl Harbor.

"To me, the main value of this book is its emphasis on the heroism and unselfishness of the fighting men and the hospital staff to which Ann Bartlett belongs, and to which she makes a great contribution. From beginning to end it is a vivid picture of history in the making, and it is a story which I shall never forget." Diane McNiece

+ Book Week p10 Jl 18 '43 90w

"In romantic aspects, story lacks conviction, characters are none too well drawn, but it is a timely tale for girls twelve to sixteen." M. M. Clark

Library J 68:291 Ap 1 '43 90w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 11 '43 410w

LANSING, MRS ELISABETH (HUBBARD) (MARTHA JOHNSON, pseud). Nancy Naylor flies south. 241p $2 Crowell

43-14970

An experienced American air hostess is transferred to a new South American air line. Here she gets involved with Nazi spies and American diplomats and is able to clear up a badly muddled situation. For teen age girls.

"Most readable, up-to-the-minute career story." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 O 14 '43 120w

"Very improbable and melodramatic plot. Not recommended." E. D. Briggs

— Library J 68:965 N 15 '43 30w

"A good light-weight story useful for the times. Recommended for public libraries." M. F. Cox

+ Library J 68:965 N 15 '43 70w

LAPP, CLAUDE JEROME; KNIGHT, FREDERIC BUTTERFIELD, and RIETZ, HENRY LEWIS. Mathematics for the emergency. 158p il pa 80c Scott

510.76 Mathematics—Problems, exercises, etc. 43-2098

"[This] is described as a 'text-workbook in essential mathematics.' It deals with 'the fundamentals of arithmetic, algebra, geometry and trigonometry, with the major emphasis on algebra.' In its original form of 1934 it was a review of precollege mathematics for high-school seniors and college freshmen. It is now republished for the use of students of aviation and technicians in the war industries, and candidates for admission to college courses in mathematics, physics and chemistry." N Y Times

Book Week p8 Jl 4 '43 40w

"The material is intelligently selected and treated clearly and simply. . . While it is doubtful whether a student who has no previous knowledge of these subjects can learn them from the book, it may be confidently expected that he can brush up knowledge dimmed from disuse." M. A. Rosanoff

+ N Y Times p30 My 23 '43 220w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p17 Je 20 '43 130w

LARDNER, JOHN. Southwest passage; the Yanks in the Pacific. 302p $3 Lippincott

940.548173 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Australia 43-51067

The author, son of Ring Lardner, was a correspondent with the first American transports sent to Australia. He travelled to Port Moresby via freighter loaded with bombs and gasoline, and saw the early American counter-attacks in New Guinea. He describes the impression made by the Yanks and Diggers on each other; includes some new material on MacArthur; and adds a short glossary of Australian slang terms.

"There is nothing profound about his observations, but he carried with him a sports writer's keen eye and an ability for acute description that takes his book out of the common garden variety of correspondents' Baedekers and makes it amusing and warm. Lardner liked the independent Australians that he met, and after reading the book you feel that you would like to visit the country." Ernest Von Hartz

+ Book Week p1 Mr 21 '43 650w
Booklist 39:317 Ap 1 '43

"Mr. Lardner sticks fairly close to the story of his own travels and observations but he draws enough conclusions to satisfy his readers' need for explanation. Some may find his style a little too reminiscent of the sports department. He is flippant almost all the time, and there are moments when seriousness might be in order. But the author is at least consistently himself, and not only his style but his factual background suits Australia better than it might places less sports-minded." G. R.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 26 '43 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '43

"In humorous, informal style, book gives evidence of hasty writing but is recommended for interesting comments on Australia and Australians." Margaret Owen
+ Library J 68:209 Mr 1 '43 110w

"Mr. Lardner's book kept this reader chuckling long past his bedtime. Although this son of Ring Lardner may eschew the usual profundities, there is a lot to be seen through his shrewd eyes." Marcus Duffield
+ Nation 156:530 Ap 10 '43 240w

Reviewed by Ira Wolfert
New Repub 108:643 My 10 '43 60w

"If some one close to the reader is in the Pacific, this book has more than the excellent writing to commend it. Mr. Lardner has put into it what every American soldier came up against when he got down under. He draws the peoples of the Pacific, their customs, their habits, their speech, their independent viewpoint. All that the average American soldier failed to get into his letters from the Pacific will be found in 'Southwest Passage.'" Meyer Berger
+ N Y Times p2 Mr 21 '43 1050w

"Sketchy, especially at the beginning, but freshly handled and full of a neat and observant humor."
+ New Yorker 19:70 Mr 20 '43 70w

"It's a travelogue, a bright and well told picture of a few moments in history which will not be repeated again at least in the same form." Fletcher Pratt
Sat R of Lit 26:23 My 1 '43 300w

Reviewed by Allen Raymond
+ Weekly Book Review p7 Mr 21 '43 1050w

LARGENT, VERA IONE, ed. See North Carolina. University. Woman's College, Greensboro. Walter Clinton Jackson essays in the social sciences

LARIAR, LAWRENCE, ed. Army fun book; aide-de-camp, Rod Reed. 477p il $2 Crown
793 Amusements. Humor 43-8785

A compilation of cartoons, poems, short stories, puzzles, quizzes, and games, for the leisure moments of the members of the armed forces.

"All in all, it's a hefty package of fun with not a little painless instruction thrown in." Jack Conroy
+ Book Week p4 Je 27 '43 180w

"For the homesick and chaps at loose ends in far-off places, it's like a breath from home." J. W. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 60w
Weekly Book Review p13 Ag 1 '43 200w

LARIAR, LAWRENCE. Death paints the picture. 256p $2 Phoenix
43-2347

Detective story.

"Exhilarating."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:23 Je 26 '43 40w

"The way Mr. Lariar tackles and executes this grim job is worth watching. Moreover, his comic relief, though intemperate at times, is funny. The jovial mock dedication to a lot of improbable persons mentions Ernest Hemingway three times. We thought so." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p24 Ap 11 '43 270w

LARIAR, LAWRENCE. He died laughing. 256p $2 Phoenix
43-10415

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Jl 18 '43 120w

"Mr. Lariar is a refreshing change from the earnest whodunits. He is at his best, probably, when just kidding around or reporting the casual antics of Hollywood's case histories, drunk or fairly sober. A pleasing successor to 'Death Paints the Picture.'" Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 25 '43 180w

LASKI, HAROLD JOSEPH. Reflections on the revolution of our time. 419p $3.50 Viking 940.5 World politics. Revolutions. World war, 1939-. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-8975

"Laski accepts as the central fact of our period the fact of revolution, viewing the war itself as but an episode in a cyclopean overturn vaster than any since the fall of the Roman Empire. The ideas exposed in this ambitious book are but a systematic extension of those in his 'Where Do We Go from Here?' and his recent essays. The Russian Revolution, the meaning of Fascism, the contradictions of capitalist democracy, the perspectives of postwar planning, and the threat of counter-revolution—all these are discussed from the viewpoint of a democratic socialist." New Yorker

Booklist 39:461 Jl 15 '43

"It is heavy reading, repetitious and exhausting. . . It contains the most brilliant analysis of Soviet Russia, its tangle of idealisms and dictatorship, that this reviewer has anywhere seen. It has page after illuminating page, often glinting with epigrams, on the weaknesses of democracies, which even the most hardened of Mr. Laski's capitalist adversaries would admit are formidable. And even if the chief fault of the book lies in its repetition, this too has its compensation. For Mr. Laski's technique is that of a distiller of thought. He states and restates, formulates and reformulates, refines and refines. He seeks an historical essence; and he succeeds often enough to startle any sincere reader out of at least a few preconceptions." S. R. D.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 26 '43 390w

"Harold Laski deserves to be heard in the present debate. The quality of his many writings and the breadth of his reputation demand attention. He is one of those rare Englishmen who knows America well, having lived and taught here for many years. The present volume is a splendid introduction to his thinking, as it is a synthesis of his views." J. N. Moody
+ Commonweal 38:565 S 24 '43 900w

"Mr. Laski's rather dogmatic assumption that all events have an economic cause colors the chapters on fascism and international relations. And he is at times repetitious. Yet the assets of the book far outweigh its weaknesses; its cold analysis and devastating criticism make it heavy but nourishing food for thought." Carol Thompson
+ — Current Hist 4:411 Ag '43 950w

"Mr. Laski's thoughts are of importance, even if they fail to satisfy." M. Polanyi
Manchester Guardian p3 O 8 '43 480w
Nation 157:159 Ag 7 '43 1100w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 108:833 Je 21 '43 1400w

Reviewed by Richard Coventry
New Statesman & Nation 26:304 N 6 '43 950w

LASKI, H. J.—Continued

" 'Reflections on the Revolution of Our Time' is an important book. Its analysis of the nature of the contemporary revolution is acute, fearless and generally objective, although, in the opinion of this reviewer, Professor Laski overworks the materialist interpretation of history when he attempts to find in it the whole explanation of Hitlerism. Other nations survived Germany's economic difficulties without reacting to them like Germany." John MacCormac

+ — N Y Times p1 Je 20 '43 1300w

Reviewed by Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 19:78 Je 19 '43 550w

"Mr. Laski is a wise counsellor. Some readers may think that his wisdom is perfect and his logic impeccable. Those who hesitate to be convinced should at least ponder his analysis and be certain where and why they disagree. For whether or not it carries conviction, this repetitious, deadly serious, and far from optimistic book is a tract for the times that cannot be ignored. Not only now and then, but repeatedly, the author reaches heights which make eloquent passages in the score of books that he has previously written seem pale and sicklied." Lindsay Rogers

+ Sat R of Lit 26:3 Jl 10 '43 2050w

Reviewed by D. W. Brogan

Spec 171:340 O 8 '43 850w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon

Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 10 '43 850w

Reviewed by J. P. C. Carey

Survey G 32:509 D '43 350w

Time 41:98 Je 21 '43 1150w

"A scintillating book. It is not to everybody's political and economic taste, but everybody will be the better for having read and—still more—having digested it."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p446 S 18 '43 900w

"Harold J. Laski's very many friends and admirers in this country will not be disappointed in his latest book. Never before has he written with greater eloquence or felicity of expression. Never before has he borne his learning more lightly." L. M. Hacker

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Je 27 '43 1950w

Wis Lib Bul 39:122 O '43

LASKIER, FRANK. Log book. 119p $1.25 Scribner [5s Allen, G]

43-13715

Sketch of the life of a British merchant seaman, from the time when he first went to sea, as a very young boy, thru his days on shore and his "stretch" in Borstal; and thru his experiences in the war until he lost a leg when his ship was torpedoed.

Booklist 40:59 O 15 '43

"The style is staccato, the detail lurid, and the emotion at times seems overwrought, but as a whole the little book is a document both moving and revealing." A. S. N.

Manchester Guardian p3 D 30 '42 100w

"The unlovely story of this supposedly mythical seaman is told in staccato fashion, with great economy of words and with considerable power. For more than a year now the author has been talking to workmen in shipyards and munitions factories. In that role he no doubt casts the same sort of spell over his audience as did reformed sinners in America who went on evangelistic circuits. Perhaps he himself derives some of the same psychological satisfaction." Marcus Duffield

Nation 157:385 O 2 '43 240w

Reviewed by William Du Bois

N Y Times p3 S 12 '43 700w

"A short book, but touched with a harshly eloquent faith in mankind. One of the most bitterly honest and inspiring of the recent reports on the war."

+ New Yorker 19:86 S 25 '43 50w

"Log Book smells slightly of propaganda. It is another of those thoroughly well-deserved tributes to the gallant men of the merchant service (and, let there be no mistake, they are magnificently deserved), which provoke sometimes a slight feeling of wistfulness in Naval ratings who are doing much the same work for rather less pay, and are taken for granted. Nevertheless, Mr. Laskier has a tale to tell, and when he forgets his soul he can bring his experiences vividly to life." Colin Mann

Spec 169:536 D 4 '42 250w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 19 '43 850w

"It is not pleasant reading, but the reader will not find it easy to lay it down before reaching the last page."

Times [London] Lit Sup p542 N 7 '42 70w

" 'Log Book' is hard to define: one has never read anything quite like it before. It might be called a cry from the depths of a tortured heart; if so, it is a cry that reaches to triumphant heights and shouts a noble message at the end. In this brief book of only 119 pages is packed more of realism, more of anguish and infinitely more of straightforward narrative power than can be found in any novel I can think of. It is a job of writing so clear and effective, a work of art so simple and acute, that one often pauses in wonder." Lincoln Colcord

+ Weekly Book Review p1 S 12 '43 950w

LATHROP, DOROTHY PULIS. Puppies for keeps. [40p] il $2 Macmillan

Dogs—Legends and stories 43-14091

In text and picture, this book tells the story of Marianne and Terry, their Pekingese, and her four very tiny puppies. A family crisis arose when the children's father proposed to sell the puppies, but that tragedy was averted.

"I don't think anyone could leaf through this picture book without wanting to scoop the Pekingese puppies right off the pages. They are so real and natural and altogether lovable." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 O 10 '43 90w

Booklist 40:151 D 15 '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 25 '43 180w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:419 N '43 60w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore

Horn Bk 19:423 N '43 40w

Reviewed by Fritz Eichenberg

Horn Bk 20:21 Ja '44 90w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield

Library J 68:820 O 15 '43 40w

"Delightfully realistic drawings and charming story make joyous and pleasurable experience. Superb treatment of a universality makes it a MUST." M. L. Goodwin

+ Library J 68:846 O 15 '43 70w

"As always, Miss Lathrop shows in her drawings how closely and meticulously she has observed her animal subjects. Only someone who has lived with a family of Pekingese puppies from day to day could have drawn these absurd, intelligent and lovable little dogs with such understanding accuracy and charm. As the reader turns the pages he seems to see the puppies grow and change before his eyes. A book that belongs not only to children but to dog lovers of any age." A. T. Eaton

+ N Y Times p24 S 26 '43 320w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 S 26 '43 400w

Wis Lib Bul 39:161 D '43

LATHROP, WEST. Monkey ahoy! il. by Nedda Walker. 233p $2 Random house

43-51161

Tale of a little lame boy with a penchant for drawing, and the change which came into his lonely life with the advent of a retired sea captain and his ingratiating pet, a Capuchin monkey.

" 'Monkey Ahoy' is one of the most interesting and fascinating books I have ever read." Larry Friedman

+ Book Week p8 Je 13 '43 250w

Booklist 39:391 Je 1 '43

"There's humor and a challenge—and there's courage to meet that challenge in this appealing tale, good for reading aloud." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 27 '43 50w

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry

Christian Science Monitor p10 N 29 '43 70w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

"Sympathy with a sensitive boy, affection for animals, understanding of country folk, are mingled with a tender kind of humor in this unusual story of New England, which older people will share with children." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:241 Jl '43 100w

"Not especially well written but has courageous note, a great deal of humor, and enough mystery to interest a wide range of readers. . . Recommended." J. E. Stromdahl

+ Library J 68:479 Je 1 '43 80w

"There isn't, if you stop to think about it, much plot, but you won't miss it, so alive and warm is the story with genuine humor and a sense of real people—not forgetting Rosie!" E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p12 My 30 '43 280w

"For family reading."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 My 15 '43 30w

"There has seldom been a monkey story (save, of course, Walter De la Mare's inimitable tale of Mr. Bumps), that so well catches the character of the protective, provoked and tender affection a little Capuchin can inspire, especially in a sailor." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p14 My 23 '43 430w

LATOURETTE, KENNETH SCOTT. History of the expansion of Christianity; 6v; v. 5, The great century in the Americas, Australasia, and Africa, A.D. 1800-A.D. 1914. 526p maps $4 Harper

270 Church history. Missions (37-20993)

The fifth volume in this history of the expansion of Christianity covers the period 1800 to 1914, and deals with missionary endeavors in Canada, Newfoundland, Greenland, the West Indies, Latin America, Australia, New Zealand, the islands of the Pacific, the Philippines, the East Indies, Madagascar, and Africa, south of the Sahara. Bibliography. Index. For volume four see Book Review Digest, 1941.

Reviewed by G. A. Cunningham

Churchman 157:19 Ap 15 '43 330w

"While Mr. Latourette is devoting three volumes of the series to the history of the nineteenth century—the same space needed to record the eighteen previous centuries—the present volume, even more than its predecessor, appears to be crowded. Because of the great mass of data collected from the four ends of the earth, there is little space left for the comments and conclusions of the author. It was this personal touch of the author which made the first three volumes so interesting and easy to read. The present volume appears to be more an accumulation of facts which are presented without comment." J. P. Ryan

Commonweal 37:477 F 26 '43 650w

Reviewed by C. H. Moehlman

Crozer Q 20:255 Jl '43 450w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:6 Jl '43 30w

Reviewed by W. W. Sweet

J Religion 24:72 Ja '44 800w

"Professor Latourette's judgments are cautiously framed, and anyone who studies his handling of the colour problem or of the religious situation in Latin America or the Philippines or Madagascar will find much matter for reflection. There is humour as well as shrewdness in the passing reference in one context to 'a somewhat unrealistic idealism which exaggerated the community of interest brought by common republican institutions and cohabitation of the same hemisphere.' "

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p460 S 25 '43 800w

Reviewed by S. J. Case

Weekly Book Review p24 Mr 28 '43 650w

LATTIMORE, ELEANOR FRANCES. Peachblossom; il. by [the author]. 96p $2 Harcourt

43-51224

Peachblossom is a six-year-old Chinese orphan. In the school where she is placed she is not quite at home, but tries to be cheerful. Then a lost aunt is found to take the little girl, and Peachblossom is happy belonging to someone again.

"Peachblossom is a little girl of modern China and this simple, realistic story will bring to little girls of modern America a better appreciation of their own good fortune, as well as a clear picture of another land, where the children have other ways and other much more difficult problems." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p12 N 14 '43 160w

Booklist 40:19 S '43

"This is a gentle, but realistic, story of the quiet way of accepting the inevitable which marks Chinese conduct under present war conditions." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:317 S '43 70w

Reviewed by J. L. Sauer

Library J 68:672 S 1 '43 110w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield

Library J 68:820 O 15 '43 30w

"Through the eyes of a little girl who seems very much alive and understandable Peachblossom's contemporaries in this country come to realize something of the impact of war on China. It is not portrayed, however, in pictures so terrifying as to scar a young imagination but in a way which shows the courage, the hope and the kindness which make up one side of war." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p6 S 19 '43 260w

"Eleanor Frances Lattimore has added another to her exquisite little stories of life in China for small boys and girls. . . Should become as popular with young readers as the delightful 'Little Pear' and the inquisitive Lifu."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 5 '43 120w

LATTIMORE, OWEN. America and Asia. 52p $1.75 Claremont colleges, Adm. offices, Claremont, Calif.

940.542 World war, 1939—East (Far East). World war, 1939—U.S. Eastern question (Far East) 43-12195

This small volume contains material of two lectures delivered by the author at the Claremont colleges, on "problems of today's war and the peace of tomorrow" particularly in their Far Eastern aspects.

Am J Soc 49:197 S '43 30w

Booklist 40:76 N 1 '43

"Lattimore has spent years in China and Manchuria, has written half a dozen memorable books on the Far East, and is now director of the school of international relations at Johns Hopkins. In this small book (two lectures) he gives many wise words of warning and some of encouragement."

+ Christian Century 60:1042 S 15 '43 160w

Reviewed by Mark Gayn

+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 D 18 '43 750w

LAUBACH, FRANK CHARLES. The silent billion speak. 201p $1; pa 60c Friendship press

B or 92 Missions—Philippine Islands. Illiteracy 43-9921

In 1930 Dr Laubach a missionary, began his experiments in teaching adults in the Philippines to read. He used a simplified language system, which preceded religions instruction. The method was so successful that it was used later in Africa, India, and Latin America. Index.

LAUBACH, F. C.—Continued

Booklist 40:58 O 15 '43
Christian Century 60:770 Je 30 '43 70w

LAUFERTY, LILIAN (MRS JAMES WOLFE). Hungry house. 277p $2 Simon & Schuster 43-9538

Detective story.

"What might have been a tremendous horror story suffers because The House and its dramatic power over Holden lives is shoved down your throat a little too forcefully. This, coupled with love all over the place toward the close, is enough to pull the tale down to a mere tops." Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p6 Je 20 '43 260w
Booklist 40:48 O 1 '43

" 'The Hungry House' is a strangely fascinating tale, more like a Eugene O'Neill tragedy than a conventional detective story." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 Je 20 '43 240w

"High grade."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:39 Je 19 '43 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 4 '43 220w

"Miss Lauferty scatters suspicion with a skillful hand and emphasizes the more serious aspects of the family saga. We guess you're supposed to regard the house (or The House, as they called it) as one of the villains, but who's the other one? Chief of Police Stanley Weed officiates as leading thinker. This is a pleasing successor to the author's 'The Crimson Thread' of a season or so ago." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Je 20 '43 200w

LAURITZEN, JONREED. Arrows into the sun. 311p $2.50 Knopf 42-50768

The Navaho country about the Grand Canyon in the 1860's is the scene of this story of Sigor, the son of a white father and a part Navaho mother. When Sigor's beloved mother was killed by a band of slave hunters from Mexico, the boy joined his white father. The struggle for his white heritage was a long one, but with the help of a beautiful and spirited Mormon girl, he won out.

Booklist 39:224 F 1 '43
Reviewed by Virginia Sorensen
Books p6 Ja 24 '43 1050w

"The action is repetitive and not too well conceived. Sigor's vacillations are not always sufficiently motivated to carry the burden of the narrative; he also seems lacking in the sympathy-provoking qualities which should characterize a protagonist. In spite of this, the book bears evidence that Mr. Lauritzen has a talent which promises much, and it is to be hoped that out of his intimate knowledge of one of the most picturesque parts of the country he will fashion more tales, in which he will give his originality a freer rein." M. W. S.
Christian Science Monitor p11 F 20 '43 600w

"Beautifully written novel. . . Has fine flavor of frontier West." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 68:82 Ja 15 '43 90w
Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:245 F 13 '43 90w
New Repub 108:294 Mr 1 '43 120w

"Here is a first novel of rare promise. . . It blazes with vignettes of the true West—a picture obscured, for so many readers, by generations of horse opera. From the first page it is obvious that the author has his country and his people at his finger-tips; his book contains some of the purest descriptive writing this reviewer has encountered in many months. One can utter a genuine prayer for his future." William Du Bois
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 17 '43 900w

"Mr Lauritzen writes well and shows promise of writing better."
+ New Yorker 18:59 Ja 23 '43 80w

"This is a beautiful, if slow-moving, book. It is a beautiful book because of the exquisite precision of the style in registering landscape, atmosphere effects, and the like physical elements of the Great West; and it is a slow-moving book because its fable is not quite rich enough to justify its length." H. M. Jones
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 Ja 30 '43 500w

"Although there have been better novels with the American Southwest as a setting, there have been few better authentically southwestern books than 'Arrows Into the Sun'. . . It is a first novel, and has some of the faults apparently inherent in spring flights into literature, but there is a real indication that in Mr Lauritzen has been found a major voice for the interpretation of a section of America that rarely has been adequately described in fiction."
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 17 '43 500w

LAUTERBACH, ALBERT T. Economics in uniform; military economy and social structure. 282p $3 Princeton univ. press
330.19355 War—Economic aspects. World war, 1939—Economic aspects A43-651

"The overall thesis developed by the author is this: If the democracies are to win the war against the Nazis it is essential they learn from the experience of Europe, including the Nazis themselves, a series of lessons in what he calls 'military economy.' By the latter term he includes not only the economic conduct of war itself, but also the economic preparation for war which begins in peace-time long before the guns begin to roar." Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by Oscar Jászi
Am Pol Sci R 37:342 Ap '43 1000w

"This is the most significant study of war economics which has yet appeared. The author's subtitle, 'Military Economy and Social Structure,' admirably defines the scope of his survey of the interwar period in Europe and America. Although his analysis deals primarily with Germany and secondarily with Great Britain and the United States, he does not neglect the relevant experiences of Italy and other totalitarian states." Phillips Bradley
+ Christian Century 60:425 Ap 7 '43 800w
Christian Science Monitor p14 F 1 '43 450w
Commonweal 37:545 Mr 19 '43 700w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:5 Jl '43 50w
Reviewed by Rifat Tirana
Nation 156:896 Je 26 '43 120w
Reviewed by William Miller
New Repub 108:419 Mr 29 '43 1250w
Reviewed by H. W. Spiegel
Pol Sci Q 58:284 Je '43 650w
Reviewed by R. E. Dupuy
Sat R of Lit 26:29 Je 5 '43 410w

" 'Economics in Uniform' is likely to have permanent value. Although written in an unnecessarily involved style it is by all odds the most penetrating analysis of the impact of German Nazi ideas as applied to war and the preparation of war that we have yet had." H. W. Cross
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 31 '43 1000w
Reviewed by O. H. Ehrlich
Survey G 32:407 O '43 330w

"Dr. Lauterbach's volume is a most valuable contribution to the problem of military economy. The author brings to his subject a keen analytical mind and a vast knowledge of the literature on the subject." Nathan Reich
+ Weekly Book Review p19 My 16 '43 1450w

LAVENDER, DAVID SIEVERT. One man's West; line drawings by William Arthur Smith. 298p $2.50 Doubleday
917.8 Ranch life 43-51116

Simple account of life in the mountain country of Colorado and Utah, where the author spent his time as a miner and rancher. Most of the book is devoted to cattle raising and cowboy life, but mining, mountain climbing, sheep raising, and early Colorado and Utah history, are also included.

"Believe me, David Lavender can write. He can make you laugh; he can make people come alive in print. But perhaps his range and sureness are best exemplified in the chapter wherein he describes plumbing facilities and muses on immortality in an abandoned mine shaft." E. J. C.

+ Book Week p12 My 9 '43 200w

Booklist 39:352 My 1 '43

"Intimate insight into life in one part of great and varied West and valuable addition to books on this section of our country." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 68:287 Ap 1 '43 70w

"His story is realistic and readable. . . Nor does he spread any gloss on the hardships. He does, however, put on record some of the most engaging characters in the modern literature of the West. He makes it understandable why he says that, after damning the country mightily, one comes to an absurd affection for the particular part of it he has most reason to hate."

+ N Y Times p30 My 2 '43 440w

"The 'West' described by Mr. Lavender in this well done volume of reminiscence and description consists principally of the rough country of southeastern Utah and southwestern Colorado. There are very few dates to fix the time covered here, but apparently the author has had an intimate knowledge of this area for a good many years. Certainly he knows it well, and he writes of it with realistic eyes. . . There are those who have a genuine affection for this part of the country, and Mr. Lavender, for all the fact that he can call a spade a spade and is not fooled for a minute, is one of them." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 11 '43 850w

LAVENDER, DAVID SIEVERT. Trouble at Tamarack. 256p il $1.75 Presbyterian bd.

43-5801

"Typical boy's camp story built around horse wrangling. Bram Tyler came to Camp Tamarack in northern California, determined to make himself the outstanding boy and to win the Tamarack pin. By hard knocks to his pride, he learned that teamwork was more valuable than individual prowess to the camp and his friends." Library J

"Though the plot is hackneyed, the book has some fine descriptive writing and should be of particular interest to young horse lovers." Phil Young, Jr.

+ — Book Week p9 My 23 '43 140w

Christian Century 60:427 Ap 7 '43 40w

"Not important but useful with young readers clamoring for Westerns. Recommended." Emily Hutson

Library J 68:330 Ap 15 '43 70w

LAVERTY, MAURA. Touched by the thorn [Eng title: Alone we embark]. 248p $2.50 (7s 6d) Longmans

43-15469

Another story of life in the Irish town of Ballyderrig, following the author's Never No More (Book Review Digest, 1942). It is the story of lovely Mary Sheehy, who loved Denis Doran, but was swept into a marriage with an unstable and feckless musician. After his death Mary and her child returned to Ballyderrig, but Denis was in America. With Mary's second marriage, to foxy Johnny Dunne, and Denis' return to Ireland, the trouble began. Parallel to Mary's story, is that of Julia Dempsey, a warm-hearted woman with a love for all humanity.

Booklist 40:165 Ja 1 '44

"Has all the humor and vitality of the author's earlier Never No More, and the same deftness with incident and richness of character, with the added virtue of a fairly well sustained plot." N. E. Monroe

+ Cath World 158:313 D '43 160w

Reviewed by M. H. Zipprich

Library J 68:725 S 15 '43 70w

"Miss Maura Laverty's Alone We Embark ends with a motor crash, but the catastrophe is a convenient device to bring the story to a satisfactory conclusion rather than a telling illustration of the tragic irony of fate. It is, indeed, the least plausible incident in an otherwise absorbing and charmingly written narrative of the Irish countryside." Wilfrid Gibson

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 N 5 '43 100w

"A dreary, depressing story that is more like a suffragette's handbook than a human document. It is a great waste of a fine talent." Thomas Sugrue

— + N Y Times p34 N 21 '43 550w

"Not an important book, but nevertheless a tender, human one with lovely Irish dialect singing through it."

+ New Yorker 19:94 O 30 '43 110w

"Miss Laverty has poised a lot of questions she couldn't answer. . . But all along we have the delight of her musical speech, the sweet turn of the Irish phrase, the salty turns of Irish character, the gay scenes at fair and concert, and the real emotional value of such people as Mary and Paddy and the little Teedy. It is tender throughout, written in love and understanding." L. R. North

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:18 N 20 '43 350w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien

Spec 171:464 N 12 '43 170w

"What Miss Laverty may as yet lack in skill she makes up for by the freshness, the truth and the sincere compassion of her imaginative vision."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p521 O 30 '43 900w

"'Touched by the Thorn' is made of the color, savor and sound of an Irish village, full of Irish humor, gay, delicately acid and savage. Surely, it would be hard to better this description of a crabbed neighbor: 'He likes me so little that he'd hang a sack over the sun to keep its heat from me.'" Clare Godfrey

+ Weekly Book Review p16 O 24 '43 700w

LAVRA, STEPHEN (ATHENIAN, pseud). The Greek miracle; tr. and with a foreword by David Walker. 144p $1.50 Hastings house [6s Chapman]

940.542 World war, 1939—Greece [42-51776]

This book, first published in Portuguese and French, is a study of the political and diplomatic background of the invasion of Greece, and of Greece itself beginning with April 1941, and lasting thru that historic six months when Greece fought for her liberty.

"This book deserves many, many readers." A. C. Spectorsky

+ Book Week p2 Ag 15 '43 90w

Booklist 40:56 O 15 '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 15 '43 390w

Christian Science Monitor p13 Ag 21 '43 450w

Reviewed by A. M. Nikolaieff

N Y Times p12 Ag 29 '43 140w

LAWRENCE, JOSEPHINE. A tower of steel. 316p $2.50 Little

43-15782

Story of the effect of the present war upon four girls, all working in a law office. They are: Thalia, personal secretary to the head of the firm, who married in haste when she met Allan; Frannie, sole support of a thoroly selfish mother; Leis, married to a soldier, who is stationed in Texas; and "Bon" Voyage, young and radiant, and in love with a sailor.

"Josephine Lawrence is the poor girl's Zola. . . This is one of Josephine Lawrence's best novels—and she has several good ones to her credit. She speaks for millions of strap-

LAWRENCE, JOSEPHINE—Continued
hangers and installment buyers, the home-front privates whose deeds of heroism never make the headlines." Sterling North
+ Book Week p14 N 14 '43 340w
Booklist 40:114 D 1 '43

"There is some effort to contrast two generations of women in Frannie Miller's story—that is good—but the book as a whole is too dispersed to be interesting or convincing." N. E. Monroe
— + Cath World 158:314 D '43 70w
Christian Science Monitor p12 N 27 '43 550w

"Absorbing and interesting throughout. Recommended." S. E. Sherman
+ Library J 68:892 N 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Mary Poore
N Y Times p40 N 14 '43 480w

"Miss Lawrence can reproduce the flat, commonplace conversation of decent, not overly bright young office workers with phonographic fidelity. She makes no attempt, though, to trace the causes of the confusion of their lives or to speculate upon their uncertain futures, but is content to present her story as an honest and unfortunately not very interesting picture."
New Yorker 19:112 N 13 '43 140w

"The author is not unduly cruel about the muliebrity of her characters. What one should wear where, frequently rears its ugly head; the tragedy of the last nylons is remarked several times; the sedative and restorative properties of chocolate bars and cokes are demonstrated regularly, but Miss Lawrence is fairly kind to her characters, on the whole; perhaps a shade too kind to her men. The girls all find their security, at last, in Old Man Lyman and the tower of steel he preserves for them and his young partners. Jane Austen would have enjoyed 'A Tower of Steel.'" Phil Stong
+ Sat R of Lit 27:21 Ja 1 '44 500w

"Miss Lawrence writes skillfully and her theme is pertinent. Unfortunately, she has not penetrated to the core of the situation she describes. It might have been a telling story of women civilians, but instead it is just a light novel." Helen Lowe
Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 280w

"As actual as a newsreel, this story of office girls and, in the background, home-keeping wives—raises many questions which women ask themselves perennially and especially in times such as these. In Miss Lawrence's capable telling, both the questions and the answers are provocative." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p22 N 21 '43 800w
Wis Lib Bul 40:10 Ja '44

LAWSON, MRS MARIE (ABRAMS). Dragon John. 51p il $1.50 Viking 43-14490

Gay little story about a kindly dragon, of the name of John, whose lonely life was changed for the better when he befriended a small brown rabbit.

"The charm of the story lies in its odd twists from the standard fairy tale, in the humor that hides in every paragraph and in Marie Lawson's fascinating drawings. For every little girl and boy (6 to 9) who likes a fairy story." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p7 O 17 '43 230w
Booklist 40:64 O 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:404 N '43 50w

"A delightful story for the six- to ten-year-olds, with a surprising humor throughout, both in text and illustrations. Illustrated by the author. Recommended." Olive Brain
+ Library J 68:894 N 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p6 O 10 '43 240w

"One would think there were nothing left to say in the fairytale line about dragons, especially since Kenneth Grahame dealt with a reluctant one some time ago and C. S. Forester with a domesticated species last year. But in this amusing little tale with brightly colored, highly satisfactory drawings illuminating every page the effect of newness is obtained by combining basic elements of several fine old stories and telling the result in a spirit of light-hearted enjoyment." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 S 26 '43 250w

LAWSON, ROBERT. Watchwords of liberty; a pageant of Am. quotations; with il. by [the author]. 115p $2 Little

973 U.S.—History—Juvenile literature. Quotations 43-10336

Famous phrases of some of the makers of American history, each attributed to its author, with a short sketch about the circumstances which called forth the saying. For children of eight to fourteen. Illustrated. Index.

"A 'must' for every American bookshelf." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p10 Ag 1 '43 400w
Booklist 40:19 S '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p6 O 14 '43 140w
Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:325 S '43 100w

"A must item for all libraies." D. M. MacDonald
+ Library J 68:627 Ag '43 70w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:826 O 15 '43 40w

"Here for youth and for those who guide it is a source book of the nation's temper and of its dedication to liberty." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 11 '43 490w

"Briefly, vividly, and sincerely Robert Lawson has told the story that lies behind each quotation. His words, to our mind, illustrate more truly than his pictures, which are somewhat disappointing. His famous people are often stiff and lifeless. It is in the small sketches throughout the text we find his usual fine drawing and charm of style. This is a book for any age that likes to remember, and perhaps many may want to add favorite quotations of their own choosing." Jacqueline Overton
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:58 O 16 '43 450w

"Intended to give youngsters of 8 to 14 a more vivid sense of the great hours in our history, but a good many grownups will enjoy and profit by it also."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 8 '43 200w

"There is no other quotation book for children like this one; I wish every child in the country might own it. . . The beauty of the book is that it is up-to-date. Something continuous in itself holds it together: the American spirit. It reaches from the first into the future; long before the United Nations Benjamin Franklin spoke for us with: 'Where liberty dwells, there is my country.' Better keep this book where the children can get it, but not out of your own sight." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 11 '43 500w

LAWSON, TED W. Thirty seconds over Tokyo; ed. by Robert Considine. 221p $2 Random house

940.544 World war, 1939—Aerial operations. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-51213

Personal narrative of one of the pilots who bombed Tokyo on the Doolittle raid. Covers in addition to the story of the raid itself, an account of the preliminary training and of the aftermath.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 172:119 Ag '43 300w

"I want to go on record now as saying it's my considered opinion that the book would be hard to overrate, that it's the most exciting and interesting and engrossing book out of this war to date, that it surpasses any actual-experience record of the last war." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p1 Jl 11 '43 1200w
Booklist 39:461 Jl 15 '43

"It is almost necessary now to set up some scale for marking these books, like the varying number of stars some critics accord the movies. In such a list, Capt. Ted W. Lawson's Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo would rate four stars." R. R. M.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 14 '43 650w

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Ag '43

"What a tale it is! For pure adventure and high excitement this story ranks right at the top of the war books." Marcus Duffield

+ Nation 157:79 Jl 17 '43 360w

Reviewed by R. H. Rovere

New Repub 109:230 Ag 16 '43 550w

"This war, as every sensible soldier knows, is only now beginning to get a good start, so it is too soon to nominate any tale as its greatest individual narrative. But the story of the Tokyo raid as told by Capt. Ted Lawson is certainly the most stirring story of individual heroism that it has so far produced." W. L. White

+ N Y Times p1 Jl 11 '43 1500w

"It isn't by any means as well written as some of the other personal-experience records; not as clean and neat, for example, as W. L. White's books, though it gets away from White's moralizing and his implicit sentimentality. However, 'Thirty Seconds Over Tokyo' does give us the plain, faithful color of the thing." Vincent McHugh

+ New Yorker 19:64 Jl 17 '43 500w

"Here, in this book, the now familiar facts and many unfamiliar ones all come alive, in the course of a simple, exciting, deeply stirring personal narrative. There is no flag-waving, no false modesty, no attitudinizing of any kind. The line is clean and straight." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 26:5 Jl 10 '43 800w

Time 42:98 Jl 19 '43 1800w

"The story is well told and makes one of the most striking flying books of the war."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p592 D 11 '43 450w

"This is the remarkable personal story of one of the young men who helped Doolittle bomb Tokio April 18, 1942, who carried out his assignment and lived to tell his tale after suffering serious injuries. It is such a good story that nothing could have spoiled it but too much effort to tell it artfully. . . It is 'edited' by Robert Considine. That, of course, may mean anything, from checking on spelling and punctuation to a complete rewrite of the story teller's recital; but whatever he did, Mr. Considine did so well that the story is just such a tale as such a man as Ted Lawson ought to tell." Rodney Gilbert

+ Weekly Book Review p1 Jl 11 '43 2850w

LEACOCK, STEPHEN BUTLER. Happy stories just to laugh at. 240p $2.50 Dodd

43-16708

Collection of humorous stories, all with one element in common—"they are not true to life."

Booklist 40:166 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by E. R. Stern

N Y Times p21 Ja 23 '44 320w

"There was a time when Leacock could make us howl with laughter if he so much as opened his mouth. Was he funnier then? Or is it that we—and he—are older? But he can still make us smile and that's a lot these days. Most of the selections in this group are short. You can read them in about three minutes and fall off with that smile on your lips. Or if you need twenty minutes to relax there are quite a number of longer ones." M. B.

Sat R of Lit 27:6 Ja 1 '44 90w

"Especially to be recommended in this volume are Pawn to King's Four, a hair-raising episode in that most unlikely of places, a chess club; Clouds That Rolled By, a nostalgic bit which shows how insecure the world is in the minds of people who love security; Angel Pond, Lure Of The North, an hilarious exposition of the 'one man's meat' adage; and Mr. Plumter, B. A., Revisits The Old Shop, which also makes new fun of an old gag, this time the one about coming back to the campus after twenty years. There is a long piece, called Boom Times, in which the author moves in a more roomy setting, but he doesn't make much use of the added space and after a while all the emptiness just seems to get in his way." Thomas Sugrue

+ — Weekly Book Review p14 D 12 '43 500w

LEACOCK, STEPHEN BUTLER. How to write. 261p $2.50 Dodd

808 Authorship. English language—Rhetoric 43-809

A book of advice, humorous and wise, addressed to young writers by a famous exponent of the art. Mr Leacock's final paragraphs contain the philosophy of his work: "The main idea is that writing originates in thinking. The basis of thinking is sincerity and interest in the world around us. If you can add a kindly good will towards man that is an even firmer base. Writing can never be achieved by learning what to avoid and what to leave out. There must be something put in before you can leave anything out. Writing comes from having something to say and trying hard to say it." (p 258)

Booklist 39:315 Ap 1 '43

Bookmark 4:10 Mr '43

"This little volume does not by any means cover the entire field. It does not mean to. But it covers enough to be of enormous value. Mr. Leacock's respect for the English language is deep and consistent. His observations on sentence structure, on the choice of words, on the magic and meaning of phrases, and on the art of narration, all have point. Because he is amusing, no one should get the idea that he hasn't something serious to say." Stanley Walker

+ Books p10 Ja 24 '43 900w

Cath World 107:108 Ap '43 180w

"In his new volume, Mr. Leacock turns a penetrating and caustic eye on the gentle art of the writer. A generous man, he offers advice to readers and writers alike, and as an author not altogether unknown his advise is both judicious and shrewd." Thomas Lask

+ N Y Times p20 Mr 7 '43 650w

"This is a lovely book because it is both witty and wise; the only combination, of course, so far discovered, that produces actual humor. . . Stephen Leacock has a mind that cannot resist its own enchantment, and so he enchants other minds, among them definitely my own." Struthers Burt

+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 F 6 '43 700w

Springf'd Republican p6 F 13 '43 900w

LEAF, MUNRO. Health can be fun; pictures by [the author]. 55p $1.35 Stokes

613 Hygiene—Juvenile literature 43-13211

In text and pictures, similar to his Manners Can be Fun (Book Review Digest, 1936) the author outlines simple rules of health, eating, sleeping, posture, etc. for grades one to four.

"Children who are shown pictures of a Food Grumbler, a Stooper, and a Messy, certainly don't want to resemble them. Besides, it's always easier for a child to do the right thing, when he understands why it is better for him to do it. Blessings again on Munro Leaf!" P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p9 N 7 '43 140w

Booklist 40:64 O 15 '43

Cath World 158:315 D '43 50w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield

Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 50w

"Primarily a home purchase, but librarians who have other titles in series will want this one, too." M. N. Miller

+ Library J 68:772 O 1 '43 60w

New Yorker 19:133 D 4 '43 20w

"Your very good health, Mr. Leaf; your book deserves it." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 S 12 '43 380w

Wis Lib Bul 39:161 D '43

LEAO, SYLVIA. White shore of Olinda. 246p $2.50 Vanguard
43-13340

Poetically told story of Gervasio, the fisherman, and his beloved Marilia, the lacemaker of Olinda, a Brazilian fishing village. The wiles of a beautiful, disappointed woman bring sorrow and despair to the saintlike Marilia, but in the end Gervasio returns to his real love, the lacemaker of Olinda.

Booklist 40:47 O 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

"A human story beautifully told. . . There is beauty in the pattern and in the telling, and there is beauty in the underlying philosophy." L. V. Vila

+ Commonweal 38:566 S 24 '43 500w

Commonweal 39:38 O 29 '43 50w

"Recommended as an addition to fiction with South American background." E. S. Brown

+ Library J 68:625 Ag '43 50w

"The author of 'White Shore of Olinda' is a Brazilian living in this country. She writes English fluently and often with a moving quality of poetry. . . Marilia walks in barefoot dignity and curly-headed Gervasio trims his sail with an antique grace. Their thoughts are of an incredible fineness; in fact, they think in poetry, and it is clear that the author is working with nostalgia, not for a particular country but for those heroically good children of nature with whose invention the civilized often seek to mitigate the complexities of their existence. But Miss Leao manages to present many touching and amiable pictures." Lorine Pruette

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 29 '43 420w

"It is a story full of direct, violent emotion, of simple people living close to nature. In this book they are represented as a serious people. For all their singing there is little laughter. But there is poetry. The lace patterns that Marilia weaves are full of poetry, as the son of her patronne points out to her, the songs that Gervasio makes up for her are poetry; so is much of her speech to him. Whether Miss Leao has idealized the people or not (strict realists may say she has), she has brought them to life in this book and made them speak eloquently for faith in life and for understanding of its fundamental issues." Georgiana Stevens

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 29 '43 600w

LEAR, JOHN. Forgotten front. 256p $2.50 Dutton

918.5 Peru—Description and travel. Sechura desert 42-51496

This book, partly an account of an adventurous trip, partly comment on South American politics, is the product of an AP correspondent who was assigned to cover the "forgotten front"—Latin America. On one trip across the mountains the plane he was traveling on was forced down and he and two companions journeyed on foot fifty miles across sun-baked desert to find help.

Booklist 39:318 Ap 1 '43

"Unfortunately, Mr. Lear has marred his story. Apparently he thought it would not be enough in war time just to tell of human survival. He felt it necessary to sandwich in some significant facts, which elsewhere would be very interesting. He gave the book a war-like title. . . The real story—that of the flight and fevered march to the sea—does not even begin until page seventy-five. Still, that story is so full of the kind of irascible strength that is in such a story as Rickenbacker's that one can almost excuse the irrevelances." John Hersey

+ — Books p6 Ja 31 '43 750w

Reviewed by Thelma Brackett

Library J 67:1105 D 15 '42 120w

"This narrative's combination of adventure and comment makes a readable and stimulating book from a frontier that is not, after all forgotten. But if ever a book needed a map to localize its adventure and elucidate its comment, this one does. The lack of a map is inexcusable." Katherine Woods

+ — N Y Times p16 F 7 '43 1000w

"Lear has made us a sandwich of raw meat between dainty nabiscos. It is almost as if he feels an apology is necessary for relating his stark personal experiences, as if he doubted his book would have sales appeal unless garnished with the political and war worries that beset us these days. But such a story needs no apology, and must find its power and justification, not in external trimming, but within the range of its own emotions, through its internal balance of pathetic pettiness and humorous detail with its intrinsic immortal grandeur." Carleton Beals

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:31 Ap 10 '43 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 14 '43 550w

LEBEDEFF, MRS VERA. Heart returneth. 319p $2.50 Lippincott
43-4310

A group of White Russians living and working in Detroit during the last twenty years provide most of the characters in this first novel. Prince Lucian, of the old aristocracy, one of the central figures, proposes to return to his own country in 1941, to offer Russia his knowledge about factory management. Another aristocrat, Countess Xenya Valdai, also plays an important role.

"The book is filled with a hopeless nostalgia —a sense of futility. To read it is to extend one's sympathies, to feel greater understanding for those who have been rudely transplanted and must create their homes in a strange land."

+ Atlantic 172:129 Jl '43 150w

Reviewed by John Norcross

Book Week p5 My 9 '43 700w

Booklist 39:389 Je 1 '43

"Probably my ignorance of the setting kept me pleasantly plodding along in this novel. May not be usable in some communities, and I hesitate therefore, to recommend it for purchase. I liked it." F. A. Boyle

Library J 68:289 Ap 1 '43 110w

"More than a story, this book is a portrayal of a group bound together by nostalgia and dreams of return to an old order. Mrs. Lebedeff is at her best in describing the talk and the tightly bound social life of this foreign group. Russia, the old Russia, is kept alive in their hearts, in their meetings and their discussions. . . What this book lacks in plot structure is more than made up in atmosphere and characterization." Rose Feld

+ — N Y Times p7 Ap 11 '43 600w

"As a novel—specifically as a work of art—'The Heart Returneth' is steady, level, competent. The moments which transmute simple reality into intuition are, however, rare. The novel offers instead interest, credibility, knowledge, in a most acceptable assimilable form." F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 11 '43 750w

LEBER, CHARLES TUDOR. Unconquerable; concerning the Christian mission in a world at war. 160p $1.50 Revell

266 Missions 43-5068

"Dr. Leber, a secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., made a six-months westward trip around the world ending at New York seven weeks after Pearl Harbor. In this volume he records his observations and reflections on the state of the world and especially of the mission fields not merely on the eve of war but, in part, after war had actually begun." Christian Century

---

Christian Century 60:330 Mr 17 '43 70w

Reviewed by W. F. Thompson

Churchman 157:17 Je 1 '43 180w

LEBOWITZ, SAMUEL H. Pre-service course in machine science. 440p il $2.50 Wiley

621.8 Machinery. Machinery, Kinematics of 43-15390

"This book was written with the purpose of presenting in one volume the subject matter required in the course on Fundamentals of Machines, as outlined by the U.S. Office of Education and the U.S. War Department for pre-induction training. . . With proper diligence in its study, the material may be mastered in a one-semester course." Pref.

Booklist 40:96 N 15 '43

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 30w

LEDERER, MRS CHARLOTTE (BACSKAY). Yanko in America; il. by the author. 155p $2 Crowell

43-14973

"To show children the problems of other children who are obliged to adapt themselves to a new kind of life, Mrs. Lederer tells how a brother and sister from a Slovakian village make their home in America. The customs of their former life are described and their gradual acceptance of different ways told appreciatively. For children of the middle years this story gives another informed view of racial backgrounds. One chapter contains a good account of St. Nicholas, the Russian bishop." Horn Bk

Cath World 158:316 D '43 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:408 N '43 80w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:821 O 15 '43 40w

LEE, ALFRED MCCLUNG, and HUMPHREY, NORMAN DAYMOND. Race riot. 143p $1.50 Dryden

325.26 U.S.—Race question. Negroes—Detroit 43-17460

Two sociologists, professors at Wayne University, describe the race riot debacle in Detroit during the week of June 21, 1943. The first part of the book is an account of the riot as gleaned from newspapers, police reports, and interviews. The final chapter takes up the question of preventing future riots. Bibliography.

Reviewed by John Norcross
Book Week p8 N 21 '43 600w

Booklist 40:140 D 15 '43

Reviewed by T. T. Brumbaugh
Christian Century 60:1400 D 1 '43 260w

Christian Science Monitor p14 N 20 '43 500w

"Because the authors have 'pulled no punches,' this is fascinating reading for everyone." N. F. Kinzie
+ Churchman 157:14 D 1 '43 300w

"Suggestions convincing, sound, seemingly workable, and merit serious experiment. Definitely helpful and clarifying at time when new events are focusing attention upon such regrettable biracial occurrences. Should be pushed for wide circulation." Louise Homer
+ Library J 68:890 N 1 '43 80w

"This small volume is not only informative; its authors understand what they are talking about. It should be read not only by government officials and others who have the responsibility for maintaining order but by everyone who is interested in maintaining a democratic way of life in America." E. F. Frazier
+ Nation 157:766 D 25 '43 300w

"'Race Riot' is strictly rudiments. It is the day-by-day story, taken bodily from the newspapers, of last June's battle between Detroit's whites and blacks. It will add nothing to your fund of information, even if you start with none. It is case history as only sociologists can case it, written in the social worker's argot." Walter Davenport
— N Y Times p5 N 14 '43 180w

LEE, ALISON. Vanishing violin. 236p $2 Lothrop

43-10274

Mystery story for young readers.

"Fair mystery, but should like to see author try straight modern story for teen-age girls without mystery framework." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 68:628 Ag '43 70w

"The story moves rapidly with a good deal of suspense and an adequate number of successive suspects. Although the main plot concerns the search for the missing violin, there are a number of minor incidents which enliven the story. . . 'The Vanishing Violin' is more simple, less sensational, than the usual mystery story." R. L. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 160w

"Music means more than mystery in the story, which makes good use of the part student orchestras take in the life of a large modern high school." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 18 '43 300w

LEE, CLARENCE PENDLETON. High noon. 278p $2.50 Macmillan

43-16385

"Novel of middle-class family life in Pine Bluff, Arkansas, an American small town and county seat. Harry Pace, leading realtor of the community, typifies the small business man; Lucille, his wife, the American mother who devotes her life to her family of three men. Leonard and Webb, the sons, are normal boys of different temperaments experiencing the joys and sorrows of growing up." Library J

"Unsophisticated. Fairly well written. Recommended for all public libraries." H. A. Carpenter
+ Library J 68:725 S 15 '43 70w

"'High Noon' is the kind of novel which we must expect in great numbers at a time when everyone has the secret conviction that he, too, can write a novel. . . As reporting it is accurate, honest and unsentimental; it is, in a quiet way, well written. But it is not interesting; it does not observe anew, and it says little that is fresh." Ruth Perry
— + N Y Times p40 N 14 '43 600w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 500w

"Mr. Lee tries to give us real people in all their complexities and inconsistencies, and in the main he succeeds. Still, it seems to this reviewer that in some places he might have laid aside the kodak lens for the paint brush and might thereby have given his novel more form and even more verity. For in this book the high lights which even life itself provides seem unnecessarily dimmed." Virginia Swain
Weekly Book Review p10 O 31 '43 600w

LEE, CLARK GOULD. They call it Pacific; an eyewitness story of our war against Japan from Bataan to the Solomons. 374p maps $3 Viking

940.54 World war, 1939—East (Far East). World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-4927

An A. P. correspondent describes what happened in the Pacific war just before and after Pearl Harbor. The Bataan campaign, the escape of General MacArthur, and the invasion of the Solomons, are all graphically described, by an eye-witness, who was familiar with the territory in peace time. The author had spent several years in the Orient as correspondent in Honolulu, Tokyo, and Shanghai. Index.

Reviewed by F. S. Marquardt
Book Week p4 Ap 11 '43 360w

Booklist 39:329 Ap 15 '43

"A remarkable book. . . An economical but telling style is coupled with as good a reportorial eye as there is in the business. Few volumes as good are likely to come from this or any war." R. G.
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Ap 2 '43 700w

LEE, C. G.—Continued

"More detailed than other such books, it is not so dramatic nor well written. Many unimportant personal anecdotes included, but valuable and interesting military facts are disclosed which, heretofore, have been censored." Rice Estes

+ Library J 68:247 Mr 15 '43 80w

"Mr. Lee's account of life on Bataan and Corregidor is excellent. The last part of the book is less interesting. He got to Australia about the same time MacArthur did, and later went out with the navy from Honolulu. He flew from an aircraft carrier into Guadalcanal. Here he goes into a phase of the war which has been more fully covered in other books." Marcus Duffield

+ — Nation 156:530 Ap 10 '43 250w

"Lee was in the Philippines and deals with them through two-thirds of his book. He is a reporter, one of the best there ever has been in the Pacific, and he made me feel very proud of being an American newspaperman. I commend all scoffers at the integrity of the American press to the paragraphs describing Lee's adventures in getting to where he could honestly dateline a dispatch, 'From the front line on Bataan.'" Ira Wolfert

+ New Repub 108:643 My 10 '43 90w

"Mr. Lee can write. The strength and clearness of his style are enforced by the fact that he does not comb his mind (or his thesaurus) to gain an effect. He tells his story—his book is almost all narrative—without flourish but with flow. He makes the truth seem hard, amusing, horrible, prideful, or touched with despair when it seemed any of these things to him. I suppose that is simply first-class reporting, but I would include it among the primary qualities of literature as well." J. I. Green

+ N Y Times p4 Mr 21 '43 900w

"Some excellent eyewitness chapters on the fighting in Luzon. The rest of the book, however, doesn't quite live up to them."

+ — New Yorker 19:72 Mr 27 '43 50w

"Clark Lee's book is an eye-opener. If it doesn't convert the grumblers, the cynics, and ration the holders-back, nothing will. There is no preaching in its pages, yet it gets over the anguished message of the planeless Air Corps sergeant in the Philippines: 'Tell them this isn't only our war, it's the war of every American.'" H. C. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ap 24 '43 1050w

"Lee has done a fine job of reporting and interpreting the first year of the war in the Pacific." G. P. Z.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 28 '43 350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p616 D 25 '43 420w

Reviewed by John Hersey

Weekly Book Review p7 Mr 28 '43 1000w

Reviewed by J. D. Adams

Yale R n s 32:790 summer '43 120w

LEE, JOHN GLESSNER. Fighter facts and fallacies; il. by Beverley Hancock; with an introd. by Jerome C. Hunsaker. 63p $1.25 Morrow

629.1341 Airplanes, Military. Airplanes—Design and construction 42-51253

Concise explanation of fighter airplane performance, in word and picture. Discusses design, effects of power, weight, wing area, and streamlining.

Booklist 39:271 Mr 1 '43

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:40 Ja 1 '43 30w

"'Fighter Facts and Fallacies' will clear up confusion in the minds of many laymen as to the advantages and disadvantages of various types of fighter planes, especially the large-wing versus the small-wing plane. . . Read the book and join in the argument." P. J. Searles

Weekly Book Review p26 My 23 '43 80w

LEE, MRS MELICENT (HUMASON). Village of singing birds; with pictures by Zhenya Gay. 100p $1.50 Harper

42-21960

Tito was an Indian boy who lived with his parents in a gloomy deserted Spanish convent in Antigua. They were poor and often hungry and cold, but Tito determined to change that. With a collection of wild birds in cages, he went up into the mountains, found the Village of Singing Birds, from whence his ancestors came, and there found a home for himself and his parents.

"Similar to others by this author in style and presentation. Not an important book, but may be useful for correlation with geography. Numerous black-and-white drawings by Zhenya Gay; good print and durable make-up." Marian Herr

Library J 67:956 N 1 '42 70w

Wis Lib Bul 39:56 Ap '43

LEE, UMPHREY. The historic church and modern pacifism. 249p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury

261 War and religion. Church and state 43-5305

"Professor Lee's theme is the history of Christian attitudes toward war, from the teachings of Jesus, through the early, medieval, Reformation and post-Reformation periods, to the social gospel and the positions of modern pacifists and non-pacifists. The author's position is clearly that of the non-pacifist, but his treatment of the documentary and other historical data and his critique of the arguments upon which the pacifist position has been defended seem to this reviewer to be what should be expected from a conscientious and competent historian." (Christian Century) Index.

"Here is a history of an idea. It is of inestimable value to everyone, irrespective of whether he assumes the position of all-out pacifism or attempts to justify war under certain conditions. The book is not an argument for a position. It is rather a presentation of the growth and development of the problem of pacifism within the tradition of Christian thinking and action. . . Dr. Lee has not intruded on page after page with references to his sources, but has added several pages of valuable and carefully annotated references which are easily available and which affirm the quality of his scholarship." Preston Bradley

+ Book Week p9 Mr 14 '43 600w

"A highly recommended book."

+ Christian Century 60:394 Mr 31 '43 120w

"Unfortunately, the book is not quite what it appears to be. . . There is no material included which is not readily available in the standard histories of Christianity." W. S. Hudson

J Religion 23:221 Jl '43 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Holmes

Weekly Book Review p18 My 30 '43 500w

LEEB, WILHELM JOSEF FRANZ, ritter von. Defense; first translation [by] Stefan T. Possony and Daniel Vilfroy. 159p maps $1 Military service

355.43 Strategy. World war, 1939-
43-9330

"A translation of a treatise on the strategy of defensive warfare, by a Nazi Field Marshal who has played a prominent part in the Russian campaign." (Foreign Affairs) "Originally published . . . in the Militarwissenschaftliche rundschau ('The Scientific military review') of the German War office. . . Issued in book form, under the title Die abwehr, in Berlin in 1938." (Foreword) "Part three was written by the translators—p. 123." (Library of Congress card)

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:156 O '43 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Nikolaieff

N Y Times p10 Jl 11 '43 600w

LEEMING, JOSEPH. Fun with magic. 86p il $2 Stokes

793.8 Conjuring 43-10354

"How to make magic equipment; how to perform many tricks, including some of the best tricks of professional magicians and how to give successful magic shows." (Subtitle) The materials required are few and easily procurable—handkerchiefs, cards, coins, rings, string, rope, etc. Contains ample diagrams and directions. Grades four to seven.

"Don't bring this book into your house just at the time when important duties are awaiting your attention. It is so much fun to get into the matter of mystic knots, vanishing coins, super card tricks and such, that duty is easily forgotten." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p6 N 14 '43 70w

Booklist 40:50 O 1 '43

"Best part about this book is its simplicity. The tricks for most part are easy to do though not too amateurish, and they require few properties." M. B. Snow

+ Library J 68:772 O 1 '43 80w

"I have known not a few boys and girls who seemed to me expert in 'parlor magic'—once this starts in a community it is likely to go like wildfire—and I have read various books by which they can make a start, but this one seems to me to offer the most." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 O 31 '43 180w

Wis Lib Bul 39:161 D '43

LEES, MRS HANNAH, and BACHMANN, LAWRENCE P. Death in the doll's house. 263p $2 Random house

43-51069

Detective story.

"The working of the human mind is pretty simple stuff in this book . . . but it's fascinating going all the same. Authentic background is natural to these authors, of course: Hannah Lees is a well known popularizer of medicine for the slicks, and Bachmann is responsible for much of Dr. Kildare of the screen." Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p8 Mr 14 '43 310w

Booklist 39:321 Ap 1 '43

Bookmark 4:20 My '43

"Psychological detecting at its best in this excellent story."

+ New Yorker 19:68 Mr 6 '43 90w

"Very good."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 Mr 6 '43 40w

+ Sat R of Lit 26:35 Mr 20 '43 40w

"Recommended to those who derive a distinct pleasure in getting a glimpse of the medical profession apart from the horizontal, respectful view of the patient, 'Death in the Doll's House' should have great success among faithful followers of the Dr Kildare movie series." J. K.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 18 '43 180w

"[Mrs] Lees is an experienced writer of magazine articles with a medical slant and author of 'Prescription for Murder' and 'Women Will Be Doctors.' Mr. Bachmann, now in the Army, supplied many plots and much scientific research for the Dr. Kildare pictures. Their collaboration has produced a highly readable tale, marred only by a weird dialogue structure caused by punctuation trouble or something." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p21 F 28 '43 350w

LEESON, SPENCER. Holy communion; an attempt at a devotional study; with a pref. by the Lord Bishop of London. (Bishop of London's Lenten bk, 1943) 74p $1 (2s 6d) Longmans

265.3 Lord's supper 43-4040

"The book is a devotional study of what the Holy Communion means to a traditional Anglican, who relates his views to theology, philosophy, history and modern needs, and is concerned, not with the controversies which separate Christians, but with the spiritual truths which unite them. The author avoids technical terms and controversial issues." Churchman

"The traditional Anglican who is content with the Western and Roman emphasis upon the pleading of a sacrifice will find the book helpful, and the liberal churchman can read it with profit." W. L. Caswell

Churchman 157:15 My 15 '43 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p118 Mr 6 '43 500w

LEFFINGWELL, ALBERT (DANA CHAMBERS, GILES JACKSON, pseuds). Court of shadows. 272p $2 Dial press

43-5353

Spy thriller of present day New York. Niles Boyd, newspaper columnist and secret agent goes into action when a friend of his, living in an apartment near the New York harbor, is found with a bullet in his brain.

"This book's a beautiful job—adult, well written, with some real thinking in it and a minimum of war heroics. It's timely. It will make a swell movie. Got it? Get it!" Elizabeth Bullock

+ Book Week p8 Mr 28 '43 250w

"Sensational plot; action galore and gory; smashing climax which comes just in time to save the United States from invasion." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p10 Ap 11 '43 100w

"Saboteurs, gangsters, and a spot of kidnapping in this fine, exciting story of wheels within wheels in wartime New York."

+ New Yorker 19:72 Mr 20 '43 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p16 Ap 4 '43 150w

LE GRAND, pseud. See Henderson, Le G.

LEHMAN, MRS DOROTHY (PIERCE). Sandy; il. by M. Frances Brown. 33p $1 Dorrance

Birds—Legends and stories 43-1293

"Story of an unusual pet—a sandhill crane. Children from six to eight will enjoy the capture of Sandy and the description of his life in the barnyard and his fast friendship with Black Prince, the dear little Newfoundland puppy." Springf'd Republican

Christian Century 60:169 F 10 '43 10w

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 7 '43 80w

Wis Lib Bul 39:43 Mr '43

LEHMAN, MAXWELL, and YARMON, MORTON. Opportunities in the armed forces. 418p $2.95 Viking

355 U.S.—Armed forces. Occupations

43-394

"The authors take up in turn the various branches of service, telling in as much detail as possible what each requires of its personnel. They tell prospective applicants where to seek the type of job for which they are best qualified. . . Full information is given about training schools for enlisted men and officers. Special schools and correspondence courses are listed." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 39:218 F 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

"Any one trying to learn about the armed services will find a wealth of information in this book. . . Written in a simple, straightforward style, this book can correct much of the mass of misinformation about the services, even among men in uniform, who are woefully ignorant of their own to say nothing of other branches." J. J. Bradley

+ N Y Times p38 My 23 '43 460w

Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 15 '43 390w

Weekly Book Review p8 Ag 8 '43 140w

LEIGHTON, MRS ANN, pseud. While we are absent. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 231p $2.50 Little

B or 92 43-5878

Sketches and reminiscences of the life of the American wife of a British army officer during a three year separation due to war. The family lived on a small New England farm and most of the sketches deal with the everyday doings of children, dogs, servants, and neighbors.

Booklist 39:365 My 15 '43

Reviewed by Mary Poore
N Y Times p5 My 2 '43 500w

"This story will give courage to all women whose men are 'absent.' In this sense it is not a novel at all but a pure slice of life, and it has the value of this reality. It rings true. It is, however, a work of art." Kathleen Coyle
+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 2 '43 850w
Wis Lib Bul 39:106 Jl '43

LEIGHTON, CLARE VERONICA HOPE (MRS HENRY NOEL BRAILSFORD). Give us this day. 86p il $2.50 Reynal

630.1 Country life. Agriculture—U.S. 43-17795

"[This work] is a chalk and prose poem to the wide acres of America and to the men who tend them. In it Miss Clare Leighton ranges the gamut of this still agrarian country of ours, from the cattle-growing Texas Panhandle to the Indiana corn and hog farms, from the orange groves of the South and West to the Hudson River apple country and the peach orchards of New Jersey, and tells us with broad, sure strokes of artist's chalk and writer's pen just how our great garden grows." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p4 D 26 '43 420w

" 'Give Us This Day. . .' is highly original, boldly conceived, and skillfully wrought. It strives to pierce to the center of human life, passing over lightly (as Virgil, himself an evicted farmer, also passed over) the temporal problems of agricultural economics. It is impelled by an intense sincerity and a profound and all-embracing love of humanity, of the beasts of the field, and even of the field itself. Americans should be proud that Miss Leighton has chosen their country as a symbol for the embodiment of her dreams, her hope, and her faith." G. R. Stewart
+ — N Y Times p11 D 19 '43 550w

"The drawings which accompany Miss Leighton's text are for the most part decorative and symbolic—much affected by the artist's sense that the scene she sketches with sure clean line must stand for a million million like it, the country over. They are marked with a brooding beauty and that very sense of wonder and delight which Miss Leighton feels is so vital to the rehumanization of modern life." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p5 D 12 '43 650w

LEITH, CHARLES KENNETH; FURNESS, JAMES WILSON, and LEWIS, CLEONA. World minerals and world peace. 253p maps $2.50 Brookings

338.24 Mines and mineral resources. Commercial policy 43-6364

"An up-to-date statistical summary of the world's mineral production and resources, followed by an analysis of the economic and political problems involved in their control. Numerous statistical tables add to the value of this authoritative work." Foreign Affairs

Reviewed by K. E. Knorr
Am Pol Sci R 37:743 Ag '43 500w
Reviewed by B. B. Wallace
Ann Am Acad 229:184 S '43 450w
Booklist 40:3 S '43

"Many will wish that the senior authors, who are among the world's greatest authorities on this subject, had more frequently expressed their interpretations and opinions. In fact, the major fault with the book is that it is much too factual and mild in statement, where often even dramatic interpretations would have been justified. Fortunately, careful reading does disclose much of the judgment of these distinguished mineral economists."
+ — Chem & Met Eng 50:233 My '43 400w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
+ Foreign Affairs 21:5 Jl '43 40w

"A survey of world mineral economics by two such distinguished and competent mineral specialists as Messrs. Leith and Furness and an able economist, Miss Lewis, is most welcome at this time. The facts of production and distribution are well gathered and tersely put in the text; this is excellently supplemented by graphs and maps, compiled with the care and vision familiar to readers of Mr. Furness' earlier work for the United States Bureau of Mines. Of particular value are the summary charts showing the rise in the mineral output of the world and of the United States and the yield of seven principal mineral products—coal, petroleum, and five chief commercial metals. . . Valuable also as factual material, assembled in useful form, is the description of the 'new' mineral materials, those that are in great demand for the first time or whose present-day roles represent a marked departure from their former use." C. H. Behre, Jr.
+ Geog R 33:676 O '43 2850w
Library J 68:575 Jl '43 70w

Reviewed by Genevieve Lamson
N Y Times p12 Jl 4 '43 400w

Reviewed by T. T. Read
Pol Sci Q 58:453 S '43 260w

LE MAY, ALAN. Useless cowboy. 247p $2 Farrar

43-12691

Western story.

Booklist 40:48 O 1 '43

"The tale is wild and woolly, gruesome at times and funny with a slapstick sort of ebullient and irrepressible humor. It must be five or six years since Alan LeMay's last preceding novel appeared. Western fans will gladly welcome this new one from his skilled and versatile hand." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p16 Ag 22 '43 200w

LEMON, HARVEY BRACE, and FERENCE, MICHAEL. Analytical experimental physics. 584p il $7; text ed $5.75 Univ. of Chicago press

530 Physics 43-4503

"This is a second-year text for professional or preprofessional science students. . . Its distinctive features may be summarized briefly as follows: the exceptional amount of analysis; its emphasis on fundamental concepts without neglecting practical applications; its experimental methods; its experimental procedures recorded permanently in motion-picture strips so that, after the demonstration lecture, the apparatus and processes can be reviewed again and again; the abundance of worked examples showing logical processes and practice problems; queries on concepts at the end of each section to test the student's grasp of fundamental ideas." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by L. E. Grinter
Book Week p9 Ag 29 '43 180w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:32 Ap '43

"There are sixty-six plates of experiments, using motion picture strips, and each of these occupies a full page. It seems to this reviewer that in a few cases this technique has its possible advantages, but that in most cases there would have been a gain in compactness and clarity by the use of one or more simple line-diagrams and a tabulation of observations. . . The text is well presented and incorporates enough of historical background to give a proper sense of the development of the subject matter. The analysis demands an elementary knowledge of calculus, but no more than should be in the possession of a student who has taken freshman mathematics." L. S. Marks

+ — N Y Times p21 Je 27 '43 440w

"The authors have done a good job of treating physics for the able student from the analytical and experimental sides and their finished product, tested over a period of several years by a score of instructors and by thousands of mimeoguineapigs, is a work of which they may be justly proud." R. M. Sutton

+ R of Scienific Instruments 14:303 O '43 650w

"I would not recommend this book to the layman who wants to begin his private study of physics. However, for the person with some scientific background, to whom formulae and graphs are not entire strangers, who wants to make more complete and up to date his knowledge of physics, it will be most useful. Experiments are emphasized, and these should be performed when studying from the book. The equipment is relatively simple, and much of it could be improvized in the home. But, even if this cannot be done, a useful feature of the book is that many of the experiments are illustrated in a series of motion-picture frames, clearly reproducing the results." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p22 Je 6 '43 450w

LENGYEL, EMIL. Siberia. 416p il $3.75 Random house

915.7 Siberia 43-51008

"Author of Dakar and The Danube has done the same excellent service for Siberia. The summer of 1916 saw him exiled there (for two years) as prisoner of war from Austria Hungary, and a recent visit supplied him with plenty of contrasts to the mismanagement and neglect that once prevailed. The tangled history, geography, anthropology, and politics of this vast area are made plain in this spirited account, and Siberia's present position of world importance emphasized. Maps and index." Library J

"Mr. Lengyel has performed a difficult task better than well, for his record is stirringly human and colorful, and incites to thought. In English, it represents the only and the best introduction to Siberia." B. E. Nelson

+ Ann Am Acad 227:165 My '43 550w

Booklist 39:222 F 1 '43

Bookmark 4:16 My '43

"Lengyel shows us the drama of Siberia. . . He tells a vivid story and unrolls a vast map, to reveal its history, geography and human drama. The richness of his material crowds even his fat book and forces him to scamp many a fascinating story and to brush over such epic events as the civil war which took an American Army into Siberia on one of the strangest errands ever assigned soldiers of this republic. 'Siberia' is not so much a book as a revelation which has in it the germs of many books." L. M. Lyons

+ Boston Globe p19 Ja 13 '43 500w

"A remarkable book. . . This volume is at once lively and encyclopedic." R. G.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 18 '43 450w

"As in the case of his other books—'The Danube,' 'Turkey' and 'Dakar'—one could wish for less impressionism and more concrete information about factories, mines, railroads and other rather dull but highly important things." R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:588 Ap '43 70w

"Heartily recommended." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 67:1065 D 1 '42 70w

Nation 156:714 My 15 '43 130w

"The inaccuracies and omissions which creep into the book are obviously the result of simple lack of knowledge rather than of political bias or conscious attempts at distortion. . . For all the inaccuracies on contemporary Siberia—and it should be remembered that information on contemporary industrial and agricultural developments in Siberia is so scarce and often so contradictory that it is difficult to acquire a comprehensive and objective picture—Emil Lengyel's book is the best thing of its kind to appear in English and will be read with interest by thousands of Americans desirous of a better understanding of our great ally." John Scott

+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 10 '43 1250w

"Mr. Lengyel's 'Siberia' is a fascinating and highly informative one-volume study of the region, its history, geography, fauna, and flora. . . Mr. Lengyel appends to his study of Siberia excurses about Russia's history, its revolutionary movements, the Civil War, the intervention, and Soviet-Japanese relations. All these subjects are competently handled by the author." I. D. W. Talmadge

+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 Ja 16 '43 900w

Reviewed by A. H. Compton & others

Scientific Bk Club R 14:1 Ja '43 1300w

Springf'd Republican p7e F 21 '43 500w

"Mr. Lengyel has told his story well and has presented a most colorful picture of a land which has always seemed bleak and forlorn. It is an exceedingly human document." Wilfrid Fleisher

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ja 31 '43 1650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:28 F '43

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). Bayou Suzette; pictures by [the author]. 207p $2 Stokes

43-15172

Suzette was the ten-year-old in the large Durand family, living in the bayou country of Louisiana, the Jean Lafitte country. Vigorous little Suzette and her good-natured family live their quiet lives, hampered only by one mild feud, and help each other and even the little Indian girl Marteel, found and adopted by Suzette. For ages eight to twelve.

Booklist 40:99 N 15 '43

"Warm, human story. . . This book has the genuine feeling of the country and French-Bayou people. Lois Lenski's own pictures add atmosphere and charm to this outstanding book." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 N 15 '43 140w

Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:408 N '43 100w

"Authentic as to background, I found it fresh and fascinating in story and pictures. The rhythm of speech is uncommonly preserved. I think it the best book this artist has done." A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk 19:423 N '43 60w

"Constant use of dialect may interfere with book's popularity, but Bayou Suzette is a must for every children's room." K. H. McAlarney

+ Library J 68:963 N 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale

Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

"Bayou scenes, strange customs of living, the memories of Lafitte and his treasure, the Mardi Gras, are local color details of rare individuality." I. S.

+ N Y Times p26 N 14 '43 240w

"The legend of Jean Lafitte and many customs of the Bayou French are woven into this story of the Louisiana village people. Even the Bayou idiom is faithfully reproduced. . . This idiomatic language runs through the whole book. The characters are vividly drawn and the illustrations are delightful." B. W. Shaffer

+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 N 13 '43 230w

"Here is a book for children to amuse themselves with and at the same time to learn something about a corner of our country. The locale is the Barataria country in Louisiana, former haunt of Jean Lafitte, the pirate. That alone should recommend it to boys and girls." J. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p30 N 14 '43 300w

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). Davy's day; pictures by [the author]. [48p] 75c Oxford 43-17034

Picture book, with very simple text, describing the doings of one day in the life of a little boy named David.

Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 20w

"The book takes Davy through a whole day, in a fashion little children love. They can identify themselves with Davy in everything, from toothbrushing to the sandpile, especially since the eye-point is around table-top level, where a child's is." Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p20 N 28 '43 50w

LENT, HENRY BOLLES. Bombardier; Tom Dixon wins his wings with the bomber command; il. with official phot, U.S. army air forces. 171p $2 Macmillan

629.13 Aeronautics, Military—Juvenile literature 43-5579

"Mr. Lent lets you follow on the heels of Tom Dixon, a bombardier cadet, as he goes through the mill. At times he permits you to breathe down the neck of Cadet Dixon as he bends over his bombsight or his books. He gives you a seat alongside the budding bombardier as he takes to the air to learn 'by doing' the best way to deliver high explosives to the enemy. From the time Cadet Dixon enters the school as a 'pullet' (one who hasn't yet laid an egg) to the day he gets his wings and is ready for actual combat you see just what it takes to make an American bombardier." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by W. B. Furlong
Book Week p11 O 3 '43 90w

Booklist 39:356 My 1 '43

"This is the third book Mr. Lent has written about a flier's training, and in some respects it is the most absorbing." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:179 My '43 70w

"Told in Mr. Lent's usual clear, businesslike manner. Illustrated with official photographs; material checked by Army officials. Recommended because of immediate interest of subject matter. For boys ten and older." L. K. Johns
+ Library J 68:433 My 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by R. P. Graham
N Y Times p8 Ap 11 '43 300w

New Yorker 19:72 My 29 '43 20w

"An excellent fact-story and many accompanying official photographs, thrilling in character and reproduced with satisfactory clarity." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 My 2 '43 380w

Wis Lib Bul 39:87 Je '43

LEONARD, CHARLES L., pseud. See Heberden, M. V.

LEONARD, RICHARD ANTHONY. Stream of music. 454p il $4.50 Doubleday

927.8 Musicians 44-40014

Story of music, from Bach to Sibelius, told largely thru the medium of the famous composers. Those included are: Bach; Haydn; Mozart; Beethoven; Schubert; Berlioz; Chopin; Schumann; Wagner; Verdi; Brahms; Mussorgsky; Tchaikovsky; Debussy; Strauss; Stravinsky; and Sibelius. Bibliography. Index.

"This is a remarkable book—remarkable not for the fact that it discusses a number of composers and their works which often have been discussed before but because it reveals new sidelights upon them. Thus, writing about Beethoven, Leonard does not repeat ad nauseam the usual statements concerning the high-minded saintliness, the impeccable artistry of the master. He gives his readers Beethoven as he really was, and his works as they really are." Felix Borowski
+ Book Week p6 Ja 2 '44 360w

"His style is sometimes colloquial; he does not disdain the word 'inspirational,' nor apparently do his editors. His vice is a certain obviousness; his virtues are clarity of expression and arrangement and conciseness. The book, it is clear, is written for popular consumption; for the vast radio audience which Mr. Leonard, as a commentator, knows so well." Bruce Simonds
+ — Sat R of Lit 27:34 Ja 22 '44 500w

" 'The Stream of Music' is not in any sense a sensational book, but it is pleasant, urbane and intelligent. It is worth a place on any music-lover's library shelves." G. W. Johnson
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Ja 23 '44 550w

LEONARDO DA VINCI. Leonardo da Vinci; ed. by Ludwig Goldscheider. (Phaidon press art book) 152pl $4.50 Oxford [20s Allen, G]

759.5 Paintings, Italian. Drawings. Sculpture

"Dr. Goldscheider opens the new Phaidon monograph with [these] remarks. . . He says: 'The present work is not a book on Leonardo; it is rather a book by him. It contains large-scale reproductions of all of his paintings, together with some which are reasonably ascribed to him. It also reproduces some sculptures, thought to be by him. But the best part of the book concerns Leonardo's drawings, most of which are given in their original size.' For the customary biography there is substituted a translation of the 'Life' by Vasari, a few letters and documents are added, and these are followed by a useful list of significant dates, from the birth to the death of the master. There are, finally, some helpful notes on the plates." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by Leo Lerman
Atlantic 173:128 F '44 180w

Booklist 40:160 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by Christopher Lazare
N Y Times p9 D 19 '43 650w

Reviewed by Royal Cortissoz
Weekly Book Review p4 D 19 '43 350w

LERNER, MAX, ed. See Holmes, O. W. Mind and faith of Justice Holmes

LERRIGO, MARION OLIVE. Children can help themselves; the normal child's health behavior. 219p $2.25 Macmillan

649.1 Children—Care and hygiene 43-6558

"Narrative pictures of a typical boy's development from birth to adolescence." Cleveland Open Shelf

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

Wis Lib Bul 39:156 D '43

LESKOV, NIKOLAI SEMENOVICH. Steel flea; adapted from the Russian by Babette Deutsch [and] Avrahm Yarmolinsky; il. by Mstislav Dobujinsky. 64p $1.50 Harper
43-17239

Story of a marvelous steel flea made by English artisans for Czar Alexander of Russia. The flea was so small that it required a powerful microscope to see its antics, but it could be made to dance a quadrille. After the czar's death, his successor determined that Russian artisans could even outstrip the English. The suspense of the story is provided by the account of what the Russian gunsmiths of Toola did to the flea. For children eight to eleven.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p46 D 5 '43 230w

Booklist 40:167 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:34 Ja '44 70w

"Recommended for all libraries." H. M. Clark
+ Library J 69:73 Ja 15 '44 140w

"Not much plot, but it all comes out fresh and cheerful and funny in the adapters' crackling prose. Charming colored pictures."
+ New Yorker 19:126 D 4 '43 50w

"What we write about the Russians is inclined to be colored by a point of view, and we can be grateful to Babette Deutsch and Avrahm Yarmolinsky for translating this lifelike and natural whimsy, so much more revealing than any well-intentioned tale by an outsider. Apart from any consideration of its origin, it is a story to give boys, especially, some good chuckles and real enjoyment." Joan Vatsek
+ Sat R of Lit 26:34 D 11 '43 300w

"A five-year-old laughs constantly and so does the one who reads it to him. The colored pictures are robust, Russian and rollicking." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 14 '43 280w

LESLIE, ANN GEORGE. Dancing saints. 307p $2.50 Doubleday
43-51203

An idealistic youth, left by his mother to the Shakers when he was eight years old, is the central character. After his first rebellion Orville settled down in the Shaker community and did his share to avert the disaster which was facing the settlement, caused by diminishing membership. When the community came to an end Orville set out to study architecture—his duty to the guardians of his youth well done.

"The first few pages of this novel are hard going. Thereafter interest rises and a tale is told that is bound to command the reader's attention." Susannah Dabney
+ — Book Week p10 Ag 8 '43 600w
Booklist 39:446 Jl 1 '43

"Though rich in incident and authentic in background, it cannot be compared with The Free Man, as the style is awkward and the scholarship not completely assimilated. . . The point of view is sympathetic, and the book will be valuable as an authentic record of these sincere but misguided people." N. E. Monroe
+ — Cath World 158:109 O '43 180w

"Apart from writing a highly interesting novel, Miss Leslie has made a notable contribution to an important field in Americana." Rose Feld
+ N Y Times p7 Je 13 '43 500w

"Miss Leslie handles the personal stories of her characters well, but they are necessarily overshadowed by the unusually interesting picture of Shaker life which is the main theme of her book. Those who like early American architecture and furniture will enjoy her descriptions of Shaker buildings and workshops; those who seek spiritual values will find them in her accounts of the Shakers' religious customs and ideas; and those who ask only for a good story set against a fresh and original background will find one in this book. It is sensitively written, and, as a first novel, it shows real accomplishment rather than mere promise." P. V. Stern
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Jl 10 '43 500w

Reviewed by Edrie Van Dore
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 500w

"The settling and the content of 'Dancing Saints' make it an unusually interesting book. I do not know to what extent the author has drawn upon the record of an actual community and actual events; the narrative carries the conviction of authenticity. Merely as a story it is eminently readable, while many readers, further, will welcome the book for its extension of their understanding of a distinctive and little-known variety of American life." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Je 13 '43 850w
Wis Lib Bul 39:123 O '43

LESTER, KATHERINE MORRIS. Historic costume; il. by Ila McAfee and Helen Westermann. 3d ed rev & enl 256p $3.50 Manual arts
391 Costume 42-22769

"'A résumé of the characteristic types of costume from the most remote times to the present day.'—Subtitle. The first edition of this elementary survey of costume history was entered in [Book Review Digest, 1926]. It is now expanded by a chapter on American costume, 1920-1940." Booklist

Booklist 39:204 Ja 15 '43
Theatre Arts 27:260 Ap '43 50w
Wis Lib Bul 39:37 Mr '43

LESUEUR, LAURENCE EDWARD. Twelve months that changed the world. 345p $3 Knopf 940.542 World war, 1939—Russia. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-10653

Experiences of a CBS correspondent during a year in Russia, from October 1941 to October of 1942. Mr Lesueur had been in France as a radio commentator for the RAF during the first year of the war, and in London as assistant to Edward R. Murrow. He recounts vividly his journey to Russia via convoy from Scotland, his trials in getting to Kuibyshev and later to Moscow, and his difficulties with his broadcasts, but especially he describes the reactions and spirit of the Russian people.

"Since my tenure as executive director of the Russian War Relief campaign in Chicago last year, I have read avidly almost every book and pamphlet that has appeared on our big Russian cousins and the way they have fought their war against our common foe. In my opinion the very best of these books is Larry Lesueur's '12 Months That Changed the World.' I recommend it without reservation: for its general information, for its lack of bias and for the forthrightness with which the entire report is given." Louis Zara
+ Book Week p5 Ag 1 '43 700w
Booklist 40:9 S '43

"Written in the diary style of war book, popularized by William L. Shirer, the present book is intrinsically neither better nor worse than most of its predecessors. Like them, it contains much that is interesting, enlightening and entertaining. Like them, it skips along the surface of the Russian scene, devotes excessive space to reporting the author's private affairs." E. S.
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 16 '43 270w
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

"Larry Lesueur of C. B. S. has added a very interesting diary to the goodly number of correspondents' books about the Soviet Union. Lesueur's title leans on John Reed, the style and concept of the book are reminiscent of Bill Shirer's 'Berlin Diary,' the ground covered has been trodden into a fine dust by the feet of a score of Anglo-American newsmen, most of them authors of books, yet Lesueur's 345 pages of personal observations are well worth reading, not only for the student of contemporary Russia, but for the average intelligent American interested in going a little deeper into the subject than the daily press takes him." John Scott
+ Nation 157:244 Ag 28 '43 700w

"Lesueur experienced an exciting year in Russia, and what he tells of this critical year he tells well and often vividly. Had he probed more deeply, 'Twelve Months that Changed the World' would be something more than an entertaining addition to the volumes already published about wartime Russia." Walter Graebner
+ N Y Times p7 Jl 25 '43 1100w

"May well be the best book we've had so far about the people of the Soviet Union in the war. . . I can't quite tell you why Lesueur's book seems to me so much better than the others of the sort. . . For one thing, Lesueur isn't a personality boy, and he doesn't get amateurishly grandiloquent about the larger issues. More, his book is better written than most of the others and a lot more readable. The real point, though, I think, is that, like the English correspondent James Lansdale Hodson, he is a true diarist." Vincent McHugh
+ New Yorker 19:61 Jl 31 '43 250w

LESUEUR, L. E.—Continued

"Brisk and lively reading. Mr. Lesueur gives us the human equation of Russia's military strength. He shows us Soviet youth dancing, flirting, cheering their favorite ballerina—confident of Russian victory. He introduces us to ten-year-old patriots crippled for life in defense of their homeland, housewives building barricades and digging tank-traps, a woman pilot who led an all-male squadron of heavy night bombers. His story goes far to explain why 'Stalingrad was not a decisive battle for Russia, but a decisive battle for Germany.' This is an objective and honest book." H. C. Wolfe

+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 Jl 31 '43 700w

Reviewed by R. S. Scott
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 15 '43 1150w

"The author tells his story of the human things he saw against the background of war. 'Twelve Months that Changed the World' is a grand story of the Russian people." Walter Kerr

+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ag 8 '43 850w

Reviewed by Michael Karpovich
Yale R n s 33:355 winter '44 90w

LEVINE, ISAAC DON. Mitchell: pioneer of air power [Eng title: Flying crusader]. 420p il $3.50 Duell [15s Davies]

B or 92 Mitchell, William. Aeronautics, Military 43-51051

"Billy Mitchell has become almost a myth. He has, in fact, become a symbol in this war of those who protest against the concreted minds of those who say 'it can't do done.' He is known popularly for his bitter fight against the lack of appreciation among Army and Navy brass hats of the value of the airplane in war, and for his court-martial on charges of insubordination because he spoke out of turn for his favorite instrument of warfare—the airplane." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 39:291 Mr 15 '43

Bookmark 4:17 Mr '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:161 O '43 30w

Reviewed by Russell Owen
N Y Times p3 F 28 '43 1250w

"The book does a rather good job of displaying Mitchell's bold originality against the backdrop of his time, though it does tend to make the story too much a case of hero against the world. Well organized, with lots of new or forgotten material."

+ — New Yorker 19:66 F 27 '43 90w

"Scholarly, restrained, and altogether satisfying biography of Billy Mitchell." W. B. Huie

+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 Mr 6 '43 700w

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith
Spec 171:342 O 8 '43 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p448 S 18 '43 850w

"A full-length biography, well studied, expertly and agreeably written." Walter Millis

+ Weekly Book Review p3 F 28 '43 1700w

LEVINE, MAURICE. Psychotherapy in medical practice. 320p $3.50 Macmillan

615.851 Psychotherapy. Psychoanalysis. Psychology, Pathological 42-18449

"This book is designed to give the general practitioner a survey of essential points dealing with the relationship of psychiatry and mental hygiene to the field of medicine. Its chapters comprise: Common Misconceptions, Methods of Psychotherapy, Methods for the General Practitioner, Advanced Methods for the General Practitioner, Methods for the Specialist. Suicide Risks, The Study of Psychogenic Factors, The Choice of Cases, Sex and Marriage, Basic Attitudes Toward Children, The Problems of Parents and Children, and Normality and Maturity." Am J Pub Health

"The writer gives clearly his views and their practical application in a common sense and readable form which should be of value to the audience for which the book is written." E. L. Richards

+ Am J Pub Health 32:1297 N '42 180w

Reviewed by E. R. Groves
Social Forces 21:362 Mr '43 80w

Reviewed by T. M. French, M.D.
Survey 80:30 Ja '44 500w

LEVINTHAL, ISRAEL HERBERT. A new world is born; sermons and addresses. 305p $2.50 Funk

296 Sermons, Jewish 43-7771

A collection of sermons and addresses delivered over a period of years by the Rabbi of the Brooklyn Jewish center.

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

"Well written and thoughtful, these homilies are a contribution toward fashioning a new world which, according to the author, can be built and made to last for all time on the moral law alone." Alfred Werner

+ Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 4 '43 280w

LEVY, HAROLD P. Study in public relations. 165p $1 Russell Sage

361.6 Publicity. Charities—Pennsylvania 43-5517

"Case history of the relations maintained between a department of public assistance and the people of a state." (Subtitle) "The methods used by the Pennsylvania Department of public assistance in promoting its relations with the public will be suggestive for other agencies, both public and private." (Booklist)

"Perhaps the greatest service provided by this book, aside from its value as a factual report on the Pennsylvania program, is the emphasis that it places on the importance of public relations 'as a specific and definite function' for every large-scale social service enterprise. In convincing skeptics that even social service agencies can benefit from an aggressive public relations program, Mr. Levy's book makes a very real contribution, indeed." F. A. Calderone

+ Am J Pub Health 34:77 Ja '44 320w

"The volume makes a distinct contribution to the literature of public relations management. It should provide valuable insights relative to the public relations function to persons engaged in programs of public service and many suggestions of procedures that can be applied with proper modifications to meet specific needs of various agencies." Laverne Burchfield

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:748 Ag '43 330w

Ann Am Acad 230:241 N '43 450w

Booklist 39:363 My 15 '43

"Splendid monograph." R. H. Ewing

+ Social Forces 22:228 D '43 750w

Reviewed by Gertrude Springer
Survey 79:190 Je '43 450w

LEWIS, ALUN. Last inspection. 221p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Allen, G.]

43-9684

"Eighteen of the twenty-three stories in the volume are rooted in Lewis's war experiences. But they are not tales of military action or prowess; they are tales of soldiers and officers assigned to guarding the homeland, and only in rare instances are they called upon to meet the fire of the enemy. . . Several of the stories tell of the personal tragedies of men who have known the loss of wives, children and sweethearts." Weekly Book Review

"So far as the actual writing is concerned, Mr. Lewis is caught between two stools. As an intellectual observer he must write intellectually, but as a democrat and a good chap he is obsessed by the guilt of intellectual isolation. Unfortunately, good writing is doomed to be as undemocratic as the current level of appreciation. 'Jerry planes' are too thin a sugar for Mr. Lewis's pill, and I doubt whether his book will be widely read in the Forces." Philip Toynbee

New Statesman & Nation 25:192 Mr 20 '43 300w

"It is as snapshots of an inactive army that these stories must be judged. Mr. Lewis calls them studies of a 'hang-over' and, though there are flaws and weaknesses in many of them and though a few are so slight that they add little or nothing, the collection as a whole says very clearly what it wants to say: that waiting is a harder job than working or fighting." Wallace Stegner

+ — N Y Times p4 Je 20 '43 1000w

"Readers who enjoy out-of-the-ordinary books should make a point of reading Alun Lewis's first collection of short stories." John Hampson

+ Spec 170:204 F 26 '43 250w

Reviewed by R. J. Conklin

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 4 '43 690w

Times [London] Lit Sup p149 Mr 27 '43 270w

"Alun Lewis is a young Welsh infantry officer doing service on England's home front. To his book of short stories 'The Last Inspection' he brings the poetic perception and language inherited from his native heath and the sympathetic observation of a man interested in the nuances of human relationships under war conditions. His writing, though strongly individual, has a close kinship to the work of Katherine Mansfield. Like hers, it has a gleaming quality of intuitive understanding." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Je 20 '43 900w

LEWIS, ALUN. Raiders' dawn, and other poems. 93p $1.50 Macmillan [3s 6d Allen, G]

821 World war, 1939—Poetry [A42-3488]

"Alun Lewis himself stresses his debt to Edward Thomas, and the quietest side of his talent is at present the most effective. Whatever the mood of his verse one senses behind easy diction a patient and continual stocktaking. Routine, boredom, a hardening anguish, thoughts of death, relaxation, curdling passion, the midnight scream and the cool observation by day—these are the moods for which Mr. Lewis has been seeking focus. He shows a surprising pliability of forms, from the Edward Thomas landscape to the Eliot 'sonata.'" New Statesman & Nation

---

Manchester Guardian p3 My 13 '42 50w

Reviewed by S. E. Hyman

New Repub 108:355 Mr 15 '43 210w

"The distinctive features of Raider's Dawn seem to me the more casual love poems, the landscapes, the civilian and camp life, the advance in self-knowledge, and a gift, rather too smoothly employed, of sliding from one level to another. 'Two thirds,' says the author, 'of these poems have been written on active service.' How active? I wonder; for many of Mr. Lewis's pages give the impression of having been worked out at leisure. But he seems to possess one essential of the soldier-poet—the ability to go on writing through thick and thin." G. W. Stonier

New Statesman & Nation 23:210 Mr 28 '42 280w

"Of the younger poets Alun Lewis is outstanding. His poems are for the most part simple personal statements of day-to-day thoughts and hopes and questionings. They are not remarkable for great power or imagination, but they are often moving in their direction and sincerity, and the verse has a delightful musical, singing quality." Sheila Shannon

+ Spec 168:446 My 8 '42 210w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 29 '43 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p142 Mr 21 '42 600w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Drew

Weekly Book Review p13 Jl 4 '43 500w

LEWIS, CHARLES LEE. David Glasgow Farragut; 2v; v2 Our first admiral. 513p il $4.50 U.S. naval inst.

B or 92 Farragut, David Glasgow (41-10196)

Second and concluding volume of the author's biography of a famous American seaman. This volume traces Farragut's career thru the Civil war and the years following to his death. For volume one see Book Review Digest, 1941.

"Professor Charles Lee Lewis's volume has more than fulfilled the expectations aroused by the first volume." Albert Mordell

+ N Y Times p17 Je 20 '43 320w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 27 '43 1250w

LEWIS, CLIVE STAPLES (CLIVE HAMILTON, pseud). Case for Christianity [Eng title: Broadcast talks]. 56p $1 Macmillan [2s 6d Bles]

230 Christianity [43-5304]

"Two series of radio talks are presented which converge to the same conclusion by different approaches. The first argues from the general sense of right and wrong to the existence of a moral law which is more than social habit or the rationalization of self-interest. The second shows the impossibility of atheism as an explanation of the world and man, finds belief in an evil power just as necessary as belief in God, and gives a simple and non-technical statement of orthodox Christian beliefs. The author capitalizes his status as a layman and is at particular pains to avoid theological lingo and to stress the note of plain common sense." Christian Century

---

"If this is not the book that, in every detail, a Catholic would have written, it says very many things that desperately need to be said. Armies of men are groping their way back to the religion of Christ; this book will facilitate greatly that sacred journey." John McGinn

+ Cath World 158:215 N '43 450w

Christian Century 60:1105 S 29 '43 100w

"'The Case for Christianity' is a book which could profitably be used in any Christian Doctrine course. There is nothing quite like it already in existence, and the freshness of its point of view, its sparkling clarity, the fact that it is written by a man who only a few years ago had no religious beliefs—all these things conspire to make it peculiarly effective with students of college or even high school age. . . The only reservation which must be made in connection with it is to point out that it suffers from the fault of its virtues. It is not only very British, it is very Oxford, and there is a certain cock-sureness in its tone. Hence it seems brittle, and is likely to be more useful as a stimulant than as a promoter of meditation. But a stimulant it certainly is."

+ — Commonweal 39:17 O 22 '43 650w

"For serious reader." R. J. Hurley

Library J 68:622 Ag '43 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p460 S 19 '42 210w

Reviewed by J. H. Holmes

Weekly Book Review p42 N 14 '43 300w

LEWIS, CLIVE STAPLES (CLIVE HAMILTON, pseud). Out of the silent planet. 174p $2 Macmillan [7s 6d Lane]

[A43-2968]

"A philologist, kidnapped by a physicist and a promoter, is taken via space-ship from England to Malacandra (Mars). There he escapes and goes on the run. Philological, philosophical, social, and religious overtones, plus human-interest detail on the Malacandrians, make this a credible and stimulating tour de force." (Library J) The book was first published in England in 1938.

"Even while you are enjoying these adventures of Dr. Ransom, you will reflect that the author himself is escaping—from the onerous necessity of checking his material against known facts—from the hard work of conceiving living characters." J. N. North

LEWIS, C. S.—Continued
+ — Book Week p9 S 19 '43 270w
Booklist 40:198 F 1 '44

Reviewed by N. E. Monroe
Cath World 158:314 D '43 140w

"Lewis's interest is not as much in science or economics as was Mr. Wells's in his famous fantasies. His concern is spiritual and philosophic; there is just enough ethics and not too much; just enough story and not too much. He has moved onto one of the most honored and exclusive shelves of literary achievement, and done it with equal humor and wisdom." Christopher Morley
+ Commonweal 39:45 O 29 '43 250w

"Carefully written with none of the wearying pseudo-scientific explanations usual in fantastics, this is good reading for juvenile adults, better reading for adult juveniles." E. L. Lewis
+ Library J 68:668 S 1 '43 110w

"A well-written novel about a journey to Mars. But unhappily I have no taste for fiction about life anywhere except on earth, and was therefore unable to finish a book which had been recommended to me as distinguished by several friends whose judgment is otherwise unquestionable." Diana Trilling
Nation 157:507 O 30 '43 60w

"The author's Miltonic love of light gives his descriptions of space real splendor. His narrative flows easily. If the story lacks humor, most Utopias do; if it lacks Swiftian irony, it has its compelling moments when the reader loses himself in the make-believe, identifies himself with the hero." Horace Reynolds
+ — N Y Times p16 O 3 '43 650w

"A journey-to-Mars fantasy that is almost as good as the early H. G. Wells. The writing is miles above the usual 'scientifiction' level."
+ New Yorker 19:87 O 2 '43 30w

"This is not Mr. Lewis's most distinguished book, but it is delightful; and its author, Fellow and Tutor of Magdalen, is, beyond question, a most distinguished writer." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 26:52 O 16 '43 800w

"The reader will find 'Out of the Silent Planet' an extraordinarily fascinating and provocative volume. The author of 'The Screwtape Letters' has again produced a work which is quite away from the beaten track, and genuinely worth while, whether or not one accepts (as many will) the author's personal position and attitude of mind. Materialism and science have found in C. S. Lewis an opponent who carries a flaming sword." R. J. Conklin
+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 31 '43 500w
Time 42:100 O 11 '43 600w

"There are intelligent discussions of space and time, together with descriptions of the Martian scene in terms of modern astronomical knowledge. And everywhere there are unusual descriptions and insights and a pungent style which lifts the tale above the thriller class. It is written on several levels. It is excellent escape fiction as well as examination and criticism of modern life." Charles Neider
+ Weekly Book Review p12 O 3 '43 550w

LEWIS, CLIVE STAPLES (CLIVE HAMILTON, pseud). Preface to Paradise lost; being the Ballard Matthews lectures, delivered at University college, North Wales, 1941, rev. and enlarged. 139p $2.25 (7s 6d) Oxford

821 Milton, John—Paradise lost 43-1806

"This book is called a Preface because its main purpose is to remove those obstacles to the enjoyment of Paradise Lost which have recently been accumulating. It is therefore much concerned with preliminaries—with the possibility of criticism, the nature of epic, the theology and pneumatology of the poem, and, above all, the Hierarchical Principle. As regards the content of Paradise Lost, the author has found it his chief duty to encourage simplicity and restore the belief that Milton may, after all, have hated what he displays as hateful. The defence of its form resolves itself into a plea that ritual, and splendour, and joy itself have a right to exist." (Publisher's note) Index.

"One cannot understand Paradise Lost by just reading Paradise Lost, and then cogitating deeply. Milton is one link—a very splendid link—in a very long chain. Many more points could be discussed; it is a great feat that Mr. Lewis causes them to arise, and often suggests a solution. Many more books will be written about Milton, and Mr. Lewis's book is also a brilliant link in a long chain which is a credit to English thought." Denis Saurat
+ — New Statesman & Nation 24:325 N 14 '42 800w

"His emphasis on tradition leads Mr. Lewis to a preliminary consideration of epic poetry in general, which is both fresh and sound. But his most valiant service is to protect us against the many students of Milton who have not been able to see the woods for the trees." Edward Wagenknecht
+ N Y Times p10 My 23 '43 160w

Reviewed by Jackson Knight
Spec 169:460 N 13 '42 700w
Times [London] Lit Sup p582 N 28 '42 2200w

LEWIS, CLIVE STAPLES (CLIVE HAMILTON, pseud). The problem of pain. 148p $1.50 Macmillan [3s 6d Bles]

216 Pain. Good and evil. Providence and government of God A43-916

"Suffering presents itself to [the author] under two aspects. First, there is its impact on the victim. Does the unhappy man necessarily writhe in his agony or does the state of his mind depend upon what he desires? Second, there is the problem of pain in the scheme of things. Can one conclude that because the physical or mental torture of human beings is a fact, the government of the universe is a sinister rule, having its awful sport with the children of men? There is no use arguing, contends Mr. Lewis, against things as they are. All that can be done is to create within ourselves a keener awareness of reality. . . The universe may not be evil because the Ruler of it believes in discipline. One cannot, to be sure, reason that the assumption of discipline builds a strong case for Theism. That case is based upon a confluence of religious awe and the sense of moral obligation with history. Yet discipline is a factor in all three, and a very important one." Weekly Book Review

---

"Now that American readers have become accustomed to Mr. Lewis' somewhat unusual style and his penchant for twisting old doctrines into new and somewhat startling shapes, they may be more inclined to judge his latest volume on its thought content rather than on the form into which it is cast. Viewed thus, it appears to have considerable merit, but not to be altogether satisfying. . . Admittedly the problem of suffering is the most difficult problem which confronts the intellect, a problem for which no wholly satisfying solution may ever be worked out on the human level where we see always through a glass darkly. In this volume, Mr. Lewis has undoubtedly thrown some light upon it. But one cannot help thinking that he might have illuminated it still more had he had a higher opinion of man." T. C. Johnson
+ — Christian Century 60:1400 D 1 '43 700w

"Mr. Lewis, author of 'The Screwtape Letters,' is no doubt the ablest contemporary to follow where Von Hugel led. But though his exposition of the Christian position has some of the great Baron's depth and originality, it is far easier to follow. Indeed he may almost be found to have made the discussion of pain a pleasant undertaking. . . The average man will find this book, and its allegorical complement, decidedly able to come to grips with distressing facts. There is a chapter on animal pain which many will wish to read even in this era of ghastly suffering. It not only makes uncommon good sense, but it is great writing. Perhaps Mr. Lewis succeeds better with straight argument than he does with parable." G. N. Shuster
+ Weekly Book Review p6 D 26 '43 550w

LEWIS, CLIVE STAPLES (CLIVE HAMILTON, pseud). Screwtape letters. 160p $1.50 Macmillan [5s Bles]

244 Christian life. Satire [43-5892]

"As a literary device, the author impersonates a shrewd old devil in hell who writes letters of instruction, encouragement and, finally, bitter reproach, to a less experienced imp who is going to and fro upon the earth seeking whom he may devour. The hunting seems good at first, what with the agonies and moral confusion incident to war, but at last things take a desperate turn for the worse (from his point of view) and faith and virtue win. The serious purpose is to reveal, by picturing them as diabolical devices, the tricks and fallacies by which doubt and temptation make their appeal to the unwary, so that the tempted may be warned and be wary." Christian Century

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 172:128 S '43 60w

"Entertaining, witty, illuminating."
+ Cath World 107:110 Ap '43 250w

Christian Century 60:363 Mr 24 '43 100w

"In most of this, though his comments on marriage seem inadequate, the author exhibits a remarkable knowledge of human nature."
+ Commonweal 37:498 Mr 5 '43 650w

"While Mr Lewis, like the rest of us, is distinctly anthropomorphic in his demonology, he throws off that tendency the moment he turns his face in the opposite, the theological, direction. . . At the same time it strikes us as a little unfortunate that the literary form of the book requires Mr Lewis to put these wise sayings in the mouth of so finished a scoundrel as Screwtape. At this point, perhaps, the reader will detect a little wobbling in the literary art of the book. . . With this possible exception Mr Lewis has been singularly successful in maintaining the diabolical point of view. The inversion is well kept up, though it must have cost our author an effort to stand so long on his head and to make himself the mouthpiece of a mentality so alien to his own." L. P. Jacks
+ Hibbert J 40:395 Jl '42 1900w

"The dangers of such a plan are obvious. In a book of any length satire easily topples over into farce and any levity in the treatment of such a subject would be fatal. Mr. Lewis never fails. The book is sparkling yet truly reverent, in fact a perfect joy, and should become a classic."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 24 '42 100w

Reviewed by C. E. M. Joad
New Statesman & Nation 23:324 My 16 '42 850w

"'The devil,' said Thomas More, 'cannot endure to be mocked,' and which, if correct, means that somewhere in the inferno there must be considerable annoyance." P. W. Wilson
+ N Y Times p3 Mr 28 '43 600w

"Whatever you may think of the theses of Mr. Lewis, presented as they are in a bizarre and slantindicular manner, the fact remains that there is a spectacular and satisfactory nova in the bleak sky of satire." Leonard Bacon
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 Ap 17 '43 950w

"A witty and profound book." W. J. Turner
+ Spec 168:186 F 20 '42 700w

Reviewed by C. D. Kean
Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 750w

"On the whole the book is brilliantly successful. A reviewer's task is not to be a prophet, and time alone can show whether it is or is not an enduring piece of satirical writing. In any case that is a minor matter. It is much more to the point that in so readable a fashion Mr. Lewis has contrived to say much that a distracted world greatly requires to hear."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p100 F 28 '42 700w

LEWIS, EILUNED. Captain's wife. 196p $2 (7s 6d) Macmillan

"The story covers a couple of years in the life of Lettice Peters and her family in a small Welsh cathedral town in the 1880's. But though the time and place are precise, and it is clear that there is an element of autobiography in it—the child Matty is the author herself—the stuff of the story is timeless, telling of common human destiny in all ages and places." Weekly Book Review

Booklist 40:80 N 1 '43

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 26 '43 90w

"The author tells us that the people and scenes in her book are a mixture of fact and and fancy; and expresses indebtedness to her mother for much of the material. This may account for the curious flatness of her narrative, which seems to have been treated with too much respect and too little imagination. . . The book is mainly a chronicle of minor happenings, and the few great events lack a proper dramatic focus. The beautiful district of 'St. Idris' is described with care and affection, and for many readers this may well prove the most attractive part of the book." John Hampson
Spec 170:300 Mr 26 '43 260w

Times [London] Lit Sup p129 Mr 13 '43 500w

"This book is simple, beautiful and wise." Elizabeth Drew
+ Weekly Book Review p3 O 24 '43 700w

LEWIS, ETHEL. Decorating the home. 574p il $5.50; text ed $4 Macmillan

747 House decoration. Furniture 43-506

A textbook useful for the home maker who is interested in dealing intelligently with professional decorators or desires to do her own decorating on a firm basis of knowledge and taste. Partial contents: Art elements; Design composition; Houses: architectural styles; Color charts and harmonies; Walls and wall coverings; Floors and floor coverings; Textiles; Window treatments; Furniture styles; Specialized furniture and slip covers; Pictures as decoration; Lamps and shades and other accessories; Dining-table details; Flower arrangement. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:351 My 1 '43
Bookmark 4:9 Mr '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '43

Reviewed by V. H. Weaver
J Home Econ 35:304 My '43 150w

"Some of the photographs are of interiors done by celebrated American decorators, and in general the book is concerned rather with lasting beauty than with efforts to attain it cheaply. But this does not put the book into the luxury class: it may not be set actually to work at once, but the advice it gives and the principles on which this is based will work for a long time to come."
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 14 '43 350w

LEWIS, JANET (MRS YVOR WINTERS). Against a darkening sky. 301p $2.50 Doubleday

43-2263

A portrait of an American mother and the influence she wielded in the lives of her four growing children. The heroine, Mary Perrault, Scottish by birth, had come to America in her girlhood, married a Swiss immigrant gardener, and lived and worked with him in a small community near San Francisco. The time of the novel is the middle 1930s.

Booklist 39:275 Mr 1 '43

"There is a curious realism about it all, a 'like-life' lack of pattern to the book. . . The end does not tie up any loose strands, or lead up to any given dramatic point. It is rather like a full, quiet stream that flows along, taking its own course and its own time as it goes." Rosemary Benet

LEWIS, JANET—Continued
+ Books p4 Ja 24 '43 700w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:320 F 27 '43 20w

"'Against a Darkening Sky' has the quality of a moving tone poem, with the conflict expressed through the exploration of a woman's heart and mind. The writing has the same high quality of serenity as the splendid woman it portrays." Rose Feld
+ N Y Times p32 Ja 24 '43 800w

"Miss Lewis is not a very skillful story-teller, and her rather static narrative tends to go to pieces at the end in a jumble of plot. Nevertheless, this tale of Mary Perrault and her influence over her children and neighbors has a certain sweetness, a moderateness of tone not easily found in current fiction. Miss Lewis will make some readers think of the Willa Cather who wrote 'My Antonia' and 'A Lost Lady.'" Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 18:57 Ja 23 '43 220w

LEWIS, MRS KATE (PORTER). Alabama folk plays; ed. with an introd. by Frederick H. Koch. (Carolina playmakers ser) 152p il $2.50 Univ. of N.C. press
812 43-7997

Five plays two dealing with white characters, three with Negro characters. Contents: The scarlet petticoat; Three links o' chain; Watermelon time; Party dress; The ivory shawl.

"As you pass from one group to the other, you move from rich sunlight into a desiccated gloom, the kind of gloom that pervades folk plays about farmers from Maine to California. Not having firsthand knowledge of 'the folk,' I am not in a position to assert that either the poetical quality of the Negro or the depressing meanness of the white are overdone, but I suspect that the folk drama is bordering dangerously on 'type.'" Maurice Gnesin
Book Week p7 My 23 '43 270w

"Recommended."
+ Library J 68:727 S 15 '43 40w

"In these five plays Kate Porter Lewis displays a penetrating knowledge of both the Negroes and poor whites in her native state. She portrays them with a sympathy that reflects her familiarity with and understanding of her subjects. These plays were produced in the Playmakers theater at Chapel Hill and it is a certainty that Mrs Lewis's characters come to life on the stage." H. L.
+ Springf'd Republican p8 Je 9 '43 330w

"While [these plays] follow a now familiar pattern the author handles it with more feeling and more maturity than is usual with student dramatists." W. P. Eaton
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Jl 18 '43 80w

LEWIS, LANGE. Juliet dies twice. 314p $2 Bobbs
43-2514

Detective story.

Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43

"The chapters of this book are headed by quotations, some from Shakespeare and some from Freud, appropriate enough to a story which is a judicious blending of drama and psychology."
+ N Y Times p11 F 21 '43 140w

"Loud applause."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 F 20 '43 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 F 21 '43 230w

LEWIS, LANGE. Meat for murder. 292p $2 Bobbs
43-14771

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p16 N 7 '43 120w

"Plenty of fantastic local color, raft of exotic characters, believable sleuth, and speedy doings all the way."
Sat R of Lit 26:29 N 6 '43 40w

"The detecting in 'Meat for Murder' is more trial and error than pure deduction, and everything is so involved the solution seems a bit strained. More is expected of Miss Lewis, but even at that 'Meat for Murder' is good for an evening's entertainment." L. S. M.
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e O 17 '43 220w

"Maybe we didn't pay enough attention to Lange Lewis's earlier works, 'Murder Among Friends' and 'Juliet Dies Twice,' or else this author has improved by leaps and bounds. 'Meat for Murder' struck us as a Grade A exercise in a peculiar and superior form of wackiness (though the heart of the story is serious enough), written like a streak." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p32 N 21 '43 400w

LEWIS, SINCLAIR. Gideon Planish. 438p $2.50 Random house
43-51122

"Story of oratorical charlatan, with dreams of swaying the masses, who marries an extravagant girl, who intends to gain success at any cost; of their 'friends,' who are mostly means toward that deceptive goal; and the power of words. Gideon becomes many things —professor, dean, lecturer, editor, 'organizator'—through ambition and financial necessity, his wife ever pressing both inducements." Library J

"Again Mr. Lewis exposes a racket—this time the racket of organized philanthropy. If the exposure is less exciting than it ought to be, the blame may lie with a world which has moved faster than Mr. Lewis."
Atlantic 171:127 My '43 120w

Reviewed by Nelson Algren
Book Week p2 Ap 25 '43 650w

Booklist 39:354 My 1 '43

Canadian Forum 23:94 Jl '43 500w

— Cath World 157:447 Jl '43 270w

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 19 '43 270w

Cleveland Open Shelf p8 Ap '43

"Sinclair Lewis's first novel in three years is a disappointment. It follows, very obviously, in the 'Elmer Gantry' and 'Babbitt' tradition; it is satire pure and undiluted. Yet satire, to be effective, must bear some sort of relation to truth, to a generally true weakness in human character, general enough to warrant a reader's saying, 'Oh, I know that fellow—I've met him time and again.' This is precisely what 'Gideon Planish' does not do. You have not met him, or if you have, you have met him very infrequently indeed—so infrequently that he is not fit subject for satire. And when this happens, satire turns into a sort of sour fairy story, amusing for its enormities and whimsicalities and skillful writing, but no more."
— Commonweal 38:77 My 7 '43 650w

"Excellent satire, humorous and pungent, though top-heavy panorama of grasping characters is too selective to be entirely reasonable. Should be best seller." H. G. Kelley
+ Library J 68:248 Mr 15 '43 90w

"This is, for a social satirist of Mr. Lewis's habit, a comparatively mellow book, sometimes monotonously one racket after another, often very funny and probably funnier for an English than for an American reader." Harold Brighouse
+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 29 '43 200w

"While I have never been of the majority that considers Sinclair Lewis, even the Sinclair Lewis of 'Main Street' and 'Babbitt,' a great novelist, I feel sad to have to report of 'Gideon Planish' that I found it unimportant, sloppy, and even dull. There is something personally endearing about Mr. Lewis as a writer that checks a completely objective estimate of his recent work—a sweetness of temper, perhaps, that comes through everything he writes, or his boyish idealism of which he is so boyishly ashamed. Or perhaps it is merely because his fictional creations seem so clearly to be aspects of his own many-faceted personality that one feels that to turn and attack him is to take unfair advantage of what he has been naive enough to tell us about himself." Diana Trilling

— + Nation 156:675 My 8 '43 800w

"Occasionally Lewis' hatred of the phony, the cheap and the vicious achieves a passionate dignity, but for the most part the characters are such straw-men, their speech so exaggerated (frequently the idiom and slang are ten years out of date) and the action such a travesty of our recent national experience as to be meaningless as social analysis. . . 'Gideon Planish' is strictly off the cuff. It is enough to make H. L. Mencken turn over in his literary grave." George Mayberry

— + New Repub 108:570 Ap 26 '43 700w

Reviewed by Philip Toynbee

New Statesman & Nation 26:372 D 4 '43 60w

"If 'Gideon Planish' is devoid of heroes, or even of likable people, so much the worse; the same indignation glows on every page, the same relentless probing of the old, established gods. Long before it became the fashion, Sinclair Lewis was demolishing the half-truths in our credo with all his wit and strength. . . Now that his long flirtation with Thespis is over, it is a pleasure to applaud his return to the ring—to report that he is back in fighting trim, and swinging from the floor." William DuBois

+ N Y Times p1 Ap 18 '43 1250w

"Sinclair Lewis's 'Gideon Planish' is by far his most effective book since 'It Can't Happen Here,' and in the simultaneously attractive and repulsive figure of Peony Planish he has drawn, I think, his best female character since the unforgettable Leora of 'Arrowsmith.' The story's vigor, invention, and atmosphere of keep-things-moving are the qualities of a fiery young man rather than of the mellow and diaconal fellow certain people may assume Mr. Lewis to be. In other words, though no 'Arrowsmith,' no 'Babbitt,' no 'Dodsworth,' 'Gideon Planish' is a hell of a readable book." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 19:76 Ap 24 '43 700w

" 'Gideon Planish' has a few golden moments, but it is second-rate Lewis and it is out of date." H. M. Jones

— + Sat R of Lit 26:6 Ap 24 '43 1150w

Reviewed by Kate O'Brien

Spec 171:416 O 29 '43 440w

Time 41:98 Ap 19 '43 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p509 O 23 '43 850w

" 'Gideon Planish' probably belongs somewhere between 'Elmer Gantry' and 'Arrowsmith.' More important is the fact that it is a thoroughly enjoyable work and an excellent catharsis, devilishly devised to deflate stuffed shirts." William Soskin

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ap 18 '43 1400w

Wis Lib Bul 39:86 Je '43

LEWIS, WILFRED BENNETT. Electrical counting; with special reference to counting alpha and beta particles. 144p il $2.50 Macmillan [10s 6d Cambridge]

537.53 Ions. Electric discharges [A42-5308]

"Technical work for those engaged in research in the fields of nuclear physics and valve circuits. Much of the data originated in the Cavendish Laboratory." N Y New Tech Bks

---

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:8 Ja '43

"This small volume which deals with the laboratory technique for the counting of ionizing particles will prove invaluable to the nuclear physicist. There is high praise and almost no fault to find with the choice of material or method of presentation." J. C. Street

+ R of Scientific Instruments 14:98 Ap '43 270w

LEYSON, BURR WATKINS. Army engineers in review. 202p il $2.50 Dutton

358.2 U.S.—Army—Corps of engineers. Military engineering 43-2275

A detailed description of the work of the Corps of Engineers. Each major phase of the Corps' activities is given separate treatment. Contents: Pontons—bridges in a hurry! The demolition work of the engineer; The engineers as constructors; The engineers as railroaders and road builders; The engineers as map makers; Camouflage—the art of concealment; The waterways experiment station; Belvoir—the engineer school; The history of the Corps of engineers; Units, organization, training, and combat. Index.

Book Week p10 My 2 '43 70w

Booklist 39:286 Mr 15 '43

"Older engineers, especially those familiar only with the duties of the Corps of Engineers in peacetime, will find the book worthwhile reading despite the fact that the author writes in a style designed to meet the needs of younger readers."

+ Eng N 130:128 Mr 11 '43 160w

"For older boys who want to know about the Engineers Corps in wartime, Captain Leyson has written an illuminating book on its history and types of service. The account is instructive and stimulating and the excellent photographs help greatly to a realization of the various phases of an engineer's work for the Army." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:106 Mr '43 70w

Reviewed by Eileen Riols

Library J 68:251 Mr 15 '43 90w

" 'With the Army Engineers' is recommended to young men who wish to serve with the service, and to all those who seek knowledge of the work of these trained men in time of war and peace."

+ Springf'd Republican p8 My 11 '43 200w

LEYSON, BURR WATKINS. Fighting fire; with a foreword by John J. McElligott. new wartime ed 254p il $2.50 Dutton

614.84 New York (city). Fire department. Fire extinction. Firemen 43-11834

"Includes new photographs and two new chapters—The auxiliary fireman, and Incendiary and explosive bombs." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest, 1939.

Booklist 40:64 O 15 '43

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 68:770 O 1 '43 30w

LEYSON, BURR WATKINS. The warplane and how it works. 224p il $2.50 Dutton

623.746 Airplanes, Military 43-10774

Nontechnical description of the latest type of war plane, including diagrams and pictures. Contents: Machine guns; Synchronization; From shotguns to cannon; Power turrets; Sound and fury; War gases; Plane performance; How it flies; The engine; The supercharger; Gyro instruments; The ultimate speed of the warplane. Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky

Book Week p2 Ag 15 '43 50w

Booklist 40:41 O 1 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:328 S '43 50w

Library J 68:575 Jl '43 40w

"Most readable and, as it contains diagrams, glossary, and index, valuable for reference. Will appeal strongly to high school boys." Eileen Riols

+ Library J 68:673 S 1 '43 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:40 Jl '43

Reviewed by D. W. Dresden

N Y Times p10 Ag 29 '43 200w

"Though limited in its scope, leads the aviation enthusiast or student very well indeed toward his goal." J. I. G.

+ Sat R of Lit 26:33 Ag 21 '43 30w

Wis Lib Bul 39:142 N '43

L'HOMMEDIEU, MRS DOROTHY KEASBEY. Nipper, the little bull pup; il. by Marguerite Kirmse. 59p $1.75 Lippincott
43-16215

Picture-story book about a jolly little bull pup who could not abide snow, and what he did about it. For children of four to eight.

Booklist 40:117 D 1 '43

"The simple text and good illustrations combine to make a good book for a library that has need of additional dog stories for young readers." Olive Brain
+ Library J 68:1008 D 1 '43 40w

"There is humor in the determined fashion in which Nipper tackled life, and his firmness, not to say obstinacy, in sticking to his purpose is characteristic of the breed." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p6 N 14 '43 160w

"One of the season's most attractive books for very young readers." M. L. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p7 N 14 '43 300w

LI, KUO-CHI'IN, and WANG, CH'UNG-YU. Tungsten; its history, geology, ore-dressing, metallurgy, chemistry, analysis, applications and economics. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser) 325p il maps $7 Reinhold
669.7 Tungsten 43-16751

"Geology, processing and use of tungsten. Occurrence, composition and preparation of tungsten ores of the world. Uses of tungsten in high speed steels, ferrous and non-ferrous alloys, wires, dies, etc., as well as metallurgy, chemistry and economic position of this strategic material. Maps and illustrations." Library J

"The authors of this book are to be very highly praised for this most excellent and useful volume. . . The coverage of the subject is such that this book should be of value to anyone interested in tungsten, regardless of the particular phase of his interest." C. W. Balke
+ Chem & Eng N 21:2139 D 25 '43 220w
Chem & Met Eng 51:191 Ja '44 220w
Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 50w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p14 F 6 '44 100w

LICHTENSTEIN, PERRY MAURICE, and SMALL, SAUL MOUCHLY. Handbook of psychiatry. 330p $3.50 Norton
616.8 Psychology, Pathological 43-11086

Handbook on mental illnesses, their causes, treatment and care. Doctor Lichtenstein is in charge of psychiatry and legal medicine for the district attorney, county of New York, and Dr Small is psychiatrist and assistant medical director at the National hospital for speech disorders. Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"The book is up-to-date and very useful." H. W. Dunham
+ Am Soc R 8:734 D '43 350w
Booklist 40:5 S '43

"Most previous works of this kind have been written either at a higher level or have frankly been intended for a more specialized audience than the general reader. The authors, in writing this work, have had a wider audience in mind, from general practitioner, and nurse, the personnel of hospitals, including those of the Army and Navy, to civilian defense workers, social workers and the layman. In short, they have written a work designed to be of practical use to all who are or may be brought into contact with mentally disturbed persons. It need hardly be said that the publication of such a book at this time constitutes a valuable contribution to the war effort." M. F. A. M.
+ N Y Times p17 Ag 8 '43 400w

"Well organized and not too technical for the layman."
+ New Yorker 19:67 Ag 28 '43 50w

"This book has the advantage of the usual handbook in that it covers the field of mental illness thoroughly, but it is more readable than most books of this type. It is up to date, covers all the usual textbook material including chapters on war neurosis and psychosomatic illness. There is useful material on examinations of the patient and examples of tests which may be used." A. L. Brush, M.D.
+ Survey 79:318 N '43 250w

LIEBER, RICHARD. America's natural wealth; a story of the use and abuse of our resources. 245p il $2.50 Harper
333 Natural resources. U.S.—Economic conditions 42-50713

"My aim is to set forth the nature of our material wealth in its bearing upon national security and prosperity, civic and political betterment and finally upon individual happiness, success and spiritual elevation. . . My intent is to attract the interest and to arouse the fighting spirit of intelligent laymen and laywomen on behalf of the great cause of national conservation." (Pref) The author is a consultant and member of the advisory board of the United States National park service. Index.

Booklist 39:312 Ap 1 '43

"This is not a long and weighty work; it is brief; and in the best sense of the word it is complete. Colonel Lieber presents the matured view of a completely civilized man who looks upon the natural wealth of our country, including its people, as a living whole. . . I am as strong for the agricultural agencies of conservation as Lieber, a parks man, is for the agencies of the Department of the Interior; nevertheless, his sane and temperate argument for what Morris L. Cooke calls 'total conservation' will, and must, lead all us conservationists to examine more scrupulously our separate small fetishes; and it is about time." Russell Lord
+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 Mr 6 '43 550w
Wis Lib Bul 39:38 Mr '43

LIEBESNY, HERBERT J. The government of French North Africa. (African handbooks) 130p pa $1.50 Univ. of Pa. press [pa 9s 6d Oxford]
354.61 Africa, French North 43-16502

"The African Section of the University Museum of the University of Pennsylvania has undertaken, in collaboration with the Committee on African Studies of that institution, the publication of a series of booklets known as the 'African Handbooks.' The first item in this series to appear is Herbert J. Liebesny's The Government of French North Africa. . . After a brief introduction dealing with the ethnic constituency of French North Africa, the author examines the legal basis for the administration set up by France in that region. Then follow chapters describing in some detail the origins, development, and current (pre-war) status of the administrative machinery in Morocco, Tunisia, and Algeria." Am Pol Sci R

Am J Soc 49:197 S '43 10w

"The principal criticism which might be made of this highly useful little monograph is that it is more concerned with the morphology than the physiology—and pathology—of government. The relevant legislation, administrative and judicial codes, and decrees are explored and analyzed. But one is sometimes left wondering —how do all these actually work out in practice?" R. G. Woolbert
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:960 O '43 300w

Reviewed by R. S. Thomson
Ann Am Acad 230:211 N '43 450w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:166 O '43 30w

LIGER-BELAIR, EDGARD. Gigi and Gogo; il. by Luiz Sá. 15,15p $1 Reynal
43-16439

Gigi was a giraffe and Gogo was the small Negro boy who was her master. In this little book of colored pictures with text in four languages the author and artist show what Gogo finally did to overcome the handicap of Gigi's very long neck.

"No age limit on this. If you know any grownups who are studying Spanish or Portuguese it would be good fun to send them a copy of 'Gigi and Gogo.'" P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p45 D 5 '43 140w

"The very expressive features of all the characters involved in the story, including the sun in the sky, make a gay, humorous book that beginners in any language can thoroughly enjoy. Recommended." J. E. Wooster
+ Library J 69:33 Ja 1 '44 100w

"The book was first published in Brazil where Charley's Aunt did not come from: it may or may not teach small Americans to speak in four languages, but I'll be surprised if they don't take a chance on these new words and make a small sensation with them among their friends." M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p7 N 14 '43 280w

LILJEGREN, C. O. Naval architecture as art and science. 212p il $4 Cornell maritime 623.8 Naval architecture 43-7972

Technical treatise on ship drafting and design for advanced students. Charts; technical data in appendixes. List of references. Index.

Booklist 40:6 S '43
Library J 68:575 Jl '43 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:51 Jl '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p25 Ja 23 '44 250w

LIMPUS, LOWELL M. How the army fights. 388p maps $3 Appleton-Century
355.4 Military art and science. U.S.—Army 43-12002

A rather technical exposition of modern warfare. Partial contents: The changing tempo of modern war; Composition of modern armies; Commandos, combat teams, and task forces; Winged warfare; Wheeled warfare; Our new infantry; Old strategy—new tactics; Control of the modern army; How modern armies attack; The new logistics; Supplying modern armies; What the future holds. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:54 O 15 '43

"Should be a boon to many persons." W. W. C.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 12 '43 390w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 68:571 Jl '43 110w

Reviewed by S. T. Williamson
N Y Times p4 S 19 '43 360w

"Since the manuscript of 'How the Army Fights' was prepared, certain changes in organization and armament were bound to occur. Land mines, in particular, have come to be very important weapons, and are now definitely affecting both offensive and defensive tactics. But these changes in no way diminish the value to the general reader of what is a sincere, well-written, and useful book." J. U. Ayotte
+ Sat R of Lit 26:27 Ag 21 '43 1050w

"There are some criticisms to be made of 'How the Army Fights.' Chiefly it seems to this reviewer that it devotes too much space to staff organization and too little to the army service force branches and modern weapons. However, no book is perfect and this one will repay you well for the time spent in reading it." G. K. Moriarty
+ — Springf'd Republican p6 S 6 '43 330w

Reviewed by P. J. Searles
Weekly Book Review p7 S 5 '43 360w

LIN, ADET (TAN YUN, pseud). Flame from the rock. 230p $2.50 Day
43-17617

Love story of modern war-torn China, written by the twenty-year-old daughter of Lin Yutang. It is the tragic tale of a young woman of a poor but scholarly family, and a hard boiled soldier from a wretched home in Manchuria, who fall in love. The war brought them together, and eventually it also brought their story to an end.

"By not making any attempt to embroider or emboss, the author achieves her effects. Description of scene is meager, but China is inextricably the warp and woof of the story. The attitudes of her peasant people—people who will have to be understood if our postwar world is to reflect real democracy—are made clear as the story runs. The book should do much to develop sympathetic understanding for this ally nation. But the chief merit lies in the profoundly moving story itself." F. N. Litten
+ Book Week p6 N 28 '43 270w

"A born storyteller, Tan Yun further shows invention and imagination in this first novel. She has wisely chosen a heroine just her own age and has sought to write about China at war as it is seen and experienced by a young person. Her book seems to bear the authentic stamp of young China. It is a healthy book in its demonstration of the faith and love Chinese youth feel for their country, and, above all, that supremely youthful hope which is their greatest strength." Catherine Maher
+ N Y Times p34 N 21 '43 440w

"The story is, as perhaps it must be, rather sombre and ends tragically, but it is alive with fine, youthful feeling. The author should learn to cut down on her dialogue; garrulity seems to be a constant in the Chinese (or Chinese-American) novel."
+ — New Yorker 19:108 N 20 '43 70w

"This tender love of modern China is the first novel of the talented eldest daughter of Lin Yutang. This lends an added interest to it, of course, but the twenty-year old Tan Yun has written a tale that can rest squarely on its own merits—a sensitive, moving tale of young love and modern youth in ancient China dominated by modern war and only just emerging from the tight grip of family tradition." Richie Maybon
+ Sat R of Lit 27:20 Ja 1 '44 450w

Reviewed by Virgilia Sapieha
+ Weekly Book Review p23 N 28 '43 800w

LIN, ANOR (LIN TAIYI, pseud). War tide. 281p $2.50 Day
43-16876

Novel of war-torn China, written by the seventeen-year-old daughter of Lin Yutang. "With obviously patriotic intent, Miss Lin manages to remain true to her chosen objective, which is an imaginative rendition of the life-in-death as it is lived by men and women, old and young, in war-torn China. In the course of her exercise she has tackled the eternal situations of birth, marriage, sickness, parting and death; she has peopled them with the stock types, so far as Chinese tales go, of domineering matriarch and rebellious youth, of refugee orphan and model soldier. All these, however, she is able to overcome with youth's keen sense of the ridiculous and youth's direct thrusts of expression." (N Y Times)

"A competent, full-length novel by a 17-year-old author is book news any time, but particularly so when the author turns out to be a young lady of Chinese origin and ancestry and the novel written in first-rate, idiomatic English. . . The defects of the book are numerous, as would be expected. The author's use of the omniscient point of view at times strikes the reader as amusing. . . Again, too frequently what appears to be a foreshadowing bursts like a bubble, or perhaps more accurately, fizzes out like a squib. . . There is also the unwarranted and unmotivated criticism of the heroine's sister-in-law, Royal Pearl, that sounds almost as if the author herself had someone in mind whom she wished to pillory on paper. Yet the novel has charm and strength." Walter Hendricks
+ — Book Week p22 N 14 '43 550w

"It was not so long ago that the intellectual bilingual Chinese Lin Yutang broke into American print and started something of a trend. Today his daughter is blossoming out with a book of her own. 'War Tide' is a full-length, full-bodied novel written in English by a Chinese girl of 17 who styles herself Lin Taiyi; but instead of dealing with school days, playmates, first love, or other adolescent themes, it represents a sort of junior miss version of 'War and Peace.' " George Kao

LIN, ANOR—Continued
N Y Times p18 N 7 '43 460w

"It is a compound of bitter realism (Miss Lin's Japanese have terrifying verisimilitude) and rather touching innocence. The love passages are, as perhaps they should be, callow, and there is far too much dialogue, but, at a venture, I should say that the stuff of the novelist is in her, for her eye is perceptive, she transcribes grown people with shrewd understanding, and, most important, she has a considerable grasp of the realities of our period and the part her native country is bound to play in it. Miss Lin writes in English, occasionally a bit overblown, occasionally naive, but on the whole vigorous and idiomatic." Clifton Fadiman
— + New Yorker 19:105 N 6 '43 250w

"As a novel, it is good reading, always warm, lively, sympathetic. As a testimony to the strength and courage of China, and especially the youth of China, it is both moving and convincing. As a book by a seventeen-year-old, it is a remarkable achievement." Katharine Simonds
+ Sat R of Lit 26:58 D 4 '43 650w

" 'War Tide' is a first novel, the more remarkable in that its author is a girl of seventeen. Her writing has the freshness of youth, but a vigor and maturity far beyond her years. This book is not the autobiographical or lyrical work which so often is the first offering of a young writer. She writes with breadth and concreteness and even more uncommonly, with humor, about events that are momentous for both the East and the West. In this book she meets with spirit and serenity a challenge which war casts before the young in all parts of the world." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p5 N 14 '43 750w

LIN, MOU-SHENG. Men and ideas; an informal history of Chinese political thought; introd. by Pearl S. Buck. 256p $2.50 Day
320.951 Political science—History 42-24679

"Scholarly but brief history of Chinese political and social philosophy and the distinctive contributions of fifteen scholars and schools of social philosophy over period of four thousand years. Lin Mousheng himself is a Chinese scholar of distinction. In introduction, Pearl Buck emphasizes need in Western world for better understanding of the Chinese mind and standards of life." Library J

Am Soc R 8:247 Ap '43 140w

Reviewed by H. F. MacNair
Ann Am Acad 229:204 S '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:588 Ap '43 10w

"Recommended for public and college libraries." A. R. Eaton
+ Library J 67:950 N 1 '42 70w

LIN, TAIYI, pseud. See Lin, Anor

LIN, YU-T'ANG. Between tears and laughter. 216p $2.50 Day
940.531 World war, 1939—China. World politics. Philosophy, Chinese 43-10658

Collection of essays by a well-known Chinese scholar and philosopher. "He believes that the salient fact of the war is the new impulse toward self-rule among the Asiatic countries. This means, in his opinion, nothing less than the end of imperialism. But some of us in the West, he thinks, in particular Mr. Churchill, have not learned this and are unwilling to learn it, and as a result our policy in Asia may well result in a disaster. Much of the book is concerned with the various approaches to postwar planning. We aren't doing very well with it, says Dr. Lin. We begin with determinism, or power politics, or mathematics, or world-police quotas—almost anywhere, in fact, but at the heart of the matter, which is a system of ethical values. Until we can perceive, with Mencius, that there is 'a common heart in man,' we shall be doubling in the tracks of our own confusion." (New Yorker)

"The value of this book lies in its long sweep; the close view, I suspect, looks differently in Chungking. But even in disagreement it should be read, for its voice and passion and special pleading are of the reawakened Asia, no longer a princess sleeping and supine." Edward Weeks
Atlantic 172:119 Ag '43 330w

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 Jl 25 '43 550w

"It is the most important book I have read since 'One World.' " J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p6 Ag 15 '43 50w

Booklist 40:9 S '43

Reviewed by Paul Hutchinson
Christian Century 60:1200 O 20 '43 1350w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 28 '43 800w

"May I confess that I am one of those heavily denounced Western 'realists' who are convinced that this Chinese philosopher's ideas on power are beautiful literature, but impractically utopistic?" Max Fischer
Commonweal 38:448 Ag 20 '43 230w

"We shall just have to write off this book and hope that the author will regain his poise in the future. If he is going to write about politics, he might well study a little political science, however hateful scientific discipline may seem to him." Reinhold Niebuhr
— Nation 157:300 S 11 '43 1000w

"Dr. Lin's latest book, 'Between Tears and Laughter,' comes as a disappointment and a shock. In it he discusses the most urgent issues of our time: the possibilities and prerequisites for an enduring peace, and the future relations between Asia and the Western World. But instead of wisdom, balanced judgment and constructive thought, we find a bitter, abusive, cynical diatribe, filled with amazing distortions of fact and untenable generalizations. . . Dr. Lin might have served a more constructive purpose if he had included an appraisal of the conflicting forces within the China of today, instead of venting his wrath exclusively on China's Western allies." K. L. Mitchell
New Repub 109:462 O 4 '43 650w

"When he finished Lin Yutang's new book, this reviewer was not necessarily a wiser and better but certainly an angrier man. If the test for an essayist's achievement is the final conquest of his reader as well as of his subject, Lin Yutang has failed. This one reader, at least, has covered the margins of his copy with countless notes of protest which he did not erase even after a second reading. But if an essayist's function is to penetrate his reader's mental reserves, Lin Yutang has fully succeeded. The irritation he produced is profound and lasting. . . Seldom has a plea for fairness been offered with such wild escapades into unfairness, distortion of facts with such grace, deep understanding of human nature with such short cuts into superficiality. In its provocative lack of measure, this book of a wise Chinese and a lovable world citizen is accusing evidence of what the world has done to the equanimity of his great nation." W. S. Schlamm
+ — N Y Times p3 Ag 1 '43 1100w

"Dr. Lin Yutang gives us, mixed with the tolerance and humor of the philosopher, some of the plainest speaking we have had in a long time on the issues of the war and the peace. . . You may get the impression here and there that the author is beating a few dead dogs, but he's whooping it up for some live ones too. In any case, he's well worth reading." Vincent McHugh
+ — New Yorker 19:60 Jl 24 '43 250w

"All of this is just a little disappointing. As a calm, wise, and witty philosopher, Lin Yutang has his great circle of admirers in this country and elsewhere. It seems too bad that he does not better sense the American effort for war, the patient, potent mustering of power, the honest good intentions toward all peoples friendly to us—if they will only give us the time to accomplish the things toward which we have set our faces, if they will only be patient enough to await our ability to help them." P. I. Wellman

Sat R of Lit 26:14 Ag 7 '43 1250w

Time 42:102 Ag 30 '43 900w

"[A] rapid discussion can not convey the incredible richness of Lin Yutang's mind, its delightful play of humor, its passionate earnestness. I believe with Wendell Willkie that the world is one, and so I can not admit that the East is in sole possession of human wisdom. I feel like chiding Lin Yutang for his overweening racial pride. Two wrongs do not make a right. We need to integrate, to humanize our cultures, and he should be one of the men to guide us. Deeply rooted in the ways of his country and of his people, he is well acquainted with our ways, especially with the best of them all, a fearlessly critical attitude. By challenging us so vigorously, he proves his relationship to us. And we are deeply proud to claim him." Albert Guerard
+ — Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 25 '43 1400w

Wis Lib Bul 39:122 O '43

LINCOLN, EDWIN STODDARD. Industrial-commercial electrical reference. [1292p] il fabrikoid $15; 10 per cent discount to libraries and educational institutions c1941 Electrical modernization bur, room 805, 60 E. 42d st, N.Y.

621.3 Electric industries

"This is the first edition of a reference book designed to furnish all branches of the electrical industry with a comprehensive and accurate presentation of facts, tables, and general information necessary for everyday work, according to the author's preface. While the volume has introductory sections it is intended for industrial electricians primarily. . . The volume is divided into twenty-six separately paged sections. Each section, designated by letters A to Z, deals with some particular phase of the field of industrial electrical operations. According to the Foreword 'each section devoted to utilization equipment' (motors, lighting, heat applications, welding, electroplating, electric trucks, storage batteries, signal and internal communication, and similar applications) 'is divided into "installation" and "operation" sections.' Installation includes economic factors, selection of equipment, layout application and control. Operation includes inspection, maintenance, testing, surveys, operation, and analysis of operating costs. . . The volume contains numerous tables, drawings, charts and diagrams, and is profusely illustrated by pictures of electrical equipment. . . The volume is kept up-to-date by means of a free follow-up service to purchasers." Subscription Bks Bul

"The format of the book is satisfactory. The paper used is of high quality, page margins adequate. The type is modern and very readable. The binding is serviceable fabrikoid. The larger library will find this volume supplementary to the Standard Handbook for Electrical Engineers (7th ed., McGraw-Hill, 1941). Whereas the Standard Handbook supplies basic engineering data, this volume gives greater emphasis to the material used in electrical installations. It is recommended for purchase only to those larger libraries needing a supplementary comprehensive reference book in the electrical field. Electrical concerns, electrical engineers, engaged in industrial work, and industrial consultants should find this book of value."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 14:11 Ja '43 480w

LINCOLN, JOSEPH CROSBY. Bradshaws of Harniss. 379p $2.50 Appleton-Century 43-15653

A Cape Cod village before and during the early stages of World war II is the setting. It is a story of the conflict of two generations of Bradshaws, and how a staunch, unsung hero kept alive the family prestige.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p9 N 7 '43 100w

Booklist 40:166 Ja 1 '44

"What keeps Mr. Lincoln's reputation green, and his readers chuckling from one end of the long list to the other, is his brand of wit—the same corn-fed, home-cured variety that doesn't need thrills or frills." Catherine Brody
+ N Y Times p10 D 19 '43 700w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman
Sat R of Lit 27:30 F 5 '44 280w

"No sordid 'realism' but a good deal of shrewd though kindly characterization mixed with folksy humor and optimism." Jessica Potter
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 21 '43 220w

"To his long and memorable gallery of Cape Cod characters—Cap'n Eri, Doctor Nye, Galusha the Magnificent, Great-Aunt Lavinia and those with flavorsome names like Obadiah and Keziah—Mr. Lincoln has made a worthy addition in 'The Bradshaws of Harniss.' He has reached the end of the alphabet in Zenas, but there are no signs that he is near the end of his relish for writing or his skill in creating rugged oldsters who are still young in spirit." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p27 O 31 '43 300w

Wis Lib Bul 39:160 D '43

LINDMAN, MAJ JAN (MRS MAJ LINDMAN-HULTEN). Flicka, Ricka, Dicka and their new friend [il. by the author]. [27p] $1 Whitman, A.
42-22574

Picture-story book about the three little Swedish girls who have appeared in earlier books by this author. The children make a huge snowball and leave it in the yard of a cross old man who has just come to live nearby. When they go to apologize, bearing gifts, they make a friend.

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p6 Mr 21 '43 140w

"Like all the stories of this group, the spirit is of warm family affection and general good will to outsiders; the type is very large and colored pictures alternate with text so a small child can listen and look on." M. L. Becker
+ Books p8 Ja 31 '43 200w

"These books and their predecessors about Snipp, Snapp, and Snurr, are excellent preschool and beginners' reading." M. B. Snow
+ Library J 67:956 N 1 '42 60w

Wis Lib Bul 39:31 F '43

LINDSAY, ALEXANDER DUNLOP. Modern democratic state. v 1 286p $3.75 (12s 6d) Oxford

321.8 Democracy. State, The

This is the first of a projected two volume work intended as a study of the nature and problems of modern democracy. The author's method is "to analyse the operative ideas on which the modern democratic state depends, to examine the first statements of those ideas in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, to show how the Industrial Revolution has affected the problem of democratic government, and to restate the principles of the modern democratic state as it works in these altered modern conditions." (Publisher's note)

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:155 O '43 40w

"The present instalment seems to be a stage on the road to a modified acceptance of Rousseau's theory of the general will in which Mr. Lindsay will show how ordinary men can play their part in the process of government. Its merit is that on a number of important problems it makes a series of wise and luminous observations such as we should expect from one who, like Mr. Lindsay, inherits not a little of T. H. Green's ethical sensitiveness and liberality of temper. That is its essential

LINDSAY, A. D.—Continued
strength. Its weakness is that it realises so eagerly the importance of discussion, more, the importance of discussion of the expert's work by ordinary people, that it tends to omit an adequate estimate either of the importance of power or of the need that discussion shall result in decision." H. J. Laski
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 3 '43 280w

Reviewed by John MacCormac
N Y Times p18 Ag 29 '43 600w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
Sat R of Lit 26:22 Jl 31 '43 650w

"Dr. Lindsay combines two things—vision, and a sense of the actual; faith, and a clear view of the mountains which have to be moved. He faces all the difficulties of democracy—faces them frankly, states them fully, and gives them their just weight. That already appears in his first volume: it can hardly appear more in the second, when he faces, as he promises, the modern challenges to democracy." Ernest Barker
+ Spec 170:200 F 26 '43 900w
Times [London] Lit Sup p98 F 27 '43 1500w

LINDSAY, ALEXANDER DUNLOP. Religion, science, and society in the modern world. 73p $1.50 Yale univ. press
261.7 Sociology, Christian. Civilization. Religion and science A43-1290

"Into this little book of seventy-three pages, an eminent British philosopher has packed a great deal of good sense about matters which the British and American peoples regard as of fundamental importance. Two of the great concerns of both groups of peoples have been religion and freedom. The form of social structure which rose from these moral foundations—the Anglo-American type of democracy—is now being influenced to an ever increasing extent by a third force, modern science. It is both fitting and timely, therefore, that Professor Lindsay of Oxford University should choose as the titles of his Terry Foundation Lectures at Yale University: 'Religion and Freedom,' 'Science and Freedom,' 'Power and Freedom.'" Sat R of Lit

"This little book comprises the latest Terry Lectures at Yale University on 'Religion in the Light of Science and Philosophy.' They are three in number: (1) Religion and Freedom; (2) Science and Freedom; and (3) Power and Freedom. They make up a pleasing and readable discourse, but even a reading of the book leaves the reviewer uncertain as to just what Lindsay wished to say." H. E. Barnes
+ — Am Soc R 8:484 Ag '43 330w

"This book, like so many of its fellow volumes in the Terry lectureship, is a little gem of solidity and beauty, and is worthy to stand beside the best of them." W. W. Sikes
+ Christian Century 60:1137 O 6 '43 850w
Christian Science Monitor p10 S 11 '43 310w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
Churchman 157:17 Jl 1 '43 180w
Ethics 54:60 O '43 550w

Reviewed by H. W. Schneider
J Philos 40:329 Je 10 '43 1050w

"In midst of present struggle for freedom, many readers will welcome, no doubt, this very able discussion of freedom's relationship to religion, science, and power." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 68:247 Mr 15 '43 50w
Manchester Guardian p3 D 15 '43 130w

"A significant theme that recurs throughout the book and gives it character and continuity is that the unity of modern society can come only from 'a common life of fellowship.' . . There are sound hints for all, for churchmen, scientists, social workers, and university members—as to the factors tending toward social disintegration and the counter measures, chiefly of a spiritual kind, which can be set in motion." L. C. Dunn
+ Sat R of Lit 26:30 Je 5 '43 1050w

Reviewed by Ernest Barker
Spec 171:534 D 3 '43 210w

LINDSAY, HOWARD, and CROUSE, RUSSEL. Strip for action [play]. 250p il $2 Random house 812 43-1669

Comedy based on the antics of a burlesque troupe, determined to give a performance at an army camp.

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '43

"There is a good deal of raucous fun, but coming from the authors of 'Life With Father,' this is pretty poor stuff." W. P. Eaton
Weekly Book Review p21 F 14 '43 100w

LINDSAY, ROBERT BRUCE. Student's handbook of elementary physics. 382p $2.25 Dryden
530 Physics 43-12543

"This volume is designed to be used either (1) as a textbook for the college course in physics or (2) as a student's companion and handbook to accompany a comprehensive text. . . The volume is divided into three major sections: (1) a primer of the essentials of elementary physics; (2) an Illustrated Dictionary of the terms most commonly encountered in elementary physics; and (3) an Appendix that offers formulas, mathematical and physical tables, and cultural stimulation as well." Publisher's note

Reviewed by J. M. Juran
N Y Times p49 N 21 '43 120w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p32 O 3 '43 140w

LINDSEY, ALMONT. The Pullman strike; the story of a unique experiment and of a great labor upheaval. 385p il $3.75 Univ. of Chicago press
331.892 Chicago strike, 1894 42-50022

An account of the building of the town of Pullman, Illinois, and of the strike of the Pullman company employees in 1894 which acquired nation-wide significance because of the intervention of Eugene Debs.

Reviewed by F. L. Paxson
Am Hist R 48:829 Jl '43 360w

Reviewed by L. P. Edwards
Am J Soc 49:93 Jl '43 150w

Reviewed by E. T. Hiller
Am Soc R 8:361 Je '43 480w

"Mr. Lindsey's account of the strike and the leading figures in it is exhaustive and thoroughly documented. From the standpoint of readability it is perhaps too detailed, but as a survey of a significant period in our history it is a most valuable document. His approach is scrupulously fair, his judgments impartial, based on evidence rather than opinions. His portraits of Olney, Debs, Walker, Altgeld, Pullman, and other major figures of the day are vivid and realistic. He does not attempt to draw morals or lessons for either side, but lets the facts speak for themselves. Through Mr. Lindsey's pen they do indeed speak—clearly, bravely, and to good purpose." J. R. Walsh
+ Ann Am Acad 227:181 My '43 850w

"This is obviously an important story and there is little one can say in praise of Mr. Lindsey's book except that he has told it well. Working over new material he has led the way to many fresh interpretations, particularly in the matter of the injunction and in the role of Richard Olney, Attorney General of the United States and a railroad executive himself. Mr. Lindsey has heightened his achievement by writing with more grace and a better eye for good detail than one is likely to find in most academic treatises." R. H. Rovere
+ Books p14 Ja 3 '43 320w
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 17 '43 480w

"A job crying to be done is here well done." T. V. S.
+ Ethics 53:234 Ap '43 110w

Reviewed by H. B. Myers
J Pol Econ 51:568 D '43 600w

Reviewed by H. R. Northrup
Pol Sci Q 58:461 S '43 500w

" 'The Pullman Strike' is a definite contribution to American social history." Irving Dilliard

+ Survey G 32:359 S '43 600w

LINDSLEY, MRS LORNA (STIMSON). War is people. 273p $2.75 Houghton

940.52 Spain—History—Civil war, 1936-1939. Palestine—Politics and government. World war, 1939—France 43-4215

"Lorna Lindsley's experiences started in southern France in 1938 when she took motion pictures of concentration camps, prisons and what was then the rear guard of 'Spain at war.' From there she went to Spain, thence to Palestine, thence back into France where she lived through the various phases of the German occupation in Paris, Bordeaux and Brittany. In 1941 she came back to this country in a small freighter." Weekly Book Review

"I know of no other book which, without pretension, makes so clear the real purpose and significance of the Spanish War, nor of any other book which gives you so simply the picture of realities in a hopelessly complicated situation like that of Palestine. She makes you know the very smell and feel of these countries. She makes you know the people. As for the tragedy of France, you live through it in the pages of Mrs. Lindsley's book, not remotely, objectively, as if you were a correspondent, but personally and realistically, as a participant." Louis Bromfield

+ Atlantic 171:150 Mr '43 650w

Booklist 39:385 Je 1 '43

"Colorful, very human book." R. G. Woolbert

+ Foreign Affairs 21:4 Jl '43 20w

"Mrs. Lindsley's book lacks something in the way of coherence, possibly for the creditable reason that she tells us always too little about herself. This is an uncommon failing even today, and certainly no one wishes to revive the Richard Harding Davis school of war reporting. It does mean here that the sequence of events is sometimes confusing and the thread of personal narrative difficult to follow, that the sum of the parts seems greater than the whole." Margaret Wallace

N Y Times p4 Mr 28 '43 600w

" 'War Is People' is a thoroughly honest, warm, and human book." F. C. Weiskopf

+ Sat R of Lit 26:14 Mr 20 '43 400w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon

Springf'd Republican p6 F 27 '43 1050w

"The book is primarily a series of brilliant interludes sharply focused. Seemingly there is little continuity here, chapters are independent of each other like tiles in a Dutch fireplace, each offering an intimate landscape in itself. Yet the final impression is that of a well-rounded piece of craftsmanship." Felizia Seyd

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 7 '43 900w

Wis Lib Bul 39:53 Ap '43

LINGENFELTER, MARY REBECCA. Wartime jobs for girls. 226p $1.75 Harcourt

371.425 Woman—Occupations 43-5791

Lists and describes jobs which can be done by high school girls without special training. Sums up the girl's chances in housework, practical nursing, farming, communications and transportation, food and clothing industries, in offices and stores, war production, civil service and the armed forces.

Booklist 39:420 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by Helen Henley

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 11 '43 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '43

"Readable, practical description of variety of jobs, all related to war effort. Emphasis on jobs for younger girls who will release older girls and women for more responsible positions." Irene Geltch

+ Library J 68:628 Ag '43 80w

" 'Wartime Jobs for Girls' performs a singular and much-needed service. In the first place it tells the high school girl what she can do now both to contribute to her country's welfare and to earn money for herself and her family. By encouraging their participation in the war effort, showing them how to put the correct value on their own work, the book gives young people a sense of their own dignity and usefulness at a time when most Americans are continually evaluating their jobs in terms of the national effort. It is completely down to earth and one of the few volumes that is really helpful to the girl who cannot go to college." E. M. Morrow

+ N Y Times p10 My 9 '43 260w

Springf'd Republican p6 N 26 '43 40w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p8 Je 6 '43 450w

Wis Lib Bul 39:126 O '43

LINKLATER, ERIC. Raft, and Socrates asks why. 121p $1.25 (4s 6d) Macmillan

828 43-5820

"Two conversations. The first is held on a raft on the Atlantic, and the speakers are shipwrecked men, all are near death, but the creed they express is faith in a Britain which has constantly underrated herself. . . The second is another of Mr. Linklater's conversations in the Elysium: Socrates with Dr. Johnson, Voltaire, Lincoln and Beethoven discusses the war, and the spirits of two British soldiers join in for a while." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Though I find it impossible—after a second, paralyzing perusal—not to kid this, maybe I shouldn't. The sketches were put on the air last year by the British Broadcasting Co., and the publishers say that an earlier effort of Linklater's, 'The Cornerstones,' was so popular it had to be repeated twice. Well, maybe." Fred Brandeis

— Book Week p6 Ap 11 '43 600w

"There is always gusto and humour in anything that Mr. Linklater writes. There is gusto and humour in these two dialogues, and especially in the second. They illuminate the issues of our times in sudden flashes. But one wonders at the end whether the literary mind, with all its grace and beauty of touch, can plumb the problems of our times—problems by which it is irresistibly attracted but also inevitably baffled. Swift might have succeeded. He could unite a literary style of unparalleled power and lucidity with a savage and masculine grasp of affairs. But Swift, with less gusto and less of ideal desire, had plunged deep in the salty waters of life and experience." Ernest Barker

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 O 28 '42 400w

Spec 169:488 N 20 '42 130w

Times [London] Lit Sup p635 D 26 '42 120w

LIPPMANN, WALTER. United States foreign policy: shield of the republic. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 177p $1.50 Little

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations 43-7604

Criticism of American foreign policy of the last forty years. The author's thesis is that during the nineteenth century we had a consistent policy, but that with the acquisition of "commitments outside continental United States"—notably in the Philippines—we failed to form a policy which would balance these commitments with power to carry them out.

Reviewed by L. M. Goodrich

Am Pol Sci R 37:935 O '43 1450w

Reviewed by C. A. Welsh

Ann Am Acad 231:182 Ja '44 450w

Reviewed by Robert Bendiner

Book Week p5 Je 20 '43 1150w

Booklist 39:440 Jl 1 '43

Bookmark 4:5 My '43

"This book is a model of clarity, brevity and —fallacy. It handles a difficult subject in the most lucid and forceful manner. Every state-

LIPPMANN, WALTER—Continued
ment seems designed to appear self-evident, and to carry the reader along on an irresistible current of logic until he lands at the appointed place. Not until he has got there does he realize that it is not where he wanted to go, or that he is left standing on shifting sands." F. R. Scott

— + Canadian Forum 23:116 Ag '43 1300w

Reviewed by Paul Hutchinson
Christian Century 60:894 Ag 4 '43 1750w

"This book has a particular purpose. Its job is to tell Americans what they ought to have known for a long time. It is a little book—177 pages—bulging with big ideas. Many of its chapters are short enough to read twice, and ought to be read three times." C. W. M.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 19 '43 650w

"When you have worked with words for years, you either get very careless with words or you reach a point where you can make words say exactly what you wish them to say. Mr. Lippmann has never become careless. There is, consequently, a certain clear precision in this new short, but vastly important, book of his, a concise quality in exposition that sets it apart from other current plans and blueprints for the future. It will not be easy to misunderstand this book."

+ Commonweal 38:228 Je 18 '43 900w

"Both the expert and the layman will find in this little volume a great deal of wisdom. In particular, they will find Mr. Lippmann's interpretation of our foreign policy in the past to be free of preconceptions and full of sound sense. The second part of the book, in which he analyzes the present American position in the world and describes the bases upon which we must reconstruct our foreign policy if it is to serve its primary purpose, is more controversial." R. G. Woolbert

+ Foreign Affairs 22:159 O '43 110w

"Indispensable for all public, college, and high school libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 68:474 Je 1 '43 110w

"From the point of view of the realistic historian, the weakness of Lippmann's book is that he ignores Europe west of the Curzon line. . . Mr. Lippmann's book therefore needs an additional chapter. But with the ten chapters he has written I am in accord, an accord full of subtle dissonances, as required by the laws of modern music." Albert Guérard

+ — Nation 156:894 Je 26 '43 900w

Reviewed by G. F. Milton
New Repub 109:26 Jl 5 '43 950w

Reviewed by Kingsley Martin
New Statesman & Nation 26:172 S 11 '43 1550w

Reviewed by Arthur Krock
N Y Times p1 Je 13 '43 1800w

"In the hundred and seventy-seven pages of his book Walter Lippmann has quietly performed a definite service to his country. Without any appeal to rhetoric or party bias or for one moment laying himself open to the charge of blueprinting Utopia, he has undermined all possible arguments either for isolationism or for the imperialism to whose standard the isolationists will repair as soon as they find out that they are licked." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 19:77 Je 12 '43 850w

"This tract is provocative and realistic, and it should stimulate some hard thinking. But it is a piece of special pleading, and should be read as such. It does not outline a policy which we are likely to follow but one which Mr. Lippmann thinks we ought to follow. And his effort will not be altogether in vain if he can persuade the American people that a foreign policy is not a necessary evil but, properly developed, a source of security—'a shield of the republic'." T. A. Bailey

Pol Sci Q 58:429 S '43 750w

"Part of Mr. Lippmann's volume is a masterly summary and analysis of American foreign relations since colonial days. There are some historians who will think that his generalizations are too sweeping, that the exceptions may be more important than his rules. The issue, however, is whether, measuring the broad stream of history, he has correctly appraised the main currents which have determined our destiny. I think he has." E. M. Earle

+ Sat R of Lit 26:5 Je 12 '43 3750w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager
Spec 171:292 S 24 '43 2850w

Reviewed by V. M. Dean
Survey G 32:299 Jl '43 1000w

Time 41:98 Je 14 '43 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p390 Ag 14 '43 2450w

"The United States have lived through the last fifty years as though it believed that peace and security were found under the gooseberry bush. . . Now that our incredible superstition has landed us in our second world war in a quarter of a century, the gooseberry-bush theory begins to disquiet even the naive. So we are ready for a primer on the secrets of foreign relations, and on the nature of power and self-interest. This primer has now been provided. Mr. Lippmann has written it briefly; it is only 177 pages long. He has written it with appropriate simplicity for all but the stubborn to understand. He has written it with the persuasiveness of humility; he does not ridicule the naivete of his country since comparatively recently, he confesses, he was naive himself." R. G. Swing

+ Weekly Book Review p1 Je 13 '43 2400w

Wis Lib Bul 39:119 O '43

"If the book has any serious weakness it is that the whole thing is worked out a little too neatly in terms of a definition of foreign policy that is formal rather than substantial. . . These, however, are small matters. Mr. Lippmann's book is a most trenchant and illuminating analysis of 'the order of power' in the world today, of the position of the United States in that order, and of a proper foreign policy in the circumstances. I strongly recommend it to all who are capable of taking an intelligent interest in the subject." Carl Becker

+ Yale R n s 33:142 autumn '43 1550w

LITERARY market place, 1943; a directory for publishers, advertisers and broadcasters. (V3) 102p spir pa $2 Bowker

029.6 Publishers and publishing—Directories. Authorship—Handbooks, manuals, etc.
(41-51571)

"New features of the 1943 edition include a list of war agencies of the book trade, technical and military book publishers, reprint publishers, the leading book clubs, magazines that publish book digests, and designers of book posters." Foreword

---

Booklist 39:371 My 15 '43

"This unassuming little pamphlet, now appearing in its third edition, contains a great variety of widely diverse reference material of interest to those engaged in publishing, in all phases of the literary trades, advertisers and broadcasters, and it is of great concern to authors and librarians." L. O. Beaman

+ Library J 68:487 Je 1 '43 300w

Special Libraries 34:173 My '43

LITTLE, ALAN MACNAUGHTON GORDON. Myth and society in Attic drama. 95p il $1.50 Columbia univ. press

882.09 Greek drama—History and criticism. Mythology in literature. Civilization, Greek 43-2754

"A study in support of the thesis that Athenian playwriting was the vehicle by means of which the popular mind advanced from tribal to city-communal ways of thinking on political, social, moral and religious matters." Theatre Arts

---

"What we have here is a sketch for an interesting book; and with patient reading and reflection the sketch could be developed into something really worth while. In its present form it is altogether too sketchy and premature." David Daiches

+ — Am J Soc 49:88 Jl '43 1050w

"Here is a case study in secularization that is worth the time of any sociologist who can get his nose off his Comptometer for an hour or two."
+ Am Soc R 8:496 Ag '43 150w

Reviewed by Gilbert Norwood
Class Philol 38:271 O '43 900w

"A few ideas in this book are new and good and worthy of serious consideration, but its best service will be performed if it leads some sociologists to study Greek drama, since they may then discover that Greek drama also contains high thoughts, living character, and vivid poetry." T. B. L. W.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Je 25 '43 180w

Theatre Arts 27:260 Ap '43 50w

LITTLE, CONSTANCE, and LITTLE, GWENYTH. Black rustle. 214p $2 Doubleday 43-9807

Detective story.

"Long before the second crime, you are reading along at a good pace, one which you keep up to the end. The crimes are well-motivated, action is fast and logical; murder is inevitable." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p6 Je 20 '43 200w

"Goofy dialogue; strange happenings that appear to make no sense—until one learns the explanation; baffling mystery and excellent entertainment." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 My 30 '43 100w

"Screwball mysteries are tricky affairs, and we're not saying that this one quite jells. It does, however, contain some eccentric characters who amuse from time to time, and it is rich in clews for the armchair detective." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p30 My 23 '43 230w

LITVINOVA, IVY (LOW). Moscow mystery. 268p $2.50 Coward-McCann 43-4860

Detective story.

"Ivy Litvinoff gives you Moscow in the same way Simenon gives you Paris—intimately and with reality. But the excellence of description and characterization is a heavy weight on the slender, delicate plot. If you read it with this in mind, however, you will find much to reward you in the insight you'll be given into Moscow and its people of a decade ago." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — Book Week p11 Ap 4 '43 250w

Booklist 39:355 My 1 '43

Bookmark 4:20 My '43

"Americans who saw Mme. Litvinoff in the years before she came to Washington as the wife of the Soviet Ambassador will not be surprised by her publication of a mystery novel, and an excellent one at that. It just shows another facet in her amazing wealth of talents." J. B. Denny
+ N Y Times p16 Mr 28 '43 600w

"An interesting and authentic picture of Moscow in 1926 by the wife of the Soviet Ambassador to this country. A sound story, too, and not without gaiety."
+ New Yorker 19:71 Mr 20 '43 70w

"The mystery which Madame Litvinoff presents is but a feeble vehicle for some intricate and beautiful descriptive writing of Moscow itself and she is quite right in stating in the preface to her novel that 'Today the Russian background and the stuff about Spring over the Kremlin are likely to be the most interesting features of the book to American readers.' 'Moscow Mystery' was written several years ago and published in England. At that time an American publisher could not be found for it; now it should be assured of a wide and interested public." Wenzell Brown
Sat R of Lit 26:14 Ap 3 '43 750w

"This is romantic, colorful, even significant. Put it on your list." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 14 '43 450w

LIVINGSTONE, SIR RICHARD WINN. Education for a world adrift. (Current problems ser) 158p $1.25 Macmillan [3s 6d Cambridge]

370.1 Education—Aims and objectives. Education—Great Britain 43-6566

"At the present time, observes Sir Richard, education is like a half-asembled motor-car: most of the parts are there but they are not put together... The result is diffusion and weakness of will, bitterness and sterility of mind. Unless we can find a standard by which to live, no civilisation we may construct will be worth having. It is the main task of education to establish this standard. How is it to do it? Such is the problem set forth in an introductory chapter of admirable pungency. Sir Richard then proceeds to the solution." Spec

Reviewed by R. B. Henderson
Hibbert J 41:376 Jl '43 1200w

"Sir Richard Livingstone's little book is a sermon which educational reformers, though not they alone, will do well to lay to heart. The effort of our generation to improve the organisation of education has been necessary and must continue, for defects of organisation impair spiritual vitality, and but for the successes—alas! how partial—which that effort has won the readers of 'Education for a World Adrift' would be fewer than it is to be hoped, they will be."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 7 '43 400w

Reviewed by W. J. Hinton
Sat R of Lit 26:25 N 6 '43 1000w

School & Society 57:580 My 15 '43 30w

"Education for a World Adrift has something of real value to say, and says it with exceptional lucidity and force." Lettice Fowler
+ Spec 170:224 Mr 5 '43 300w

"The book is well-modulated and very attractively written. It will be widely read and will incur much criticism: that it has treated only a few limited aspects of a great problem; that its theorizing is inadequately related to the practice of education; that there are more formidable 'dragons in the path' of educational advance than examinations and specialization... Most of these criticisms the author would doubtless receive as commendation and with some justification."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p220 My 8 '43 850w

LLEWELLYN, RICHARD. None but the lonely heart. 444p $2.75 Macmillan 43-14647

Very different in subject and tempo from the author's How Green Was My Valley (Book Review Digest, 1940). This is an intimate character study of a young Cockney, Ernie Mott, living in the London slums. Ernie's father, who had been an artist, was killed at Verdun; his mother ran a second hand shop. Ernie himself worked with a firm of commercial artists, and it was when he lost his job and was faced with the bitterness of telling Ma, that he met Henry Twite, an elderly, eccentric Robin Hood, and began his career of crime. After losing his Ma and his girl, the book closes with a lonely Ernie, whistling to keep his courage up, and saying "He was going to be all right."

"The story is far from sordid, and the reader who will plow through the strong Cockney accent and a somewhat slow start will find a rich reward."
+ Atlantic 172:135 N '43 80w

" 'None But the Lonely Heart' can't, properly speaking, be reviewed. The best one can do is try to indicate the treasure that's in store for the reader in all its variety, originality and earthy and lyrical richness. And that's an impossible task. All I can say is, of all the books I've read this year, this is the one I'd like most to have written." A. C. Spectorsky
+ Book Week p1 O 3 '43 1050w

— Cath World 158:315 D '43 200w

Reviewed by L. E. Cannon
Christian Century 60:1267 N 3 '43 330w

Cleveland Open Shelf p20 O '43

LLEWELLYN, RICHARD—Continued

"This book is a far cry from 'How Green Was My Valley.' And not only because Huw's innocence contrasts with Ernie's obsession with sex. The main difference is that Mr. Llewellyn's earlier best seller was a positive nostalgic evocation of a hard but beautiful way of life, while his current volume is the very opposite."
Commonweal 38:613 O 8 '43 850w

"Not another How Green Was My Valley. Very well written in Cockney dialect; excellent characterization; and thesis of the constitutional inability of the individual to avert his fall is convincing. But, unrelieved by any compensation whatever, it is too depressing for average reader. Recommended for adults but probably will not be popular." Katharine Shorey
+ — Library J 68:668 S 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 O 1 '43 150w

"Never having read 'How Green Was My Valley,' I am unable to compare Richard Llewellyn's new novel to its very successful predecessor. By its author's reputation, however, and quite on its own, I found it a disappointing book, full of genuine pathos and technical virtuosity but at the same time forced in its sentiment and over-elaborate in its writing." Diana Trilling
— + Nation 157:453 O 16 '43 240w

Reviewed by Philip Toynbee
New Statesman & Nation 26:304 N 6 '43 750w

"To say this book is a masterpiece of characterization is not enough. To say it is as richly and robustly peopled as Dickens or Hugo in their portrayals of the submerged is not enough. It is all these things plus something that is uniquely Llewellyn, something that is alive with imagination and understanding and poetry, wedded to a powerful and individual gift for story telling." Rose Feld
+ N Y Times p3 S 26 '43 1200w

"Occasionally every reviewer's confronted with a book so entirely at variance with his own wave length that he cannot tell whether it is good, bad, or indifferent. He feels only, and with a kind of dull rage at his own incapacity, that he cannot read it... After seventy pages of Mr. Llewellyn's peculiar and doubtless quite authentic dialect, I gave up and confessed myself both baffled and sleepy. In the firm belief that my opinion of 'None But the Lonely Heart' is not worth a hoot, I urge you to buy it for yourself. Just leave me out of this." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:82 O 2 '43 200w

"If the author of 'Studs Lonigan' were to rewrite 'Oliver Twist' in cockney dialect, a story like this might emerge, for 'None But the Lonely Heart,' despite its poetic title, is a tale of underworld violence as tough as Farrell's Chicago sagas and yet as movingly human as Dickens's immortal story of the poor boy who never had enough." P. V. Stern
+ Sat R of Lit 26:42 O 16 '43 360w

Discussion by T. W. Lamont
Sat R of Lit 26:7 D 11 '43 280w

Reviewed by J. A. Smith
Spec 171:320 O 1 '43 500w

"'None But the Lonely Heart' is an absorbing book, strong and vigorous, warm with sympathy. It demands to be read at one sitting, to be remembered and then, slowly, to be read again." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 550w
Time 42:102 O 4 '43 700w

"Mr. Llewellyn's honesty and sympathy are never in question, but, setting aside the monotony, the tale itself never comes off."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p473 O 2 '43 450w

"'None But the Lonely Heart' is in no sense a tract: it is actually a fine, engrossing novel. But the message it carries is clear. For the most part civilized man till now has parried his conscience with the age-old satiric defense of Cain. The answer of humanity to 'Am I my brother's keeper?' has been 'No,' with a spotty, undependable 'Yes,' where family and friends and a bit of organized charity were concerned. We of the 1940's are waking up, are toying at last with the idea that perhaps the well-being of man... may still be our responsibility and our privilege... And books like Mr. Llewellyn's 'None But the Lonely Heart' will most certainly have done their proud, effective part in calling the tune." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p1 S 26 '43 1900w
Wis Lib Bul 39:146 N '43

LLOYD, ALMA ESTELLE. This was their land. 263p $2.50 Harper
43-13076

Chronicle of the lives of a handful of French peasants who decided to stay in their own village when the Germans came, rather than join the general exodus. The bombs fell and death came even to that small group. The beauties of the countryside are contrasted with the horrors of the war.

"Finally, finally, an honest book about the fall of France. A book that doesn't attempt to show that the fall of France was due to this or that political group or to the degeneracy of the people, a book in which the French peasants are not exhibited as the most callous animals, conscienceless and pityless, mean and contemptuous of even the most rudimentary sense of decency. It is a beautifully written story, one written out of a spirit of fairness to people the author has known and lived with. Not a single false note has crept in, in its two hundred and fifty pages. Not a single point was stressed for the sake of melodrama." Konrad Bercovici
+ Book Week p5 Ag 29 '43 550w

"Not especially significant but convincingly handled." Thelma Brackett
Library J 68:625 Ag '43 50w

Reviewed by Rose Feld
N Y Times p14 Ag 22 '43 360w

"Miss Lloyd's French villagers are like figures in a frieze, cut to fit the pattern which, after years of intimacy with France, the author finds symbolic. These people, wedded to their soil by the work of their hands and now compelled to see its desecration, are used to illustrate, rather than to motivate, war's havoc. The book, in its quiet impersonal sincerity, serves to remind us that you can bend the backbone of a nation but you cannot break it. Unfortunately, however, in the three years since the Battle of France was lost, many books about it have been written and the first full impact of the drama has long since been felt." Virgilia Sapieha
+ — Weekly Book Review p10 Ag 22 '43 600w

LLOYD-JONES, DAVID MARTYN. Plight of man and the power of God. 120p $1 Abingdon-Cokesbury [3s 6d Hodder]
234 Salvation 43-3145

"Four lectures (plus an additional chapter) delivered at Free Church College, Edinburgh. The theme is man's sinfulness and 'inherent rebelliousness' against God and the gospel as the power of God unto salvation. The whole is an expository treatment of certain verses in the first chapter of Romans." Christian Century

---

Christian Century 60:268 Mr 3 '43 50w
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 17 '43 270w

"The last great war produced the strong reaction of Karl Barth against theological liberalism, and his return to Calvin as the authoritative exponent of Christianity. The present World War is accountable for a still further extension of the same reaction, which is now widespread among Protestant theologians, not only on the Continent but also in England and America. Dr. Martyn Lloyd-Jones is a powerful representative of the tendency."
Times [London] Lit Sup p436 S 5 '42 360w

LOCKLEY, RONALD MATHIAS. Shearwaters. 239p il maps $4 Salloch [15s Dent]

598.44 Shearwaters [42-16700]

"Readers of I Know an Island [Book Review Digest, 1939] will enjoy this further account of life on Skokholm, a wild Welsh island, where myriads of shearwaters and other sea birds nest. Most of the book is a detailed report on the habits, incubation, rearing, and migration of the elusive Manx shearwater, of which almost nothing was known." Booklist

"While the book is a scientific contribution, its distinguished prose and charming, informal presentation will widen the audience of this well-known English naturalist."
+ Booklist 39:382 Je 1 '43

"Admirers of Mr. Lockley's earlier books will find it is written with all his old skill; seldom can a valuable piece of scientific work have been so attractively described." A. W. B.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 10 '42 200w

Reviewed by Desmond Hawkins
New Statesman & Nation 23:97 F 7 '42 470w

"Lockley has managed his business of finding out about the shearwater with a singleness of purpose that has sometimes been almost fanatical. He has a real feeling for the land, and for all the things that live on it. Through his writing runs the concept of the animal community; he truly has the ecological point of view; for him, as for a few other modern nature writers, birds and other animals are not merely curiosities, to be viewed and described with tolerant sentiment, but part of a whole—a whole in which man, as a living creature, plays his part." James Fisher
+ Spec 168:212 F 27 '42 600w

"Here is 'Science for the million' told by a born naturalist and a writer of distinction. Excellent photographs illuminate the text of a book which the reader will have difficulty in putting down."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p116 Mr 7 '42 700w

LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS), and LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD. Death takes a bow; a Mr and Mrs North mystery. 276p $2 Lippincott

43-4641

Detective story.

"Pam North's characteristically oblique thoughts and speech, Mullins' troubles, and a couple of North nieces who attract sailors keep it well above the commonplace. Not the Lockridges' piece, but an entertaining job nonetheless." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p9 Ap 25 '43 230w

Booklist 39:355 My 1 '43

"A genuinely puzzling mystery flavored with the delightful wackiness that has made the Norths famous." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p10 My 2 '43 120w

"Thoroughly satisfactory in every way."
+ New Yorker 19:80 Ap 24 '43 90w

"Highly recommended."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 My 1 '43 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 27 '43 170w

"This is a major Lockridge, recommended for all-around consumption. . . Even the Norths, born in the midst of fastidious prose, have taken to staring like the veriest muggs in an illiterate shocker—probably picked it up in radio. This will be all for awhile about staring. If mystery characters want to stare, let them stare. Otherwise 'Death Takes a Bow' is funny, exciting and generally fine." Will Cuppy
+ — Weekly Book Review p16 My 2 '43 400w

LOCKWOOD, MRS MYNA. Beckoning star; a story of old Texas; il. by [the author]. 242p $2 Dutton

43-5781

The time of this story for high school age is about twenty years after the Louisiana purchase. Margot Paine, a New Orleans girl of thirteen, was instrumental in sending her older brother Lee, with a scouting party to Texas. When he did not return the family set out for Texas, to discover his whereabouts. The remainder of the story is about the Austin settlement in Texas.

"Education in a moss-covered convent and on the Natchitoches Trail must have imparted tact and diplomacy, for this 13-year-old had an overwhelming supply. Outside of that one small incongruity 'Beckoning Star' is well written, colorful and entertaining. The illustrations by the author add to the book's charm." Betty Swanson
+ — Book Week p10 My 16 '43 290w

Reviewed by Gertrude Andrus
Library J 68:480 Je 1 '43 90w

"Although fast moving, the plot itself is simple and human enough to be credible." R. L. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 30 '43 200w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p20 My 23 '43 400w

LOCKWOOD, MRS MYNA. Indian chief; the story of Keokuk; decorations by the author. 320p $2 Oxford

970.2 Keokuk, Sauk chief 43-2042

Life story of the Sauk war chief, Keokuk, during the years when the Indians and the settlers in the middle west were struggling to gain land. Bibliography.

"Mrs. Lockwood writes warmly and vividly of the Indians of the Middle West, in their relation to the expanding United States of the first half of the nineteenth century." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:176 My '43 100w

"Worth while and will be popular with readers of this type of book. Well made. Interesting black-and-white illustrations, mostly chapter heads, by author." A. M. Wetherell
+ Library J 68:366 My 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Sat R of Lit 26:27 My 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 S 5 '43 150w

Wis Lib Bul 39:127 O '43

LODWICK, JOHN. Running to paradise. 381p $2.75 Dodd

43-5438

A novel, picaresque in style, which follows the adventures of a young Englishman who enlists in the French army. Captured when France is defeated, he escapes from prison and wanders thru occupied and unoccupied France, is imprisoned again and again escapes.

Atlantic 171:129 My '43 120w

"Lodwick's book, although it does not reach greatness, is recommended reading for the vivid picture it gives of the chaos in France when the Nazis invaded. A mixture of tenderness and brutality, of facetiousness and seriousness, it will be of special interest to male readers." Louis Zara
+ Book Week p3 My 9 '43 750w

Library J 68:249 Mr 15 '43 30w

"It is a tragic, depressing book, a picture of brutality, purposelessness, and horror. We can have little admiration for the character of Dormant, though we must regret his agonies and earnestly desire his safety. The language is unnecessarily coarse in places and some of the detail unpleasantly shocking. Yet it is a novel that must be given high place among fiction dealing with the present war." J. D. Beresford
Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 2 '43 170w

Reviewed by Craig Thompson
N Y Times p18 Ap 4 '43 450w

"The material is superb and comes through as a great story in spite of the author's frankly opportunist attitude... Mr. Lodwick is in urgent need of a course in elementary English grammar; his publishers need a proofreader almost as badly. Despite all this the book lives."

LODWICK, JOHN—Continued
+ — New Yorker 19:78 Ap 3 '43 140w

"Mr. Lodwick's minor faults include a fondness for 'clever' writing, a liking for over-elaborate similes, an unfortunate wavering between the world of drama and the world of farce, and a native inclination towards the disgusting. War is rich in things and acts unpleasant, and it would be unforgivable to write of them pleasantly, but it is possible to write of them truly without exhibiting oneself as an amateur of nasty details. The proofreading of this book is so slovenly as to be remarkable, but carelessness of another kind is more important. On page 140 we read that Dormant's mother died when he was still a lad. On page 224 we are mildly surprised to read that Dormant's mother discouraged his going to France after his wife's death." B. R. Redman
— Sat R of Lit 26:13 Ap 24 '43 550w

Reviewed by John Hampson
Spec 171:70 Jl 16 '43 350w

"Some of the characters in the book . . . are extremely interesting. Dormant himself, however, is more interesting at the first of the novel than he is later. There are too many characters though, as there are too many incidents, and both are unassimilated in the author's mind. For these very faults, perhaps, the book shows one great virtue, that is energy. The long, the startling, the indecent, the nauseating, the pitiful saga of rogues' tricks through which Dormant passes are told with energy, and the energy has as its source youthfulness and disillusion." Lee Varley
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 11 '43 600w

"The book has undeniable merits, and one would not wish to underrate them; in particular, those passages which seem to be a more or less direct transcription of things suffered or observed during the actual fighting, or in the course of the principal character's translation from the occupied to the unoccupied zone, are often powerful and harrowing. But just because these passages have a genuine and affecting quality it seems necessary to say that many more strike a distressing note of smartness or worse."
— + Times [London] Lit Sup p305 Je 26 '43 360w

"Judicious cutting of some of the angry diatribes against France and of some of the characters and incidents would have greatly improved the book." Rose Feld
Weekly Book Review p10 Ap 4 '43 950w

LOEWENBERG, ALFRED, comp. Annals of opera, 1597-1940; comp. from the original sources; with an introd. by Edward J. Dent. 880p $25 Broude bros, 115 W 57th St, N.Y. [84s Heffer]
782 Opera—History [43-7399]

"Mr. Loewenberg has set down chronologically the appearance and performance of more than 3,000 operas, beginning with the acknowledged first, Peri's 'La Dafne,' in 1597, through a group of works, some already forgotten, that were produced for the first time in 1939. He has traced the career of the operas as they went from country to country and from continent to continent. Basing his work on original source material, which must have taken many years to study, Mr. Loewenberg provides exact dates of premières, re-examines afresh the background of the librettos and, in some cases, reveals for the first time the true author of a libretto." N Y Times

---

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 19 '43 80w

Reviewed by Desmond Shawe-Taylor
New Statesman & Nation 26:187 S 18 '43 1300w

"Obviously this is not a book for the casual reader. Primarily it is an indispensable volume for students, historians, musicologists and for libraries. But like any good source book, it has innumerable attractions for those who have some minutes or hours to browse. As Professor Dent says in his introduction, it leads to fascinating bypaths." Howard Taubman
+ N Y Times p16 Ag 8 '43 480w

"Mr. Loewenberg gives perhaps too much information about the performances in different countries, some of which might have been spared to give room for a little more information about the librettos. For example, Lorenzo da Ponte in his memoirs states that the best of his own opera texts was that written by him for Martin's L'Arbore di Diana. As this text is today unprocurable, a synopsis of the plot of this opera (as of that of Weber's Oberon) would have been very welcome. Apart from this, we have found everything in the book we have looked for. It is indeed a monumental work."
+ — Spec 170:460 My 14 '43 170w
Times [London] Lit Sup p114 Mr 6 '43 2500w

LOFTS, MRS NORAH (ROBINSON). Brittle glass. 260p $2.50 Knopf [8s 6d Joseph, M] 43-51

Character sketch of an embittered English woman, Sorrel Kingaby, born in 1781. Sorrel disappointed her father by not being a boy, and then enraged him for the rest of his life by bringing home the fever germs which killed the only boy in the family. Years later, when her father died, Sorrel was left in charge of the family business, and numerous female dependents. In an age when women did not engage in business, Sorrel did, and reaped the benefit of her hardihood.

Booklist 39:224 F 1 '43

"This short novel . . . has a unique flavor and Norah Lofts's stately style contributes greatly to the period atmosphere. Sorrel Kingaby, the chief character, is conceived with originality and considerable insight. . . Technical deficiencies notwithstanding, this new novel of Norah Lofts's has a great deal of spirit and distinction, an unusual story well told." Dorothea Steele
+ — Books p5 Ja 17 '43 750w

"Miss Lofts [has] considerable narrative skill. Once again . . . she manages to evoke the atmosphere of a past period and to people her pages with credible personages, and it may be that in the creation of Sorrel Kingaby, she has added one more to the number of unforgettable heroines of English fiction." Wilfrid Gibson
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Je 5 '42 150w

"Flamboyant as this tale sounds, Miss Lofts has told it with considerable artistry and subtlety and has used a technique which is ingenious and effective. Sorrel, that is, is presented always obliquely and from a variety of angles—so that one sees her first through the eyes of the one member of her household who was ever really loyal to her, then through the eyes of her worthless half-brother, etc. The device is provocative, and adds a good deal to the interest of the story, yet 'The Brittle Glass,' in the end, is a somewhat thin and showy novel which lulls and diverts but never really convinces one." E. H. Walton
+ — N Y Times p12 Ja 10 '43 650w

"Mrs. Lofts' assured yet casual brushing-in of background might well be noted by that large company of historical novelists whose pages reek with the musty smell of research."
+ New Yorker 18:59 Ja 23 '43 60w

"None of Norah Lofts' novels has ever quite touched 'I Met a Gypsy' for freshness, gusto, and drama, but none of them ever lets the reader down. 'The Brittle Glass' is one of the best." Rebecca Lowrie
+ Sat R of Lit 26:13 My 15 '43 270w

"Miss Lofts had a promising idea which is well supported in her opening chapters by the unaffected ease of her writing and by her general talent for good, natural narrative. Indeed, throughout the book the writing is good and simple, and the writer's manner inspires a confidence which nevertheless, at this attempt, she does not justify. For what matters in this story, what we should understand is the character of the girl, Sorrel Kingaby—and she is not made clear to us. We are told a great deal about her: we are made familiar with her looks, her manner, her complicated circumstances and the impressions she made on a variety of people; but we are withheld from inside knowledge, and at the end Miss Lofts can only leave us surmising, as a biographer might have to, but as a novelist may not." Kate O'Brien

+ — Spec 168:564 Je 12 '42 380w

"Put together out of what Miss Lofts terms 'bits and pieces' there is little satisfaction in reading 'The Brittle Glass,' which bye the bye is a Swinburnian quotation quite appropriate to the unoriented story. There is a smooth, readable clarity to Miss Lofts' style, an apt choice of descriptive phrasing and color which have been used with more merit in her previous novels. In 'The Brittle Glass' the characters are expertly sketched, and there is material for a novel present, but the material has been so dissipated through the varied construction that interest wanes, and the thin spread of fiction does not carry the novel to any justifiable climax." L. S. M.

— + Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 10 '43 360w

"Mrs. Lofts writes with ease and grace and sees to it that the story has its dramatic moments. But this is far from being the best she can do. The book is a little thin, seems to have been put together somewhat hastily and leaves a long trail of loose ends at the close."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p269 My 30 '42 420w

LOGIE, IONA MARGARET ROBERTSON, ed. Careers in the making; second series; readings in modern biography as studies in vocational guidance. 243p $1.40 Harper

920 U.S.—Biography. Profession, Choice of. Vocational guidance 42-22755

"Twenty-four articles and extracts from biographies and autobiographies present the early life and preparation for life work of men and women representative of various occupations and professions. Several of the selections appeared in the first series (Book Review Digest, 1932). The bibliography that appeared in the first series is brought up to date and the titles related to the vocation are listed at the end of the individual selection. The longer list of 200 varied biographies, arranged by vocation, is given in the appendix." Booklist

---

Booklist 39:251 F 15 '43

Wis Lib Bul 39:105 Jl '43

LOKKEN, ROSCOE L. Iowa public land disposal. (Iowa centennial history) 318p maps $3 Iowa state hist. soc.

333.1 Iowa—Public lands 42-37053

"This book describes the policies and procedure of the Federal government in disposing of the public domain in Iowa. Title to every piece of real estate can be traced back through private ownership to a homestead, warrant, purchase, land grant, or preemption claim located according to the official survey. These original transactions determined to a large extent the later developments of the State." (Editor's note) Index.

"The value of this study might have been increased if the author had made more extensive use of the records of the General Land Office in the National Archives, especially the correspondence of the commissioner. The book has a fine format and an attractive binding. It has a good index, and the lack of a bibliography is compensated for by excellent notes and references. It is a valuable contribution to an understanding of our public land policy." F. P. Wirth

+ Am Hist R 48:433 Ja '43 180w

Social Studies 33:336 N '42 20w

LOMAX, MRS ELIZABETH VIRGINIA (LINDSAY). Leaves from an old Washington diary, 1854-1863; ed. by Lindsay Lomax Wood. 256p $2.50 Dutton

973.782 Washington, D.C.—Social life and customs 43-15292

Selections from a diary kept from 1854 to 1863 by the editor's grandmother. It pictures life in a fine Washington, D.C. household in years of both peace and war. A short supplementary diary and some notes carry the family story down to 1881.

"This is an unpretentious book, but it reveals not a little about life in another stirring and tragic epoch in this nation's history. And above all, it reveals a good and gentle human being." P. M. Angle

+ Book Week p8 N 7 '43 340w

Booklist 40:195 F 1 '44

"Will be enjoyed by variety of readers; though it cannot be called important. Should be on shelves of all public libraries, regardless of size or location." G. E. Brown

+ Library J 68:768 O 1 '43 40w

Reviewed by Christopher Lazare

N Y Times p48 N 14 '43 460w

"A more fascinating book of its kind would be hard to find. . . This little book of 256 pages is as absorbing as a novel and as realistic as any war book before the public today." L. B. Hill

+ Springf'd Republican p6 N 29 '43 850w

Reviewed by Margaret Leech

Weekly Book Review p40 D 5 '43 600w

LOMBARD, NAP, pseud. of NEIL STEWART and PAMELA HANSFORD JOHNSON. Grinning pig [Eng title: Murder's a swine]. 277p $2 Simon & Schuster [7s 6d Hutchinson]

43-12648

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p7 S 5 '43 180w

Booklist 40:80 N 1 '43

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p8 S 12 '43 120w

"The origins of the corpse in a London air-raid shelter are investigated by a young husband-and-wife team, who work overtime at being amusing and quite often succeed. Their method of forcing a confession from the wag who scared old ladies to death is the one flaw in an otherwise well-plotted story."

+ — New Yorker 19:88 S 11 '43 70w

"Hugely amusing, filled with action, brimming with good talk and likeable people—and eccentric but excellent sleuthing. Tops."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 S 18 '43 40w

"The principal characters are a bright young British couple who like Hammett's 'Thin Man' pair do a lot of drinking and wisecracking. This pattern is running a little thin now, and in retrospect the book's brightness seems as artificial as a toothpaste ad smile." R. J. C.

Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 110w

"An amusing, almost unguessable, exciting yarn, as bright as paint and thoroughly unprincipled."

+ Time 42:104 O 11 '43 40w

" 'The Grinning Pig,' a whodunit with a decided satirical note, struck us as fine funny entertainment, whatever the solemn consumers of staple mystery groceries may make of its cock-eyed ways." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p18 S 12 '43 210w

LOMBARDI, JOHN. Labor's voice in the cabinet. 370p $3.50 Columbia univ. press

353.8 U.S. Labor, Department of 43-461

"A history of the Department of Labor from its origin to 1921. Chapters are devoted to its activities in the fields of conciliation, immigration, Americanization, employment service, and child labor. An illuminating section

LOMBARDI, JOHN—Continued
describes the Department's experiences and policies in dealing with labor problems during the first World War." Management R

"The volume is on the whole an excellent study, but certain shortcomings should be noted. The author has not always dug beneath the surface of published accounts. Thus, the American Alliance for Labor and Democracy had its inspiration . . . not in labor circles but in the Committee on Public Information. Such records as those of this agency and of the United States Employment Service might have been used to better advantage. . . At times the narrative drags, as in the listing of proposals and plans which, at least in the author's recital, were left suspended. Aside from the factual narrative, the study has significance in its description of the difficulties of the secretary in overcoming opposition, skepticism, and indifference and in welding the several agencies transferred to the department into a working organization. Noteworthy was the problem of harmonizing the two main functions of objective fact-finding and the formulation and administration of policy." Witt Bowden
+ — Am Hist R 48:830 Jl '43 500w

"Mr. Lombardi's study is a very useful addition to the studies of national administrative departments. It shows the results of careful and painstaking work. But it does not integrate the Department of Labor into the developing issues of American politics." C. B. Hagan
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:550 Je '43 500w

"Dr. Lombardi's general views of the nature of the functions that a Department of Labor should perform are nowhere explicitly formulated. Although such a formulation might have proved helpful, his appraisal of the work of the Department has critical balance and is often suggestive." H. M. Douty
+ — Ann Am Acad 227:183 My '43 400w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:161 O '43 10w

"The book does not present any new material but, according to its own light, does a good job of presentation. A bit of reinterpretation here and there in accordance with some of the sub-surface realities would make what, on the whole, is a good book still better." E. B. Mittelman
+ J Pol Econ 51:371 Ag '43 1150w
Management R 32:84 F '43 40w
Social Studies 34:192 Ap '43 10w

Reviewed by W. J. Dunn
Springf'd Republican p8 My 12 '43 550w

LONDONDERRY, CHARLES STEWART HENRY VANE-TEMPEST-STEWART, 7th marquis of. Wings of destiny. 264p $3.50 (12s 6d) Macmillan

358.4 Great Britain. Royal air force [43-8521]

"Lord Londonderry was appointed in 1918 Finance Member of the Air Council to assist in controlling the demobilization and reconstruction of the Air Force at the end of 1918. . . For much of the following sixteen years, broken by periods of opposition and one withdrawal to take office in the Government of Northern Ireland, he was directly connected with the Air Ministry. . . Throughout these years Lord Londonderry's name was associated with two lines of policy. First, in direct relation to the air, he stood for the maintenance of a strong Air Force, distinct from the two senior services. . . Secondly, in foreign affairs generally, he advocated a firm line in enforcement of the Treaty of Versailles against Germany, to be coupled with readiness for peaceful revision of its terms so as to restore German self-respect and remove legitimate grievances. This book is the record of Lord Londonderry's service to this dual cause." Times [London] Lit Sup

"'Lord Londonderry, humanly enough, now and again displays some querulousness over the criticisms that have been leveled at him, but his book is a highly interesting account of an influential career." Harold Hobson
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 12 '43 140w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:164 O '43 50w
Time 42:98 Jl 12 '43 270w
Times [London] Lit Sup p160 Ap 3 '43 750w

LONG, ALMA IRENE. Home health and nursing; introd. by Frederick B. Knight. 378p $2.25; text ed $1.72 Appleton-Century

649 Hygiene. Nurses and nursing 43-10727

Instructions in the care of the sick and in the maintenance of health. The first part of the book emphasizes health and what maintains it, the structure of the body, and standards of good health. The second part includes simple nursing techniques, diet problems, and child care. Illustrations and questions for each chapter. Intended for senior high schools, but useful also in the home. Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 40:41 O 1 '43

Reviewed by Jennie Williams
J Home Econ 35:591 N '43 250w
School & Society 58:31 Jl 10 '43 30w

"Though intended as a textbook for senior high school use, much of the material here presented will be useful to older war-time readers on whom may devolve some of the duties delegated in time of peace to professional nurses. . . Schools will continue to use this book after the war, and libraries to have post-war calls for such information as it conveys."
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 25 '43 150w
Wis Lib Bul 39:142 N '43

LONG, AMELIA REYNOLDS. Death wears a scarab. 255p $2 Phoenix 43-8701

Detective story.

"An unusually complicated crime puzzle." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Je 20 '43 130w

"Lavish supply of paraphernalia, mummies, etc. and good finish, but story as whole doesn't quite jell. Average."
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:20 Je 12 '43 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Je 27 '43 200w

LONG, AMELIA REYNOLDS. Triple cross murders. (Alliance bk) 221p $2 Ziff-Davis 43-16387

Detective story.

"Good suspense, if you can keep up with who's who and who's just masquerading as who. And smoothly told."
+ — Book Week p15 N 21 '43 140w

"Clumsily constructed." Isaac Anderson
— N Y Times p10 O 31 '43 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p46 N 14 '43 180w

LONG, FORREST EDWIN, and HALTER, HELEN. Social-studies skills. 117p il $1.50 Inor

307 Social sciences—Study and teaching

"Aims to aid social-studies teachers in bringing pupils quickly to a point of competence in the 20 basic skills necessary to good work and more rapid progress in the social-studies classroom. It may be used either as a manual for teachers or as a supplementary book for pupils in upper-elementary grades, junior high schools, or the first year of high school." School & Society

"This textbook, as the title suggests, deals with 20 social-study skills that need to be acquired by students in upper elementary grades and junior high school. Excellent directions for acquiring such skills as how to use an encyclopedia and dictionary, how to use a map and atlas, how to read an index, pictorial graphs, and maps are given in simple language by the authors. Important parts of the book are the individual tests which follow the introduction of each skill and the Individual Self-Testing Key which is to be used in checking the test." A. R. Motter

+ J Home Econ 35:436 S '43 100w

School & Society 56:308 O 3 '42 60w

"In this little volume a professor of education and a school principal have joined to produce an interesting addition to the gradually growing body of material on the training of skills." G. W. Hodgkins

+ Social Educ 7:88 F '43 500w

Social Studies 33:380 D '42 10w

LONG, FRANCES. Half a world away; from boarding school to Jap prison. 243p $2 Farrar

940.547252 World war, 1939—Prisoners and prisons, Japanese 43-12734

"The experiences of an American girl who is the daughter of a consular official stationed at Shanghai before the war. She was captured when the Japanese took Manila, was interned for several months in the Santo Tomás detention camp, and later returned to America on an exchange ship." New Yorker

Booklist 40:44 O 1 '43

Reviewed by Wenzell Brown

N Y Times p4 Ag 29 '43 280w

"Simply written, naïve, and touching."

New Yorker 19:68 Ag 21 '43 70w

Reviewed by Rachel Meisenhelder

Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 22 '43 650w

LONG, MRS GABRIELLE MARGARET VERE (CAMPBELL) (MARJORY BOWEN, GEORGE PREEDY, JOSEPH SHEARING, pseuds). Airing in a closed carriage. 358p $2.50 Harper

43-5897

A novel based on the famous Maybrick murder trial in England in 1889. In a Foreword the author says: "The author has used the theme, the central characters and incidents, some parts of the legal speeches are taken from those uttered by lawyers and judge during the hearing of this case. For the rest—and in particular for the psychology that is at once the core of the story and the solution of the mystery in which this judicial drama has always been obscured, the author is alone responsible."

Reviewed by Marion Neville

Book Week p5 Je 13 '43 250w

Booklist 39:426 Je 15 '43

New Repub 108:677 My 17 '43 90w

" 'Airing in a Closed Carriage' is from every point of view quite first-class Shearing. It tells an absorbing horror story, which is all the more terrible because no physical horror is presented in it, and the author's deep, bitter indignation against cruelty and wrongdoing is all the more impressive because of the apparent coldness of the style." Edward Wagenknecht

+ N Y Times p2 My 2 '43 3100w

"Superb novel. . . This story of stupidity and malice in the English manufacturing town of Manchester is frightening, and the author has had the good taste to omit unwelcome touches of lightness and humor. Mrs. Maybrick's case was a shocking one, and Mr. Shearing pursues it relentlessly."

+ New Yorker 19:76 My 1 '43 140w

Times [London] Lit Sup p623 D 25 '43 360w

"A handsome job it is; elegant reading for various customers and enough to make the members of the Shearing cult hysterical with joy." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p24 Ap 25 '43 700w

LONG, MANNING. False alarm. 278p $2 Duell

43-7896

Mystery story.

"If all murderers' motives were as slight as this one's, we'd all need bodyguards. But the sprightly and amusing dialogue will make you feel forgiving of the plot's imperfections." Elizabeth Bullock

+ — Book Week p9 My 16 '43 180w

"A good murder story with emotional entanglements to befog the issue. Lively dialogue and situations that are amusing when they are not deadly." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p8 My 9 '43 120w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p16 My 2 '43 130w

LONG, MORDEN HEATON. History of the Canadian people; with il. and maps by C. W. Jefferys; v. 1, New France. 376p $4.50 Humphries

971 Canada—History (42-50935)

"The first volume of Morden H. Long's history is a topical treatment of the colorful history of the French regime in Canada. The epics of exploration, settlement and missionary enterprise, the evolution of government and economic life, and finally the supreme struggle between Great Britain and France for North America are all well covered." Current Hist

"Errors of fact are numerous but unimportant; the bibliography at the end of the book is small but well selected. As a series of essays on the various aspects of life in French Canada, then, this book is a good and useful survey." Max Savelle

+ — Am Hist R 49:132 O '43 650w

Reviewed by J. P. Pritchett

Ann Am Acad 229:217 S '43 380w

Booklist 39:317 Ap 1 '43

Reviewed by Edgar McInnis

Canadian Forum 22:281 D '42 750w

"Mr. Long's work . . . is written in a quiet, dignified style that sometimes rises to a restrained eloquence: it is lucid in expression and systematic in arrangement. It takes note of the accumulated primary research." A. R. M. Lower

+ Canadian Hist R 24:304 S '43 1000w

Reviewed by J. S. Gurley

Current Hist 3:357 D '42 80w

"This work clearly reveals that it is possible to make use of all the available knowledge on a subject, to interpret it in a sound and even original way, and still fail to write a great work. This is largely because, in facing what is probably the crucial problem of presentation, the choice between a chronological and a topical treatment, he has chosen the second and carried it to the extreme. . . It must be admitted, however, that the topical approach has its advantages, and that much is made clearer by its use." H. P. Whiddin, Jr.

+ — Sat R of Lit 25:9 N 28 '42 470w

Times [London] Lit Sup p178 Ap 10 '43 700w

LONG, ZADOC. From the journal of [the author], 1800-73; ed. by Peirce Long. 316p il $4 Caxton printers

B or 92 43-7563

Journal of a New England gentleman, kept for a period of some fifty years—from about 1822 to 1873, and here edited by his grandson. The journal records the author's personal life and his pithy comments on politics both local and national. Genealogical tables. Index.

LONG, ZADOC—Continued

"There is much in the journal which is the stuff of which historical novels are made, but as it stands it will receive scant attention. Those whose interest lies in historical research should find it very worthwhile." M. I. T.
+ Canadian Forum 23:95 Jl '43 210w

"The whole book smacks of the soil. It can be recommended to collectors of Americana and will be especially enjoyed by ingrained New Englanders." E. G. Eastman
+ N Y Times p24 O 3 '43 500w

LONGSTREET, STEPHEN (THOMAS BURTON, DAVID ORMSBEE, pseuds). Chico goes to the wars; a chronicle . . . 1933-1943. 403p il $3 Dutton

940.5 Spain—History—Civil war, 1936-1939. World war, 1939- 43-5447

"Chico is a real person, but he is a composite; he is the author and several friends (and one enemy) of his, to say nothing of some reporters and writers. He pictures places, people, armies and wars, beginning at Vienna in 1933 and ending in the United States today. He does not pretty these pictures; they include 'the hopes and foulness of mankind and the heavy, purposeless splendor of war.'" N Y Times

"Many of the notes have the vitality, prejudice, freshness and originality of firsthand accounts; others seem little more than a barnstormer's views on international society salted with some pungent summaries of why wars inevitably arise out of basic maladjustments. . . When Chico comes to the Far East he is more reasonable, probably because he seems to have listened to well-informed people. He quotes sage and eloquent authorities and ends his notebooks with some good American portraits and a stirring call to the conscience of mankind." Josephine Herbst
+ — Book Week p7 Ap 18 '43 700w

"Ormsbee has written a book so real that the hundred-odd line drawings that illustrate it give it no more than an adequate accent." E. F. Allen
N Y Times p8 Ap 4 '43 600w

Reviewed by Benjamin Appel
Sat R of Lit 26:16 Ap 24 '43 550w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 11 '43 800w

"A book with a world span approached with a sympathetic heart and a vivid imagination." F. H. Bullock
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Mr 28 '43 1250w

LONGSTREET, STEPHEN (THOMAS BURTON, DAVID ORMSBEE, pseuds). Land I live. 434p $2.50 Random house

43-5527

A picture of life in an American steel city from the time of the first World war, thru the prohibition era and the depression, which ends with the present war. The narrator is one Dave Ormsbee, an artist, who is the youngest of four sons of a family of Allegheny pioneers. The story of his family provides the backbone of the novel: Gramp, the pioneer, who fought legal battles to keep his land holdings—and lost; Vicky, Gramp's daughter, the shrewish, vivacious mother of the Ormsbee boys; Pete, their idealist father, crushed by Vicky's scorn; Dris, the oldest son, who became a presidential nominee; Doug, who made a fortune; and Dennis, the preacher.

"'The Land I Live' is almost a work of maturity and restraint. By any name, Stephen Longstreet is scarcely my favorite literary figure: to borrow the manner of his own irritating title, the man I read is not the kind of man I like to think wandering with a typewriter through the land I live. Diffuse and pretentious, 'The Land I Live' is difficult to get the point of. . . We have all the proof we need these days that to be soft with words and sentiments is to be irresponsible with ideas and eventually dangerous; so here is at least one reviewer who gives notice that should David Ormsbee's brother be acclaimed for nomination to the White House, she will not vote for him because she doesn't like his author's style." Diana Trilling
Nation 156:321 F 27 '43 600w

"Longstreet puts plenty of yeast in his writing which gives a surface ferment, but the material for making a loaf of bread is lacking." Rose Feld
+ — N Y Times p24 F 21 '43 800w

"The whole business makes one feel that if Mr. L.-O.-B.-W. would let the Destiny of Man and the Destiny of American and Oh, the Pity of It All alone for a while and try simply telling a first-rate story he would be quite likely to manage the business and do a corking good job at it." C. G. Escourt
Sat R of Lit 26:11 F 27 '43 400w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
Weekly Book Review p4 F 28 '43 1350w

LONGSTRETH, THOMAS MORRIS. Knowing the weather. 150p il $1.69 Macmillan

551.5 Weather 43-16656

"This is not a text in weather science, but the layman who reads it will have a pretty good idea of the numerous factors that make weather what it is. At the end are given a bibliography of more advanced books, a brief glossary and other data." Weekly Book Review

Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '43

Library J 68:670 S 1 '43 10w

Reviewed by B. B. Lane
Library J 68:1051 D 15 '43 90w

"This book is primarily for the amateur market in the sense that the stress is on weather as a fascination, rather than as a matter of life and death. Yet I suggest that it is not the book for a rank beginner. Mr. Longstreth is no simplifier. His material is comprehensive. Yet he presents this great mass of information in a pleasantly rambling style that would be excellent were there one third the material, but which here results too often in confusion—unless one is forearmed by some sort of contact with weather shop talk. Within each chapter the sequence of events is often haphazard, even elliptical. Technical terms are inadequately explained, occasionally there is no explanation whatsoever—inadvertently, it seems. Thus in spite of the engaging and lively manner of presentation few real beginners can hope to follow Mr. Longstreth's arguments in detail." E. T. Canby
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:18 D 18 '43 450w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p45 N 14 '43 80w

LORAC, E. C. R., pseud. See Rivett, E. C.

LORD, GARLAND, pseud. of ISABEL GARLAND and MINDRET LORD. Murder, plain and fancy. 263p $2 Doubleday

43-981

Detective story.

"This contains some nice small-town background." Will Cuppy
Books p20 Ja 17 '43 180w

"The love story which looms rather large in this book makes better sense than does the mystery. The latter needs to have a few points more fully explained." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p24 Ja 17 '43 160w

"Plenty of eerie atmosphere, some good village character-studies, romance, engaging sleuth, and plot that jells a bit too suddenly. Agreeable."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ja 30 '43 50w

LORD, GARLAND, pseud. of ISABEL GARLAND and MINDRET LORD. Murder with love. 217p $2 Morrow

43-15361

Detective story.

"This is a sandwich mystery: the beginning is lame, the end reveals a very minor and undeveloped character as the villain, and in between it's very good. But why, oh, why, when the men have names like Hugh, Mark and Curt (on the fancy side, but recognizable) do the two beautiful McKay wards have to be called Maran and Roncevald?" Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p15 N 21 '43 140w

Booklist 40:199 F 1 '44

"The story is well plotted and skillfully told." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p50 N 14 '43 120w

"You've encountered this idea before, but it's entertainingly presented."

+ New Yorker 19:96 O 30 '43 50w

"This contains plenty of love, a generous ration of startling events and a screwball atmosphere in spots." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p28 O 31 '43 200w

LORENZ, LINCOLN. John Paul Jones; fighter for freedom and glory. 846p il maps $5 U.S. Naval inst.

B or 92 Jones, John Paul 43-7112

"This new biography of John Paul Jones is a serious and painstaking attempt to evaluate the career of the brilliant, the intrepid and the withal enigmatic officer who gave our Navy its first traditions of victory. Because of the considerably expanded body of source material becoming available since the last full-dress Jones biography—the still valuable two-volume study by Mrs. De Koven, published 1913—the present book was one which required writing. It is apparent that Mr. Lorenz undertook the task with no little devotion, and the book he has produced presents the greatest collected body of fact on Jones." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by W. D. Puleston

Am Hist R 49:115 O '43 700w

"Lorenz has amassed a wealth of original letters and documents to make his work one of solid, oaken quality. Indeed, if there be any fault with the book, it is the fault of scholarship, which in offering such a large noggin of truth has concentrated the telling into a text requiring deep concentration and study." Hall Copeland

+ Book Week p6 Ag 1 '43 650w

Booklist 40:58 O 15 '43

Christian Science Monitor p10 S 18 '43 700w

"This is very likely the definitive, and certainly the fattest, life of the man who raided Whitehaven. Its 766 pages appear to be scholarly, patient in winnowing out the by now thoroughly addled facts, and readable enough, if you don't mind a little starch." Vincent McHugh

+ New Yorker 19:64 Jl 17 '43 180w

Springf'd Republican p8 N 24 '43 410w

"It would be a pleasure to record that a volume so valuable to the student of history is equally suited to the casual reader. This, however, is not the case, for the style of the narrative is by no means as clear-cut as one could wish. The opening chapters in particular are needlessly cluttered with too many adjectives, obscuring phrases, meaningless circumlocutions, obviously part of a manner of writing deliberately assumed." R. F. Armknecht

+ — Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 18 '43 1500w

LORING, MRS EMILIE (BAKER). When hearts are light again. 292p $2 Little

43-12650

A famous American aviator home from the Pacific, the beautiful girl he is engaged to, and his uncle's secretary are the chief characters. The family war plant is experiencing sabotage, and Captain Hunt is detailed to discover the source. The secretary proves of more help than the captain's beautiful fiancée.

Booklist 40:95 N 15 '43

"It is of the best for the Loring fans." Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p14 Ag 15 '43 200w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 170w

"All things considered, this is one of Emilie Loring's top productions, as baffling as it is timely." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 29 '43 200w

LORWIN, LEWIS LEVITZKI. Postwar plans of the United nations. 307p $2.50 Twentieth century fund

940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. Reconstruction (1939-). United nations, 1942-Economic policy

Survey of the postwar plans, made or being made, for the internal development of the thirty-three United nations. The countries of the governments in exile, and of Latin America, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa and India, are all considered. In some countries, notably the United States, some prominence is given to postwar plans of the churches. Index.

Booklist 40:163 Ja 1 '44

"In its publication of this important and readable volume, the Twentieth Century Fund has added another to its invaluable contributions to the discussion of postwar problems."

+ Christian Century 60:1407 D 1 '43 330w

Reviewed by H. B. Parkes

Weekly Book Review p14 Ja 23 '44 500w

LORY, HILLIS. Japan's military masters; the army in Japanese life; foreword by Joseph C. Grew. 256p $2.50 Viking

355 Japan—Army 43-7705

A report on the Japanese army and its relationship to the people and national life, by an American who has lived for many years in Japan. Index.

"The book is another valuable document in what we Americans have to learn regarding the problems of the Orient—with which we have only begun to deal." Frederick Moore

+ Ann Am Acad 230:203 N '43 700w

"An indispensable book for anyone who is interested in what our fighting forces are up against in the Orient."

+ Atlantic 172:129 Jl '43 90w

"Here is a disturbing and valuable book. Its fault, if this fault can be claimed against it, is that it presents the problem and then leaves that problem with no suggested solution." Mark Saxton

+ Book Week p3 Je 20 '43 650w

Booklist 39:440 Jl 1 '43

"The judgment, already expressed by some competent critics, that this is 'the best recent book on Japan's war effort and her army,' is one in which I concur. 'A primary axiom of war,' says Joseph C. Grew in an endorsement of the volume, 'is to know your enemy.' On finishing this book one feels that one knows not only what we are up against in endeavoring to deny Japan's military machine the fruits of its ruthless conquest of Asia, but also 'how Japan gets that way.'" T. T. Brumbaugh

+ Christian Century 60:1104 S 29 '43 750w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:166 O '43 40w

"It is well organized and highly detailed and makes a useful handbook on the Japanese military." Helen Mears

+ New Repub 109:292 Ag 30 '43 200w

"Among the many books about Japan that have appeared since Pearl Harbor this is one of the few that could fairly be called indispensable for its high informational content. The author has learned about as much as any foreigner could learn about the organization and psychology and training and general make-up of the Japanese Army. And he puts his material

LORY, HILLIS—Continued
together in the style of a good military report, without padding and exaggeration." W. H. Chamberlin
+ N Y Times p4 My 23 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Frederick Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 8 '43 550w

Time 41:104 Je 28 '43 150w

Reviewed by Joseph Newman
Weekly Book Review p12 Jl 25 '43 1100w

LOTHAR, ERNST. Beneath another sun [tr. by Barrows Mussey]. 420p $2.75 Doubleday 43-51017

Novel of the South Tyrol at the time of the German-Italian agreement and later. Especially it is the story of one Tyrolese family, the Mumelters, transplanted to the Czech Protectorate, where the older brother and sister become part of the underground liberation movement. The younger brother, a member of the Hitler Youth, betrays his own brother and the latter's American wife.

"Mr. Lothar has written a full-bodied, very serious novel. His Fascists and Nazis are of varying shades of black; his Americans owe more to Hollywood and Sinclair Lewis than to the author's residence among us. But there is fine courage in the book, and to read it is a satisfying experience."
+ — Atlantic 171:154 Ap '43 80w

Booklist 39:252 F 15 '43

"I know of no novel which gives a more intimate, revealing picture of life under the Nazis, faces the facts more bluntly or appeals less to false sentiment or idle dreams. In addition, it is a most convincing and heartfelt tale of a handful of unimportant people in whom it is impossible not to be deeply interested." Iris Barry
+ Books p4 Ja 31 '43 700w

"This is not 'another refugee book.' Lothar has contributed more than a good novel to Spring's reading lists, more than a record of authentic history in the making. Every day the people of Europe are proving anew the truth of the Phoenix legend. Read this book to believe in the future." Dorothy Hillyer
+ Boston Globe p15 F 3 '43 430w

Christian Science Monitor p14 F 11 '43 300w

"The story gets too involved and the reader tires. A more concentrated story told with less flourishes, would be clearer and more impressive. I doubt whether Lothar's novel will outlast the interest in the actuality of its problems. His complicated story is told monotonously and without the slightest sense of humour. Most new characters in the second part of the book remain sketchy. Lothar had the material for a great and symbolic family story, his endurance and talents were not sufficient to develop it into a lasting work of strong tension, power and poetic beauty—the only kind of fiction which outlasts the changing times." Max Fischer
— + Commonweal 37:524 Mr 12 '43 650w

"Novel is uneven in quality, showing intensity and refinement of feeling in opening chapters and lagging thereafter, except for dramatic interlude. Change in locale breaks continuity and forces introduction of too many new characters and a fantastic situation which ends in anticlimax. Lacks punch to give it popularity but is authentic in setting and genuine in feeling." Rice Estes
Library J 68:82 Ja 15 '43 100w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 156:320 F 27 '43 50w

"Mr. Lothar has a story here as well as a bit of interpretative history, a novel, despite his protestations. It ranks with the good ones of its kind in this deeply disturbed as well as tumultuous era wherein all the verities, as civilized men, East and West, have come to call them during 6,000 years of the record, are being put to the test. There are sensational passages here, trials based on actual records as dramatic as the Reichstag arson case. But this is much too serious a book to exploit merely the brutalities and stupidities of Nazi internal policies. It strikes to the core of the matter. It is one of the books of its kind—and one cannot say the same for all the well-intentioned ones—that is worth taking time out for." F. T. Marsh
+ N Y Times p7 Ja 24 '43 1050w

"A tragic picture of the moral degradation and seething rebellion which constitute the New Order, and one of the most successful attempts yet to interweave fiction with contemporary history."
+ New Yorker 18:61 Ja 30 '43 110w

"Despite the stereotyped nature of the main characters, the story is vividly told and packed with action. An abundance of minute detail manages fairly well to balance the fantastic and melodramatic elements of the yarn. Considering, however, Mr. Lothar's talent as a narrator, his obvious competence and his elaborate studies, it seems a pity that he has not written the much less colorful and less 'breathless,' but certainly far more moving saga of cruelly uprooted peasants and burghers who, in the midst of an understandably amorphous 'order,' have to adapt themselves to the necessities of their new life. The steadfastness of both their hatred and their faith remains our ardent hope. 'Reports' on spectacular conspiracies among them, no matter how well done and how skillfully interspersed with authentic documents, remain little more than exciting reading." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:7 F 6 '43 800w

"This timely tale, though we are all aware of its background and causes, gains impetus and force by the telling. The sense of gathering tragedy is skillfully built into a climax by Lothar's masterful handling of his materials, lightened only by pure heroism rising above failure and betrayal. It's a story for today, a history for tomorrow and signpost pointing the way of sacrifice to a new and better world. Ernst Lothar has succeeded in making the obscure South Tyrolean cause the cause of humanity; to have done this is to have succeeded beyond expectation." Sarah Schiff
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 7 '43 550w

Wis Lib Bul 39:55 Ap '43

LOUGEE, EARL F. Plastics from farm and forest. 159p il $2 Plastics industries tech. inst, 186 S. Alvarado st, Los Angeles
668 Plastic materials 43-3242

This small book for the layman explains how the by-products and wastes of agriculture and forestry are being utilized in manufacturing plastic materials. Author was formerly editor of Modern Plastics.

Booklist 39:314 Ap 1 '43

Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:49 Jl '43

LOVECRAFT, HOWARD PHILLIPS. Beyond the wall of sleep; [writings] collected by August Derleth and Donald Wandrei. 458p $5 Arkham house, Sauk City, Wis.
818 43-18297

" 'Beyond the Wall of Sleep' is a collection of Lovecraft's dreams and visions, tales and allegories, and occasional gelatinous prose poems, case histories and horror fantasies which form the second volume in a projected 'Lovecraft Trilogy.' " (Book Week) The first volume with the title, The Outsider, was published in 1939.

Reviewed by Peter De Vries
Book Week p4 D 26 '43 290w

"Though nothing in it equals the best in the first volume, this second installment does contain a sufficient quantity of first-rate 'weird writing' in its 450-odd pages of microscopic print to keep a responsive reader's hair standing on end for days." William Poster
N Y Times p19 Ja 16 '44 600w

"Since the literature of horror and macabre fantasy belongs traditionally with mystery in its broader sense, we herewith recommend to fandom this oversized volume, stuffed and crammed with some of the weirdest material on record. . . As a whole, its scarier than an armful of conventional fiction. Heartily recommended to all that way inclined." Will Cuppy

Weekly Book Review p10 Ja 2 '44 400w

LOVELACE, MAUD (HART) (MRS D. W. LOVELACE). Down town; a Betsy-Tacy story; il. by Lois Lenski. 180p $2 Crowell
43-51264

The fourth story in the series about Betsy, Tacy, and Tib, all of whom have now reached the age of twelve. The time is the early 1900's and part of the excitement is about Betsy's actor uncle, who had not been heard from since the time of the Spanish war. For grades four to six.

"The stories of Maud Hart Lovelace are always completely satisfying. Betsy, Tacy and Tib are typical little girls and I know of few writers who can present so pleasantly the days of not-so-long-ago when the first horseless carriage appeared, when the telephone was new and road companies still brought 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' to country towns." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p11 O 3 '43 180w

Booklist 40:50 O 1 '43

"Recommended." Doris MacDonald

+ Library J 68:772 O 1 '43 50w

"The fourth Betsy-Tacy story lives up to its predecessors in story quality, naturalness and friendly charm." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p22 N 28 '43 180w

"Just why these stories of Betsy, Tacy and Tib hold up so well—this is the fourth appearance of the little girls—it is hard to say. Their adventures are those of energetic children in any small town of their time—the early years of the automobile—yet the three friends keep their individuality so clear that ten-year-olds pick them up on the first page of each new volume as if no time had elapsed since the last." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 28 '43 350w

Wis Lib Bul 39:161 D '43

LOVELL, ELEANOR COOK, and HALL, RUTH MASON, comps. Index to handicrafts, modelmaking, and workshop projects; supplement. (Useful reference ser) 527p $6 Faxon

016.6 Handicraft—Indexes

"Brings up to date the original index [Book Review Digest, 1936] with book and periodical material of the past five years." Booklist

Booklist 39:381 Je 1 '43

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:45 Jl '43

LOVERING, THOMAS SEWARD. Minerals in world affairs. 394p il maps $5.35; to schools $4 Prentice-Hall

553 Geology, Economic. Commercial products
43-9507

"Presents a complete survey of the distribution of minerals and the effect of their value and relative abundance and scarcity on the economy of nations and on international relations." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

Reviewed by K. E. Knorr

Am Pol Sci R 37:964 O '43 230w

"At a time like the present, a fresh book on the minerals of the world and their bearing on the relative economic position of nations should be definitely useful to all those concerned with this hard core of international affairs—whether of war or of peace." John Donaldson

+ Ann Am Acad 230:214 N '43 200w

"Of course, the author could not be expected to go very deeply into any one of these multitudinous topics in one volume. . . No more than a half dozen pages can be devoted to each metal and this must cover its sources, its economic influences, its manufacture, its properties and its uses. Whether this has cultural value may be an open question—that it will not be usable information unless followed up by further study of these many fields seems to need no denial. But, on the other hand, if you are interested in a weekend of interesting reading about the effects of mineralogy upon this world of ours, 'Minerals in World Affairs' is your book." L. E. Grinter

+ — Book Week p9 Ag 22 '43 360w

Library J 68:626 Ag '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:48 Jl '43

Reviewed by T. T. Read

Pol Sci Q 58:453 S '43 220w

"A book which will be in demand at any peace conference and which anyone interested in future peace and future world economics will have to read. Clearly and convincingly written and illustrated by many maps and diagrams. Extremely valuable at this time." Raymond Holden

+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 Ag 21 '43 80w

Reviewed by T. T. Read

Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 11 '43 400w

LOW, ARCHIBALD MONTGOMERY, ed. Science looks ahead; with contributions by Julian Huxley [and others]. 640p il $4.50 (12s 6d) Oxford

600 Technology. Science 42-50127

Survey of the accomplishments of applied science in many fields, with some problems now under consideration. Partial contents: Power; Science and war; Materials of industry; Transport developments; Our food plants, past and future, by F. K. Ward; New developments in medicine; Science and the sea; Science and the weather; Flying—past, present, and future, by Alliott Verdon-Roe. The book is intended for the layman. Index.

Booklist 39:350 My 1 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 19:245 Jl '43 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:33 Ap '43

"On the whole, Professor Low's compilation is spotty. Despite its omissions and defects it will probably find many readers who want to survey all science and technology in a single volume. The title, however, is misleading. There is very little in the book about 'looking ahead.'" Waldemar Kaempffert

— + N Y Times p30 Ap 18 '43 700w

"This stimulating volume is provided with forty-seven plates and is well indexed."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p404 Ag 15 '42 750w

"Covering so much ground, most of it is quite superficial. Published in England, the British idiom prevails, though not in a manner to puzzle an American reader. On account of different practice, perhaps, there are some omissions which are rather surprising. . . However, the book will be most interesting to one who wants to get, without too much difficulty, a general picture of what science is doing, aside from its war-time aspects, which are touched upon only lightly." James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p20 Jl 18 '43 400w

Wis Lib Bul 39:82 Je '43

LOW, BEVIS BRUNEL. Engineering mechanics; dealing mainly with kinematics and dynamics; a text-book for engineering students; with 208 il, 207 exercises and many worked examples. 252p $4.50 (12s 6d) Longmans

620.1 Mechanical engineering. Mechanics, Applied A42-5620

"Covers the study of instantaneous centers, velocity and acceleration diagrams, analysis of cams, motion of rigid bodies in two dimensions, and vibrations of various kinds." (N Y New Tech Books) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:13 Ja '43

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p22 Ap 18 '43 100w

LOW, IVY. See Litvinova, I. L.

LOWE, BELLE. Experimental cookery; from the chemical and physical standpoint; with a laboratory outline. 3d ed 611p il $4.50 Wiley

641.1 Cookery 43-2730

"This third edition has been reorganized and expanded, and most of it has been rewritten. To do this and retain the same number of pages involved a critical selection of the latest and the best, and in some sections a change in emphasis. As would be expected, the chapters most expanded are those in which investigations have been most fruitful, as in plant pigments, pectin gels, meats, and eggs. A new chapter on food preservation has been added which deals with commercial processing and its effects on the quality and on the vitamin loss of the food. Included also are a more detailed discussion of the relation of cooking to colloid chemistry, discussion of the newer knowledge of the structure of food components, and some excellent microphotographs showing the structure of meat." (J Home Econ) Chapter bibliographies. Indexes.

"While primarily intended for use as a textbook in colleges and as a reference book on cookery, this excellent book is for those who have 'scientific curiosity and an intelligent appreciation of accuracy and adequacy.' . . This eagerly awaited revision is a welcome addition to the literature of food preparation." F. B. King

+ J Home Econ 35:656 D '43 230w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 4 '43 100w

LOWE, FRANK MELVILLE. Warrior lawyer; the colorful and exciting career of [the author] based upon his unfinished memoirs comp. by his son, F. M. L. jr. 215p il $2 Revell

B or 92 42-25626

Frank M. Lowe was a Missouri lawyer and public official. This biography written by his son is based on autobiographical notes left uncompleted at the father's death in 1935.

"The author has honored both himself and his father in the preparation of this fine tribute. The character disclosed is one that will be stimulating to any reader who aspires to the attainment of a level of probity and generous good will. It is a document of singular value for young and old." H. L. Willett

+ Christian Century 60:233 F 24 '43 450w

"The son has written of the father with deep affection and fluent expression, at times going a little more into detail, perhaps, than the average reader will relish—but withal the book is a fine record of a fine old Christian gentleman." T. F. O.

+ Churchman 157:31 Ja 15 '43 120w

LOWE, PARDEE. Father and Glorious Descendant. 322p $2.50 Little

B or 92 Lowe, Fat Yuen. Chinese in the U.S. 43-51083

In this "father and son" book, the author, an American born of Chinese parents, tells the story of his own life and his father's, set against a background of San Francisco's Chinatown. The final chapter relates in detail the ceremonies and events of Father's Great Birthday, when young, thoroughly modern Americans dutifully obeyed the instructions received from their elders in observing ancient Chinese customs.

Atlantic 171:129 My '43 90w

Booklist 39:332 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:16 Mr '43

"The title of his book and the titles of all its chapters, such as 'Father Conducts a Correspondence Course,' seem to contain flippancy at first, due to their strangeness to American ways and speech. But there is nothing flippant about the book. It is a solid and significant study by one of the few qualified to make it: a student who grew up in the American workaday world while dwelling in a home and with parents tied strongly to the customs, superstitions, and family rituals of ancient China." R. L. B.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 8 '43 400w

"Glorious Descendant writes with such a depth of understanding, tolerance and humor as to make this an entirely interesting and timely book." Dorothy Karr

+ Churchman 157:17 S 15 '43 120w

"An extremely amusing and often illuminating personal study." Edward Skillin, Jr.

+ Commonweal 38:18 Ap 23 '43 400w

"Author's love for America and his respect for his Oriental roots, which increases rather than diminishes after his graduation from Stanford and Harvard, show an excellent blending of the two cultures. Will contribute greatly toward better understanding of one of our loyal minority groups. Recommended for adolescent and adult readers." H. P. Bolman

+ Library J 68:287 Ap 1 '43 80w

" 'Father and Glorious Descendant' is a book that should be widely read. It fascinated me because as a Chinese I could never quite understand the Chinese in San Francisco—they were too American and too Chinese. Mr. Lowe explains them." Helena Kuo

+ N Y Times p19 Ap 11 '43 1400w

"Mr. Lowe's book was, I suspect, written merely as an entertaining family document—a sort of Oriental 'Life With Father.' If this is so, it is eminently successful. It is in turn wise and witty, poignant and very funny; and its Chinese author has a charm of writing that raises his work above the average family portrait." Preston Schoyer

+ Sat R of Lit 26:28 My 29 '43 650w

"In portraying father and his relationship to him, Pardee Lowe portrays a people and a problem and he has done a notable piece of work with both." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 11 '43 1250w

Wis Lib Bul 39:72 My '43

LOWELL, MRS MILDRED (HAWKSWORTH). College and university library consolidations. 136p maps pa $1 Ore. state system

027.7 Libraries, University and college. Library cooperation 42-18945

"Mrs. Lowell's study of college and university library consolidations begins with the broad library movement toward co-operation, reviews the factors responsible for this, classifies and describes briefly some eleven consolidations in the East and the South, and ends with a detailed study of the centralized library system of the state higher educational institutions of Oregon." Library Q

"The eleven consolidations east and south are described in forty-six pages; the Oregon one in forty-seven. The volume is thus not as general in character as its title would suggest. It is actually a careful study of the Oregon program done against the background of the general co-operative movement. Mrs Lowell can, however, fall back upon two sound lines of defense against such caviling remarks. In the first place, most of these eastern and southern consolidations have been fully described in library literature. In the second place, the Oregon plan is not so well known, yet deserves the widest and most careful study. . . While the descriptions of the other consolidations are really introductory, it should be said that they are written with brevity, clarity, and accuracy. Mrs. Lowell's small book becomes thus an excellent précis of the co-operative movement." Harvie Branscomb

+ — Library Q 13:81 Ja '43 1100w

School & Society 55:456 Ap 18 '42 30w

LOWNDES, MARIE ADELAIDE (BELLOC) (MRS F. S. LOWNDES). What of the night? 191p $2.50 Dodd

43-5350

A series of stories based on the present war, by an English writer, well known as the author of detective and mystery stories. Contents: The peach-fed ham; How the war came home to Mr. Fausset; The Molotov bread-basket; Sanctuary; Toby earns his keep; 'Tiger, tiger, burning bright'; Aspasia, the queen of the cats.

Reviewed by Edith Roberts
Book Week p5 My 23 '43 550w

Cath World 157:335 Je '43 90w

Reviewed by Sister Mariella
Commonweal 38:103 My 14 '43 210w

"These stories seem, in spirit, to belong to another war. Their background, however, is anything but dated, and it is for the picture which they give of Londoners going about their business while the bombs come raining down that they are, on the whole, worth reading." E. H. Walton
+ N Y Times p14 Ap 18 '43 500w

"The old-fashioned decorum of the author's style does not adapt itself to the violence of the background and the tales turn out slow-moving and a trifle flat. A not so good try by a writer who has done much better."
— New Yorker 19:87 Ap 10 '43 70w

"This is a war book certainly, but it is a war book as strange and individual as Mrs. Lowndes's own mind." Milton Hindus
Weekly Book Review p12 Ap 4 '43 500w

LOWNDES, MARIE ADELAIDE (BELLOC) (MRS F. S. LOWNDES). Where love and friendship dwelt. 241p $3 Dodd

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 43-14633

This second section of the author's autobiography takes her back to her seventeenth year, and to the beloved villa outside Paris, and covers the next ten years of her life. The last part of the book concerns the beginnings of her career as a journalist and her contacts with such literary figures as Paul Verlaine, Emile Zola, Anatole France, Edmond de Goncourt, and Alphonse Daudet.

"To me, even more enchanting than the recollections of famous figures, are the intimate descriptions of Marie Belloc's French family and French friends, the glimpses into French life of the period, as typified in and around the village of La Celle St. Cloud. Here all of the writer's skill as an accomplished novelist comes into play, and the result is autobiography so excellent that it becomes less a personal narrative than a delightful comedy of manners with timeless personalities and universal traits. This is Mrs. Belloc Lowndes' dearly remembered 'Arcadia' seen through the more mature eyes of her late teens and early twenties, but no less appealing than her earlier book and certain to be hailed with joy by all her friends in many lands." Edith Roberts
+ Book Week p6 O 3 '43 500w

Booklist 40:92 N 15 '43

"The life of which Mrs. Belloc Lowndes writes, and the way in which she writes, are of a leisureliness we had better seize upon while we can, for it is probably a page already turned in the history of the world." Katharine Brégy
+ Cath World 158:311 D '43 450w

"It is always a valuable experience to listen to an expert on his own subject. In autobiography Mrs. Belloc Lowndes can certainly claim that title. Those who enjoyed her 'I, Too, Have Lived in Arcadia' will rejoice at another volume of that delightful record. There is peace even in the mere reading of those leisured days at the close of the nineteeth century." Harold Hobson
+ Christian Science Monitor p17 N 27 '43 160w

Commonweal 39:20 O 22 '43 310w

"She knew everyone slightly but not well enough for this to be a picture of an era." J. M. Flexner
Library J 68:667 S 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Evelyn Sharp
Manchester Guardian p3 S 22 '43 350w

Reviewed by Raymond Mortimer
New Statesman & Nation 26:206 S 25 '43 1050w

N Y Times p21 O 24 '43 360w

"Mrs. Belloc Lowndes has lived a rich, full, humane life; and it is our luck that she can share with those less fortunate the memories she has treasured. I hope that this book will have its successors, in which we shall hear more of Mrs. Belloc Lowndes at home in the little house in Westminster." R. E. Roberts
+ Sat R of Lit 26:15 O 9 '43 850w

Reviewed by J. A. Smith
Spec 171:316 O 1 '43 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p464 S 25 '43 700w

"With the appearance of the second volume of Marie Belloc Lowndes' chronicle of friendship and of love, it is clear that one of the great memoirs of our time is in process of publication. It will be important to history. For it is to great memoirs that the historian must turn, with all his patient reconstruction of events, for that which breathes into them the breath of life—the imponderable, pervasive atmosphere of the time." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p3 S 26 '43 1400w

LOWREY, SARA, and JOHNSON, GERTRUDE ELIZABETH. Interpretative reading; techniques and selections. 607p $2.50 Appleton-Century

808.5 Elocution. Speech 42-25986

"A textbook in public reading, containing 300 pages of instruction interspersed with illustrative extracts and an equal body of selections for reading." (Christian Century) Index.

Christian Century 59:1562 D 16 '42 20w

"Stimulating and well integrated approach to the subject."
+ Theatre Arts 27:132 F '43 30w

LOWRIE, WALTER. Short life of Kierkegaard. 271p $2.75 Princeton univ. press

B or 92 Kierkegaard, Søren Aabye 43-852

"As to content, this book is but a condensation of Dr. Lowrie's much longer Kierkegaard. Perhaps it could better be called a distillation, for the idiom of this short biography is new, and is one in which Kierkegaard has not previously been presented to American readers. A short work has made possible the delineation of a classic unity and the evocation of emotional intensities which were integral aspects of Kierkegaard's life." Christian Century

"A much needed and adequate introduction of Kierkegaard to a wide popular audience." W. B. Blakemore, Jr.
+ Christian Century 60:139 F 3 '43 260w

Reviewed by B. S. Easton
Churchman 157:19 Ap 15 '43 240w

"There are a few objections I would like to make. Dr. Lowrie is so preoccupied with the 'otherness' of S. K. that he talks about it constantly from the very beginning, trying to explain things all through the story. . . There also seems to be too much reflection and personal chatting on the author's part. . . With all these reservations, the student of Kierkegaard will still have to grant that Dr. Lowrie's 'Short Life' is a very fine introduction to our hero's tremendously significant rôle in modern Protestantism and makes very instructive collateral reading for any Catholic who is deeply concerned about our separated brethren and their great spiritual upheavals in the last ten or twenty years." H. A. Reinhold
+ — Commonweal 37:475 F 26 '43 1250w

Reviewed by Henry Miller
New Repub 108:642 My 10 '43 1150w

Reviewed by C. D. Kean
Springf'd Republican p8 F 12 '43 1100w

Times [London] Lit Sup p333 Jl 10 '43 650w

LOWRIE, WALTER—Continued

"What a book Dr. Lowrie might have written —and in certain passages has written! There are pages in this book which bear the stamp of great biography. But on the whole he has failed. His work is confused, bepuzzled— and dreadfully hard reading." J. H. Holmes
— + Weekly Book Review p20 My 16 '43 800w

LUCAS, HENRY STEPHEN. Short history of civilization. 994p il $4.50 McGraw

901 Civilization—History 43-11066

"Approaching the subject from the point of view of the cultural historian, the author of this text subordinates the political, social, and economic phenomena to the general cultural development. The subject is divided into a series of civilizations and sufficient space is devoted to each to give the student an idea of the time, geography, economic and social life, and political organization, with emphasis on intellectual, religious and artistic activities. The book is brought down to date, and an attempt is made to describe some of the latest developments in science, art, medicine, etc." Publisher's note

"This volume, designed as an elementary survey course of lectures, brings fresh vigor and enthusiasm to bear upon that none too easy task of stirring the Freshman mind to thought." S. L. Thrupp
+ Am J Soc 49:278 N '43 270w

"All in all, it is an excellent textbook, perhaps the best in one volume for those who actually wish to teach a course in the history of civilization in fact as well as in name. Those who want the civilization to appear only on the cover and title page of the book will be disappointed." H. E. Barnes
+ Am Soc R 8:749 D '43 270w

"Many a bewildered student will pose the legitimate question as to the need of discussing such hypothetical beings as Chellean, Acheulean, and Mousterian men, seeing that the First World War receives only one page, against thirty-four reserved for ape men about whom we know practically nothing. Again, some readers will ask why the French writer Boileau has attracted more attention than the greatest statesmen of recent times. Jefferson and Lincoln are not mentioned at all, while President Washington and Bismarck are given little thought. Professor Lucas has written an interesting account of the development of art, literature, education, science, social customs, and political institutions. . . His organization of the subject matter is excellent; the illustrations are effective, and the numerous quotations from the sources are well selected. But there are few good maps." Albert Hyma
— + Ann Am Acad 230:217 N '43 360w

"The illustrations and maps are well-chosen, the quotations of poetry and prose are interesting, and the index and bibliographical materials are extensive."
+ Social Studies 34:335 N '43 40w

"This reviewer at least has found the volume eminently teachable and generally liked by college freshmen." O. G. Darlington
+ Social Studies 35:91 F '44 420w

LUCAS, JANNETTE MAY. First the flower, then the fruit; il. by Helene Carter. 72p $2 Lippincott

634 Fruit 43-51319

Combination of scientific facts and legends about eight of the tropical fruits which we know today. Included are the date, fig, pomegranate, grape, melon, pineapple, banana, and persimmon. Illustrated with picture maps in color and drawings in black and white. Index.

Booklist 40:99 N 15 '43
Cath World 158:318 D '43 30w
Churchman 157:14 N 15 '43 30w

"Miss Carter has harmonized her lovely drawings with the legends and historical facts Miss Lucas has gathered, so that it is a rewarding pleasure to handle this attractive book and gather its interesting information." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:417 N '43 70w

"Helene Carter has enhanced this unusual text with her accurate and beautiful illustrations. Recommended for all libraries for any age who might be interested." A. E. Brown
+ Library J 68:963 N 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p8 Ja 9 '44 170w
Springf'd Republican p7e O 31 '43 160w
Wis Lib Bul 40:12 Ja '44

LUCAS, MARY SEYMOUR. Vast horizons; il. and maps by C. B. Falls. 291p $3 Viking

910.9 Discoveries (in geography). Explorers 43-8287

Stories of the exploits of the discoverers from the time of the Crusaders down to the day of the great Portuguese explorers. Contains words and music of fourteen songs. For junior and senior high schools. Bibliography. Index.

"This is a distinguished addition to the fine list of new nonfiction books for the teens." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p8 Jl 4 '43 340w
Booklist 39:448 Jl 1 '43

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 50w

"Appearing in the body of the text the songs have pictorial value as well as folk interest. They are further evidence of the author's selective skill in drawing from the rich material listed in her excellent bibliography. While the sound organization of the book, its index, charts, maps, etc., make it invaluable for libraries and schools, I am primarily concerned with its clear, dramatic sweep from the Unknown World of the 13th century to 1940. It is one of the few books which make history come alive to growing boys and girls who are so fortunate as to own their own copies. Finally, it is a book I feel proud to see take a place among 'Books Across the Sea,' for its content and its excellent make-up." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 19:233 Jl '43 280w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:242 Jl '43 110w

"Vivid writing, attractive format, distinctive maps and illustrations make an outstanding book for children eleven to sixteen. Especially recommended for school libraries, to give life and breadth to study of period of exploration." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 68:628 Ag '43 110w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart
Library J 68:826 O 15 '43 40w

"Though the author sees the history of discovery as a whole, the portraits of individuals are drawn with skill and sympathy. The chapter on the Polos reads like the thrilling adventure story it is; Prince Henry, the wise navigator, comes to life in these pages. Seven double-page maps, grouped at the beginning of the book are not only beautiful and practical but, like the book itself, show cause and effect and tie the present and the past together. . . Boys and girls will read 'Vast Horizons' for the sheer delight of the story, so vividly told; teachers will welcome it for the wealth of interest it will add to history study, and older readers will find that Miss Lucas does much not only to refresh their memories but to clarify the course of European history." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p7 Je 20 '43 480w
New Yorker 19:129 D 4 '43 70w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 19 '43 70w

"This book has an index, a list of the maps and of the songs, and a scholarly bibliography. We can think of no better gift to boys and girls who like to possess fine and enduring things." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:38 N 13 '43 500w

"This book has obvious merit in making history a living, vital force in the developmental progress of boys and girls. Illustrating what can be done to relate a single but highly significant movement in history to a great current issue, it should stimulate other similar contributions to the educational experiences of high-school pupils." R. A. Deabler

+ School R 51:568 N '43 700w

"Its style is firm, vivid and robust, its balance admirable; it inspires confidence in the author's background of knowledge and backs it up with an impressive bibliography." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p10 My 23 '43 360w

Wis Lib Bul 39:126 O '43

LUCKIESH, MATTHEW, and MOSS, FRANK KENDALL. Reading as a visual task. 428p il $5 Van Nostrand

158.84 Reading, Psychology of 42-25062

"On the basis of their own researches over thirty years the authors consider the various controllable external factors which affect the visibility of reading matter—factors, according to them, that are commonly neither considered nor utilized effectively in connection with the visual task of reading. To printers, eyesight specialists, advertising men, editors and the like the book should prove of particular value." (Books) Index.

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 40w

"The book is a valuable contribution to the literature on reading. While it is limited to the perceptual aspects of reading, these are the very factors which are most susceptible to change through education or thorough control of the nature of the printed page and its illumination. If read critically, the book will serve a very useful purpose." G. T. Buswell

+ Library Q 13:271 Jl '43 1100w

"Certain material in this treatise represents a real contribution to the hygiene of vision: (1) certain visibility measurements, (2) study of duplicate materials, (3) evidence on effects of brightness contrast, and (4) discussion of visual deficiencies. Many of the authors' techniques of measurement, however, need additional evaluation by research workers in other laboratories. Furthermore no treatise can be adequate that ignores certain worth while research contributions in the field. Perhaps the greatest deficiency of the book is in the misinterpretations, many of which are due to inadequate appreciation of certain fundamental principles of reading." M. A. Tinker

+ — R of Scientific Instruments 14:110 Ap '43 1100w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p17 F 14 '43 150w

LUDINGTON, CHARLES TOWNSEND. Smoke streams; visualized air flow; pref. by Edward Warner. 144p il $2.75 Coward-McCann

629.1323 Air flow 43-11117

The author is associate director in charge of aviation at The Franklin Institute. "The reader is skilfully led through the maze of airfoils, Venturi tubes, ailerons, Fowler flaps and slots that make a modern airplane such a complicated mechanism. He is told about lift and drag, downwash effects and wing-tip losses, what the airplane wants to do and what the pilot wants the airplane to do. In short, he is introduced most expertly to the mechanical principles of aviation." (Scientific Bk Club R)

Reviewed by A. Gail

Book Week p10 N 28 '43 160w

Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:38 Jl '43

"This is by all odds the clearest, most enlightening and interesting of the many books dealing with the science of aviation that has appeared in recent months. It should be read and studied by everyone who wants to know why and how an airplane flies, and ought to be prescribed for all aviators-in-training."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 Je '43 300w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p26 S 19 '43 100w

LUDWIG, EMIL. Beethoven; life of a conqueror; tr. from the German by George Stewart McManus. 356p $3.75 Putnam

B or 92 Beethoven, Ludwig van 43-9718

Biography in the popular manner. Ludwig "sees Beethoven not as a suffering and misunderstood genius but as a conquering hero, quite capable of handling the world about him, strong enough to rise above handicaps of a confused and unsatisfactory love life, deafness, and, in his later years, a dearth of affection." (New Yorker) Chronology. No index.

Atlantic 172:127 Jl '43 180w

"The present volume 'Beethoven: Life of a Conqueror' is in Ludwig's popular form. As a work of art it differs only from his other gallery portraits in that it is probably duller, and it serves no purpose. There is no new material in it, either biographical or critical. A student of Beethoven's life or his music will be appalled by its inaccuracies and phantasies, and a layman will be bored by its pomposity." John Storm

— Book Week p10 Je 13 '43 340w

Booklist 39:462 Jl 15 '43

"From the viewpoint of the musician, Ludwig on Beethoven is particularly unsatisfactory. Obviously the biographer is familiar with Beethoven's music and admires it, but his approach to it is literary and pictorial." L. A. S.

— Christian Science Monitor p10 Jl 3 '43 380w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

Reviewed by Arthur Berger

New Repub 109:148 Ag 2 '43 360w

"The new 'Beethoven' is a lively, colorful treatment. The composer emerges as a heroic figure, a man of granite and of moral fiber. But he emerges also as an errant, fallible human being who made constant difficulties for those around him—friends, family and benefactors. Mr. Ludwig sees his subject whole. Though he adores the man and his music, he portrays the violently conflicting nature of a man who 'resembled not only Prometheus, but Danton, too.' . . Mr. Ludwig's evaluation of Beethoven as man and composer is just. . . Mr. Ludwig writes about the music itself with a grasp of its stature." Howard Taubman

+ N Y Times p7 My 30 '43 900w

"Ludwig's interpretation is consistent and seems to make sense, rather more sense than do his explanations of Beethoven's music, which are couched in somewhat inflated, old-fashioned program-note style." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 19:84 Je 5 '43 180w

Reviewed by P. H. Lang

Sat R of Lit 26:24 Je 19 '43 350w

"Emil Ludwig has conceived of biography ever since he produced his life of Goethe under the title 'The History of a Man,' as a portrayal of the human heart in relation to an artistic experience. When he sails forth on the dark seas of Beethoven's tragic career he sets himself a goal almost impossible to achieve in these terms. Biographers who attempt less and whose purposes are more modest and more specific have a better chance." William Soskin

Weekly Book Review p14 Je 6 '43 1550w

LUDWIG, EMIL. How to treat the Germans. 96p pa $1 Willard pub. co, 143 W. 20th st, N.Y. 11

914.3 National characteristics, German. Reconstruction (1939-)—Germany

An exiled German writer attempts to explain the German psychology to American readers, in order to warn them against repeating the mistakes of the peace following the first World war.

"With due respect for the author's feelings, which, indeed, were gravely insulted by Germany's present ruling group, it must be pointed out that his procedure is hardly worthy of an

LUDWIG, EMIL—Continued
historiographer who wants to be taken seriously." E. S. P.

— Christian Science Monitor p8 D 31 '43 470w

"Emil Ludwig is out to save the Germans from themselves. Unfortunately his German is as mythical and nonexistent a figure as the Nazis'. Searching for causes, Ludwig only finds symptoms. His psychology is that of the street-corner philosopher. His history is both naïve and unhistorical. His economics is altogether absent. His semantics inextricably mingles statements of fact and statements of value. Hence his remedies are as unreal as fairy tales." H. H. F. Eulau

— New Repub 110:94 Ja 17 '44 210w

LUDWIG, EMIL, and KRANZ, HEINRICH BERNHARD, eds. The torch of freedom; twenty exiles of history; il. by Esta Cosgrave. 426p $3.50 Farrar

920 Exiles 43-14372

Biographical essays on twenty exiles of history, written by twenty exiles of today. Contents: Ovid, by Lion Feuchtwanger; King Olav, by Sigrid Undset; Tycho Brahe, by Karin Michaelis; Voltaire, by Yvan Goll; Tadeusz Kosciuszko, by Joseph Wittlin; Simon Bolivar, by J. Alvarez del Vayo; Lord Byron, by André Maurois; Henrich Heine, by H. E. Jacob; Victor Hugo, by Robert de St Jean; Lajos Kossuth, by Hans Habe; Giuseppe Mazzini, by Count Carlo Sforza; Giuseppe Garibaldi, by Constantino Panunzio; Karl Marx, by Pierre Cot; Feodor Dostoevski, by Alfred Neumann; Carl Schurz, by Emil Ludwig; Emile Zola, by Heinrich Mann; Thomas Garrigue Masaryk, by Jan Masaryk; Sun Yat-sen, by H. B. Kranz; Nikolay Lenin, by Lydia Nadejena; Stefan Zweig, by Raoul Auernheimer.

"The two outstanding contributions, from a literary point of view, are Alfred Neumann's 'Feodor Dostoevski' and the 'Emile Zola' by Heinrich Mann. But the question remains whether exile played any essential part in the life of the French novelist and crusader, and also whether the abysmal mystic and psychologist Dostoevski ranks among the heralds of freedom and human progress. In short, the book proves one point, if anything: that a group of characters presented under the label of 'exiles' is likely to be motley and incongruous. There are too many different kinds of exile and too many different types of refugees." Klaus Mann

Book Week p8 O 10 '43 600w

Booklist 40:93 N 15 '43

Reviewed by Nicola Chiaromonte

New Repub 109:724 N 22 '43 650w

"A brilliant and variegated roster. Their appearance in a single treatise could never have seemed more appropriate. In this diaspora of the European spirit to which England and America have fallen heir, the differences of time, place and belief are amazingly picayune. The burning catalyst which unites these historical exiles breaks the sharp edges of the ideologies separating them as social instruments." Irwin Stark

+ N Y Times p3 O 17 '43 800w

"Some are rather ordinary, but the book contains at least half a dozen fine pieces."

New Yorker 19:88 O 16 '43 60w

Reviewed by Gilbert Chase

Sat R of Lit 26:29 O 16 '43 410w

Reviewed by Virgilia Sapieha

+ Weekly Book Review p44 N 14 '43 1000w

LUDWIG, OSWALD A. Metalwork, technology and practice; an introductory course to the metal trades, occupations, hand tools, bench work, power saw, metals, care of equipment, drill press, screw threads, assembling, sheet metal work, art metal work, forging, casting, tool sharpening, metal finishing, inspecting, lathe work, and metal spinning. 397p il $4 McKnight

621.75 Machine shop practice. Metal work 43-6694

"Tools, materials, and operations common to many metalworking occupations are very simply described in this manual, with information on kinds of metalworking jobs. The text is arranged for classroom use but is of value for general reference. Detailed index." Booklist

Booklist 39:459 Jl 15 '43

"Excellent elementary text."

+ Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:47 Jl '43

LUHR, OVERTON. Physics tells why; an explanation of some common physical phenomena; il. by Ruth C. Schmidt. 318p $3.50 Cattell

530 Physics 43-13950

Graphically presented scientific explanations of problems of physics met in every day life. Some of the problems considered are: "Why a boat sails in the direction from which the wind is blowing and sometimes goes faster than the wind itself. Why sap rises to great heights in trees. Why a chimney draws better when the wind is sweeping across its top. Why lightning rods protect a building. What causes a rainbow. How a range-finder operates. What makes a Diesel engine run. What happens when water boils. What is the cause of fogs, clouds, rain, and snow. Why sounds differ from one another. How the electric eye works. How television is accomplished." (Scientific Bk Club R) Questions and answers. Index.

"The language is the simplest, mathematics is not used for explanation and there is no attempt to describe experiments. . . This book is a good one, particularly for any person who has been frightened by the word physics." L. E. Grinter

+ Book Week p7 S 5 '43 450w

Booklist 40:109 D 1 '43

Chem & Eng N 21:1840 N 10 '43 30w

"Charming, yet scholarly book in popular style and language but interesting to students. . . Recommended."

+ Library J 68:626 Ag '43 60w

"Not for beginners but excellent for young student and interested layman. Recommended for young people's collections." M. C. Scoggin

+ Library J 68:673 S 1 '43 120w

"The engineer who wanders through 'Physics Tells Why' will see familiar scenes, but in technicolor. For the layman there is reserved an exciting adventure. He need not wander aimlessly through a fascinating land where all subtitles are in a foreign language. This is a guided tour, planned with great care." J. M. Juran

+ N Y Times p49 N 21 '43 200w

"This is a unique book. In it, many of the complex and obscure phenomena of physics are presented in an interestingly simple and vividly clear manner, without the use of the terrifying mathematics from which few physicists seem able to escape. The verve with which it was obviously written is all the more remarkable when one learns most of it was composed on a sick-bed and that its author succumbed to a heart strain a few months after the manuscript was completed. Dr. Luhr's untimely death robbed the world of both an expert in research and an unusually inspiring teacher. This posthumous volume is an appropriate memorial and a treasured heritage."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 S '43 340w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p32 O 3 '43 350w

LULL, RODERICK. Call to battle. 304p $2.50 Doubleday

43-51005

Story of an attack by Japanese paratroops on a dam in a western American river and how the Home Guard fared in its defense.

Booklist 39:224 F 1 '43

" 'Call to Battle' is a study of the behavior of men answering such a challenge, and although it is concerned with a hypothetical situation it makes convincing fiction." Lisle Bell

+ Books p22 Ja 17 '43 330w

"Well told; details not gruesome. Will appeal to men and boys." E. F. Kelly

+ Library J 68:35 Ja 1 '43 70w

"Though the author has not proved himself adept at character portrayal and motivation, his story has plenty of exciting suspense and with its adumbration of a Japanese offensive on our Northwest coast (let us hope false prophecy) it is calculated to stimulate the pulse of war fiction addicts and amateur strategists." Drake DeKay

+ — N Y Times p19 Ja 10 '43 600w

"In spite of violent adventure and violent love, the book has a quiet quality that is very pleasing."

+ New Yorker 18:59 Ja 23 '43 80w

LUNDEN, WALTER ALBIN. Statistics on crime and criminals; a handbook of primary data. 263p il $5 Stevenson & Foster co, 421 7th av, Pittsburgh

364 Criminal statistics 42-9075

"The author's preface states, 'This book endeavors to present in systematic form some of the primary statistical data which have been accumulating in the field of criminology and penology.' The volume is organized into five parts: Part One, the introduction, deals with the problem and the nature of crime; Part Two, 'The Extent of Crime and the Characteristics of Criminals'; Part Three, 'The Causes of Crime and Criminality'; Part Four, 'Criminal Jurisprudence and Administration of Justice'; and Part Five, 'Penology and the Treatment of Criminals.' " Ann Am Acad

"The book should not be used as a conclusive source of statistical facts on the administration of criminal justice. It is obviously designed as a reference aid for a course in criminology, and as such, should serve its purpose very well." R. H. Beattie

Ann Am Acad 223:259 S '42 340w

"The language of the book is concise and the material generally well-chosen. On the whole, the merits of the book far surpass the shortcomings, which are confined largely to the chapter on criminal jurisprudence and the administration of justice. Intelligently used, this work will lead the student to discern the fruitful, and to discard the unpromising, avenues of approach." Otto Kirchheimer

+ — Harvard Law R 56:668 Ja '43 600w

LUNT, JOSEPH RICHARD, and WYMAN, WILLIAM TAYLOR. Electricity for everyone. 649p il $3.25; text ed $2.56 (12s 6d) Macmillan

537 Electricity. Electric engineering 43-2250

"Designed to provide a knowledge of the applications of electricity and of some of its theories and laws." School & Society

Booklist 39:314 Ap 1 '43

Library J 68:212 Mr 1 '43 20w

School & Society 57:140 Ja 30 '43 20w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p22 Ap 25 '43 50w

LUTHER, MARTIN. Compend of Luther's theology; ed. by Hugh Thomson Kerr, jr. 253p $2 Presbyterian bd.

230.41 Lutheran church—Doctrinal and controversial works 43-16154

"A topical compilation of extracts from Luther's voluminous writings. The selections, most of which are brief, are arranged under these headings: revelation and the Bible, God, Jesus Christ, the Holy Spirit, man, the Christian life, the church, the sacraments, Christian ethics, the Christian and the state, eschatology. The source of each extract is indicated." Christian Century

Booklist 40:177 Ja 15 '44

"An admirable and very useful Luther anthology—or, more strictly, a digest of his theology in his own words."

+ Christian Century 60:1106 S 29 '43 100w

"This is as convenient an introduction to Luther's thought as one could desire. In a day when Lutheranism is being revived (and perhaps distorted), it is valuable to have a responsible, scholarly, and readable presentation of his works." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 157:18 N 1 '43 180w

LUZADDER, WARREN JACOB. Fundamentals of engineering drawing; for technical students and professional draftsmen. 568p $4; text ed $3 Prentice-Hall

744 Mechanical drawing 43-9790

"A textbook of mechanical and typographical drawing for engineering students and advanced workers, clearly presented and adequately explained with hundreds of line drawings. Explains the technique and symbols of all forms of engineering drafting." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

"The book is a valuable and handy text for either the student of drafting, or the experienced draftsman, as a source of quick reference for information which is normally scattered throughout several books. A most practical and helpful feature is the chapter devoted to shop processes which is almost as worth while as a trip through a machine shop." John Porsolt

+ Chem & Met Eng 50:193 D '43 250w

"Prof. Luzadder's book is new. It is designed to provide a nearly self-teaching book in which drawing is treated as a graphic language. Its purpose is to relieve instructors of the monotonous work of teaching the student the details of drawing methods, freeing them for more attention to major problems. Prof. Luzadder's illustrations are well chosen for his purpose."

+ Eng N 131:112 S 9 '43 80w

Library J 68:626 Ag '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:42 Jl '43

"Remarkable presentation of a difficult subject. So well done and so interesting that even the layman is made to feel that he could master the principles involved." Raymond Holden

+ Sat R of Lit 26:35 Ag 21 '43 70w

"Notable for completeness." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p19 Ag 22 '43 100w

LYNCH, PATRICIA. Fiddler's quest; il. by Isobel Morton-Sale. 309p $2 Dutton [7s Dent] 43-6646

Story of Ireland for girls from eight to twelve. Ethne Cadogan, left by her father to shift for herself when he went to America, found a home with a kindhearted but poverty-stricken Dublin woman and her children. Ethne could play the violin, and that was a help in the months which followed, until the day when she found her rich grandfather and went to live with him on his island west of Ireland.

" 'Fiddler's Quest' will appeal to anyone who likes realistic characters and appreciates the charm that hangs over Ireland and its people." Katherine Vilven

+ Book Week p10 Jl 18 '43 140w

Booklist 39:468 Jl 15 '43

"A warm and humorous story for girls of the middle age." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:241 Jl '43 70w

"Real people walk the pages. Girls of twelve to sixteen should find it to the queen's taste." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 68:577 Jl '43 90w

Reviewed by R. W. Stewart

Library J 68:824 O 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p7 Ag 15 '43 280w

"Written with style and humor, and way above the usual thirteen-year-old-girl's story."

+ New Yorker 19:129 D 4 '43 60w

LYNCH, PATRICIA—Continued
"'Fiddler's Quest' is as Irish as the shamrock, and the illustrations by Isobel Morton-Sale have the same magic as Miss Lynch's poetic text."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Je 27 '43 90w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p7 Je 27 '43 550w

LYON, ELIJAH WILSON. Man who sold Louisiana; the career of François Barbé-Marbois. 240p il maps $2.75 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Barbé-Marbois, François, marquis de 42-9246

First full-length biography of a French career-diplomat and government official who held office under French governments from the days of the ancien régime, thru the Revolution and the Napoleonic era, to the Restoration. Index.

"Dr. Lyon has written a smooth, eminently readable biography, gives evidence upon controversial points, and provides meticulous documentation. The reader will regret that such a long and interesting career has been condensed to 189 pages." B. F. Hyslop
+ — Am Hist R 49:97 O '43 150w

"Dr. Lyon's biography is as factual as one could wish, but always present is a deep concern with the intellectual biography of the age and the effort to locate the figure in the mental climate of his times. The result is a solid and valuable portrait of a man, with many overtones of the larger meaning of an epoch." Lon Tinkle
+ Sat R of Lit 25:32 My 16 '42 360w

LYON, MARGUERITE (MRS ROBERT LYON). And so to bedlam; a worm's eye view of the advertising business; il. by Lois Fisher. 302p $2.50 Bobbs

659.112 Advertising 43-15185

The author of two novels about the Ozarks, who has also been writing copy and radio material for Chicago advertising agencies, discusses advertising and the functions of the writers, artists, research workers and executives involved therein. She brings in personalities, humorous episodes, and many sidelights on an advertising career.

"The funniest, yet most touching; wildest, yet most honest; most surprising, yet sincere, book, in my opinion, ever written about the personal angle of the advertising business." M. G. Miller
+ Book Week p6 O 31 '43 430w
Booklist 40:89 N 15 '43

Reviewed by Fowler Hill
N Y Times p20 N 21 '43 400w
Weekly Book Review p17 O 24 '43 150w

LYON, THOBURN CASSADY. Aerial navigation. 92p il $1.50 Nat. aeronautics

629.1325 Navigation (aeronautics) 42-24509

"The cartographic engineer of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey considers such subjects as piloting, triangle of velocities, chart reading, and celestial navigation." N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 28:14 Ja '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p22 Je 27 '43 50w

LYTLE, JOHN HORACE. Gun dogs afield; il. by Lynn Bogue Hunt. 277p $5 Putnam

799.2 Hunting. Dogs 42-25616

Collection of shooting reminiscences by the gun and dog editor of Field and Stream. He has been a noted dog trainer and field judge and many of his experiences along these lines are retailed in the book. Some of the stories have appeared in Field and Stream.

"When you read this book you will be hunting with Horace Lytle. You will like the chapter on Sam Illsey, also the one about Mary, and all the others, but when you come to the chapters about Smada Byrd you will be more than delighted. Here is a dog, a female Irish Setter (a breed not popular with field trail men), that won the national championship three times." C. L. Kites
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 3 '43 330w

"The illustrations by Lynn Bogue Hunt add much to an already delightful book."
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Ap 11 '43 100w

LYTTLE, JEAN. You are France, Lisette. 215p $2 Creative age

43-17616

"Lisette is a young girl whose peaceful life on a farm in Normandy is tragically broken by the war and the German invasion of France. . . Lisette, after attempting to live in France under the Germans, finally escapes to England. Most of Jean Lyttle's novel is the story of Lisette's life in exile. Allegorically, it is the story of France waiting for freedom and the day of liberation." N Y Times

Reviewed by Edith Roberts
Book Week p5 D 26 '43 700w

"Utterly simple, this sentimental story of a young girl in the midst of war has its moments of honest sympathy and pathos. The heroines of the Bibliothèque Rose always had a few trite phrases that were really astonishingly wise. So has Lisette." Catherine Maher
N Y Times p8 D 26 '43 220w

"It is in the personal rather than the national aspect of Lisette that Miss Lyttle's portrayal mainly errs. There is the rather meaningless jealousy of Rennie's wife of Lisette; there are, alas, too many unconvincing if noble love interests in Lisette's life." Rose Feld
+ — Weekly Book Review p28 D 12 '43 450w

LYTTLETON, EDITH J. See Lancaster, G. B., pseud.

LYTTON, NEVILLE STEPHEN. Life in unoccupied France. 94p $1.40 (5s) Macmillan

944.08 World war, 1939—France. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English 43-4925

"Mr. Lytton has lived half his life in France, has studied and practised art there, is married to a French wife, remained in the country after the great collapse, and has only recently returned to England. He leaves it to the last chapter to give six reasons why he loves France, but his affection is apparent on every page, and gives warmth to his effort to make us understand why France fell and what she is thinking and doing now." Spec

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:13 Jl '43 20w

"Mr. Lytton's book is exceptionally interesting."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 8 '43 80w

"This little book is a simple, sincere, and very personal story by an Englishman who has lived many years in France."
+ Nation 157:360 S 25 '43 90w

"If his little book is naïvely written, it gives us nevertheless a glimpse into what has been going on in many a French village and town since the curtain fell on the Third Republic." Varian Fry
New Repub 109:84 Jl 19 '43 60w

Reviewed by R. A. Scott-James
+ Spec 170:40 Ja 8 '43 380w
Times [London] Lit Sup p14 Ja 9 '43 550w

M

MABEE, FRED CARLETON. American Leonardo; a life of Samuel F. B. Morse; with an introd. by Allan Nevins. 435p $5 Knopf

B or 92 Morse, Samuel Finley Breese 43-1967

Samuel F. B. Morse, chiefly known to his fellow Americans as an inventor, is here, in this full-length, sympathetic biography, portrayed also in his roles as "artist, promoter, controversialist and man of faith." Index.

"In spite of the existence of two fair biographies of Morse, a new biographer of so controversial a figure was inevitably confronted by problems requiring keen discrimination, sound judgment, and good sense. In the handling of the controversial aspects of Morse's career Mr. Mabee has shown that he possesses these qualities." Merle Curti

+ Am Hist R 49:127 O '43 800w

Booklist 39:274 Mr 1 '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 F 19 '43 480w

"It is in the two fields of art and science that we are called upon to consider Morse, and in both Mr. Mabee is of substantial assistance in his painstaking analysis of material never assembled before even more than in his conclusions, which have been generally anticipated by the better-informed, although perhaps not understood by the public at large." J. K. Paulding

+ Commonweal 37:451 F 19 '43 850w

Reviewed by Grace Adams

Nation 157:104 Jl 24 '43 550w

"More timely reviewers have already welcomed The American Leonardo as one of the most completely satisfactory of recent biographies. It is a pleasure to concur in this all but unanimous opinion and to suggest some additional reasons for admiring Mr. Mabee's accomplishment, which is the more remarkable because it is the work of a young scholar still under thirty years of age." G. H. Genzmer

+ New Eng Q 16:658 D '43 900w

"An honest, painstaking, scrupulously documented biography of the man best known for his perfection and promotion of the electromagnetic telegraph. Unfortunately, Mr. Mabee's book does not justify the pretensions of his title, for despite a busy, crowded life, Morse is a rather unimpressive figure."

+ — New Repub 108:454 Ap 5 '43 180w

"Until Mr. Mabee's 'The American Leonardo' made its appearance the standard life of Morse was that of Samuel I. Prime. . . Mr. Mabee has the advantage of writing half a century after Morse's death and of drawing upon memorabilia built up since Prime's time. The result is a scholarly biography in which a distinguished artist and inventor is socially related to his time. Morse turns out to be something less than Prime's perfect hero and something finer than the grasping monopolist that Horace Greeley accused him of being, or the snob and charlatan that his defeated rivals in telegraphy pictured. . . It is a very human Morse that emerges from Mr. Mabee's pages." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ N Y Times p27 F 21 '43 1250w

"Rather a fulsome title for a life of Samuel F. B. Morse, though it does help to suggest Morse's odd versatility. . . A sound biography, urbane and agreeably handled, but also slightly indulgent."

+ — New Yorker 18:71 F 13 '43 70w

"Mr. Mabee has done a good job, being possessed of the skill, the persistence, and the perspective that such a task calls for. There is doubtless much in this book that the academic mind takes exception to—dates to be questioned, names misspelled—for no book is ever perfect. But in the main, in terms of the man, the time in which he lived, and the civilization which made him what he was and which he so greatly influenced and which has made us what we are, this work called 'The American Leonardo' is worth your money and your time." D. P. Geddes

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:34 My 22 '43 850w

"The narrative is not only exciting but of true historical value, making a substantial contribution to the literature of invention. Allan Nevins praises it highly, but not a shade too highly, in his admirable introduction. Mr. Mabee has written the definitive biography of Morse." Royal Cortissoz

+ Weekly Book Review p4 F 14 '43 1150w

"This book does more than provide us with a painstaking and highly palatable account of an important American inventor and painter; it provides us with a new biographical talent—perhaps the most promising talent to appear in some time." Norman Cousins

+ Yale R n s 33:153 autumn '43 1000w

MCADAMS, WILLIAM HENRY. Heat transmission; sponsored by the Com. on heat transmission, Nat. research council. 2d ed rev & enl 459p il $4.50 McGraw

536.2 Heat-Transmission 42-18697

New edition of a textbook first published in 1933 (Book Review Digest, 1933). "A survey of the developments in the broad field of heat transmission indicates that greater progress has been made during the last ten years than in any previous decade. However, the new material is so buried in the general literature that it is in a large degree unavailable to the student and the practicing engineer. The purpose of this revision has been to remedy this situation." (Pref. to the second ed) Bibliography. Indexes.

"A thorough and critical revision of the earlier edition. . . This book is an excellent presentation of the latest information on the subject and should be readily available to anyone working in this or any allied field." P. W. Schultz

+ Chem & Met Eng 49:169 D '42 280w

N Y New Tech Bks 27:57 O '42

MACARTNEY, CLARENCE EDWARD NOBLE. Six kings of the American pulpit. 210p $1.50 Presbyterian bd.

922 Preaching 42-23295

"Dr. Macartney gave these biographical interpretations as the Smythe lectures at the Columbia Theological Seminary of the Presbyterian Church in the United States and on Sunday evenings from his own Pittsburgh pulpit. Enough of the lives of this homiletic sextette has been recounted to present a colorful background with interesting and illuminating anecdotes; then comes the heart of the preacher's message—his accent of the truth; and finally, through typical texts and decisive discourses, vivid glimpses into his characteristic appeal. Included in this 'candid camera' collection are five pre-eminent preachers of their day—George Whitefield, Matthew Simpson, Henry Ward Beecher, Phillips Brooks, T. DeWitt Talmadge—and one layman, William Jennings Bryan." Christian Century

Reviewed by C. D. Brodhead

+ Christian Century 59:1492 D 2 '42 390w

"Dr. Macartney is one of the best known and most popular preachers in the Presbyterian Church. He is therefore writing on a theme of which he has first hand knowledge, and on a subject which has for ministers a permanent professional interest, just as for sermon-tasters among the laity it has a perennial attraction." W. L. Sperry

+ New Eng Q 16:141 Mr '43 650w

MCCAULEY, EDWARD YORKE. With Perry in Japan [his] diary; ed. with an introd. by Allan B. Cole. 126p il $2.50 Princeton univ. press

915.2 United States naval expedition to Japan, 1852-1854. Japan—Description and travel 43-1901

"It is well for us at this particular stage of the game to review the amusing dramatic and even tragic events of the opening up of

MCCAULEY, E. Y.—Continued
Japan to world commerce by the United States in 1853, under duress of superior naval armament. The Princeton University Press has unearthed the hitherto unpublished diary of Lieutenant Edward Yorke McCauley, U. S. N., afterward Rear Admiral McCauley, recounting his impressions of this scene on board the U. S. S. Powhatan, and they make racy reading. The introductory material covers the historical background of the Perry Expedition." Weekly Book Review

Reviewed by C. O. Paullin
Am Hist R 48:864 Jl '43 170w

Commonweal 37:377 Ja 29 '43 550w

"All told, this is a book of considerable value in the present situation. People who like to reason about affairs will read it with interest. It shows pretty clearly some of the background of Japanese resentment against the West." Lincoln Colcord
Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 21 '43 1050w

MCCLOSKEY, ROBERT. Homer Price; il. by [the author]. 149p $2 Viking 43-16001

Six blithe stories about the adventures of an American boy, Middlewestern variety. Homer is a poker-faced youth to whom almost anything might happen, and usually does. Sometimes he is catching burglars with the aid of his pet skunk, Aroma, or making nonstop doughnuts in his uncle's lunchroom; again he is discovering the Super-Duper has feet of clay; but he is always amusing. For children of any age.

Booklist 40:99 N 15 '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:408 N '43 100w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 19:423 N '43 30w

Discussion by Eric Gugler
+ Horn Bk 19:424 N '43 450w

"This boy is a real boy, thinking out loud and living out these rich and hilarious dilemmas with solemn and devastating humor. The way Homer and his friends of Centerburg cope with, and master, such surprising emergencies with implications as radio robbers, Superman, musical mousetraps, ferocious doughnut machines, housing problems, and mass production is the American comic genius in its top form. The stories, too, have all the excitement of the fantastic and incredible, so convincingly woven into the daily life of the Mid-Western small town as to seem as honest-to-goodness true as the front page of the Westport Town Crier. And above all, each one is in every line, good fun from start to finish." James Daugherty
+ Horn Bk 19:425 N '43 550w (Discussion)

Reviewed by Fritz Eichenberg
Horn Bk 20:20 Ja '44 80w

"Perfect for reading aloud to groups of all ages." R. W. Stewart
+ Library J 68:823 O 15 '43 70w

"The last story, 'Wheels of Progress,' is too much of a take-off on traditions of old families, mass production and labor unions to be thought humorous by average child. Adults will find book highly entertaining. Recommended." B. W. Bell
+ Library J 68:1008 D 1 '43 90w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 10w

"Readers of 'Lentil' and 'Make Way for Ducklings' know how amusing and at the same time how convincing Robert McCloskey's drawings are, and in this latest volume the pictures contribute as importantly as the text to make Homer (even though his exploits are in a vein of fine exaggeration) a very real and characteristic American boy." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p6 N 14 '43 200w

"Most of the characters are comic types and the story frequently verges on the slapstick. . . Most small children take an unholy pleasure in this sort of thing, though, and will probably become very fond of the story. When it's not being pleasantly improbable, the book gives an understanding picture of Middle Western town life in both its text and its drawings, which are executed in very good cartoon style."
+ — New Yorker 19:122 D 4 '43 90w

"The humor that lies behind every picture that Robert McCloskey draws and every word that he writes is never satirical. He never allows his people, or his animals, to become grotesque. He draws things as he sees them —albeit with a twinkle in his eye. His mastery of his medium brings everything, from a screw driver to a skyline, into perfect harmony. What a welcome Homer Price will get from the boys and girls of America. Perhaps someday he will voyage across the Atlantic. We can think of no better ambassador of good will. In type and format, in beauty and consistency of design, Homer's book bears no trace of war economy. It is a joy to the eye."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:60 O 16 '43 450w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 N 14 '43 430w

MCCLOY, HELEN. Do not disturb. 248p $2 Morrow
43-5525

Detective story.

Booklist 39:427 Je 15 '43

"A top-notch tale of mystery and horror with very little detective work that produces results. Action swift and terrifying, all leading up to a dramatic climax." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p12 Ap 25 '43 140w

"Grade A."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 My 1 '43 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p24 Ap 25 '43 230w

MCCLOY, HELEN. Goblin market. 249p $2 Morrow
43-16765

Detective story.

"Nice color, nice atmosphere and some good characterizations embroider an interesting and timely plot." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p8 N 28 '43 160w

Booklist 40:166 Ja 1 '44

"Helen McCloy has made effective use of the Caribbean background in telling this story of the war on the American front." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p16 N 28 '43 120w

"Readers will soon see why this isn't simply an improved version of the familiar South American adventure tale. It would even be fun to read 'The Goblin Market' a second time, once you know the main secret, just to see how Miss McCloy managed it." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p34 N 28 '43 480w

MCCLURE, JOHN PEEBLES, ed. Stag's hornbook. 2d rev ed 513p $2 Knopf

821.08 English poetry—Collections. American poetry—Collections 43-17323

New edition of an anthology first published in 1918, containing a collection of English poems on wine and women, merriment and adventure. A final section, compiled for this edition by William Rose Benét, contains war poetry.

"For those who have never read 'The Stag's Hornbook,' there is a tremendous treat ahead; joy in store and fun to come!" Leo Kennedy
+ Book Week p4 N 28 '43 450w

"It always was a jolly book. It still is. And it is more insinuating and far more serviceable in this grim embattled day than it was when it served the gay and garish nineteen twenties." Louis Untermeyer
+ Sat R of Lit 26:26 D 11 '43 230w

MACCONNELL, CHARLES MARSHALL; MELBY, ERNEST OSCAR, and ARNDT, CHRISTIAN OTTOMAR. New schools for a new culture; experimental applications for tomorrow. 229p $2.50 Harper

373 Education, Secondary. Education—Experimental methods 43-17850

"This book tells the encouraging story of the success of a pioneer experiment in high-school education conducted since 1937 at the New School, Evanston, Ill. The authors contend that public education has failed to meet the democratic challenge by providing the educational environment and teaching methods essential to the very existence of our democracy. They show what the New School has done at the secondary-school level to 'explore the values of democracy, teach its processes, and establish habits and attitudes' which produce good citizens for America." (School & Society) Index.

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick
Book Week p16 N 14 '43 650w

Booklist 40:178 Ja 15 '44

"Parents, teachers, professional educators, and others interested in 'progressive' education at its best will find this a timely, well-written, stimulating description of experimental objectives and technique." A. I. Bryan
+ Library J 68:844 O 15 '43 110w

New Repub 110:62 Ja 10 '44 170w

School & Society 58:383 N 6 '43 100w

"The book is full of suggestions and challenges for all who seek to bring American secondary education into harmony with the needs of American culture. It must be said, however, that in striving to realize two purposes seemingly related, neither is satisfactorily achieved." V. T. Thayer
+ — Survey 80:30 Ja '44 600w

MCCONNELL, JOHN WILKINSON. Evolution of social classes. 228p $3.50; pa $3 Am. council on public affairs

323.3 Class distinction. New Haven—Social conditions. Labor and laboring classes—New Haven A42-3393

"The purpose of the present study is to examine the relation of occupational groups in social stratification. . . The center of attention . . . is the evolution of the wage-earner and white-collar groups of New Haven." Pref.

Reviewed by C. W. Mills
Am Soc R 8:108 F '43 750w

"In the main, the author's contention that he has objectively demonstrated a pertinent conception of class by means of specific data is justified. The analysis of data is penetrating, and the theoretical conclusions drawn are usually sound. Much good case material and other sociologically useful information is included. In the reviewer's opinion, the title is overly ambitious and hence misleading for a work of special significance. While the author has in no way destroyed the pertinence or the usefulness of other conceptions, he has contributed a valuable viewpoint and treatment to the theory of social classes." J. O. Hertzler
+ — Ann Am Acad 224:231 N '42 550w

Reviewed by B. Mulvaney
Commonweal 37:306 Ja 8 '43 850w

Reviewed by F. H. Knight
J Pol Econ 51:378 Ag '43 490w

Reviewed by Oscar Handlin
New Eng Q 15:754 D '42 350w

MCCONNELL, MARGARET. Bobo, the barrage balloon; pictures by Tibor Gergely. 40p $1.50 Lothrop

43-9928

A fanciful little tale, told in text and pictures, of a barrage balloon which managed to capture an enemy submarine and was in consequence decorated for bravery. For children four to eight.

"I'm not sure why a book about barrage balloons should be written for children under 10, except, of course, that children can be interested in almost anything. . . It seems to me that this sort of thing is leaning over backward to exploit the interest in current events. The pictures by Tibor Gergely are very good and very funny, however." P. A. Whitney
— + Book Week p8 Je 20 '43 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

Reviewed by D. M. MacDonald
Library J 68:530 Je 15 '43 60w

"The story is crisply exciting and in spite of its fantastic vein supplies to enthusiastic readers under 10 factual information on the job that the barrage balloon is doing in the war. Tibor Gergely's pictures are not the handsomest that he has done but they are clearly illustrative and they endow the cheerful, rotund Bobo with an attractive personality."
+ N Y Times p7 Ag 15 '43 140w

"A story which should please everyone under 10 who is curious (and what child isn't) about the bewildering variety of air, sea and the land craft which is necessary for a nation's well being in this war-like age."
+ Springf'd Republican p7e My 30 '43 110w

"Bobo has not the intimate appeal of a creature protecting your own rooftop, but he becomes a military hero, and his story is well told." M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 29 '43 450w

MCCORD, JOSEPH. Dominie's daughter. 287p $2 Macrae Smith co.

43-4380

"Life story of Marcia McBride, daughter of a minister in Middle Western town. Frustrated by her overzealous, domineering preacher-parent—who does not succeed, however, in wrecking her life—she eventually makes a happy landing in domestic tranquillity." Library J

"I believe that you can find more than just a story in this book. You may, for example, enjoy the especially rich and informative account of a vanishing America in the portrayal of the small town, and of an intensely religious family. McCord may not like this, but I prefer to look upon his book as a tragic bit of social history, not just a pleasant story." E. J. C.
+ Book Week p12 My 9 '43 140w

Booklist 39:369 My 15 '43

"Theme of this mediocre story seems to be contrasting ideals of robust religion and submissive wifely virtues of the late nineties with the sophisticated career woman's life today. Clean, wholesome story of family life for average reader." S. E. Sherman
+ — Library J 68:172 F 15 '43 90w

"Marcia's calm character is the most important in the book, which partakes of her strength and restraint." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p37 Ap 18 '43 290w

"'Dominie's Daughter' is not for those who crave an exciting story, but its appeal is by no means limited to the men and women to whom it is dedicated—'those children of another day who endure the unique importance and restrictions attendant on a parsonage upbringing.'" Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p22 Ap 11 '43 300w

Wis Lib Bul 39:74 My '43

MACCORMAC, JOHN PATRICK. This time for keeps. 196p $2 Viking

940.531 World war, 1939—U.S. 43-1910

The author attempts to explain to the American fighting forces—at home as well as abroad, in uniform or in industry—what it is they are fighting for. The book is in three parts: Our soldiers; The enemy; What we fight for.

"It's an excellently written book with just the proper mixture of earthiness and eloquence. Furthermore, it is the type of thing that will make you look up from your reading and think a bit." E. J. C.
+ Book Week p6 Mr 21 '43 230w

Booklist 39:289 Mr 15 '43

MACCORMAC, J. P.—Continued
Reviewed by J. F. Thorning
Cath World 157:218 My '43 500w

"John MacCormac has written a succinct and useful book. More profound discussions of the causes of the war have appeared. Better explanations of the religious and political bases of democracy have been written in the last few years. Yet Mr. MacCormac has been anything but superficial, considering the ground he has covered. While he delves into economic tensions which make for war and hopes for a new vision of justice and equality to safeguard the peace, he sees that it is necessary to put 'first things first'; he offers no social panacea as more important than winning the war." D. M. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 12 '43 360w

Nation 156:677 My 8 '43 220w

"This is a small book, but packed with fact and argument which make sense whether you agree with all of it or not. Certainly it should provide the answer for any one who still wonders what we are fighting for." Hal Borland
+ N Y Times p26 F 14 '43 500w

"A powerful summary, marred by the author's too persistent hammering on the idea that isolationists are only a little less execrable than the Germans and the Japanese."
+ — New Yorker 18:72 F 13 '43 70w

"If you like the forward-looking, hard-hitting type of thinking on this war represented by such books as James B. Reston's 'Prelude to Victory,' Robert Aura Smith's 'Your Foreign Policy,' and Norman Angell's 'Let the People Know,' you will want to read John MacCormac's new little book. Some may say that it is forward-looking to the point of generous optimism, just as others may say it is generously optimistic to the point of glibness; but the important thing is that MacCormac has supplied a necessary and potent antidote to the weariness and fuzziness in too much of today's thinking about the war." Norman Cousins
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 F 13 '43 700w

"Written in lively colloquial English 'This Time for Keeps' is one of the best discussions of America's immediate past and future to appear since Pearl Harbor. Anyone who is still confused about why this country is fighting, and what it is fighting for is urged to read it." R. J. Conklin
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 14 '43 1050w

"Perhaps, though, the best part of 'This Time For Keeps' is the last of its three main parts: 'What We Fight For.' This is the best statement of the case I have seen. Mr. MacCormac has done an excellent job." W. R. Deuel
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Ap 25 '43 1600w

MCCORMICK, JAY. November storm. 339p $2.50 Doubleday
43-3876

Character sketch of Sean Riley, a sensitive, uncertain youth, trying to forget the sudden accident which deprived him of his parents. Unable to make his way he is befriended by Whitey, a gambler and con man, but a loyal friend. Whitey gets a job for Sean on one of the Great Lakes freighters, and for the first time Sean is on his own. The book describes his evolution into a person. The story reaches its climax during the violent lake storm which wrecked the freighter.

Booklist 39:320 Ap 1 '43

"The force of the story is mainly descriptive. While Jay McCormick is surprisingly good at moments, it would be overenthusiastic to compare his descriptive powers with Conrad or even Richard Hughes. Neverthless, there are pictures and incidents in 'November Storm' which will stick like burrs in the reader's memory." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p20 F 21 '43 850w

"Again the Hopwood Awards at the University of Michigan have produced a new and authentic novelist. 'November Storm' is a sound and searching story of the men in a Great Lakes freighter. It is a young man's book, vigorous, outspoken, often violent, but informed by an awareness of the inner lives of men as well as of the toil and danger of their calling." Walter Havighurst
+ Sat R of Lit 26:15 Mr 13 '43 600w

"It may be there is less reality to some characters than an older writer would give them. Stella, who is reckless in her loving but doesn't lack nobility, is a little too obviously admired (by the author and his hero); the captain is slightly more disillusioned than is natural, by his unfortunate marriage. But these are picayune faults to find with an essentially sound piece of work. We'd like to see Mr McCormick tackle another subject in the Lake Country—a winter-bound fishing village perhaps, or one of the forgotten lumber towns." Edrie Van Dore
+ — Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 400w

"The story of 'November Storm,' an Avery Hopwood Award winner for 1942, is not outstanding, but it is extremely well handled. Mr. McCormick writes with a kind of quick, vivid assurance, and a keen feeling for the words and phrases which create the atmosphere he desires. The reader is left with a vivid impression of the life on the Great Lakes freighter, and particularly the scene of the storm itself. The characters, especially Whitey and Sean, are drawn with perception and sensitivity. The novel has a dramatic appeal not entirely accounted for by the plot." Barbara Woollcott
+ Weekly Book Review p8 F 28 '43 650w

MCCOWN, CHESTER CHARLTON. Ladder of progress in Palestine; a story of archaeological adventure. 387p il $3.50 Harper
913.3945 Palestine—Antiquities 43-14608

A summary, written for the general reader, of recent archaeological discoveries in Palestine. "The purpose of this volume is to describe the methods and results of typical and important excavations so as to give an intelligent but nontechnical reader some appreciation of how the archaeologist works and what he discovers. The effort to understand what was going on amid the dust and dirt of excavation and to explain it to others, both in Palestine and at home, during these two decades has led to a desire to present the subject so that the reader or observer who is not an archaeologist will not see the archaeologist and his work through a glamorous haze, but will appreciate the difficulties and the limitations of archaeology as well as the values and the successes that have been won." (Pref.) Selected bibliography. Index.

"Much nonsense has been published in recent years by half-baked authors of 'popular' books designed to show how archeology proves that 'the Bible is true.' No longer need the interested reader mislead himself with these. There are now several excellent, well written books on Palestinian archeology that relate in brief and simple terms the remarkable contributions of this activity to our understanding of the Bible. Among these a worthy place must be accorded Professor McCown's volume." W. A. Irwin
+ Christian Century 60:1368 N 24 '43 500w

"The volume deserves commendation for the masterly way in which its author steers his course safely between the Scylla of ponderous and technical detail, and the Charybdis of that undue popularization which is apt to misinterpret facts in the interests of color or sensationalism. As director for several years of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, Dr. Chester C. McCowan has had the advantage of personal contact with many of the discoveries he records; while, in addition, his work in Palestine brought him into touch with many of the leading archaeologists of our day, whose reports he has also carefully studied." T. L. L.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 O 23 '43 650w

"This book has many possible uses: it may be read for pleasure or for profit; it may be studied by ministers and by people who are interested in history from the biblical point of view; indeed, it is an admirable book for use by church study-groups." J. B. Pritchard

+ Crozer Q 21:79 Ja '44 700w
New Repub 109:757 N 29 '43 100w
Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 S '43 370w
Reviewed by P. J. Searles
Weekly Book Review p22 O 10 '43 600w

MCCRACKEN, HAROLD. Biggest bear on earth; drawings by Paul Bransom. 113p $2 Stokes
Bears—Legends and stories 43-16392

Life story of a brown bear, growing from a helpless cub to its great size and strength in his native Alaska. For readers eight to twelve.

Booklist 40:168 Ja 1 '44
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:34 Ja '44 110w
Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

"Paul Bransom's handsome illustrations convey the awesome power and hugeness of this greatest of the world's carnivore. Nature-minded readers of 8 to 12 will find this absorbing and authentic." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p12 D 26 '43 180w

"This is the true biography and these the true pictures of one of North America's mightiest inhabitants." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 27:29 Ja 29 '44 240w

MCCULLOUGH, JOHN G. At our house; pictures by Roger Duvoisin. [41p] $1.25 Scott, W.R.
43-15786

In simple text, part of it rhymed, and black and white drawings, the book describes what goes on in an American household from dawn until dark. For little children, four to six.

"Here is a picture book which so seizes upon a child's imagination that he can study it for hours." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p6 N 14 '43 130w

"For a younger group than the Haders' Little Town. Not a necessary book but enjoyable to children old enough to like small details." J. E. Wooster
Library J 68:894 N 1 '43 70w

"Little children will not only look at this book; they will play with it, and, in a way, put themselves into it. This means a book that they will be likely to love and remember." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 O 24 '43 330w
Wis Lib Bul 40:11 Ja '44

MCCULLY, WALBRIDGE. Doctors, beware! 244p $2 Doubleday
43-11460

Detective story.

"The realistic hospital background, the nice nurses and the supervising ogres, the odd cases, are the best part of this thriller."
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 11 '43 100w
New Yorker 19:64 Jl 24 '43 90w

"Interestingly documented yarn of fatalities in hospital for mental diseases. Criminal cleverly concealed and action constant."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 Jl 10 '43 30w

"The story is told smoothly, with quantities of hospital routine and not too much emphasis upon Hall Seven, the violent ward." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p17 Jl 18 '43 250w

MCCUNE, WESLEY. Farm bloc. 278p $2 Doubleday
338.1 Agriculture—U.S. Agricultural laws and legislation. U.S. Congress 43-9735

Study of the organization, growth, and personnel of the American farm bloc. Partial contents: Faith, hope, and parity; The milk lobby; Blocked margarine; The co-operative way; National Grange; Dollars in the pocket and courage in the heart; American Farm bureau federation: Goliath; National Farmers union: David; The commodity boys; Country cousins; USDA. The author is on the staff of Newsweek in the department which covers agricultural news. No index.

"For those with the habit of loosely blaming 'the government,' 'bureaucracy,' 'Washington,' or 'Congress' for everything they don't like coming out of Washington, this is a recommended book. It is one of those behind-the-scenes accounts, really very valuable for pinning down responsibility on a good many issues, and it throws a good deal of light on pressure-group democracy." Margedant Peters
+ Book Week p8 Ag 8 '43 650w
Booklist 39:457 Jl 15 '43

"An impartial analysis by a competent Washington reporter. . . Nothing could be more timely than Mr. McCune's book as background for the present struggle for control of food prices." L. M. L.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 2 '43 430w
Commonweal 38:277 Jl 2 '43 650w

"Presented with so much detail that, to some extent, interest is sacrificed to a comprehensive record. Particularly useful for medium-sized and large libraries, both for exhaustive treatment of this strong legislative influence and for sidelights on many Congressional records." M. C. Manley
Library J 68:474 Je 1 '43 110w

"Mr. McCune is to be congratulated on giving us one of the finest studies of American pressure politics."
+ New Repub 109:118 Jl 26 '43 150w

"Don't look into this book if you want fine writing or an abstract analysis of farm questions. Mr. McCune quite evidently has a point of view regarding farm problems, but he manages to keep it under his hat most of the time. Except for an occasional and incidental excursion into subjectivity, he is as coldly objective as a good reporter is supposed always to be. If you read this book, you are never again likely to read a statement on any aspect of farm policy without looking a bit more closely at the source to which it is ascribed." P. M. Wagner
Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 11 '43 1600w
Wis Lib Bul 39:104 Jl '43

MACCURDY, JOHN THOMPSON. Structure of morale. 223p $2 Macmillan [8s 6d Cambridge]
301.1522 Morale 43-14620

"Dr. MacCurdy begins his psychological treatise with a discussion of fear by artificially isolating the individual from his social and traditional relationships. These are introduced in the second part of the book, which is concluded by a discussion of national scales of values. In this part of his book the author interprets Japanese, Chinese, Russian, German, Italian, and British morale, fully realising that 'the factors of morale are intangible because they are psychological, and nothing psychological is truly measurable.' In spite of this methodological scepticism Dr. MacCurdy succeeds in presenting the reader with an impressive picture of the variation of national morale patterns which he condenses in admirable formulas." New Statesman & Nation

Am J Soc 49:197 S '43 40w

"Surely this is an admirable book, one of the most remarkable of recent years." J. P. Mayer
+ New Statesman & Nation 26:44 Jl 17 '43 1000w
Reviewed by Erich Fromm
N Y Times p7 N 7 '43 460w

"The title of this book does it something of an injustice. 'Structure' suggests something at once artificial and rigid, whereas Dr. MacCurdy's conception of morale is, rightly, of something vital and dynamic—as pliant, and sometimes as inexplicable, as life itself. Throughout he is sanely realistic and on each of his multifarious topics—the nature of fear, discipline, patriotism, national character and ideals, efficiency, democracy and departmentalism—he has something interesting and at times illuminating to say, and says it in an easy, readable style which flowers into occasional epigrams."

MACCURDY, J. T.—Continued
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p314 Jl 3 '43 850w

"Straight-hitting little volume. A lecturer to officers and men on psychology and morale, [the author's] closepacked chapters have the ring of words spoken and the cool reasonableness of one who, while talking, must prepare to meet and answer questions from the audience. They hold the attention, not by spectacular statements, but by continual jolts caused by coming upon something everybody knows and nobody says."
+ Weekly Book Review p24 O 24 '43 350w

MCDERMID, FINLAY. Ghost wanted. 245p $2 Simon & Schuster 43-7381

Detective story.

"Like characters, like story. Once crime begins, equal amounts of mood, suspense and action—also a topnotch investigator, Lt. Bernal—are added. This one rises to a boil quickly and stays that way throughout." Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p11 My 23 '43 230w
Booklist 39:465 Jl 15 '43

"Almost every person in the book has a secret that might ruin his or her career if it became known. Little by little, as the investigation proceeds, these secrets are revealed to the reader, and the suspense mounts from page to page." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p10 My 23 '43 120w

"Ace-high."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:44 My 22 '43 40w
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 4 '43 110w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p21 My 16 '43 250w

MACDONALD, GOLDEN. Big dog, little dog; il. by Leonard Weisgard. [36p] $1.25 Doubleday 43-7555

Picture story book for nursery age. It describes two dogs, father and son, and the things they saw while on a promenade down a city street.

"The Kerry blue terrier heroes of this book are a most lovable pair, and the text, with its unexpected questions and pleasant repetition, will delight the very young, who will treasure it for a long, long time." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p8 My 30 '43 200w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:237 Jl '43 40w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield
Library J 68:818 O 15 '43 40w

"There is in this rhythmic tale of two Kerry Blue terriers a fine feeling of experience gauged just right for the age which considers a walk down the street to be the height of adventure. . . The pictures are among the best that Mr. Weisgard has done, truly childlike in conception (although one of them bears a striking resemblance to a painting by Edward Hopper), and the text has a patterned swing which makes it good fun to read aloud." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p12 My 30 '43 240w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 19 '43 20w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p10 My 16 '43 250w

MACDONALD, JESSICA NELSON (NORTH). See North, J. N.

MACDONALD, WILLIAM COLT. Rebel ranger. 246p $2 Doubleday
43-51174

Western story.

Booklist 39:427 Je 15 '43

"A good, snappy Western yarn of the old days in the Texas cattle country, plotted and written with William Colt MacDonald's wonted deftness and distinguished by his characteristic gusto." G. W. Harris
+ N Y Times p16 Je 6 '43 240w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p13 My 30 '43 100w

MCDOUGAL, WYNNE L., and others. Fundamentals of electricity, for those preparing for war service. 388p il $2 Am. tech. soc.
537 Electricity. Electric engineering
43-4504

"This textbook and the accompanying workbook [93p 50c] constitute a first-level course in the fundamentals of electricity, following the War Department's recommended outline and including information necessary to operational skills essential for twenty or more Army occupations. . . The course is designed to supply men about to enter military service with the basic foundation for further training in any of these fields. It is presented by our 'how-to-do-it' method—a method that makes the subject easy to learn and easy to teach. The text itself is devoted mainly to principles and methods." (Pref) Index.

Book Week p10 Ap 18 '43 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:8 Ja '43

MACE, MERLDA. Headlong for murder. 243p $2 Messner 43-5430

Detective story.

"Mixed motives make sleuthing difficult for the inspector, and the reticence of witnesses does not help. Everybody suspects everybody else, and a shuddery time is had by all." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p12 Ap 18 '43 160w

"Girls should always tell the cops whenever they find a body, especially if they are all over clews and haven't a chance to keep mum. Aside from that body blow at her story in the early stages, Merlda Mace is no greenhorn at light bright riddling. She stacks up well enough with most of her rivals in the same bracket." Will Cuppy
+ — Weekly Book Review p24 Ap 11 '43 160w

MACE, MERLDA. Motto for murder. 213p $2 Messner 43-16547

Detective story.

"Some sprightly writing may take the curse off the hackneyed plot." Elizabeth Bullock
— + Book Week p10 S 26 '43 50w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 S 26 '43 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p22 O 10 '43 100w

MCEWEN, JESSIE EVELYN (AGNES FISHER, pseud). Fairies of the glen; il. by Zhenya Gay. [40p] $1.50 Nelson 43-4378

"[This] fairy story deals with an upheaval that took place in the days of sailing ships, according to the pictures, in a Glen called Faraway, well populated by the Little People. Rumors had reached fairy folk that the humans of the glen . . . were to a man going somewhere with the idea of never coming back. . . At last the fairies decided nothing was left but to go along, in the pockets of the people, to this new land. . . And this, according to the story, is how the Little People reached this country of ours." Weekly Book Review

"This story has been told many times and in many ways, until it has become part of the folklore of America. It is set down here in attractive form and illustrated by Zhenya Gay for young readers who like stories about fairies." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p8 Ap 4 '43 200w

"Rather slight story, with illustrations in three colors by Zhenya Gay. For children from eight to ten and probably for large libraries only." E. G. Mullan
Library J 68:365 My 1 '43 70w

"Perhaps not many children nowadays like to read stories about fairies, but for those who do, this story of how the little people came from the old country to America can be recommended. It has life and is told with all the traditional fairy-tale flourishes of style."
+ New Yorker 19:66 My 29 '43 50w

"You may not believe it possible to write a new fairy story, but this one is new to me, even if, as the author says, it may have been told by your grandfather to your parents, if they came from overseas." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Ap 4 '43 330w

MCEWEN, JESSIE EVELYN (AGNES FISHER, pseud). Once upon a time. 302p il $2.50 Nelson 43-14817

"Tales from New Zealand, South Africa, Latin America, and other countries. The stories are grouped to reveal the surprising kinship which exists between all countries when it comes to the matter of folklore." Book Week

Reviewed by P. A. Whitney
Book Week p4 N 14 '43 70w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:405 N '43 50w

"Another made-to-order book with a title and subtitle to catch fancy of those looking for stories of the United Nations. Author has failed to improve on stories of Walter de La Mare, Colum or Parker Fillmore to mention just a few in the field. Book not up to standard." H. M. Brogan
— Library J 68:1052 D 15 '43 40w

"These stories are, according to the subtitle, 'folk tales, myths and legends of the United Nations.' Many of them will be familiar to both child and storyteller, but some of them are new, and the collection itself is timely. It would be more of a labor-saver, however, if the stories were arranged according to country." S. J. Johnson
Library J 68:1052 D 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

" 'Once Upon a Time' adds several stories to our stock, and its facts concerning origins will be valued by folklore students. Zhenya Gay's illustrations are distinctive modern designs. In format and choice of material this volume is suitable for older readers, indeed, for folklore enthusiasts of all ages." I. S.
+ N Y Times p16 N 14 '43 200w

"The style in telling is the same for all—a fact that weakens the heroic stories and the legends that should reflect more clearly the country of their origin."
Sat R of Lit 26:27 N 13 '43 50w

MCFERRAN, DORIS. Careers in retailing for young women. 217p il $2.50 Dutton 658.87 Retail trade. Woman—Occupations
43-3050

"Information about the variety of work in the retail business, presented in an inspirational, personal manner. Photographs; bibliography of books and magazines, and sample sales checks in appendixes." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 39:314 Ap 1 '43

"Exceptionally practical, comprehensive guide." Maude Adams
+ Library J 68:330 Ap 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by E. M. Morrow
N Y Times p10 My 9 '43 120w

Special Libraries 34:174 My '43

"If the intent of this book is to amuse those who are already employed in retailing, it serves its purpose, for such individuals will read it with an open mind. The book, however, should definitely not be read by those young girls who are wondering whether or not to enter the retailing field, who are seeking specific, accurate information about retailing, who have no personal contact in vocational guidance. To these girls, this book would be a confusing, perplexing, collection of distorted statements." Grace Thorson
— Springf'd Republican p10 S 24 '43 220w

Wis Lib Bul 39:70 My '43

MCGHEE, ADDISON F. He's in the Armored force now. 248p il $2.50 McBride
358.1 U.S.—Army—Armored force. Mechanization, Military 43-51018

"Fort Knox, Kentucky, is chosen as the typical training camp for the men who make up the armored force, and a man's 13 weeks' progress from recruit to fighter is described. Excellent photographs by the Army signal corps make up half the book." (Booklist) No index.

Booklist 39:246 F 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

Reviewed by Arthur Symons
Sat R of Lit 26:24 Ag 21 '43 160w

MCGUIRE, EDNA, and PORTWOOD, THOMAS B. Rise of our free nation. 822p il maps $1.88 Macmillan
973 U.S.—History 42-21567

"A textbook on American history which endeavors to inspire a desire for and a determination to labor toward an improvement in our democratic process." School & Society

"This brief review has been written with the advice of two experienced teachers of junior high school history. Their examination of the book has led them to commend it highly, and, in the opinion of the reviewer, their enthusiasm is fully justified." F. S. Albright
+ El School J 43:622 Je '43 700w

School & Society 56:308 O 3 '42 20w

"With the exception of parts of the chapters entitled 'America Enters New World Relationships' and 'The Nation Enters the Power Age,' few new areas of subject matter are treated. To be in harmony with present demands the claim is made by the publishers that the growth of democracy is stressed. However a careful examination will reveal that there is little more direct emphasis upon this topic than has been commonly found in other good texts for the past decade. An examination of the subject matter will also show that the text is not yet the answer for those who are concerned with differentiating the courses of study of junior and senior high school American history." H. D. Berg
Social Educ 7:182 Ap '43 430w

"The style is free flowing and makes for easy reading. The authors have included some fine maps, which are so necessary in this ever-changing world. The inclusion of an annotated Constitution of the United States is certainly an excellent help. All in all this is another text in a field that is always ready and able to accept a new and different slant on a great story." J. J. Flynn
+ — Social Studies 34:189 Ap '43 300w

MACHOVER, SOLOMON. Cultural and racial variations in patterns of intellect; performance of Negro and white criminals on the Bellevue adult intelligence scale. 91p $1.60 Teachers college

136 Mental tests 43-8866

"Using the Bellevue Adult Intelligence Scale on samples of Negro and white criminals, Machover applied a statistical treatment known as 'discriminant function in connection with multiple correlation,' for the purpose of discovering if there are different patterns of subtest abilities for northern and southern Negroes, for Negroes and whites, and for criminals and noncriminals. Within the conditions of the material and the method, the project was successful and showed that the cultural differences between northern and southern Negroes produce the greatest contrast in 'patterns of intellect' and that criminal versus noncriminal comparison yields less, and Negro-white contrast least of all." (Am J Soc) Bibliography. No index.

Reviewed by R. E. L. Faris
Am J Soc 49:274 N '43 150w

"This monograph is a contribution to more intelligent use of intelligence scales." R. F. Sletto
+ Am Soc R 8:736 D '43 350w

MCHUGH, VINCENT. I am thinking of my darling; an adventure story. 292p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

43-10325

Fantasy of New York city in the throes of a strange tropical disease, which brings its victims happiness and takes away all inhibitions. The mayor resigns and goes home to play with his toy trains and City Commissioner Jim Rowan takes his place, pro tem. Rowan's own wife becomes infected and goes off joyously to play all the roles she has wanted to play on the stage, while Jim chases her from one incarnation to another until he also is struck. There follows one amatory episode after another for Jim. But by the last page the disease is conquered and the old times have returned.

"This feverish fantasy could only have been written by Vincent McHugh or perhaps by the lecherous wraith of Thorne Smith in collaboration with Aldous Huxley of preconversion days. It combines erudition and eroticism in about equal proportions; the most palatable pornography since James Branch Cabell first pressed a twig of Frazer's 'Golden Bough' between the pages of Anatole France." Sterling North
Book Week p3 Ag 1 '43 330w

"It strikes me as a disappointingly primitive notion of instinctive behavior coming from someone who seems to be second only to Aldous Huxley as a delver into the scientific mysteries. Of course an author is entitled to his own fantasies, and if Mr. McHugh chooses to make his virus a microscopic bluebird, he must be allowed his Saroyan. But I would have preferred a little less love-and-happiness and a little more of what really makes people tick—it's more adventuresome. Too, something in me doesn't relish the combination of city planning and biochemistry with hot jazz. That, however, may be a prejudice." Diana Trilling
— Nation 157:162 Ag 7 '43 240w

"Tuck this book away in your valise if you want a successful August week-end. A better hammock-and-rum-collins novel may turn up before the summer ends, but we'll lay odds against it." William Du Bois
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 1 '43 600w

"A lark of a novel that should dovetail neatly enough into the more irresponsible of your hot-weather moods. I should add that it is a most immoral lark of a novel, for not only is it concerned with what people would do if they could do more or less as they pleased but it dares to assume that the result would be generally pleasant. . . Everything, of course, relapses into normal decency, monogamy, and monotony on the last page, but Mr. McHugh has made quite sure that you've had a hogshead of fun in the meantime. He employs, by the way, a crisp, edged prose, sparkling with real New York dialogue, gay, speedy, and perfectly suited to the euphoric mood of his fantasy." Clifton Fadiman
New Yorker 19:61 Ag 7 '43 450w

"If ever a book deserves to be described as 'summer fiction' this one does. Light, amusing and fast moving. . . As fantasy, it's better than some and not up to the heights of the best. Comparing the atmosphere of New York on a holiday as created by Mr. McHugh, to the endless Yorkshire holiday which Eric Knight created in his short story 'Never Come Monday,' the difference in grades of believable fantasy becomes apparent. There is an everyday authenticity about the Yorkshire story which Mr. McHugh never quite achieves, with all his knowledge of his locale. But who can quarrel with a book like this? It's fun—and it has some touches in it which are really high points of escapism, and pleasant to dwell on." Rosemary Dawson
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 Jl 31 '43 500w

" 'I Am Thinking of My Darling' is strictly for adults yet it is not in its final impression pornographic. The interlinear reader will see all kinds of symbolism—concerning the veneer of civilization and all that—but that you can take or leave as you like. Incidently, too, Mr. McHugh along with his poetic imagination has an amazing factual grasp of the functioning organization of a great city (his introduction to a WPA guidebook on New York was one of the best things in Clifton Fadiman's anthology, 'Reading I've Liked'). But these aspects are incidental to the fact that his new novel is written with rare skill and verve, making it a delicious dish of escapist reading. . . 'The ice cream is in the oven.' " E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 8 '43 600w

"Old McHugh hands may well laugh themselves sick. Others may surprise Author McHugh by developing a stubborn immunity to the laughing virus the longer they are exposed to this somewhat over-labored fantasy."
Time 42:103 Ag 16 '43 600w

"Vincent McHugh tells his provocative, unusual story in that deceptive prose which is so easy to read and so hard to write. There is a profusion of detail about New York City and its government which will please Manhattanites. There is a fascinating sub-plot, serious and thrilling, which traces the battle against hlehhana in the laboratory. There are bits about hot jazz, food and l'amour that combine to make a nice icing. It is definitely a dish." Thomas Sugrue
Weekly Book Review p2 Ag 1 '43 700w

MCINNIS, EDGAR W. War; third year; with a foreword by Walter Millis. 347p maps $2.25 Oxford

940.53 World war, 1939- (40-35128)

This volume covers the war from October, 1941 to September, 1942. For earlier volumes see Book Review Digest 1940, 1941. Chronology. Index.

Reviewed by F. L. Benns
Am Hist R 48:846 Jl '43 250w

"He has accomplished the difficult task of disentangling the mass of military and political data and arranging them so their significance and interrelationship are more apparent. He has done this without editorializing and with a consummate skill for disassociating facts from rumor. His narrative, however, is lively and interesting. He writes lucidly and well." W. J. Ronan
+ — Am Pol Sci R 37:565 Je '43 330w
Booklist 39:250 F 15 '43
Bookmark 4:13 Mr '43

"One of the obvious difficulties of writing history on the wing, particularly when the author is eager for his side to win, is the attainment of objectivity. Professor McInnis appears to have achieved this to a remarkable degree. He stands off and looks at the war from afar, and he does not hesitate to cite blunders by his own team, nor to make clear, for example, the superb organization of the Japanese campaign in the East Indies. One has the feeling that his account will hold up in calmer post-war years. . . The value of the book as a work of reference is augmented by a good index and an eleven-page chronology of the year's events." Marcus Duffield

+ Books p12 Ja 24 '43 1000w

"Prof. McInnis does not claim for his work a high degree of objectivity or comprehensiveness, but, within the limits imposed by writing a current history, he has done a remarkably good job." G. C. A.
+ Canadian Forum 22:334 F '43 240w

Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 8 '43 320w

Commonweal 37:619 Ap 9 '43 20w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:578 Ap '43 20w

"Professor McInnis has accomplished a minor miracle of condensation in the amount of information he has succeeded in getting into his book. His emphasis, of course, is primarily on the progress of the battlefronts, but his story never degenerates into a résumé of communiqués." F. S. Adams
+ N Y Times p7 F 14 '43 900w

"A careful, clear summary."
+ New Yorker 18:60 Ja 23 '43 50w

Reviewed by W. C. Langsam
Pol Sci Q 58:317 Je '43 280w

Social Studies 34:191 Ap '43 40w

Reviewed by Julia Emery
Social Studies 34:280 O '43 550w

MCINTOSH, COLIN HUGH. Radio navigation for pilots. (Whittlesey house publication) 171p il $2.50; text ed $2 McGraw

629.1325 Radio in aeronautics. Navigation (aeronautics) 43-789

The author, an instructor of pilots, has provided "the average pilot with a brief and nontechnical presentation of radio-navigation techniques." He discusses how to stay on the beam, how it works, and how the pilot keeps his bearings. Contains diagrams. Index.

Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:14 Ja '43

"Mastery of radio navigation technique Mr. McIntosh calls a problem in mental visualization. In his hands it becomes almost pleasant exercise, for his book is that rare feat in technical writing: a contribution to specialist literature as well as a lucid exposition for the science-curious layman." Theofore English
+ N Y Times p26 My 2 '43 160w

MACINTOSH, DOUGLAS CLYDE. Personal religion. (Religion today and tomorrow) 411p $3 Scribner

248 Christianity. Evangelicalism 43-693

"This is a companion volume to Social Religion, which the author published in 1939, and it is the second in a series of three projected books on 'Religion Today and Tomorrow.' The purpose of the present work is to revitalize personal religion as the grassroots of any effective reconstruction. By personal religion he means 'self-surrender to God with a view to His will being accomplished in the individual's own life and character'; and he devotes the second half of his book to questions concerning the propagation of such personal religious commitment." J Religion

"The title is rather misleading, or at least incomplete. Its reference is to Evangelicals, and the book is a Liberal-Evangelical's interpretation of Christian faith and experience, especially those aspects which have been associated with Evangelicalism in the past. As such, the book has its value, and can be recommended to those Evangelicals who are looking for re-interpretations. . . The personal note naturally dominates the book throughout; but one is left wondering whether the personal outlook is not too-personal, or rather too-individualistic, and not sufficiently related to the corporate idea of the church." F. J. Moore
+ — Churchman 157:15 Mr 1 '43 300w

"The book is characteristically clear and widely documented; and it presents a timely challenge. Undoubtedly we need a revivification of Christianity to serve as a deep motivation for the sacrifices and the devotion which are demanded for the moral regeneration of social life. Whether this is to be achieved by applying psychological insight into motivation to reinforce our education or by restating our theological positions and then calling for commitment is not so clear. The tendency in this volume is to laud the personal religion of the past and to hope to recover it under new theological auspices. But is not the problem deeper than this?" E. E. Aubrey
+ — J Religion 23:290 O '43 900w

MACIVER, ROBERT MORRISON. Towards an abiding peace. 195p $2.50 Macmillan

940.531 World war, 1939—Peace. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-10039

"Professor Robert M. MacIver of Columbia University, the author of several standard texts in sociology . . . dedicates his book to the cause of an abiding peace in 'combination of faith and perception.' In less than two hundred pages he points out certain changes in basic attitudes that must be achieved; he states the broad general principles of an abiding peace; and he sets up a specific framework for an international order." Sat R of Lit

"Everybody, or almost everybody, wants an abiding peace after this war, and many books have been written on the problem of how to get such a peace. This book, by the well-known Columbia sociologist, is among the very good ones—it is simply written, brief and to the point, thoughtful and thought-provoking, idealistic and realistic (if those terms make sense and are distinguishable) at the same time." C. A. Berdahl
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:1117 D '43 950w

Reviewed by Quincy Wright
Am Soc R 8:728 D '43 430w

Reviewed by P. E. Corbett
Ann Am Acad 230:202 N '43 500w

"It's a memorable, almost a memorizable, book. You may not read it. But it's the book that you and about a hundred million of the rest of us may find ourselves wishing, 20 years from now, that we had read, and reread, and studied like a text for the most important examination we all ever faced." Arnold Gingrich
+ Book Week p4 Ag 1 '43 400w

Booklist 40:10 S '43

"Any book written by Professor MacIver must be taken seriously. He occupies an established position in the fields of sociology and political philosophy. Besides, the stamp of his character is indelibly imprinted on the thought of our time. What he writes carries authority. This having been said, however, a candid reviewer must go on to say that this latest contribution of Professor MacIver to the discussion of the present situation and the outlook upon the future is far more cogent in the setting forth of principles than in the presentation of specifics." D. J. Bradley
+ — Christian Century 60:1268 N 3 '43 850w

Current Hist 5:79 S '43 240w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:156 O '43 40w

"Recommended for large libraries assembling collections of peace plans for comparative study." A. R. Eaton
Library J 68:362 My 1 '43 40w

" 'Towards an Abiding Peace' is not just another peace book. Far from it: it is probably the best book of this kind that has appeared in years. Dr. MacIver, who is neither a wild-eyed dreamer nor a self-styled expert—he is a Columbia University sociologist—goes at his subject with the wisdom of a trained social scientist and the fervor of an out-and-out democrat." Rudolf Flesch
+ Nation 157:218 Ag 21 '43 600w

Reviewed by John Storck
N Y Times p23 Jl 25 '43 600w

"Familiar ideas, but often developed with originality."
New Yorker 19:64 Jl 3 '43 30w

MACIVER, R. M.—Continued

"The book is an extremely valuable contribution to the growing stockpile of thought and ideas from which must be drawn the intellectual material of a decent world." W. S. Lynch

+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 Jl 17 '43 800w

"The book of Professor McIver presents the author's views regarding world-reconstruction in a comprehensive, well-articulated treatise. As the work of one of the most eminent scholars in the field of the social sciences, it carries with it unusual authority." F. R. Flournoy

+ Social Educ 7:374 D '43 330w

"Here is a well written, quietly reasoned study of how war may be discarded—for a price." Marshall Bragdon

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 3 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Ordway Tead

Survey G 32:454 N '43 460w

Reviewed by Alfred Werner

Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 15 '43 550w

MACKAY, JOHN ALEXANDER. Heritage and destiny. 109p $1.50 Macmillan

230 Christianity—Philosophy. God 43-4838

"Out of two series of lectures—or one series delivered twice with considerable variation—President Mackay has built a little book both thoughtful and eloquent in its dealing with the fundamentals of individual and national life. The creative idea, hinted in the title, formulated in the preface, and developed and demonstrated in five chapters, is that every satisfactory orientation toward the future requires an antecedent orientation toward what is most vital in the heritage from the past. That means, in a word, orientation toward God, not because God lives in the past but because his revelation and his dealings with men in history constitute the living heritage that is determinative of destiny." Christian Century

---

Christian Century 60:428 Ap 7 '43 100w

"Everything upon which Dr. Mackay turns his rare powers of reflection and discernment lights up with fresh brilliance of meaning. Everything to which he devotes his no less notable gifts of exposition and interpretation is illumined in new shadings and colorings of delicacy and beauty. Here he lays bare the contradictions and frustrations of the contemporary scene and finds their resolution through profounder apprehension of the classic Christian views of God, of man, and of community." H. P. Van Dusen

+ Crozer Q 20:352 O '43 500w

"Every syllable is cut and polished down to its ultimate significance, and not a superfluous adjective inflates his terse, clear, tuneful sentences. This little book, therefore, is great because it is small—like all the best writing it is multum in parvo." P. W. W.

+ N Y Times p24 My 23 '43 500w

MACKAY, MRS MARGARET (MACKPRANG). For all men born. 292p $2.50 Day

43-603

A novel about Hawaii during the months from August, 1941 to the spring of 1942. The heroine is a China-born American girl who, on her way to the American mainland, stops off for a visit in Honolulu. She falls in love with the grandson of her hostess and their wedding is set for December 7th—a wedding which is put off until spring.

"Mrs. Mackay is a dexterous mechanic, keeping a firm grip on the actions of her characters, seeing to it that they don't make a false or unnecessary move. Her writing is as smooth as marshmallow—and about as substantial." John Norcross

Book Week p7 Ap 4 '43 470w

Booklist 39:252 F 15 '43

"The story, it must be confessed, is not imbued with great distinction; it is conventional in concept and perhaps somewhat commonplace in treatment, though Mrs. Mackay has a facile touch with the setting of her scene. She observes her people keenly; she has a sense of literary accents and values which offsets in part the obtuseness of the plot." M. W.

— + Christian Science Monitor p14 F 27 '43 650w

Reviewed by M. P. McKay

Library J 68:172 F 15 '43 70w

"The novel is one in which background is more important than either story or character. The plot is of the slightest, and though that redoubtable matriarch, old Mrs. Anbrose, who looked longingly back to an earlier and simpler time, is a notable personality, Kay is more interesting as the author's mouthpiece than as an individual. Yet she is both likable and intelligent, so that seeing events through her eyes is exceptionally satisfying. You feel, too, that she is an honest chronicler, who does not set down anything in malice." L. M. Field

+ N Y Times p23 Mr 7 '43 600w

"A serene picture of prewar Hawaiian life and a sombre one of the Pearl Harbor bombardment give a certain value to an otherwise undistinguished novel."

New Yorker 19:66 F 27 '43 70w

"'For All Men Born' is not in any sense a hurried assembly of events before and after Pearl Harbor, and is unmarked by the stress under which it must have been written. Mrs. Mackay has viewed the disaster with admirable detachment, appraising its effect on all sorts of people in a narrative which is illuminating as well as highly dramatic." George Conrad

+ Weekly Book Review p12 F 28 '43 600w

MCKELVEY, MRS GERTRUDE DELLA. Stories to live by; il. by Pelagie Doane. 62p 75c Winston

226.2 Beatitudes—Juvenile literature 43-8739

Eight stories intended as explanations of the Beatitudes for young children. Each story relates the teachings of the Beatitudes in some way to present day situations.

"This small volume should be of particular value to Sunday school teachers." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p8 My 30 '43 110w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p9 Ap 25 '43 300w

MCKENNEY, RUTH (MRS RICHARD BRANSTEN). Jake Home. 503p $3 Harcourt

43-3664

Portrait of a labor leader, Jake Home, born in a small Pennsylvania mining town. The course of his life is charted thru his early days as a miner, as a labor organizer and communist. Later, married to a rich woman, he tries to live in her world, but fails. Jake ends up as an organizer and leader of a workers' parade in New York in 1932.

"Ten years ago this book would have rocked readers back on their heels. But now the struggles of labor for its rights can of necessity cause only a ripple in the millrace of contemporary history. And it is too bad, for this is an honest novel of imposing proportions."

+ Atlantic 171:129 My '43 120w

"Miss McKenney's extensive sections about tactics and theory are more palatable than is common in treatises of this sort. The parts dealing with the thorny path of the left-wing labor organizer and the plight of the poor are extraordinarily effective and ring true as a bell. The psychological nuances and the tangled skein of love are less impressive, but I suppose these matters could not be neglected. If they appear in a poorer light it is only in contrast with the brilliance achieved in the more serious—and important—phases of the story." Jack Conroy

+ — Book Week p9 Mr 28 '43 750w

Booklist 39:320 Ap 1 '43

"A novel that deserves a place in the list of 'socially significant' fiction. . . The author warns that this is not a historical novel, that its characters not only are not actual but are not even types or composites, and that she has pushed events around as she pleases. Nevertheless, as the narrative proceeds through the first third of this century and across the eastern third of the country, there emerges a lively if impressionistic picture of important aspects of American life in the period in which the present has its immediate origins. This will rate among the more important novels of the year."

+ Christian Century 60:234 F 24 '43 130w

"This is the story of a young American Communist who is so unique as to be unbelievable. Choppy, dramatic in some spots and dull in others, it is also a long chronicle of how the Party takes credit for every good movement—thereby immediately stigmatizing it out of existence. This book doesn't ever come up to Ruth McKenney's earlier serious work, Industrial Valley, which, incidentally, never got the acclaim it deserved as a great piece of American historical literature." G. E. S., Jr.

— Churchman 157:20 Ap 15 '43 90w

"503 closely-printed pages of melodrama, romance, humor, violence, sex, commie propaganda, proletarian corn, and a certain amount of really fine writing—in short, good and bad, but nearly always readable and interesting."

+ — Commonweal 37:473 F 26 '43 900w

"Except for members of the Communist Party or a few sentimentalists who think that the fine victories of the Russian army justify all the sins of Stalinism, and of course Martin Dies, it is hard to know who can take seriously Ruth McKenney's long and serious new novel." Diana Trilling

— Nation 156:388 Mr 13 '43 900w

"Eileen's sister's first long novel and her major work, is clearly meant to be a proletarian epic and is, unfortunately, nothing of the kind. It begins well enough. . . Its longest single narrative thread, Jake's cross-country tour in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti and the Communist Party, contains some excellent passages, particularly the scenes describing the hostility which Jake encounters as he drives farther west. But the failure of Jake Home is entirely Miss McKenney's fault. To begin with, the historical episodes are derived from the official Party version of universal cosmology. Second, Miss McKenney does not know what to do with Jake's love life, and in order to create female characters a shade more complex than Eileen she has had to rely on the techniques of the Hollywood adaptation of her humorous opuscule. Worst of all are her editorial interjections, more vulgar than naïve, in praise of Browder as a great man, and her condemnations of Freud and James Joyce." Isaac Rosenfeld

— + New Repub 108:484 Ap 12 '43 300w

"I am not quite certain how seriously Miss McKenny regards her hero; I suspect that she admires him, and thinks of him in larger than life-size terms. But since he 'gulps,' 'roars,' 'shouts' and 'wolfs' his food through decidedly picaresque scenes and episodes, he lacks human dignity and emotion, and I would say that her abilities as a humorist have overcome whatever serious intentions she may have had, and that they have produced one of the most remarkable burlesque heroes that has yet appeared in social fiction. . . I doubt if many readers will be able to take Jake Home with greater seriousness than I do; and if they do, I fear it will be in the spirit of longing for the dear, dead days of the depression novel in America." Horace Gregory

N Y Times p6 F 28 '43 1150w

"I fear many readers will hardly share Miss McKenney's passion for her red-haired hero. Some of them, surely, will gag at his humorless assumption that the women he marries must necessarily live the kind of life he prefers. I think, too, they will feel that his maneuverings in the Sacco-Vanzetti case are no less political than those of the liberals and Socialists Miss McKenney depicts with such stinging scorn. Nor will all of us heat up easily over the factional, intramural squabbles that seem to be part of the required background of any novel about American Communists. But 'Jake Home,' if you can contrive to drop the dated ideology down a manhole, has noble things in it. Miss McKenney can do you a strike scene, a labor meeting, or a protest parade so that it sticks in your mind." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 19:63 F 27 '43 380w

"I don't feel that Miss McKenney has quite made Jake into a consistently recognizable human being. . . I believe the fault is that the fictional spine of Jake is not quite entire; there are fractures and breaks in it as there are necessarily fractures and breaks in the novel for this book is Jake. Yet I read every page with interest. 'Jake Home' is superior to the bulk of novels published in this or any season. Jake and his fate are always good and often significant reading." Benjamin Appel

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:14 Mr 13 '43 850w

"As the red-headed wonder of the Pennsylvania coal patch . . . Jake is a magnificent character. As a budding industrialist, the 20-year-old husband of a social-climbing beauty who surrounds him with bridge lamps and furniture so new it still smells of Blimmington's department store, Jake remains a very real and sympathetic human being. He continues to stir sympathy and imagination as he becomes a professional labor organizer, an indefatigable force in the Communist party, and a party representative in the campaign to save Sacco and Vanzetti. But the fine, big outlines of his character begin to waver as his personality becomes increasingly identified with the role of party oracle." J. K.

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e F 28 '43 500w

"Miss McKenny packs her pages with the violence and the drama and the human sacrifice of the radical labor movement. She is at her best in portraying the ferment of organization, in describing the crystallization of thinking and emotion that leads to the climax of a strike or, as in the final pages of the book, to a public demonstration of workers' solidarity. She is not as successful in the purely personal problems. Jake as a husband or lover never seems quite real. Neither does either of his wives. But Jake Home as a Communist labor leader attains real stature." Rose Feld

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 F 28 '43 1400w

MACKENZIE, DEWITT. India's problem can be solved. 265p il $3 Doubleday

954 India—Politics and government. World war, 1939—India 43-12581

An AP man, with thirty years' experience in various parts of the world, analyzes the Indian situation, and explains the reasons for the failure of the Cripps conference. The work is based on first-hand investigations and interviews made in 1942 and 1943 with leaders of the British government, All India Conference, Moslem league, and the Untouchables. No index.

Reviewed by Ernest Von Hartz

Book Week p1 Ag 29 '43 420w

Booklist 40:56 O 15 '43

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley

Cath World 158:506 F '44 270w

"The journalist's advantage—and Mr. Mackenzie eminently illustrates it—is his cheerful freedom from outworn prejudices; his wholehearted readiness to listen to the opinions of every faction and to give to each a full share of consideration. His disadvantage is that his conclusions are necessarily based on the special pleadings of those he interviews rather than on any deep personal understanding of the country and its people. Nevertheless the journalist who will give the first prominence in his story, as Mr. Mackenzie does, not to the Viceroy or Gandhi, but to Dr. Ambedkar, leader of the Untouchables, displays an interesting freedom of approach." H. J. S.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 N 20 '43 700w

Reviewed by Theodore Maynard

Commonweal 38:567 S 24 '43 550w

"Interesting, timely, and recommended." G. W. Hill

+ Library J 68:622 Ag '43 110w

Nation 157:360 S 25 '43 200w

Reviewed by Frances Gunther

New Repub 110:60 Ja 10 '44 190w

MACKENZIE, DEWITT—Continued
Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe
N Y Times p3 S 5 '43 320w

"Rather loose-jointed writing."
New Yorker 19:68 Ag 21 '43 50w

"For the most part, this book is straight factual reporting on existing conditions and on the views of influential individuals, with only occasional attempts at critical analysis or interpretation. Its effectiveness is somewhat marred by the clumsy organization of the material, and by the author's highly informal and colloquial style, which is not always in keeping with the gravity of the issues under discussion. Nevertheless, he presents a good general picture of the turbulent forces at work in modern India, and of the changes that have taken place in India's political and social life since his previous visit twenty-five years ago." K. L. Mitchell
+ — Weekly Book Review p12 S 12 '43 900w

MCKINNEY, HOWARD DECKER, and ANDERSON, WILLIAM ROBERT. Challenge of listening. 302p $2.75 Rutgers univ. press

780.1 Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation 43-52729

"In attempt 'to make the relationships of composer, interpreter, and listener as vital and fruitful as possible,' author deals with problems of these relations and with history and performance problems of principal musical mediums. Differs from most 'appreciation' books in larger space given questions of interpretation and in attempt to set up criteria based on general psychology and esthetics." Library J

Reviewed by Felix Borowski
Book Week p10 Mr 21 '43 160w
Bookmark 4:9 Mr '43

"As a listener's guide to the understanding of music, this is as good as any and better than most."
+ — Christian Century 60:268 Mr 3 '43 230w
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

"The 'rating lists' developed are not successful and, even if completely valid, demand a kind and extent of technical training not suggested in course of study laid down. Serious approach is commendable. Can be recommended with reservations to those who have mastered more elementary handbooks." R. S. Angell
+ — Library J 68:171 F 15 '43 110w

"In spite of the generally sound and reasonable attitude towards musical criticism, there may be some readers who will be puzzled by the author's inconsistent critical appraisal of Toscanini. . . Later in the book, however, much is forgiven, and Toscanini appears as 'one of the greatest of all modern orchestral conductors,' one who 'has refused all illegitimate demands made upon him by a thoughtless public, and remains the most sincere and humble of men in his approach to the music of the masters.' Such apparent confusion may, however, be turned to account by the interested listener. Encouraged and fortified by the generally excellent precepts contained in the book, he may determine to find out for himself. If he listens with a keener ear to the still available Toscanini concerts and to the recordings by this master recommended by them, no one will be more gratified than the authors themselves, for to stimulate such a reaction is the purpose of their valuable book." Richard Donovan
+ — Yale R n s 32:817 summer '43 850w

MCKINNEY, ROLAND JOSEPH. Thomas Eakins; photo research and bibl. by Aimée Crane [pub. under the supervision of André Gloeckner in collaboration with Addison gallery of Am. art, Andover, and many other collections]. (Am. artists ser) 112p pl $1.95 Crown

759.1 Eakins, Thomas 42-51547

Biographical and critical study of this American artist followed by reproductions of his works. Eight plates in color, the rest in black and white.

Booklist 39:203 Ja 15 '43
Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist
Commonweal 38:13 Ap 23 '43 70w

MACKINNON, HECTOR DONALD. Aircraft production; planning and control. 253p il $3.75 Pitman

658.5 Airplane industry and trade 43-6860

Outlines both production planning and control in airplane manufacture, and shows the relation between the departments in an airplane factory. Contains facsimiles of forms. Index.

Booklist 39:440 Jl 1 '43
Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:23 Ap '43
Reviewed by Theodore English
N Y Times p23 S 12 '43 150w

"A book like this can play an important part in the war effort." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p26 S 19 '43 100w

MACKINNON, JAMES. History of modern liberty; v. 4, The struggle with the Stuarts, 1647-1689. 523p $6.40 (16s) Longmans

940 Europe—History. Liberty. Great Britain—History—Stuarts, 1603-1714 (6-15083)

"As the author explains in his preface, the first two volumes of this History of Modern Liberty were published in 1906 and the third in 1908, while the present study was promised for 1909. It was Dr. Mackinnon's appointment to the Regius Chair of Ecclesiastical History in the University of Edinburgh in 1908 which has held up the book's completion for so long." (Spec) For volumes one and two see Book Review Digest, 1906.

"The present reviewer regrets that the two chapters on the principal political theorists of the period, which conclude the volume, are rather perfunctory: Professor MacKinnon seems more concerned to point out their shortcomings as historians than to evaluate their insight into the permanent problems of political obligation or to relate them to the long tradition of speculation from which both absolutists and constitutionalists derive." J. D. Lewis
Am Pol Sci R 37:183 F '43 300w
Reviewed by H. N. Brailsford
New Statesman & Nation 23:29 Ja 10 '42 220w

"The book is most carefully written and is clearly the fruit of detailed and balanced study. It is marked by fairness towards opponents." David Mathew
+ Spec 169:64 Jl 17 '42 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p92 F 21 '42 1000w

MCKOWN, HARRY CHARLES. How to pass a written examination. 162p $1.50 McGraw

371.27 Examinations 43-13292

According to the author, tho examinations have been known to the human race for over four thousand years, the literature on how to pass an examination has been heretofore so negligible as to be practically non-existent. In this book chapters are devoted to the defense of examinations; to the preliminary physical, emotional and mental preparation; and to detailed suggestions for actually coping with various types of examinations—simple objective, essay, true-false, etc.

Booklist 40:158 Ja 1 '44

"Written in interesting, informal style."
+ School & Society 58:271 O 2 '43 30w
+ School R 51:632 D '43 500w

MACLAREN, MALCOLM. Rise of the electrical industry during the nineteenth century. 225p il $3.75 Princeton univ. press

621.3 Electric engineering. Electric industries A43-2496

"Engineering history of industry from discovery of voltaic battery to development of a major American enterprise at end of nineteenth century." Library J

Library J 68:626 Ag '43 20w
Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p18 Jl 25 '43 200w

MACLEAN, CATHERINE MACDONALD. Tharrus three [Eng title: Three for Cordelia]. 241p $2.50 Macmillan [7s 6d Collins]

43-10176

Continuation of the story begun in Seven for Cordelia (Book Review Digest, 1942). This time there are only two boys from the slums of Glasgow who are living for the duration on Cordelia's lovely Scottish farm—Wee Rab, and his brother, Big Jock. The third of the Tharrus three is Jockie Fife; "the little witless loon."

"Altogether 'The Tharrus Three' is a delightful appealingly human story." Dorsey McCarthy
+ Book Week p6 Ag 1 '43 400w
Booklist 40:13 S '43

"No one who read Miss Maclean's Seven for Cordelia will want to miss this sequel to it. . . Here are the same fresh style, the same glow of understanding, the same insight into the hearts of children."
+ Christian Century 60:871 Jl 28 '43 50w

"Miss Maclean's book gives exquisite pleasure. The pleasure that a sunrise seen from half way up a not too exigent mountain gives you. The pleasure that a line of delicious verse can give you. . . 'The Tharrus Three' is a book shot through with color, blown through by tonic winds. It is an immense refreshment." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p6 Jl 25 '43 400w
Reviewed by John Hampson
Spec 171:298 S 24 '43 70w

"Miss Maclean's style is so delightful that one is sure that you will agree that passage on this 'frigate' is well worth $2.50." E. Y. Mohler
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 25 '43 410w
Times [London] Lit Sup p489 O 9 '43 90w

"'The Tharrus Three' is both distinctive and unusually pleasurable—a quiet book with a few pangs and a good many chuckles in it, and much to think about when it is ended." Mary Ross
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Jl 18 '43 750w

MACLEAN, NORMAN F., and OLSON, EVERETT CLAIRE. Manual for instruction in military maps and aerial photographs. 138p il maps $1.75 Harper

623.71 Maps, Military. Photography, Aerial 43-10526

Manual on the instruction in elements of cartography and aerial photography. It is divided into sixteen units, suited to the sixteen hours provided by the army for the teaching of this subject. The exercises can be used in the classroom or in the field. Index.

"Although the book was prepared to meet an immediate war need, its usefulness will probably far outlast that of many ponderous treatises on the same subject." L. R. Thiesmeyer
+ Book Week p11 S 12 '43 250w
Booklist 40:41 O 1 '43

"Useful for geologists, forest rangers, scout leaders, etc."
+ Library J 68:626 Ag '43 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:46 Jl '43
Reviewed by R. P. Hoelscher
N Y Times p31 O 24 '43 160w

MACLEISH, ARCHIBALD. Time to act; selected addresses. 198p $2.50 Houghton

815 World war, 1939- 43-5156

Thirteen addresses delivered by the Librarian of Congress during 1941 and 1942. They are prefaced by a poem: Colloquy for the states; and end with another poem: The western sky. Contents: The responsibility of the press; The strategy of truth; We cannot escape history; The problem of the new world; To the class of 1941; Prophets of disaster; The American cause; Divided we fall; Washington is America; The power of the book; A superstition is destroyed; The country of the mind must also attack; The image of victory.

"The MacLeish charm and felicity are here, but not the tough thinking and rugged prose of an earlier, unofficial MacLeish. At the time they were written they may have seemed stirring exhortations, but now they seem whiny and nagging. Certainly they contain no ideas we have not heard a dozen times before." R. H. Rovere
— + Book Week p2 My 23 '43 140w
Booklist 39:351 My 1 '43

"We wish everyone in America would read this book. Its message is both armor and ammunition." P. P. S.
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 22 '43 500w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:160 O '43 10w

"One cannot tell how all this will sound to the young veterans when they come home. It will be mockery if what they come home to is something like the world of the Nineteen Twenties. They will laugh at it as an earlier generation did at 'making the world safe for democracy.' It will be bitter laughter. Mr. MacLeish knows that. He is trying to put into their hands a weapon against disillusionment as well as one against the armed foe. Whether or not he has touched reality, time will show. Whatever happens, he will have little to apologize for, from the pages of this book, in years to come." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p7 My 2 '43 850w

"These utterances of the poet-librarian are well worth putting between covers as eloquent commentaries on our nation's relation to a war-wracked world and, more importantly, to the world that will be painfully born after this war." Marshall Bragdon
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ap 17 '43 1000w

"Perhaps the reader will say, and there is reason why he should, that these addresses are not expositions but rather efforts to restate poetic symbols undertaken in order to spur into action people who do not read poetry. Because he felt so keenly the grave responsibility of being a writer in times to try men's souls, he went out to do his part in that battle of words which will inevitably affect the fortunes of our world. . . Men will little note or long remember what we say here—yes, but in the bitter days sweetness is in the wise and beautiful word, there and nowhere else. I have a feeling that as we become aware of how deep the shadows are we shall be more grateful for this poet and his utterance than we could easily say." G. N. Shuster
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ap 25 '43 1350w
Wis Lib Bul 39:106 Jl '43

MACLEOD, ALEXANDER SAMUEL. Spirit of Hawaii, before and after Pearl Harbor; water colors, lithographs and drawings [by the author]. [142p] $4 Harper

919.69 Hawaiian Islands 43-16028

Collection of drawings, lithographs, and one water color, depicting Hawaii before, during, and after Pearl Harbor. Each picture is accompanied by short descriptive text. The author-artist is a Canadian born graduate of the California School of design, who was with the A.E.F. in the European war.

MACLEOD, A. S.—Continued

Cath World 158:413 Ja '44 50w

"A delightful book." P. J. Searles
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ja 2 '44 400w

MCMAHON, JOHN LASALLE. American government. 191p $1.50 Appleton-Century

342.73 U.S.—Politics and government 43-2168

"This outline of American Government, one of the Student Manuals prepared under the auspices of the Commission on American Citizenship of the Catholic University of America, attempts to be an outline and nothing more. It is not a textbook nor is it a substitute for one. Neither is it designed to take the place of lectures or collateral reading. Its purpose is to aid students of American Government in visualizing the broad field of that subject, while at the same time integrating the philosophical aspects of that study with Christian political theory." (Pref) Index.

"The highly analytical arrangement makes it unsuitable for reading, but it is an excellent text for the purpose for which it is intended."
+ Christian Century 60:140 F 3 '43 50w

"Even in such a brief treatment the author might well have provided more definitions of difficult or obscure terms, and certainly he could have improved some of those he does give, as for example the one for gerrymandering on page 88. He has a tendency to use difficult words when simple or more familiar ones could have been substituted . . . This little volume [however] crammed with information, is well organized. Used as intended, it should be valuable to any college, or better-than-average high school class in American government." J. E. Downes
+ — Social Studies 34:282 O '43 330w

MCMEEKIN, CLARK, pseud. of MRS DOROTHY (PARK) CLARK and MRS ISABELLA (MCLENNAN) MCMEEKIN. Red Raskall. 312p $2.50 Appleton-Century

43-14365

Tale of adventure, the scene of which is England and Virginia in 1816. Lark Shannon, an English parson's daughter, sails for America to join the man she loves. She is shipwrecked and lands on an uninhabited island off the coast of Virginia, from whence she is rescued by a bound boy from an inn on the mainland. A thorobred horse, also saved from the shipwreck, becomes a charge of Lark's, and in rescuing the horse, Lark finds her own true happiness.

Reviewed by M. R. McDowell
Book Week p7 O 10 '43 310w

Booklist 40:59 O 15 '43

"Will answer demand for historical novel or horse or racing story. Characterization good. Recommended." E. F. Kelly
+ Library J 68:668 S 1 '43 70w

"The two Kentucky ladies, Mrs. Clark and Mrs. McMeekin, who turned out 'Show Me a Land' three years ago, made the best-seller lists with their first novel. This, their third (the second was not so successful), changes the scene from Kentucky to tidewater Virginia, keeps the gusto and pioneer atmosphere and tells an exciting story." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p18 O 24 '43 340w

Springf'd Republican p7e O 31 '43 220w

Reviewed by R. Y. Williams
Weekly Book Review p10 O 10 '43 550w

Wis Lib Bul 39:146 N '43

MACMILLAN, CLIFFORD M. Foremanship and safety. 101p il spir pa $1 Wiley

614.85 Accidents—Prevention. Safety appliances. Foremen 43-2578

"The author addresses himself informally to the foreman, offering advice and information on many of the more important phases of industrial accident prevention. Each chapter includes a short prepared talk which the foreman can present to his men or use as a safety letter." Management R

"An hour or two of reading may well pay long dividends." L. E. Grinter
+ Book Week p10 Mr 28 '43 50w

Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 20w

"Helpful and readable."
+ Management R 32:118 Mr '43 40w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p25 Mr 28 '43 50w

MACMILLAN, MRS MARGARET (BURNHAM). War governors in the American revolution. 309p $3.50 Columbia univ. press

973.344 U.S.—Politics and government—Revolution. Governors—U.S. 43-15739

An account of the governors who were in office during the period of transfer of sovereignty from the British government to the Continental congress, covering the years from 1775 to about 1784. Includes an alphabetical list of Revolutionary war executives: April 1775-April 1783; a geographical list of Revolutionary war executives: April 1775-April 1783; a bibliography, and an index.

Reviewed by F. J. Klingberg
Ann Am Acad 231:191 Ja '44 250w

"A valuable aid in rounding out the picture of the Revolutionary period. It contains an extensive bibliography and a very thorough index."
+ Social Studies 35:48 Ja '44 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p566 N 27 '43 550w

MCMILLAN, RICHARD. Mediterranean assignment [Eng title: Rendezvous with Rommel]. 332p map $3 Doubleday [10s 6d Jarrolds]

940.542 World war, 1939—Africa, North. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English 43-13419

The full story of the Eighth army's defeat and final victory at El Alamein, by a United Press correspondent who has reported from Greece, the Balkans, Crete, and North Africa. He also sketches a portrait of the man who was largely responsible for the victorious Eighth army—General Montgomery. Maps on end papers.

Booklist 40:44 O 1 '43

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
Nation 157:328 S 18 '43 450w

New Repub 109:496 O 11 '43 180w

"Richard McMillan is a first-class war correspondent and 'Mediterranean Assignment' is a first-class book. McMillan's job is reporting the war, and he does just that; no emotional sprees, no false glamour, no tiresome chapter-long feuds with the censors, no self-glorification." Philip Hamburger
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 29 '43 500w

"Richard McMillan's book falls into a familiar pattern, but by its very scope, not to mention its excellent writing, it is lifted far out of the run-of-the-mill-category of war correspondents' books and made unique. For 'Mediterranean Assignment' is, in effect, a history of World War II's Mediterranean campaigns. . . That is a tall order for any book, and certainly for one correspondent. There are probably few newspapermen who have had such a continuous, long tour of duty in one theatre of war. But McMillan fulfills the order in brilliant and thoroughly readable fashion. . . Richard McMillan has written a fine, important, and valuable book. It is human, it is documentary. It should be on any list of the great books of this war." P. R. Knauth

+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 S 4 '43 900w

"Those of us who have worked as war correspondents in the Mediterranean area have been waiting for Richard McMillan's book. Most of us have long agreed that he is the best qualified to do the definitive job. . . His 'Mediterranean Assignment' is packed with excitement, color, statistics and some shrewd military analyses." Robert St John

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ag 29 '43 950w

MACMILLAN, WILLIAM. Dark treasure; il. by Edward A. Poucher. 254p $2 Mill

43-16891

Adventure story for older boys. Mark Abbot, son of a Boston blacksmith, shipped with a Scottish explorer for a voyage thru the Northwest passage, his object being to find the mysterious islands where the Russian sables were to be found. After surviving manifold dangers involving trappers and Eskimos, whales, caribou, and villains, they reached the islands.

Cath World 158:317 D '43 50w

"Good vocabulary, variety of experiences will add to interest value. Of the superman variety." M. L. Goodwin

+ Library J 69:34 Ja 1 '44 30w

MCNABB, VINCENT JOSEPH. Old principles and the new order. 246p $2.75 Sheed

261 Sociology, Christian 43-459

"A collection of essays on the Catholic land movement by the man of whom G. K. Chesterton said, 'Father Vincent McNabb is one of the few great men of our time. He is a great deal too great to be of our time.' Writing as a priest-teacher and not merely as a politician or as an economist, the author begins by seeking for the foundations of sociology in the Gospels. Typical of the way in which he applies his favorite motto, 'First things first,' is his wish to go back not to 'things primitive' but to 'things primary.' First things to him are the family and the land, in that order; and the land must directly support the family." Springf'd Republican

Cath World 157:665 S '43 230w

Reviewed by J. P. Boland
Commonweal 37:594 Ap 2 '43 450w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:6 Jl '43 20w

"Drawing upon the wealth of the papal encyclicals dealing with the family, the condition of the workingman and atheistic communism, Father McNabb makes a persuasive case for his back-to-the-land movement. The spontaneous humor and poetry of his style are clearly visible throughout the serious part of the book and they are given a broader scope in the last few pages of letters and word pictures of men and women he has known." R. L. D.

+ Springf'd Republican p8 Ap 8 '43 330w

MCNEER, MAY YONGE (MRS LYND KENDALL WARD). Story of the Great Plains; lithographs by C. H. DeWitt. [32p] $1 Harper

978 Frontier and pioneer life—Juvenile literature 43-16076

Picture-story book showing the life on the western plains when buffalo and Indians roamed the country and settlers in covered wagons were just beginning to arrive.

Booklist 40:117 D 1 '43

"This will be enjoyed, as are earlier books on the topography of the country by this artist." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:414 N '43 90w

"Mr. DeWitt and his collaborators have evolved in a series of regional picture books of the United States a painless method of learning geography and history. This book with its compact dramatic text, its beautifully designed lithographs, which reproduce the tawny hues of the plains country as well as the stir and excitement of its history, is one of the most interesting and attractive of the series." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p26 N 21 '43 180w

"The rather severely telescoped text is brought dramatically to life by the twelve, full-page lithographs, in tawny colors, which will be pored over by cowboy- and Indian-struck boys and girls."

+ New Yorker 19:122 D 4 '43 50w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 O 31 '43 230w
Wis Lib Bul 40:13 Ja '44

MACNEIL, NEIL. How to be a newspaperman. 195p $1.75 Harper

070 Journalism 42-50317

"In this book we are going to explain pretty much everything of the life of a newspaperman. What he is. What he needs in education and training. How he gets his start. How he gets his promotions. We are going to outline briefly and simply some of the problems with which he must deal." (Chapter 1) Partial contents: How to get a start in journalism; The reporter; News specialists; The copyreader; The Washington correspondent; The foreign correspondent; News pictures and newspaper photographers; The ethics of journalism.

Booklist 39:256 F 15 '43

Reviewed by E. M. Morrow
N Y Times p14 My 9 '43 120w
Wis Lib Bul 39:71 My '43

MCNEILL, LOUISE. Time is our house; introduced by Norman Foerster; il. by Arthur K. D. Healy. (Bread Loaf poets ser) ltd ed 30p $1.25 Middlebury college

811 42-23607

"Many things have happened since Miss McNeill published her Gauley Mountain in 1939 [Book Review Digest, 1939] and the poet has undertaken here to comment on some of them. In this brief collection of verse, printed by students at the Bread Loaf School of English, there are poems on such subjects as the fall of Greece and the American call for men after December 7, 1941. Some earlier work is also present, included apparently to fill out this group of less than two dozen poems and because it did not properly belong in the Gauley Mountain collection. This earlier verse serves also as something of a norm against which the poet's comments on a time of war may be matched." Poetry

"Miss McNeill's championing of the land of Gauley is worthy of respect, but hers is private wealth and its defense has little significance for those who do not share it. . . Miss McNeill's talents are considerable, but if she is to be heard in a time of war and revolution she can not lightly dismiss the commonwealth and the 'freedoms none have found.'" Coleman Rosenberger

Poetry 61:690 Mr '43 650w

"'Time Is Our House,' by Louise McNeill, is a collection of quiet, unpretentious poems. They do not attempt to be profound; they turn back to the 'simple things, yet holy' to speak of one woman's faith and experience. They do not, on the whole, maintain the eloquence and power of their occasional highspots. The effect of the book altogether is of a little too much gentleness, of recollected tranquillity rather than emotion, of assurances which seem a bit too conventionally comforting." S. H. Hay

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:12 Jl 24 '43 180w

MCSORLEY, JOSEPH. An outline history of the church by centuries (from St Peter to Pius XII). 1084p maps $7.50 Herder

282 Roman Catholic church—History. Church history 43-9920

"Despite the turmoil of these distracting years, Father McSorley of the Paulists, with his assistants, has completed this panoramic survey of the Roman Catholic Church. Century

MCSORLEY, JOSEPH—Continued
by century, region by region, dated events and persons are presented with encyclopedic range and exactitude, and an objective clarity. We have, at once, an elaborated outline for students and a work of general reference. The book deals less with belief and ceremonial as such than with the activities of a world-wide community which have directly affected civilization." N Y Times

Cath World 157:434 Jl '43 250w

"It covers a surprising amount of ground in very considerable detail. Its point of view is admirably fair, considering the brevity with which a book of this sort is forced to treat its various subjects. Interesting maps in colors are included, designed to make vivid various historical facts. A book not for continuous reading, except by students, but excellent for reference and thoroughly equipped with the mechanisms needed for such use, notably with a copious index."

+ Commonweal 38:497 S 3 '43 100w

"The outline is valuable strictly for what it is. It elucidates innumerable situations and sets them in the large perspective of human development. It does not propose solutions of problems that arise at every point out of the vast phenomenon of faith. It is a diagnosis rather than recommendation." P. W. Wilson

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 1 '43 480w

"The student will find the book honest and irenic, lucid and well informed. Finally he will be grateful that the man who wrote it knows the English language." G. N. Shuster

+ Weekly Book Review p40 N 21 '43 950w

MCSWIGAN, MARIE. Five on a merry-go-round; il. by Mary Reardon. 183p $2 Dutton 43-7894

An American family from the North in search of work and a home in Alabama discover an abandoned merry-go-round and convert it into livable quarters. Johnny, a migrant worker, helps them. For children eight to twelve.

"Marie McSwigan, the author of 'Snow Treasure,' one of last year's finest books for children, has done another realistic modern story. . . There's a plot and plenty of action and suspense, but every bit of it is real." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p7 Jl 11 '43 340w

Booklist 39:468 Jl 15 '43

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p10 S 27 '43 180w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:238 Jl '43 110w

"A trifle improbable but shows fine family spirit and co-operation." Dorothy Lawson

+ — Library J 68:576 Jl '43 110w

"Practical grown-ups might be a little incredulous of the Sloans' living arrangements, but the story is built up plausibly and still has a flavor of fantastic adventure to enthrall readers of 10 to 13, even as it gives them a portrait of a plucky American family making the best out of a very little in the complex world of today." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p7 Ag 22 '43 260w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 1 '43 130w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Jl 25 '43 430w

MACVANE, JOHN. Journey into war; war and diplomacy in North Africa. 330p $3 Appleton-Century

940.542 World war, 1939—Africa, North. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-16946

One of the National broadcasting company's ace foreign correspondents reports on the North African campaign. He reached Algiers shortly after the beginning of the Anglo-American invasion, and found himself involved in North African politics—which he terms "a mess." "Unlike apologists for long-term expediency, who insist that Washington's respect for Vichy paved the way to success in North Africa, he believes that if Washington had broken relations with Marshal Pétain in 1940 the results in North Africa in 1942 'would probably have been about the same.' So far as Mr. MacVane can see, dealings with Darlan and his turncoat crowds brought no advantages." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

Reviewed by Ernest von Hartz
Book Week p4 D 19 '43 150w

Booklist 40:195 F 1 '44

"In reporting what he saw in the midst of battle, MacVane never loses the over-all perspective as many other front-line reporters have done. He sees the smallest action in the light of the entire campaign. Hence his account of the crucial months in Tunisia is as easy to follow as his report of the political machinations in Algiers. Written in a smooth-running style, MacVane's book comes as close to the level of correspondents' books of the thirties as any published during the Second World War." H. H. F. Eulau

+ New Repub 110:157 Ja 31 '44 800w

"His exposure of the Vichyites and their treacheries make for interesting reading. . . The description of the Allied offensive that began with the American thrust from El Guettar and the British Army's smash at the Mareth Line is commendable, even though some of it has been told before. Throughout there are quick glimpses of the men who planned and carried through the campaign. There is an abundance of intimate anecdotes, revealing and entertaining." L. B. Funke

+ N Y Times p4 D 19 '43 700w

"In choppy, forceful, broadcasting style, Mr. MacVane weaves his personal adventures in the field with the tactics and strategy of the Allied armies." Frederick Gruin

+ Sat R of Lit 26:32 D 11 '43 700w

"It is a good account of North African fighting, of interest to all and especially to folk who had kin participating in the first momentous American effort of World war II." E. W. K.

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Ja 14 '44 340w

MACVEAGH, ROGERS, and COSTAIN, THOMAS BERTRAM. Joshua; leader of a united people. 310p maps $3 Doubleday

222.2 Joshua 43-12557

"Joshua is a study of one of the greatest leaders in history. . . The facts are those of the Old Testament story of Joshua, supplemented by a careful study of the geography of the country and of Hebrew history. As true to events as research could make it, the story is enlivened, refreshed, dramatized by modern language and an interpretation that runs to the natural rather than to the miraculous." (Publisher's note) Contains a bibliography, and the text of the Biblical book of Joshua.

"All the light of modern knowledge is thrown upon the Bible story and the result is a charming biography. The style is grave and yet sufficiently light and graphic in spots to convey enthusiasm over the many conflicts; furthermore, there is an easy pace in this book, one calculated to permit the hot background of Sinai and Canaan to glow vibrantly before us." Louis Zara

+ Book Week p6 Ag 29 '43 320w

Booklist 40:53 O 15 '43

Christian Science Monitor p12 O 9 '43 650w

"Scholarly and highly stimulating account." H. J. Forman

+ N Y Times p14 S 12 '43 650w

"Mr. MacVeagh and Mr. Costain have done a most admirable piece of work. I should not have thought that they needed to have spent any space on refuting the notion that the poet's hyperbole of the heavenly bodies standing still represented an actual fact: surely no one today believes that. On the other hand, the treatment of the fall of Jericho is excellent. . . They write a simple, direct style, less discursive, less personal than Mr. Louis Golding's in his similar excursion into the remote past." Richard Ellis

+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 Ag 28 '43 700w

"In this book Joshua is presented as a superior man, but not as a superman, in the same realistic manner as David was portrayed by Duff Cooper, as a live and even lovable person. . . The book is vigorously written, filled with allusions to men and events of our time and based on careful research." Alfred Werner
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 29 '43 900w
Wis Lib Bul 39:141 N '43

MCWILLIAMS, CAREY. Brothers under the skin. 325p $3 Little

325.73 U.S.—Race question. Race problems. Minorities 43-51119

Discussions of the status of the non-white minorities in the United States, which the author sees as a critical national problem, and moreover, one which will compromise our international relations, in time of war and in the peace. Contents: The non-vanishing Indian; The long-suffering Chinese; The forgotten Mexican; Our Japanese hostages; Hawaii: island outpost; The Puerto Ricans and other islanders; The little brown brothers; The Negro problem: a case history; Outline for action. No index.

Reviewed by E. C. Hughes
Am J Soc 49:270 N '43 410w
Reviewed by Harry Schwartz
Ann Am Acad 228:146 Jl '43 650w
Atlantic 172:123 Ag '43 60w
Reviewed by Jack Conroy
Book Week p4 My 30 '43 700w
Booklist 39:348 My 1 '43
Bookmark 4:5 My '43
Christian Science Monitor p10 S 18 '43 650w
Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Ag '43
Commonweal 38:76 My 7 '43 800w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:161 O '43 40w

"To be sure, Mr. McWilliams has established his thesis that the race problem must be attacked as a whole, and that any piecemeal solution in terms of individual groups is doomed to failure. But he ought to have indicated more explicitly and more frequently whither he is leading the reader. One wishes, too, that he had straightened the twists in the path and smoothed out the bumps in his prose. Yet these shortcomings will blind nobody to the fact that he is taking us over territory of primary strategic importance." Betsy Hutchison
+ — Nation 157:271 S 4 '43 900w
Reviewed by George Mayberry
New Repub 108:836 Je 21 '43 700w

"Mr. McWilliams is not a practical politician, nor is he willing to go ahead by compromise, broadening down from precedent to precedent. His resentments sometimes seem even stronger than his sympathies. He will convince the converted, but he may annoy some of the hesitating heathen. Yet his book is courageous, honest and to the point. We do have to face this question and dispose of it justly and democratically—or we won't have a democracy." R. L. Duffus
+ — N Y Times p4 Ap 25 '43 1100w

"A readable, well-documented study, made especially valuable by the author's concrete suggestions for administrative action."
+ New Yorker 19:79 Ap 24 '43 90w

"I am afraid that Mr. McWilliams's book will not have one-one hundredth part of the readers that it should obtain. If it finds its way to a few thousands it will still do a most important work, and I am willing to prophesy that when the show-down comes on these racial problems Mr. McWilliams's brave leadership for justice and the right will be as acclaimed as it should be today." O. G. Villard
+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 My 8 '43 1250w

"[The] book is upon the whole a candid and solidly based demand for complete racial equality and absence of all color discrimination. Unhappily, however, it leaves much to be desired in its treatment of one figure—the 'non-vanishing Indian.' " E. G. Eastman
+ — Springf'd Republican p8 Je 22 '43 700w

"This book is authoritative, crammed with instructive facts well told, and positive in direction." Bruno Lasker
+ Survey 79:253 S '43 430w
Time 41:100 My 24 '43 1650w
Reviewed by P. S. Buck
Weekly Book Review p1 Ap 25 '43 1850w
Wis Lib Bul 39:82 Je '43

MACY, RUDOLPH. Organic chemistry simplified. 431p il $3.75 Chemical pub. co.

547 Chemistry, Organic 43-9166

"An authoritative book of value to chemists who wish to familiarize themselves with certain recent advances in theory and practice. Also helpful for students approaching the study of organic chemistry." (Chem & Eng N) Index.

Chem & Eng N 21:1648 O 10 '43 30w
Library J 68:626 Ag '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:41 Jl '43

MADARIAGA, SALVADOR DE. Spain. rev and enl ed 12,509p $4 Creative age

946 Spain. Spain—History 43-16417

This volume contains a revision of the author's Spain, originally published in 1930 (Book Review Digest, 1930) with additional chapters on Spanish history and politics during the last decade.

Reviewed by S. E. Hyman
— Book Week p3 N 28 '43 850w
Booklist 40:142 D 15 '43
Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 158:310 D '43 360w

" 'Spain' is not the work of a happy man. Senor de Madariaga is a Spanish Socialist intellectual who is also a distinguished Oxford scholar. . . His summary of Spanish history is shot with pride and wonder, and is a dazzling synopsis of a glittering story. Senor de Madariaga is deeply religious according to the traditional religious belief of Spain, and his views are colored by his convictions on this point. His personal outlook has always to be allowed for, but when this is remembered his book is to be considered a valuable and enthralling study." Harold Hobson
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 1 '43 450w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:162 O '43 40w

"This is a notable book—in places even a great book,—and no one interested in the Spain of to-day should fail to read it." E. A. Peers
+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 9 '42 330w

" 'Spain' is an ivory tower falsely described by its architect as a political lighthouse. It is a cold, lifeless abstraction, from which the blood and bones of reality are missing." Ralph Bates
— Nation 158:164 F 5 '44 1000w

"There are many points on which the critic will quarrel with Senor Madariaga's political picture, and a great deal of dirty linen is still being washed in public. The reader will turn with more profit to his discussion of Spanish institutions, for here his plea for tolerance and enlightenment is not embittered; one can enjoy his theories, his paradoxes and his jokes, his European impatience with the gloomy obduracy and quixotism of Spanish things." V. S. Pritchett
+ — New Statesman & Nation 25:12 Ja 2 '43 1050w

"The weaknesses of this otherwise admirable work are two. Having lived outside of Spain and aloof from its warring camps for most of the Civil War, the author is sometimes wrong on detail facts where he depends on hearsay and intuition in place of documentation. And the same 'centrism' which enables him to contribute insights no other Spaniard could contribute causes him to make a species of error

MADARIAGA, S. DE—Continued
no other could make. His blind spot is near the 'center' of his vision. . . Thus, though his book is the most brilliant study of the roots of Spain's Civil War so far done by a Spaniard, it can be seriously misleading when taken alone as a guide to understanding." B. D. Wolfe
+ — N Y Times p3 D 12 '43 1300w

Reviewed by Toni Stolper
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 D 18 '43 1100w
School & Society 58:416 N 20 '43 100w

"If we in America and the British Commonwealth of Nations are sincerely interested in a better world order after this war and in a permanent peace, this book on Spain is required reading. Written for Anglo-Saxons by a world citizen who is a deep lover of his native land, it is a lesson in objectivity and in the understanding of the complexities of Spanish life and history that brought about the Civil War. It is also clear in its diagnosis of the needs of the post-war world in relation to Spanish destiny."
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 D '43 480w

"Of a book at once so well-informed and so fundamental, no single criticism can be made in a few words. There is much debatable matter, for example, in the author's pronouncements on the Church in Spain, in his estimates of Azaña, Prieto and Negrín, and in his opinions upon Gibraltar. Where, however, he ought perhaps chiefly (in his own phrase) to be 'handled with caution,' is in his attitude to Catalonia. Here his earlier book has always seemed to me to fall short of his own high standard of sensitiveness, and his revised bibliography mentions only a single work out of the scores written since 1930. . . But these criticisms, together with a comment on the rather large number of misprints and small errors, are matters of detail. We have here a book of outstanding quality, containing much new material, and written with amazing objectivity from deep feeling and extensive knowledge." E. A. Peers
+ — Spec 169:556 D 11 '42 800w

"This is a book which all those not blinded by doctrinaire prejudice should sincerely welcome."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p626 D 26 '42 850w

"It is a great pity that a man of Madariaga's distinction, an aspirant to liberalism, should not have managed a book that might have enlightened the minds of those who, voluntarily or involuntarily, are still in the dark about the Spanish conflict. Perhaps had he waited a little to write it, say until after the Moscow conference, his outlook on many of the questions would have been different and he might have been able to shed a better light on the scene of his country, today gloomier than ever." Isabel de Palencia
Weekly Book Review p5 Ja 16 '44 1050w

MADGE, CHARLES. Industry after the war; who is going to run it? [prepared] in consultation with Donald Tyerman; foreword by Sir William Beveridge. (Target for tomorrow) 64p il $1.25 Transatlantic [3s 6d Pilot]

330.1 Industry—Organization, control, etc. Industry and state. Reconstruction (1939-). Great Britain—Economic policy [A43-3101]

"The object of this book is to assist informed discussion by explaining, largely in the words of their advocates, the various current views about the control of industry. After a brief description of the pre-war background and the present control of industry, Mr. Madge briefly examines the new types of economic control which have been tried in the United States and the U.S.S.R., in Germany and Sweden. The bulk of the book is devoted to an objective summary of the proposals for post-war policy put forward by leading industrialists, the pronouncements and activities of Government spokesmen, the views of various sections of the trade union and Socialist movements and the comments of journals and organizations ranging from the Daily Worker to the Society of Individualists." Times [London] Lit Sup

Management R 32:470 D '43 70w

"Mr. Madge has done a workmanlike job. He has marshalled his facts well, and sketched his target clearly, both with commendable brevity." Douglas Davidson
+ Spec 171:132 Ag 6 '43 600w
Times [London] Lit Sup p405 Ag 21 '43 360w

MAGAZINE OF ART. Painters and sculptors of modern America; introd. by Monroe Wheeler. 152p il $5 Crowell

759.1 Painters, American. Sculptors, American 43-51038

"Twenty-eight contemporary artists set forth their professional credos in a series of autobiographical essays which prove that many artists, when they put their minds to it, can write with surprising vividness and forthrightness. Liberally illustrated with examples of the contributors' work." (New Yorker) Contents: Painters: Julian Levi, Ward Lockwood, Wendell Jones, Russell Cowles, L. Jean Liberte, Lamar Dodd, Peter Hurd, The Soyer brothers, Morris Kantor, Franklin C. Watkins, Howard Cook, Kindred McLeary, Gladys Rockmore Davis, Yasuo Kuniyoshi, William H. Calfee, Harold Weston, George Harding, David Fredenthal; Sculptors: John B. Flannagan, Charles Rudy, Concetta Scaravaglione, Heinz Warneke, Ahron Ben-Shmuel, Louis Slobodkin, William Zorach, Chaim Gross, Richard Davis, Henry Kreis.

Booklist 39:271 Mr 1 '43

"Little congruity is apparent, though certain of the contributions have value as documents." Jerome Mellquist
Commonweal 38:350 Jl 23 '43 210w

Reviewed by Howard Devree
N Y Times p18 Mr 14 '43 360w
New Yorker 18:72 F 13 '43 60w
Wis Lib Bul 39:39 Mr '43

MAGILL, ROSWELL FOSTER. Impact of federal taxes. 218p $3 Columbia univ. press; pa $2 Commerce clearing house

336.2 Taxation—U.S. Income tax—U.S. 43-970

"The book deals broadly with taxation and the administration of tax laws; it discusses and appraises, as its title denotes, the impact of the various Federal taxes, both individual and corporate. A Federal tax program is considered with reference to what would be a well-designed tax system; the present system is judged by certain criteria; and a tax program for the future is generally outlined." (N Y Times) Index.

"Professor Magill's book is both satisfying and aggravating: it satisfies our curiosity about the way in which a scholar with Professor Magill's wealth of experience would revise the federal tax system; it is aggravating in its failure to reveal more of the author's thought processes and to blend the substance of the book into an integrated whole." L. L. Ecker-R.
+ — Am Econ R 33:410 Je '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Blakey
Am Pol Sci R 37:530 Je '43 900w

"All students of Federal taxation will find this volume very interesting." Robert Rockafellow
+ Ann Am Acad 227:174 My '43 500w

"Writing in a field about which none too much is known and in which opinions differ widely, Professor Magill speaks thoughtfully, constructively and without prejudice, and in language as plain and as lacking in technical complications as the nature of the subject permits. Although the portions analyzing recent Supreme Court decisions and their implications with respect to property dispositions in trust or otherwise within the family will necessarily be difficult for the layman despite a minimum of technical dissertation, the book furnishes valuable food for thought to all who are interested in federal taxation." Norris Darrell
+ — Columbia Law R 43:415 Ap '43 1000w

Reviewed by E. H. Hahne
J Pol Econ 51:559 D '43 950w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 68:127 F 1 '43 120w

New Repub 110:62 Ja 10 '44 110w

"The book is not only timely, it is a valuable contribution to the literature on taxation. In a readable and nontechnical style, Professor Magill describes the impact of Federal taxes under peace and war conditions. And when he says, referring to present taxes on corporations: 'The results are perilous in times like these,' he warns of the future." G. N. Nelson
+ N Y Times p5 F 14 '43 1100w

"Timely."
Social Studies 34:192 Ap '43 30w

"The book is hardly one to be used in the classroom in any of the subjects mentioned in this review [history, philosophy, psychology, law] but is one that will be welcomed as a reference book in all of them especially by the advanced student of taxation questions, administrative law, and legal interpretation and sociological effects of taxation." E. L. Whitney
+ Social Studies 34:236 My '43 900w

"What the book amounts to is a roughly revised reprint of half a dozen of the author's old articles and speeches, larded out with enough new stuff to stretch the whole to a little more than 200 small pages. As a result, the book is a book in form only. There is no cohesion, no continuity from chapter to chapter except the annoying continuity of frequent repetition. . . In fact, the only possible excuse for Mr. Magill's sixth chapter, a slightly warmed-over second serving of what has come before, is to add thirty pages to his book. It adds nothing else. . . Actually Mr. Magill would have done better to stick to his legal knitting throughout, instead of branching off, as he does for about one-half the book, on broader and more fundamental excursions. Far and away the best of his work is embodied in the two chapters—one called The Income Tax on the Family and the other Gift and Death Taxes—which, as the author frankly concedes, are rehashes of old law review articles." Fred Rodell
— + Yale Law J 52:424 Mr '43 1750w

MAGOON, CAREY, pseud. of ELISABETH CAREY and MRS MARIAN AUSTIN (WAITE) MAGOON. I smell the devil. 247p $2 Farrar 43-15970

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p15 N 21 '43 140w

Booklist 40:115 D 1 '43

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p50 N 14 '43 120w

"Very good."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:22 D 18 '43 40w

"This story of murder at Cowabet College, Michigan, may not scare you into fits and you won't believe each and every word. Still and all, Adelaide Stone, hefty spinster narrator studying for her Ph.D. is hearty, pleasant company, and so is her chum, Henrietta." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p46 N 14 '43 230w

MAGUIRE, WILLIAM AUGUSTUS. Captain wears a cross. 207p $2 Macmillan

B or 92 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-17290

The author of Rig For Church (Book Review Digest, 1942) continues his reminiscences, begun in the former book. He "tells of Catholics and Protestants and Jews; of serene men and worried men; of heroic death in line of duty and of long lives devoted to that same duty." (Foreword) Index.

"On page 110 the reader discovers that there are also Protestant chaplains in the navy, and this suspicion is confirmed by brief (and very gracious) references in three later passages, in one of which there is also mention of a Jewish chaplain. Otherwise the total impression is that the chaplaincy, not to say the navy itself, is quite exclusively a Roman Catholic affair. Within these limits it is an excellent book, and a very lively one."
+ — Christian Century 60:1474 D 15 '43 110w

Commonweal 39:428 F 11 '44 80w

"Unimportant, personal episodes told in a style which is undistinguished and sentimental. . . Courtesies and honors shown the author are stressed. Unimportant except as impressions of one chaplain's relations with men on active duty." J. S. Cleavinger
Library J 68:891 N 1 '43 70w

"A warmly admiring and affectionate Christmas greeting from Father Maguire to his many friends afloat and ashore. It is filled with remembrances of kindness, hospitality, and greatness, and wanders with amiable discursiveness over the twenty-five years during which he has been a Navy chaplain. . . But unfortunately he has been called upon to give the history of the horror and heroism of that day [Dec. 7, 1941], so many times that the sharpness of his impressions seems to have been worn away by the many words he has been called upon to say about it." Clare Godfrey
+ — Weekly Book Review p6 D 26 '43 350w

MAIER, WILLIAM. Spring flight. 329p $2.50 Duell
43-51052

Story of the development of Debby Weeks, living with her sister and brother-in-law, the latter a Cape Cod fisher and hunter. Debby is quite content to wear slacks, and hunt and fish with her sister's husband, until a disappointment in love makes a different girl of her. She emerges as shrewd as the summer crowd women, perfectly able to fight her own way.

Booklist 39:293 Mr 15 '43

"Not essential for first purchase." E. F. Kelly
Library J 68:210 Mr 1 '43 70w

"This is a really good book with a Cape Cod setting. . . For people who have been bored or irritated by too, too quaint tales of old salts and young damsels with seaweed in their hair there is a fine, fresh and honest story of the real people who live on the Cape." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p25 Mr 7 '43 420w

Reviewed by George Conrad
Weekly Book Review p12 Mr 14 '43 600w

MAILLAUD, PIERRE. France; foreword by D. W. Brogan. (World today ser) 138p il maps $1.25 (3s 6d) Oxford

914.4 France. World war, 1939—France
43-51081

An attempt to discover the fundamental causes of the defeat of France and to show what will be necessary in the future peace to prevent another blow by Germany against French civilization.

Booklist 39:329 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:13 Mr '43

"High praise goes to this succinct, skillful, honest diagnosis of the French mind, of the debacle of 1940, of the collaborationist policy, of France's relationship to the future peace and welfare of human society." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 158:102 O '43 250w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:162 O '43 30w

"Here, in a masterly condensation is the whole story, from the historical, economic and demographic causes of the defeat through the present condition of France to a glimpse into the future. Dr. Maillaud's little book is not a very spicy one. . . But it remains the wisest and the most comprehensive study of the causes of the French crisis which has yet been written." Varian Fry
+ New Repub 109:84 Jl 19 '43 150w

MAILLAUD, PIERRE—Continued

"It has been my good fortune to know in France many of the men most deservedly famous for their intelligence, but I have met none in whom the virtues of the French mind are more conspicuous than in M. Maillaud. The book he has now written contains less than 140 pages; and while the author has necessarily sacrificed much of his wit and eloquence to concision, to have compressed within this space such a mass of information and of argument is a startling intellectual feat. I urgently recommend every reader to get hold of this work, and I wish that it could be used as a textbook in every secondary school." Raymond Mortimer

+ New Statesman & Nation 24:375 D 5 '42 1750w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 80w

"M. Pierre Maillaud's 'France' is perhaps the best and most compact appraisement of the factors making for the capitulation of June, 1940, that has been written. M. Maillaud, who writes an English as exquisite as it is explicit, has rendered many services to the common cause, but none better than this little book, with its wealth of learning, wisdom, tolerance and understanding."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p614 D 19 '42 800w

MAINWARING, DANIEL (GEOFFREY HOMES, pseud). Hill of the terrified monk. 244p $2 Morrow

43-9683

Detective story.

Booklist 40:80 N 1 '43

"Here is a story that starts off with a bang, moves swiftly and loses nothing in the telling." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p10 Ag 1 '43 170w

"Brisk, satiric and generally invigorating tale of dire deeds in Tucson, Ariz. . . This item baffles and amuses at one and the same time. Recommended." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 1 '43 250w

MAISEL, ALBERT Q. Africa, facts and forecasts; with a ser. of photographic maps, designed by the author and executed by Benjamin Lewis; the relief map upon which they are based is the work of Donald Kelly. 307p $2.75 Duell

960 Africa. World war, 1939—Africa (W) 43-51120

This "handbook" is in three parts: the first deals with Africa and the war both in its political and military aspects bringing events down to about February, 1943. Part two concerns Africa and the Atlantic charter, and part three summarizes facts about the various countries of Africa. Bibliography.

Booklist 39:353 My 1 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 Jl '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:165 O '43 40w

Reviewed by J. C. Shipman

Library J 68:326 Ap 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

Nation 156:673 My 8 '43 1100w

"Useful, up-to-date handbook."

+ New Yorker 19:75 My 1 '43 50w

"While Mr. Maisel's book contains some excellent pages of highly intelligent speculation, too much of it is devoted to questions of grand strategy and general policy, and too little to the description of the countries. . . Just the same, this book will help readers to obtain much of the information they may wish to have about a continent which recent events have helped to be transformed from a dark continent into a region of light, and above all, of hope." Emil Lengyel

+ — N Y Times p14 My 2 '43 700w

"The book of Mr. Maisel will prove most useful for all those who are interested in the African question, and for all scholars preparing post-war plans." Raoul Aglion

+ Sat R of Lit 26:13 My 29 '43 1000w

"Here is an informative, really factual and highly readable book. It is worth a later revision of the 'Forecasts' portion, for it will then be a useful handbook of African facts for permanent reference. Meanwhile, even if ephemeral, the 'Forecasts' are logical and will help the individual understand the trends of daily war news. Particularly impressive to me was the 'Bibliography' where many of the authoritative studies and books on Africa are listed. Most are classics in their respective fields." Hiram Blauvelt

+ — Weekly Book Review p16 Ap 25 '43 1450w

MAISEL, ALBERT Q. Miracles of military medicine. 373p $2.75 Duell

616 Medicine, Military 43-51019

Chapters on "the new drugs, devices and techniques" of medicine and surgery which are being used to counterbalance the new and deadlier weapons of modern warfare. Contents: Shock . . . the ex-killer; 'That smelly little Spanish doctor'; Doctor Moorhead's secret weapon; Unseating the fourth horseman; New faces for new men; No more tetanus; The mindsavers; The Japs got the quinine; Taking the terror out of war's worst wounds; The sulfa quintet; The new magic of local anaesthesia; Flying doctors; Blitz medicine for blitz warfare; When swords will be sheathed.

"This book discusses very important matters and contains some reliable information, but it is a typical example of the danger of a layman writing on technical subjects. . . It seems to go without saying that the text was not submitted to anyone who knew anything about bacteriology. The book cannot be recommended as it will spread misinformation as to dates, credits, and facts." M. P. Ravenel

— + Am J Pub Health 33:1285 O '43 430w

"A wealth of information told competently, vividly and clearly." Israel Davidsohn

+ Book Week p4 My 16 '43 220w

Booklist 39:247 F 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Ap '43

+ Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 50w

"Mr. Maisel is the master of a racy style and his recitation is interesting. . . Unfortunately, however, too much of the book is devoted to purely fictitious representations of on-the-spot melodrama. Imaginary scenes abound in which conversations and actions are presented with palpably false authenticity. What is there given is not science but fiction, not history but romance. The author in several instances is confused as to the sequence of scientific developments. . . He is particularly confused in his recitation of the development of tetanus immunization, confounding antitoxins, used chiefly in the treatment of certain infections, with toxoids, which are employed to safeguard the individual against certain infections. While these and other errors of fact and chronology detract from the authenticity of the book, it is none the less an interesting and substantially correct story of how modern medicine serves to save lives on the battlefields of this global war." Iago Galdston

+ — N Y Times p16 My 2 '43 600w

"In preparing this book, Mr. Maisel has had the advice, analysis, and criticism of numerous medical men, to whom he gladly pays tribute in his introduction. He uses the excellent technique of relating anecdotes founded on fact, actual events, and case histories to bring out the dramatic value inherent in so many of the bare facts." A. H. Compton and others

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:1 F '43 1300w

"One could wish that in this extremely readable and accurate book the author had devoted a little more space to the control of epidemic diseases, notably typhus, in which the Russians have made great progress, and influenza, concerning which they have added to our knowledge. But one cannot have everything, and those who would grasp the effect of war upon medical progress will find in this book, whose fascinating contents we have only been able to suggest a most stimulating account of medical progress when 'the Devil drives.' " Hugh Cabot

+ — Weekly Book Review p20 Ap 4 '43 800w

MAISEL, EDWARD M. Charles T. Griffes. 358p il $3.50 Knopf

B or 92 Griffes, Charles Tomlinson 43-6607

Full length biography of an outstanding American composer who died in 1920 at the age of thirty-five. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

"Important addition to literature of American music. Recommended." H. A. Carpenter
+ Library J 67:844 O 1 '42 110w

"Unfortunately the somewhat intemperate tone of the preface is maintained throughout the work and results in a biography which although eulogistic is generally unsatisfactory to Griffes's friends and admirers and which falls short of convincing the unprejudiced reader as to the attractiveness of the subject... The shortcomings of Mr. Maisel's biography do not prevent it from being absorbing reading. He has collected a substantial amount of material, much of it interesting and all of it vividly presented." Douglas Moore
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:22 My 29 '43 600w

MAJOR, HARLAN. Sure you can fish! tackle shortages need not stop you; drawings by George Ruben. 124p $2 Funk

799.12 Fishing—Implements and appliances 43-300

"In eight chapters and 124 pages Harlan Major tells how to defeat the present acute priority by making your own fishing tackle which will function in the taking of almost any edible or game fish. He does not start with a bent pin and a piece of string, but with an ordinary household junk pile of such objects as a tin can, door stop, bottle opener, spoon, bottle brush . . . old lengths of wire and several bits of string, with small twigs and Japanese beetles thrown in for good measure." Weekly Book Review

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Jl '43

"Mr. Major writes with such an easy, pleasing style, with such an abundance of humor that his advice is worth reading even if one does not intend at once to put it into practice and go fishing. . . This is a grown-up boy's handy book, intensely practical, well written and with a host of first-rate illustrations on almost every page."
+ Weekly Book Review p28 Mr 7 '43 270w

MALAQUAIS, JEAN. Men from nowhere [Eng title: Men from Java]. 316p $2.50 Fischer, L.B. [7s 6d Minerva pub. co]

43-5521

"The setting is a small spit of land on the French Mediterranean coast inhabited by a horde of miners of many nationalities and backgrounds, living in squalor, drunkenness, and near-madness, bound together by poverty and a common feeling of rootlessness. The time is just before the outbreak of the war." New Yorker

"The miners are too lightly drawn to inspire intense feeling of any kind, yet the book manages to be kindly and often raucously funny, radiating sunny sympathy with these defeated drifters."
Atlantic 171:131 Je '43 110w

"Jean Malaquais can do better. His is a great talent. He may write a great book, one day." Klaus Mann
Book Week p3 Mr 21 '43 800w

"So very freely and colloquially rendered that any trace of M. Malaquais's style is lost, but his exceptional talent for observation and realisation of character has lost nothing in the transition." J. D. Beresford
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 30 '42 90w

"Certainly it is a work of considerable talent. Yet when we have reckoned with the portentous but not very complex irony of its tone and with certain scenes of quasi-significant madness, this story of the foreign and stateless men who work an exhausted mine on the Riviera turns out to be merely another piece of information about the Lower Depths." Lionel Trilling
Nation 156:602 Ap 24 '43 750w

"Sometimes language has shoulders and hands to shrug and point beyond the limitations of the word. So it must be with 'Men from Nowhere' in the richness of its original French argot; for even in this English translation you are aware of Malaquais as an author who gestures as he writes, replenishing his resources by drawing on the interactions of an imagined audience, while his wit plays with the substance of his story, giving it graces, making it sly, quick, extravagant and tender by turn. . . He tells a sad story gayly, a desperate story lightly, a tale of extremes in a moderate voice." Isaac Rosenfeld
+ New Repub 108:611 My 3 '43 1250w

Reviewed by Desmond Hawkins
New Statesman & Nation 23:129 F 21 '42 140w

"It is an enthralling story, extremely style-conscious, sometimes to the point of artifice, yet so rich, so bizarre and imaginative that one does not mind the few stylistic mannerisms, and might even be intrigued by them." Marianne Hauser
+ N Y Times p7 Mr 7 '43 750w

"Though Malaquais lacks the repulsive misanthropy of Céline, he shares some of his ferocious energy and his capacity to project scenes of hopeless degeneracy. He has no sense of structure (the book is really a series of sketches) and he is garrulous, but he has evidently seen this pullulating, Hogarthian life at first hand and he recreates it with considerable power. The English version—the translator's name is not mentioned—strains so hard for the colloquial that it makes me vaguely uncomfortable." Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 19:65 F 27 '43 180w

"Looked at from the purely structural angle, many of its characters in spite of their peculiar status, are more or less shop-worn fictional figures. . . But the amazing thing is that the reader doesn't come to realize how little that is novel there is in their types. . . Many a reader is likely to be puzzled at first by M. Malaquais's novel—by its undeniable unevenness, its slow pace, by a certain confusion of methods, its curious mixture of the present and the past, or by its intertwining of reality, dreaming and the twilight in between. And although his work is fascinating all the way, it does not, in fact, make exactly easy reading. But it is definitely worth while. It is the kind of first novel critics are prone to label 'most promising.' This reviewer for one isn't disposed to be so condescending." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:18 My 1 '43 700w

"M. Malaquais has written a bitter but touching fable, enlivened by the quality of his perceptions." John Hampson
Spec 168:114 Ja 30 '42 300w

"'Men From Nowhere' is often brutal and violent, but just as often it is movingly human and touching. The writing reaches poetic heights and when irony is employed it is tinged with gentleness. The subtle characterizations are drawn with insight and none is of the made-to-order variety. Jean Malaquais shows great promise and in many ways his writing is reminiscent of William Faulkner in his early days." H. L.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 28 '43 550w

"'The Men from Java' is tough, brutal, slangy stuff, undeniably powerful in its kind. How valuable or significant the kind may be is a vexed question. . . There are whiffs of strong meat in the novel, which is not innocent of minor sensationalism. It has next to nothing of organic form; the mine closes down in the end and there is a general exodus, but this implied substitution of one Java for another does not give shape to the story at the last moment. However, the setting is powerfully done, there are grotesquely comic incidents and character sketches, and for the rest the style is the thing—harsh, terse, cynical, brutally frank."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p33 Ja 17 '42 390w

"As a first novel, 'Men From Nowhere' is extraordinary because it is neither a semi-autobiographical purge nor a journalistic record. Jean Malaquais is an accomplished artist working in a medium of which he is master. This is a real novel. Form, design and conception are all beautifully integrated and completely realized. It is both humane and a terse document tempered with gentle irony. It is replete with the poetry of human misery." Leo Lerman

MALAQUAIS, JEAN—Continued
+ Weekly Book Review p2 F 28 '43 1050w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
Yale R n s 32:vi summer '43 360w

MALIN, JAMES CLAUDE. John Brown and the legend of fifty-six. 794p $5 Am. philosophical soc.

B or 92 Brown, John. Kansas—History
43-1879

"Mr. Malin's purpose has not been to make a popular appeal nor to do a biography but to produce an exhaustive and rigidly critical monograph-with-documents on the 1856 Kansas phase. His product is an impressive revisionist study in which, so far as determinable, 'all available Kansas materials' have been used, much of the grist being 'altogether new,' while Eastern records have been subjected to 'a fairly representative coverage.' There are three parts. Part I details the Kansas scene in the 1850's, with copious extracts from contemporary newspapers and official documents; Part II traces the making of the legend (the post-Harpers-Ferry creation of a martyr); then in Part III one finds a critical source study of the Potawatomie massacre of 1856 in the light of newly used manuscript materials." Am Hist R

"Under Malin's competent hand the legendary Brown falls away. Whether the 'real' Brown (as a person) emerges is a question, but Malin is not writing biography. He is content with rigorous historical limitations. A 'psychoanalyst' would have Brown all figured out; that the author avoids this is a subject for gratitude. Maps and documents buttress the text; annotation is complete; the format is clear and appropriate; errors are few and minor." J. G. Randall
+ Am Hist R 48:819 Jl '43 700w

Reviewed by R. F. Nichols
Pol Sci Q 58:614 D '43 850w

"Professor Malin's book will no more quench the fires of the John Brown controversy than could any other. As long as there are two Kansans alive they will be at each other's throats over John Brown, the hero and the murderer. In view of the extent of Professor Malin's research it is regrettable that the ponderous style so often characteristic of the professional historian, and the writers of doctorate theses, and the length of the volume will preclude a large readership." O. G. Villard
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:26 Je 19 '43 750w

MALISOFF, WILLIAM MARIAS, ed. Dictionary of bio-chemistry and related subjects. 579p $7.50 Philosophical lib.

574.1903 Biological chemistry—Dictionaries
43-9690

"Includes present-day terms as well as terms occurring in the literature of a decade ago but no longer used. A majority of the definitions are short but a fair number are encyclopedic. For example, under the heading, Carbohydrate and fat catabolism and their reciprocal integration, is a signed article nine pages long. The editor is well known and there is an impressive list of contributors. College libraries, reference libraries, special libraries in chemistry and pharmacy, and medical libraries will need the book." N Y New Tech Bks

"This reviewer has a strong dislike for synonyms which are not synonymous and for cross references which use up his time and energy. Probably the severest criticism could be advanced against the Editor's apparent disregard for the value of tables included in the book. While the stock used takes 8 or 10 pt. type very well the use of 4 and 6 pt. type on tables, etc. has made them rather trying on the eyes. The Dictionary will no doubt be well received by many who have long felt the want of such a compilation." Edward Lyons
Chem & Met Eng 50:203 S '43 600w
Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:7 Ja '43

"'Dictionary of Bio-Chemistry' is a bulky volume that will be of considerable interest and value to any one concerned with this branch of biology, or of chemistry, depending on the direction from which it is approached. Some of the shorter definitions are couched in technical terms, and a person not familiar with them might have trouble. Of particular interest are the longer articles, written by various authorities." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 4 '43 150w

MALLERY, OTTO TOD. Economic union and durable peace. 183p $2 Harper

382 Commercial policy. U.S.—Commercial policy
43-6384

"Mallery bases his postwar plan on economic union; not the economics of individuals, but the economics of world trade and tariffs, and the reciprocity treaties of Secretary of State Hull. . . Political considerations he leaves entirely to the 'skilled draftsmen' of that field. He proposes a world trade board which would attend to the details of reciprocity, finance the great projects for exploitation of undeveloped areas, and otherwise direct the world's economic affairs." Book Week

"Mr. Mallery seems to be afraid of political action, and so he tries to minimize the authority of governments. . . This reviewer does not want to be too critical. Mr. Mallery has made an important contribution to a great and vital subject. It should be studied by all who are interested in peace, and in particular it should be weighed carefully by those who contemplate a political federation. He has sound economic ideas which need to be implemented through adequate political institutions." H. F. Fraser
+ — Am Econ R 33:658 S '43 1150w

"Mr. Mallery is not concerned in this book with a detailed blueprint for the future. Rather, he is trying to project a skeleton framework which would lead to a course of thought and action. As such, it deserves and requires further elaboration. . . Otto Tod Mallery's engaging study warns us of the stern choice we must make. . . Mr. Mallery's thought-provoking work contributes to make that choice an easier one." Ervin Hexner
+ Ann Am Acad 228:121 Jl '43 950w

Reviewed by H. L. Katzander
Book Week p1 My 9 '43 180w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:156 O '43 40w

"Mr. Mallery is to be commended for writing with the sprightliness of a radio advertiser; but government advisers should be more respectful of basic facts." Albert Guerard
New Repub 108:865 Je 28 '43 240w

"The book should have been timed with the publication of Streit's political 'Union Now' in the interest of both publications, which supplement each other; but it stands well on its own ground." Hans Heymann
+ N Y Times p12 Jl 11 '43 700w

Reviewed by R. M. MacIver
Pol Sci Q 58:631 D '43 500w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 24 '43 550w

Reviewed by M. L. Cooke
Survey G 32:358 S '43 420w

MALLESON, LUCY BEATRICE (ANTHONY GILBERT, ANNE MEREDITH, pseuds). Death in the blackout [Eng title: Case of the Tea-Cosy's aunt]. 270p $2 Smith & Durrell [8s 6d Collins]
43-4187

Detective story.

Booklist 39:334 Ap 15 '43

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 24:376 D 5 '42 90w

"Expert plotting, snappy dialogue and plenty of action and suspense." I. A.
+ N Y Times p8 Mr 21 '43 120w

"Well done."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:21 Mr 6 '43 40w

Reviewed by John Fairfield
Spec 170:16 Ja 1 '43 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p537 O 31 '42 180w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 Mr 14 '43 130w

MALLESON, LUCY BEATRICE (ANTHONY GILBERT, ANNE MEREDITH, pseuds). The woman in red. 197p $2 Smith & Durrell [7s 6d Collins]
43-14972

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p7 O 24 '43 140w

Booklist 40:147 D 15 '43

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 O 10 '43 80w

"A mediocre story, not improved by the constant use of the had-I-but-known-it-beforehand technique."
— New Yorker 19:100 O 9 '43 50w

"Superlative villainess dominates suspenseful yarn. Harassed heroine finally escapes sticky end after thrill-packed adventures. Spine-tingler."
Sat R of Lit 26:29 S 18 '43 30w

"An excellent thriller."
+ Time 42:104 O 11 '43 40w

"Arthur Crook, a plump little lawyer in a brown bowler, solves the mystery after appearing to advantage in a trial for murder and espionage. More than a touch of plush romance lightens the dire proceedings." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p24 O 17 '43 130w

MALMAR, MCKNIGHT. Never say die. 264p $2 Coward-McCann 43-8248

Detective story.

"You will have a fairly good time en route because the characters are well drawn and believable, and because there is plenty of ingenuity at work. But the cliche plot and cliche style allow the story to rise only slightly above mediocrity." Elizabeth Bullock
+ — Book Week p9 My 30 '43 180w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p8 Jl 4 '43 80w

"First class."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:40 Je 5 '43 40w

"A readable trip through Mystery Land, with guessing all the way." Will Cuppy
+ Weekly Book Review p30 My 23 '43 230w

MALONE, TED, pseud. See Russell, F. A.

MALORY, SIR THOMAS. Arthur Pendragon of Britain; a romantic narrative as ed. from Le morte Darthur by John W. Donaldson; il. by Andrew Wyeth. 542p $5 Putnam
398.22 Arthur, king of Britain 43-8223

In his introduction the editor points out that the author of the Morte d'Arthur, did not do an "author's editing" of his work and in consequence there are many repetitions, inconsistencies, etc. He has rearranged the material, retaining Malory's own words but cutting out the story of the Grail and much of the legend of Joseph of Arimathea. His purpose has been "to bring the original and . . . the infinitely more amusing, interesting and adult Le Morte d'Arthur within the scope of popular reading. The story is presented in the form of a historical narrative dealing with the rise and fall of Arthur 'sometime king of this noble realm, then called Britain'; and places its emphasis on the worldly rather than the supernatural, and on the realistic rather than the spiritual." (Foreword) Glossary.

Booklist 39:460 Jl 15 '43

"One omission of great importance has been made in the current edition. By a simple operation, the Holy Grail legends were eliminated altogether, and as much as possible of the interrelated tale of Joseph of Arimathea. . . By omitting them Mr. Donaldson has rescued King Arthur and his court from the children's hour and dressed this great saga of old England for a mature audience. For 'Morte Darthur' is essentially an amusing, interesting and adult tale, and it deserves to be popular." Philip Brooks
+ N Y Times p19 Ag 15 '43 600w

"The present reviewer being, like most moderns, a student of Edwin Arlington Robinson and T. H. White rather than of Arthurian source material, is not equipped to compare the results of Mr Donaldson's editorial judgment with the original Malory in every detail. In its own right, however, the book is a delightful and rewarding experience, an absorbing story skillfully and excitingly narrated by a master of the craft."
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Je 7 '43 550w

MALVERN, GLADYS. Curtain going up! the story of Katharine Cornell; with a foreword by Katharine Cornell. 244p il $2.50 Messner
B or 92 Cornell, Katharine 43-16810

Biography of the "first lady" of the American stage. It is an intimate study of Miss Cornell's life from babyhood to the present, tracing her years of hard work on the road to success. Illustrated with photographs. Suitable for junior and senior high schools; could be used as vocational reading for girls. Index.

"'Curtain Going Up' is a true career story that every young person might profit by reading. It is a warm, rich book, this story of the First Lady of the American stage, Katharine Cornell. While it is entirely of the theater, it carries sound advice for talented youngsters who are entering any of the arts." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p7 Ja 9 '44 360w

Booklist 40:151 D 15 '43

MALVERN, GLADYS. Valiant minstrel; the story of Sir Harry Lauder; il. by Corinne Malvern. 259p $2.50 Messner
B or 92 Lauder, Sir Harry—Juvenile literature 43-16811

Biography of the beloved Scotch comedian Sir Harry Lauder, written for youthful readers. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 40:151 D 15 '43

"The story of his progress from work in a mine to ultimate success as a world renowned concert artist is told against a background of the times so that the reader gets a colorful picture of the period and the theater as well as the man. Older boys and girls and many adults will find this biography, which received the Julia Ellsworth Ford Foundation award, fascinating reading." H. A. Masten
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 D 23 '43 240w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:43 Ja '44 110w

"Song, romance, theatre lights, world travel, war service are winning ingredients, mixed in purest Scot character, and creating an attractive story-biography for older children and young people. It is the 1943 award book of the Julia Ellsworth Ford Foundation." Irene Smith
+ N Y Times p8 N 14 '43 320w

"The story will be interrupted by reading bits aloud or by frankly wiping the eyes, dimmed by generous emotion such as simple goodness rouses. It may be gathered from these remarks that I liked the book. I believe I would have liked it had I never seen or heard Harry Lauder. It produces the effect in words that he sent over the footlights. . . One may as well begin at once to read this book aloud to the family circle; to this every reader is likely to come at last, for the impulse to share its humor and pathos, it memories and anecdotes, is so strong." M. L. Becker

MALVERN, GLADYS—Continued

+ Weekly Book Review p12 N 14 '43 700w

MANGIONE, JERRE. Mount Allegro; il. by Peggy Bacon. 292p $2.50 Houghton

43-345

A young American writer of Sicilian descent records the memories of his childhood among his volatile, laughter-loving but hot-headed relatives and friends in Rochester's Little Italy, called Mount Allegro. Then he goes on to describe the years of his young manhood, and his trip to Sicily to visit the land from which his parents came.

Booklist 39:225 F 1 '43

Bookmark 4:19 Mr '43

"Today, with the people of Italy held in bondage by our enemies, it is important that all Americans understand the attitudes that made Fascism possible and appreciate the deep and essential goodness of some of its victims. Mr. Mangione has provided a sensitive key to this understanding. He has revealed the color and music which the Italian immigrants have contributed to America, and their great possibilities. It is a lesson charmingly told that most of us will enjoy learning." John Fante

+ Books p2 F 7 '43 850w

"Recommended." E. F. Kelly

+ Library J 67:1012 N 15 '42 110w

"'Mount Allegro' is not strictly a novel, but a well-ordered series of recollections of Mr. Mangione's Sicilian childhood in Rochester—lively, witty, easy in the manner of the New Yorker, a kind of Italian 'Life with Father.'" Diana Trilling

+ Nation 156:137 Ja 23 '43 270w

"Mangione's material is so much alive that the only way he can keep it from running together is by imposing the external rank and order of topics; accordingly he follows the adventures of his family and friends in terms of their responses to typical conflict situations. . . Nevertheless, the overtones which Mangione catches are a little disconcerting. His characters, while overdrawn, are insufficiently realized. They appear wistful, eccentric, pathetic or comical, but are known less through themselves than through the author's frequently remote medium." Isaac Rosenfeld

+ — New Repub 108:388 Mr 22 '43 1200w

Reviewed by Meyer Berger

N Y Times p5 Ja 17 '43 1200w

"Humorous and intelligent account. . . Nicely written, too, and topped off with sketches by Peggy Bacon."

+ New Yorker 18:60 Ja 23 '43 60w

Reviewed by Richard Cordell

+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 F 20 '43 550w

"It is no towering peak in U.S. letters, but readers who make the climb can get a clear view of a relatively unexplored part of the native scene—America's 'Little Italys' and the people who live in them."

+ Time 41:103 Ja 18 '43 700w

Wis Lib Bul 39:42 Mr '43

MANKIN, VICTOR J. Modernistic chip carving. 71p il $1.75; pa $1.25 Bruce pub.

736.4 Woodcarving 42-50225

"The term chip carving as used here refers to a form of surface carving used for ornamentation on chests, boxes and other pieces of furniture. Its merit for the amateur is that it requires but one cutting tool, a skew chisel, which with a wooden mallet, compass, ruler, and pencil are all the equipment needed. The term 'modernistic' refers both to the method and to the nature of the designs presented." Wis Lib Bul

Booklist 39:328 Ap 15 '43

"Of possible help to older boys and girls, carvers familiar with old type of triangle or first-level carving, but pretty complicated work to learn through a book alone. Photographs by James Mankin, author's father and teacher." B. E. Weston

Library J 68:39 Ja 1 '43 70w

Wis Lib Bul 39:39 Mr '43

MANLEY, MARIAN CATHERINE (MRS GERALD H. WINSER). Public library service to business; a comparative study of its development in cities of 70,000 and more. 217p $3.50 Newark, N.J. Free public lib.

026.65 Business libraries. Libraries—U.S. 43-51101

Surveys and evaluates informational services for business men afforded by more than one hundred American libraries. It is based on a questionnaire sent out to libraries in cities of 70,000 or more population, and supplements and amplifies an earlier and much smaller publication. "The book is divided into three sections. Part One presents a comparative study of public library service to business and summarizes the trends reflected in the survey which it reports. . . Part Two, which occupies more than two-thirds of the volume, summarizes the replies to a questionnaire returned by 113 libraries. Under each of nineteen topics, the replies of the several libraries are arranged alphabetically by the names of the cities. Part Three presents supplementary administrative information, a selected reading list, and check-lists of business directories and periodicals." (Special Libraries)

"This volume is an interesting account of the progressive development of service to business and a symposium based on the experience of those engaged in this type of library activity. It affords a valuable résumé of conclusions reached after nearly forty years of experimentation and practice and is therefore a dependable guide for any library planning to inaugurate or develop work of this type. . . Certainly no library should think of undertaking the development of a business branch or a department without first studying carefully this excellent compilation of the results of the experience and the mature judgment of those who have explored the possibilities of this phase of library service and carefully charted the course by which a special and important section of the library's potential clientele may be effectively served." E. V. Baldwin

+ Library J 68:360 My 1 '43 1000w

"The book lacks an index, and it is awkward to have to refer back and forth to find out which question is being answered. However, because the literature in the field of business library service is still very scarce and the field itself still in the pioneer stage, any added or comparative information concerning it is needed and welcomed. This survey is a worth-while contribution in that it affords a picture not only of the work as it stands today but also of the librarians delegated to do it." R. L. Vormelker

+ — Library Q 13:352 O '43 1000w

"As pointed out in the prefatory note by Miss Beatrice Winser, it presents much useful information not only for librarians but also for business, professional and governmental groups interested in the development of this field of business service. . . The book has two notable weaknesses: It lacks an index, and the material in Part Two, while of great interest to the reader who has time to devote to it, is badly organized for purposes of quick reference." H. H. Henkle

+ — Special Libraries 34:95 Mr '43 400w

MANN, CARL. He's in the engineers now. 224p $2.50 McBride

358.2 U.S.—Army—Corps of engineers. Military engineering 43-10383

A brief history of the Engineers corps is followed by chapters telling in simple language how the engineers are trained for their various kinds of duties and what they do behind and at the battle fronts.

"If you are looking for inspiration, something to lift you out of the rut of daily routine, get a copy of 'He's In The Engineers Now.' It is by far the best book that has been written about the part played by engineers in the present conflict."
+ Eng N 131:112 Ag 12 '43 200w

"This book [with its] vivid, concise style and pleasing format will be informative and inspirational to high school boys. Welcome addition to browsing collection." Eileen Riols
+ Library J 68:628 Ag '43 70w

Reviewed by Arthur Symons
Sat R of Lit 26:24 Ag 21 '43 200w

"It's all too pat. Everything's here but the soldier—the dirt, the sweat, the mud, the blood. It reads rather like a prospectus for a boys' school, with pictures. Incidentally the pictures are very fine, though many of them are prewar." Ralph Loewy
— + Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 190w

MANN, CARL. He's in the Signal corps now. 192p $2.50 McBride

355.34 U.S.—Army—Signal corps 43-12615

"A somewhat detailed account of what happens to the new soldier from the time he reports for duty to the time he graduates from Fort Monmouth or another Signal Corps Replacement Training Center, prepared to get the message through. While a whirlwind instruction course pounds radio, telephone, telegraph, photography, and other specialized courses into the minds of average American boys, the art of fighting is not neglected. Signal Corps troops, while belonging to a 'service,' as distinguished from an 'arm,' or fighting branch, do their share of fighting and sometimes more than their share." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by K. R. Loff
Library J 68:730 S 15 '43 50w

Reviewed by Arthur Symons
Sat R of Lit 26:25 Ag 21 '43 180w

"The common pitfalls of the civilian writer dealing with a military subject are not always avoided by the author. . . Other slight errors, such as calling training films 'teaching films,' rather mar Mr. Mann's book. Still, it high lights signal work for the layman with novel phrase and photograph. Also the zeal of the author for the signal corps is commendable, but your reviewer would not go so far as to say that 'the signal corps' web of communications is the army's life line.' Let's just consider the corps the eyes and ears of the army." Frederick Reinstein
+ — Springf'd Republican p8 S 13 '43 700w

MANN, CARL. Lightning in the sky; the story of Jimmy Doolittle. 256p $2.75 McBride

B or 92 Doolittle, James Harold 43-16920

Biography of General Jimmy Doolittle, leader of the bombing mission over Tokyo. It traces his story from his boyhood in Nome, Alaska, thru his days of stunt flying, his service in World war I, and his pioneer transcontinental flights, to the day of Tokyo, and after. No index.

"A great guy, and a fine book." W. F. Morse
+ Book Week p11 N 21 '43 320w

Booklist 40:182 Ja 15 '44

"Recommended." J. E. Wooster
+ Library J 69:34 Ja 1 '44 70w

"What Mr. Mann has done is to collect the revealed story to date and put it together in one piece. . . Unfortunately, in covering the Doolittle events . . . he has not revealed much that hasn't been already told. And the pulp magazine hero-worship style of writing will probably have a stronger appeal to the juvenile reader group than to the adult." L. B. Funke
N Y Times p36 N 7 '43 550w

"Mr. Mann's book, though decidedly eulogistic in tone, is a very readable volume. He has packed plenty of information into his well knit story, and has included also a fine sprinkling of anecdote." R. B. Cochrane
+ Weekly Book Review p10 D 26 '43 700w

MANN, KLAUS. André Gide and the crisis of modern thought. 331p $3 Creative age

B or 92 Gide, André Paul Guillaume 43-3826

"Admiring but perceptive study of a great master, in which his subtle relation to his period is admirably demonstrated." New Yorker

Booklist 39:353 My 1 '43

"Mr. Mann reveals a remarkable command of English and an unusually rich, wide-ranging vocabulary for a foreigner. His acquaintance with modern European literature seems to be considerable, but more solid learning would have saved him from attributing a volume of Confessions to St. Thomas Aquinas. The absence of an index is keenly felt because of his wealth of allusion to men and books." Margaret Meagher
+ — Cath World 157:551 Ag '43 900w

"Easy to read though not always pleasant in style. Will be purchased by many libraries because of interest in Mann and not because of Gide." K. T. Willis
Library J 68:127 F 1 '43 90w

Reviewed by Henry Miller
Nation 156:422 Mr 20 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Enid Starkie
New Statesman & Nation 25:339 My 22 '43 1750w

"Excellent study of André Gide. . . This distinguished son of a distinguished father is obviously not one to rest on the laurels of a family name, but is achieving his own destiny in a most original fashion." Ernest Boyd
+ N Y Times p10 Mr 14 '43 1100w

+ New Yorker 19:68 Mr 6 '43 20w

"There is one continuous thread in the labyrinth of André Gide's career, and that is elusiveness. Gide has chosen to be a will-o'-the-wisp. Klaus Mann knows that he has not 'caught' him; if he were caught, he would no longer be André Gide. But Mann has at least chased him. For that strenuous task, he had unique qualifications: personal acquaintance, talent, sympathy. He sends us back to the works of Gide with clearer sight and a more understanding heart. I do not believe that genuine criticism could have a higher purpose." Albert Guerard
+ Weekly Book Review p2 Mr 21 '43 1450w

MANN, KLAUS, and KESTEN, HERMANN, eds. Heart of Europe; an anthology of creative writing in Europe, 1920-1940; with an introd. by Dorothy Canfield Fisher. 970p $5 Fischer, L.B.

808.8 Literature—Collections 44-97

An anthology of poetry, prose and fiction in translation chosen from the works of more than one hundred and fifty European writers of the last two decades before the Second World war.

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p2 D 26 '43 1050w

Booklist 40:193 F 1 '44

Reviewed by C. G. Paulding
Commonweal 39:401 F 4 '44 1050w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 110:120 Ja 24 '44 1200w

"There is a good deal in the 'Heart of Europe' to argue with (and against) as there is in both Miss Canfield's well-intentioned introduction and Klaus Mann's rather unoriginal preface. But these are only the amiable trappings. Within the 'Heart' is a good deal to read and become absorbed in, a great deal to study. It is not a little to come away with if one comes away with some idea of what the European felt and thought, and how he went about fashioning his 'instrument of power' which the editors believe, will endure long after the great war has moved on into yesterday." Harvey Breit

MANN, KLAUS—Continued

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 9 '44 900w

New Yorker 19:68 Ja 1 '44 90w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 2 '44 850w

"The weakness of Heart of Europe as a cardiograph of Europe's spiritual crisis is due less to its fragmentary inclusions than to its massive omissions. None of the writing in this anthology has had any profound influence on the world. Of the books that have really influenced European minds since 1920, Erich Maria Remarque's All Quiet on the Western Front and Arnold Zweig's The Case of Sergeant Grischa are not even mentioned; Adolf Hitler's Mein Kampf comes under the editor's ban against 'fascist elements' in 'style and ideology'; books by Lenin and Trotzky (easily the most brilliant writing that has appeared in Russia since the Revolution) and Oswald Spengler's The Decline of the West are ruled out by the editors' decision to stick to 'creative' writing."

Time 43:100 Ja 17 '44 380w

"'Heart of Europe' is an ambitious title for this anthology of nearly a thousand pages plus two introductions, presenting samples from twenty-one countries of all types of literature except drama, by authors of world-wide fame as well as of authors who were leaders in their own countries and of relatively unknown writers. I may just as well begin with the statement, that in my opinion it is a misnomer. Besides an unreasonably large amount of arid or pretentious writing, of course it also contains a great many moving or powerful pieces. But the heart of Europe is scarcely in it." Sigrid Undset

Weekly Book Review p2 Ja 16 '44 2300w

MANN, MARGARET. Introduction to cataloging and the classification of books. 2d ed 276p $3.25 A.L.A.

025.3 Cataloging. Classification—Books 43-51241

"This manual is well revised, some old material has been deleted, and condensation has made room for new data, such as that on microfilm cataloging. References to other literature are up to date, and the book has been reset and given a modern format." Booklist

Booklist 40:17 S '43

"The new edition covers practically the same ground as the old and overcomes most of its shortcomings. For instance, the wording is both more compact and more lucid. Certain outmoded or unnecessary features have been abandoned, such as the enumeration of the character traits of a cataloger and the discussion of the cataloging and classification of history books. The lists of readings at the ends of chapters have been brought up to date and the new references cited have been carefully selected. This in itself represents a monumental task, as the output of professional literature during the past decade has been mounting steadily. . . It is a satisfaction to have such a stronghold as the second edition of Mann to turn to for guidance." H. D. MacPherson

+ Library J 68:1011 D 1 '43 900w

MANN, THOMAS. Listen, Germany! 112p $1.50 Knopf

940.5304 World war, 1939—Germany 42-52204

Twenty-five radio speeches broadcast over BBC from October, 1940 to August, 1942.

Booklist 39:221 F 1 '43

Reviewed by M. E. Clark
Library J 68:34 Ja 1 '43 100w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
Nation 156:244 F 13 '43 330w

Reviewed by Sigmund Neumann
Yale R n s 32:594 spring '43 600w

MANNERS, DAVID JOSEPH. Under running laughter. 315p $2.50 Dutton 42-50770

Brook Sand, daughter of a famous naturalist, after her father's death, became secretary of an Ontario lumber company. The business was owned by a wealthy family, with several eccentric members. Almost at once Brook found herself made welcome in the family, and in time engaged to the family heir. But meantime she had met and liked a fine young farmer, and the old problem of wealth without love, or poverty and love, had to be redecided.

Booklist 39:320 Ap 1 '43

"Brook Sand underwent a great many emotional changes under the strange tutelage of Alexville. In her transformation, and its effect on those about her, Mr. Manners has created an exceptional piece of fiction." Lisle Bell

+ Books p6 Ja 24 '43 550w

"Vivid, charming romance. Characters well portrayed." E. F. Kelly

Library J 67:1105 D 15 '42 80w

"Neither the plan of 'Under Running Laughter' nor its central conflict is particularly original. The story has genuine freshness, nevertheless. Unlike most novelists of Canada, who are fond of depicting quaint and out-of-the-way corners of the Dominion, David Manners has given us a slice of Ontario life which seems normal and representative and gratefully lacking in picturesqueness. If anything, he has not given us enough of it. The novel could have been half again as long without trying the patience of any reasonable reader." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 3 '43 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ja 17 '43 330w

MANNING, GEORGE CHARLES. Manual of ship construction; the fundamental principles of naval architecture for the operating personnel of the merchant service particularly those who are or desire to become officers. 319p il $2.75 Van Nostrand

623.8 Naval architecture 43-397

"Following are some of the subjects covered: Ship language; Ship structure; Hull equipment and systems; Calculation of buoyancy and tonnage; Principles of stability; Buoyancy and stability in damaged condition; Steering and rudders; Ocean waves and rolling; and Propulsion." (N Y New Tech Bks) Glossary. Index.

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:17 Ja '43

"The book presents instructive but somewhat pedantic reading for persons interested in the merchant marine. Some of the structural details discussed are out of date. More of the illustrations should have their important parts labeled. The glossary of ship terms is a good feature and should be very helpful. The questions at the end of each chapter afford opportunity for review by students." A. F. Johnson

+ — N Y Times p31 O 24 '43 100w

"Any one who wants to get an elementary yet fairly full knowledge of how ships are built will find this book an excellent start." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p25 My 23 '43 130w

MANNING, WILLIAM RAY, ed. Diplomatic correspondence of the United States: Canadian relations, 1784-1860. (Carnegie endowment for int. peace. Division of int. law. Publications) 4v v2 1016p $5 Carnegie endowment; Columbia univ. press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations—Canada. Canada—Foreign relations—U.S. Canada—History—Sources (40-34262)

"Four subjects form the bulk of the correspondence. Boundaries—north-east, Pacific north-west, and the St. Lawrence—account for more than one half of the total. . . Trade between the United States, British North America, and the West Indies was an equally persistent problem and this is given extensive treatment. Navigation of the St. Lawrence and the Atlantic fisheries are dealt with at considerable length. Several lesser problems are too sketchily treated for those who may wish to investigate them exhaustively. These include such matters as fortifications and reduction of naval armaments, extradition, the fur trade, maritime and neutral rights and the impressment of seamen, debt recovery, smuggling (a single reference), slavery and the slave trade, and proposals for the annexation and sale of Canada to the United States." Canadian Hist R

"Those who are acquainted with the late Dr. Manning's contributions to historical literature will welcome this volume. Like previous ones in this and other series which he edited, it is distinguished by judicious choice of documents, careful editing, exhaustive cross references, and an index that is a joy to use." A. B. Corey

+ Canadian Hist R 23:422 D '42 650w

"Here is admirable grist, admirably prepared for the mills of scholars in the field of Canadian-American relations." Chilton Williamson

+ Pol Sci Q 58:156 Mr '43 260w

MANSFIELD, T. C. Alpines in colour and cultivation. 277p il col pl $3.75 Dutton [17s 6d Collins]

635.9672 Alpine flora. Rock gardens [43-5250]

Study of rock garden plants and planting. The book is of English derivation. Contains chapters on the construction of rock gardens, and their cultivation; a glossary of Alpine plants, with short descriptive and cultural notes; and chapters dealing with propagation, composts, diseases and pests. The illustrations are in color, several varieties being combined on one plate, with identifying device.

Bookmark 4:9 Mr '43

"The effect [of the plates] is startling. Colors stand out with bizarre yet fascinating brilliance as though the coy alpines, which we know for their shy loveliness, had suddenly put on powder, paint, and feathers." E. C. Grayson

Sat R of Lit 26:24 F 27 '43 70w

"The author of this interesting book on alpine plants has put a great deal of helpful matter into a limited space, and the book should help alpine growers at every stage of experience. . . The information is concise but sound throughout. The coloured plates are a main feature of the book: they provide accurate likenesses of a large number of growing plants."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p299 Je 13 '42 180w

"Rock gardening is one of the things that they do superlatively well in England, and several of the books on the subject that Englishmen have written are on a similarly high plane of thoroughness. . . To this select company of discriminating and rather exhaustive volumes you can now add the present book." R. S. Lemmon

+ Weekly Book Review p19 Je 6 '43 200w

Wis Lib Bul 39:106 Jl '43

MANSPERGER, DALE., and PEPPER, CARSON W. Plastics, problems and processes. 2d ed., ed. by William H. Varnum. 350p il $3 Int. textbook

668 Plastic materials 42-36327

New edition of a work first published in 1938 (Book Review Digest, 1939). "In addition to a new chapter, 'Design for plastics,' much of the old material has been expanded. New problems and illustrations are also featured." (N Y New Tech Bks)

Booklist 39:296 Mr 15 '43

N Y New Tech Bks 28:15 Ja '43

School Arts 43:9a Ja '44 150w

MANTLE, BURNS, ed. Best plays of 1942-43; and the Year book of the drama in America. 543p il $3 Dodd

808.82 Dramas—Collections. American drama—Collections. Theater—Yearbooks (20-21432)

Slightly condensed versions of ten plays seen on the Broadway stage during the 1942-1943 season. Contents: The patriots, by Sidney Kingsley; The eve of St. Mark, by Maxwell Anderson; The Skin of our teeth, by Thornton Wilder; Winter soldiers, by Dan James; Tomorrow the world, by James Gow and Arnaud d'Usseau; Harriet, by Florence Ryerson and Colin Clements; The doughgirls, by Joseph Fields; The damask cheek, by John Van Druten and Lloyd Morris; Kiss and tell, by F. Hugh Herbert; Oklahoma, by Oscar Hammerstein 2d and Richard Rodgers. Contains also data of the theatrical season in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Southern California.

Booklist 40:110 D 1 '43

"This annual volume is a must for most libraries and deservedly so. The smaller the drama collection the greater the need for these slightly condensed plays."

+ Library J 68:959 N 15 '43 70w

"A reasonably solid residue for a second war year."

+ Theatre Arts 28:63 Ja '44 400w

MAP and aerial photograph reading, complete. 189p il maps pa $1 Military service

623.71 Maps, Military. Photography, Aerial 43-3568

"For field use. Mainly a revision of Map and Aerial Photo Reading, by Brigadier General W. F. Heavey. Includes 'Approach to Foreign Map Reading,' by Captain Robert B. Rigg, military engineer." Library J

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:46 Jl '43

"Practically any recruit should be able to understand it. . . While the format of the book would stretch the seams of the soldier's notoriously tight hippocket, the officer or private who goes into the field the master of these essential directions will not likely need to ask others which way to turn." Theodore English

+ N Y Times p23 S 12 '43 170w

MAPOTHER, MRS EDITH (RUBEL). Dark Darragh. 356p $2.50 Appleton-Century 43-5033

Shirley Lester, left a widow with three growing boys to educate, risked all her savings to go back to Ireland to attempt to get Darragh, the Elizabethan grant estate that had been in her husband's family for centuries. The attempt failed, but it brought two elements of success: Michael, Shirley's oldest son was cured of his invalidism; and Shirley herself found happiness. The book contains some glimpses of Irish politics.

"This is Mrs. Mapother's first novel and, for a first, it is excellent. The story is paced well, the wholesome, healthy Lesters have the spark of life in them and, above all, the author succeeds in making vivid the rich, lush romance that is so peculiarly Ireland's. There are provocative but always well subordinated discussions of the Irish-British problem and a well drawn interpretative portrait of Eire's dark, somber but inspiring president. I should say, however, that the author's treatment of the Irish question is much better done than her discourses on Hitler. These latter are much too obvious." E. J. C.

+ — Book Week p10 Ap 11 '43 240w

Booklist 39:464 Jl 15 '43

"The portraiture of Shirley's old friends in America and the folk she meets in Ireland is admirable. The three young Lesters are genuine boys with just the extra touch of brilliance one would expect of their mother's sons. The dialogue is spirited and natural. But what,

MAPOTHER, EDITH—Continued
above all else, gives 'Dark Darragh' irresistible appeal is its verbal loveliness." J. S. Southron
+ N Y Times p17 Ap 11 '43 550w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 280w

"The prevailing note of this charming narrative is one of high spirits and genuine sentiment, and these find their embodiment in the character of the heroine—an American with an Irish heritage." Lisle Bell
+ Weekly Book Review p17 Ap 4 '43 360w
Wis Lib Bul 39:74 My '43

MARCH, WILLIAM, pseud. See Campbell, W. E. M.

MARCHAL, LEON. Vichy; two years of deception. 251p $2.50 Macmillan

944.08 France—Politics and government. World war, 1939—France 43-1898

In June 1940 the author was serving in North Africa as chief of the Trade and industry department of the French Foreign Service. After the capitulation, he continued to serve the Vichy regime, and was sent to Washington as counselor of embassy there. However, when Laval was returned to power, M. Marchal resigned his post and joined the De Gaullists. His book reviews the history of the Vichy regime, gives sketches of the men of Vichy, and tells something of his own labors in trying to keep channels open between the United States and North Africa. Index.

Reviewed by E. M. Sait
Am Pol Sci R 37:545 Je '43 650w

"There is little new material in the present book, but the story, familiar in its outline, is retold here with the quiet authority of a man who has been in the midst of it. Thus the book has the value of an important testimony, important not only for the understanding of French recent history, but important for the understanding of a certain mentality, the Pétain mentality, which is in no way confined to France." Hans Kohn
+ Ann Am Acad 228:111 Jl '43 550w
Atlantic 171:152 Ap '43 90w
Booklist 39:273 Mr 1 '43

"The author has retained, to an extreme degree, the discretion of the professional diplomat. He reveals nothing which could have come to him only through his official position. . . The names of William C. Bullitt and Robert D. Murphy are hardly more than mentioned; Admiral Leahy is a shadowy figure on the scene; the book closes suddenly with the landing in North Africa, emphatically saying nothing about the unhappy events which immediately followed. As a result of this restraint the book is scarcely one of 'revelations.' . . In general, however, what he offers is an informed study and summation of what is already more or less public property. As such it is of ample interest." Walter Millis
+ Books p1 Ja 31 '43 1850w
Cath World 107:111 Ap '43 180w
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 29 '43 500w
Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '43

"Léon Marchal has written an extremely conservative and diplomatic story of the French 'collaboration' period. Little emotional impetus has been put into the work, and few startling revelations are made. The author has, in fact, been almost too careful to soft-pedal any criticism he may have of American policy toward Vichy and to sublimate his own reactions. Yet he has given the story of French 'collaboration' a logical sequence; he has treated events and personalities with perspective and detachment; and he has added a certain amount of interpretation. Personalities play an important part in the book because they were largely responsible for the events that finally ruined them and France." Carol Thompson
+ Current Hist 4:80 Mr '43 1100w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:12 Jl '43 70w

"This quiet book is an honest, an intelligent document. Intended as a denunciation of Vichy, it helps us to understand why so many people accepted, at first, the Marshal and his nondescript 'French State,' and why our own diplomats find it so hard even now to purge their minds of the Vichy delusion. The regime was partly a 'deception' in the English sense; it was perhaps even more une déception in the French meaning—a frustrated hope, a deepening disappointment." Albert Guérard
+ Nation 156:241 F 13 '43 1100w

Reviewed by Varian Fry
New Repub 109:83 Jl 19 '43 360w

"M. Marchal is very well qualified to recite this somber page of French history with a fair approximation to accuracy. As a Frenchman he knows intimately the political and economic background which made Pétain's pallid 'national revolution' possible. . . He knows the atmosphere of Vichy from first-hand observation, and he is able to throw interesting light on Pétain's breach with Laval in December, 1940." W. H. Chamberlin
+ N Y Times p3 F 7 '43 1500w

Reviewed by René Albrecht-Carrié
Pol Sci Q 58:447 S '43 500w

"After two years of first-hand observation, writing from intimate knowledge of the complex political struggle in Vichy, the author gives a timely and clear report on France after 1940. Its accuracy may be doubted, its sincerity, however, should be respected. Anybody who wants to understand the men in Vichy in their futile struggle for a new order but also for independence will find this book helpful." H. B. Kranz
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:17 Mr 13 '43 650w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p7e F 7 '43 750w

"Lucidly written, accurate in fact, and markedly dispassionate in judgment, it musters the necessary facts to display in all its shame the combination of fraud and folly, dishonor and treason, that constituted the official government of Vichy France." Leo Gershoy
+ Yale R n s 32:583 spring '43 1000w

MARCHANT, ALEXANDER NELSON DE ARMOND. From barter to slavery; the economic relations of Portuguese and Indians in the settlement of Brazil, 1500-1580. 160p pa $1.50 Johns Hopkins press

981 Brazil—History. Portuguese in Brazil. Indians of South America—Brazil 42-23357

"Alexander Marchant presents, against a background of early Brazilian history, a detailed account of the relations of the Portuguese with the Indians from 1500 to 1580. He describes the social condition of the aborigines, the system of barter with them employed by the Portuguese, and the importance of the trade in brazilwood. He discusses not only the use of the barter system by the donatories, but also the effects upon that system of the establishment of royal governors, and the employment of Indians and Negroes as slaves." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by B. W. Diffie
Am Hist R 48:439 Ja '43 280w

"This scholarly study, which contains useful bibliographical notes, is a welcome addition to the works concerning colonial Portuguese America." W. S. Robertson
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:185 F '43 110w

"This brilliant and well documented work should be an inspiration to students in the fields of Latin-American history, sociology, political science, and geography." R. E. Crist
+ Geog R 33:513 Jl '43 380w

MARCUS, ABRAHAM, and MARCUS, WILLIAM. Elements of radio; prepared under the editorship of Ralph E. Horton at the request of the War dept. and the U.S. Office of educ. in conformance with official pre-induction training course outline no. 201. 699p $4; to schools $3.20; also in 2v ea $2.45; to schools ea $1.96 Prentice-Hall

621.384 Radio 43-2496

"Prepared under supervision of Ralph E. Horton, chairman of standing committee on science and director of pre-induction training courses in New York City schools. Designed to train young men for radio jobs in armed forces." Library J

Book Week p10 My 2 '43 90w
Booklist 39:430 Je 15 '43
Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:16 Ja '43

"With its clear explanations and numerous lucid diagrams, 'Elements of Radio' will prove equally valuable for a school course or for a text for home study. Because of its completeness it is an excellent book for the layman who is willing to read with care and attention to learn what radio is today, and perhaps thereby he will better understand and appreciate what it will do tomorrow." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p14 My 2 '43 800w

MARGENAU, HENRY, and MURPHY, GEORGE MOSELY. Mathematics of physics and chemistry. 581p $6.50 Van Nostrand

530.151 Mathematics. Physics. Chemistry, Physical and theoretical 43-8052

"The authors' aim has been to present, between the covers of a single book, those parts of mathematics which form the tools of the modern worker in theoretical physics and chemistry. They have endeavored to do this by steering a middle course between the mere recording of facts and formulas which is typical of handbook treatments, and the ponderous development which characterizes treatises in special fields. Therefore, as far as space permitted, all results have been embedded in the logical texture of proofs. . . The degree of difficulty of the treatment is such that a Senior majoring in physics or chemistry would be able to read most parts of the book with understanding." (Pref) The authors are assistant professor of physics at Yale university, and assistant professor of chemistry at the same university. Index.

"The authors have done a Herculean task in assembling and making available an immense number of mathematical procedures, accurately explained and pointed especially to the needs of the scientific worker." F. J. Van Antwerpen
+ Chem & Eng N 21:1580 S 25 '43 320w

"I predict confidently that this book will be heartily welcomed by all teachers of modern physics and chemistry." F. H. MacDougall
+ J Phys Chem 47:466 Je '43 400w

"Bridges gap between ordinary training in differential and integral calculus and the mathematical knowledge needed for new scientific developments."
Library J 68:575 Jl '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:30 Ap '43

"When the book is finally closed most readers will probably feel that they have been on an extensive and skillfully conducted survey of the fundamentals of theoretical chemistry and physics and each specialist will feel that his part of the subject should have been expanded. The book is thoroughly worth having for even those chemists and physicists with small libraries." Henry Eyring
+ R of Scientific Instruments 14:318 O '43 650w

"So far as possible one subject is made to lead logically into the next, and this continuity is a great aid to the student. The book would be useful for self-study by a person with the necessary background knowledge of higher mathematics." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 8 '43 130w

MARGET, ARTHUR WILLIAM. Theory of prices; a re-examination of the central problems of monetary theory. 2v v2 802p $6; to schools $4.80 Prentice-Hall

332.4 Money. Prices. Keynes, John Maynard (38-14149)

"In the first volume of this work, I set myself the task of welding into a single, unified organon the disparate, and often apparently contradictory, analytical approaches to certain 'central problems of monetary theory.' In the present volume, I have set myself the task of merging the organon so constructed into a still more comprehensive organon. The purpose of this more comprehensive formulation is to integrate 'monetary theory,' in the narrower sense of the term, with the 'general' Theory of Value. This volume, moreover, like the first volume, has a further purpose: namely, that of providing a documented illustration of the processes by which the resultant body of analysis has come to be what it is." (Pref) For volume one see Book Review Digest, 1938. Indexes.

"His work represents a type of research that is extremely rare in America. It is an education in itself to read painstakingly, so well documented a volume. Congratulations are also due the author for his style unless the reader flinches before the parade of combative phrases heavily charged with lethal decoratives, such as: 'the younger Mill followed both his own pernicious slogan and the equally pernicious example of Ricardo' (p.49); 'bizarre propositions with respect to the control of realized prices' (p.589); 'ludicrous misrepresentation' of Keynes (p.613)." H. L. Reed
+ — Am Econ R 32:561 S '42 1750w

"As criticism of Keynes, Marget's procedure is this time even less satisfactory than in the first volume. . . Moreover, Marget has not been fortunate in the choice of the Keynsian statements upon which his critical comments are focused. . . The bulk of the discussion (pages 221-625) is devoted to an independent analysis of the position of demand curves, supply curves, and 'stream equations' in monetary theory. Marget proceeds by laying down and commenting on forty propositions. Most of them are admittedly of elementary nature and accepted by the vast majority of economists. A considerable number of them lack precision, covering as they do half a page or more and representing rather general reflections and not propositions in the usual sense of the word." Hans Neisser
— Ann Am Acad 225:246 Ja '43 1000w

Reviewed by Virgil Willit
Pol Sci Q 58:119 Mr '43 650w

MARIL, LEE. Spice and scent; herbs in fact and fancy; il by [the author] 64p $1.75 Coward-McCann

635.7 Herbs—Juvenile literature 43-5456

"Intended for children, this book presents attractive sketches in two colors of various fragrant, culinary and medicinal herbs, accompanied by instructions on how to grow and use them, and various historical notes and romantic legends about them." Book Week

"It would make an attractive gift for an adult who shares the fancy for herb culture which for several years has been fashionable." J. H. Burdett
+ Book Week p3 Ap 25 '43 140w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:175 My '43 90w

"Exquisite little book of sixty-three pages. . . Perfect gift book for young or old interested in herbs. Doubtful if many children will appreciate. Suggest purchase for adult rather than children's department, except for larger libraries where it may be needed for both." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 68:365 My 1 '43 70w

"Brief stories which leave something to be desired as fiction evoke, nevertheless, a sense of the tradition which lies behind each fragrant leaf. Pictures in color by the author make this an attractive as well as an interesting addition to the shelf of garden books for children." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p8 Ap 11 '43 200w
New Yorker 19:71 My 29 '43 30w
Sat R of Lit 26:30 My 15 '43 20w

"Such a pretty book would ornament the collections of herbal literature many grown-ups now are making, and the information it conveys makes it a pretty present for any one with a small new herb garden." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p20 My 23 '43 220w
Wis Lib Bul 39:126 O '43

MARINACCIO, ANTHONY, and OSBORN, BURL NEFF. Exploring the graphic arts. 274p il $2.50 Int. textbook

655 Graphic arts 42-36328

"A non-technical account of bookmaking from its origin to the present day. Copious illustrations help to explain such subjects as letterpress, intaglio printing, planography, ink and paper making, and the binding of books. A bibliography of 100 references and a plan for equipping a graphic arts laboratory add to the book's usefulness." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 39:350 My 1 '43
Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:10 Ja '43

MARITAIN, JACQUES. Art and poetry; tr. by E. de P. Matthews. 104p $1.75 Philosophical lib.

844 Poetry. Art—Philosophy 43-15258

"This little book appears to be pieced together out of detached bits of writing done at various times within the past fifteen years, yet they have such unity as derives from a common general theme and from the author's theory of art which is a direct derivative from his religious (Roman Catholic) point of view. The first part deals with three painters, Chagall, Rouault and Severini; the second, called 'Dialogues' and dating from 1928, is 'the continuation of some Parisian conversations and controversies' in a series of detached paragraphs; the third, 'The Freedom of Song,' directs a discourse in aesthetics to a theological end." Christian Century

Reviewed by John Pick
Cath World 158:212 N '43 750w
Christian Century 60:1140 O 6 '43 100w
Commonweal 39:42 O 29 '43 700w

"The book depends so intimately on its nuances of style, which seem excellently retained in the translation, that no summary can do it justice; and it is often so nearly impressionistic that any literal-minded dissent from its doctrines would mark only the critic's capacity for irrelevance. Perhaps many readers will find it perplexing, with artistic insights more hindered than helped by the underlying philosophy. Yet no reader, having freely lent himself to these fragments of Maritain's thought, can fail to recognize in them a manifestation of exceptional refinement and sensibility." C. L. S.
+ J Philos 40:722 D 23 '43 420w

Reviewed by T. M. Greene
Yale R n s 33:377 winter '44 650w

MARITAIN, JACQUES. Education at the crossroads. 120p $2 Yale univ. press

370.1 Education A43-2582

"The writer explores, in this book, the American system of education. Dissenting from the view that has been widely held in various disguised forms that education is in some way like animal training, Dr. Maritain believes that it must be based on the Christian idea of man as being 'more a whole than a part, and more independent than servile.' In his view, education is concerned with 'deep-rooted independence with regard to common opinion.' The book, then, is devoted to discovering how that can come about, to showing what has been wrong with the system of education that has been more concerned with techniques than with goals, with 'aptitudes' rather than with the whole human being." (School & Society) Index.

"Dr. Maritain's book is stimulating and thought provoking. It is unfortunate that at impasses the author withdraws behind the patois of an outmoded medieval philosophy." W. P. Sears
+ — Churchman 157:14 D 1 '43 450w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
Churchman 158:16 Ja 1 '44 300w
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Ag '43

Reviewed by G. N. Shuster
Commonweal 38:542 S 17 '43 650w

"M. Maritain's Terry Lectures offer a wise and thoughtful program for the education of man in general, and of Americans in the postwar world in particular, on the basis of a considered philosophical analysis of human nature. As a Frenchman, a genuine European, and a Catholic in the best sense, the heir of the great humanistic tradition, he is the apostle of liberal education—'liberal' both in liberating the energies of the human personality, and in preparing free men to coöperate in a democratic community." J. H. Randall, Jr.
+ J Philos 40:609 O 28 '43 1900w

"The aims, misconceptions, norms, curriculum, and problems, including that of postwar Germany, are lucidly examined in the all-too-compact, involved style characteristic of Maritain's works. Recommended for educators, teachers colleges, normal schools, and schools of education. Distinctly not a popular work." R. J. Hurley
+ Library J 68:529 Je 15 '43 110w

Reviewed by Jacques Barzun
N Y Times p4 N 14 '43 1250w
School & Society 58:144 Ag 28 '43 120w

Reviewed by G. S. Counts
Survey G 32:509 D '43 70w

Reviewed by G. N. Shuster
Weekly Book Review p20 O 24 '43 1050w

Reviewed by T. M. Greene
Yale R n s 33:377 winter '44 650w

MARITAIN, JACQUES. Essays in Thomism. See Brennan, R. E., ed.

MARITAIN, JACQUES. Rights of man and natural law; tr. by Doris O. Anson. 119p $1.50 Scribner

323.4 Natural law. Liberty 43-10817

"Jacques Maritain, the distinguished French philosopher, now residing in New York, is representative of neo-Thomism . . . at its best. . . [He] has written what he describes as an 'essay in political philosophy.' He is considering and describing the fundamental principles of the society which will both preserve and also encourage the development of man's true potentialities as a being who is social yet who essentially transcends history." Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by L. R. Ward
Book Week p10 Ag 15 '43 500w
Booklist 40:3 S '43

"Precisely because this discussion of human rights looks to the very depths of reality, Maritain's discussion is both timely and timeless. He is a man of modern times in his realization of the enormous damage done to human rights by the extraordinary development of the material world in our day. . . This work has the advantage of being an outline that retains the vitality of the complete philosophy which inspired it. It is easy to read in English and should serve as a useful introduction to Maritain's political philosophy." J. F. Coffey
+ Cath World 157:660 S '43 500w

"A little book which should be part of the required equipment of every Allied soldier, statesman, editor and radio commentator—especially the commentator."
+ Commonweal 38:396 Ag 6 '43 900w
J Philos 40:501 S 2 '43 400w

Reviewed by H. W. Schneider
J Philos 40:515 S 16 '43 800w

"It is very easy to quarrel with Professor Maritain's assumptions, to question his metaphysical motives; yet it is false to underrate either his influence or his good-will. His bias in this book, for example, is surprisingly secular, and though he adds nothing to our knowledge of modern society, much of what he says is sound and admirable. . . Professor Maritain's book is so generous, and even sagacious, in its social idealism that one regrets both his addiction to metaphysics and the fact that his ultimate commitments are other than naturalistic. For like most works of its kind, much of it is written with a calculated vagueness that borders sometimes on obfuscation." Martin Lebowitz

+ — Nation 157:161 Ag 7 '43 850w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr
N Y Times p8 S 5 '43 900w

"A carefully worded, precise little volume which will not disappoint those who know and admire the author, and which offers a positive contribution to the political thinking of those who feel that something more than rule-of-thumb pragmatism is necessary in realistic political action." C. D. Kean

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 19 '43 950w

Reviewed by H. D. Lasswell
Survey G 32:510 D '43 450w

"This is the most important book Maritain has written during his stay in the United States. Unless I am very much mistaken, it will be the handbook of a large section of the younger Catholic generation, and, beyond that, an expression of desire for pluralistic co-operation which will help to clear away cobwebs of many varieties and origins." G. N. Shuster

+ Weekly Book Review p16 S 26 '43 800w

Wis Lib Bul 39:141 N '43

Reviewed by T. M. Greene
Yale R n s 33:377 winter '44 650w

MARITAIN, JACQUES. Twilight of civilization; tr. by Lionel Landry. 65p $1.50 Sheed

901 Civilization, Christian. Humanism—20th century 43-8189

"A short lecture, first delivered in Paris in 1939, in which the author defends 'the primacy of the spiritual' and argues that true democracy must be founded on the Christian concepts of justice and love. Good translation. Part of it has appeared in the Virginia Quarterly Review." New Yorker

Booklist 40:10 S '43

Christian Century 60:897 Ag 4 '43 80w

Reviewed by B. I. Bell
Commonweal 38:327 Jl 16 '43 650w

"Very worthy contribution to literature on the war and postwar issues." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 68:287 Ap 1 '43 110w

"There can be no doubt, Maritain argues, that the toxins of totalitarianism are distilled from evil instincts and urges. We shall not prevail against them unless we go back to the first sources of spiritual energy, resolving to achieve a Christian democracy in which religion and humanism will conjoin. These thoughts are, of course, not new with Maritain. But in this little book he has written down some of them with fresh clarity and poignancy, being inspired always with a deep sense of the contemporary tragedy and with an equally profound affection for the men upon whom that tragedy has descended." G. N. Shuster

+ N Y Times p33 Je 6 '43 650w

New Yorker 19:87 Je 5 '43 50w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p6 Je 28 '43 550w

Reviewed by T. M. Greene
Yale R n s 33:377 winter '44 650w

MARKS, PERCY. Knave of diamonds. 213p $2 Reynal

43-10297

A modern young man with a Robin Hood complex is the hero. Peter Vandaboon had plenty of money for his own wants, but his philanthropy took a strange turn—he robbed wealthy women of their diamonds in order to give money to the needy. Inspector Saunders is set to catch this good-natured thief.

"Probably not even its most ardent admirer would contend that 'Knave of Diamonds' is an important book or one of great artistic significance, but it does raise the craft of story-telling for entertainment to a high level of virtuosity. Mr. Marks sustains suspense from page to page like a master and produces his final surprise with the smiling dexterity of a Cardini picking a lighted cigarette out of thin air." Margaret Wallace

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 25 '43 380w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 25 '43 350w

MARKS, STANLEY J. The bear that walks like a man; a diplomatic and military analysis of Soviet Russia. 340p $3 Dorrance

940.5347 Russia—Foreign relations. Russia—Army. World war, 1939—Russia 43-4132

"Mr. Marks stresses the complete, vigorous and clever humanity, rather than the ursinity, of the Russian. He follows the diplomatic developments of the post-revolutionary years down to the approximate present, always with interpretations favorable to Russia, sides with the Soviets in the war with Finland, and devotes much space to the analysis of military strategy following the German invasion." Christian Century

Christian Century 60:234 F 24 '43 100w

Reviewed by Clifton Macon
Churchman 157:15 My 15 '43 210w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:13 Jl '43 20w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p10 Ag 20 '43 650w

Reviewed by Max Werner
Weekly Book Review p14 Mr 21 '43 650w

MARLETT, MELBA. Another day toward dying. 271p $2 Doubleday

43-2515

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Books p12 F 7 '43 140w

"Good."

+ Boston Globe p19 F 10 '43 40w

"Sarah is both detective and narrator, and she does a good job in both capacities." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 24 '43 220w

"Feminine in spots, but a straightforward job."

+ New Yorker 18:64 Ja 30 '43 50w

MARLOWE, GEORGE FRANCIS. Old Bay paths; their villages and byways and their stories; il. with phot. by Samuel Chamberlain. 126p $2 Hastings house

917.44 Massachusetts—Description and travel. Connecticut—Description and travel 42-23537

Historical record of some of the older and little known villages and roads of Massachusetts and Connecticut. Illustrated with photographs. Map on end papers.

Books p25 Ja 24 '43 180w

Christian Science Monitor p10 F 27 '43 20w

MARQUAND, JOHN PHILLIPS. So little time. 595p $2.75 Little

43-12144

"The personal story is that of Jeffrey Wilson, successful play doctor, well and happily married according to any rational standards, who feels that somewhere he has missed the way; that if he had taken another turning—if he had not married Madge, perhaps—he might be writing his own plays, instead of re-writing other people's on a fat royalty basis, and going out to Hollywood at top salary to breathe life into other people's scripts. The encompassing story is that of a nation drifting into war, from the autumn of 1940, when the Germans invaded Norway, until the end of 1941, when all interventionist-isolationist arguments were stilled." Sat R of Lit

MARQUAND, J. P.—Continued

---

"At its best Mr. Marquand's satire is irresistibly amusing. His take-offs of Walter Newcombe the foreign correspondent, of Mintz the film producer, of Beckie who adores interior decorating, and of her husband Fred who knows all about tax-exempt bonds, have in them the truth that really makes you squirm. At its second-best his satire can be nagging, as for instance the disparagement of Madge, which in the end becomes positively monotonous". Edward Weeks

+ — Atlantic 172:125 N '43 950w

" 'So Little Time' is a portrait, not a sermon. It is the most artistic, skillful, impressive and, at the same time, delightful portrait of these times yet to be written." A. C. Spectorsky

+ Book Week p1 Ag 22 '43 1400w

Booklist 40:13 S '43

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 158:213 N '43 550w

Christian Science Monitor p12 S 25 '43 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Ag '43

"Superlatives will greet Mr. Marquand's new novel—most of them well deserved. And readers, deeply engaged with his Jeffrey Wilson and their own recollection of experiences they have shared with him, will find that the almost six hundred pages here have turned fast. That absorbing power is the chief of many triumphs. It should not blind us to the ingenuity of the plan, the structural excellence and the artistry which we may, with too little justice, take for granted in Mr. Marquand's work. He has the sure touch which we covet for literature." O. B. White

+ Commonweal 38:472 Ag 27 '43 310w

"Amusing satire of life between the wars, with some good characterization. For those who liked E. M. Pulham and George Apley." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 68:625 Ag '43 70w

" 'So Little Time' obviously misses the stature of tragedy because its chief characters lack stature, and yet, if only because it stays with the individual in his full commonplaceness and without the trappings of cosmic virtue, it achieves some small measure of tragic import. And paradoxically, despite its limitations, it becomes a valid social document exactly because it is not intended to be a social document." Diana Trilling

+ — Nation 157:220 Ag 21 '43 800w

Reviewed by George Mayberry
— New Repub 109:259 Ag 23 '43 360w

"It is something to be grateful for—having in our generation a novelist as thoroughly readable as John Marquand. . . 'So Little Time' is as good reading as its predecessors. Mr. Marquand uses our language with admirable ease and resourcefulness. His stroke is loose rather than 'tight.' . . Boredom is forestalled by the spice of humor and irony with which Mr. Marquand's shrewdly calculated effect is made." J. W. Beach

+ N Y Times p1 Ag 22 '43 1400w

" 'So Little Time' is more panoramic and therefore looser in construction than 'The Late George Apley' or 'H. M. Pulham, Esquire.' It's longer, it says more about more serious things, but its tone and viewpoint are unchanged. I found it just as entertaining as Mr. Marquand's earlier books, as witty and as equable. The dialogue is perhaps even better in its bite, naturalness, and timing." Clifton Fadiman

+ New Yorker 19:64 Ag 21 '43 700w

"Mr. Marquand is famous for his way with characters, and none of his books exhibits a fuller, more entertaining collection than does 'So Little Time.' He does not pin his characters on corks for us to study them, but holds them loosely in his hand and lets them wriggle around and be themselves; lets them work out their own damnation. Or so we think as we read; but, of course, it is all illusion. Each character is shaped and manipulated by a master, and there is really no damnation. There is no damnation because Mr. Marquand is that rarest of artists, a sympathetic satirist. He satirizes without damning. And it is fitting that the last words of this novel, so far his biggest and his best, should be: 'Forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.' " B. R. Redman

+ Sat R of Lit 26:4 Ag 21 '43 1200w

"With his unquestioned gift for satire and for knife-like characterization, Marquand might well have been expected, by this time, to have sold out for mere cleverness. 'So Little Time' is sufficient proof, if it were needed, that he is more than craftsman. Jeffrey Wilson had in his makeup depths which embarrassed and bewildered him. In 'So Little Time' the profundity is there as well, offered without apology or shame." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 22 '43 900w

Time 42:99 Ag 30 '43 450w

" 'So Little Time' is, in many ways, a brilliant book. The writing is alive with good dialogue; the characterization is pointed with a fine satiric pen. But Jeff Wilson leaves one baffled. His impatience with the emotionally and intellectually tawdry and fraudulent is clear, but he himself, apart from his preoccupation with the pressure of death, has little to offer. . . But, whether or not one sees Jeff clear, the book makes good reading, especially its portrait of Walter Newcombe." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p1 Ag 22 '43 1500w

Wis Lib Bul 39:123 O '43

"This book is polite comedy of high skill, a delight to read, with many well-rendered, if not profound, characterizations; but it is disappointing because of its dry negativism, because of its exclusive concentration on the arid, empty world of the frustrated where no people are generous or admirable and no cause is worth enthusiasm." Orville Prescott

+ — Yale R n s 33:viii autumn '43 350w

MARQUARDT, FREDERIC SYLVESTER. Before Bataan and after; a personalized history of our Philippine experiment. 315p $2.50 Bobbs

991.4 Philippine Islands 43-8582

The author, son of American school-teachers, was born in the Philippines and after his education in the United States returned there as a member of the staff of the Philippines Free Press, in 1928. His book is partly autobiography but chiefly it is an informal, rapid resumé of Philippine history since 1900 with emphasis upon the period since the end of the first World war. Index.

Reviewed by A. E. Nuquist
Am Pol Sci R 37:953 O '43 450w

"His chapter on Manuel Quezon, the testy little radical who became first president of the Philippine Commonwealth, is a superb piece of characterization, and, indeed I wish that more of the book were up to this standard. Most of it deals not with the life of the island people, but with the 'Manila Americans' and with the succession of governors general and high commissioners. His comments on these personages are excellent, and I suppose that the story of our Philippine experiment can best be told by writing about those who carried it out. Perhaps what we need from Marquardt is another book telling the rest of the story. Meanwhile, this is an excellent job and an exciting contribution to democratic history." R. H. Rovere

+ Book Week p2 Jl 11 '43 700w

Booklist 39:461 Jl 15 '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 24 '43 450w

"Before tragedy struck Manila there was little that Fred Marquardt missed in the prewar life of the Philippines. It is his country, and no American is better qualified to tell the story of the Philippines and the people whose lives are in that story. He writes with the love of two countries in his heart and with a warm understanding and appreciation for two peoples." C. P. Romulo

+ N Y Times p7 Jl 4 '43 950w

Reviewed by R. S. Scott

Springf'd Republican p8 Je 30 '43 900w

"It is regrettable that Mr. Marquardt deals only sketchily with Philippine economic development under American rule, since a more detailed account of this phase of our 'experiment' would have served to explain more clearly the somewhat anomalous character of the American-Philippine relations. But his political observations throughout the book are acute and valuable for the future. He shows a keen awareness of the conflicting forces in our society." K. L. Mitchell

+ — Weekly Book Review p4 Jl 18 '43 1050w

Wis Lib Bul 39:108 Jl '43

MARSDEN, MICHAEL H. E. Khaki is more than a color; drawings by E. C. Kenney. 282p $2 Doubleday

355.12 U.S.—Army—Military life 43-12215

Personal narrative of a Rhode Island boy's first year in the army.

"A vivid, intelligent and utterly honest account of the metamorphosis of one American boy from civilian to potential fighting man." S. E. Hyman

+ Book Week p2 Je 13 '43 800w

"There's a quality to this one that beats the humorous anecdotes of previous jobs. Here in simple language is what one American of the millions felt, thought, saw, ate and did when he went into the Army. Its simplicity and complete honesty give it an authenticity that recommends it highly as a book for a soldier-to-be or for the family he leaves behind him." Elizabeth Watts

+ Boston Globe p19 My 19 '43 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Ag '43

"Because Sergeant M. H. E. Marsden, who hails from Rhode Island, is just a regular guy, typical of most of the men who hated giving up civilian careers to go into the Army, who accepted service because there was nothing else to do about it, who griped, who was homesick and lonely, who passed that stage and found comradeship, satisfaction and meaning to the new life he was leading, his book is one that folks back home will find good reading. It has no pretensions as literature. . . Marsden —Mike to his fellow-soldiers—tells his story in language and style that captures the essence of the life he describes." Rose Feld

+ N Y Times p4 My 9 '43 600w

Springf'd Republican p7e Je 6 '43 420w

"The author does not strive to be literary or philosophical; his book is like a long letter home."

Weekly Book Review p16 My 16 '43 150w

MARSH, NGAIO. Colour scheme. 314p $2.50 Little 43-10321

Detective story.

"The characterization is so good and the setting so unusual that it seems a waste to devote them to the solution of an unimportant crime. But Ngaio Marsh's mystery stories are among the best."

+ Atlantic 172:131 S '43 70w

"Not the best of Miss Marsh's tales, but a very good one." Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p9 Ag 1 '43 230w

Booklist 39:464 Jl 15 '43

"'Colour Scheme' has everything—style and atmosphere, humor which is never forced, a striking and unusual background, and a group of characters, English, Maori and New Zealander, who are fascinating and completely credible." D. C. Disney

+ N Y Times p4 Jl 11 '43 440w

"A superb novel, agreeably free of straight detection. Recommended without reservations."

+ New Yorker 19:64 Jl 10 '43 70w

"Readable."

+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 Jl 10 '43 40w

Reviewed by T. W. Lamont

Sat R of Lit 26:8 D 11 '43 180w

"The atmosphere and tension throughout 'Colour Scheme' is excellent and Miss Marsh has taken all the license that is a writer's prerogative, with more than successful results. To be sure, the story is a little weak on straight detecting, and armchair sleuths who prefer their mysteries straight may cavil at the author's emphasis on story and characters, but the humor of 'Colour Scheme' is mordantly delightful and the mystery itself essentially and baffling wacky. As Simon Claire would say 'Fascinatin'—What! What!'" L. S. M.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 11 '43 330w

Times [London] Lit Sup p477 O 2 '43 210w

"Model detection, a stylish espionage angle, murder most hideous and a picturesque background of Maori folks and folklore are delectable attractions of this new and bang-up Ngaio Marsh mystery—a top-drawer item and a contender for seasonal honors." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p16 Jl 11 '43 450w

MARSHALL, EDISON. Great Smith. 438p $2.75 Farrar

Smith, John—Fiction 43-4729

Fictionized biography of Captain John Smith, done in the language of the Elizabethan era. It begins with "the Great Smith" as a youth of seventeen, leaving his English home, and ends with him as an old man, recounting his adventures of a lifetime to a young nephew. In between is told the story of his exploits, especially with the many lovely ladies he met on his travels.

"Blessed be that book of which the reader voices but one lament: 'It ends too soon!' And 'Great Smith' is such a book." Elizabeth Van Deusen

+ Book Week p3 My 16 '43 750w

"Interesting departure from author's Northern and Western stories." E. F. Kelly

Library J 68:289 Ap 1 '43 60w

"Mr. Marshall does not hesitate to improvise, with all the prodigality of a born story teller. The result is a fine, picaresque romance, teeming with the sort of derring-do that Munchausen himself would envy—a thrilling tale of the years that followed the defeat of the Armada, when a lusty young England sailed west to carve its first empire out of wilderness." William Du Bois

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 11 '43 900w

"The narrative follows the pattern of autobiography, with the retired captain recalling his youth at the behest of a scrivening nephew who doesn't believe in asterisks." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p12 Ap 11 '43 650w

MARSHALL, JAMES. Freedom to be free. 277p $2.50 Day

321.8 Democracy 43-5701

"Only in the firm ground of maturity can the democratic faith flourish. Can we reach maturity in time to make an enduring peace? James Marshall—lawyer, administrator, for four years president of the New York City Board of Education—gives the reply of a realist, in terms of practical psychology, and proposes a basis for world organization at the end of this war." (School & Society) Index.

"This is an honest and refreshing book, one that needs to be read more by the youth who will build tomorrow than by their elders who fell so dismally short of the mark yesterday." Louis Zara

+ Book Week p1 My 2 '43 1250w

Booklist 39:440 Jl 1 '43

Bookmark 4:6 My '43

MARSHALL, JAMES—Continued
Reviewed by J. H. Titus
Churchman 157:14 Ag 1 '43 240w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:155 O '43 30w
J Philos 40:306 My 27 '43 250w

"Here is a book as broad as human institutions, full of wisdom of the ages and containing enough pioneer thinking to stimulate the exploring mind." J. H. Crider
+ N Y Times p10 My 2 '43 550w

"Mr. Marshall's exposition of the idea that society is but individual experience expanded is persuasively presented, but I think that he has not taken sufficiently into account the impulses to group action that are specifically motivated by group experience. Social psychology does not exactly parallel individual, and so, while I found his chapter on Germany and Japan provocative, I found myself left with questions it did not answer. This is part of the value of the book. It has all the merits of clear thinking, which means that it is as valuable at the points where the reader disagrees with it as at the points where he accepts it. I cannot refrain from adding that it is refreshing to have so thoughtful a book written in so lucid a style." Frank Kingdon
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:10 My 8 '43 850w
School & Society 57:484 Ap 24 '43 60w
Social Studies 34:287 O '43 40w
Reviewed by Katherine Smedley
Social Studies 35:90 F '44 1350w
Reviewed by W. R. Huntington
Survey G 32:264 Je '43 450w

MARSHALL, MRS LENORE (GUINZBURG). No boundary [poems]. 59p $1.75 Holt 811 43-12593

"Mrs Marshall has been writing poetry for a number of years and although some of her poems have appeared in various periodicals, this is the first published collection of some of her verse. 'No Boundary' contains only a representative sampling of that verse, but it is enough to indicate that in Lenore Marshall is a poet of unusual ability and feeling. The poems in this collection are of varied subjects, some philosophical, some reflective utterances of a sensitive mind, and some mere impressions, all linked by her lyric style." Springf'd Republican

---

Booklist 40:75 N 1 '43

"The book makes pleasant reading, but leaves no lasting impression. The author is least effective when dealing with deep and hidden meanings. In sketching scenery and reproducing the line and color of the visible world she is at her best." Pearl Strachan
+ — Christian Science Monitor p13 S 25 '43 140w

"The book as a whole is distinguished by a nice perceptiveness. It shows, as one might expect, an appreciation of the many small beauties of living. . . But beyond these, the book exhibits a rare sensitiveness to the more subtle motions of the mind. Not for nothing does the word 'frail' recur on the pages, sometimes companioned by another adjective that seems to deny its validity, as where the poet records a 'frail, eternal' beetle seen crawling in the sand of prehistoric caves, or the 'frail giant towers' of the metropolis. She is steadily conscious of the confusions that surround and ambush us, and more especially of the paradoxes implicit in human relationships. These are explored with a courage that makes for penetrating insights." Babette Deutsch
+ Nation 157:271 S 4 '43 450w
Reviewed by Delmore Schwartz
N Y Times p34 N 7 '43 160w
Reviewed by Milton Hindus
Poetry 63:226 Ja '44 210w

"I have never believed that any poet, even Emily Dickinson, wrote without hoping, at least, for the appreciation of some public, even a public made up of only a few intimates. But I feel that Mrs. Marshall, if she had been shipwrecked on a desert island, would have written these same poems, with the same scrupulous attention to detail, the same integrity and intensity of thought and craftsmanship. They are the natural expression of her heart; her 'Speaking likeness.'" S. H. Hay
+ Sat R of Lit 26:26 O 2 '43 650w

"It does not seem important in the face of her exquisite style that Mrs Marshall has little to say that's new. . . In Lenore Marshall's poems there is a beautiful balance. Her fine perception of beauty is carefully weighed with an understanding and frank-speaking mind. She is fond of imagery and it is through that medium, for the most part, that she is able to maintain that balance. The mechanism of imagery has to be handled with capable hands. Too much imagery, the senuous imagery of which Mrs. Marshall makes great use, can lead to pure sensational poetry. The implication of imagery can lead away from the thought of the poet. Yet Mrs Marshall falls into none of these pitfalls." E. S. P.
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 25 '43 440w

"Lenore Marshall's verse, in spite of the deceptive simplicity of some of it, has an inner coherence and integration which give it real dynamic substance. She has been likened to Emily Dickinson, and though she does not have the knotted strength or stark directness of Emily Dickinson at her best, such a poem as 'Cures' shows that she has the same gift of never wasting words on superfluities." Elizabeth Drew
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 29 '43 700w

MARSHALL, MRS ROSAMOND VAN DER ZEE. Kitty. 303p $2.50 Duell
43-18114

Beautiful Kitty Gordon, who was picked up out of the gutter of eighteenth century London by the artist Thomas Gainsborough, is the subject of this romantic novel. At fifteen when Gainsborough first discovered her, Kitty was dirty and in rags; by the time she was twenty-eight she was a supremely beautiful woman who had married two wealthy men, was the mother of the heir to an enormous fortune, and was about to marry the man of her dreams—the subject of Gainsborough's famous painting The Blue Boy.

"Here is an evening of complete escape, an exciting reading—may Miss Marshall give us many more of the same! Kitty is as irresistible as she is incorrigible. And for frankness and a frank enjoyment of her pleasures she is a regular little Rabelais." Edith Roberts
+ Book Week p4 O 24 '43 550w

"Good story telling, but has no value as novel of eighteenth century or on life of Gainsborough." M. P. McKay
Library J 68:846 O 15 '43 60w

"The romantic story is set against a rich eighteenth century background, with Gainsborough a prominent figure and other celebrities of the period popping up occasionally. The cruel contrasts between the conditions of the lower and upper classes are vividly emphasized because of Kitty's rapid rise from one to the other. . . The novel is robust entertainment, primarily for its picaresque quality, even though in the finish its rogue-heroine takes a hand at social reform as well as love." Beatrice Sherman
+ N Y Times p18 N 7 '43 650w

"Here's an old dish, spiced with the sauce of modern frankness of speech, and a few shredded herbs of social significance—a dish which may very well appeal to those who know a little of the London of Gainsborough's time. . . Not only is the style, except for a certain strained pastiche in the dialogue, hopelessly of to-day; Miss Marshall allows Kitty to use words unknown in Kitty's day, or not used in the sense here employed, and also to make mistakes about historical characters. These are obstacles which one must overcome to get verisimilitude in writing an incredible story. Still the book has gusto and speed. The characterization of some of the people is, in its romantic way, good." R. E. Roberts
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:22 D 18 '43 270w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 220w

" 'Kitty' is definitely not for the kiddies, but the boys and girls in the back room should love it." Leo Lerman

Weekly Book Review p17 O 24 '43 600w

MARTEL, FRANCIS. Petain; Verdun to Vichy. 226p $2.50 Dutton

944.08 World war, 1939—France. Pétain, Henri Philippe Bénoni Omer 43-14498

Biographical sketch of Marshal Petain covering chiefly the years since the first World war and resulting in a bitter indictment of him as a traitor to France. The author, who was an aviator in the first World war, has known the Marshal from childhood, and has followed his career closely thruout the years since. Index.

"This is definitely one of the most important books about France since the downfall of the Third Republic. It is in no way opportunist literature, written because the trend of the times is propitious for accusing finger-pointing; nor is it a plaintive dirge or a vituperative Philippic under the mask of a flowery necrology." Gustav Bernard

+ Book Week p8 N 7 '43 400w

"Francis Martel presents his arraignment with great force. The book is cogently thought and well written; it might be exactly what we need—if it were not so hopelessly unreliable. Not only is it full of minor misstatements; but many of them are not such as a Frenchman of culture would be likely to make. The book has points of excellence; but it is curiously off key." Albert Guérard

— + Nation 157:532 N 6 '43 950w

"Mr. Martel's judgment of Pétain is without pity, though not without terror, for Pétain 'betrayed France with premeditation, with persistence and with no shadow of remorse.' With logic, with skill, with a perceptive imagination he unfolds the frustrations of eight decades which finally led a marshal of France to the precise point in history where, as on the cover of this book, he may be seen shaking the hand of Adolf Hitler." Eleanor Kittredge

+ N Y Times p22 O 24 '43 500w

Reviewed by Jacques Ducharme

Springf'd Republican p8 O 26 '43 600w

Reviewed by Philippe Barres

Weekly Book Review p2 N 28 '43 1500w

MARTIN, CURTIS. Hills of home. 185p $2 Houghton

43-15959

A young man boards the train which is to take him away from his home town near the Mexican border. In a series of sketches he reviews the lives of the people he has known in Sangre De Cristo, as they have appeared to him, and gradually a picture of the life of the town materializes.

"A book about peace, a strangely anonymous little volume which seems to me to have more merit than I have yet seen claimed for it and certainly more taste and decent humility than is characteristic of current fiction. . . Some of the chapters in 'Hills of Home' are better than others—my favorites are September's Bridge and The Hills of November—but once the book gets under way, there is not a story without quality in the writing or without dramatic point." Diana Trilling

+ Nation 157:591 N 20 '43 480w

"Not all of the seventeen stories and sketches which Curtis Martin wants to remember will evoke a similar response in us. Some are too static, like the characters they describe, and some too naïve. But there are others which we will share with him in memory, not only for the atmosphere they breathe, but for their gently implied philosophy." Nona Balakian

+ — N Y Times p8 Ja 2 '44 600w

"The book is most attractive and fresh in its writing; the sketches, for they are not quite short stories, have a strength of plan and a finish of execution that is highly talented. The book is a young man's work, with some ragged ineptitude, but it is more than a 'work of promise.' As it stands it's delightful." Lee Varley

+ — Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 280w

"An honest, informal, straightforward, occasionally sentimental, account. There is something youthful and sincere about it, and one suspects that it may be partly autobiographical." Rosemary Benet

+ Weekly Book Review p16 N 7 '43 500w

MARTIN, DAHRIS BUTTERWORTH (MRS HARRY SHOKLER). I know Tunisia. 271p il $3 Washburn

916.11 Tunisia—Social life and customs 43-12735

An American woman, a writer of children's books, gives an informal account of her experiences in Tunisia. She lived for several months in the Arab quarters of the city of Kairouan, and mingled with the Arabian families, while she studied their manners and customs.

Booklist 40:45 O 1 '43

Christian Science Monitor p11 O 16 '43 360w

"We are not conscious, while reading these lively experiences, of vital part played by Tunisia in present war. Will be popular. Recommended." E. McE. Olcott

+ Library J 68:622 Ag '43 70w

"Miss Martin's experiences with the Arabs were rather extraordinary. They are presented with vividness and humor and engaging detail. But they seem now positively archaic. They seem now incredible, not that an American was taken so closely into the family life of these poor Mohammedans but that the association should have endured so many years. . . 'I Know Tunisia' is filled with beautifully described, brilliant pictures of Arab life when the chief excitement in Tunis was watching the new moon rise above the minarets and proclaim the beginning of Ramadan." Lorine Pruette

+ — N Y Times p15 S 12 '43 500w

Reviewed by G. G. Knauth

Sat R of Lit 26:8 S 25 '43 550w

Springf'd Republican p8 O 22 '43 600w

" 'I Know Tunisia' is a book! Not political, or geographic, or economic or military but human and personal. Despite its martial locale I recommend it, as that so rare and now so much needed literary phenomenon, an 'escape' book. The only inept line in the whole book lies in the title. That bold assertion with its catchpenny implications of timeliness gives no indication either of the modest soundness of Miss Martin's material or of the charm with which she deploys it." F. H. Bullock

+ Weekly Book Review p1 Ag 29 '43 950w

MARTIN, EDGAR WINFIELD. Standard of living in 1860; American consumption levels on the eve of the Civil war. 451p $4.50 Univ. of Chicago press [27s Cambridge]

331.83 Cost and standard of living. U.S.—Economic conditions 43-70

The author's object is to describe in considerable detail the economic aspects of American life during the decade before the Civil war. Contents: The production of foodstuffs; What people ate; Architecture and interior decoration; Housing and household operation; Boarding and lodging; Clothing and personal care; Medical care and public health; Transportation and communication; Governmental and philanthropic contributions; Education, reading, and the church; Leisure and recreation; Conclusion: The standard of living in 1860. Index.

Reviewed by M. G. Reid

Am Econ R 33:376 Je '43 1100w

Reviewed by Haven Emerson

Am J Pub Health 33:447 Ap '43 320w

Reviewed by Hazel Kyrk

Am J Soc 49:90 Jl '43 700w

"Students and teachers will find this book a good reference for history and economics. Novelists writing about the Civil War period will find it invaluable." H. R. Cottam

+ Am Soc R 8:363 Je '43 800w

MARTIN, E. W.—Continued

"A very valuable and substantial contribution to the social and economic history of America."

+ Christian Century 60:82 Ja 20 '43 130w

Reviewed by E. E. Hoyt

J Home Econ 35:240 Ap '43 350w

"One of the continuing contributions of the university press is its relatively high proportion of first books by new authors in the solid non-fiction field. Year after year there issues from these modest publishing houses a quiet parade of gritty, nuggety first books that probably represent a higher average of real integrity of purpose and of man-years of sustained hard work than do the publications of the established literary repeaters who constitute the racing stables of the commercial publishers. This is one of these first books, and we are all in debt to Mr. Martin and to the University of Chicago Press for it." R. S. Lynd

+ Sat R of Lit 26:32 Je 5 '43 700w

MARVIN, LINDA. Housekeeping made easy. 434p $1.98 Vanguard

640 Home economics 43-9375

"More than 2,000 shortcuts for daily household problems." (Subtitle) Includes how to clean a refrigerator and how to prevent cauliflower from scenting up the whole house, what to do with silk stockings, and chapped hands, how to pack for moving, storing or traveling, etc, etc.

Booklist 40:6 S '43

"The author is an authority; three times a week she talks on the radio on how to deal with minor and major household problems, and from this source these hints are gathered. A praiseworthy feature is an immense index—twenty-two pages, double-column."

+ Weekly Book Review p17 Jl 11 '43 150w

MARX, WALTER JOHN. Twilight of capitalism and the war; a study of the social and economic effects of modern capitalism and of probable postwar trends. 316p $2.75 Herder

330.9 Economic conditions. Capitalism. Sociology, Christian 43-271

"This book by the able author of Mechanization and Culture undertakes a study of the modern social and economic breakdown, discussing in non-technical language such questions as these: Why must millions remain idle when there is so much work to be done? Why cannot the unemployed supply their personal needs by their own labor? What price do we pay for modern big business? What are the limits of compound interest in the reinvestment of profits? What will be the economic and social effects of the war?" Cath World

"One may disagree with some of the views of the author, but this does not hinder the book from constituting stimulating and thought-provoking reading for a large circle of intelligent readers." P. A. Sorokin

+ — Am Soc R 8:482 Ag '43 200w

"Broadminded, patient, honest, these chapters rank among the most satisfying of the numerous attempted analyses of our present chaos."

+ Cath World 156:639 F '43 230w

"Although written for popular consumption, this is an important book for all serious thinkers. . . There are, of course, some exaggerated statements and some isolated conclusions with which one could disagree, but taken as a whole, Mr. Marx has done a much more objective and thorough job of exposing capitalism than a more famous man of the same name." Emerson Hynes

+ Commonweal 37:500 Mr 5 '43 550w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. A generation risen [poems; il. by] Edward Seago. 72p $3 Macmillan [12s 6d Collins]

821 World war, 1939—Poetry. World war, 1939—Pictorial works 43-7326

"Shrewd, pungent comments by the Poet Laureate on the young English men and women who defend their island. Mr. Seago's illustrations are more conventional than Mr. Masefield's verse." New Yorker

Reviewed by J. T. Frederick

Book Week p4 Ag 1 '43 30w

Christian Science Monitor p11 F 27 '43 270w

"The drawings are better than the poems in 'A Generation Risen' . . . The effort, the Poet Laureate explains in his introduction, is 'not so much a record as a tribute to some of the young people who have come forward to save the nation in her danger.' His rhymes would appear to have been composed to accompany Mr. Seago's sketches." Pearl Strachan

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 12 '43 430w

Manchester Guardian p3 D 11 '42 200w

Reviewed by David Daiches

New Repub 109:150 Ag 2 '43 50w

"The disturbing thing about such a collaboration (though the pair have tried it on two previous occasions, and successfully too) is the question it inevitably raises as to whether the poet has composed verses to illustrate the work of the artist, or the other way round. Here, it seems, Masefield undertook to fit poems to sketches already made. If this is true, then Seago has gone to the source for his material, while Masefield has gone to Seago. The consequence is good for Seago (his illustrations are extremely well realized) and not so good for Masefield. Indeed, except for one or two poems, the 'beauty, dignity and grandeur of Britain at war' vouchsafed us on the jacket is nowhere to be found." Gustav Davidson

N Y Times p22 Je 6 '43 200w

New Yorker 19:79 Je 12 '43 30w

Reviewed by W. R. Benét

Sat R of Lit 26:11 Ag 21 '43 450w

Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 4 '43 360w

"Mr. Masefield admits in his introduction to this handsome book of poems and pictures that, as Walt Whitman wrote, 'the real war will never get in the books.' Yet something of its actuality has been caught here, not, indeed, the actuality of the battlefields, except for two pictures which show ambulances at their work of mercy during a blitz, but the human aspects and scenes in various branches of war service which crowd the background of the actual fighting."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p632 D 26 '42 390w

"It is the office of the Poet Laureate to speak for the nation, but one could wish that Britannia's gratitude in this instance could have been voiced in tones rather more ringing and robust. The poem, 'Sentries,' however, does create the atmosphere of danger and fear and waiting, and of the age-long continuity of these human emotions, and Masefield's old love and knowledge of ships, which is felt very little in his poems here about them, beats in the lines telling of the spirit in which the ground crews serve their planes. . . It is perhaps fortunate that the poems are accompanied by Edward Seago's lively and interesting sketches of war-time scenes and figures." Elizabeth Drew

+ — Weekly Book Review p19 Je 6 '43 550w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Land workers. 12p pa 90c Macmillan [pa 1s Heinemann]

821 43-3780

"Most of Mr. Masefield's poem is a remembrance of the farm-labourer of his boyhood. . . And it is by contrast with 'the bitter cross those heroes bore' that he draws his concluding picture of 'a girl of seventeen' astride a tractor, and ends with the reflection that 'I saw no change but for the good.' " Times [London] Lit Sup

Christian Century 60:490 Ap 21 '43 80w

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan

Christian Science Monitor p10 F 27 '43 90w

"A rather pallid thing, yet it has a certain dignity and a carefully restrained emotion which few of the younger poets seem able to achieve." David Daiches

New Repub 109:150 Ag 2 '43 40w

"His poem is not a plea for or against the mechanization of agriculture. And where it fluently reinvokes the life and toil of the countryside, it is good to read."

Times [London] Lit Sup p23 Ja 9 '43 210w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Wonderings. 64p $1.75 Macmillan

821 43-15625

Reminiscences of the poet's childhood and his early imaginings, done in verse, and forming a picture in contrast—England as it was in his infancy, as opposed to the England of today.

Booklist 40:180 Ja 15 '44

"The old Masefield is back with us again, after sad experiments with shabby stories badly rhymed. Here he shows again, in skillfully turned phrases and deft meter, the sense of poignant reality, even though his material now is as airy as the stuff of dreams—the vivid, tangled, kaleidoscopic and evanescent memories of early childhood." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 60:1401 D 1 '43 390w

"The heroic couplet devitalizes both the appeal and the lyrical childhood passages, but the poem (first part of a projected whole, perhaps) is thoroughly understandable, thoroughly Masefield. Has its place, therefore, doubtless already predetermined by each library." E. L. Lewis

Library J 68:958 N 15 '43 100w

"The poem ends with an indictment of the 'backward and blind' England which lay behind his childhood's delights, a tribute to her kinsmen oversea and to her own dauntless heart, and a summons to create a new and better England to-morrow. Here the Laureate speaks. His words are not great poetry, but they are vigorous and from the heart." H. I'A. F.

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 O 27 '43 250w

"Poetry is not for the many-headed multitude. Nevertheless, one can admire Mr. Masefield's persistence and his refusal, as poet laureate, to be anything other than what he has always been—a writer trying to convey his delight in man's heroism and in the external beauty of the world to as many as he can reach. His humility becomes him." Willard Thorp

+ — N Y Times p20 Ja 16 '44 850w

"This long poem succeeds in mixing realistic humanitarianism with charming memories of a not entirely idealized English childhood."

+ New Yorker 19:80 Ja 15 '44 20w

"John Masefield has passed his zenith and his writing has been thinned and worn by too close application. But this new book of reminiscence in verse, is interesitng as telling of the gloomy England he knew in his youth." W. R. Benét

Sat R of Lit 26:22 D 4 '43 290w

Times [London] Lit Sup p512 O 23 '43 700w

"This poem is both a description of the world of childhood which the poet himself experienced and a description of the West country town in which he passed that childhood and which symbolizes to him the social conditions of England at that time. It is, as it were, a mixture of well known themes in the work of Wordsworth, Crabbe, Ruskin and William Morris. Masefield writes very well when he is describing the realistic detail of the objects which impressed themselves on his early years—the waterfall, the river in flood." Elizabeth Drew

+ Weekly Book Review p3 D 19 '43 800w

MASEREEL, FRANS. Danse macabre. ltd ed 25 il $6 Pantheon bks, inc, 41 Washington sq, N.Y.

Drawings 43-501

Story of the impact of war on human beings told thru the medium of twenty-five drawings in black and white. "The sketches for this novel were made in 1940, during Masereel's flight from Paris, while he walked for three hundred miles through machinegun fire and bombings." (Sat R of Lit)

"Masereel's line has become thick, straight, and course, devoid of inflection, unable to note anything that does not leap up at a casual glance. Every pictorial idea is reduced to its most banal version. Any one drawing gives only too correct an indication of what all the others are like."

— Nation 156:213 F 6 '43 80w

"In 'Danse Macabre,' Masereel, Flemish artist and master of the pictorial novel, has created one of his greatest works, a document as much of our time as any factual report from the battlefront, yet far more than either reportage or propaganda, the flaming vision of an artist whose 'J'accuse' pleads for all humanity." Marianne Hauser

+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 Ja 16 '43 600w

MASON, BERNARD STERLING. Junior book of camping and woodcraft; drawings by Frederic H. Kock. 120p $2 Barnes, A.S.

796.54 Camping 43-9783

Instruction in the technique of camp and woodland life from the use of the various types of axes to reading weather signs. The book is illustrated with photographs showing men and boys doing things, and with many line drawings in the margin showing how such things should be done—or shouldn't be done.

"This book, despite the word 'junior' in its title, will do two things: it will be of inestimable aid in making a camping trip pleasant and comfortable and safe and healthy, and it will make you yearn for camping days again. . . The combined wisdom of Indian trappers and American pioneers is here, attractively and handsomely presented." E. B.

+ Book Week p3 Je 27 '43 230w

Booklist 39:468 Jl 15 '43

+ Christian Century 60:771 Je 30 '43 20w

"The inexperienced young camper may find any amount of sensible advice in this well-illustrated book. Ranging from explicit rules on the proper way to sharpen a knife, to an equally plain diagram of the process of making a trench fireplace, all the information essential for successful camping is given in clear definite fashion. No young lover of outdoor life can look at the photographs of real boys engaged in these open-air activities without a wish to go camping himself." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:327 S '43 70w

Reviewed by B. E. Weston

Library J 68:964 N 15 '43 80w

New Yorker 19:134 D 4 '43 50w

"It's a masterpiece of clear and simple 'how-to' writing, which is superbly reinforced by the drawings of Frederick H. Kock."

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 130w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 18 '43 330w

MASON, FRANK W., pseud. See Mason, V.

MASON, GEORGE FREDERICK. Animal tracks [il. by the author]. 95p $1.50 Morrow

591.5 Footprints. Tracking and trailing. Zoology—North America 43-11275

Forty-four common North American animals are included in this aid to the identification of animal tracks. For each animal there is one page of text, describing habits, range, and manner of locomotion; and one page of drawings, showing the animal in characteristic pose, and its tracks.

MASON, G. F.—Continued

Booklist 40:19 S '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p18 O '43

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:327 S '43 70w

"Prepared primarily for the young naturalist, but it will be useful for any boy or girl of scout age. Recommended." A. E. Brown
+ Library J 68:627 Ag '43 70w

"Boy Scouts or any young naturalist fortunate enough to spend some of his time in the country will find this book useful and inspiring." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p6 O 10 '43 180w
New Yorker 19:130 D 4 '43 70w

"Books like this never go out of fashion, though in the course of a couple of generations several have gone out of print. Tracks in the snow, prints in the earth, never lose their thrill for boys; this autograph album of forty-four North American animals, each with his portrait alongside his tracks, will show many a city boy what to look for in the country." M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p6 Ag 29 '43 230w
Wis Lib Bul 39:127 O '43

MASON, MRS MARY FRANK. Patients' library. 111p il pa $1 Wilson, H.W.

027.66 Hospital libraries

" 'A guidebook for volunteer hospital library service.' (Subtitle). Assumes that there will be increased demand for this service and provides simple instructions for organization and management." Wis Lib Bul

---

"Given the incentive to serve and the interest in her library duties, the volunteer will find in Mrs. Mason's handbook, simplified for her, many concise directions and explanations to which she will turn for help very many times. As is often the case, in hospital libraries, the one whose duty it becomes to assume all responsibilities will find in this compactly arranged guide, a friend indeed." G. H. Birdsall
+ Library J 68:245 Mr 15 '43 360w

Reviewed by Perrie Jones
Library Q 13:273 Jl '43 1500w
Wis Lib Bul 39:103 Jl '43

MASON, MIRIAM EVANGELINE. Young Audubon, boy naturalist; il. by Will Forrest. 198p $1.50 Bobbs

B or 92 Audubon, John James—Juvenile literature 43-14448

Story of the younger years of the artist-scientist Audubon, written for readers of fourth and fifth grade age. The book stresses Audubon's passion for birds, beginning when he was a small boy in Nantes, France.

"Less distinguished than Boy of the Woods by Maie Lounsbury Wells and Dorothy Fox, it is not a necessary item where the library possesses the latter. . . Recommended for eight- to twelve-year-olds and where a particularly easy biography is needed." F. W. Butler
+ — Library J 68:894 N 1 '43 80w
Wis Lib Bul 39:147 N '43

MASON, SARA ELIZABETH. Murder rents a room. 232p $2 Doubleday

43-12652

Detective story.

"If you can take a bookful of unalloyed stuff of this sort, an unintended burlesque of 'Gone with the Wind' atmosphere, you'll find the murder and sleuthing good enough for a quiet evening at home." Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p10 Ag 22 '43 230w
Booklist 40:80 N 1 '43

"This is Sara Elizabeth Mason's first detective story, and it promises well for the future." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p8 Ag 15 '43 280w

"Entertaining."
Sat R of Lit 26:22 Ag 28 '43 40w

"Crime, romance, authentic Southern atmosphere and rule-of-thumb detecting are satisfactorily mixed."
+ Time 42:103 S 13 '43 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p22 S 19 '43 150w

MASON, VAN WYCK (GEOFFREY COFFIN, FRANK W. MASON, WARD WEAVER, pseuds). End of track; il. by George Annand. 303p $2.50 Reynal

43-11462

Western story.

"Gripping is the word for this story of early railroad-building, Indian-fighting days. It probably out-Westerns all Westerns up to date. It smells of the plains and the pulps—but good." Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p12 Ag 15 '43 400w

"Ward Weaver's story hasn't a dull moment. If you are in the mood for a yarn of the raw, raucous West, here is one that should pin your ears back." Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 8 '43 450w

MASON, VAN WYCK, (GEOFFREY COFFIN, FRANK W. MASON, WARD WEAVER, pseuds), ed. Fighting American; a war-chest of stories of American soldiers from the French and Indian wars through the first World war; with an introduction. 747p il $4.50 Reynal

43-9679

Collection of excerpts from some forty historical novels telling the stories of American soldiers and American battles from the French and Indian wars through the first World war. Among the authors are James Fenimore Cooper, Herman Melville, Stephen Crane, Richard Harding Davis, Thomas Boyd, Walter D. Edmonds, James Boyd, Zane Grey, etc.

"If the anthology is not comprehensive, it is well on the way to being that. Maj. Mason's omissions are regrettable, but his big, lusty book should well serve the purpose for which it is designed." August Derleth
+ — Book Week p1 Je 27 '43 1100w
Booklist 40:14 S '43

Reviewed by G. W. Wakefield
Library J 68:430 My 15 '43 70w

"Despite minor faults, 'The Fighting American' is one of the best compilations of American military fiction yet produced. It should find a large audience, now that so many Americans are again vitally interested in how a soldier feels and acts in battle." Allan Taylor
+ — N Y Times p3 Je 27 '43 1050w
New Yorker 19:62 Jl 3 '43 140w

" 'The Fighting American' contains the kind of stories you will want to read again and again, for they are the cream of the crop." G. K. Moriarty
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 11 '43 500w

Reviewed by Carl Van Doren
Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 4 '43 430w
Wis Lib Bul 39:110 Jl '43

MASON, VAN WYCK (GEOFFREY COFFIN, FRANK W. MASON, WARD WEAVER, pseuds). Q-boat; il. by Frank Beaudouin. 244p $1.75 Lippincott

43-51191

Two stories about experiences on the Q-boats. The first story is of an old merchant vessel sent to help a convoy blockaded in Iceland. The second takes place in the Caribbean. The same characters appear in both stories. For older boys and girls.

Reviewed by Alvin Sexner
Book Week p11 S 19 '43 130w
Booklist 39:448 Jl 1 '43

"These tense adventures of Lieutenant-Commander William Dale, in convoy duty on the sea lanes to Russia, and on the expanse of the Caribbean, can be matched in the actual experiences reported daily in the newspapers. But the convoy service has not previously been the subject of a boy's book and it well deserves to be." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:241 Jl '43 70w

"Mediocre style, but of current interest to children twelve to fifteen." E. A. Erickson
Library J 68:577 Jl '43 80w

"The clear type and the numerous and spirited illustrations, as well as the simple, direct style, help to make this a story that the less bookish readers will enjoy." A. T. Eaton
+ N Y Times p10 Jl 4 '43 260w

"Man or boy, don't begin this if you have a train to catch within the hour. You'll lose it if you get into the grip of the career first of the Pegasus and then of the Polydor in this very war that now is." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p8 Jl 11 '43 480w

MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY. Department of electrical engineering. Applied electronics; a first course in electronics, electron tubes, and associated circuits, by members of the staff. 772p il $6.50 Wiley

621.38 Electrons 43-6363

"Intended for a basic course, the present text constitutes a survey of the field rather than an extensive coverage of individual phases. Completely documented by footnote references and a bibliography on physical phenomena and electron tubes." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Indexes.

"Undoubtedly, it is an excellent book but there is some question as to the designation of it for a first course unless the student has already either developed an excellent background of physics or of electrical engineering. Certainly it is in no sense a popular book or even a text for a college sophomore."
Book Week p8 My 16 '43 160w
Booklist 39:466 Jl 15 '43
Library J 68:36 Ja 1 '43 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:8 Ja '43

"Collaboration has yielded an excellent choice of fundamental and important material and made possible the restriction of each writer to his specialty. The result is a text which should find favor in the minds of serious students." F. E. Canavaciol
+ N Y Times p29 Je 6 '43 400w

"An excellent book for a more advanced student." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p19 Jl 11 '43 120w

MASSACHUSETTS INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY. Department of electrical engineering. Magnetic circuits and transformers; a first course for power and communication engineers. 718p il $6.50 Wiley

621.3143 Electric transformers. Magnetism 43-6652

"Another volume in the 'Principles of Engineering Series,' prepared by the electrical engineering staff of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. . . It starts with the basic facts about magnetism and magnetic circuits, which are analogous to electrical circuits, and continues to the application of these principles in the many types of transformers which are so necessary in electrical power transmission." (Weekly Book Review) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:466 Jl 15 '43
N Y New Tech Bks 28:26 Ap '43

Reviewed by H. M. Davis
N Y Times p51 N 14 '43 360w

"Although this book may be expected to find its greatest use among engineering students it will be consulted also as a reference book by those working on the theory or design of transformers and those interested in ferro-magnetism and ferro-magnetic materials in a broad way. It is not in any sense a design manual but the principles discussed and the problems give the kind of background that is necessary for intelligent design. It is highly recommended." R. M. Bozorth
+ R of Scientific Instruments 14:311 O '43 800w

"Naturally such a book as this is quite advanced, but the engineer will find it a valuable reference work." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Jl 25 '43 100w

MASSEY, VINCENT. Sword of Lionheart, and other wartime speeches. 117p $2.50 Humphries

940.53 World war, 1939—Addresses, sermons, etc. [A43-1156]

"These are the collected speeches of Mr. Vincent Massey, High Commissioner for Canada in the United Kingdom, made on various occasions since the outbreak of the war, and mainly addressed to Canadian audiences, though some were to listeners in [England] and one to American troops over here." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:15 Jl '43 10w

"Mr. Massey avoids that hortatory note of which the public, in proportion to its own good will, grows increasingly weary. He is not an orator in any grandiose sense of the term; his speeches are simple statements of fact and feeling—descriptions of what he has seen going on around him, interpretations to each other of two countries which he knows well and loves equally. Most of them are quite short, all are to the point, with the virtues of simplicity and sincerity, and free from the too well-rubbed small change of platitudes about freedom and democracy which, as handled by some speakers, have lost a good deal of their original high value."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p302 Je 26 '43 310w

MASSIE, CHRIS. Green circle [Eng title: Green orb]. 280p $2.50 Random house [7s 6d Faber]

43-51058

A psychological novel dealing with murder and insanity.

Booklist 39:294 Mr 15 '43

"Not cheerful reading but well written and will hold your undivided attention." Lena Ruppert
+ Library J 68:128 F 1 '43 70w

"For convenient description 'The Green Orb' may be said to be something between that memorable novel 'Descent Into Hell' and Pirandello, having the spiritual preoccupation of the one and the psychological ingenuity of the other. Perhaps Mr. Massie's greatest score is that he has succeeded in making a certified lunatic both true to the facts of experience and interesting as a human being, so that for once the reader is persuaded that madness may be a higher state of consciousness." Charles Marriot
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 2 '43 330w

"The central figure in Mr. Massie's new novel is a madman, so it is not strange that the book itself is tinged with madness, which makes it fascinating and at times almost repellent. . . Mr. Massie has taken a difficult subject and displays tact and good taste when he assumes that the people who read his book have as much sense as he has, and do not have to have the word 'psychology' underscored for them. And his fine story of Egan Borthwick . . . sets a new high for fiction of this sort. One might say that it is an epicurean sort of book, and not for those who like just meat and potatoes every day." Sally Benson
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 7 '43 460w

"Sensitive handling of a difficult subject."
+ New Yorker 19:67 F 27 '43 50w

Reviewed by John Hampson
Spec 170:346 Ap 9 '43 200w

MASSIE, CHRIS—Continued

"Mr. Massie has a real literary gift that gives a vivid reality to a narrative which from a realist point of view always moves on the verge of the incredible. This is a book that will remain in the mind of the reader as a strange and fascinating experience."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p137 Mr 20 '43 300w

"Our guess is that satisfied consumers of Mr. Massie's new book will be found largely among the more sober and scholarly fanciers of murder and mystery. 'The Green Circle' may be too strong meat for the average seeker after entertainment, not to mention escape. It's grim and somber, cram full of misery, madness and borderland states, extremely well done of its kind and probably a god-send to a select audience." Will Cuppy

+ Weekly Book Review p21 F 28 '43 350w

MASSOCK, RICHARD GILBERT. Italy from within. 400p $3 Macmillan

945.09 Italy—Politics and government. World war, 1939—Italy 43-638

The author was for four years, 1938 to 1941, chief of the Rome bureau of the Associated Press. When Italy's declaration of war came he was interned, and did not get back to America until the summer of 1942. The book covers the period of the rise and fall of Mussolini. It is the author's belief that Fascism is a failure, and the people of Britain and America should help the Italians to readjust themselves. Index.

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Am Pol Sci R 37:558 Je '43 450w

Reviewed by H. A. Steiner

Ann Am Acad 229:189 S '43 360w

Booklist 39:250 F 15 '43

Bookmark 4:13 Mr '43

"Mr. Massock is one of the ablest men The Associated Press has ever sent abroad, and he has made a conscientious effort to combine William Shirer's diary-like immediacy with John Gunther's encyclopedic marshaling of pertinent detail. As a result 'Italy from Within' justifies its title. It is the most revealing and convincing picture of the Italian nation at war which we have yet had." John Whitaker

+ Books p3 Ja 10 '43 1200w

"All in all, this book may be classed among the most interesting, enlightening and honest popular accounts of Mussolini's political career." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 157:658 S '43 700w

"Mr. Massock is to be congratulated on doing violence to the current eye-witness tradition. When he isn't sure of something, he says so. Where lesser reporters gild their sources, he candidly shows how a reporter struggles with a maze of tips, rumors, planted stories and gossip in an effort to turn up genuine news leads and finesse them through the censorship. His story consequently acquires a strength and an obvious validity which too many other such books recently have lacked." S. R. D.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 30 '43 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '43

Reviewed by A. L. Lingelbach

Current Hist 4:54 Mr '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:585 Ap '43 60w

"Author chronicles developments he has watched with a keen eye, keeping himself admirably in the background. Welcome book." H. R. Burdett

+ Library J 68:34 Ja 1 '43 130w

Manchester Guardian p3 Je 9 '43 230w

Reviewed by Gaetano Salvemini

Nation 156:385 Mr 13 '43 1500w

"One would expect Mr. Massock to be better at gossip-reporting. But he succeeds in being lax even at retelling Mussolini's noisy love-affair. . . The author's knowledge of Italian is not impressive, judging from his persistent misspelling of geographical and proper nouns. . . One point, however, should be made in favor of Mr. Massock. While other recent first-hand reports on Italy bear traces of their authors' hasty adjustments to militant anti-fascism, Mr. Massock's testimony is distressingly candid: he has literally nothing to conceal." Paolo Milano

— New Repub 108:188 F 8 '43 850w

Reviewed by B. B. Carter

New Statesman & Nation 25:421 Je 26 '43 450w

"This book is a comprehensive, thoughtful and vivid account of the fascist regime in Italy." Harold Denny

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 10 '43 950w

"None of all this is precisely new, but some of Mr. Massock's anecdotes are. His first-hand (and rather irritatingly objective) descriptions of the Fascist bureaucracy, particularly the nauseating Ciano and his super-nauseating wife, Edda, have a certain gossip interest. Mr. Massock's book, like all other news from Italy, confirms the correctness of the attitude of our State Department which makes a distinction between the Fascist regime and the Italian people." Clifton Fadiman

New Yorker 18:48 Ja 9 '43 210w

"A serious, painstaking, yet highly readable account of what has been happening in Italy in the last five years." H. S. Miller

+ Pol Sci Q 58:309 Je '43 500w

"The book is a valuable resume of Italy's history since the first World war, written by a man who has had every opportunity to see and judge events. . . Its main interest, however, lies in the picture it gives of the Italian people as they are today. There are excellent sections on domestic policy, the food situation, the conditions of the armed forces and sentiments of the ordinary people. It is a sober, impersonal, objective account."

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ja 12 '43 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p253 My 29 '43 1200w

MASTERS, DAVID. Up periscope. 275p $2.50 Dial press [7s 6d Eyre]

940.5451342 World war, 1939—Naval operations—Submarine. Great Britain—History, Naval 43-10317

Stories of actual British submarine encounters of the present war. The final chapter is an account of General Mark Clark's trip to North Africa.

"David Masters has been very sound in letting the official records speak for themselves. There has been no effort to enlarge on the careers of the various submarines of the British Navy. And this is all to the good because the life of a submarine in wartime has enough drama to stand by itself." Ernest von Hartz

+ Book Week p4 Jl 18 '43 140w

Booklist 40:10 S '43

Manchester Guardian p3 O 28 '42 80w

"Once you have started 'Up Periscope' you will ignore every distraction as you turn page after page, muttering now and again, 'Damn the clichés—full speed ahead!' . . . The accounts, based apparently on the logs of various British submarines are impressive in their sincerity." R. E. Berry

+ N Y Times p23 Je 27 '43 240w

Time 42:102 Jl 5 '43 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p542 N 7 '42 180w

"Though the author's style tends toward the juvenile and he does not extract all the thrills the deeds warrant, 'Up Periscope' brings to light some hitherto obscure achievements of an Allied Navy."

+ — Weekly Book Review p17 Jl 18 '43 300w

MASTERSON, JAMES RAYMOND. Tall tales of Arkansaw. 443p il $4 Chapman & Grimes

817 Humor. Arkansas 43-6036

The author explains in his preface: "I have included every report or rumor of 'Arkansaw' that I have seen in print. Usually I have let the humorists tell their own stories; it is a province of humorists, of forgotten travelers, nameless tale-tellers, obscure pamphleteers and unknown singers. From the record of their adventures and visions emerge the annals of a Land of Cockaigne."

"This book will deeply interest students of the American mind. It presents an admirable view of one of the brightest stars in our local-color sky. Mr. Masterson has done a good job." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p21 My 23 '43 500w

"A scholarly, fascinating and amusing compilation." Cyril Clemens
+ Springf'd Republican p10 My 21 '43 500w

"The author of this collection of Arkansas tales, history and folklore is a Ph.D. from Harvard who teaches English at Hillsdale College, in Michigan. He has got together a book which deserves wide attention. It is the product of an amazing amount of research; it is carefully documented; his own comments are shrewd and good-tempered; he has shown excellent judgment in his selections." Stanley Walker
+ Weekly Book Review p22 My 9 '43 900w

MATHEMATICS for pilots. 157p 75c McGraw
510 Mathematics 43-3940

Three-months' course in mathematics for fliers. It is published under the supervision of the training division, bureau of aeronautics, U.S. navy.

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:30 Ap '43
School & Society 57:252 F 27 '43 10w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 8 '43 50w

MATHEWS, BASIL JOSEPH. United we stand; the peoples of the United nations. 366p $2.50 Little 940.5332 United nations, 1942-. World war, 1939- 43-15849

Short survey of each of the thirty-two members of the United nations now engaged in the war. Historical backgrounds are briefly sketched, population statistics, and economic, political, and social customs outlined.

Reviewed by F. S. Marquardt
Book Week p21 N 14 '43 320w
Booklist 40:91 N 15 '43

Reviewed by Carlyle Morgan
Christian Science Monitor p16 D 15 '43 180w

"Of immediate interest although not of permanent value. . . Very readable. Recommended for current affairs collections." F. L. D. Goodrich
+ Library J 68:844 O 15 '43 90w

Reviewed by Frederick Gruin
Sat R of Lit 27:10 Ja 1 '44 270w

Reviewed by Julia Emery
Social Educ 8:89 F '44 450w
Social Studies 35:48 Ja '44 30w
Springf'd Republican p10 N 18 '43 500w

"Remarkably smooth and lucid in detail, the book offers a warped conception of the world today and tomorrow. It seems particularly harmless, yet, because of its appealing innocence, it might prove exceedingly dangerous. Caveat emptor." Albert Guerard
Weekly Book Review p24 N 21 '43 950w

MATSCHAT, MRS CECILE (HULSE). Murder at the Black Crook. 250p $2 Farrar 43-6647

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p9 My 30 '43 160w
Booklist 39:465 Jl 15 '43

"A much too loosely organized tale of murder and espionage." Isaac Anderson
— N Y Times p8 My 9 '43 120w

"This is a natural for readers who demand war interest in their escape literature. Nice southern background." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p20 My 9 '43 180w

MATSON, NORMAN HAGHEJM. Bats in the belfry; line drawings by Herbert Roese. 242p $2 Doubleday 43-7354

Jennifer, the heroine of The Passionate Witch (Book Review Digest, 1941) returns to life, after seven years in the churchyard, and stirs up some frantic troubles for Mr Wooly, her former husband, and many of his associates.

Book Week p6 Je 27 '43 180w

"There is a lot of drinking and the bibulous wit that goes with it, and much ribald humor." Charlotte Dean
N Y Times p24 My 9 '43 280w

"A capering tale told with a dogged determination to be as funny as all get-out, which (so the publishers say) will delight the heart of Smithomaniacs. Smithomaniacs will kindly move over to the far corner."
— New Yorker 19:83 My 8 '43 70w

"If you liked 'The Passionate Witch' you'll like 'Bats in the Belfry,' and that's about all that can be said. Mr Matson is not as good as Thorne Smith, but no one expects that he could be. In continuing the Thorne Smith tradition he has attempted a pretty big job, and while it must be said that he rattles around a bit in Thorne Smith's shoes he does do an adequate job with the kind of material he has left over from the master's pallette."
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 4 '43 220w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
Weekly Book Review p20 Je 6 '43 160w

MATSON, RANDOLPH. Aircraft electrical engineering. 372p il $3.50 McGraw 629.1354 Electricity in aeronautics. Airplanes—Electric equipment 43-14161

"Primarily for use in courses preparatory to or supplementing actual work in this branch of engineering. One chapter discusses radio, another instruments; the rest of the book deals with wiring, power supply, motors, lighting, and miscellaneous electrical equipment." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 50w
Library J 68:960 N 15 '43 10w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:39 Jl '43

MATTHEWS, HERBERT LIONEL. Fruits of fascism. 341p $3 Harcourt
945.09 Italy—Fascist movement. Mussolini, Benito 43-15669

A survey of the origin, growth and achievements of Italian Fascism. "The premise is that Fascism is an impractical and evil way of life; the argument is twenty-three years of Fascist history; the conclusion is that Fascism has failed." (Prologue) Index.

Reviewed by Fritz Ermarth
Am Pol Sci R 37:1130 D '43 450w

"Mr. Matthews is a first-rate foreign correspondent with a long background of observation in Italy, in Abyssinia, and in Spain during the Civil War. But he also possesses a scholar's knowledge of Italy's history and culture and a scholar's curiosity as to why the events which he described in his dispatches were happening. The result is an uncommonly good book, at once vivid and thoughtful, objective and warmly human." Edward Weeks

MATTHEWS, H. L.—Continued
+ Atlantic 172:139 D '43 100w

"'The Fruits of Fascism' is not a typical correspondent's book. For one thing, the author mentions himself only twice, which must be some kind of record. Adding the results of years of study to what he has seen at first-hand Mathews has written a formal but intensely readable historical study." R. H. Rovere
+ Book Week p4 O 3 '43 400w
Booklist 40:112 D 1 '43

"Matthews has spent most of his time in Italy since 1925 as correspondent for the New York Times, with time out to cover the Ethiopian campaign with the Italian army and the Spanish civil war with the loyalists. His intimate knowledge of the Italian people and his genuine affection for them keep the note of strident denunciation out of his book. He loathes the principles and practice of fascism, but he never screams. He lets the facts speak, while he views the nation with sympathy." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 60:1136 O 6 '43 1300w

"With great sureness, ease and economy Mr. Matthews has written an excellent historical essay. He has written so brilliant an essay that when in the latter half of the book he occasionally uses the first person singular and says, for instance, that he saw Goering eating fettucine in a restaurant, there is a change of tone, a sense of the immediate and almost of the trivial, which strikes the reader as an intrusion. We notice these minor defects because they intrude upon the best brief account of the rise of fascism that we have read. What is so excellent in Mr. Matthews' study is his sense of time."
+ — Commonweal 39:16 O 22 '43 800w

Reviewed by Paolo Milano
Nation 157:673 D 4 '43 950w

Reviewed by Gaetano Salvemini
New Repub 109:722 N 22 '43 950w

"This is one of the most honest and complete books that has yet appeared on the fascist adventure and on present Italy. The main reason for its exceptional merit is that the author has written as a historian—which means synthesis—but not forgetting that he is a journalist—which means direct living evidence. It is rare that the two qualities go together." Carlo Sforza
+ N Y Times p1 O 3 '43 2050w

"Mr. Matthews has written a clear-cut, thoughtful and superb book." H. S. Miller
+ Pol Sci Q 58:625 D '43 850w

Reviewed by Stephen Naft
Sat R of Lit 26:9 O 23 '43 800w

"It is time that criticism was brought to bear on such books as this, for all their value in factual record and timeliness, in point of style and composition. The title here suggests an historical essay, critical, dramatic, or both. There is enough authentic history within the covers to make a good textbook. But there is neither art nor formality in the organization of the material. It is merely there, linked loosely in paragraphs, divided chronologically into chapters. It makes neither easy study nor fluent reading, and, as the publishers obviously have had the evening fireside more in view than the library cubicle, the latter is the greater pity." W. R. Huntington
— + Survey G 32:456 N '43 330w

Reviewed by Walter Millis
Weekly Book Review p4 N 21 '43 1150w

"Mr. Matthews has done his job with earnestness and fervor; only occasionally is it marred by inaccuracies, which are certainly due to the limitation of his sources and the circumstances of his work. He makes us especially aware of one thing: the next time we want to take radical steps against this deadly disease of a nation, we must not wait until the moment when, along with the diagnosis, we get the coroner's report." Max Ascoli
+ Yale R n s 33:371 winter '44 700w

MATTHEWS, WILLIAM, and WECTER, DIXON. Our soldiers speak, 1775-1918. 365p $3.50 Little

973 U.S.—History, Military 43-4305

Excerpts from the diaries, letters, and reminiscences of American soldiers and sailors who fought for the nation from 1775 to 1918. The excerpts are bound together with paragraphs of comment and explanation by the editors.

"The authors draw almost exclusively on printed materials. In so doing they withhold from the reader some of the most vivid and the most human of soldier testimony. . . Diaries are cited more frequently than letters. This also may be a defect. . . But this may be quibbling unduly over matters of little moment. Authors Matthews and Wecter have performed a difficult task. And they have acquitted themselves in a way that will be pleasing to the general reader and profitable to the historian." B. I. Wiley
+ — Am Hist R 49:118 O '43 800w
Booklist 39:385 Je 1 '43
New Repub 108:422 Mr 20 '43 120w

"Messrs. Matthews and Wecter pored through a rich bibliography—some five pages listing obscure little volumes and museum collections of original documents—with the novel and refreshing idea of letting the man in the ranks tell, in his own words, what he saw and did in America's wars. The result is a picture seldom found in formal histories except in footnotes. Whereas history records and reconstructs the past, these soldier letters and diaries briefed by Messrs. Matthews and Wecter rub readers' shoulders with the past." S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p9 Mr 14 '43 900w
New Yorker 19:79 Mr 13 '43 140w

Reviewed by Allan Nevins
Sat R of Lit 26:14 My 1 '43 1000w

"These heroes make a grand procession of sturdy individuals, true products of a democracy. The whole is a neatly integrated picture of the types of our fighting men, from Washington's 'rabble in arms' to Pershing's doughboys." Richardson Wright
+ Weekly Book Review p1 Mr 14 '43 1250w

Reviewed by D. M. Potter
Yale R n s 32:826 summer '43 550w

MATTIELLO, JOSEPH J., ed. Protective and decorative coatings; prepared by a staff of specialists; 4v; v 3, Manufacture and uses; colloids, oleoresinous vehicles and paints, water and emulsion paints, lacquers, printing inks, luminescent paints, and stains. 830p il $7.50 Wiley

667.6 Paint. Varnish and varnishing (41-19399)

"This is the third volume of a set of four books dealing with the protective and decorative coatings industry. It covers particularly the subjects of manufacture and uses, specifically of colloids, oleoresinous vehicles and paints, water and emulsion paints, lacquers, printing inks, luminescent paints, and stains." (Pref) For volumes one and two see Book Review Digest, 1942. Index.

Booklist 40:89 N 15 '43

"With this general, comprehensive, and organized body of knowledge, the technical men in the industry will be able to depend on these volumes for reference and guidance for many years."
+ Chem & Met Eng 50:193 O '43 170w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:771 O 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:48 Jl '43

"The book will be wanted by any one who needs up-to-date information on this important subject. However, it is to be regretted that electrical insulation and flame-resistant coatings, two important groups of materials that would seem to come under the scope of a broadly planned work such as this, are completely missing." James Stokley
+ — Weekly Book Review p30 O 31 '43 150w

MAUGHAM, WILLIAM SOMERSET, ed. Introduction to modern English and American literature. (New home lib) 618p 69c Garden City pub. co.

820.8 English literature—Collections. American literature—Collections

A selection "of the most readable writing of the last fifty years" with occasional introductory and critical comments by the editor. The selections—prose and poetry, fiction and history—include works by William Saroyan, Stephen Spender, John Steinbeck, Dorothy Parker, Hilaire Belloc, Ernest Hemingway, Oliver Wendell Holmes, John Jay Chapman, Siegfried Sassoon, Carter Dickson, Dashiell Hammett, James Thurber, Rudyard Kipling, Henry James, Robert Frost, Winston Churchill, William Butler Yeats, Francis Thompson, and many others.

"Mr. Maugham in this volume proves not only his taste but his judgment. For he prefaces each group with a critical note and these notes show exceptional discernment."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 3 '43 400w

"In general one gets a great deal of the best in verse and prose. Mr. Maugham has taste. . . He cares for and understands good writing; he is a technician. His short prefaces to the various sections in this book explain clearly what the writers are trying to do. . . It's fine, it's useful, but somehow anthologies make one a little sad."
+ — Commonweal 38:126 My 21 '43 420w
Time 41:104 My 24 '43 100w

MAULE, FRANCES. Careers for the home economist; fields which offer openings to the girl with modern training in the homemaking arts. 256p $2 Funk

640 Home economics as a profession 43-2070

Guide to openings for women in the field of home economy. Stress is laid on education and specialized training. Partial contents: The nation needs nutritionists; Home economists wanted for social service; New vistas open in teaching; There are chances in research if —; The rise of the Hewibs; Demonstration—the handy tool; What chance for a fashion career? S O S from the textile field; Now about breaking into print; Ifs and buts of radio. Chapter bibliographies.

Booklist 39:364 My 15 '43

"Does not paint too glowing picture of rapid, easy rise, but she does make work seem worthwhile and interesting." E. A. Groves
Library J 68:291 Ap 1 '43 90w

"This book is highly recommended to girls and women seriously interested in such a career. Here is just the information they seek as to training, qualifications, the difficulties and rewards, covering a wide variety of jobs and careers. Carefully chosen references are given for further study. 'Careers for the Home Economist' will be of great assistance as well to teachers of art, science and home economics, and to all who advise women." D. K. Bemis
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 290w

MAULE, HARRY EDWARD, ed. Book of war letters. 328p $2 Random house

940.548173 Letters. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-51334

"The letters come from both young men and women, from nearly all branches of the armed forces and from all ranks, hailing from every part of the United States. They are written from every place where Americans are stationed, training camps at home, the overseas fronts from Europe to Australia, and the world around. They represent Americans of every background." Introductory note

Reviewed by S. E. Hyman
Book Week p3 N 21 '43 450w
Booklist 40:143 D 15 '43

"Recommended for all libraries." Isabel Douglas
+ Library J 68:844 O 15 '43 100w
New Repub 109:893 D 20 '43 70w

"Mr. Maule has made a most valuable contribution in constructing this book from the incalculable torrents of letters written since our Army began to grow and to fight. In only a few scattered instances have ineffectually facetious or otherwise insignificant examples crept into his collection. The immense majority are illuminating or informative, sensitive, amusing or cogent. Many are inspiring. One hopes that this may be a forerunner of other letter collections to come gleaned from the widening arenas of this war." Lincoln Barnett
+ N Y Times p3 N 28 '43 1300w

"A good, well-assorted selection, with introductory notes by the editor."
+ New Yorker 19:108 N 27 '43 90w

"Perhaps the best praise the book will get is that it is almost impossible not to read it aloud. It is so personal it belongs to everybody. Perhaps the most effective letter describes how a soldier feels when there's 'No Mail Today.' For if that doesn't make any one with some one in the services reach for a fountain pen, nothing will." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p4 D 19 '43 280w

MAURER, HERRYMON. Old Fellow. 296p $2.75 Day

299.51 Lao Tzŭ 43-6425

An imaginative biography of Lao Tse, called the Old Fellow, who was a contemporary of Confucius. He was an archivist of Chou, until he became disgusted with hollow ceremonies and went into voluntary exile. From that time on he spent his life sitting by the side of the road and philosophizing about life.

"I found the story of the self-exiled traveler in ancient China full of interest and amusement as well as wisdom. Most noteworthy in Maurer's book, however, is his integration of the life and teaching of Lao-tze with the spirit of modern China. Again and again he draws from the album of Chinese life today, which evidently he knows well, an illustrative character or incident, sharply and dramatically realized." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p4 My 16 '43 490w
Booklist 39:456 Jl 15 '43

"Beautifully written. Recommended for all large and medium-sized libraries and for some smaller ones." E. S. Brown
+ Library J 68:362 My 1 '43 110w

"The author has done his sincere best in his lengthy biography of such an obscure character. The imaginative part of the story is a little awkward and artificial, but it has a rightful place in the libraries of those interested in China and in popular reading that stimulates thought." Helena Kuo
+ — N Y Times p24 My 16 '43 850w

"Apparently a somewhat romanticized biography, but a revealing one."
+ New Yorker 19:79 My 15 '43 50w

"Any really courageous reviewer, caught in the full tide of Laotze's philosophy, would toss his pen and paper out the window and join 'the Old Fellow' in a simpler freer life. That Mr. Maurer arouses this temptation is very much to his credit. He has done an extremely interesting and competent job in presenting the Chinese Taoist philosophy in the form of a colorful commentary on the life of Laotze." Preston Schoyer
+ Sat R of Lit 26:18 Ag 14 '43 360w

"The ostensible purpose of this book was to make Lao-tze understandable and to prove that his philosophy is applicable to life today, not just ancient, alien, mystic twaddle. To that end a lot of Mr. Maurer's pseudo-archaic moonshine contributes less than nothing." Rodney Gilbert
+ — Weekly Book Review p17 Je 6 '43 1350w

MAXWELL, GILBERT. Dark rain falling. 78p $2 Press of James A. Decker

811 42-50252

This volume of poems "is described by the author as 'the record of one man's journey through the dark rain that is falling in our time.' This journey, in an effort to escape the current horror of the day, takes a step backward into childhood, only to find the same conflict with evil. Adolescence and history offer no relief, and the final conclusion is that the perils and the ugliness confront mankind in all ages, and progress is related to the price the traveler is willing to pay for truth." (Christian Science Monitor)

Books p15 Ja 10 '43 330w

"A volume of first-rate poetry." Pearl Strachan

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 D 12 '43 270w

"Mr. Maxwell is a young man of considerable talent and exceptional technical ability. There is an expertness of touch, a vividness of phrase, and polish of manner which stamp these poems as the product of someone who is very well acquainted with the tools of his profession. Ironically enough, this very skill, coupled with another characteristic, makes this reviewer suspect a fundamental uncertainty, a distrust or lack of confidence in himself which Mr. Maxwell has tried very hard to disguise. The other characteristic of which I speak is the fact that he has been led by his obvious admiration for the work of one of America's most distinguished poets to model his expression very closely on her idiom and manner." S. H. Hay

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:12 Jl 24 '43 400w

MAY, MARK ARTHUR. Social psychology of war and peace. 284p $2.75 Yale univ. press

172.4 Peace. War and psychology. Social psychology A43-1636

The director of Yale's Institute of human relations discusses one aspect of the problem of universal peace. His thesis is that "war and peace are basically and fundamentally the products of the types of social conditioning that have occurred in the large masses of people of the leading nations of the world;" and he analyses human beings in their acquisition of habits and beliefs under special conditions. Two final chapters consider the psychological conditions of peace, especially the peace to follow this war. Index.

Reviewed by R. T. LaPiere
Am Soc R 8:734 D '43 330w

"There is a striking contrast between this book, published in the third year of the present World War, and a corresponding volume—W. Trotter, Instincts of the Herd in War and Peace—published in the third year of the First World War. Trotter's work though widely read, was scientifically trivial, partisan, and inapplicable to the practical problems of his day. May's study, on the contrary, is thoughtful, detached, and freighted with application." G. W. Allport

+ Ann Am Acad 229:186 S '43 850w

Booklist 40:1 S '43

"The book has the merit of being written in an unpretentious and candid style. If the reader is left with some pretty large questions unanswered, it is not because the author gets entangled in his own verbiage. Its demerit, in this reviewer's non-expert opinion, is that it takes entirely too simple a view of human nature. Man carries over into his social attitude the complexity of his inner life as both a child of earth and a son of God. His relationships with his fellows may resemble the maze which the psychologist constructs for his experiments with rats, but he is not a rat. His turns to the right or the left may depend on rewards and punishments, as this writer holds, but they have an eternal dimension of which this book knows nothing." H. E. Fey

+ — Christian Century 60:1269 N 3 '43 350w

Reviewed by L. M. Kinloch
Library J 68:362 My 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by W. A. MacDonald
N Y Times p15 Jl 11 '43 1100w

"Provocative and scholarly volume. . . At the very least, his book is a welcome antidote to the frequent preoccupation with economic factors or power politics that has limited the mental outlook of many people who have been concerned with the causes of war."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:3 Je '43 360w

Wis Lib Bul 39:104 Jl '43

MAYER, FRITZ. Chemistry of natural coloring matters; the constitutions, properties, and biological relations of the important natural pigments; tr. and rev. by A. H. Cook. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser) 354p $10 Reinhold

667.2 Pigments 43-3903

"Technical treatise for the research worker considering such natural pigments as carotenoids, diaroylmethane compounds, carbocyclic, and heterocyclic compounds. The work is well documented, the literature being revised to October, 1939." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:5 Ja '43

MAYO, BARBARA. Henry Clay. 280p il $2 Farrar

B or 92 Clay, Henry—Juvenile literature 43-14926

This biography written for junior high school age boys and girls, stresses the great statesman's public career rather than his personal life. Selected bibliography.

"This is a book which brings to life one of our greatest statesmen and presents an excellent picture of the stirring times in which he lived." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p45 D 5 '43 270w

Booklist 40:117 D 1 '43

"A fine biography of the man and his times." F. C. Darling

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Ja 13 '44 230w

"This fine biography of Clay, the only one written for young people with its well-authenticated material and excellent bibliography is a valuable contribution to school and public libraries." M. F. Cox

+ Library J 68:964 N 15 '43 80w

"There are a zest and freshness in the writing of this biography that make it good reading." M. G. D.

+ Sat R of Lit 26:61 O 16 '43 230w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 O 24 '43 380w

Wis Lib Bul 39:162 D '43

MAYORGA, MARGARET GARDNER, ed. Best one-act plays of 1942: (V6) 265p $2.50 Dodd

812.08 Dramas—Collections (38-8006)

Contents: Stage plays: The last of my solid gold watches, by Tennessee Williams; House divided, by Evelyn Neuenburg; The courting of Marie Jenvrin, by G. P. Ringwood; City symphony, by B. E. Jones; The strangest feeling, by John Kirkpatrick; Screen play: We refuse to die, by Maxwell Shane; Radio plays: We hold these truths, by Norman Corwin; Memo to Berchtesgaden, by Arch Oboler; They burned the books, by S. V. Benét; So long, son, by H. V. O'Brien. Bibliographies.

"The quality of the stage plays gives little ground for any optimism relative to the future of the form in the American theater. Our best one-act plays appear to have been written some years ago." Maurice Gnesin

Book Week p7 My 23 '43 200w

Booklist 39:315 Ap 1 '43

Library J 68:328 Ap 15 '43 40w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton
Weekly Book Review p8 S 5 '43 180w

MEAD, SIDNEY EARL. Nathaniel William Taylor, 1786-1858; a Connecticut liberal. 259p $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press [15s Cambridge]

B or 92 Taylor, Nathaniel William 42-50728

"Dr. Mead of the Divinity School of the University of Chicago presents to students of the history of American religion and sectarian liberalism a thoroughly annotated, documented study of Nathaniel William Taylor, [1786-1858] student, powerful preacher, sane revivalist, magnetic professor of didactic theology in the new seminary at Yale University, tractarian, and sturdy Christian." (J Religion) Index.

Reviewed by H. E. Starr
Am Hist R 48:874 Jl '43 250w

Reviewed by C. H. Lyttle
Christian Century 60:262 Mr 3 '43 650w

"This treatise exemplifies what the biography of an important divine should be in relation to his creed, associates, opponents, and the times. . . Taylor was one of the few original thinkers in the contemporary American pulpit; and, in writing an adequate life of this builder of an outstanding divinity school, Dr. Mead has made an important contribution." R. J. Purcell
+ J Religion 23:143 Ap '43 1150w

Reviewed by B. R. Bowron
New Eng Q 16:348 Je '43 700w

MEADE, ROBERT DOUTHAT. Judah P. Benjamin; Confederate statesman. 432p $3.75 Oxford

B or 92 Benjamin, Judah Philip 43-11218

Biography of one of the members of Jefferson Davis' cabinet. He was born in the West Indies of Spanish Jewish parents, was educated at Yale, became a New Orleans lawyer and business man, United States senator, a member of the Davis cabinet, and during his years of exile, a leader of the English bar. Bibliography. Index.

Atlantic 172:129 S '43 120w

Booklist 40:12 S '43

"Mr. Meade's excellent sympathetic biography of 'the smartest man'—Lincoln's phrase—in the Confederacy should be read by anyone who is fascinated by strange characters and unusual careers."
+ Boston Globe p15 Ag 4 '43 200w

Christian Science Monitor p12 S 25 '43 500w

Reviewed by J. M. Maguire
Harvard Law R 57:113 O '43 2200w

"Professor Meade's biography is a prodigious piece of scholarship which exhausts its subject and sheds much incidental light on the Old South and the Civil War, both of which, however, are seen from a rather conventional Southern point of view."
+ New Repub 109:150 Ag 2 '43 80w

"It is a dramatic story, and though the author is careful and critical, he does not miss the drama in telling it." H. I. Brock
+ N Y Times p8 Jl 25 '43 1100w

"This biography is compact, impartial, and exhaustive. It gives us a skilful picture of a striking Civil War personality, and for all its candor is by no means devoid of sympathetic warmth." Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 26:19 Ag 14 '43 700w

Reviewed by L. B. Hill
Springf'd Republican p6 O 4 '43 600w

Time 42:100 Ag 2 '43 1200w

"One wishes that a more adequate view might be had of Benjamin the man. When the book is laid down, no doubt remains that we have comprehended the personage who orated in legislative halls, who unravelled the mysteries of state, who pled before austere dispensers of justice, and who smiled in sparkling salons of New Orleans, Richmond, and London, but we learn little of the man who lived and breathed and has his being beyond the ken of the public eye. It would be unfair, however, to charge this deficiency to Professor Meade. The void is due rather to Benjamin's own studied efforts to obscure his private life." B. I. Wiley
Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 8 '43 1700w

MEADER, STEPHEN WARREN. Sea snake; il. by Edward Shenton. 255p $2 Harcourt 43-51265

Barney Cannon, a sixteen-year-old boy, son of a North Carolina fisherman, discovers a Nazi submarine base not far from his own home. While on a spying trip the boy is caught and imprisoned on a German submarine. By playing the dumb country boy Barney manages to glean a lot of information which is a definite help to his country, when he escapes from the sub. For older boys.

"A good adventure story from first to last." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p4 N 14 '43 160w

Booklist 40:50 O 1 '43

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 50w

"One of the most exciting stories Mr. Meader has ever written. . . This is rattling good adventure told with spirit and sincerity. Moreover, it is soundly based on events of the present war." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:323 S '43 90w

"One of the best war stories so far published. Characterization and dialogue are good, and plot is thrilling. Nice touch is the contrast between gallantry and fairness of deposed German Captain and attitude of fanatical Nazi who usurps his post." Gertrude Andrus
+ Library J 68:673 S 1 '43 80w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:592 N 20 '43 20w

"Dealing as it does with German submarines, coast patrols, airplanes and Nazi spies, the story will undoubtedly prove popular, but to those who have admired Mr. Meader's books in the past, his 'Boy With a Pack,' 'Who Rides in the Dark?' and others, with their richer characterization and genuine atmosphere, 'Sea Snake' will seem superficial and hastily put together." A. T. Eaton
+ — N Y Times p6 O 10 '43 240w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p34 N 14 '43 330w

MEADOWCROFT, NORMAN. Aircraft detail drafting. 211p il $2.25 McGraw

629.1343 Airplanes—Design and construction. Mechanical drawing 42-50927

"This text is an amplification of a course entitled 'Aircraft Drafting Standards' presented at the University of California at Los Angeles to workers employed or employable in the aircraft industry, as part of the war training program in 1941 and 1942. The course outline was prepared as a result of experience in training draftsmen and engineers within the plants of the Douglas Aircraft Company, Inc. It is intended to be a transition course for young men who already have had training in some branch of engineering but desire knowledge of the specific phases of aircraft drafting." (Pref) Index.

"The book is highly recommended and has been adopted as a class text in evening courses in aircraft drafting at the Illinois Institute of technology." H. C. Spencer
+ Book Week p9 Mr 21 '43 470w

Booklist 39:314 Ap 1 '43

Reviewed by James Stokley
Books p17 Ja 31 '43 50w

Library J 67:953 N 1 '42 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:22 Ap '43

"'Aircraft Detail Drafting' can be highly recommended for use in industrial training courses as well as in engineering colleges." N. J. Hoff
+ N Y Times p23 Mr 14 '43 450w

MEANS, MRS FLORENCE (CRANNELL). Teresita of the valley; il. by Nicholas Panesis. 166p $2 Houghton 43-15999

Pictures the problems of a Spanish-American family in Denver, trying to adjust themselves to the life of a new country. Teresita, the oldest daughter, tried to change her name to Teddy Jones, until she decided she should be proud of her own heritage. For older girls.

MEANS, FLORENCE—Continued

Booklist 40:117 D 1 '43

Reviewed by M. K. McElderry
Christian Science Monitor p10 N 18 '43 80w

"The story is vivacious and modern, as well as authentic in background." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:410 N '43 110w

"Characters are alive and atmosphere convincing. For older girls." Marian Cumming
+ Library J 68:1009 D 1 '43 110w

MEDICAL LIBRARY ASSOCIATION. A handbook of medical library practice; including annotated bibliographical guides to the literature and history of the medical and allied sciences; based on a preliminary manuscript by M. Irene Jones; comp. by a committee; Janet Doe, editor. 609p $5 A.L.A.

026.61 Medical libraries. Medicine—Bibliography 43-51221

"A manual of procedure for the medical library which presupposes some acquaintance with library technique but gives specific references to other library literature for more elementary information. The scope of the book is wide and its section on medical literature may prove useful to doctors as well as librarians; it represents the cooperative effort of many librarians." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 39:455 Jl 15 '43

"This manual is essential for every medical and dental library and desirable for scholarly reference departments and for medical historians. . . The virtues of the book will be obvious to all who examine it, and much credit should go to its compilers. They are brave and sacrificial souls. With all due appreciation of the magnitude of the task and of the great amount of excellent material included, the reviewer would like to call attention to some flaws which she hopes will be remedied in a later edition." Louise Walker
+ — Library J 68:774 O 1 '43 1350w

MEES, CHARLES EDWARD KENNETH. Theory of the photographic process. 1124p il $12 Macmillan

770 Photography 42-24658

"Dr. Mees has gathered from many sources and languages a summary of the work of the last fifty years—work which has now begun to give us an understanding of what happens when light strikes silver bromide. It deals with such topics as the composition of light-sensitive materials, the factors that affect their sensitivity, the nature of the developing process, the properties of gelatine and the photographic aspects of sound recording." Weekly Book Review

Library J 68:212 Mr 1 '43 50w

"It is hardly a book for the ordinary amateur photographer. Rather it is for the scientific worker who uses photography, who should understand its theory and who has the scientific training needed to comprehend technical material. . . There has been no other book covering this subject so comprehensively and authoritatively, so Dr. Mees's book has already taken its place as a standard of reference." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p29 Mr 7 '43 230w

MEGARGEE, EDWIN. Dogs; il. by [the author] foreword by Freeman Lloyd. 95p $2 Harper

636.7 Dogs 42-50661

Illustrations and descriptions of the origins of seventy-six breeds of dogs. Many of the illustrations are in color. Index.

Booklist 39:247 F 15 '43

"Many of the illustrations are in color and all are authentic. Beside accurate descriptions and drawings, the author has added many anecdotes and notes that make the book a joy to every one who likes dogs."
+ Weekly Book Review p13 Ap 4 '43 250w
Wis Lib Bul 39:38 Mr '43

MEIER, FRANK. Fathoms below; under-sea salvage from sailing ships to the Normandie. 319p il $3 Dutton

656 Diving, Submarine. Salvage (W) 43-4471

Popular account of shipwrecks and their salvage from the time of sailing ships to the Normandie fire and its aftermath. The author is a master diver, a native New Yorker, and a former Navy man. Illustrated with photographs. No index.

Reviewed by Margedant Peters
+ Book Week p5 My 23 '43 310w
Booklist 39:383 Je 1 '43

"Written for average person with little technical knowledge. Will please those who pore over Popular Mechanics and kindred publications." J. A. Sohon
+ Library J 68:287 Ap 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by E. F. Allen
N Y Times p14 Je 27 '43 320w

"Nobody will ever learn much about salvage from this book, but it is a damned amusing series of sea tales with just seriousness enough to give the reader an illusion that he is learning something." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 26:7 My 15 '43 250w
Springf'd Republican p7e Je 6 '43 270w
Wis Lib Bul 39:82 Je '43

MEIGS, CORNELIA LYNDE. Mounted messenger; jacket and decorations by John C. Wonsetler. 187p $2 Macmillan

43-5577

Story for older boys and girls on the development of mail routes in Pennsylvania, especially the route from Philadelphia to Carlisle, in 1755. Benjamin Franklin, the instigator of the service, is one of the characters, and George Washington, John Adams, and John Bartram all appear. The hero is sixteen-year-old Tom Wetherall, who rides with the mail for Franklin, and plays a small part in unifying the colonies.

Reviewed by F. B. Sloan
Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 10 '43 150w

"It abounds with exciting episodes and gives a fine sense of American feeling before the Revolution." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 19:175 My '43 110w

"Not such a well-unified plot as in some of Miss Meigs' books but shows interesting contrast between old, settled districts and the frontier." Eleanor Kidder
Library J 68:434 My 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
N Y Times p7 Je 20 '43 340w

"In stressing the leaders' vision of unity among the colonies, Cornelia Meigs inevitably foreshadows the move toward world unity of the wisest minds of today. Sound historical research always goes into the writing of her good stories, which are essentially true in facts and spirit." A. M. Jordan
+ Sat R of Lit 26:27 My 15 '43 160w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p10 My 23 '43 650w
Wis Lib Bul 39:75 My '43

MEIKLEJOHN, ALEXANDER. Education between two worlds. 303p $3 Harper

370.1 Education—Philosophy 42-22126

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

Reviewed by Mona Fletcher
Am Pol Sci R 37:184 F '43 220w

"Since Meiklejohn devotes so much space to Dewey, it would seem that the justice or adequacy of his criticism would be fundamental to the argument, but it does not seem so to this reviewer. The justice of the indictment against Locke, against Protestant-capitalistic society, against our muddled conception of the state, and against duplicity in international relations does not depend upon Dewey's participation in these errors. It therefore seems to me that the argument of the book would have been stronger had less attention been given to Dewey. . . This comment on strategy does not imply, however, that Meiklejohn's criticisms of Dewey are invalid; some of them are certainly valid." E. B. Wesley

+ — Ann Am Acad 226:199 Mr '43 900w

Reviewed by R. C. Preston
Christian Century 60:1404 D 1 '43 1250w

"In the pre-Hitlerian era it would be sufficient to say that this is a false and foolish book. In the era of Hitler it must be characterized as false and dangerous." Sidney Hook

— Nation 156:309 F 27 '43 2400w

Reviewed by C. Jaarsma
School & Society 58:334 O 23 '43 1600w

"His use of intuition to substantiate premises which are supposed to have a universal validity is particularly amazing in the light of his criticism of Dewey. His use of rationalism is particularly out of touch with the times, not that a case cannot be made for it, but that a case must be made for it if it is to be used today. All in all, 'Education Between Two Worlds' represents a notable attempt to supply a critical philosophy of education in a world which desperately needs a new orientation for its educational system. While Dr Meiklejohn hasn't supplied the need, he didn't pretend to be able to; but his work will stimulate others." C. D. Kean

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 7 '43 1450w

MEIKSINS, GREGORY. Baltic riddle; Finland, Estonia, Latvia; Lithuania—key-points of European peace. 271p $3 Fischer, L.B.

947.1 Baltic states. World war, 1939—Baltic states 43-51361

Study of the part played in European and international politics by the Baltic countries of Finland, Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania. The author, son of a former municipal official in Latvia, is now a resident of the United States. He pictures the historical background of the Baltic states, considers their state between the two World wars, and gives some aspects of their possible future. Bibliographical notes. Index.

"Meiksins' book is a most valuable contribution to an understanding of the problems of this troubled part of the world." M. W. Fodor

+ Book Week p3 D 26 '43 360w

Booklist 40:181 Ja 15 '44

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Nation 158:163 F 5 '44 850w

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
N Y Times p7 Ja 2 '44 480w

MELBO, IRVING ROBERT, and others. American scene; an introduction to sociology. 559p il $1.96 McGraw

309.1 Sociology. U.S.—Social conditions 42-11485

"[The book] may be used as a basic text for either a high school course in sociology or in problems of democracy. The material is so arranged that it can be used for either and can be adjusted for use in either a one-term course or a full-year course. In this text, the authors stress living in a democracy. Background material in general social evolution is included to afford historical perspective and informative comparisons. . . The book contains ten units . . . [which] deal with learning to control the environment, human nature, family life, the community, the political institutions, economic life, the more abundant life, educational and inspirational institutions, social control, and social progress." (Social Studies) Bibliography. Index.

"In the judgment of the reviewer, certain chapters containing materials ordinarily difficult to prepare for high-school youth are unusually well done. . . When only certain material is selected to be included in a textbook of this kind, there will obviously be disappointment among some persons who will feel that topics of major importance have been omitted. Some will certainly regret the lack of a systematic treatment of the problems of minority groups in our culture. . . Regardless of this limitation with respect to content, The American Scene is a valuable contribution, which can be heartily recommended for the careful consideration of social-studies teachers." K. J. Rehage

+ — School R 51:121 F '43 850w

Reviewed by R. V. Sires
Social Educ 7:38 Ja '43 450w

"Well-written book. . . The physical make-up of the book is better than average and should appeal to the student. The book is richly illustrated and there are many excellent graphs which can be studied with profit. The style of the authors is very readable and should give the students little vocabulary difficulties." F. J. Carbon

Social Studies 33:378 D '42 390w

MENCKEN, HENRY LOUIS. Heathen days. 299p $3 Knopf

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc 43-249

Humorous sketches picked at random out of the author's experiences, ranging in time from 1890 to 1936.

Booklist 39:291 Mr 15 '43

"Another installment of Mr. Mencken's memoirs suggests rather more noticeably than the earlier issues that they are better taken homeopathically, in small doses. Several of those included in the present collection were first printed in the New Yorker, where they produced their full and authentic effect. Others of equal merit are here presented—but the note (to one reader at least) is too long sustained; one discovers that he can weary of some of Mr. Mencken's prejudices, no matter how engaging they may be in themselves, or how aptly expressed." J. K. Paulding

Commonweal 37:546 Mr 19 '43 350w

"Recommended." A. R. Eaton

+ Library J 68:209 Mr 1 '43 70w

"Mr. Mencken is certainly one of the most accomplished and most delightful writers our country has ever produced. This third instalment of his own remembrance of things past is a sheer joy to read if only for the pleasure one gets from observing how successfully he has created an instrument for communicating the flavor of his particular—and peculiar—zest for life. Time has served only to perfect a style which was always robust and exuberant, but which has grown with the years better balanced and better integrated until it has achieved now an almost classical perfection without losing its individuality." J. W. Krutch

+ Nation 156:456 Mr 27 '43 1400w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley
New Repub 108:321 Mr 8 '43 1200w

" 'Heathen Days' must not be mistaken for the whole history of Mr. Mencken during the years in which these laughable incidents occurred. For during these same years he carried out large scholarly works of lasting value, gave stupendous help to innumerable fellow-writers, and wrote literally thousands of the best letters of this century. Before the full truth about him is told, somebody less comic than he, even if less competent, will have to have a hand in the job." Carl Van Doren

+ N Y Times p4 F 28 '43 1150w

New Yorker 19:80 Mr 13 70w

"This is an anecdotal book, full of humor, full of the old ripsnorting rhetoric, full of comic exaggerations, and above all else full of gusto." Allan Nevins

+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 Mr 13 '43 850w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 550w

Time 41:80 Mr 1 '43 700w

"These yearnings and reminiscences are spun out with the old Mencken gusto, flashes of scholarship and free use of belly-thumping sim-

MENCKEN, H. L.—Continued
ilies. It's a grand book to read alone if the family can tolerate your chuckles. It's even a grander book to read aloud." Richardson Wright
+ Weekly Book Review p5 Mr 7 '43 1250w
Reviewed by Eugene Davidson
Yale R n s 33:81 autumn '43 650w

MENDELSSOHN, PETER. Fortress in the skies; a tale. 284p $2.50 Doubleday 43-14281

A fantasy in which the present and the past, reality and unreality, the natural and the supernatural are interwoven. The scene is a mountain village in France, deserted for many years, then re-peopled by peasants and soldiers and the ghosts of former inhabitants who try together to establish a better kind of life.

"Dramatically written, with great artistry and full of tension, it is a literary 'delicacy.' Not a book of mass appeal but recommended for libraries with discriminating clientele." H. H. Brent
+ Library J 68:668 S 1 '43 60w

"Peter Mendelssohn has written a brilliant and beautiful legend of all time. It has its remorseless diagram but this is no thin and bloodless outline. His people are alive, touching and beguiling." Lorine Pruette
+ N Y Times p6 S 5 '43 700w

"Even if you are as uncertain of the meaning of the allegory (if it is an allegory) as is this reader, you will hardly fail to find the story interesting. An oddly exciting book that has the tenseness of a puzzling yet deeply felt experience."
+ New Yorker 19:85 S 11 '43 70w

"This is a ghost story, mysteriously provocative in setting and character. The wild impersonality of nature clothes it in physical beauty. Whether or not you quite understand the dreams of its people, you recognize them, for they are moved by what moves us all, by love and fear, by kindness and venality, by the pursuit of happiness and the will to destruction. These pilgrims make no progress. In the end they go back whence they came. From their interlude in the cliff town you can draw only the conclusions that are drawn, upon awakening, from any long dream." Virgilia Sapieha
+ Weekly Book Review p4 S 5 '43 700w

MENDENHALL, JAMES EDGAR, and HARAP, HENRY, eds. Consumer education; background, present status, and future possibilities. 399p $2.50 Appleton-Century
339.4 Consumer education 43-6859

"A history of the growth of the consumer-education movement to its present proportions, and a review of the resources in school and community, through consumer education, of co-operative living." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. V. Coles
J Home Econ 35:519 O '43 250w
School & Society 57:580 My 15 '43 30w

"This book is the best treatment to date of consumer education for those educators who want a very simply written, concrete, and practical discussion of methods, devices, materials, sources, and special problems involved. It will be equally valuable both for those who direct teacher-training courses and for teachers in the field." E. C. Cline
+ School R 51:435 S '43 800w
Social Studies 35:46 Ja '44 330w

MENDERSHAUSEN, HORST. Economics of war. rev ed 390p $3.35; to schools $2.50 Prentice-Hall
330.19355 War—Economic aspects 43-2574

"Every page bears the marks of complete rewriting of the 1940 edition [Book Review Digest, 1940]. The first general survey of the subject produced in America, it now profits from the cascade of private monographs and government reports published since 1940. . . The new edition is improved by about 65 additional pages of text, adequate footnote references, 14 additional tables and graphs, the grouping of all 'Suggested Readings' at the back of the book, and the addition of a chapter on the war-production cycle and appropriate inclusion of the time-element in other chapters." (Am Pol Sci R) Index.

"Mendershausen's book ranks undoubtedly among the best of its kind. He deserves a special nosegay for amalgamating principles and policies. He strikes a happy medium which enables both economists and military men to benefit from his analysis." H. S. Bloch
+ Am J Soc 49:284 N '43 260w

"Political scientists will want to read this work to put a 'floor' under their discussions of wartime government. Used as a text, it ought to stand up solidly under class-room drubbing." Henry Reiff
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:567 Je '43 110w
Booklist 39:336 Ap 15 '43

MENEFEE, SELDEN COWLES. Assignment: U. S. A. 301p $3 Reynal
940.5373 World war, 1939—U.S. U.S.—Description and travel 43-16725

Under the direction of the Princeton University's Office of Public Research, the author traveled some 15000 miles around America, with the purpose of finding out how civilian Americans were re-acting to war conditions, economically, socially and politically.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Book Week p1 N 21 '43 750w
Booklist 40:163 Ja 1 '44
Reviewed by James Loeb, Jr.
Nation 158:134 Ja 29 '44 850w

"The book is almost as solidly factual as the World Almanac and, I must unhappily add, just about as interesting. If you seek the latest figures on population shifts or the number of people involved in last summer's race riots, you can find them here. These are important facts, and Mr. Menefee has performed a tiresome but necessary chore in compiling them. Checked against other sources, his material seems accurate on the whole, and his arrangement of it is tidy. If, however, you want to know what kind of people were rioting and why, you will learn nothing you do not already know." R. H. Rovere
+ — New Repub 109:891 D 20 '43 450w

"Mr. Menefee has brought into focus a vast, elusive panorama without any visible agitation over this enormous operation. His findings are impressive—they seem true. And if they are true there is no need for excessive pessimism." Harvey Breit
N Y Times p4 D 5 '43 900w
Reviewed by Jonathan Daniels
Sat R of Lit 27:7 Ja 22 '44 270w

"The author found 'much more right than wrong in our war effort.' . . On post-war plans, the people are groping, but in the right direction. Mr. Menefee, too, often is groping as he seeks to piece out the mosaic of America at war. His reports on specific cities or sections of the country frequently seem too pat. In his defense, though, it can be said that he took on a big and complicated job." J. G. Rogers
+ — Weekly Book Review p2 D 5 '43 1000w

MERCHANT ships, 1942; comp. by E. C. Talbot-Booth and Eric Sargent. il $19 Macmillan [63s Low]
387.5 Merchant marine (36-22441)

"Paymaster Talbot-Booth's monumental book, called the 'standard work of reference on merchant ships of the world' . . . is a companion to the classic Jane's 'Fighting Ships' and is equally devoted to statistics and silhouettes. 'Merchant Ships' is primarily concerned with identification, and after that with providing information about most of the thousands of ships that sail the seven seas, the lines whose flags they fly, and the merchant-marine establishments of the countries that send ships to sea. There are more than 2400 drawings of ships, 700 drawings of house flags, 1500 drawings of funnels with the distinguishing marks useful in identifying strange vessels, and 900 illustrations—all the way from giant liners to the few surviving sailing ships." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by A. C. Spectorsky
Book Week p4 Je 6 '43 50w

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 8 '43 800w

Library J 68:290 Ap 1 '43 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:17 Ja '43

"To seafaring men, this book is one of the profession's bibles. To others, it is a breath of life flavored by salt—it pricks the imagination. It's like picking up 'Lord Jim' and opening it at random, to slip back at once into the mood of a seamanly world." Paul Schubert
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 My 15 '43 450w

MERING, OTTO OSWALD VON. Shifting and incidence of taxation. 262p $3.25 Blakiston

336.2 Taxation 42-22327

"Mr. von Mering in his Preface describes his goal as both a text for college students and a treatise for specialists. The more highly technical and mathematical sections, written for the tax expert, are presented in small type. Part I presents mainly the general theory in the form of an analysis of the shifting of taxes on output under both monopoly and sure competition. . . In Part II the author deals with the shifting of different types of taxes, ranging from taxes on agriculture to taxes on wealth and income." J Pol Econ

Reviewed by Marvel Stockwell
Ann Am Acad 226:185 Mr '43 400w

"The small volume is not easy reading. The author writes clearly and carefully, but with no magnetism, vividness, or distinction of style." J. M. Maguire
+ — Columbia Law R 42:1379 N '42 700w

"American students of taxation will be aided greatly by the abundance of citations from foreign authors and the illustrations from foreign taxes. This small volume should be useful in the instruction of students who have a considerable familiarity with modern economic theory and who are prepared to amplify the author's somewhat condensed analysis. On the whole, it may be said that Mr. von Mering has succeeded in presenting the theory of tax shifting 'in such a way that, without losing its "purity" it becomes increasingly applicable to reality.' " D. W. Gilbert
+ — J Pol Econ 51:187 Ap '43 600w

MERRIAM, JOHN CAMPBELL. Garment of God; influence of nature in human experience. 162p $2 Scribner

574 Nature 43-1644

Study of the influence of nature upon man by an American paleontologist, now president emeritus of the Carnegie Institution in Washington, D.C. Contents: What is appreciation of nature? Our view of nature as broadened by science; Types of inspirational influence in impressive natural features; Primitive nature as an especially potent influence upon human life and thought; Appreciation of love of nature in day-to-day living; Respect and love of nature as a common interest of all peoples; Nature and the religion of progress.

"This, I think is the principal defect of the book: it says nothing. The discussions about Nature are neither scientific, as they are in Burroughs and Muir, nor poetic, as they sometimes are in Thoreau; nor do they have even the personal charm that one may find in Walton." E. J. C.
— Book Week p10 Mr 14 '43 230w

Christian Science Monitor p10 Ap 3 '43 270w

"This is a revealing and thought-provoking book which looks backward to the abysm of time and forward toward a better world. It has much to say even to those who may not be content to see in the universe only 'the shadow of some spirit lovelier still.' " J. J. Reilly
+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 Ap 3 '43 800w

"Contemplative, quiet, gratefully soothing now, this study . . . needs only the co-operation of a reader to produce lasting good effects on the nervous system. It is the work of one to whom nature represents something intangible beyond what we see, but one who is also alive to its friendly companionship, to the recuperative effect of loving to be outdoors, for the esthetics of landscape and to the value of knowing how landscapes may be sought to afford the strength of sublimity."
+ Weekly Book Review p20 Mr 28 '43 230w

Wis Lib Bul 39:71 My '43

MERRIAM, THORNTON WARD, and others. Religious counseling of college students. 77p pa 50c Am. council on educ.

377 Students. Church and college

"Discusses the methods and techniques of counseling in general, the approach to students with reference to the religious problems most frequently encountered, and the relation of higher education to religious counseling." Christian Century

Christian Century 60:770 Je 30 '43 30w

School & Society 57:644 My 29 '43 20w

MERRILL, MARION. Treasure cave trail; an adventure of the young Billings; il. by Sandra James. 160p $2 Morrow

43-10068

Story of the six young Billings children, living on an Ontario farm, and their Indian friends from a nearby village. A white wolf and an Indian treasure cave add the spice of mystery to the tale.

"A grand story for 8 to 12 year olds." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p11 Ag 29 '43 120w

"Characters and plot somewhat unconvincing, but it is fair fill-in material. Pictures by Sandra James are nicely done." D. M. MacDonald
+ Library J 68:673 S 1 '43 60w

"Boys and girls from 9 to 12 are bound to enjoy the doings of this courageous, happy-hearted family of young people, who take care of themselves and each other, industriously tending their small farm and doing their share to make ends meet while their father is away working in a lumber mill. They have the gift of gaiety and a fine family loyalty, and the author, in her characterization, has made them natural and appealing. 'Treasure Cave Trail' is richer in substance and more skillfully constructed than its predecessor." A. T. E.
+ N Y Times p5 S 19 '43 240w

MERRIMAN, MANSFIELD. Strength of materials; rev. by Edward K. Hankin. 8th ed 148p il $1.50 Wiley

620.11 Strength of materials 42-25117

"In this edition of a standard textbook, it is the author's aim to be more practical and less technical than in the previous editions. The sections dealing with the general properties of industrial materials contain up-to-date information on iron alloys, plastics, and aluminum." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 39:204 Ja 15 '43

Eng N 130:72 Ja 28 '43 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:34 Ap '43

MERRITT, LEROY CHARLES. United States government as publisher. (Studies in lib. science) 179p $2 Univ. of Chicago press

015.73 U.S.—Government publications A43-1562

"A study of the scope of the subject content, of the output, and the trend of subject emphasis from 1900 through 1939. Analyses are made by department with regard to trend in purpose for which the publications are issued and the trend in quantitative output. The growth of the U.S. government publishing activities since the early 1800's is summarized and a short critical study of methods of distribution is given. This is a study of a function of government and not primarily a library tool." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

MERRITT, L. C.—Continued

Booklist 40:1 S '43
Reviewed by J. K. Wilcox
Library Q 14:68 Ja '44 1050w
School & Society 57:644 My 29 '43 20w

MICHAELIS, RALPH. From bird cage to battle plane; the history of the R.A.F. 248p il $2.75 Crowell

358.4 Great Britain. Royal air force. World war, 1939—Aerial operations. European war, 1914-1918—Aerial operations 43-5067

Short history of British military aviation from 1908, thru the first World war, to the operations of the R.A.F. fighter, bomber, and coastal commands of the present war. Index.

"A rough-and-tumble account of a gallant band of men who triumphed over hardship and horror, the book adds new luster to England's air shield. Historians of the future will be glad that Michaelis wrote it at white heat and in the thick of the fray. No amount of the British habit of understatement, which the author sedulously cultivates, could keep it from being a thriller." W. F. Morse
+ Book Week p4 Mr 21 '43 270w
Booklist 39:382 Je 1 '43
Bookmark 4:13 My '43
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:164 O '43 10w

"Provides excellent background for more intense personal narratives so popular with boys. Index makes it useful for reference." Eileen Riols
+ Library J 68:330 Ap 15 '43 90w
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:771 O 1 '43 10w
New Yorker 19:67 Mr 6 '43 50w
Time 41:98 Ap 12 '43 1200w
Wis Lib Bul 39:104 Jl '43

MICHEL, MILTON SCOTT. Sweet murder. 218p $2 Coward-McCann 43-10914

Detective story.

"If your stomach can take this one, you'll like it; provided you don't require your detective yarns to be believable." Elizabeth Bullock
Book Week p7 Jl 25 '43 160w
N Y Times p6 Jl 11 '43 100w

"Pretty sordid."
Sat R of Lit 26:20 Jl 17 '43 40w
Reviewed by Baron Ireland
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 110w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p17 Jl 18 '43 180w

MICHIE, ALLAN ANDREW. Air offensive against Germany. 152p il $2 Holt

940.544 World war, 1939—Aerial operations. World war, 1939—Germany (W) 43-51053

Mr Michie, an American journalist, who has witnessed the effects of air-power in England, the Pacific, and on the African front, presents arguments for a heavy increase of night bombing of Germany, which he thinks would make possible a successful "second front" in 1943.

"Michie gives the best picture of the German air arm that I have seen in print. There are also good estimates of German planes and German generalship. When all these factors are combined you have one of the most interesting books on air power yet to appear." Karl van Horn
+ Book Week p4 Mr 21 '43 550w
Booklist 39:286 Mr 15 '43

"Mr. Michie manifestly knows his airplanes. His case is tremendously impressive, indeed, because of his manifest knowledge and apparently unbiased judgment of planes and fliers. . . At the very least this book puts the heat on the American Air Forces in Europe to play a more decisive role and at the most it offers a worth-trying project for reducing Germany to a shell which can be cracked by a second front this year." D. M. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 3 '43 700w
Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:7 Jl '43 80w

"Seversky, Ziff and Michie—and the soundest of these is Michie. In this small volume, quickly written to be quickly read, one of the most capable and experienced of the current crop of war correspondents tells us what he thinks is wrong with the past and present air offensives against Gremany, and what he thinks should be done to perfect the future offensive so that victory in the West may be achieved in 1943. Mr. Michie's book is the soundest of the three devoted to this problem, simply because he is the best writer of the three mentioned and because he is not pleading the cause of special interests which stand to gain, in a material sense, from the adoption of their theories. But Mr. Michie's book is made up of advocacy rather than judicial findings, and he makes no attempt to conceal the fact that he is pleading the case of the RAF Bomber Command." Gilbert Cant
+ New Repub 108:452 Ap 5 '43 950w

"On the theory that Germany can be defeated by a strategy whose essential feature is the bombing out of her industrial towns, Mr. Michie makes a good presentation. But he skips lightly over the fact that all our Army air force aviators would require special training for the night bombing raids he proposes with the calm assertion that it could be done in time. Nor is it very likely that the air forces will change their method of procedure and line of attack in response to any such volume while our own procedures have not yet been given a thorough trial. What the book really amounts to is a protest against the fact that in war there is never enough of anything—materials or men or time—to conduct a campaign along the most desirable lines." Fletcher Pratt
+ — N Y Times p3 F 21 '43 1000w

"Mr. Michie, a reporter who has been, as he says, on the wrong end of some six hundred air raids, doesn't care much for either Seversky and Ziff. He has them taped as theorists and is sure his own air-war prescription is the real McCoy. It should be said at once that he argues his case with considerable clarity and energy." Clifton Fadiman
+ — New Yorker 19:57 F 20 '43 500w

"Mr. Michie has obviously had access to real inside information, which he presents in an enthralling form. In fact this book is a real thriller. It is therefore to be regretted that he should have taken on himself the task of educating the High Command of the American Air Force who are quite capable of looking after themselves." M. G. Harris
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:9 Mr 6 '43 600w
Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 F 20 '43 950w

"After all the flamboyant, theoretical books about what air power might do or could do, it is a relief to get one straightforward study based on the now large body of actual, practical experience with what it has done. . . Right or wrong, Mr. Michie has at least appealed to available facts and experience, and written temperately and simply, with a greater interest in beating the Axis than in beating anybody's propaganda drums." Walter Millis
+ Weekly Book Review p3 F 21 '43 1500w

MICHIGAN. UNIVERSITY. William L. Clements library of American history. Guide to the manuscript collections in the Library, by Howard H. Peckham. 403p il $5 Univ. of Mich.

016.091 Manuscripts. Catalogs. U.S.—History—Sources 42-20545

"This volume describes and inventories one hundred and seventy-two collections and integral items. . . Each entry has a heading composed of a brief title, the number of volumes or pieces, and the inclusive date covered by the material. Then follows a succinct account of the item. . . Whatever is known of the life and wanderings of the collection before it came to its present resting-place is given. Finally, there is a list, in alphabetical order, of the names of the authors of the letters and documents within them. There are four appendices plus a concluding index of names requiring 110 pages." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by R. W. Hill
Library J 68:30 Ja 1 '43 900w

"This is one of the most satisfactory books I have had the pleasure of reviewing. Mr. Peckham has thought of everything that one could expect to find in a volume of this kind and has done to perfection what he thought should be done. I went through the book with a fine-toothed comb in an effort to find a few errors to mention in this review, but was totally defeated." Bernhard Knollenberg
+ Library Q 13:69 Ja '43 450w

MIERS, EARL SCHENCK. Valley in arms; a novel of the settlement of Connecticut. 331p il $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

43-5802

This tale of Connecticut in colonial times "is a simple and exciting story of two youngsters building a home in the wilderness, surviving the massacre at Wethersfield by good sense and good luck, bravely planning for an uncertain future after the war, when Joel comes home again from the expedition against the Pequots." (N Y Times)

Booklist 39:389 Je 1 '43
Christian Century 60:519 Ap 28 '43 20w

"Picture of frontier life interesting, and characterization good. Conflicts with Indians occupy much of book, graphically told. Many incidents and all but major characters taken from history, and 'Foreword' mentions popular sources for collateral reading. Recommended; especially good for young adult collections." R. F. Manlove
+ Library J 68:328 Ap 15 '43 110w

"As historical novels go these days, 'Valley in Arms' is brief. Obviously Earl Schenck Miers has done his research, but like the good storyteller he shows himself to be here, he has left most of it out when it came to the actual writing." Margaret Wallace
+ N Y Times p14 Ap 18 '43 500w

Reviewed by Edrie Van Dore
Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 25 '43 220w

" 'Valley in Arms' has strength and a reality that is close to the soil. It is a contribution to the fiction that pays tribute to rugged spirit which is our heritage." George Conrad
+ Weekly Book Review p12 My 9 '43 360w

MIKLOS, JOSEPHINE VON. See Von Miklos, J.

MIKSCHE, FERDINAND OTTO. Paratroops. 263p $2.50 Random house [10s 6d Faber]

356.16 Parachute troops. World war, 1939— Aerial operations 43-5196

Study of the part of air-borne troops in modern warfare, which outlines the organization and tactics of such troops. The author is a Czechoslovak officer. Index.

"The book is one that no serious student of the art of war will want to miss."
+ Book Week p8 My 23 '43 200w
Booklist 39:48 My 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Ap '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:156 O '43 10w

"Although Major Miksche's style is clear, simple, and interesting, and although 'no book on the subject has been published up to now in English language,' this is a necessary purchase only for large special and large public libraries." M. E. Clark
Library J 68:209 Mr 1 '43 50w
Library J 68:212 Mr 1 '43 30w
Manchester Guardian p3 F 3 '43 200w
New Repub 108:517 Ap 19 '43 150w

"Colonel Edson Raff and his American parachutists have, from all North African accounts, done some of the best in paratrooping; and I fear no book on the subject can be considered complete without some account of airborne American, Russian, and British troops either in training or battle. Withal Major Miksche has done a creditable, incomplete job. What he says is correct and interesting——but, he says too little." Lloyd Shearer
+ — N Y Times p22 Ap 25 '43 280w

"The historical chapters are especially admirable; and for the serious student of military affairs who wishes to consider airborne operations as a whole there is at present no alternative to this book, which is likely to win for itself a permanent place in the literature on the subject. Yet it is probable that Captain Miksche would be even more effective as a writer were he to take himself and his work a little less seriously."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p64 F 6 '43 700w

Reviewed by P. J. Searles
Weekly Book Review p28 Ap 11 '43 850w

MILBANK, JEREMIAH. First century of flight in America; an introd. survey. 248p il $2.75 Princeton univ. press

629.13 Aeronautics—History A43-1105

"This little book, rather badly organized but interesting as a source book, shows the attempts at flying in this country from the day, Jan. 9, 1793, when Pierre Blanchard made his first ascension from Philadelphia. . . There followed more than 100 years of balloon experiments in this country. Some daring souls made flights of 800 or 900 miles." N Y Times

"This ably documented study opens the door a crack upon a vast storehouse of unused material, but, as Mr. Milbank admits, it only gives us a glimpse. One wonders, for example, what happened to Richard Clayton to end his promising career. And, since events up to 1896 are recorded, what of the contributions of such noted experimentors as Alexander Graham Bell, Hiram Maxim, and Professor S. P. Langley?" H. L. Smith
+ — Am Hist R 49:159 O '43 250w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:22 Ap '43

Reviewed by Russell Owen
N Y Times p27 Ap 18 '43 600w

"Fascinating and scholarly survey. . . Curious contemporary illustrations, and the book is nicely designed."
+ New Yorker 19:79 Ap 3 '43 50w

Reviewed by C. B. Moore
Springf'd Republican p10 Je 11 '43 950w

"This account of man's early flight in the United States is a carefully documented narrative, told with simplicity and force. There are copious notes, a helpful chronology and numerous illustrations. Mr. Milbank's volume is a valuable contribution to the literature of flight." R. B. Cochrane
+ Weekly Book Review p14 My 30 '43 900w

"Because this is a first attempt to cover this period of air development and activity in this country, it performs a valuable service. And by the same token it has certain limitations. For since much contemporary documentary assistance is lacking it can be only a survey. In fact, the author makes it clear several times that his book should be considered no more than introductory to the subject. He hopes, however, that it will open up vistas of technological and social history that will inspire further exploration." C. H. Gale
+ — Yale R n s 32:821 summer '43 700w

MILES, DUDLEY HOWE, and POOLEY, ROBERT CECIL, eds. Literature and life in America. 726p il $2.12; student's guide 40c Scott
810.8 American literature—Collections 43-2429

This volume is a revision of Book Three of Life-Reading, a series of high school texts. It consists of an anthology of American literature from earliest colonial days to the present, with introductory sections by the editors on the various periods relating the literature to contemporary history, life and customs.

"Recommended as library item only to libraries too small to have collected works of most American writers. Illustrations, colored end papers, good textbook binding." Maude Adams
Library J 68:577 Jl '43 70w
School & Society 57:580 My 15 '43 40w

MILHOUS, KATHERINE. Corporal Keeper-upper [il. by the author]. 63p il $1 Scribner 43-15468

Story of a wooden soldier who had served under General Washington, and in two later wars, and wanted to join the army in the present war. He was so broken up because he was too small and overage that he was given a corporal's rank and marked for duty on the home front. For grades two and three.

"Teachers of second and third grades should find this a most useful little book to read aloud. The story itself is entertaining and done with a nice touch of humor, and the point is one well worth making." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p9 Ap 18 '43 320w

Reviewed by H. A. Masten
Christian Science Monitor p12 D 13 '43 80w

"A charming little book in bright colors with an appeal to small children who want to help in the war effort." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 19:166 My '43 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 19:168 My '43 60w

"Timely and attractive little book that will be of interest to about the first four grades. . . The charming Milhous drawings are in color." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 68:365 My 1 '43 40w

"Gallant and wholly engaging, the little corporal will undoubtedly find a warm spot in the hearts of 4 to 7 year olds, making them feel that they too have a real place in the war effort and thus projecting into real life his mission of keeperupper of morale." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p11 Ap 25 '43 260w

"A pretty little book, rather too heavy-handed in its propaganda, but entertaining even so."
+ — New Yorker 19:66 My 29 '43 70w

"An amusing and attractive little book for younger children." Maria Cimino
+ Sat R of Lit 26:50 Ap 17 '43 80w

"Underneath the amusing adventures of the little Corporal there is a friendly understanding of the way the children feel about this war. It does not stress home morale; but it builds it—with laughter." M. G. D.
+ Sat R of Lit 26:36 D 11 '43 280w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 16 '43 110w

"In wartime a story must have more than looks to live; this has. If you can imagine a morale-builder for an American nursery, that is what it is." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p9 My 23 '43 400w
Wis Lib Bul 39:125 O '43

MILL, JOHN STUART. Spirit of the age; introductory essay by Frederick A. von Hayek. 94p $1.50 Univ. of Chicago press
301 Sociology 42-25826

This essay by the great English economist of the early nineteenth century, was published as a series of articles in the Examiner, from January to May, 1831. The essay concerns chiefly Mills' analysis of the age in which he lived, as "a period of transition."

"Mill and his writings are astonishingly alive, considering that he died nearly seventy years ago and that his books have so often been written off as expressions of the exploded economic theories of the discredited Victorian age. Only his earliest work was the uncritical, though brilliant, exposition of the teachings in which he had been drilled in his youth. The present essay, although written (1831) when he was only twenty-five, is a work of his full maturity. . . The introductory essay in this volume, by Frederick A. von Hayek, gives an excellent survey of the intellectual and social context of Mill's essay."
+ Christian Century 59:1530 D 9 '42 200w

Reviewed by A. W. Levi
Ethics 53:233 Ap '43 140w

Reviewed by Emery Neff
J Pol Econ 51:470 O '43 700w

Reviewed by E. L. Tinker
N Y Times p16 F 14 '43 200w

MILLAR, CHARLES ERNEST, and TURK, LLOYD MILDON. Fundamentals of soil science. 462p il maps $3.75 Wiley
631.4 Soils 43-6253

Textbook for college students, outlines the general principles of soil science and considers "the relations of soil science to other agricultural fields and to society in general." Each chapter contains questions. The authors are professor and associate professor of soil science at Michigan State college. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 39:421 Je 15 '43

"Will be of value not solely to the students who may use it as a text. A farmer would find it a valuable work of reference. Naturally, the authors find it necessary to use technical language, but the preparatory explanations make it possible for a person with little previous knowledge of physics, chemistry or botany to understand. Specially practical are the chapters on fertilizers, on irrigation and on the selection of soils for special crops." James Stokley
+ Weekly Book Review p10 Jl 4 '43 180w

MILLAR, MARGARET. Wall of eyes. 243p $2 Random house 43-13710

Detective story.

"Here is a true, adult novel, with wit, satire, fine characterization—and a beautiful plot of crime and mystery." Elizabeth Bullock
+ Book Week p10 S 26 '43 180w
Booklist 40:95 N 15 '43

"There is mystery enough and to spare in this story, but there is not one person in it who engages the reader's sympathy." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 S 5 '43 120w

"Highly recommended."
+ New Yorker 19:78 S 4 '43 70w

"Capital."
+ Sat R of Lit 26:16 S 4 '43 30w

"Margaret Millar wrote 'The Invisible Worm,' 'The Weak-eyed Bat' and 'The Devil Loves Me,' all fine reading for fans. The first third of her new story hardly makes the same grade, probably because she has overfiddled her abnormal psychology. . . Things pick up after the first violent death, when Inspector Sands starts sleuthing and the scene changes to Joey's place." Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p18 S 12 '43 230w

MILLAY, EDNA ST VINCENT (MRS E. J. BOISSEVAIN). Collected lyrics. 383p $5 Harper 811 43-51349

Some two hundred lyrics selected from the printed works of this American poet. The books from which they were chosen are: Renascence; Second April; A few figs from thistles; The harp-weaver and other poems; The buck in the snow; Wine from these grapes; Huntsman, what quarry?

"Rereading this collection of excellent lyrics is a nostalgic experience. It reminds one how simple we all were in the '20s, even in rebellion." Sterling North
Book Week p2 D 12 '43 600w
Booklist 40:161 Ja 1 '44
Reviewed by Delmore Schwartz
Nation 157:735 D 18 '43 1100w
Reviewed by P. M. Jack
N Y Times p4 D 12 '43 1300w
Wis Lib Bul 40:8 Ja '44

MILLEN, NINA, comp. Children's games from many lands. 214p $1 Friendship press
796.1 Games 43-14988

Descriptions of more than two hundred and fifty games collected from all over the world—games from India, Africa, South America, from our own southern mountains, from Eskimo lands, etc. Descriptions include number of players, age-groups, whether indoor or outdoor, simple tunes, as well as brief but clear instructions. Index.

Booklist 40:117 D 1 '43
Christian Century 60:1272 N 3 '43 40w

MILLER, MRS ALICE (DUER) Cinderella; drawings by Constantin Alajálov. [64p] $2.50 Coward-McCann 811 43-16088

Retells the old story of Cinderella in new verse. Illustrated with black and white drawings, showing the course of the tale in delicate mid-Victorian style.

"Never has Cinderella been so charming and lovable and thoroughly convincing as she is in these verses which Alice Duer Miller wrote shortly before her death. Alajalov has done the stunning illustrations and from now on, as far as I am concerned, Cinderella will always be a maiden of the Victorian era in which this author and artist have placed her." P. A. Whitney
+ Book Week p12 N 14 '43 110w

"Try to think of adding anything new to 'Cinderella' and the imagination is stumped. Not that of the late Mrs. Miller, however, who some time before her death retold it in verse, not changing the story, which faithfully follows the old beloved pattern, but bringing to it humor and wit, and the merest suggestion of sophistication, which brightens rather than tarnishes the fairy-tale mood with a delicate air of worldliness very flattering to the young." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p7 N 14 '43 240w

"Mr. Alajálov has done such enchanting illustrations for the old fairy story that the volume makes a delightful picture book. The author's verses are rather less satisfactory. Cinderella, her unfortunate home life, and her princely suitor are portrayed in beautiful and elaborate Early Victorian settings."
+ — New Yorker 19:120 D 4 '43 50w

"What can a reviewer do with something so quotable he dare not begin lest he quote it all? Here is Cinderella for young or old, transposed in time to the period of William Makepeace Thackeray, translated into verse by delicate, dancing art and into pictures drawn with a wink, knowing but without malice. Nothing like this has ever happened to Cinderella before: she has now her gayest expression. This book will live." M. L. Becker
+ Weekly Book Review p6 N 14 '43 350w

MILLER, MRS ALICE (DUER). Hit and run. 203p $2 Dodd
43-1144

Four short stories—two of them of novelette length. Contents: Hit and run; Lorna Carey; Little Anne; An out-of-town call.

"While the copyright dates on the flyleaf of the book extend to the present year, all four stories have a nostalgic flavor—an aroma of times when it more often seemed quite credible that romance and riches and life-long happiness lurked around the corner for the young, lovely and good." Mary Ross
Books p10 Ja 31 '43 250w

"Shrewd and amusing stories." Charlotte Dean
+ N Y Times p12 Ja 31 '43 300w

MILLER, CARL WALLACE. Principles of photographic reproduction. 353p il $6; college ed $4.50 Macmillan 770 Photography. Color photography
42-50130

"Systematic treatment of modern principles and procedures: lens, optics, monochrome reproduction, and color and printing processes. Precise quantitative methods emphasized. Author is associate professor of physics, Brown University." (Library J) Index.

"An expert discusses every phase of photography . . . in a way that is instructive for any camera worker. Such a book would be of added value for the professional because of the refinements of procedure that are possible only in establishments that have the laboratory equipment of an engraving plant. The treatment of color is of particular value."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 3 '43 90w
Library J 68:129 F 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:15 Ja '43
Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p29 Mr 7 '43 150w

MILLER, FRED ROBINSON. Fundamentals of electricity; a pre-induction course. 220p il $1 Heath
537 Electricity 43-2464

"This book constitutes a first course in certain phases of the fundamentals of electricity and magnetism. The text conforms with the requirements of the War Department's pre-induction training program. The level of this book is approximately that of high school texts. No special mathematical training is required on the part of the reader." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 39:429 Je 15 '43
Library J 68:212 Mr 1 '43 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:43 Jl '43

"The preparation and arrangement of the diagrams and plates used in this book are generally very good, but one may wonder why the author did not select more modern illustrations for some of his electric machines." F. E. Canavaciol
+ — N Y Times p29 Je 6 '43 360w

MILLER, MRS HELEN (HILL). Yours for tomorrow; a personal freedom. 182p $2 Farrar 917.3 U.S.—Civilization. Reconstruction (1939-) 43-17111

"A mother addresses her young sons on the nature and responsibilities of American freedom. She traces the history of their family, North and South, considers her own experience, and suggests ways of preserving our traditional values in the world after the war. . . The author is executive director of the National Policy Committee." New Yorker

"A challenge to youth to cast off the cloak of laissez faire and consciously to exercise their divine right of sovereignty, to recognize what makes a good society and to have the will and the strength to bring one into being. Suggests use with high school classes working on postwar planning." J. M. Brittan
+ Library J 68:895 N 1 '43 80w
+ New Repub 109:756 N 29 '43 80w

"Concise, intelligent, and well written, for the most part."
+ New Yorker 19:110 N 20 '43 80w
Weekly Book Review p33 D 12 '43 250w

MILLER, MRS HELEN (TOPPING). Hunter's moon. 235p $2 Appleton-Century

43-11851

Burke Ryerson, after the party which ended the rehearsal for her wedding, became fully aware that she could never marry Francis Kyle. So in a panic she stole her sister's car and fled from Washington. In the morning she found refuge in a deserted summer home in the mountains and there eventually she also found understanding and romance.

Booklist 40:95 N 15 '43

"Thoroughly readable, filled with amusing dialogue and peopled by presentable young men and women, this is a nice little story for a summer afternoon." Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p14 Ag 15 '43 200w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 5 '43 160w

"Like a jigsaw puzzle, 'Hunter's Moon' will keep you entertained until you see how it fits together. We doubt if Mrs. Miller had any ulterior motive." Lisle Bell

Weekly Book Review p12 Ag 8 '43 300w

MILLER, MRS HELEN (TOPPING). Wild lilac. 241p $2 Appleton-Century

43-1885

Joel Barron, a wealthy New Englander, living a quiet life in the Louisiana bayou country, invited his lovely young niece to live with him. Mary was all ready for a swift reversal of her repressed New England life, and her uncle's rigid discipline was the wrong line to take. Mary wanted to be a little wild; but she was too intelligent to keep on fighting, after she discovered wildness did not bring happiness.

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

Books p11 F 7 '43 150w

"The story is one of Mrs. Miller's lightest, full of pretty girls and extravagant clothes." Charlotte Dean

N Y Times p15 F 7 '43 200w

MILLER, JAMES GRIER. Unconsciousness. 329p $3 Wiley

153.8 Subconsciousness 42-5994

"This book attempts to distinguish the various meanings of the word unconscious which have been used, and to describe and differentiate carefully the diverse sorts of human behavior which have been included under this term. Then each of the phenomena is considered at length; the clinically and experimentally determined facts about each one are reviewed; and an evaluation is made of the present state of knowledge on that specific subject." (Pref) Index.

"This is certainly not the kind of book one would read for fun. But it is just as certainly the kind of book any psychologist should read for his own instruction. It is a scholarly work, evidenced by the extensive use of both experimental and theoretical literature. Many references, fully authenticated, appear on almost every page. There is no bibliography, but one is scarcely necessary. There is an adequate index. . . To the reviewer this book is an excellent argument against use of the term unconscious at all. When a single word may convey sixteen or more meanings then there can be no place for that term in our vocabulary. The book serves well to make this very clear. For trained readers and for the training of readers it should long stand as a useful item." E. S. Conklin

+ Am J Psychol 56:146 Ja '43 220w

Reviewed by Bingham Dai

Am J Soc 48:621 Mr '43 450w

MILLER, JANE (MRS CAMERON F. MACRAE, jr). Miss Lizzie. [44p] il $1.50 Viking

43-14770

Miss Lizzie loved to cook, but had no one but herself to cook for; Captain Snyder loved good cooking but could only cook beans; Charlie Dog hates beans. One day Miss Lizzie made some doughnuts and Charlie Dog trailed the smell to its home; that was the beginning of a harmonious arrangement for all. For children four to six.

"This is a wonderfully humorous picture book which has utilized the appeal of the comic strips and gone them several better." P. A. Whitney

+ Book Week p7 Ja 2 '44 150w

Reviewed by E. S. Littlefield

Library J 68:819 O 15 '43 40w

"The theme of the story is adult, but the situations are full of humor for children. Illustrations in blue, black and white are good for many a laugh." Margaret Abildgaard

+ Library J 68:1009 D 1 '43 40w

Springf'd Republican p7e N 7 '43 80w

"To read aloud to a small child this tale is commended. Its wash drawings—gray with splashes of bright green—are as vigorous as the comics, and its characters as sharply characterized. Miss Lizzie is no Venus, but you know by one look at her that she could put a taste into things." M. L. Becker

+ Weekly Book Review p8 N 7 '43 300w

MILLER, JOHN CHESTER. Origins of the American revolution; decorative drawings by Eric M. Simon. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 519p $3.50 Little

973.311 U.S.—History—Revolution—Causes. U.S.—History—Colonial period

43-11509

Scholarly history of the background of the American revolution, from the accession of George III to the proclamation of the Declaration of Independence. The author is an assistant professor of history at Bryn Mawr college. Map on end-papers. Index.

"Author Miller provides no light reading, but his is a thoughtful book, with source material of freshness and depth." F. N. Litten

Book Week p1 Ag 8 '43 950w

Booklist 40:10 S '43

"'Origins of the American Revolution' is historical writing at its best—never wooden, often witty, and so lively in pace that there is strong temptation to place a wager now that here is the winner of the 1943 Pulitzer sweepstakes." Ray McPartlin

+ Boston Globe p17 Ag 11 '43 400w

"This book, which frankly returns to the nineteenth century conception of the Revolution, is all the more welcome after decades of historical attempts to twist it into a case of 'economic determinism' or to debunk it. The only adverse criticism is of the irritating monotony with which the author invariably writes 'Sam Adams' and 'Tom Paine' without calling John Hancock 'Jack,' or Patrick Henry, 'Pat.'" C. W. Thompson

+ — Cath World 157:661 S '43 600w

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 28 '43 700w

"At a time like this the publication of a thoroughly readable, accurate and penetrating account of the origins of the American Revolution deserves the warmest commendation." W. H. Melish

+ Churchman 157:14 D 1 '43 240w

Reviewed by W. F. Sands

Commonweal 38:446 Ag 20 '43 1400w

Current Hist 5:78 S '43 130w

"Vivid portrayals of North, Pitt, Burke, Townshend, Patrick Henry, and others give special interest and importance. . . Recommended." S. E. Sherman

+ Library J 68:623 Ag '43 140w

Nation 157:565 N 13 '43 80w

Reviewed by William Miller

— New Repub 109:343 S 6 '43 500w

Reviewed by Carl Bridenbaugh

N Y Times p3 Ag 8 '43 1550w

"Well worth your scrutiny. The Professor is no stylistic ball of fire—his prose, in truth, has a strong infusion of Sanka—but if you have patience, plus a genuine interest in the labor pains of the Republic, the combination should carry you through." Clifton Fadiman

+ — New Yorker 19:61 Ag 7 '43 320w

Reviewed by J. A. Krout
Pol Sci Q 58:611 D '43 1150w

"There was a time when a volume with the title 'Origins of the American Revolution' would have been regarded as of interest only to the scholars and students of history. Yet here is a thoroughly scholarly piece of work, precisely documented, and still lively and spirited enough for a best-seller list. It comes at a time when there is a great resurgence of pride in and curiosity about American history." W. S. Lynch
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 Ag 7 '43 900w

"Prof Miller in his valuable and scholarly work throws new light on the controversies and conflicts of that troubled time." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 8 '43 1150w

Reviewed by R. B. Scandrett, Jr.
Survey G 32:454 N '43 460w

"Perhaps the one disappointing aspect of this admirable study is its failure adequately to describe or explain the growth of the democratic movement at home." H. S. Commager
+ — Weekly Book Review p3 Ag 8 '43 1300w

Wis Lib Bul 39:144 N '43

Reviewed by D. M. Potter
Yale R n s 33:370 winter '44 700w

MILLER, KENNETH DEXTER. We who are America. 181p $1; pa 60c Friendship press

325.73 U.S.—Foreign population 43-9828

"A simple and compact presentation of the essential facts about the racial groups in the United States, their numbers and characteristics, the problems they face and present, and the relation of the church to the building of a united nation out of these diverse materials." (Christian Century) Bibliography.

Booklist 40:72 N 1 '43
Christian Century 60:800 Jl 7 '43 40w

MILLER, LESLIE AVINAL. Plumbing and pipe-fitting layout job sheets. 124p il $2.50; pa $2 Goodheart-Willcox

696.1 Plumbing. Pipe fitting 42-50972

"Practical instruction, including materials and tools required. Blueprint reading, drawing, pipe-fitting, pipe threads, and layout for plumbers. Forty-five complete job sheets." Library J

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:32 Ap '43

MILLER, MARY BRITTON. In the days of thy youth. 353p $2.75 Scribner

43-12462

Pictures a well-to-do New England family of the 1880's, their trips abroad, their ways of living, of managing their money, and especially describes the way in which they treated the five orphaned children of a less wealthy family connection.

"This is truly a fine novel. Though a first novel, it has maturity, poise, sureness. It reveals extraordinary comprehension of people. It is written with sensitiveness and integrity. . . This novel is so good that pressure of wartime interests mustn't be permitted to obscure it. It will leave any thoughtful reader richer." J. T. Frederick
+ Book Week p3 Ag 29 '43 470w

Booklist 40:14 S '43

"The satire on the purse-proud, family-proud aristocracy of the 1880's and 1890's is entertaining reading, not too exacting, not too subtle for hot days in September. . . Even the children, growing up are arrested personalities. No wonder, we may agree, considering their environment. So far as the novel is a sympathetic and often beautiful study of childhood, it is also a demonstration of how four children become and stay maladjusted. Little Gus is the exception. The prolonged enfant-terriblism of the twins is hard to credit. Whether their semi-mystical perception of identity rings true, those critics who are themselves identical twins will have to say." O. B. White
+ — Commonweal 38:566 S 24 '43 310w

"The novel is packed with character and incident that evoke the period. . . Miss Miller has a highly sensitive feeling for the world of childhood and succeeds admirably in making each of the Marshall children come alive. The irrepressible twins, Rachel and Ruth, who found life a hilarious adventure to be tossed about and lampooned, lend laughter and gaiety and, at the same time, a certain poignancy to the book." Rose Feld
+ N Y Times p11 S 5 '43 600w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 12 '43 650w

"This is not just a first good novel. It is more than that—an interesting new talent shown in an excellent study in which a period and a family come to life." Rosemary Benet
+ Weekly Book Review p4 Ag 22 '43 1400w

MILLER, MAX. Land where time stands still; il. with phot. by George Lindsay and the author. 236p $3 Dodd

917.22 California, Lower 43-4562

"This book is the record of a trip overland in the fall of 1941 from San Diego to Capo San Lucas at the tip of Lower California. It is neither an adventure story nor a systematic study of the little-known Mexican province. It is simply a record of what I saw there, and such economic and sociological statistics as it contains arise incidentally from the story itself." Foreword

"A highly personalized and frequently amusing account. . . For me his story is too much on the surface. He went over the mountain to see what he could see, and I do not get the impression he saw all there was to see." Jean Douglass
+ — Book Week p6 Ap 11 '43 230w

Booklist 39:331 Ap 15 '43

"Mr. Miller indulges in this book in fewer vulgarities and profanities than he has used in some other volumes, making this story pleasanter reading for those who do not confuse such poor manners with 'realism.' Excuse or overlook these exaggerated strivings for 'color,' and 'Land Where Time Stands Still' is well worth the reading." R. L. B.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p10 My 29 '43 600w

"Within the limitations of his powers and his rather clumsy prose, he gives us what seems to be a reasonably accurate picture of the place. . . Baja California awaits a more skilled typewriter than Mr. Miller's." Harry Sylvester
+ — Commonweal 37:651 Ap 16 '43 700w

"Filled with interesting accounts of the customs of the unambitious natives, of their cities, including La Paz, the largest one, and of the early history. Timely work. Will be popular." Emma Olcott
+ Library J 68:209 Mr 1 '43 90w

"Mr. Miller was less concerned with their work than he was with that of the natives; their play too, for that matter. He is successful in picturing both." E. F. Allen
+ N Y Times p18 Ap 11 '43 500w

"Max Miller is a beguiling writer, as he would have to be to bring life to this stretch of cactus strewn desert. He manages it by a leisurely and intimate style which knows how to get the full flavor from the smallest incident. . . The most challenging story in his book is the mystery of the pearling beds about La Paz and why they died. Did the Japs poison these beds to destroy competition? If so, there's a propaganda nugget for our side." Betty Kirk
+ Sat R of Lit 26:33 Ap 10 '43 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
Weekly Book Review p12 Je 27 '43 1150w

MILLER, RANDOLPH CRUMP. Guide for church school teachers. 125p $1.25 Cloister press, Louisville

268.6 Religious education 43-8191

"The author believes that the purpose of the church school is the religious education of the child, not the mere imparting of information, and that every successful teacher must understand and utilize the techniques which pedagogy has only recently attempted to employ. But he realizes that in the teaching of religion, where biblical knowledge and theological doctrine are essential, the 'project method' may be overdone and misused. There is a helpful appendix which recommends lesson materials for the various grades." Churchman

"It would be hard to imagine, and harder still to find, a book of its size which comes nearer to telling church school teachers 'what they need to know about Christian education today.' It opens many topics and explores none of them completely, but its starts are all in the right direction, its theory is sound, its presuppositions valid, and its outlines of procedure in organization and teaching are thoroughly practical."

+ Christian Century 60:638 My 26 '43 100w

"This is a useful book for church school teachers who are sufficiently intelligent to take their task seriously—and there should be no others. It is brief and clear, but amply covers the field." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 157:17 S 15 '43 150w

Reviewed by E. J. Chave

J Religion 23:299 O '43 100w

MILLER, WARREN HASTINGS. Lone woodsman; il. by Kreigh Collins. 230p $2 Winston 43-10682

Dan Pickett, a nineteen-year-old, on an ethnological trip in the Canadian North woods, loses all his equipment and clothes except his bathing trunks, a belt and a knife. With only his dog for company the boy manages to make his way back to civilization. For older boys.

"It seems almost too difficult an experience to be true, but Warren H. Miller, in his accustomed way, makes it seem possible and young boys will find the story exciting." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 19:323 S '43 100w

"Boy Scouts will appreciate resourcefulness, Indian lore, and woodcraft. Recommend for young adults and boys of twelve and up." Maude Adams

+ Library J 68:673 S 1 '43 100w

"A fine adventure story which will give to boys a step-by-step account of some of the fundamentals of woodcraft. Kreigh Collins has drawn dramatic pictures and also illustrates many of Dan's ingenious contrivances for living alone and actually liking it." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p9 S 5 '43 240w

New Yorker 19:130 D 4 '43 50w

MILLIGAN, HAROLD VINCENT, ed. Best loved hymns and prayers of the American people. (Halcyon house bk) 474p $1.69 Blue ribbon bks.

245.2 Hymns. Prayers 42-50727

"The hymns have been grouped under such headings as 'Worship and praise,' 'Confidence and trust,' 'Faith and courage,' 'Joy and aspiration,' 'Penitence,' and 'Peace and brotherhood.' There are prayers for the home, for moments of despair and sickness, for our nation and for renewed faith. . . Dr Milligan has served as organist and choirmaster in New York's Riverside church for many years." Springf'd Republican

"These selections are admirable. The best classic religious poems and hymns are here, and many from well-known modern authors." A. F. G.

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 F 13 '43 380w

"Dr. Milligan shows in his selection of material both discrimination and authority." C. B. M.

Springf'd Republican p8 F 3 '43 250w

MILLS, CHARLES. The choice. 424p $3 Macmillan

43-5034

Character sketch of an American Southern gentleman, who inherited from his father a love of his plantation home and of Italy. His life is sketched thru school and college days, thru the first World war, and in Fascist Italy where he becomes a writer.

"An absorbing and original character study. Book shows much promise, though some may be offended by frankness of certain scenes and remarks." E. F. Kelly

+ — Library J 68:248 Mr 15 '43 70w

"Charles Mills's 'The Choice' is a first novel of considerable talent. To be sure, it has grave faults of style. . . But what constitutes Mr. Mills's talent is his ability, in spite of his wordiness, to evoke scene, and his method of patiently building character. In its prose 'The Choice' suggests Thomas Wolfe; in its method of creating character it bears a certain resemblance to 'The Last Puritan.' . . But with this salute to its author's gifts, I can go on to say that 'The Choice' is a very distressing book." Diana Trilling

+ — Nation 156:712 My 15 '43 900w

"Many of the minor characters are sharply observed and excellently drawn. Many scenes are written with a real feeling for drama. But when he doesn't watch it the author's facility for writing 'poetic' language leads him often into verbosity. Like Thomas Wolfe, whom he more nearly resembles than Southern writers of the Caldwell-Faulkner persuasion, Mr. Mills at times gets too fascinated with the mere surge of words." Eugene Armfield

N Y Times p6 Ap 18 '43 900w

" 'The Choice' is a book to linger over with enjoyment, both for the thoughtfulness and trenchancy of its matter and the richness and precision of its writing. I do not know whether Mr. Mills has published other novels; it seems hardly possible that this is the first he has written. But certainly many other readers, like myself, will watch eagerly for his future books, having found in this a range and quality of adventure that comes seldom in a publishing season." Mary Ross

+ Weekly Book Review p6 Ap 18 '43 800w

MILLS, MARJORIE. Cooking on a ration; food is still fun. 190p $2 Houghton

641.5 Cookery 43-14901

"A cook book which takes account of present restrictions on cookery, proposing not only new ways of using the lower-point meats, but many meat substitute dishes in the way of substantial soups, vegetable and cheese combinations." (Wis Lib Bul) Index.

Booklist 40:74 N 1 '43

+ Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 280w

Wis Lib Bul 39:142 N '43

MILLSPAUGH, ARTHUR CHESTER. Democracy, efficiency, stability; an appraisal of American government. (Inst. for gov. research. Studies in administration) 522p $4 Brookings

973 U.S.—Politics and government. Democracy 42-15051

For descriptive note see Annual for 1942.

"In view of the fact that governmental history, as contrasted with general political history, has been more neglected by scholars than it deserves to have been, Millspaugh's review of the first 140 years of American government is useful and instructive in spite of the fact that the treatment is not exhaustive and does not pretend to be. In general, the discussion is thoughtful and will repay careful study." E. E. Schattschneider

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:138 F '43 700w

"The book is a carefully written study, obviously the product of a well-ordered mind. In fact, it is over-organized to the point of textbookishness but many readers may find this a welcome contrast to the usual vague and diffuse discussion of the subject. Though too arid to interest the popular audience, the style is good. The book is long." Dudley Kirk

+ Am Soc R 8:94 F '43 650w

Reviewed by D. L. Kemmerer

Ann Am Acad 227:178 My '43 600w

"The book is a big book; but it is worth reading through. The author makes a most careful and thought-provoking analysis of our American civilization. The picture he paints is not all black or all white. . . The book makes no effort to ride a thesis. It is a thoroughgoing attempt to find out where we are, democratically speaking, in this crucial year 1942." H. A. Overstreet

+ Columbia Law R 43:268 Mr '43 550w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:582 Ap '43 30w

Reviewed by T. I. Cook

Harvard Law R 56:837 Mr '43 1400w

MILLSPAUGH, ARTHUR CHESTER. Peace plans and American choices; the pros and cons of world order; drawings by John W. Collins. 107p maps $1 Brookings

321.041 International cooperation. Reconstruction (1939-) 42-50609

"Which of the numerous proposals for a durable peace that have been advanced should Americans choose? In this book Dr. Millspaugh, without stating his own opinions and conclusions, describes about a dozen typical peace plans and gives the main arguments for and against each of them." Management R

"Style and exposition are simple and clear. The author has accomplished the limited purpose in view. Perhaps some readers may be reminded of youthful forensic contests in which propositions are debated chiefly for their arguable attributes rather than for the purpose of enlightenment and understanding." G. L. LaFuze

+ Am Pol Sci R 37:373 Ap '43 260w

Booklist 39:270 Mr 1 '43

Bookmark 4:13 My '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 21:575 Ap '43 20w

"It must be said that the task attempted has been exceedingly well performed. It is a limited task, and the author makes no false pretensions about it. The meaning of each of the dozen proposals is clearly stated, and the case for and against it very succinctly and readably, even entertainingly, presented as a series of numbered 'points,' usually in a brief paragraph. The treatment is at the level of critical common sense rather than either political philosophy or political science; but even the specialist will find the book well worth the little time required to read it." F. H. Knight

+ J Pol Econ 51:279 Je '43 750w

Management R 32:42 Ja '43 50w

"Here is a short, modest but very valuable book. . . Mr. Millspaugh has carried out his assigned task with admirable competence. . . Mr. Millspaugh's little book is an excellent antidote against special pleading." Henry Hazlitt

+ N Y Times p10 Mr 14 '43 650w

MINAR, EDWIN LEROY. Early Pythagorean politics in practice and theory. 143p pa $1.85 Conn. college bkshop, New London, Conn.

182.2 Pythagoras and Pythagorean school. Political science 42-51804

"The attempt of the Pythagoreans to establish the domination of a religious or semi-religious hierarchy over an area of considerable extent is a unique phenomenon in the history of ancient Greece, which was otherwise of a very secular character. . . The present study is the first attempt to give an integrated account of Pythagorean politics and political theory on the basis of laborious investigations." Pol Sci Q

"A well-written and thoroughly documented monograph." W. A. Oldfather

+ Am Hist R 49:87 O '43 550w

J Philos 40:79 F 4 '43 800w

"In the opinion of this reviewer the author is right when he rejects the exaggerated skepticism of some scholars concerning the value of even the earliest Greek tradition. But his analysis seems marred by a certain lack of subtlety in his evaluation and interpretation of the sources and, above all, in his own inferences concerning the nature of the political principles and activities of the Pythagoreans. . . It would, however, be unjust not to mention that the study under review is a conscientious piece of work, which contains not only a complete collection and detailed analysis of the relevant ancient tradition concerning the Pythagoreans, but also a discussion of many points which serve to illustrate the general political background." Kurt von Fritz

+ — Pol Sci Q 58:304 Je '43 700w

MINUTE of prayer. 373p $1 Blue ribbon bks.

264.1 Prayers 44-1051

Prayers for every day in the year, for a world at war. They were submitted by Protestant ministers, Catholic priests, Jewish rabbis, and Christian Scientists. The prayers were compiled from those submitted for the radio program Minute of prayer. The royalties from the sale of the book are being donated to the USO.

"An important contribution to the literature of devotion in our time."

+ Christian Century 60:1408 D 1 '43 30w

"This book of minute prayers is a personal aid for becoming more familiar with the art of prayer. It is a reserve of prayerful thoughts for daily devotions." Harry Stuckenbruck

+ Springf'd Republican p10 D 16 '43 400w

MITCHELL, JOSEPH. McSorley's wonderful saloon. 253p $2.50 Duell

818 43-11949

Human interest stories about curious characters, some of them from lower New York, others from the author's home state—North Carolina. These sketches were written for the New Yorker, and have been rewritten and revised.

"It is as tenderly assembled a collection of screwballs as ever broke your heart. Joe Mitchell is a human taxidermist, who never stuffed a shirt but has never failed to capture the most fleeting and wistful expression. He brings them back almost alive, pickled in ether, gin and the brine of a million tears. Twenty fables and not a single moral." Sterling North

+ Book Week p3 Ag 1 '43 360w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay

Library J 68:571 Jl '43 110w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist

Nation 157:190 Ag 14 '43 550w

"Almost all the subjects of Mitchell's portraits are essentially Dickens people. . . In Mitchell's factual writing, it is hard not to see an image of the factual lives we lead, under the dictatorship of numbers, statistical averages and mass movements. Yet perhaps this impression of Mitchell is merely superficial. Reading some of his portraits a second time, you catch an emotion beneath them that curiously resembles Dickens': a continual wonder at the sights and sounds of a big city, a continual devouring interest in all the strange people who live there, a continual impulse to burst into praise of kind hearts and good food and down with hypocrisy. Unlike Dickens, he represses his lyrical impulse, but it controls

MITCHELL, JOSEPH—Continued
his selection of details. You might say that he tries—often successfully—to achieve the same effects with the grammar of hard facts that Dickens achieved with the rhetoric of imagination." Malcolm Cowley

New Repub 109:113 Jl 26 '43 1400w

"Whether he is describing Miss Schuyler's incipient genius, the melancholia of an ancient dypsomaniac or the curiosities of Black Ankle County, N.C., where he grew up, Mr. Mitchell writes with serenity and detachment. A less able reporter might have fallen into the pitfall of being cute in discussing Philippa Schuyler, cynical or facetious in setting forth the garrulities of gin-mill habitués. But Mr. Mitchell is not only a conscientious legman and interviewer, he is also an adroit and sensitive writer." Lincoln Barnett

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 25 '43 1000w

New Yorker 19:64 Jl 24 '43 90w

"Joseph Mitchell's studies are masterpieces of observation and description. Though they make one think of O. Henry and his 'Four Million,' it is not because of any imitative quality of treatment, but because of the similarity of subject matter. He does not try to be funny in a 'pious friends and drunken companions' sort of way. Best of all, he has that quality which Fanny Hurst saw in his Mazie. 'I admire Mazie,' said Miss Hurst. 'She is the most compassionate person I have ever known.' " W. S. Lynch

+ Sat R of Lit 26:20 Jl 31 '43 700w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ag 8 '43 600w

Time 42:98 Ag 2 '43 850w

"It is probable that many of Mr. Mitchell's admirers and well wishers have at times hoped he could turn to a different field, on the ground that one can stand just so much of the lower depths without gagging. There may be something in this advice, but it probably is unsound. As long as he is enchanted by these people it seems a shame to divert him, for no one can do them so well." Stanley Walker

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ag 1 '43 1150w

MITCHELL, MRS LUCY (SPRAGUE). The red, white and blue auto; il. by Tibor Gergely. [33p] $1 Scott, W.R.

43-15138

Picture-story book about the difficulties of auto travel in wartime and what happened when several automobiles of various makes and sizes banged into each other. For ages four to seven.

Booklist 40:83 N 1 '43

"Sunday-school teachers may find it useful as one of their character-building stories; and it may be offered as a substitute for comic books in both schools and libraries. But, in spite of the fact that drawings are by Tibor Gergely, the little book does not look very appealing." S. J. Johnson

+ — Library J 68:894 N 1 '43 70w

Reviewed by Lena Barksdale
Nation 157:591 N 20 '43 10w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer
N Y Times p22 N 28 '43 40w

Wis Lib Bul 40:11 Ja '44

MITCHELL, RUTH. Serbs choose war. 265p map $2.75 Doubleday

940.542 World war, 1939—Yugoslavia. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American

43-14979

An American woman, the sister of General Billy Mitchell, went to Albania to take photographs of King Zog's wedding. She was en route to the Far East, but never got there; instead she stayed for over four years in the Balkans. This is her story of experiences in Albania and Yugoslavia, and in a Gestapo prison, where she landed because of her activities in behalf of the Chetnik guerrillas.

Booklist 40:112 D 1 '43

Cath World 158:221 N '43 130w

Cleveland Open Shelf p17 O '43

Reviewed by J. S. Roucek
Commonweal 39:77 N 5 '43 280w

"Miss Mitchell's book is packed with errors and misstatements. . . The world which Miss Mitchell describes is an old one and a dead one. This 'femme fatale' as she calls herself, is one of hundreds of Anglo-Saxon women who visited Yugoslavia and the Balkans in anxious search of personal adventures in a world of tragic suffering and pain. As a native of the Balkans, I feel free to say that Balkanites are sickened by this kind of book exploiting what is dead in our countries and not what is vitally new. Miss Mitchell devotes not one word to the remarkable achievements of the Peoples' Liberation Army, which consists of Serbs, Croats, Slovenes, Catholic, Orthodox, Moslems and Jews and constitutes the most vigorous factor in the effort to build a new Yugoslavia in a new, free Balkans." Bogdan Raditsa

— New Repub 109:494 O 11 '43 500w

"The controversy which has been raging around this book and will probably pick up impetus revolves around Miss Mitchell's treatment of the Croats, who are outranked only by the Serbs as the second largest component part of the Yugoslav Kingdom. She asserts that the Croat peasant leader, Dr. Vladimir Machek 'blew the State of Yugoslavia to the winds, never to be put together'. . . Miss Mitchell will find it very difficult to sustain this charge. . . Miss Mitchell says that the Chetniks are Serbs, but she should have added that the other large group of patriots, the Partisans, are Croats as well as Serbs and Slovenes, in other words Yugoslavs. It is a historic fact that in Yugoslavia the Croats were not the only ones to corner the market on treason. . . The story of Miss Mitchell as a Chetnik also fails to carry conviction. . . She tells about her dagger lying on the table of her Gestapo judges, pointing toward her. Moviegoers will easily recognize this scene as a Hollywood antique. Several other scenes, too, strike the reader as melodrama of a familiar type. The Serb's heroism needs no overwriting." Emil Lengyel

— N Y Times p26 O 17 '43 900w

"A vivid, warm-hearted story by a redoubtably self-possessed American woman."

+ New Yorker 19:87 O 2 '43 50w

"Ruth Mitchell has spent thirteen months in German prisons and concentration camps and at one time was condemned to death by the Nazis. It seems therefore more than brutal to criticize 'The Serbs Choose War' by ordinary standards, for [Miss] Mitchell has undoubtedly tried to do the best that she could with her material. And this material is amazing, grim, tragic, perhaps too amazing." H. B. Kranz

Sat R of Lit 26:55 O 16 '43 550w

"The make-up of the book is rather disconcerting since there are no chapter headings, but instead heavy black captions at whatever point one thought or story ends and another begins. Miss Mitchell has a tendency to back into her sentences and depends too much on the dash. But despite these annoyances this is a story Americans should read in order to get one more crucial detail of one more vital angle of the peace that must be made." Eleanor Marindin

Springf'd Republican p7e O 10 '43 440w

Reviewed by Robert St John
Weekly Book Review p6 O 24 '43 850w

MIZWA, STEPHEN PAUL. Nicholas Copernicus, 1543-1943. 88p il $1.50; pa 75c; to schools 50c; ltd ed subs $2.50; autog $5 Kosciuszko foundation, 149 E. 67th st, N.Y.

B or 92 Copernicus, Nicolaus 43-5107

"The Kosciuszko Foundation, New York, has issued for the quatercentenary of Copernicus this handsomely produced monograph on the famous Polish astronomer. . . It is in four parts, of which the first deals with Copernicus's life, the second with his family history, the third with suggestions for programmes of celebrations, and the fourth with measures being taken to restore, after the war, the Polish culture which the German is endeavouring to destroy." Times [London] Lit Sup

Reviewed by B. L. Conway
Cath World 158:102 O '43 290w
Commonweal 38:520 S 10 '43 70w
Times [London] Lit Sup p395 Ag 14 '43 90w
Weekly Book Review p15 Jl 25 '43 150w

MOATS, ALICE-LEONE. Blind date with Mars. 486p $3 Doubleday

940.548 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-4045

"A Collier's correspondent, best described as irrepressible, details her wanderings through the Far East, Russia, and the Middle East between August, 1940, and March, 1942." New Yorker

Reviewed by Polly Brown
Boston Globe p15 F 17 '43 250w

Reviewed by J. B. Denny
N Y Times p4 F 14 '43 1250w

"Flip, amusing, and nicely perceptive, too, but it does make the war sound as if it were all oysters with the ambassador."
+ — New Yorker 18:72 F 13 '43 60w

"Few people could imitate Miss Moats in blending her most purely personal experiences with a recording of world history. The result is simply irresistible, probably because she has a sharply chiseled personality and also because she is an artist of the expressive word. In other words, this book is one of those 'naturals' that happens only once in a great while." Emil Lengyel
+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 F 13 '43 800w

"Her original slant on all she sees and meets is refreshing, while her sarcastic humor is sometimes appropriate and nearly always clever. She makes no pretense at important international revelations or deep analysis, but simply and unpretentiously gives a breezy and fascinating report on her unusual experiences." Jessica Potter
+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 450w
Time 41:90 F 22 '43 450w

"Apart from the personal notes there is a good deal of factual material in this book, much of it repetitive of things that have been said before by other writers coming from Russia, some of it new and all of it colored by Miss Moats's feeling about the Russians who made every effort to get her out of the country. She writes with a breezy, 'girlish' humor that is deeply accented by the erotic and functional. . . Miss Moats sees all, hears all, and tells all, and quotes herself with the fondness of a mother repeating the pert remarks of a precocious child." Rose Feld
— Weekly Book Review p6 F 21 '43 1500w
Wis Lib Bul 39:53 Ap '43

MOBERG, VILHELM. Ride this night! tr. by Henry Alexander. 252p $2.50 Doubleday 43-9539

After the Thirty Years' War the Swedish peasants had a long struggle before they won their freedom. This is the story of Ragnar Svedje, who owned the farm left to him by his forefathers, and who objected to German domination, and of Botilla, his betrothed who was tricked and finally met her death. After Svedje, too, met his death, the fiery cross appeared in Sweden, the symbol of the underground movement against oppression.

Booklist 39:464 Jl 15 '43
Commonweal 38:204 Je 11 '43 600w

"While peasants' hard life is described realistically with great vividness and knowledge, characters appear stylized and rather too black and white. In spite of certain qualities, a book of limited appeal." H. H. A. Bernt
+ — Library J 68:430 My 15 '43 80w

"More interesting than this familiar story is Mr. Moberg's convincing description of seventeenth-century peasant customs, especially his recreation of peasant superstitions. His fund of folklore rather than his right-mindedness makes tolerable the Knut Hamsunish bread-and-water, ox-and-plow rhythm of his prose." Diana Trilling
+ — Nation 156:843 Je 12 '43 160w

Reviewed by Robert Gorman
New Repub 109:28 Jl 5 '43 420w

"This strong, somberly beautiful book of seventeenth-century Sweden is also one of the best about the real issue in the present World War." Signe Toksvig
+ N Y Times p6 My 23 '43 800w

"Mr. Moberg's narrative has a fine, hard core that is not often found in the works of our own much-touted historical novelists, but his effort to make the hero into a symbol of revolt against an alien tyranny doesn't quite come off."
+ — New Yorker 19:85 Je 5 '43 180w

"Mr. Moberg is adept at creating the atmosphere of a world over which falls the long shadow of its certain doom. Hatred, hunger, lust and enslavement to the seasons' cycle, these immemorial lashes of mankind, are the driving forces of the book. But underlying them, oblique yet powerful, is the challenge to Sweden which the author surely intends to imply. The meaning of 'Ride This Night,' unmistakably, is that no price is too high to pay for the heritage of freedom." Virgilia Sapieha
Weekly Book Review p4 My 23 '43 1000w

MODERN wonder books; 150 book classroom library (covering the first six grades). Complete set $16 in metal box. Twenty-five titles for each grade in separate metal boxes, $2.95 per set, plus postage. Ten or more titles, 10c each, plus 1c each for postage; fewer than 10 books 15c each. American education press, Columbus, Ohio

808 Children's literature (collective)

"Popularly known as Unit study books, these paper-covered booklets, according to the publisher, supply 'a wealth of content written on levels suitable for every child . . . a carefully organized social studies program to meet every requirement for exploratory reading.' There are 25 titles for each grade, each book comprising a unit of material complete in itself. The subject matter is factual, covering a broad range of topics in the social studies and science of interest to children and including fairy tales in the selections for the first three grades. The books are purported to be based on units most frequently found in a national survey of courses of study. A classroom Library Manual accompanying the complete set, describes what the classroom library should be and suggests library activities for the several grades. An individual reading chart for the class is also provided." (Subscription Bks Bul) For earlier entry see Book Review Digest, 1940.

"A library having a good, up-to-date, juvenile encyclopedia will have much of the information given in the Modern wonder books. Libraries or schools needing materials of this kind for supplementary reading should scrutinize similar publications. Mention might be made of the Row, Peterson publications: Basic science and Basic social education series. Although individual titles may fit certain curriculum needs, Modern wonder books are not recommended for library materials as a set."
Subscription Bks Bul 13:50 O '42 320w

MOHAIR, ANNIE LAURIE, and BENARDETE, DORIS, eds. American expression on the war and the peace. 326p $1.75 Am. bk.

940.53 World war, 1939—U.S. 43-9657

Supplementary reading for college freshmen. The "collection is designed to meet 'the urgent need to stimulate the young men and women now attending college to think freely, logically, honestly, and subsequently to express themselves so.' " (Cath World) Bibliography. Index.

MOHAIR, A. L.—Continued

"The selections are timely and well-chosen. . . Not all these selections will prove both interesting and acceptable to every one. That, indeed, would defeat the book's aim of stimulating free, honest, and logical thought." K. E. Murphy

+ Cath World 157:664 S '43 290w

"Intended for the freshman English course (which, except in the women's colleges, has almost disappeared) and for the specialized training programs of the army and navy (which usually has very little time for this kind of reading), the volume, although interesting and well-organized, would require considerable teaching talent to get across successfully." R. J. Conklin

Springf'd Republican p8 S 21 '43 330w

MOLENDYK, CLARA ADRIENE, and EDWARDS, BENJAMIN C., eds. Thus be it ever; a heritage of freedom. 474p $2 Harper

808.8 Liberty. Literature—Collections. World war, 1939- 42-22800

An anthology of prose and poetry on patriotism and democracy. Partial contents: Litany for dictatorships, by S. V. Benét; Address unknown, by Kressmann Taylor; Education for death, by Gregor Ziemer; The blood of the martyrs, by S. V. Benét; The fall of the city, by Archibald MacLeish; Fourteen points, by Woodrow Wilson; Four freedoms, by F. D. Roosevelt; A living affirmation of democracy, by Jacques Barzun; Funeral oration of Pericles, by Thucydides; A commando raid on Bardia, by Evelyn Waugh; Three men on a raft, by H. F. Dixon; The pilots of the R.A.F, by John Strachey; The Gettysburg address, by Abraham Lincoln; Oath of the young men of Athens; The voice of fighting Russia, by Hewlett Johnson; Czecho-Slovakia, by E. S. Millay; A letter from Holland, by Jakob; China emergent, by Madame Chiang Kai-shek; On resistance to tyranny, by Samuel Adams; A new birth of freedom, by Thomas Jefferson; How to win the peace, by Thomas Mann; Foundations of the peace, by H. A. Wallace.

Booklist 39:197 Ja 15 '43

Reviewed by M. P. Douglas
Library J 68:112 F 1 '43 180w

"For the teacher who recognizes the import of the wartime statement by the National Council and who is somewhat disturbed by the lag in teaching materials, Thus Be It Ever is a most welcome publication. . . [It] is by far the best anthology of its kind yet to come out of the war and deserves an enthusiastic reception by teachers of the social studies." Harry Bard

+ Social Educ 7:134 Mr '43 700w

Wis Lib Bul 39:39 Mr '43

MOLLOY, EDWARD, ed. Automatics in engineering production; covering Jones & Shipman, Brown & Sharpe, B.S.A., Acme-Gridley, Herbert, and conomatic machines designed for high-speed engineering production; comp. by a staff of tech. experts under the direction of [the editor]. 112p il $2.50 Chemical pub. co. [7s 6d Newnes]

621.9 Machine tools. Machinery, Automatic 43-3178

"Brief descriptions and operating directions for automatic screw machines and lathes manufactured by the companies mentioned in the title." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:28 Ap '43

MOLLOY, EDWARD, ed. Windows and window glazing. 108p il $2.50 Chemical pub. co.

721.84 Windows. Glass 43-2992

"Men in the building industry will find here a practical and fully illustrated discussion of such subjects as glass cutting, sash glazing, shop fronts, pressed and moulded glass, leaded lights, etc." N Y New Tech Bks

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:18 Ja '43

"For one who wants full information about their construction 'Windows and Window Glazing' offers a concise summary. Like so many books issued by its publishers, it is of British origin, now reprinted here. However, there would seem to be little essential difference between windows on the two sides of the Atlantic." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p25 Ap 11 '43 200w

MONAGHAN, FRANK. World war II; an illustrated history. v 1 558p maps $5; de luxe ed $7.50 J. G. Ferguson & associates, 122 S. Michigan av, Chicago

940.5497 World war, 1939—Pictorial works (43-13309)

"Designed as the first part of a project that will ultimately record in text and pictures the whole story of the war and the peace. . . Here the narrative is carried from the early post-armistice years, through the rise of the dictators, the break-down of the international system, the preliminary wars in China and Ethiopia and Spain, the great onslaught of the Axis upon civilization and the struggles that followed, down to the 'end of retreat' with the successful defense of Stalingrad and the landing in North Africa in the closing days of 1942. . . There is a chronology, an index and an atlas section." Weekly Book Review

"This book is not for reading straight through, but it is a valuable reference and a fine thing to have around, for its sobering effect as well as for the wealth of action pictures and information in it." A. C. Spectorsky

+ Book Week p3 D 19 '43 200w

"The photographs which stud nearly every page are carefully chosen from the enormous mass of material available; most of the great war pictures are here, and even the less familiar examples have their impact and vividness. Together they make the whole vast tragedy from its beginning live with an impressive actuality. A number of full color paintings of various battle scenes are also included; they are perhaps less successful, for the editors seem not to have had access to the best work of combat and front-line artists, but they lend decoration."

+ Weekly Book Review p10 Ja 16 '44 480w

MONAGHAN, FRANK, and LOWENTHAL, MARVIN. This was New York; the nation's capital in 1789. 308p il $2.75 Doubleday

917.471 New York (city)—Description. New York (city)—Social life and customs 43-7106

Chronicle of New York city in 1789, the year of George Washington's inauguration. Data on transportation, commerce, education, social life and customs, the law courts, the churches, all are recounted in a lively, anecdotal style. Index.

Booklist 39:386 Je 1 '43

Reviewed by B. L. Conway
Cath World 157:446 Jl '43 350w

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 29 '43 450w

Reviewed by R. H. Brown
Geog R 34:174 Ja '44 350w

"Excellent material skillfully handled. . . Recommended for small library purchase." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 68:326 Ap 15 '43 80w

Reviewed by Peter Oliver
+ — New Eng Q 16:679 D '43 480w

"Our guides are extremely well informed; they have the gift of imparting their knowledge in such a way as to make us enjoy their company as much as we appreciate their information; and we leave them in the certainty that we have learned much that cannot be learned elsewhere. We think they are wrong in saying there were no newsboys in New York in 1789. We have heard their cries in Philadelphia at least half a century earlier. Surely New York could not have been so far behind her Southern neighbor?" J. P. Boyd

+ N Y Times p4 My 9 '43 600w

"A lively chronicle."
+ New Yorker 19:76 My 1 '43 50w

"The erudite authors, Frank Monaghan and Marvin Lowenthal, describe, without patronizing, the late eighteenth century life of the city, and contrive to present a wealth of scholarly detail without being dull." Rodman Gilder
+ Sat R of Lit 26:14 Je 26 '43 650w

Reviewed by Helen Lowe
Springf'd Republican p7e Jl 18 '43 500w

"This completely delightful book is a number of things—all of them very good, very nice to read. It's a travel book about a fascinating place you'll never visit. It's a history of a sort, rambling and witty, and desirous of proving no special point. It's gossipy, charming, and malicious—which is all very well, since the people concerned have been dead these hundred years and more. What else it is, I can't quite say, for I've never read anything else quite like it. I wish more history was written this way, for here are all the many things histories usually omit." Howard Fast
+ Weekly Book Review p3 My 2 '43 1000w

MONDOLFO, LUCIO F. Metallography of aluminum alloys. 351p il $4.50 Wiley

669.7 Aluminum alloys 43-15083

"The book is intended for consultation by plant metallurgists and does not give details of general metallurgy and metallography. Subjects included: equilibrium diagrams, technique of macro- and micro-examination, a list of the constituents formed by alloying elements, normal structure of commercial alloys, and the effect of fabricating on the microstructure. References, arranged by subject, form the bibliography." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 40:109 D 1 '43

Reviewed by F. Keller
Chem & Eng N 22:136 Ja 25 '44 470w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 68:771 O 1 '43 30w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p14 F 6 '44 80w

MONRO, MARGARET THEODORA. Book of unlikely saints. 220p $2.50 (7s 6d) Longmans

922.2 Saints 43-16158

Collection of short biographical studies of five Roman Catholic saints: St Aloysius Gonzago, St Rose of Lime; St Benedict Joseph Labre, St Gemma Galgani, and St Thérèse of Lisieux. These have been selected because, "in various ways, their personalities and heroic virtues are believed not to fall within the conventional grove of canonized sanctity." (Christian Century)

Christian Century 60:1140 O 6 '43 190w
Commonweal 39:238 D 17 '43 130w

"A readable, sensible, incisive book dealing with five of the most complex and interesting characters in the long list of saints." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Times p30 N 7 '43 650w

"This is a little book with a resounding message."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p407 Ag 21 '43 60w

Reviewed by Clare Godfrey
Weekly Book Review p10 N 7 '43 600w

MONSARRAT, NICHOLAS. East coast corvette. 153p $1.50 Lippincott [pa 2s Cassell]

940.545 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English. World war, 1939—Naval operations 43-14232

Further "notes" by the author of H. M. Corvette now on convoy duty off England's east coast—Hitler's doorstep.

Reviewed by W. F. Morse
Book Week p3 O 17 '43 270w
Booklist 40:76 N 1 '43

"From random recollections and moving episodes, put together with casual good humor, a book of rare charm is constructed." E. E. Morison
+ N Y Times p6 O 24 '43 750w

"An ingratiating book—well written, seamanlike in detail, and touched with an imaginative intensity which is offset by some neat humor."
+ New Yorker 19:88 O 16 '43 70w

"A fine, sensitive, informative, and neatly humorous bit of work which is well worth the reading." P. R. Sevall
+ Sat R of Lit 26:11 N 20 '43 850w
Times [London] Lit Sup p484 O 9 '43 420w

" 'East Coast Corvette' is a quiet, simple book; its truth might be called deceptive. There are no heroics in it at all, and the incidents of battle and sudden death are never so dramatic as could easily be imagined by the fireside for purposes of fiction. One suspects that in his calm and humorous way the author is more interested in men, their sayings and reaction to the scene than in the mechanical business of warfare going on around him." Lincoln Colcord
+ Weekly Book Review p4 O 17 '43 1050w

MONSARRAT, NICHOLAS. H.M. corvette. 169p $1.75 Lippincott [pa 2s Cassell]

940.545 World war, 1939—Naval operations. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English 43-922

"This is the story of one man's meeting with hardship, danger, and death, with comradeship and heroism. It is also a story of the corvettes—the smallest of ocean-going men-of-war—and of the nightmarish winters of 1940 and 1941 when these bantam ships convoyed vital supplies to the harassed and threatened peoples of Britain." (School & Society) The author describes himself as an "ex-amateur yachtsman." He was commissioned in the Royal naval volunteer reserves after Dunkirk, and has served for over two years on convoy duty in the North Atlantic.

Booklist 39:250 F 15 '43

"Told with sensitivity and quiet humor, this small book from the first page strikes the reader as a genuine account of what is taking place on the face of the waters—the grim and terrible things that are happening beyond the horizon." Lincoln Colcord
+ Books p4 Ja 31 '43 1250w

"Having at present little opportunity for creative writing, Mr. Monsarrat has, fortunately, been able to expend his imaginative energy on his style, giving it a rich, rhythmical finish, with the feeling for great spaces and small details that has marked the best sea stories. The experience of patrolling, convoying merchantmen and chasing subs has been related many times during this war—but never with the excellence of 'H. M. Corvette.' "
+ New Repub 108:358 Mr 15 '43 150w

Reviewed by F. S. Adams
N Y Times p14 Ja 24 '43 500w

"Lieutenant Monsarrat is a capable observer and a sensitive writer. You may find his seamanlike detail somewhat of a relief after the lubberly language of most of the other recent sea books."
+ New Yorker 18:62 Ja 30 '43 80w

"It was all unutterably, unspeakably reppetitious and boresome, only enough of the new in over two years of war to make a book of less than 175 pages. . . In a literary sense the remarkable thing is that this boredom can be conveyed in a book which is never in itself boring. The monotony is all between the lines, along with a good many other things." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R of Lit 26:10 Ja 30 '43 700w
School & Society 57:56 Ja 9 '43 60w

"As Acting Medical Officer (unpaid), Monsarrat has seen more than his share of pain and of that conduct of men in pain which is one of war's few compensations. He is perhaps at his best in communicating the simple grandeur, purposefulness and comradeship of a great number of vessels spaced and moving upon constant danger. H. M. Corvette is a quick cleaning-up, obviously, of spasmodic, hurried jottings in a notebook. It promises England a fine writer, when more time is had for writing."

MONSARRAT, NICHOLAS—Continued

+ Time 41:88 F 22 '43 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p435 S 5 '42 650w

Wis Lib Bul 39:40 Mr '43

MONSCH, HELEN, and HARPER, MARGUERITE KAECHELE. Feeding babies and their families. 386p il $3.50 Wiley

649.3 Children—Nutrition. Nutrition 43-11537

"Matters of diet and nutrition for the family are discussed chronologically, presenting first general principles for the newly married couple, then prenatal food for the mother, and the feeding of children from birth through adulthood. A chapter on dietary needs of sick children also describes the illnesses so that they can be recognized. Textbook format with references at end of each chapter." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 40:41 O 1 '43

School & Society 58:80 Jl 31 '43 20w

MONSELL, HELEN ALBEE. In her own hands. 382p $2.50 Bobbs

43-14492

Susabeth Fenton was brought up in a time and place—Virginia in the years following the Civil war—when Nice Girls grew up to be Ladies for whom to work was a disgrace and to become an Old Maid was a tragedy. But Susabeth's first love affair went awry and a visit to the World's Fair set her off on a new path. In the end Susabeth didn't suffer the tragedy Aunt Lutie knew but she found a different happiness in life.

"Helen Monsell knows her Virginia people, tells a good story and gives women today a bit of the history of their mothers' efforts to become people." Charlotte Dean

+ N Y Times p28 O 24 '43 320w

"'In Her Own Hands' is somewhat tenuous and inclined to reiterate its points, but it is sympathetically written." George Conrad

Weekly Book Review p8 O 10 '43 450w

MONTAGU, MONTAGUE FRANCIS ASHLEY-. See Ashley-Montagu, M. F.

MONTGOMERY, HELEN (MRS JOHN JONES). Colonel's lady. 242p $2.50 Farrar

355.12 U.S.—Army—Military life 43-17506

The colonel's lady was originally from the Middlewest, and when she married her West Point lieutenant she was totally ignorant of the rules and regulations for army wives. While her husband, now Colonel Jones, is fighting in the present war, his lady describes with humor and insight, her experiences at army posts in America and in China, where her three children were born.

Booklist 40:178 Ja 15 '44

"It is a book that keeps a neat balance between the delightful and the desperate. . . But it also has frank analysis of the Army—by one who has lived in it and through much. The Colonel's Lady, hard as she may have tried, could not keep out her evaluation and suggestions. Their inclusion makes for the better book." Lucy Greenbaum

+ N Y Times p14 Ja 9 '44 600w

"A cheerful, pleasant, at times extremely humorous insight into a kind of life about which most Americans knew practically nothing, and which has probably disappeared forever." K. S. Rosin

+ Sat R of Lit 26:52 D 4 '43 430w

MONTGOMERY, RUTHERFORD GEORGE. Husky, co-pilot of the Pilgrim; il. by Jacob Landau. 271p $2 Holt

42-20565

"The adventures of Kent McIntosh, 'brush-hopper' flying freight in Alaska, and his struggle to keep his plane, Pilgrim, free of the claims of unscrupulous associates provide plenty of excitement for a story of which the dog Husky is really the hero. For boys, especially, although many girls will like it. Grades 5-10." Wis Lib Bul

"Fine Alaskan adventure tale." F. B. Sloan

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 S 9 '43 80w

Reviewed by H. L. Binsse

Commonweal 37:118 N 20 '42 10w

Wis Lib Bul 39:76 My '43

MONTGOMERY, RUTHERFORD GEORGE. Trappers' trail; il. by Harold Cressingham. 226p $2 Holt

43-16890

"Tale of Jed Brent's search for his brother who had gone into the Arkansas River [country] for beaver and had not come back. Jed's trek along the old Santa Fé trail into Alta California is rich in adventure." Cath World

Cath World 158:317 D '43 40w

"A picture of the old West, which should be popular with boys aged ten to fourteen." E. E. Frank

+ Library J 68:1052 D 15 '43 80w

MOODY, WILLIAM VAUGHN, and LOVETT, ROBERT MORSS. History of English literature; new and enl. ed. by Fred B. Millett. 554p $2 Scribner

820.9 English literature—History and criticism 43-8337

"A standard work, completely revised and brought down to 1940, with textual changes bringing it into line with modern scholarship and criticism. The bibliographies are revised and the book is reset." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 39:467 Jl 15 '43

Wis Lib Bul 39:106 Jl '43

MOON, BUCKLIN. Darker brother. 246p $2.50 Doubleday

43-51275

When Essie Mae's husband was killed in an accident, her brother, Rafe, invited her to leave her Florida home and bring her two children to live with him in Harlem. This is the story of their lives in the North, especially the experiences of the boy Ben, from his twelfth year until he enters the Army just before Pearl Harbor.

"The book has a far more telling and lasting impact than a dozen tales of horror. Bucklin Moon knows Negro life inside out. He is right in his attitude and outlook and sympathies not in a pedantic way and not in a mushy uplift way, but as an intelligent and knowledgable man who sees wrong and hypocrisy and persecution . . . being visited on his fellow men." A. C. Spectorsky

+ Book Week p1 S 19 '43 600w

Booklist 40:59 O 15 '43

"Mr. Moon has two special talents as a novelist. The first is the ability to create young people whose aims, motives and half articulate aspirations you believe. The second is a good ear. . . Yet, I think, the book, like an ambitious shortstop, tries to cover too much ground. The story of Rafe and the policy numbers could easily have been a novel in itself. Some of the action lays heavy tribute on my credulity. . . But for the rest it is a strong, live novel filled with speed and sincerity and good writing." Francis Downing

+ — Commonweal 39:46 O 29 '43 700w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling

Nation 157:454 O 16 '43 180w

Reviewed by Thomas Sancton

New Repub 109:463 O 4 '43 1200w

"The story is related in terms of the people who inhabit it. Consequently, it is, in spite of tragedies, a friendly drama with a manner of writing and a humor which are also in terms of its characters—not too strong and not too bitter, almost colloquial and always simple. The moral is clear to anyone who can 'read between the lines.' It takes a superior craftsman to write in this invisible ink, but Mr. Moon is that kind of craftsman." Rackham Holt

+ N Y Times p5 S 19 '43 650w

"A pitiful, unhappy story of white man's inhumanity to black, which, however, leaves unexplored the deeper issues involved."

+ — New Yorker 19:93 S 18 '43 140w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 26:24 O 2 '43 340w

Reviewed by Lee Varley

Springf'd Republican p7e O 10 '43 650w

"Mr. Moon writes quietly of episodes that are often painful, though less lurid than the actualities one has seen first hand in cities where the darker race lives among others but apart from them. Because those episodes here form a pattern in the lives of two ordinary, likable youngsters, they catch and kindle your imagination as the actuality may not have done. This is a thoughtful novel, with flashes of beauty as well as pain, not a diatribe." Mary Ross

+ Weekly Book Review p8 S 19 '43 700w

MOORE, HARRY F. S. Death at 7:10. 180p $2 Doubleday 43-14288

Detective story.

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bullock

Book Week p8 O 3 '43 110w

Booklist 40:95 N 15 '43

"Kent's method of procedure makes dull reading most of the time but the final scene is exciting and satisfactory." Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p10 S 5 '43 120w

"Plentiful color and well-tangled plot—but sleuth's flashback method has dubious points. Middlin'."

Sat R of Lit 26:20 S 11 '43 30w

MOORE, JUSTIN HARTLEY, and MIRA, JULIO A. Gist of mathematics. 726p $5.35; to schools $4 Prentice-Hall

510 Mathematics 42-18417

"Deals with the simple elementary concepts, or fundamental tools of the human mind, which are constantly needed by scientific workers. Accompanied by a pamphlet containing tables of square roots, cube roots, logarithms of numbers, trigonometric functions, and degrees and radians." N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 27:58 O '42

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p16 Ag 8 '43 120w

MOORE, LILLIAN E. Elementary avigation. 222p $1.60 Heath

629.1325 Navigation (aeronautics) 43-5711

"Many books have been written on aerial navigation or avigation, particularly in recent times. But none of them has been written from the viewpoint of the high school boy and girl. This book on Elementary Avigation is unique in that the subject is presented in such a way that the book can be used by a teacher of mathematics or physics who does not have a specialized knowledge of aviation. It provides a one-semester course which will prove to be of inestimable value in creating air-mindedness on the part of the youth of America. The work is divided into short chapters, each chapter being followed by a review test." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 40:74 N 1 '43

Library J 68:432 My 15 '43 30w

"[The author] a licensed ground instructor and school teacher of mathematics, has minutely divided the chapters on instruments, meteorology, contact flying, dead reckoning and radio and celestial navigation into ninety short lessons, concentrated doses of dogmatic brevity which require considerable concentration to answer the detailed, appended questions. Unlike Weems's [Air Navigation, Book Review Digest, Je '43], this book is not intended to make professional navigators but to introduce the subject to high school students who have had one or two years' mathematics." Theofore English

N Y Times p26 My 2 '43 650w

Reviewed by James Stokley

Weekly Book Review p22 Je 27 '43 100w

MOORE, RUTH. The weir. 342p $2.50 Morrow 43-2351

Comey's Island, a tiny dot of land off the Maine coast, was presided over, mainly, by two families: the Turners and the Comeys. The story is concerned with their fortunes, the struggle to earn a living, the feud between them, the move to the mainland, and the outcome of that change.

Booklist 39:293 Mr 15 '43

Bookmark 4:19 Mr '43

"With thorough knowledge of the people she writes about, Ruth Moore weaves a good story around the Turner family and their neighbors, the Comeys, in her first novel, 'The Weir.' She writes in language that captures the sound and heart of her characters and tells her tale with the restraint and the salty humor that is their own." Rose Feld

+ N Y Times p17 F 28 '43 700w

New Yorker 19:66 F 27 '43 50w

"'The Weir' is a very fine book. It will make a lot of people mad, including the summer visitors who like to see the island through a rosy haze. But Miss Moore ought not to care. She has done a magnificent job, honest and single-minded." E. M. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e F 28 '43 850w

"Miss Moore pits industry against craft, shiftlessness against pride, with particular emphasis on the Maine variations of these qualities. She also paints Good and Bad, the shallow person and the profound, with plenty of laughs and no nonsense. It would be a pleasure to read a sequel about the Turners and the Comeys now that war has changed the picture at Comey's Island." G. C. Smith

Weekly Book Review p10 Mr 14 '43 600w

MOORE, THOMAS. Sky is my witness. 135p $2 Putnam

940.548173 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Aerial operations 43-12979

A young American officer, a marine dive-bomber, relates his experiences and his thoughts while on duty on Midway and in the Solomons.

"This book is a smoothly turned fragment, with the deepest implications to be discovered in the unconscious omissions. . . If you can ignore or suppress your intellectual reaction to this book, you'll find it exciting and true to type—a fast-action, informative narrative of the new warfare." Sterling North

Book Week p3 S 5 '43 650w

Booklist 40:76 N 1 '43

Cath World 158:221 N '43 140w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

"Follows the now standard pattern of training-girl-battle-wound-homecoming, but a heart-warming and fast-moving tale nonetheless."

+ New Yorker 19:78 S 4 '43 60w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 26:9 S 25 '43 110w

"Captain Moore says he wrote his story to exorcise it from his own mind, like the Ancient Mariner who detained the wedding guest From the personal nature of the tale, this is quite credible. And as a record of a fighting man's cerebrations it is a sensitive and interesting work." R. B. Cochrane

+ Weekly Book Review p27 S 19 '43 250w

MOOREHEAD, ALAN. Don't blame the generals [Eng title: A year of battle]. 312p il maps $3.50 Harper [10s 6d Hamilton, H]

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English. World war, 1939—Africa, North. India—Politics and government 43-6084

From August, 1941, to August, 1942, the author, a correspondent of The London Daily Express, was stationed most of the time in North Africa, with the British 8th army. He was sent to Syria for a time, and reported the visit of the Cripps mission to India; but his main assignment was with General Auchinleck's troops. He describes the war, the British and German tank battles, and the failures of the British to defeat Rommel, and places the blame for the failure on lack of equipment rather than with the generals.

"The book is carefully yet vividly written." Ernest von Hartz
+ Book Week p3 Ap 18 '43 320w
Booklist 39:366 My 15 '43
Bookmark 4:13 My '43

"The most valuable portion of the book is the colorful record of the November-December, 1941, campaign when the Eighth Army, having set out to relieve the Tobruk garrison, was all but routed by Rommel's counter attack. . . . Moorehead is at his best, and it is an excellent best, as a reporter. His analysis of the why of military events is hampered by the title thesis he has set out to prove." Edmund Stevens
+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 29 '43 650w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:159 O '43 30w

"Good writing. Tank battles described are the best yet." J. C. Shipman
+ Library J 68:247 Mr 15 '43 70w

"Alan Moorehead has written an excellent book. His 'Don't Blame the Generals' is indispensable to a fuller understanding of the war in the Mediterranean and for that reason to a wider comprehension of the war as a whole. The book is remarkably free of pontification on strategy and tactics as it is devoid of carping against censorship. Alan Moorehead, with a better record for continuous coverage in the Middle East than most of us, knows his subject and he writes about it with a supple and readable style which will hold you from the first page to the last." Frank Gervasi
+ N Y Times p5 Ap 25 '43 1100w

"The chapters on India establish Moorehead not only as a good correspondent, but as a truly sensitive observer of human feelings and needs as well. This is reflected not only in the Indian interlude, but in lesser, more momentary fashion in his account of the desert battles. Alan Moorehead is known in London as a truthful and forthright reporter, one of the best that the British press has. It is to be hoped that his book is widely enough read to give him that reputation here too." P. R. Knauth
+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 My 15 '43 900w

"Mr. Moorehead is not one of those journalists who know the answer to every problem in politics and in war. Many things, from the political situation in India to the fall of Tobruk, still remain mysterious to him, and it is this modesty which makes his comments on the reasons for our success and failures all the more valuable." S. H. F. Johnston
+ Spec 170:480 My 21 '43 340w

"Mr. Moorehead and the other war correspondents in all that fighting were not seeing from behind and learning from behind. There were times when they were on the wrong side of the line, when they were in minefields and had to get out as best they could, when they were lost in the desert, and times without number when they were under fire. All those things are recorded soberly and quietly as part of the day's work of a modern war correspondent."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p208 My 1 '43 900w

"It is by far the best book on the desert war that I have seen (Russell Hill's account, covering part of the same period, is very good, but Moorehead adds a great deal to it); while it also supplies, a little unexpectedly, one of the most vivid pictures of the Cripps mission to India which has yet appeared. . . It is unfortunate that the publishers were unable to provide so good a book as this with better maps and battle diagrams—the few included are not worth much, though they help—or even with an index. And the proofreading is pretty bad, even by the low standards which now seem to rule. But there are some excellent photographs. And the book as a whole tells a great deal about the nature of modern war and generalship that is of the greatest value to us, now that our own men and our own generals are at last entering upon the great conflict in earnest." Walter Millis
+ — Weekly Book Review p7 Ap 25 '43 1600w
Wis Lib Bul 39:122 O '43

MOOREHEAD, ALAN. The end in Africa. 269p $2.75 Harper [10s 6d Hamilton, H.]

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, English. World war, 1939—Africa, North 43-16446

"Third volume of an Australian reporter's trilogy on the war in Africa. This one covers the final year, from the summer of 1942 to the German surrender at Cape Bon. It accents the Tunisian campaign, but there isn't much about the American part in it." New Yorker

Reviewed by Ernest von Hartz
Book Week p7 N 28 '43 470w
Booklist 40:143 D 15 '43

"Mr. Moorehead does not pretend to be an analyst. He sets out to do a job of straight reporting and he succeeds admirably. His prose is simple and direct; and because it is, his readers get the actual feel of the battle front." H. M.
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 D 27 '43 280w

Reviewed by E. A. Montague
Manchester Guardian p3 N 10 '43 100w

"The present war has given us three or four very able special correspondents with considerable gifts and resemblances in narrative style. . . But after reading Mr. Moorehead's account of the Tunisian campaign, I have no doubt that he is the most brilliant, the most imaginative, of the group. Not only has he a fine control of language, a constant curiosity that keeps him ferreting out the campaign every minute of his time, and a stimulating judgment, but he has a balanced sense of perspective. He knows how to relate small incidents to the whole." V. S. Pritchett
+ New Statesman & Nation 26:305 N 6 '43 900w

"Moorehead, who is one of the best writers among the correspondents, sees war as an enormous visual drama and conveys the feeling of it vividly and truly."
+ New Yorker 19:110 N 27 '43 70w

"From headquarters at Thibar, a village in a fertile Tunisian valley, the correspondent covered the end of the African campaign. Most of the fighting he records is an old story now, but he warms and freshens it with mellow writing. . . Mr. Moorehead's analysis of Montgomery's and Alexander's generalship is neat and pointed. . . [His] battle stories, from Kasserine Pass to Cape Bon are masterly. He surely is one of our best bookwriting correspondents." Frederick Gruin
+ Sat R of Lit 26:9 D 18 '43 750w

Reviewed by S. H. T. Johnston
Spec 171:510 N 26 '43 500w

"A book which helps greatly towards an intimate understanding of war personalities and events."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p544 N 13 '43 700w

MORAES, F. R., and STIMSON, ROBERT. Introduction to India; il. by C. H. G. Moorhouse. 176p maps $2 Oxford

915.4 India
43-51342

Succinct outline on India, written "to give the British and American troops now in India a quick and balanced survey of the country."

Subjects covered are: Indian climate and geography, social and religious customs, urban and village life, Indian industry, organization and achievements of the Indian fighting forces, and conditions in the native states. Includes a seventy-page section of classified information on India.

"The best feature of the book is a 70-page list of classified useful information. It is sure to be of help to any American visitor to India. There are several illustrations." Sudhindra Bose

+ Book Week p4 Ja 2 '44 200w

Booklist 40:144 D 15 '43

"'Introduction to India' is a small triumph. For the book's purpose is to put down the facts about India. The authors have done this with neatness, simplicity, unpretentiousness and a quality of naïve severity that does for India what Fowler did for English Usage." Harvey Breit

+ N Y Times p6 N 21 '43 320w

"Their account of the many aspects of contemporary Indian life is as objective as it is informative." K. L. Mitchell

+ Weekly Book Review p24 D 5 '43 250w

MORECOCK, EARLE M. Alternating-current circuits. (Rochester athenaeum and mechanics inst. Rochester tech. ser) 175p $2.75 Harper

621.3133 Electric circuits 42-51748

"This book, which is intended for readers already equipped with an elementary knowledge of electricity, treats of the theory of lumped circuits commonly associated with the utilization and transmission of electric energy. The operation of electric machines, such as motors, transformers, etc., is outside of the book's scope and is, therefore, omitted. The presentation of the material in the text is carried out at a level intermediate between that of the high school and the college. Only elementary algebra and trigonometry are employed in the development of the formulas used. The author apparently has the purpose of preparing his readers to become electrical technicians, in so far as the scope of his subject is concerned." (N Y Times) Index.

"This book should have value as a self-study text on electric circuits for high school graduates. It is now being used in a number of basic war training courses preparing students for a study of radio, telephony, microwaves, communications, and other phases of electrical engineering." J. E. Hobson

+ Book Week p8 Ap 11 '43 160w

"Considered as a whole, the book is one of the best ones on the subject, at this level, to come to the attention of this reviewer." F. E. Canavaciol

+ N Y Times p28 Je 6 '43 480w

MOREHOUSE, WARD. George M. Cohan; prince of the American theater. 240p il $3 Lippincott

B or 92 Cohan, George Michael 43-17743

Biography of "the greatest little guy in the world," Broadway's own George M. Cohan. Contains a chronology of important dates in the life of Cohan.

"Morehouse has packed his book with interesting facts, bright anecdotes, witty sallies and entertaining sidelights on Cohan's career. Nevertheless the book lacks organization, perspective and significance for the same reason that Cohan's work lacked depth. Both author and subject have been blinded by the bright lights of Broadway." Sterling North

+ — Book Week p2 D 19 '43 700w

Booklist 40:164 Ja 1 '44

"George M. Cohan's thousands of admirers are going to enjoy Ward Morehouse's biography of that amazing man. Mr. Morehouse, whose chores for the New York Sun brought him close to Cohan, is one of them himself. He has written affectionately of a friend. The book is as good as a new Cohan show and every reader has an aisle seat." Ray McPartlin

+ Boston Globe p19 D 15 '43 350w

Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 29 '44 360w

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt

Commonweal 39:331 Ja 14 '44 750w

"A fond and generally readable biography. It is subtitled, somewhat awkwardly, 'Prince of the American Theatre,' and it goes a long way toward avoiding the chief pitfall of the average theatrical biography. That pitfall is, of course, the danger that such a book will become merely a record—a succession of dates and plays and places." G. S. Kaufman

+ N Y Times p5 D 5 '43 700w

"The author has done a creditable job of rounding up the sources, and his portrait of Cohan, who was in a sense the precursor of William Saroyan as a dramatist, is at once a fairly understanding, slightly indulgent, and yet respectably critical appraisal."

+ New Yorker 19:98 D 18 '43 70w

"It is too soon to evaluate Cohan's position in the history of the American theatre, but when that time comes he will find himself among our greatest dramatists, song writers, and actors, if not at the very top. In the meanwhile the reading public will find Mr. Morehouse's first biography of this most versatile American genius enjoyable and informative." Manya Gordon

+ Sat R of Lit 26:6 D 25 '43 1550w

School & Society 58:480 D 18 '43 40w

"Mr. Morehouse has assembled the facts of Cohan's life and many of the legends, though one wishes he had included more of George's Irish repartee. But his book is too wistfully eulogistic. What is important about an artist is his art. In the long run, nothing else is important." W. P. Eaton

Weekly Book Review p6 Ja 2 '44 650w

MORELAND, WALLACE S., ed. Practical guide to successful farming; prepared by a staff of 36 agricultural experts and authorities; with a foreword by Robert C. Clothier. (Halcyon house publication) 1001p il $3.95 Blue ribbon bks.

630 Agriculture Agr43-142

An encyclopedic volume prepared by members of the staff of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station. "Part 1 treats in detail the problems of selecting a farm, and methods of financing its purchase. . . Part 2, concerned with the 'Fundamentals of Farming,' seeks to provide some understanding of soil conservation and improvement, seeds and seed testing, plant and animal nutrition, control of insects and other plant pests, prevention of animal diseases, livestock breeding, farm structures and equipment, and farm management. . . Part 3 deals with production and marketing. . . Part 4 is concerned with ways and means of conserving food produced on the farm, the growing of flowers, farmers' organizations and rural youth organizations. The book is well illustrated, extensive and selective bibliographies follow each chapter and an excellent glossary and index are provided." (Springf'd Republican)

"I have never before found so much practical, up-to-date information on farming in a single volume as is contained in this handsome new book. It is clearly written, well organized, and usefully illustrated." J. T. F.

+ Book Week p11 Je 27 '43 90w

Booklist 39:441 Jl 1 '43

Bookmark 4:8 My '43

+ Springf'd Republican p10 Je 4 '43 550w

MOREY, CHARLES RUFUS. Mediaeval art. 412p il pl $6.50 Norton

709.02 Art, Medieval 42-51542

"It is the purpose of this book to describe the evolution of style in sculpture and painting from antiquity to the Renaissance, showing the contribution which mediaeval art added to the antique inheritance and passed on to modern times. . . Fully illustrated with a comprehensive selection of photographic reproductions and with sketches in line throughout the text." Publisher's note

MOREY, C. R.—Continued

Booklist 39:249 F 15 '43

Reviewed by F. C. Petersen
Cath World 157:210 My '43 1050w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 60:637 My 26 '43 300w

"'Medieval Art' is abundantly illustrated with photographs and renderings of significant monuments and objects. The book is written with feeling and understanding. It is compact with information and will make a welcome and useful addition to any good art library." Dorothy Adlow
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 24 '43 650w

"Excellent and thoughtful treatment. . . No one interested in the field should miss it."
+ Commonweal 37:548 Mr 19 '43 20w

MORGAN, ALFRED POWELL. First principles of radio communications. 366p il $3 Appleton-Century

621.384 Radio. Electricity 43-7925

"A simplified and non-mathematical account. There is frequent use of analogy to explain the electrical circuits. From the basic principles on which radio depends it advances to the characteristics and the operation of the various parts of a radio set and the instruments used with it." (Weekly Book Review) Index.

"[This] is Alfred Morgan's sixth book on electricity for study at the elementary level. His books have a high reader interest. This one contains almost no mathematical theory." L. E. Grinter
Book Week p6 Jl 11 '43 30w

Booklist 39:459 Jl 15 '43

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:50 Jl '43

"A book for the elementary student cannot, of course, give a thorough knowledge of radio communications. However, Mr. Morgan writes plainly, simplifying technicalities and cutting through the esoteric language." George Barrett
+ N Y Times p42 S 26 '43 60w

"Radio listeners who are satisfied with turning dials for their favorite programs will find little to interest them in this book, but for inquiring minds seeking knowledge of the principles of transmission and reception of radio waves it is a valuable instructor and guide." J. W. C.
+ Springf'd Republican p6 Jl 22 '43 220w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p19 Jl 11 '43 80w

Wis Lib Bul 39:105 Jl '43

MORGAN, ARTHUR ERNEST. Small community; foundation of democratic life; what it is and how to achieve it. 312p $3 Harper

323.354 Community life. Villages. Sociology, Rural 42-24899

"The author's interest in the small community is based on his belief that the individual is not fully recognized in this era of big cities and massive events. He approaches the problems of the small community today with the good of the individual in mind. After examining the significance of the community he offers practical suggestions on community organization and specific interests. The program is designed for long-term planning with no mention of war problems. The book calls for thoughtful reading." (Booklist) Suggested readings. Index.

"The practical suggestions made by the author . . . should be very useful to civic clubs and community leaders. But it is regrettable that the author did not point out more clearly the changing aspects of community organization during a period when the government is accepting increasing responsibilities in the field of public welfare and is resorting more and more to centralized methods of control." J. F. Steiner
+ — Am J Soc 49:193 S '43 330w

"The book is popularly written and deserves a wide reading, particularly among rural sociologists." R. A. Polson
+ Am Soc R 8:241 Ap '43 270w

"This book is not a theoretical treatment of the community; rather it is primarily a handbook for the study of a community, and is to be used by community planners. At times, Morgan, in spite of his technical training, presents unsubstantiated evaluations of community life. However, the book is interesting and well worth reading." D. G. Marshall
+ Ann Am Acad 227:197 My '43 480w

Booklist 39:193 Ja 15 '43

"The publication of this book could not have been better timed. It comes from the press when the small community is being depleted and interest is being deflected to the so-called great issues of the day. Would that all people would read it and act. It is a book for laymen, written by a layman. It can be read with great profit by teachers, doctors, lawyers, business men, tax collectors, mayors, preachers and all others who exercise leadership in community life. It will help to pull bogged-down communities out of the mud, and lead them on the way to the 'blessed community.'" Mark Rich
+ Christian Century 60:135 F 3 '43 700w

Reviewed by Phil Stong
Sat R of Lit 25:17 D 26 '42 700w

Reviewed by L. A. Cook
Social Educ 7:93 F '43 370w

"It is a commendable piece of work in terms of social philosophy and in its inclusion of pertinent literature. . . It is an if-and-ought book, not a textbook in the usual sense but good collateral reading." L. M. Brooks
+ Social Forces 21:367 Mr '43 240w

Wis Lib Bul 39:25 F '43

MORGAN, DALE L. The Humboldt; highroad of the West; il. by Arnold Blanch. (Rivers of America) 374p $2.50 Farrar

917.93 Humboldt river. Nevada 43-7564

History and some folklore of Nevada thru which the Humboldt river flows. Contains stories of the Donner party, frontier justice, the fur traders, the Mormons, Comstock lode, the Pony express, etc. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by August Derleth
Book Week p4 Je 20 '43 400w

Booklist 39:443 Jl 1 '43

Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 16 '43 400w

"Interesting map as frontispiece. Good bibliography. Recommended for public and high school libraries." E. S. Brown
+ Library J 68:474 Je 1 '43 70w

"Nevada is a fascinating State, just as this addition to its history, 'The Humboldt,' is a fascinating book. Most Americans hurrying across Nevada by train or automobile think of it as a huge, God-forsaken stretch of sagebrush or desert. But it isn't, it's merely mysterious, and large, and hidden, and self-contained, and, like the Humboldt, doesn't care whether you like it or not." Struthers Burt
+ N Y Times p6 Je 20 '43 1050w

"Good, hard-bitten prose, though the connection between the river and the events the author describes is sometimes a little far-fetched."
+ — New Yorker 19:79 Je 12 '43 70w

"This volume is well written, carefully documented, solidly based on research and personal investigation. If there are better volumes in the Rivers of America Series (and I have not seen them yet) they will have to be very good indeed." Wallace Stegner
+ Sat R of Lit 26:25 Je 19 '43 380w

Reviewed by Stewart Holbrook
Weekly Book Review p4 Jl 4 '43 1300w

MORGAN, EDWARD VICTOR. Theory and practice of central banking, 1797-1913. 252p $3.50 Macmillan [15s Cambridge]

332.1 Banks and banking—Great Britain [A43-2008]

"The title of this book by raising false hopes may cause some disappointment to general readers. This is not a history of central banking in the various nations from 1797 to 1913, or even a full-bodied history of the Bank of England. Specifically, it is a study of the operations of the Bank in respect to the London money market and of banking and currency theories bearing upon these operations." Am Hist R

Reviewed by T. C. Cochran
Am Hist R 49:98 O '43 400w

"This is an able and concise examination of a most important subject. A great deal of ground is covered with keen discernment, objectivity and a lack of verbiage strikingly uncommon in the writings of economists. It is a pity that Mr. Morgan stops at the year 1913, because it is since that date that the process of history has cleared the ground most thoroughly of much obsolete and inadequate theory, which still, however, clutters the minds of many bankers and financial experts."
+ — Spec 170:302 Mr 26 '43 100w

"Mr. Morgan has done his work well. Possibly he unduly depreciates the work of Ricardo and does not allow sufficiently for difficulties both of theorists and practical bankers in times of rapid change. He has, however, brought together much useful matter in a clear and readable narrative, showing well the work of the Bank of England and its setting in the London money market."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p405 Ag 21 '43 420w

MORGAN, EDWIN. Flower of evil. 179p $2.50 Sheed

B or 92 Baudelaire, Charles Pierre 43-15408

Short critical biography of the French critic and poet, Charles Baudelaire. The title was suggested by Baudelaire's famous book Les Fleurs du Mal. Bibliography.

Reviewed by Albert Durant
Book Week p6 Ja 9 '44 330w

"It is a tragic story and one scarcely for the immature. Nor has it yet had its perfect telling." Katherine Brégy
Cath World 158:409 Ja '44 260w

"This review would be completely misread if it were taken as attacking Mr. Morgan's brief and excellent life of Baudelaire. It is only that this matter of conversion arises in Mr. Morgan's mind and gives an accomplished finality and form to the great poet's life. It seems to us that one has to be on guard. Apart, then from this question, Mr. Morgan situates Baudelaire excellently in his times."
+ — Commonweal 39:74 N 5 '43 750w
New Repub 109:753 N 29 '43 210w

Reviewed by Cyril Clemens
Springf'd Republican p6 D 27 '43 700w

MORGAN, JOHN DAVID. Principles of ignition; a description of the main facts and theories relating to the ignition of inflammable gas mixtures by sparks, flames, incandescent solids, and other sources. 136p $4 Pitman

621.431 Gas and oil engines—Ignition devices A43-1232

"Definitely for the specialist in internal-combustion engines and for those concerned with the prevention of explosions in mines and factories. It describes simply and briefly the principal facts relating to the ignition of inflammable-gas mixtures by sparks, flames, incandescent solid particles, and other localized sources. Here we have, in compact form, the more important results obtained throughout the past twenty years by a large number of investigators; the early pioneer work, now definitely superseded, is not included." (N Y Times) Name index. Subject index.

N Y New Tech Bks 28:26 Ap '43

Reviewed by L. S. Marks
N Y Times p16 Jl 25 '43 180w

MORIN, RELMAN. Circuit of conquest. 361p $3 Knopf

950 Eastern question (Far East). World war, 1939—East (Far East) 43-6005

At the end of three years service in Japan the author, an American journalist, moved southward in December, 1940, to see what was going on in Indo-China, Java and the Philippines. He was caught in Indo-China in December, 1941, interned for several months, and finally returned to America. His book contains a mixture of personal anecdote and serious observations on the role of the West in the Far East.

"With a reporter's eye for detail and a fast-moving style of writing, Morin tells the story of the last days of white supremacy in the Far East. The 'Singapore mentality,' the lack of a political basis for native resistance, the 'exploitation' of these rich possessions—all are described vividly and convincingly by the writer. Strangely enough, however, when he was maltreated by some Thai soldiers his own reaction appears to have been exactly that of a British planter. No 'sahib' or 'taipan' could have been more furious at 'native inefficiency' than Morin was at the government officials in Thailand. Nevertheless, 'Circuit of Conquest' gives an excellent picture of what was going on in the Far East during the year before the Japs embarked on their 'southern expansion' program." F. S. Marquardt
+ — Book Week p3 Je 20 '43 350w
Booklist 39:423 Je 15 '43

Reviewed by J. R. Lewis
Current Hist 4:339 Jl '43 1000w

"Historical background, native customs and philosophies, national politics and diverse personalities are high lighted by facile style, keen judgment, and honest humor. Recommended." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 68:429 My 15 '43 110w

"This is not a war book, but its swift-moving account of the game of diplomacy and threats that Japan played before actually unsheathing the sword is far more exciting than many a war tale." Clark Lee
+ N Y Times p4 My 30 '43 950w

Reviewed by Hugh Byas
Sat R of Lit 26:14 My 29 '43 550w

Reviewed by Frederick Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p8 Jl 1 '43 650w

"In Mr. Morin's description of each situation you feel his urge to tell the truth, however unpalatable it may be. The things which happened to him personally and to the Orientals, Americans and Europeans about him are excitingly pictured. He talked with the leaders in each country, both native and Occidental." John Goette
+ Weekly Book Review p14 Jl 11 '43 1650w

MORISON, SAMUEL ELIOT, and COMMAGER, HENRY STEELE. Growth of the American republic. 3d ed rev & enl 2v il $10; college ed ea $3.50 Oxford

973 U.S.—History 42-24887

"The Growth of the American Republic appeared in 1930 as a single volume, beginning the story in 1763 and terminating it in 1917. In 1936-7 we rewrote the entire book, greatly enlarging the period since the Civil War, and carrying the story down to the second inauguration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt. . . In this, the third edition, we have extended the story backward to the origin of man in America and forward to cover America's entry into the Second World War; being neither geologists nor prophets we can go no further. The new survey of the colonial period has made it possible to eliminate some of the descriptive matter in Volume I, so that the third edition is not substantially longer than the second. Otherwise the text has been revised only where fresh researches have convinced us that we were incorrect." (Pref) Bibliography. Index. For earlier editions see Book Review Digest, 1930, 1931, 1937.

MORISON, S. E.—Continued

"The new chapters should increase the serviceability of the texts. The brief account of the colonial period shows excellent discrimination in the selection of subject matter; it is vividly presented and enlivened by frequent flashes of humor. One catches something of the atmosphere of the time, and the leaders and their people come alive." A. H. Meneely

+ Social Educ 7:182 Ap '43 550w

"The reviewer found especially interesting the analysis and interpretation of the New Deal. The authors were able to do this with a sympathetic objectivity, seeing in it the reasons for its being and the things attempted and accomplished, yet retaining a critical attitude toward its limitations and failures. The success with which they do this is a strong testimony to their intellectual integrity and scholarship. . . Both volumes are rich with maps, large, well-drawn, vividly graphic. Each volume is carefully and thoroughly indexed, and although there is little, if any, cross-referencing in the body of the text itself, the care with which the index has been prepared offsets this." R. H. McFeely

+ Social Studies 34:190 Ap '43 1300w

MORRILL, JOHN HENRY, and MARTIN, W. THORNTON. South from Corregidor [maps by Frank Lieberman]. 252p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

940.542 World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American. World war, 1939—Philippine Islands 43-51082

After the fall of Corregidor Lieutenant Commander Morrill of the mine sweeper Quail, and seventeen of his men swam out to a Diesel launch anchored in the harbor and started on their perilous journey. Thirty-one days later, having run the gauntlet all the way, thru Japanese mined waters, the little boat landed in Australia. The story of the fighting on Corregidor, and the odyssey of the little vessel is described in this book.

"A spicy, racy narrative." F. S. Marquardt

+ Book Week p4 Ap 11 '43 200w

Booklist 39:330 Ap 15 '43

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Ap '43

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:159 O '43 20w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield

Nation 156:530 Ap 10 '43 240w

"This is not only one of the best of the war books, it is a record of cooperative courage achieved by a group of men in a manner wholly American. . . The story of the Battle of the Philippines will be made up of many accounts, of which this book will be among the most dramatic. It is not the last chapter. That will be told when our captured companions are released from the Japanese concentration camps. But until that day of accounting, 'South From Corregidor' will serve as the final authoritative word." C. P. Romulo

+ N Y Times p3 Ap 4 '43 1100w

"Their story is a honey on every count. Well told in general; the narrative method might, though, have been simpler."

+ New Yorker 19:71 Mr 27 '43 110w

"Part of the book has appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. Yet, even those who have read the articles should not miss this moving compound of Odyssey, 'Robinson Crusoe,' and vital American history. And when the Council on War Books meets again to pick its next 'Imperative,' it would do well to consider this readable, dramatic, and inspiring book." Mark Gayn

+ Sat R of Lit 26:40 Ap 17 '43 750w

Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 4 '43 380w

"This is a well-told, exciting and authentic story of the last days of Corregidor." Clark Lee

+ Weekly Book Review p5 Ap 4 '43 550w

MORRIS, CLYDE TUCKER, and CARPENTER, SAMUEL T. Structural frameworks. 272p il $4 Wiley

624.17 Structures, Theory of. Strains and stresses 43-12992

"For advanced students and engineers. Deals with complex problems in framework and building design. Chapter headings: Loads; Fireproof floors; Beams and girders; Deflections; Columns; Rigid frames under vertical loading; Wind bracing; Asymmetry; Radio and transmission towers; Industrial buildings; Welded design; Column bases and foundations." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Library J 68:670 S 1 '43 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:40 Jl '43

MORRIS, EDITA. My darling from the lions. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 295p $2.50 Little 43-8185

Novel of life in Sweden, as portrayed in the diaries of two sisters, Anna and Jezza, living on a remote Swedish estate. The first section of the book contains the girls' diaries when they were children of about twelve, and missed no atom of the lives of their various aunts, uncles, and charming grandmother. The second section describes the girls' own lives when they had grown up, and Jezza had gone out in the world to experiment with love, and Anna stayed quietly at home.

"Always interesting, sometimes strangely beautiful, rich in meaning and human appeal, but disappointingly shallow in some places." Patricia Smith

+ Book Week p5 Jl 25 '43 360w

Booklist 39:426 Je 15 '43

"Mrs. Morris is one of those oh-the-aching-wonder-of-it-all literary women for whom a snowflake or a sausage is equal matter for ecstasy. Yet whatever my dislike of so much preciosity, I have to admit Mrs. Morris's talent. Cumulatively, her sensibility loses some of its exacerbation and even begins to take effect; after the first hundred pages I found myself acutely aware of the charm of her village in northern Sweden, almost as nostalgic for it as if I had experienced it myself. And it is certainly no denigration of Mrs. Morris's gifts to say that she frequently invites comparison with better writers than herself: for example, her gallery of decayed gentlewomen—Anna and Jezza's aunts—is suggestive of Chekhov, and the spiritual stature which she can give to the life of privacy suggests Isak Dinesen." Diana Trilling

+ — Nation 156:842 Je 12 '43 240w

"Except for some descriptions of nature, Edita Morris, though Swedish-born, does not make Sweden recognizable. Her English is perhaps partly to blame, it is often either too bookish or too colloquial. Her aristocratic Swedes especially sound unconvincing when they call each other 'hellion' or 'nitwit' or 'poor mutt,' or when they find things 'cute' or call each other 'darling' without any provocation. These dissonances would not matter if the characters did not verge on caricature, or if there were a compelling story; but the novel obviously is meant to charm more by coquettish manner than by matter. As the Queen said to Polonius: 'More matter, with less art!'" Signe Toksvig

N Y Times p7 Je 6 '43 600w

"The children's diaries manage to convey much of the excitement of the strange northern country and to make the cracked-brain household interesting if not convincing. When the girls grow up and take lovers, the diaries slump into sophomoric tedium."

+ — New Yorker 19:85 Je 5 '43 90w

"Mrs. Morris's second book is in many ways an admirable and entrancing novel; indeed it is so interesting and so admirably constructed, so glamorous with the magic of background and words, that you finish it with mounting interest before you are able to isolate just what there is about it that, to this reader at least, is out of focus. . . I trust that Mrs. Morris will forgive me for finding any fault at all with her enchanting book. . . Feeling as Mrs. Morris does about winds and waters and mountains and forests, and the sea, and old and twisted streets, I wish that she would find some place in her cosmogony for men and women." Struthers Burt

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:12 Je 19 '43 1400w

"Apart from its story and masterly characterization of children, the book is notable for its description of Scandinavian rural life. Under Mrs. Morris's skilled writing the panorama of seasons, of festivals, of country routines unfold with fluid grace." Rose Feld

+ Weekly Book Review p4 My 30 '43 900w

Wis Lib Bul 39:110 Jl '43

MORRIS, FRANK DANIEL. Pick out the biggest. 132p il $2 Houghton

940.545 World war, 1939—Naval operations. Moran, Edward Joseph. Boise (cruiser) 43-14389

"Frank D. Morris, a seagoing correspondent, with a vast knowledge of his subject, has made a valuable contribution to the literature of fighting ships with his story of Mike Moran and the men of the Boise. The Boise, a 10,000-ton light cruiser, was the heroine of one of the series of brilliant naval engagements fought in the waters of the Solomons last fall." N Y Times

"The story is told in slick, easy-to-read and fast moving journalese—at its best." A. C. Spectorsky

+ Book Week p2 Ag 15 '43 130w

Booklist 40:57 O 15 '43

"With faithful detail, Mr. Morris tells this great story of the Boise. He transports you to the deck of his warship; he gives you a taste of how men act and feel in battle. And his story rekindles your pride in the knowledge that it is your country that has such ships as the Boise and her sisters, out there in the Pacific dealing destruction and defeat." Sidney Shalett

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 15 '43 800w

New Yorker 19:71 Ag 14 '43 70w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 26:9 S 25 '43 270w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 5 '43 850w

"The saga of the Boise was waiting to be written. Now Mr. Morris has done it, basing his lively story on information gathered first hand from those who served aboard the ship in her half-hour of blazing glory. He has, moreover, ventured to tell much of it in the rapid and informal Navy vernacular, with perhaps a minimum of lapses for a landlubber." R. F. Armknecht

+ Weekly Book Review p3 Ag 15 '43 800w

MORRIS, HILDA. Tuckers tune in. 312p $2.50 Putnam
43-9414

In the guise of a novel based on the life of an American family living in a small New York town, the author traces the effect of radio on American mores from 1924 to the present. The Tuckers began their radio listening on an old crystal set; thruout the years their financial status, and that of their neighbors, was measured by the style of radio they owned.

"The idea is in its treatment perhaps too farcical for truth and too truthful for farce. That the book succeeds in entertaining is the result rather of the page-to-page small episodes and comments than of any striking treatment of the proposition itself. These episodes, depending for their interest upon typicality, too frequently make the descent from the familiar to the threadbare. . . It is a theme so frequently worked before and since the publication of 'Main Street,' that only skillful renovation can justify its continued use. And yet, in contrast, there are a number of very skillful, fresh little vignettes. In a word, this is a book which does not quite make recent history live, but manages to be fine light entertainment." Maurice Bauden, Jr.

+ — Book Week p8 Jl 18 '43 450w

Booklist 39:464 Jl 15 '43

"Personally, I think it is a rather rosy picture which Hilda Morris paints, but if one cannot quite share her estimate of the benefits of radio, at least she is aware of its humorous deficiencies, and her Tuckers are nice, pleasant, homely folk." E. H. Walton

N Y Times p12 Je 27 '43 340w

"The Tuckers and their neighbors are pleasant folks to know, and Miss Morris writes about them with humor and affection." Lisle Bell

+ Weekly Book Review p17 Jl 11 '43 350w

MORRIS, LLOYD R. Threshold in the sun. 275p $2.75 Harper

B or 92 43-12060

An autobiography told in the third person. The author was born in the early 1890's in a respectable middle-class, well-to-do New York family, and educated at Columbia university. He has spent much of his life abroad where he has known many of the celebrities in the worlds of art and literature.

"A real contribution to American letters, 'A Threshold in the Sun' is smooth, penetrating and highly enjoyable. A nostalgia for grander, easier, better days will grip you as you read it." Edith Roberts

+ Book Week p6 Ag 29 '43 500w

Booklist 40:93 N 15 '43

"Book is slowly paced, making leisurely reading. Accounts of the author's wide acquaintance with personalities as diverse as Yvette Guilbert and George Santayana accent the otherwise gently reminiscent tone of the narrative." H. S. Taylor

Library J 68:623 Ag '43 70w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries

New Repub 109:594 O 25 '43 420w

"Humanity and insight are, indeed, the dominant notes of this delightful book. Mr. Morris does not judge; he comprehends. Yet some of the best criticism of our time is in these pages. (The section on Sinclair Lewis, for example, almost obviates the necessity for further study.) And it is not only because he writes in the third person that his autobiography sometimes recalls 'The Education of Henry Adams.' " Edward Wagenknecht

+ N Y Times p10 Ag 22 '43 500w

"In mood, and approach, this is almost a sequel to Henry Adams: the autobiography of an American mind from the eighteen-nineties to the nineteen-forties. It lacks, in the main, Adams' sense of the whole, and the after-the-first-World-War chapters add up to little more than expatriate nostalgia. A good two-thirds of the book, however, comes close to being first-rate."

+ — New Yorker 19:67 Ag 21 '43 110w

" 'A Threshold in the Sun,' is a book of parts, the product of a distinguished mind and of rich sensibilities. In closing it one remembers with relish and satisfaction the warmth, the humor, and especially the unswerving search for truth and light of a personality both responsive and responsible." Melville Cane

+ Sat R of Lit 26:8 S 11 '43 1050w

Theatre Arts 27:692 N '43 550w

Reviewed by William Soskin

Weekly Book Review p2 S 5 '43 1050w

MORRISON, LACEY HARVEY. Diesel engines. See Diesel publications

MORROW, ELIZABETH REEVE (CUTTER) (MRS DWIGHT WHITNEY MORROW). My favorite age; il. by Susanne Suba. 220p $2 Macmillan 43-16943

Collection of eight short stories about the doings of a fine American family, the Tuckers. The favorite age is nine years old, but in these true stories the other children in the family are just as important as the heroine. Some of the stories have been published as little books: A Pint of Judgment; The Rabbit's Nest; and Shannon.

MORROW, E. R.—Continued

"There is integrity, depth of understanding, kindliness and delicious humor in Mrs. Morrow's story. It is a book which might well serve as an 'Ambassador book,' one of those important books now being sent abroad to represent us and interpret us to our allies, for this little book gives a true picture of American family life." H. A. Masten
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 D 13 '43 180w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 19:423 N '43 40w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 20:38 Ja '44 70w

"Girls of ten and over will enjoy it, but it will make especially good reading aloud for the family." A. M. Anderson
+ Library J 68:1050 D 15 '43 90w
N Y Times p16 Ja 23 '44 140w

"The delightful format and illustrations make this gay little family history one that wise grandmothers, aunts and other benefactors of small fry will choose for Christmas." E. M. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p7e N 28 '43 140w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
Weekly Book Review p8 N 21 '43 380w
Wis Lib Bul 40:12 Ja '44

MORSE, FLORENCE VORPE. Black eagles are flying. 212p $2 Doubleday
43-11853

Detective story.

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p10 Ag 1 '43 130w

"Agreeable."
Sat R of Lit 26:21 Ag 14 '43 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
Weekly Book Review p10 Ag 8 '43 340w

MORTON, GRACE MARGARET. Arts of costume and personal appearance. 400p il $4.50 Wiley 646.01 Clothing and dress. Beauty, Personal 43-7653

Textbook for college students which will be found useful for the general reader as well. It is a study of the essentials of good design in dress, with individual applications. Design, color combinations, and correct selection of clothes for differing types are considered. Has a chapter on wardrobe building and six specimen wardrobes. Each chapter has a list of exercises. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 39:441 Jl 1 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '43

"This book written primarily for home economics students will also be helpful to women's clubs and to homemakers. It is a 'must' for anyone interested in clothes from the merchandising and commercial designing angles as well as from the standpoint of personal dress. It has been especially well organized and possesses clarity and charm in method of presentation. The illustrations are classical in nature, which means that this book will have permanent appeal." Marian Juaire
+ J Home Econ 36:39 Ja '44 170w

"Few books hold so much of interest on the basic principles of looking well and dressing well and on their application to design, construction and uses of today; it would be hard to find an essential omission in its treatment of these subjects. . . Exercises go with each chapter, as this is primarily a textbook; they are stimulating for a woman working in any of these fields who wishes to study at home."
+ Weekly Book Review p20 Je 6 '43 330w

MORTON, HENRY CANOVA VOLLAM. Atlantic meeting. 196p $2.50 Dodd [6s Methuen]
940.531 Atlantic declaration, August 14, 1941. Churchill, Winston Leonard Spencer. Roosevelt, Franklin Delano 43-7402

One of the few journalists who accompanied Winston Churchill to the Atlantic meeting, gives an account of that history-making event as it appeared to him, from the day he was summoned from his home by Brendan Bracken and told of a secret mission, to the return to England. Index.

Reviewed by D. A. Costine
Book Week p5 Je 13 '43 360w
Booklist 39:423 Je 15 '43
Christian Science Monitor p10 Ag 14 '43 90w

"With the same quiet humor and observant eye that have made his travel books so popular, H. V. Morton has pictured the setting of one of the history-making episodes of the war. The result is a book that is absorbingly interesting." F. S. Adams
+ N Y Times p16 My 23 '43 700w
Spec 170:346 Ap 9 '43 90w
Springf'd Republican p7e My 23 '43 440w

"Mr. Morton has the right gift for this kind of narrative; for with his fine noting of detail, his clear impression of Mr. Churchill's personality, and his description of life on board, and the well-chosen photographs making everything still more vivid, there is also the movement of a romance of adventure like John Buchan's. As he is aware, to start on a journey, destination unknown, with secrecy instead of information to guide conjectures, is exactly the right beginning; and the story keeps its freshness to the end."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p179 Ap 10 '43 210w

"A most entertaining account." Beach Conger
+ Weekly Book Review p17 My 30 '43 950w

MORTON, HENRY CANOVA VOLLAM. I saw two Englands. 324p il $3 Dodd [9s 6d Methuen]
914.2 England—Description and travel
43-3430

Describes two journeys thru England; one ending in July, 1939, when England was still a land of peace; the other in the autumn of the same year, after the first few months of the war. On the first trip he visited old castles, churches, manor houses, and villages, reviewing English history by the way. The second journey had to be arranged by permit, and includes trips to munitions factories, large business headquarters which had to move into the country, a prison camp, a contraband base, and a Royal air force flying school. Index.

"I simply cannot imagine any armchair journey more delightful than one with H. V. Morton. And that is doubly true today when nine out of ten books are fairly bursting their covers with sensationalism. To wander leisurely with such a cicerone—one who knows his England so thoroughly and loves her so well . . . is a temporary escape, a legitimate and charming surcease to be enthusiastically recommended." Edith Roberts
+ Book Week p5 Ap 11 '43 600w
Bookmark 4:16 My '43

Reviewed by Harold Hobson
Christian Science Monitor p11 Mr 27 '43 70w

"Charming book. Highly recommended." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 68:171 F 15 '43 70w

Reviewed by Cecil Roberts
N Y Times p7 Mr 21 '43 1100w

Reviewed by R. E. Roberts
Sat R of Lit 26:22 My 1 '43 700w

"Mr. Morton is a practised observer and all this is very interesting."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p524 O 24 '42 300w

"Large as the following is of those who attend Mr. Morton on his travels, and often as these have taken him about the British Isles, the present volume is likely not only to be read with eagerness by those who have read him before, but to form his introduction, to many Americans, of a travel-author with a style and method all his own."
+ Weekly Book Review p12 Mr 14 '43 500w

MORTON, RICHARD ALAN. Application of absorption spectra to the study of vitamins, hormones and coenzymes. 2d ed 226p il $6.50 Jarrell-Ash co, 165 Newbury st, Boston [28s Hilger]

612.0151 Vitamins. Hormones. Absorption spectra A43-1756

"Rewritten and enlarged since the first edition in 1935, the present work considers, in addition to the major vitamins, such related matters as steroids, purine and pyrimidine derivatives, proteins, and enzymes." N Y New Tech Bks

"Even a casual inspection of this new edition of Dr. Morton's monograph illustrates very clearly the growing importance of ultraviolet spectrophotometry as a tool in organic and biochemical research. Those who are familiar with both editions of this book will appreciate that, unlike some second editions, this is not a reissue of the earlier text with a few modifications; it is an entirely new book, much longer and much more comprehensive in content. Indeed, one might ask why Dr. Morton and his publishers have chosen to associate this book so closely with the small booklet which they produced several years ago. The owner of an earlier edition of a book is reluctant to purchase a later edition of the same text, but no individual or library would be justified in overlooking this book merely on the grounds of possessing the earlier edition." R. N. Jones
+ Am Chem Soc J 65:997 My '43 650w

"Minor criticisms might be made, but these are of little importance. Both author and publisher should be congratulated on producing an excellent work under what must have been difficult conditions." H. L. Andrews
+ Chem & Eng N 21:446 Mr 25 '43 270w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:18 Ja '43

MOSSNER, ERNEST CAMPBELL. The forgotten Hume; le bon David. 251p il $3 Columbia univ. press

B or 92 Hume, David 43-1705

In this "intimate biography" the author treats not the philosopher and historian, but the nearly "forgotten" man, his personality and character and his relations with his friends and contemporaries. Critical bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. S. Reid
Am Hist R 49:146 O '43 300w

Am Soc R 8:497 Ag '43 100w

"'The Forgotten Hume' is a book by a scholar for scholars, but because of the charm of its subject it is one that people with only moderate scholarly inclinations will enjoy." S. I. Hayakawa
+ Book Week p3 Ap 4 '43 850w

Canadian Forum 23:118 Ag '43 430w

"To subsequent generations Hume has become a shadowy figure. Mr. Mossner takes for granted the necessary minimum of acquaintance with his philosophy and portrays the character and personality of the man in an even more lively portrait than the one in oil by Allan Ramsey in the Scottish National Gallery." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 60:200 F 17 '43 1250w

"A book that belongs to the fireside, where, of an evening, after striving with this age of savagery, one can regain poise and, indeed, faith." J. C. Scammell
+ Crozer Q 20:173 Ap '43 250w

Reviewed by Marjorie Grene
Ethics 54:70 O '43 330w

J Philos 40:278 My 13 '43 500w

"It is perhaps too much to expect that in a short study of Hume we should be given an inquiry into eighteenth-century Scottish culture that would remedy the defects of existing studies of that subject. On the other hand, Mr. Mossner has set out to present us with the forgotten Hume, and the suggestion is that he is remedying the defects of existing portraits. As far as Hume's character goes, Mossner's portrait is the traditional one. . . The most original part of the work is the study of Hume as a patron of Scottish letters and as a Scottish antithesis of Dr. Johnson. Mr. Mossner, following the lines laid down by the comprehensive and sympathetic work of Harold William Thompson, oversimplifies many of the issues, just as Mr. Thompson, illuminating and indispensable though his work is, so often did." David Daiches
Mod Philol 41:123 N '43 2850w

Reviewed by F. D. Bond
Sat R of Lit 26:9 Jl 17 '43 750w

Springf'd Republican p7e Mr 21 '43 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p354 Jl 24 '43 2200w

MOTHERWELL, HIRAM. Peace we fight for. 281p $3 Harper

940.53144 Reconstruction (1939-). World war, 1939—Peace 43-3192

A preview of probable conditions in Europe when the Axis is eventually defeated, with suggestions for the immediate steps to be taken in the reconstruction period. Index.

Reviewed by S. J. Hemleben
Ann Am Acad 229:178 S '43 250w

"Motherwell's book is in every way admirable. The writing is simple and lucid; every observation is tethered to objective fact. . . His answers are never simple, but they are simply presented." R. H. Rovere
+ Book Week p2 Ap 18 '43 450w

Booklist 39:330 Ap 15 '43

Bookmark 4:13 Mr '43

Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 6 '43 650w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:4 Jl '43 50w

"Librarians would do well to read and recommend this thoughtful, nontechnical discussion built around conditions on our next 'Armistice Day.'" M. M. Kehl
+ Library J 68:34 Ja 1 '43 80w

"Motherwell's book is provoking and disarming. It is the challenge of a practical idealist who knows his subject and whose thinking is crystal-clear." M. W. Fodor
+ Nation 156:674 My 8 '43 900w

"Many of Mr. Motherwell's proposals are open to challenge. But the book as a whole is both stimulating and constructive." Albert Guérard
+ — New Repub 108:865 Je 28 '43 360w

Reviewed by John MacCormac
N Y Times p24 My 23 '43 550w

"Lots of holes, but a provocative contribution to discussions of the peace."
+ — New Yorker 19:80 Mr 13 '43 50w

"Mr. Motherwell is right on so many points that the only way to do justice to the ideas he throws out in disjointed, but always stimulating, fashion would be to quote from every other page. . . Where Mr. Motherwell tends to be vague, and to this reviewer unrealistic, is when he comes to discussing the actual political framework of Europe after the war." V. M. Dean
+ — Sat R of Lit 26:12 Mr 20 '43 950w

Reviewed by Marshall Bragdon
Springf'd Republican p6 Mr 6 '43 900w

"This study is packed with stimulating material, especially insofar as the immediate problems and aims of the postwar world are concerned. Where it falls somewhat short is in its analysis of long term propositions. One may well question what the author has to say on the coming federation of Europe and the new imperialism, on the Anglo-American union, the

MOTHERWELL, HIRAM—Continued
new balance of power, and the places assigned to Germany and Russia in the postwar world. But all these comments on the peace are too fragmentary to represent a real contribution to the broad theme of a postwar order. The main function of a discussion such as this is to raise questions and to help prepare a responsible public for the great task ahead of us. Here Mr. Motherwell performs a real service." Sigmund Neumann

+ — Survey G 32:359 S '43 450w

"Mr. Motherwell's statement of the inevitable premises to a new world order is admirable. No one else has presented the facts so succinctly or impressively. Whether his outline of the measures to be taken by the victorious powers can be commended as strongly is, however, another matter. . . The weakest chapter in the book is devoted to Russia. Possibly anything now written about that great country and people must necessarily be based on guesses and deductions from propagandistic utterances. . . Mr. Motherwell has written a careful book, rich in insight and bound to stimulate discussion." G. N. Shuster

+ — Weekly Book Review p6 Mr 28 '43 1150w

Wis Lib Bul 39:53 Ap '43

MOTOR; the automotive business magazine. Truck repair manual; editorial staff: Harold F. Blanchard [and others]. 914p il $8 Motor, 572 Madison av, N.Y.

629.28 Motor trucks 43-16110

"Material is arranged by parts or sections of the machine—engines, carburetors, governors, with a chart index for the makes of trucks and their major units. Illustrated with many drawings and photographs." Booklist

Booklist 39:364 My 15 '43
Cleveland Open Shelf p11 Jl '43
Library J 67:1067 D 1 '42 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 28:23 Ap '43

MOTT, FRANK LUTHER. Jefferson and the press. 65p $1 La. state univ. press

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas. Journalism 43-16530

Analysis of Jefferson's philosophy of the freedom of the press, and his own experiences with the newspapers of his time. Altho Jefferson was constantly attacked in the papers, and suffered acutely because of it, he refused to relinquish his belief in the necessity of freedom of the press.

"It is well written, interesting and informative, and should serve as excellent supplementary material for courses in American history and journalism."

+ Social Studies 35:48 Ja '44 60w

Reviewed by Gerald Johnson
Weekly Book Review p14 N 28 '43 480w

MOULT, THOMAS, ed. Best poems of 1942. 122p $2 Harcourt [6s Cape, J]

821.08 English poetry—Collections. American poetry—Collections

"Best poems of the year" taken from American, Irish, English and Canadian periodicals. The collection has been issued annually since 1922.

"A notable poem by Masefield, a graceful one by de la Mare, and excellent poems by Herbert Palmer, Anderson Scruggs, MacDonogh, Eiseley, Spender, Maillalieu, Eberhart, and Oscar Williams give the collection interest and value."

+ Atlantic 172:131 O '43 100w

Reviewed by Sterling North
Book Week p3 S 5 '43 400w

Booklist 40:42 O 1 '43

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 21 '43 400w

Reviewed by Wilfrid Gibson
Manchester Guardian p3 My 12 '43 20w

"No, Mr. Moult, no, no. Nobody, save yourself and a few, perhaps of your less sophisticated contributors will believe, really, that these are the best poems of 1942. I am sure better poems were written, and published, in 1942 than most of these, and—let us be fair—so, no doubt, were many that were worse. And my own hunch is that during the forties better poems were and are being written than were and are being published, and that these will, eventually come to light, though it may not be till some time after the duration." Rolfe Humphries

— Nation 157:214 Ag 21 '43 1450w

Reviewed by Delmore Schwartz
N Y Times p29 O 17 '43 400w

"It would be all too easy as well as ungracious to point out the gaps in the present book, but the lacunae are not too wide or frequent, and the editor has found bridges between yesterday and tomorrow." Louis Untermeyer

Sat R of Lit 26:26 D 11 '43 230w

"The poems that are concerned with the war are curiously interesting. They do not ignore the horror and futility of war, but in none of them can one find the biting irony prevalent in the poems written during and after the last war. Mr Moult's collection shows discrimination and taste in selection." E. S. P.

+ Springf'd Republican p6 Ag 9 '43 390w

MOULTON, HAROLD GLENN. New philosophy of public debt. 93p pa $1 Brookings

336.3 Debts, Public. Finance—U.S. 43-9283

"The traditional view has been that sound fiscal policy requires holding a nation's debt to as low a level as possible; but according to a new conception, which has gained acceptance in influential quarters, a continuous expansion of the public debt is necessary for prosperity, and the size of an internal public debt is immaterial. In this volume the new philosophy is analyzed with especial reference to its bearing on inflation." Management R

"Mr. Moulton's little book is well worth the few hours required to read it."

+ Eng N 131:112 Ag 12 '43 280w

Management R 32:276 Jl '43 70w

MOVIUS, HALLAM LEONARD. Irish stone age; its chronology, development and relationships. 338p il pl $7.50 Macmillan [30s Cambridge]

571.1 Stone age. Ireland—Antiquities 43-10247

"This book is a report of field work carried on from 1932 to 1936 by the Harvard Archeological Expedition to Ireland as a part of a research program inaugurated and directed by Professor E. A. Hooton. As such, its comprehensive treatment of the results of excavations at six Stone Age sites and its consideration of the natural environment of Stone Age man in Ireland will be of greatest interest and importance to the serious student of archeology. The work, however, touches so many scientific disciplines that it deserves the attention of a far wider audience than at first might appear." Scientific Bk Club R

Reviewed by E. E. Evans
Geog R 34:168 Ja '44 900w

"All who are concerned with European prehistory and the origins of Irish civilization will read this book with great profit."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:4 Ag '43 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p212 My 1 '43 500w

MOWAT, ROBERT BALMAIN, and SLOSSON, PRESTON WILLIAM. History of the English-speaking peoples. 577p maps $4 Oxford

942 Great Britain—History. U.S.—History 43-4252

"Two history professors, one English and one American, collaborate on a volume of five hundred and fifty pages, adequately described by its title. Begins with Anglo-Saxon invasion of Britain and ends with all English-speaking peoples fighting together against the Axis. Written primarily as a textbook, emphasis is on facts and the factors that produced the slow, steady, hardly realized uptide towards freedom and democracy in political, economic, and social life." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. P. Curtis
Am Hist R 49:81 O '43 440w

Booklist 39:385 Je 1 '43

Reviewed by J. N. Moody
Commonweal 38:206 Je 11 '43 900w

"Popular and readable. Recommended for readers unfamiliar with English and American history and as an excellent text for review purposes." G. W. Hill
+ Library J 68:82 Ja 15 '43 90w

Reviewed by Elliott Perkins
New Eng Q 16:687 D '43 380w

"This history has breadth and vision rare in a scholarly work." John Cournos
+ N Y Times p14 Jl 25 '43 310w

"History in progress is so untidy, uncertain, impromptu, and painful. Mowat and Slosson have done as good a job as any pedestrians could do with such disorderly and romantic matter. They were well equipped for the job: an Englishman who had taught in America and an American who has taught in Britain. Mr. Mowat, of Oxford and Bristol, was tragically killed in an airplane smash some months ago. Mr. Slosson, of Michigan, had to put the final touches; one assumes that the frequent exclamation marks are his, for the Oxford school of historians has less taste for what they call 'marks of admiration.' Yet somehow I almost like them; they seem symbolic of an amazing story." Christopher Morley
+ Sat R of Lit 26:29 Mr 20 '43 800w

Reviewed by T. W. Lamont
Sat R of Lit 26:8 D 11 '43 800w

"The book is admirably organized. Its arrangement is partly chronological and partly topical. . . The authors have condensed and selected without that easy dependence on generalization, half-truth and bias which so often characterizes general and popular history. It is well, particularly in these troubled times, to be reminded again that the culture, the traditions and the institutions of all the English-speaking peoples spring from a common heritage, however much they have changed in their journey around the globe. The authors' achievement is to have stressed this continuity, while giving due emphasis to the independent development of the different nations, that modified English traditions and law to suit their peculiar needs." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p8 My 4 '43 440w

Times [London] Lit Sup p20 Ja 8 '44 650w

"The great merit of this book is its timeliness. Now that war has united the English-speaking peoples more closely than ever before, it is both convenient and an aid to mutual understanding to have in one volume brief histories of Great Britain, the United States, the British Dominions, India, and the British Colonial Empire. The collaborative authorship is a recommendation in itself. . . The twelve black-and-white maps are unusually successful, partly because of their technical excellence and partly because they are such a relief from the map-maker's usual misleading delight in a red British Empire on the Mercator projection." J. B. Brebner
+ Weekly Book Review p18 Ap 11 '43 900w

"It is a long story and an exciting one, and the authors tell it well. Only occasionally does the narrative bog down into a sequence of text-book factual details. The sketch of Australia and New Zealand suffers in this respect. The account of India, and the Indian problem, on the other hand, could hardly be improved upon in the space allotted to it." Alexander Thomson
+ — Yale R n s 33:148 autumn '43 650w

MOWRER, ERNEST RUSSELL. Disorganization, personal and social. 682p il maps $3.75 Lippincott

301.15 Social problems. Social psychology. Psychology, Applied 42-16095

"The purpose of this book is to present a schematic analysis of the major problems of personal and social disorganization. The point of view is that of social psychology, which the author 'believes holds more promise for an understanding of the genesis of social disorganization than any alternative approach.'" Ann Am Acad

Reviewed by R. C. Fuller
Am J Soc 39:104 Jl '43 750w

"A great deal of material is well organized. The book is well written, with a directness of expression which is imperative to its main purpose. In more critical vein, certain comments or queries suggest themselves. (1) Is disorganization a process or a condition? . . (2) Is disorganization, which is essentially a concept of conflict (p. 245), the key to the study of social problems? . . These and other questions precipitated by this volume, however, are to be regarded not so much as criticisms of Dr. Mowrer's work, but rather as further emphases of its suggestive and stimulating value." J. H. S. Bossard
+ — Ann Am Acad 228:145 Jl '43 450w

MOYER, JAMES AMBROSE. Welding. 185p il $2.25 McGraw

671 Welding 42-19035

"The object of this book is to describe in a general way the various modern methods of welding metals, particularly iron and steel." (Pref) Partial contents: Welding with gas heat; Welding torches; Pressure gages and regulators; Oxyacetylene welding technique; Characteristics of electric-arc welding; Sources of current for arc welding; Electrodes and holders; Welded joints; Deposit of metal; Metallurgy of welding; Flame and electric metal cutting; Welding costs; Safety equipment. Index.

Booklist 39:28 O 1 '42

N Y New Tech Bks 27:63 O '43

MOYER, JAMES AMBROSE, and WOSTREL, JOHN FRANK. Industrial electricity and wiring. 3d ed 541p il $2.75 McGraw

621.3 Electric engineering. Electric wiring 43-6074

"This practical book on electric wiring is a third edition of a 1930 book dealing with wiring for light and power [2d ed, Book Review Digest, 1937]. This edition is brought up to date with a chapter on fluorescent lighting and another on radio interference. The topics covered are broad. They include power wiring for motors and generators, residential wiring, control apparatus, rewiring old buildings, etc." (Book Week) Index.

Book Week p11 My 30 '43 90w

Booklist 39:431 Je 15 '43

Library J 68:477 Je 1 '43 10w

"The authors are writing for electricians in the trade, and do so with clarity." G. B.
+ N Y Times p49 N 21 '43 120w

Reviewed by James Stokley
Weekly Book Review p18 Jl 25 '43 110w

MUELDER, HERMANN RICHARD, and DELO, DAVID MARION. Years of this land. 243p il maps $2.50 Appleton-Century

917.3 Anthropogeography—U.S. U.S.—History. Physical geography—U.S. 43-7107

"In swift but effective prose, authors paint picture of North America during the chilling Ice Ages; then, finally, retreat of the glaciers, return of warmth, and arrival of living creatures. By nineteenth century, mankind was on the march as never before toward a country rich in natural wealth—precious metals, coal and oil, forests—a land of amazing opportunity. Trade and industry developed against well-defined geographical background, which conditioned migration, frontier life, temporary and permanent settlements, and in the long run, political behavior." (Library J) Index.

MUELDER, H. R.—Continued

"A book as easy to read as it is important. . . We have, as a nation, more need and more opportunity in these day of war to perceive the relation of geographical factors to human affairs—both domestic and international—than ever before. And as a nation we are not too old to learn. 'Years of This Land' supplies clear directions for our study." J. F. Frederick
+ Book Week p4 Je 13 '43 420w
Booklist 39:445 Jl 1 '43

"This is historical and human geography, written in a style that invites reading."
+ Christian Century 60:694 Je 9 '43 70w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 22:161 O '43 10w

"Valuable contribution to history of United States." G. O. Kelley
+ Library J 68:287 Ap 1 '43 100w

"The authors know that faith still stands in 'the whirling winds, the pressing rocks, the warming sun, the rushing waters—without mercy, but without malice.' They set one thinking—proof of a book worth reading." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p8 Je 13 '43 850w

"While this volume has certain good features, it is too weak on the historical side to be really satisfactory." Jean Nevins
Sat R of Lit 26:13 Ag 7 '43 500w

"This interpretation of our nation's history in the light of geography and geology, by Professors Muelder and Delo, respectively of the history and geology departments of Knox College, is a timely addition to the layman's library. Through its perspective, we may realize our place not only in this hemisphere but in our global relations." A. H. Compton & others
+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:1 My '43 1450w
Wis Lib Bul 39:85 Je '43

MUIR, PETER. This is India; maps by Frances Muir. 237p $2.50 Doubleday
915.4 India. World war, 1939—India
43-16448

An American newspaper correspondent after fifteen months of travel and observation in India here sets forth what he has learned about India's social, economic and political problems.

Reviewed by Sudhindra Bose
Book Week p7 N 28 '43 360w
Booklist 40:164 Ja 1 '44

Reviewed by Frances Gunther
New Repub 110:60 Ja 10 '44 70w

"No honest observer can deny that India is a complex problem. But Mr. Muir has added confusion to complexity by his seriously distorted version of existing conditions." K. L. Mitchell
— Weekly Book Review p24 D 5 '43 700w

MUKERJEE, RADHAKAMAL (RADHAKAMALA MUKHOPADHYAYA). The political economy of population. 467p 7s 6d Longmans [English publication]
312 Population

"[This] volume is based mainly on a series of lectures given at Cambridge University in 1937, since revised and expanded. Substantial sections have been published in sociological journals of India, Europe, and the United States. . . The central theme is the question of maximum human welfare in relation to available material resources. Pointing out that Malthusian concepts of population are not acceptable, the author proceeds to sketch several fundamental factors such as food supply and conservation and then to consider various elements in the theory of optimum population." Am Pol Sci R

"Professor Mukerjee's book is remarkable in that it attempts to deal with the population problem from the point of view of so many important fields of knowledge. . . Whatever may be said in regard to the economic optimum as a basis for population planning, the author's general welfare concept of the social and ethical optimum is still vague and uncertain. . . Many statements in this book seem either false or exaggerated." L. R. Chenault
+ — Am Econ R 33:719 S '43 1650w

"In a sense, the author speaks for Asia's teeming millions, restricted and exploited by Western imperialism. Yet his arguments have a wider application. His proposals are sensible as well as far-reaching. As he himself recognizes they require great social and political changes on the part of the United States and Great Britain, not to mention other nations. Once more the question involved is the choice between the pursuit of power for national and imperial advantage and the adoption of enlightened and humane internationalism." G. L. La Fuze
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:566 Je '43 430w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert
Foreign Affairs 21:577 Ap '43 30w

Reviewed by E. B. Reuter
J Pol Econ 51:569 D '43 500w

"A book of first rate interest, this. The reader should not be deterred by lengthy preliminary skirmishings with methodological polysyllables. In works of 'sociology' these are only too often an academic façade screening an empty mind. Mr. Mukerjee has a very active mind, nourished by wide reading and sage enough to select out of a wide field what are the key problems of the future. He is indeed too lavish in repetition, and although he has learning, scientific instinct and a keen sense of relevance, he has counter-balancing failings. He lacks systematising power; he passes too easily from one interesting point to another; he presents a feast of stimulating ideas, but is not patient or self-critical enough to weld them into anything like a permanent contribution to his subject. And he is a little slipshod." R. F. Harrod
+ — Spec 170:549 Je 11 '43 1000w

MULK-RAJ ANAND. See Anand, M. R.

MULLER, HERBERT JOSEPH. Science and criticism; the humanistic tradition in contemporary thought. 303p $3.75 Yale univ. press
144 Humanism—20th century. Science—Philosophy. Criticism
A43-1190

"The Associate Professor of English in Purdue University looks at modern science from the point of view of the humanist. He describes his objective as 'an effort to make really available, for the purpose of literary criticism, the revolutionary findings in the natural and social sciences, with which critics are generally familiar, but of which they generally make only superficial, incidental, or erratic use.' Obviously, he seeks to appraise the esthetic, philosophic, and spiritual impact of science upon the life of man rather than merely the economic, materialistic and mechanistic revolution that it is producing." Scientific Bk Club R

Reviewed by H. M. Kallen
Ann Am Acad 228:143 Jl '43 500w

"When it comes to the relation of modern science to religion, Dr. Muller falls into a pit he has elsewhere successfully detoured. All at once his tone becomes dogmatic. . . How to account for this conventional but myopic and diluted treatment of contemporary religion on the part of a professor of English at Purdue who otherwise shows himself so competent and helpful an analyst and critic of current thought I do not know, for I am unacquainted with his personal background and history. Perhaps when he shall have had opportunity to make as thorough a study of the changes in theology as he has of the changes in the other sciences, on the basis of a fresh appraisal without reference to earlier personal experience, he may want to provide a new climax for his otherwise admirable book and make available to his 'literary fellows' some fresh leads from religion and in this way help to bring literature and religion together once more." A. C. McGiffert, Jr.

+ — Christian Century 60:546 My 5 '43 1050w

"The book as a whole provides evidence of a wide range of knowledge, often not a little bewildering in its ramifications, and in its pages the statements and implications of humanism are well set forth, whether or not the reader is prepared to accept them." T. L. L.

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 15 '43 650w

"The book is unusual for bringing together a great breadth of reading. It contains a multitude of references and quotations, always pertinently selected, from scientists, popularizers of science, philosophers, literary artists, and critics. The writer's style is clear and arresting. And the whole work is pervaded by a good conception of what the sciences are trying to do. Those who view the sciences broadly, from a literary or cultural perspective, are often tempted to distort them—to divorce general principles from the phenomena they are used to explain, and consequently to find half-mythical pictures and metaphors where they should find cognitive achievements. If Muller is sometimes overly fond of broad conceptions, it is to his credit that he avoids this more serious error, and often writes in a way that helps to dispel it." C. L. Stevenson

+ J Philos 41:21 Ja 6 '44 900w

Reviewed by Lionel Trilling

New Repub 109:292 Ag 30 '43 800w

Reviewed by Reinhold Niebuhr

N Y Times p26 O 31 '43 900w

"[Written] with a fine felicity of phrase and a brilliant clarity of insight. . . The professional scientist, as well as the layman, may ponder his findings with salutary effect."

+ Scientific Bk Club R 14:2 Ap '43 390w

Reviewed by W. M. Sale, Jr.

Yale R n s 33:151 autumn '43 1100w

MULLER, RALPH HOLCOMBE; GARMAN, RAYMOND LEROY, and DROZ, MARCEL EMILE. Experimental electronics. 330p $4.65; to colleges $3.50 Prentice-Hall

537.53 Electrons 42-25715

"For background courses in experimental electronics, designed to give a working familiarity with the non-communication uses of electron tubes, this book by three professors of chemistry will serve admirably as a text. Engineers, too, will find it interesting and helpful. Discussions of theory are not as complete as those found in standard works on electronics, but they are clear and adequate. In the 11 chapters which follow the introduction, there are 70 experiments with triodes, photoelectric cells, multigrid tubes, gaseous tubes, phototubes, tube voltmeters, oscillators, untuned amplifiers, and cathode-ray tubes. There are numerous problems for student consumption and many literature references for further study." (Chem & Met Eng) Index.

"This book should be welcomed by every chemist who, without benefit of formal instruction in electronics, has ever struggled with the well-nigh mysterious vagaries of electronic devices. Its three chemist-authors approach their subject with the practical needs of the research worker in chemistry, engineering, and allied fields in mind, rather than from the viewpoint of the electronics specialist and radio engineer, and 'to supply definite practical information on the characteristics and non-communication applications of electron tubes.' They have succeeded well in their aim." J. J. Lingane

+ Am Chem Soc J 65:298 F '43 330w

+ Chem & Met Eng 50:203 F '43 150w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:8 Ja '43

"This is a book which can well serve as a laboratory manual in experimental electronics. . . The book suffers to some extent by attempting to cover too much ground. . . A few inaccuracies are to be found. . . These criticisms are minor ones. The book will be found useful in the elementary electronics laboratory. The laboratory worker in physics and chemistry will find it useful as a reference but the experienced electronics engineer will want something more profound." Walker Bleakney

+ — R of Scientific Instruments 14:99 Ap '43 300w

"The fundamentals are covered very well and the book should be an invaluable aid in physical and chemical laboratory work." James Stokley

+ Weekly Book Review p19 Jl 11 '43 150w

MULLIGAN, JOHN ALOYSIUS. Handbook of brick masonry construction. 526p il $5 McGraw

693.2 Brick construction 43-365

"A comprehensive treatise with many illustrations of bricklaying and construction, but devoted chiefly to the materials used. It includes, besides several varieties of brick, structural and architectural terra cotta, hollow tile, and composite masonry. Tables of costs and estimates of quantities and of labor." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 39:271 Mr 1 '43

Eng N 130:112 Ap 8 '43 150w

Library J 68:130 F 1 '43 10w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:24 Ap '43

MUNK, FRANK. Legacy of Nazism; the economic and social consequences of totalitarianism. 288p $2.50 Macmillan

330.943 Germany—Economic policy 43-10427

"Author is native of Czechoslovakia, holder of doctorate in commerce from Prague University, recognized expert on distribution and consumption. [In this book he gives a] picture of how Germany has built up its economy —only incidentally as a war measure—as permanent policy for Germanization of Europe. Shifts, extermination, and debasing of populations; physical and financial looting, and extinguishing of local ownership of banks and industry; cartelization under party control." Library J

"The book is at its best when it provides factual information, but in that respect it is on the whole disappointing. . . Whatever its merits and demerits, Dr. Munk's book provides an idea of the complexity of problems which will have to be faced in reconstructing Europe after the war. For that reason, whether or not one agrees with the main drift of the author's argument, the book deserves careful reading. There is much scope, however, for another treatment of the subject, better documented, and less subjective." M. A. Heilperin

— + Am Pol Sci R 37:1121 D '43 900w

"The author has surveyed a wide field of contemporary source material, and makes a valuable contribution, particularly in Chapters VII and VIII, to the information available in English on the financial and corporate techniques of Nazi expansion. The structure of the work leaves something to be desired." William Orton

+ — Am Soc R 8:730 D '43 800w

Reviewed by Maxine Sweezy

Ann Am Acad 231:166 Ja '44 550w

Atlantic 172:131 S '43 100w

"Munk's is a careful, scholarly socio-economic survey of the shape in which we may expect to find post-Nazi Europe. . . [It] has many of the weaknesses implicit in its form. It is frequently overscholarly for the general reader, with too many footnotes, too many statistics and too many authorities, and has a long dull stretch of undiluted economic documentation toward the end." S. E. Hyman

+ — Book Week p1 Jl 18 '43 550w

Booklist 40:40 O 1 '43

MUNK, FRANK—Continued

"The best thing about the book is the research material that has gone into it. For when one comes to consider, what does it all add up to, how well has the author digested his material? the answer is not so flattering to Dr. Munk. It ends no better than any other liberal exposition of the 'great new revolutionary era' we are now entering into. In other words, in interpreting the material he has assembled, Dr. Munk proves to be just as much a prisoner of liberal capitalist thinking as any of the statesmen who now harangue us about the nebulous better world they have conjured up for the duration." E. A. Beder

Canadian Forum 23:189 N '43 1100w

Reviewed by J. R. Lewis

Current Hist 5:74 S '43 900w

Reviewed by R. G. Woolbert

Foreign Affairs 22:156 O '43 30w

"Pre-Nazi Europe is gone forever. Here is an understandable account of how it happened and a preview of possible systems and controls that may be expected to restore Europe to working basis. Heartily recommended." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 68:529 Je 15 '43 110w

"Dr. Munk's study . . . is a thorough reconnaissance of a huge, complex economic area now in enemy occupation. As a collection of data it is invaluable, even though it might have been improved by more systematic organization, while the opinions it expresses, if sometimes open to debate, are always suggestive." Keith Hutchison

+ — Nation 157:618 N 27 '43 600w

Reviewed by Hiram Motherwell

New Repub 109:261 Ag 23 '43 850w

Reviewed by John Storck

N Y Times p14 Ag 1 '43 550w

Reviewed by W. N. Loucks

Pol Sci Q 58:622 D '43 850w

"Like not a few other recent writers on the world's ills, Dr. Munk may be indicted for a tendency to dig wells without drawing water. Sometimes he is rather blatantly partisan, and his remarks on politics as distinguished from economics are now and then fairly naive. The reader who is not deflected from the main argument will, however, find this intelligently presented and well buttressed." G. N. Shuster

+ — Sat R of Lit 26:8 Jl 31 '43 650w

Reviewed by Karl Loewenstein

Springf'd Republican p7e O 3 '43 1000w

Reviewed by Toni Stolper

Survey G 32:407 O '43 650w

Reviewed by W. R. Deuel

Weekly Book Review p2 Ag 29 '43 850w

MUNOZ, FRANCISCO J., and CHARIPPER, HARRY ADOLPH. Microscope and its use. 334p il $2.50 Chemical pub. co.

578 Microscope and microscopy 43-11652

"A history of the evolution of the microscope from before Galileo to the electron microscope still being improved today. All parts of the microscope are explained and the importance of proper illumination of the subject is given careful attention. The microtome, explained as a glorified slicing machine for making specimens, is described in detail. Two special microscopes come in for attention, the metallurgical microscope and the polarizing microscope. All necessary information on the use of the microscope is contained in this book." Book Week

"A fascinating history." L. E. Grinter

+ Book Week p8 Ag 8 '43 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:48 Jl '43

"There are more than 100 well-chosen illustrations, clearly reproduced on coated stock. The authors have included an interesting historical chapter on the evolution of the microscope (Anthony Van Leeuwenhoek does not appear on the scene until Page 5) and a comprehensive glossary of technical terms." H. M. Davis

+ N Y Times p42 S 26 '43 240w

MURDOCH, ANGUS. Boom copper; the story of the first U.S. mining boom. 255p il $3 Macmillan

622.343 Copper mines and mining. Keweenaw Peninsula, Michigan 43-3533

A popularly written, anecdotal history of the mining boom in the 1840s on the Keweenaw Peninsula of Upper Michigan. Index.

Reviewed by Jack Conroy

Book Week p5 Mr 21 '43 700w

Booklist 39:328 Ap 15 '43

"Recommended, not only for history of copper mining in Michigan, but also as study of frontier life in westward expansion." Walter Hausdorfer

+ Library J 67:1105 D 15 '42 110w

"Mr. Murdoch's book, like most of the volumes that have been written concerning California and the Comstock Lode, provides pleasant entertainment but only a limited amount of history." R. W. Paul

+ — New Eng Q 16:347 Je '43 350w

N Y New Tech Bks 28:24 Ap '43

"[The story of Calumet & Hecla] is the natural high point of a saga that Mr. Murdoch has told informally and well." J. K. Hutchins

+ N Y Times p26 Ap 4 '43 420w

"A first class book. . . A readable one-volume history of the Copper Country has been needed for a long time. Mr. Murdoch's book, which is also well illustrated, fills the order in fine style." Stewart Holbrook

+ Weekly Book Review p7 Mr 28 '43 1050w

Wis Lib Bul 39:51 Ap '43

MURPHY, ARTHUR EDWARD. The uses of reason. 346p $3 Macmillan

121 Reason. Rationalism. Reality 43-16321

"Analysis and defense of rational thinking and of rational action. Includes valuable clarification of worth and worthlessness of many present-day trends and of their interpreters. For example, in Part III, 'Reason and Social Action,' is a brilliant analysis and sound refutation of Burnham's Managerial Revolution." Library J

"In summary, Prof. Murphy makes a very clear and able statement of the uses of reason defined as science as applied to issues of social significance. But he also insists with a dogged petulance on the need for an ill-defined nonscientific 'reason' which he seems to cherish in the name of philosophy. In a word, he loves nonscientific philosophy the way he might love his grandmother, while he loves science as he might love a vivacious girl of whom his grandmother does not altogether approve." Wendell Johnson

Book Week p10 N 21 '43 700w

"Difficult problem well, and in parts wittily, presented. Liberal point of view. Though hardly a prospective best seller, it should be read by many." Rudolf Hirsch

+ Library J 68:724 S 15 '43 70w

Social Studies 35:94 F '44 20w

MURPHY, MRS MABEL (ANSLEY). When Jefferson was young; pictured by Harve Stein. 262p $2 Whitman, A.

Jefferson, Thomas—Juvenile literature 42-51971

Fictionized biography of Thomas Jefferson up to 1772 when he married Martha Skelton. His school days and his early experiments in society and in politics are described. For upper grades and high school. Bibliography.

"A simple but winsome picture." R. L.

+ Springf'd Republican p7e Ap 18 '43 130w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

Weekly Book Review p8 Mr 14 '43 180w

MURPHY, MARK. 83 days; the survival of Seaman Izzi. 124p il $1.75 Dutton

940.548173 Izzi, Basil Dominic. World war, 1939—Personal narratives, American 43-12981

Eighty-three days after their ship was sunk in the South Atlantic young Basil Izzi, a second class seaman of the United States navy, and his two surviving companions, were picked up by a PC boat from the frail raft to which they had clung during those long weeks. Two others had succumbed to thirst and starvation. This story of their experiences is told largely in Izzi's own words.

"Mark Murphy's book is substantially superior to its several predecessors. In part that superiority is due to the more grueling nature of the experience he describes; in largest part, however, the superiority of the book is due to the nature of its writing." S. E. Hyman
+ Book Week p6 S 26 '43 650w

Booklist 40:76 N 1 '43

Reviewed by Austin Stevens
N Y Times p8 O 3 '43 500w

New Yorker 19:86 S 25 '43 70w

Springf'd Republican p7e S 26 '43 550w

"'Eighty-three Days' is good reporting, a grim but moving story." Phil Richards
+ Weekly Book Review p23 S 19 '43 750w

MURPHY, MARY ELIZABETH. British war economy, 1939-1943; with an introd. by Herman Finer. 403p $2.50 Professional & tech. press

330.942 World war, 1939—Economic aspects—Great Britain. Great Britain—Economic policy 43-6977

"The purpose of this study is to acquaint American students of economics, government officials, and lay readers with Britain's economic mobilization. More specifically, the author endeavors to describe the various controls over production, consumption, prices, manpower, food, finance, transportation, and foreign trade. The study is the most comprehensive that has appeared to date." Ann Am Acad

"The volume contains a great deal of information but its usefulness is vitiated by poor organization, inconsistencies, and many misstatements of fact." Jules Backman
— + Am Econ R 33:673 S '43 900w

"It is surprising that while still in medias res the author has been able to give such a well-rounded and integrated account of the British war economy. While the style seems somewhat on the dull side, that is probably due to the fact that the book is so packed with factual material." C. H. Pritchett
+ Am Pol Sci R 37:534 Je '43 410w

